PART I

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this report is to make a record of the progress of public education in the Commonwealth of Kentucky during the biennium beginning July 1, 1935, and ending June 30, 1937.

The adoption of a new school code in 1934 paved the way for the development of a more adequate program of education for the different school districts throughout the state. This is especially true for the rural schools of the county school districts. With the idea of providing more adequate facilities for the districts, based on their needs, A Study of Local School Units was made during the year 1936-37. This study was made in addition to the regular work usually carried on by the Department and with assistance from the Office of Education, Washington, D. C. It served as a program of research and partial supervision of the school units during this period. It is probably the most outstanding piece of work done by the Department during the biennium. The purpose of the study, the information secured, and the recommendations made for future activities of each district, together with suggestions as to how each may be reached, are contained in a special report available in the Department of Education. For that reason, only a short statement concerning the study is contained in this report. Brief reports from the different divisions of the Department reflect the activities of these divisions during the last two years.

Fewer appeals to the State Board of Education, less number of requests for opinions from the Attorney General, and a decrease in the number of school cases coming to the Court of Appeals indicate that the school code does provide ample opportunity for proper operation of the school system at the present time. For that reason I request, with the approval of school friends of the state, that the school code remain unchanged until new conditions render it less effective.

STUDY OF LOCAL SCHOOL UNITS

In the month of February, 1936, the State Department of Education was notified by United States Commissioner of Education, J. W. Studebaker, of the authorization of a federal project involving the study of local school units in Kentucky, with an appropriation of approximately $65,000 by the Federal Government for the prosecution of this study. This project was immediately accepted by the Department of Education and work was begun in perfecting an organization. A supervisory and administrative staff of federal employees, all of the staff members of the State Department of Education, professors of school administration from the University of Kentucky and other state institutions of higher learning, and school leaders throughout the state were all actively engaged on the project. Statisticians were employed, data were collected, analyzed and interpreted, maps showing the present and proposed school programs were prepared and meetings were held with groups of local citizens, for the purpose of discussing findings and recommendations of the study, in practically all of the counties of the state.

The purposes of the study were to briefly trace the development of the program of public education in Kentucky from its infancy up to the present time, to take an inventory of existing educational conditions, to evaluate these conditions in the light of desirable educational standards, to discover wherein present conditions fail to meet such desirable standards and to plan a definite, desirable, long-time program of improvement toward which to work. Special emphasis was placed on the study of local school organization and administration for the purpose of determining the possibilities for organizing more satisfactory schools, school attendance areas, and local units of school administration.

The study revealed definite trends in recent years toward larger elementary and high school organizations, the gradual elimination of one-teacher schools, more school transportation at public expense, a great increase in high school enrollment with the elementary school enrollment gradually approaching a constant figure, more adequate and serviceable school buildings, a substantial increase in state support for public education and fewer and larger school administrative units.

The study of status was based on the school year 1934-35. Some of the more pertinent findings revealed by the study of school conditions for that year are given below:

1. The total population of Kentucky increased 9.5 per cent from 1920 to 1935, whereas, the average daily attendance in public schools increased 43 per cent during the same period.

2. There were 7,592 school buildings in Kentucky in that year, of which number 5,367 housed one-teacher elementary school organizations, and 995 housed two-teacher elementary school organizations.

3. The average daily attendance in one-teacher schools was 69.7 per cent of the enrollment, while in elementary schools served by four or more teachers the average daily attendance was 80.1 per cent.

4. Fifty-five (55) per cent of the teachers serving in one-teacher schools had two or more years of college training, whereas, 78 per cent of those teaching in elementary schools, four teachers in size or larger, had this amount of training.

5. It was shown that as a general rule the larger the elementary school attendance area, the better the school building and equipment that was provided.

6. There were 848 high schools in the state, only 222 of which employed six or more teachers.

7. The training of the typical high school teacher consisted of graduation from college and it was discovered that the better trained and more experienced teachers and those with the greatest tenure served in the larger high schools.

8. The course of study in the small high school was found to consist of purely traditional college preparatory subjects, while the larger high schools had a rather extensive program of work, including such vocational subjects as home economics, vocational agriculture, and industries and trades.

9. The wealth of local school districts varied from $354 per census child in the most impoverished district to $11,115 in the wealthiest district. There were 60 school districts with an assessable wealth of less than $1,000 per census child.

10. Fifty-four (54) per cent of the county elementary school teachers and 11 per cent of the high school teachers received less than the legal minimum salary of $75 per month. In the independent districts only 16 per cent of the elementary teachers and 6 per cent of the high school teachers failed to receive the legal minimum salary of $75 per month.

11. There was a great discrepancy between instructional cost in the elementary grades and that in the high school grades. Based on the average daily attendance, annual instructional cost in the elementary grades was $20.62 and in the high school grades $48.30.

12. The total indebtedness of all school districts in the state was found to be extremely small in comparison with that of other states.

Certain minimum desirable standards were established by those in charge of the study and the evaluation of existing attendance areas and administrative units was made in terms of such standards. The general standards set up provided that no elementary school should be considered as permanent in which a teacher was called upon to teach more than one grade of elementary school work and that no high school should be considered as a desirable permanent high school with a faculty of less than six teachers. The proposed reorganization of the school system of the state on the basis of these desirable standards revealed the following facts:

1. Whereas 7,491 elementary schools were in use in the school year 1934-35, only 3,194 should be considered as permanent schools, and of this number approximately 1,700 one-teacher elementary schools were were included, because of the topography of the land and the natural barriers which exist in certain sections of the state.

2. Only 328 of the 848 high schools of the state should be permanently maintained. Of this number 72 would be smaller than six teachers in size, due to the sparseness of population and the lack of satisfactory roads over which transportation could be effected.

3. Sixty (60) small independent school districts of the state do not in themselves have a sufficient number of children to operate a desirable educational program and recommendation was made that such districts voluntarily merge with larger contiguous districts.

4. No changes were recommended in the present law which provides for the voluntary merger of school districts by concurrent action of the boards of education involved.

5. Recommendations were made that ultimately the state must set up a school fund that will provide a per capita of approximately $25, in order to guarantee a minimum educational program for every school child in the state, and that local boards of education be permitted to expend such state school monies for purposes other than for teachers' salaries.

6. All local boards of education should be given authority to levy a tax rate not to exceed $1.50 per $100 of assessable wealth subject to school taxation, plus a sufficient sinking fund levy to meet debt service on voted bonds.

The advantages of the program proposed in the study of local school units as stated in the report of the study are as follows:

1. Every school district in the state would have enough children within itself to provide a desirable elementary and high school program without depending upon annual tuition contracts with neighboring school districts.

2. The proposed program would reduce overhead expenses in many instances where excessive administrative costs obtain, due to the small number of school children in the administrative unit.

3. The proposed program would lead to ease of administration and would result in a more equitable distribution of the tax burden for school purposes.

4. Such a program would provide more equal educational opportunities.

5. Since the proposed program would result in more efficient school service and would reduce present inequalities, it would be more logical for the state to assume a greater portion of the burden of financing the educational program.

It is felt that the study of local school units in Kentucky has done much toward the stimulation of local school officials and citizens to study the existing school conditions in their respective districts throughout the entire state, and to the planning of a more desirable educational program for the future. It appears further that this study has made the public "school conscious", and that much good will result both through the reorganization of school attendance areas and school administrative units, and from the state more nearly carrying out the mandate of the State Constitution to "provide for an efficient system of common schools throughout the state."

SCHOOL BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

The Division of School Buildings and Grounds of the State Department of Education was created July 1, 1930. For five years it was financed by the General Education Board. Since July 1, 1935, this Division has been financed by the State. During the past biennium its personnel has consisted of a director and a secretary. Because of the additional duties imposed upon this Division as a result of the devasting flood of 1937, the General Education Board has provided for the employment of an assistant director and an architect and traveling expenses for same, until January 1, 1938.

The functions of the Division, about which its activities have centered for the past biennium, are as follows:

(1) To assist boards of education in formulating schoolhousing programs consistent with their needs and resources.
(2) To assist in the selection of school sites.
(3) To furnish plans and specifications for smaller school buildings ranging from one to four teachers in size.
(4) To furnish unit layouts of special rooms, such as study halls, science laboratories and recitation rooms, and home economics laboratories.
(5) To prepare suggestive floor plans for larger school buildings.
(6) To examine and approve or disapprove architects' plans and specifications for school buildings, in accordance with Section 4384-23, Kentucky Statutes.
(7) To advise with school officials concerning remodeling or adding to existing school buildings.
(8) To furnish information and render assistance on school housekeeping problems.
(9) To advise school officials concerning the program of the Federal Government relative to the financing of schoolhouse construction.

The biennium ended July 30, 1937, witnessed the greatest amount of schoolhouse construction in any similar period of time in the history of the Commonwealth. This huge program, of course, was made possible by the large grants of money to the various school districts by the Public Works Administration and the Works Progress Administration. During the two-year period this Division has rendered services on a total of 240 school building projects, involving a total outlay of $11,805,511. Of this amount $6,107,074 was contributed by the various school districts, while the remaining $5,698,437 came as a direct grant or gift from the Federal Government. The P. W. A. and W. P. A. programs will be continued through the school year 1937-38. A rather large schoolhouse program for the coming year has been prepared and is pending before these two agencies. A conservative estimate made by this Division indicates that the total cost of needed school buildings in this State is approximately $30,000,000. School officials are being encouraged to exert every effort to take advantage of government aid while it is available.

During the greater part of the biennium, the Division of School Buildings and Grounds had direct charge of a study of school conditions in the State, which study was financed by the Federal Government. This study resulted in a definite, tangible program for each school district in the State toward which to work over a long period of years. This study further showed the amount and estimated cost of needed schoolhouse construction throughout the entire State.

One of the outstanding needs of public education in Kentucky, at the present time, is adequate physical facilities for the children of the State. It is indeed gratifying to those interested in the development of the school system of the Commonwealth to witness the great advances made in schoolhouse construction as shown by this summary of activities for the past biennium.

CENSUS AND ATTENDANCE

The Division of Census and Attendance was established July 1, 1934, for the purpose of supervising the enforcement of the compulsory attendance and school census laws within the several school districts of the Commonwealth. A report of the activities of this Division will be concerned largely with the results of the work of the two hundred and twenty attendance officers in the various school districts in the State.

The following table gives a partial picture of the results of the work that has been done since July 1, 1934.

	1933-34	1936-37	Increase	Per Cent Increase
Census	721,265	790,032	68,767	9.5
Enrollment	609,684	635,109	25,425	4.17
A. D. A.	471,920	501,566	29,646	6.28

The per cent of increase in the census, enrollment and average daily attendance in 1936-37 over 1933-34 can be attributed in the main to the work of the attendance officers. It is very probable that the per cent of increase in enrollment and average daily attendance would be as great as the per cent of increase in the census if data for these items were available from all private and parochial schools. It is of particular significance that the gain in average daily attendance in 1936-37 over 1935-36 is larger than at any time since the first year of the operation of the new Compulsory Attendance Law.

During the biennium ending June 30, 1937, attendance officers throughout the State have made 506,474 visits to homes, schools, business firms and other agencies. This large number of visits clearly indicates that every possible effort is being made to carry out that section of the Statute, which places upon the attendance officer the responsibility of acquainting the school with the home, and the home with the work of the school and in seeking to ascertain the causes of irregular attendance and the elimination of these causes. In addition to these activities a great deal of time has been given to keeping accurate census records, sending of transfer notices, attending teachers' meetings, contacting public and private charitable organizations, and numerous other activities. It is of especial significance to note the effort that has been made by the attendance officers to provide the necessary food and clothing for those children who lack the necessities of life and are thereby forced to be out of school and to become irregular in their attendance. This phase of the work is of utmost importance and the work along this line has produced gratifying results.

Every effort has been made by the Division of Census and Attendance to assist individual attendance officers and superintendents with the numerous problems arising from the enforcement of the census and attendance laws. This has resulted in a considerable amount of travel and numerous conferences.

FINANCE

The Division of Finance has operated on the principle that the records and reports pertaining to finances are adequate and supply the necessary information for practically all purposes; therefore, no change in the general plan has been made. It is believed that this is wise because radical changes would lead to confusion and would result in inaccurate and misleading reports. Until such time as the present system fails to arrive at the necessary information, it is recommended that no radical changes be made.

As a summary of the work of this Division, it is pointed out here the reports and forms for which this Division is responsible. All districts make the following reports and records to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction and his State Board of Education:

The general budget, which under authority of Section 4399-40, of the Kentucky Statutes, shall be presented to the county court clerk on or before March 20 of each year. This budget shows as accurately as is possible at that time the anticipated receipts and expenditures together with the necessary levy to produce the required sum. It has been found that these general budgets should be given much careful study. They are all checked carefully for accuracy, a careful inspection is made to see that the legal provisions are met, debt allocations are checked against the obligations of the districts, and all budgets carrying sinking fund levies are analyzed to see if it is legal to have a sinking fund levy in the particular district and to see that the proper sums are transferred to the sinking fund account to be held inviolate for the purpose for which the levy was voted. After any necessary adjustments have been made and approved by the district board of education, the general budget is then presented to the State Board of Education for inspection and judgment.

The next report due is the annual financial report, which is an itemized summary of all receipts and disbursements together with accurate information covering any and all outstanding indebtedness.

These reports are carefully inspected, analyzed, and checked for mechanical accuracy and scope of information.

The next report to be presented is the close working budget, which should follow closely the provisions contained in the general budget; however, because of the fact that this report is not due until after July 1, it is possible to know more accurately the incomes expected and to foresee more definitely the necessary expenditures for the current school year. The working budget is much more detailed in its aspect than the general budget, making it possible to show the source of all receipts and the expenditure necessities for all disbursements. This report, when approved by the State Board of Education, becomes virtually the control sheet for the financial operations of the district board of education.

The salary schedule follows the working budget. This report will show the name of each teacher, the position, the academic training, the teaching experience, and the special type of work done. In addition to this information, it will show the finished monthly salary to be paid to every teacher in the Commonwealth. This report, after having been checked for principle and accuracy, is presented to the State Board of Education for approval or rejection. If approved, the salary schedule becomes the basis for the payment of salaries to teachers.

Considerable advancement has been made in the proper protection of school funds through the requirement of adequate bonds of treasurer and sufficient and good bond for the depository institution. It is both desirable and interesting to point out that the number of personal surety bonds covering school district treasurers has been reduced to 113. The treasurers of the other school districts have secured corporate bonds. For depository protection, only 97 districts depend either partially or wholly on bonds of a personal surety nature. It is believed that depository bonds which have deposited collateral to cover any liability incurred are much better than personal surety bonds.

Each district submits monthly financial reports which, if properly built and continued, virtually form the basis for the annual financial report, which is due after June 30 of each year.

The Division of Finance is active in inspecting and making post audits of the financial affairs of the various school districts. This is a type of service that should be rendered to each district in the state at least once annually. Although it has been impossible to audit all districts in the state each year, as many have been inspected as has been possible with the present staff.

FREE TEXTBOOKS

Public eduation in Kentucky has maintained during the last sixty years a slow but steady progress in the development from a primitive system conducted largely by private individuals or religious institutions. At the present time there is a public school, although in some instances it may be a poor one, placed within a reasonable distance to every child in the Commonwealth. Adequate buildings, grounds and other necessary equipment are being supplied at public expense. Along with these other services by the State came FREE TEXTBOOKS. Educators and progressive minded citizens have long since pointed out that free textbooks were essential if our schools should offer an equal opportunity in educational advantages.

The General Assembly, in 1928, passed a Free Textbook Law to provide free books for all pupils in Grades 1–8 inclusive in the State. This law was inoperative until 1934 because the General Assembly failed to provide an appropriation with which to purchase the books. In 1934, an appropriation of $500,000 per annum was made and free books for the first three grades and a part of the fourth were purchased.

The "Appropriation Act" of 1934 authorized the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, subject to the approval of the State Board of Education, to adopt such rules and regulations for the purchase and distribution of free books, beginning at the first grade, provided that in their judgment such rules should not be in conflict with the law (Sec. 4421c-7, Kentucky Statutes). The Free Textbook movement is now four years old in Kentucky.

In 1934-35, one million, three hundred thirty-three thousand, four hundred and two (1,333,402) books were purchased and delivered. These books were bought at wholesale prices and supplied approximately 300,000 pupils.

In 1935-36, one million, ninety-three thousand, three hundred and sixteen (1,093,316) books supplied the replacements, part of the fourth and one section of the fifth grade.

In 1936-37, one million, forty-one thousand, nine hundred and fifty-two (1,041,952) textbooks made the necessary replacements in the lower grades, supplied the second section of the fifth grade and one section of the sixth grade.

The economy of State bought free textbooks has shown during the four years the wisdom of the movement. There are approximately 500,000 pupils in Grades 1–6 inclusive. These pupils now have a full supply of free textbooks at a cost less than $1.00 per pupil per year. This is probably about one-third the amount it would cost the parent to buy the books for this number of students. The average cost of free books per grade at State contract price is $3.49 and since the State is supplying these books at less than $1.00 per pupil, the average life of a free textbook is from 3½ to 4 years.

The State last year did a valuable service for the children and parents of the Commonwealth when in January the flood waters of the Ohio River destroyed thousands of homes, businesses and scores of school buildings with all the books they contained. Approximately 50,000 free books were swept away or rendered unusable by the flood. Free textbooks were purchased and delivered to all schools that suffered book losses by flood, and these books were ready for distribution by the time these school buildings were ready to be used for class work.

Free textbooks, it is believed, have been a vital factor in increasing attendance and are necessary for efficient classroom teaching. The superintendents, principals and teachers are pleased with free textbooks; the pupils like them and the parents are delighted to be saving 66⅔ on the cost of books for the children of the State.

The greatest need of the free textbook program, now so splendidly begun, is an increased appropriation sufficient to purchase free books through the seventh and eighth grades. These books will cost approximately $600,000 and can be supplied with an additional appropriation of $300,000 for each of the next two years. The present appropriation of $500,000 will supply replacements in Grades 1–6, inclusive.

Kentucky schools can be furnished with free books with replacements in Grades 1–8 in the future for $800,000 per annum.

SUPERVISION

Elementary and Secondary Schools

There were 275 school districts in the State at the close of the last school year. Of this number, 120 were county school districts and 155 were independent school districts. This is in contrast to 299 school districts existing at the close of the last biennium.

The number of public elementary schools (white and colored) at the beginning of the current school year was 6,397 in the county school districts. Of this number, 4,522 were one-teacher schools. It is obvious that the Division of Supervision with its very small staff cannot hope to inspect but relatively few of these schools during a school year. It has been the policy of this Division, however, to inspect with care the elementary schools which are connected with high schools in order to discover whether they are being maintained at the expense of the elementary schools with which they are connected.

During the biennium just closing, there has been a marked effort on the part of the county school authorities to consolidate many small, struggling one- and two-teacher schools into stronger and larger school centers. Naturally, this development has been determined by such practical considerations as road conditions, finances and public sentiment.

In recognition of the fact that it is impossible for the Division of Supervision to do much in the way of supervising and inspecting the many elementary schools of the State, it must be apparent that the best soluion for this problem lies in the employment of one or more elementary school supervisors in each of the counties. If each county school system employed one or more such supervisors, specially trained for this work, then this Division could work directly with them in developing a better system of elementary schools throughout the Commonwealth.

A summary of the number of high schools and the enrollments in each type for the two years of the biennium 1935–37 is given in Table I. This table shows that there was a total enrollment of 124,504 pupils in the 818 high schools of the State in 1936-37 as compared with a total enrollment of 115,736 pupils in the 833 high schools in 1935-36.

Data in the following tables were taken from the "Annual High School Organization Reports" for 1935-36 and 1936-37. Both junior and senior high schools are included.

* High schools operated in connection with the State University, State Teachers' Colleges, School for the Blind, Louisville, and the Jefferson County Children's Home, Louisville.

The two tables above show that Kentucky has many high schools and that most of them are small. Kentucky has large areas in which road conditions have made transportation unavailable. Naturally, county school authorities in developing their high school programs in the past thought almost entirely in terms of making high school advantages available to their boys and girls. Now, however, since roads are improving and school busses are becoming more numerous, they are not only thinking in terms of the availability of high school opportunities, but they are also thinking in terms of making these opportunities comparable with those found in large centers of population. Gradually, but slowly, county school authorities and patrons of the small high schools are beginning to realize that improved means of transportation as well as the demands for a more extensive curricula to meet the needs of those who will never go to college, require larger high schools with more extended and enriched curricula offerings. Economy of high school operation also makes a similar demand. Hence, we note that county boards of education are more and more combining their small high schools at logical school centers and furnishing transportation. This is proving to be less expensive than the maintenance of many small high schools and is, at the same time, providing the pupils with a broader and richer program of work. With the further improvement of roads and increased transportation, the high school centers finally determined upon will greatly increase in enrollment and offer not only the traditional college entrance subjects, but also such practical and enriching courses as commercial work, vocational agriculture, home economics, music and art. Such courses are designed to prepare one to enter directly into life activities as well as to enter college.

Fortuantely, county boards of education have been assisted in this work through the series of studies of attendance areas which were carried on in the state last year with funds furnished by the Federal Government. The findings and recommendations of these studies, based upon an intensive and comprehensive survey of local school conditions have given county school authorities facts and sound judgments rather than opinions and sentiments as a basis for attacking the problem of reorganizing their high school program in line with modern demands. If county school authorities will map out their future program for school development in line with the recommendations of these surveys, it will not be many years before many counties can boast of a high school program that is commensurate with the best.

It is now generally agreed that in order for a high school to meet modern needs it should have an enrollment of at least 200 pupils and employ at least seven teachers, exclusive of the principal. With such an organization, the high school should be able to offer such courses as commercial work, home economics, vocational agriculture, etc., in additin to the traditional academic subjects. As an illustration of how far we are from that goal, it should be observed that only 151 high schools of the 818 in the state, public and private, enrolled as many as 200 pupils during the school year 1936-37.

Colleges and associations of colleges began the accrediting of high schools to which they looked for students. By this means the curricula of the high schools were made to articulate satisfactorily with those of the colleges, presumably to the advantage of the students both before and after passing from high school into college.

The pioneer high schools were mainly private high schools, with no close supervision by the state, and this inspection and accrediting afforded them a form of supervision. With a phenomenal increase in the number of public high schools and in the proportion of pupils served by them (now 92.8%), and with recognition of the duty of the state to supervise the administration of these high schools together with the general service (Grades 1–12) of their respective districts, the duty of supervision by inspection and accrediting has been assumed by the state, which has essential relations with the boards of education carrying on these schools.

With the freest cooperation and advice of the Accrediting Committee of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the State Board of Education considers the entire program of service maintained by each board of education in the light of its financial and geographic conditions, and officially accredits its schools.

In accordance with recommendations made by the Accrediting Committee of the Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, the State Board of Eduation accredited 687 high schools extending through grade twelve during the school year 1935-36. Of this number, 348 were accredited Class A and 339 were Class B. During the school year 1936-37, there were 690 high schools accredited through the twelfth grade. Of this number 358 were accredited Class A and 332 were Class B.

It is interesting to observe that in the smaller schools with the minimum curriculum there were but few pupils to the teacher, while in the larger schools with their more liberal offerings there were more pupils to the teacher.

There were 5,080 teachers employed in all types of high schools, public and private during the school year 1936-37. Practically all of them were graduates of standard four-year colleges.

Of the 5,080 teachers employed in the 818 high schools during 1936-37, 4,183 were employed in public white high schools and 381 were employed in public high schools for colored pupils. The private high schools employed 516 teachers.

The average number of pupils per teacher in the public white high schools was 26. In the public colored high schools it was 23, and in the private high schools it was 17 for the school year 1936-37.

Negro Education

This biennium (July 1, 1935 to June 30, 1937) has been characterized by significant but non-spectacular change. The school code enacted in 1934 did not go into effect in time to become completely operative under budgets for the 1934-35 school year, but in due time to be brought into operation with the school year of 1935-36. It has been the duty of the division of Negro Education to see the wholesome changes embodied in this law brought into operation as effectually and harmoniously as possible. This code, together with one amendment enacted in 1936, has wrought some significant changes, including the following, some of which have not yet been fully translated into good-faith operation in every district:

1. There can be no separation of control of white and colored schools within the geographic boundaries of any school district, no longer a white trustee or board of education for the white schools and a colored trustee or board of education for the colored schools.

2. There can be no separate taxation for white and colored schools within any school district or subdistrict, no longer a tax on the white taxpayers for the white schools of the district or subdistrict and a separate tax (or neglect of tax) on the colored people for the colored schools of the district or subdistrict.

3. There can be no separation of suffrage as between white and colored in school elections, no election in which the voters of one race can vote and those of the other race can not.

4. There can be no racial line differential in salaries of teachers in any district. In some districts such differentials have wrought embarrassment and humiliation on Negro teachers, clearly to the detriment of the service. But it is no longer authorized by law, and for districts where such differentials have existed it is the policy of the state that they shall be definitely reduced each year and rapidly (but not abruptly) corrected.

5. There are no longer separate boards of trustees for the two state colleges for Negroes. These colleges are now administered by the State Board of Education. Those interested in higher education for Negroes are pleased with this change and are glad that there is one board that can with authority represent the needs of this service with the Governor and the Legislature. The State Board of Education can do this from the viewpoint of state needs rather than of local and rival institutional ambitions.

Some developments appear in the operation of Negro schools that are not in response to new laws. Among them are these:

1. The most significant is the increasingly friendly and liberal attitude of county and city school authorities toward programs of school service for Negro children, and a more general purpose to include them in the school program for service comparable with that given the white children. By reason of their smaller number, it is generally at higher per-pupil cost.

2. With improved roads and more general use of school busses, Negro schools are being combined with pupil transportation. An increasing number of counties are thus consolidating their Negro schools into one school at the county seat. This is hastened by the withdrawal of Negroes from farm tenantry and their migration to the towns and cities where more varied employments are available and social life and educational opportunities may be found.

3. The idea of regional high schools for Negroes has found expression. Every county wants one or more county high schools for its white children, but many counties have but few colored, and for them one high school must serve a region of more than one county, involving transportation to high school, which is the best for the pupils and the least expensive for the public. To illustrate, one Negro high school in Ashland must serve the counties of Boyd, Greenup, Lawrence and Carter. One in Maysville must serve the counties of Mason, Fleming, Robertson, Bracken and Lewis. One in Mt. Sterling should serve the counties of Montgomery, Bath, Powell and probably Nicholas. One in Princeton should serve the counties of Caldwell, Lyon and Crittenden. One in Lebanon should serve the counties of Marion, Washington and Taylor. And one in Columbia should serve the counties of Adair, Green, Russell and probably Cumberland.

This biennium has seen the continued reduction of philanthropic funds for education of Negroes, probably also for whites. The Slater Fund has been combined with the Jeanes Fund in The Southern Education Foundation, and with the close of this biennium has discontinued grants for local schools and for transportation of high school pupils to regional high schools from counties having no Negro high schools. The Julius Rosenwald Fund no longer specializes in Negro education, though it still aids schools (both colored and white) in getting libraries, and it makes liberal graduate scholarship grants for persons undertaking significant investigations. The General Education Board continues to contribute to state administration of Negro schools, in money, in personal counsel, and in liberal programs of training. The Southern Education Foundation continues to aid the Jeanes teacher program of supervision of rural schools. As the program of Negro school service is more fully integrated into the general program of education, it is to be expected (and not deplored) that philanthropy will gradually withdraw from this field.

School Libraries

With the first of July, 1937, four years of service by the supervisor of school libraries in Kentucky have been completed. This program of work was underwritten for the state in 1933 by the General Education Board of New York City. Previous to that time there had been no specialized service of this type offered by the State Department of Education.

The amount of money being invested in library books in 1933 was meagre. During the biennium 1931-33 only two cents per pupil per year enrolled was expended for this purpose by the average or typical county. In twenty-four counties of the Commonwealth not one cent was spent for library books during the two years.

The elementary schools of the state were practically without library service in 1933. With regard to the number of library books alone—and this is a wholly inadequate index to the library service in existence in any given situation—the state of affairs was serious indeed. The public elementary schools of Kentucky had in 1931-32, on an average, less than one library book per pupil.

Kentucky has no state aid for school libraries. The lack of state aid has proved a handicap in the development of school library service. In its absence, and the general absence of county library service, a circulating book service to rural schools from the offices of the county superintendent of schools was encouraged. The preparation of booklists especially constructed to assist county superintendents in carrying on a service of this type was one of the first activities of the school library supervisor. By the school year 1935-36 thirty-two county superintendents were maintaining such libraries. An outstanding example of recent extended service has been that of Pike County, where in the spring of 1937 the sum of two thousand dollars was invested in library books for rural schools. The supervisor of school libraries advised with the county superintendent concerning the selection of books for purchase.

A regulation covering the percentage of school district budgets that would be allotted for the purchase of library books was the next step to be taken, since state aid for school libraries was lacking. A regulation suggesting the amount to be spent annually for the support of the high school library was in existence in 1933, but no provision of the kind had been made for elementary school libraries.

In February, 1937, a regulation was made which included aid for both high and elementary schools. Under its provisions a stipulated percentage of every school district budget appropriation is to be expended annually for library books. Fifty per cent or more of this book fund is apportioned to elementary schools. The regulation, as soon as it is fully operative, should give school libraries a definite and regularly-occurring book fund, the sine qua non of adequate school library service.

Elementary school libraries are at the present increasing very rapidly. The high school librarian, in many instances, administers both the elementary and the high school library. In those cases where elementary and high school are not combined in the same school plant, there is need for trained elementary school librarians.

In 1933 some form of book service existed in every high school of the state. Well-organized high school libraries were in operation in the cities, but outside the cities the secondary school libraries as a whole were poor. The state standards for high school libraries suggested training for school librarians, but no requirement for such training has been made. The use of the Dewey decimal classification for books had been specified for high schools; but no further detailed provisions for the organization of school libraries were included. Whatever progress had been made was due to the interested efforts of the supervisors in the State Department of Education, the assistance given school libraries by the State Library Commission, and the influence of the standards of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

We have come to realize that a teacher of mathematics must be trained in his subject field before he attempts to teach mathematics to children. The same principle should be self-evident with respect to the administration of the school library. A lack of trained personnel constitutes a problem second in importance only to a lack of actual financial support.

In 1933-34 more than sixty per cent of all the high schools of the state were without the services of a trained librarian. One hundred and forty-seven additional schools in that year reported librarians with a scant one to six semester hours of library training. Only fifty-seven of the total number of 559 persons reported by name as being in charge of the high school libraries had had a year of library training.

Definite progress is being made in the state in the matter of training for school librarians. Two years ago standards for the training of high school librarians were made mandatory. These standards are as high as it is possible to make them at present. Class A and Class B schools of the state were apprised in the fall of 1936 that they would be expected to remedy any deficiencies by the beginning of the school year 1937-38. As a result high schools of Kentucky should have in charge of their libraries this coming year a goodly number of persons with some library training. Library standards have also been extended to cover every phase of library organization. A handbook for the use of high school libraries was prepared by the school library supervisor and published in January, 1936. Included with it was a list of inexpensive books.

The certification of full-time school librarians was approved by the State Board of Education in January, 1937. A year's training in library science is the basis for this special certification. Not only does this arrangement iron out serious difficulties in undergraduate training schedules, but it also gives added recognition to library training, and should play a part in insuring equal salary schedules for teachers and librarians with equivalent preparation.

Since a strong group organization contributes to knowledge of any field as well as to professional spirit, the supervisor of school libraries began in 1933 to work toward the organization of an existing school library group as a section of the Kentucky Education Association. The group had been holding its yearly meeting at the time of the General Association conference, but was not an integral part of the Association. The supervisor acted as liaison officer between this group, the Association, and the large body of school librarians in the state who had hitherto not been in attendance at the meetings. The preparation by the supervisor of school library exhibits, occupying a special booth, and the distribution of appropriate material at the time of each exhibit, undoubtedly played a part in stimulating interest not only in the school library meetings but in school libraries as a whole.

The library group was admitted to full membership in the Association in 1934, and has grown steadily. An increase in the number of school library conferences in the district education associations has paralleled the growth of the state section.

Methods of book selection in the schools of the state have improved in the past four years. The supervisor of school libraries worked continuously toward the purchase of suitable books to meet the needs of the cirriculum and the reading interests of the children; and placed especial emphasis as the need arose on the choice of encyclopedias. That the advisory service rendered was appreciated by the schools was evidenced by the number of inquiries made by schoolmen of the state and the letters of commendation received.

A second project designed to assist schools in the selection of library books for purchase was the preparation of a general list, comprising some 1,700 titles, of books for elementary school libraries. The Standard Catalog for High School Libraries, published by the H. W. Wilson Company of New York, is the state approved list of books for secondary school libraries. With the increase in the number of elementary school libraries there was need for a booklist for these libraries which could be distributed widely without charge. The list was accordingly prepared, and was published as the February number of the 1937 Educational Bulletin. The few months that have elapsed since its publication are too short a period to allow any estimate of the assistance it may have given elementary schools in the selection of books for their libraries.

The supervisor of public school libraries has also employed the following means of encouraging the organization and development of school library service in the state:

1. A report, "Library Service Available to the Public Schools of Kentucky", prepared and published as the January number of the 1935 Educational Bulletin. The supervisor of school libraries was given the responsibility of the report. Statistical data appearing above have been taken from the report.
2. Addresses to classes in state teachers colleges, groups of librarians and teachers, Parent-Teacher's Associations, school assemblies, etc.
3. Articles published in educational journals, bulletins, etc.

4. A "school library question-box", published as one feature of the (monthly) state educational journal.
5. Lists prepared in answer to special requests. Example: "Recent Books for Teachers".
6. Mimeographed lists and circulars, distributed widely. An entire edition of one of these was exhausted by the close of a state educational meeting.
7. Collaboration in four Federal surveys of county school districts.
8. Visits to school superintendents.
9. Visits to school libraries for the purpose of advising with the librarian or organizing the library. From the first, however, emphasis was placed upon the provision of a trained personnel in the school libraries rather than assistance by any agency outside the school.
10. Collaboration in the selection of books for inclusion in the Standard Catalog for High School Libraries, the state-approved booklist for secondary school libraries.
11. Committee membership in connection with state and national organizations.
12. Attendance at county, state, and national conventions.

The supervisor of school libraries makes the following recommendations for the further development of school library service:

1. State aid for school libraries on a matching basis, in amounts large enough to aid in the purchase of approved library books, but small enough to encourage individual initiative. Failing this, accreditation of schools upon a basis which includes, by title, the books purchased each year by individual schools.
2. Further development of state standards for elementary and high school libraries. The regulation for the financial support of school libraries to be placed in full operation as soon as practicable.
3. Certification of teacher-librarians, on the basis of a minor (18 semester hours) in library science.

The Kentucky State Department of Education finds itself unable, because of lack of funds, to finance the work of a Supervisor of Public School Libraries. The Superintendent of Public Instruction hopes that this situation will be a temporary one, and that funds will be allocated at the January, 1938, session of the legislature to continue the service. It is to be regretted that library service from the State Department must suffer a lapse just at the time when such assistance is at the point of greatest usefulness. The advancement that has been made in the past four years should be continued at once. If this work should be discontinued, the children of the state will be the losers.

> "No worry about the speeding motors and the movies and the dance halls that call to the children, and sit up nights to find means of lessening their thrill, while we neglect the most obvious rival of them all, the school library . . .
> "If you want to help the school, help the library. If you want to help the teacher help your child, help the library. If you want to give your child the best the race has to offer, help the school library." —Angelo Patri.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

The Division of Special Education is charged with the supervision and administration of four statewide educational programs. The first of these is the guidance and training of the special classes of physically handicapped children who are not able to make satisfactory progress in the regular school system and who need special provisions for their guidance and training. The second has to do with vocational rehabilitation service or the process of rendering disabled persons fit to engage in remunerative occupations. The third includes the organization and supervision of what is known as "informal adult education". The fourth includes the Kentucky School for the Blind and the Kentucky Workshop for Adult Blind.

Handicapped Children

The Legislative Acts of 1934 established the Division of Special Education in the Kentucky Department of Education. Section 4434-33, Kentucky Statutes, provides for district boards of education to carry on programs of special education. Special education is rendering a special service to special groups of handicapped children and citizens throughout the Commonwealth in order that they may be trained for some specific occupation. The Constitution and court rulings of the Commonwealth of Kentucky provide that educational opportunities be furnished all school children. Surveys made in fifty counties indicate that there are homebound, mentally fit, handicapped children in every county and every large city school district who are not furnished educational opportunities as required by these legislative and other legal provisions.

The same educational opportunities furnished normal children should be furnished these homebound, mentally fit, handicapped children. Since the training or education of the handicapped child costs more than that of the normal child it is the duty of the state government to provide this additional cost as boards of education are not in position to spend more on the handicapped than on the normal child.

Programs of special education are administered by the State Board of Education in cooperation with local school boards, which has adopted rules and regulations governing these special programs throughout the various districts of the Commonwealth.

Since the state survey indicates there are approximately seven thousand homebound, mentally fit, handicapped children between the age of six and twenty-one unable to read and write, it becomes a very important obligation of the Commonwealth to furnish funds to the State Board of Education in order that this neglected group of crippled and otherwise handicapped children may receive the same educational opportunities as the normal child.

In order to furnish these equal opportunities and privileges to this special group it is the obligation of the Commonwealth to appropriate not less than twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000) to be expended in accordance with the legal provisions of the Acts of 1934 and the rules and regulations adopted by the State Board of Education in order that the same educational opportunities may be furnished the homebound, mentally fit, handicapped child as are furnished the normal child.

Boards of education are now employing forty-five special teachers and special supervisors throughout the Commonwealth who are assisting approximately one thousand eligible handicapped children. This program is being financed through the regular local school budgets.

Vocational Rehabilitation

The State Board of Education of the Commonwealth of Kentucky in cooperation with the federal government provides vocational rehabilitation for physically handicapped persons as a training process to prepare them for remunerative employment in occupations for which they are best fitted and in which they will be able to earn a living wage for themselves and their families.

To be eligible for this service one must have a permanent physical disability, but must be physically and mentally capable of learning a trade or vocation and engaging in that vocation to the degree that he becomes a self-supporting citizen.

The major services of vocational rehabilitation offered by the State Board of Education are advice in the selection of a proper vocation, advice in the methods of preparing for that vocation, and vocational training required in preparing for that vocation.

Vocational rehabilitation is maintained by state and federal governments on the thesis that it is socially and economically sound for governments to promote a public welfare by aiding individual members of society to become a part of and to take their places in that society.

In view of this thesis the federal government included vocational rehabilitation as a permanent part of the recent Federal Social Security Act.

The increasing demands for these services by eligible applicants caused Congress to double the amount of federal money available to the various states for vocational rehabilitation through the Federal Social Security Act.

In order to secure the full amount of federal funds which is $40,423.30 now available, the Commonwealth of Kentucky must appropriate this sum to match the federal money before it is available for this distinct and humanitarian service. Kentucky is now matching only $21,380.55 of the $40,423.30 now available from the federal government. In order to secure the ful amount of federal funds available the legislature must appropriate $40,423.30.

A recent survey of the office of Vocational Rehabilitation in the State Department of Education by the Office of Education, Washington, D. C., shows that federal authorities found approximately fifteen hundred eligible applicants on the waiting list filed with the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation of the Commonwealth of Kentucky who should be furnished this special service immediately. In order that this vast number of splendid young men and women, physically handicapped, throughout the Commonwealth may receive the opportunities equal to those furnished by other states of the Union the federal government requests the Commonwealth of Kentucky to make the necessary appropriation in order to secure all federal money available which would total, both state and federal, $80,846.60 which is the amount we hope to have available for this special service after July 1, 1938.

Adult Education

Education for all is required in a democracy. The progress of this nation is the sum of the progress of its individuals. The battle in which we are now engaged in a campaign of democracy is raging around the possibility of general education for the grown-ups and special programs for the handicapped child just as the battle of the last century has been about the general schooling for the normal child between six and sixteen years.

The education of the citizen is a function of all governments. We believe we can proceed upon the principle that all education is a public responsibility and all governments, local, state, and federal, should participate in making it available to all the people.

Kentucky is able to finance a program of education from the nursery child to the aged of our land. Last year we spent less than $50.00 per pupil for education, while it cost more than $400.00 to maintain a criminal in a penal institution.

With the cooperation of boards of education, including the emergency education program, there have been enrolled during the past two years in these various classes throughout the Commonwealth approximately seventy-five thousand different adults.

Educational Services for the Blind

The Kentucky School for the Blind, Louisville, Kentucky, provides for the physically handicapped children of the State full educational opportunities from kindergarten through an accredited high school. Instruction also is given in music, commercial work, home economics, and other vocational occupation. Opportunity is provided for those qualified to pursue higher education.

Eligible for admission are boys and girls, residents of Kentucky, who are blind or whose sight is so defective that they cannot obtain education in public schools. It is further required that they be of good health, sound mind, and between the ages of six and eighteen years. Upon admission to this school, each pupil is given a complete physical examination. Recommendations are carefully carried out and progress noted on a health card provided for each pupil. To safeguard partial vision and to prevent blindness, each child from the time of admission is under the care of an eminent eye specialist.

There are special schools for white and colored children some distance apart, each with its own staff of teachers. There are approximately one hundred ninety pupils enrolled in this school.

Tuition, books, board, laundry, and medical attention are furnished without cost to the pupils. The State has endeavored to make these schools everything they should be for the education, health, and comfort of the blind children of Kentucky.

All children eligible for admission to this school should be reported to this office or to Miss Catherine T. Moriarty, Superintendent, Kentucky School for the Blind, Louisville, Kentucky.

Under authorization of a recent act of congress which provides for the placement of vending stands for blind persons in federal buildings, approximately fifty blind adults have been trained by this school and placed in profitable stands located in various sections of the State. This has proven to be one of the most successful occupations for blind adults.

TEACHER TRAINING AND CERTIFICATION

Facilities for Teacher Education.—The ability of the state to supply an adequate number of teachers for the public elementary and secondary schools is measured by the number of persons who complete teacher training curricula in the state, private, and municipal colleges. One group of curricula is at the two-year level and another group is at the four-year level. No curriculum is completed until the student has taken a course in supervised teaching.

TABLE I. NUMBER OF PERSONS DOING DIRECTED TEACHING AT THE TWO-YEAR AND FOUR-YEAR LEVEL IN STATE, PRIVATE AND MUNICIPAL COLLEGES IN KENTUCKY FOR THE REGULAR SCHOOL YEAR ENDING JUNE 30, 1937.

Groups of Colleges	Number Taking Directed Teaching in Elementary Grades	Secondary Grades	Total El. and Sec.
State (W.)	993	795	1,788
Four-Year Private (W.)	205	285	490
Two-Year Private (W.)	413	0	413
State (C.)	39	35	74
Four-Year Private (C.)	0	14	14
Totals	1,650	1,129	2,779

Table I shows that 1,650 persons took directed teaching during the school year 1936-37 in the elementary grades and that 1,129 did directed teaching in the secondary grades. This means that during the school term 1,650 prepared to teach in the elementary grades and 1,129 prepared for teaching in the secondary grades. These figures show that the total output of elementary teachers in 1936-37 was 1,650 and the number of secondary teachers was 1,129, or the total output for all colleges for the calendar year to 2,779. This figure may tentatively be considered as the capacity of all colleges in Kentucky for training teachers.

Curricula for Training Teachers and Administrators.—The 1934 school code reduced the number of certificates issued to three general groups as follows:

I. Elementary Certificates
   (a) Provisional based upon a two-year curriculum and valid for three years.
   (b) Standard based upon a four-year curriculum and valid for four years.

II. High School Certificates
   (a) Provisional based upon a four-year curriculum and valid for four years.
   (b) Standard based upon a five-year curriculum and valid for for five years.

III. Administrative Certificates
   (a) Provisional based upon a four-year curriculum and valid for four years.
   (b) Standard based upon a five-year curriculum and valid for five years.
   (c) Attendance Officer's Certificate based upon a two-year curriculum and valid for three years.

An elementary certificate is valid only for teaching in the elementary grades; a high school certificate is valid only for teaching in the secondary grades; and a certificate in administration and supervision is valid for holding any position in the public school system. The attendance officer's certificate is valid only for holding the position of attendance officer.

Each certificate is based upon a definite curriculum intended to prepare the holder to teach in the subject field and/or school level for which the certificate is issued. Each curriculum provides for three phases of training needed by every teacher and requires (1) a general cultural curriculum including such subjects as English, Science, Social Science, Mathematics or Language, Physical Education, and Fine Arts; (2) special training in the subjects to be taught; and (3) knowledge of how children learn, including considerable time in actual teaching under supervision.

Institutions for the Training of Teachers.—The state has five colleges in which teachers are trained for the elementary and secondary schools for white persons, and two colleges in which teachers are trained for schools for colored persons. In addition to the seven state colleges, there are 23 private and municipal colleges in which teachers are trained for schools for white persons and one municipal college which trains teachers for colored schools.

Training of Certificated Teachers.—The 1934 school code ended the issuance of elementary certificates upon training below two years of college, and high school certificates based upon training below four years of college. All certificates issued upon two years of training are valid for three years; those based upon four years of training are valid for four years; and those based upon five years of training are valid for five years. The 1934 code became effective on September 1, 1935.

Certificates in force at the time the code became effective in 1935 have continued to be renewed and extended in accordance with requirements in effect at the time each certificate was issued.

TABLE II. THE TRAINING OF PERSONS TO WHOM CERTIFICATES WERE ISSUED OR REISSUED IN 1935-36 AND 1936-37, IN TERMS OF YEARS OF COLLEGE WORK.

Level of Training	Percentage of Certificates by Years
	1935-36	1936-37
4 years or more	24.0	29.9
2 to 3.9 years	40.7	35.4
1 to 1.9 years	27.2	24.3
Below one year	6.9	9.2
Miscellaneous	.3	1.0

An examintaion of Table II will show that 27.2 per cent of certificates issued and reissued in 1935-36 had been originally issued upon training below two years of college. This percentage was reduced to 24.3 in 1936-37. There were about 3,000 certificates of this grade in force on July 1, 1937. There were also about 1,000 certificates based upon below college level still in force on July 1, 1937.

It should be remembered that while there are approximately 3,000 certificates originally issued upon a one-year curriculum, none of the holders now have less than 48 semester hours of training and very few have less than two years of training. It is encouraging to note that three out of every ten applications for certificates are based upon four years of college or more; and that 65 per cent of the applications are based upon two years of college training or more. Beginning with July 1, 1937, about 9 out of every 10 persons applying for the issuance or renewal of certificates have had more than two years of college training. About two out of every five new certificates issued during the operation of the new law were based upon four or more years of college training.

A study of certificates issued over an eight year period beginning in 1929–30 and ending with the school year 1936-37, shows that in 1929-30 only 38 per cent of the certificates issued, reissued and extended for life were based upon two or four years of college. During the school year 1936-37 slightly more than 65 per cent of the certificates issued, reissued and extended for life were based upon two years and four years of training.

More than 2,000 fewer certificates were issued in 1936-37 than in 1933-34, due to two principal reasons: first, the tenure of teachers has increased along with increase in the general level of training, and second, teachers with higher levels of training received certificates which are valid for a longer period. In 1933-34 slightly less than 48 per cent of the certificates issued were vaild for more than 2 years, while in 1936-37 only about 58 per cent of all certificates issued and renewed were valid for three, four, or five years.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Education for an occupation is a primary right of every young man and young woman, every older man and older woman. One of the most signifcant, if not the most significant, current trends in American education is the growing conviction that the public school must extend its services to include training of young people for vocational competence and training and retraining of adults in accordance with their needs in earning a livelihood. With the complexity of modern economic life, the development of the individual in solving the problems involved in earning enough income to permit at least a minimum standard of living is an essential service in public education. Education must assume its obligation in training, placement, and advancement of every individual in that work which he or she is best fitted by temperament and capacity to perform.

The equality of the individual before the law, for a voice in government, and for a chance to do the work that his talent and character warrant is a cherished ideal in American life. "Equality of opportunity" has been echoing through the land for many years. Thorough occupational education is the surest guarantee of the well-being of the individual in his search for equality of opportunity. Vocational education, as a part of the public school system, is a primary agency of society to develop in the individual the competence, the initiative, the technical understanding, the vision, and the social ideals which will enable him to become a competent workman, a good citizen, a worthy home member, and a strong character. This, in part, explains why vocational education is integrated with social-economic, general education.

The state's vocational program during the years covered by this report has been concerned with three types of education, in each of which instruction is provided in the schools and in vocational centers, and for which institutions of higher learning train teachers. These types of educational service are in agriculture, home economics, and trades and industries. Table I gives the number of departments in the school and centers of the state offering vocational courses in these fields, together with the total amounts of federal funds used for the programs.

TABLE I. NUMBER OF VOCATIONAL DEPARTMENTS BY FIELDS AND DISBURSEMENTS OF FEDERAL FUNDS FOR EACH OF THE YEARS OF THE BIENNIUM, 1935-1937.

School Year	Vocational Field			Federal Funds
	Agriculture	Home Economics	Trades and Industries
1935-1936	168	108	72	$200,244.96
1936-1937	176	105	76	$210,418.32

The following table shows the appropriation and expenditures for teacher training and supervision in all fields of vocational education.

TABLE II. APPROPRIATIONS AND EXPENDITURES FOR TEACHER TRAINING AND SUPERVISION IN VOCATIONAL EDUCATION.

School Year	Appropriations		Expenditures by Vocational Fields
	State	Federal	Agriculture	Home Economics	Trades and Industries
1935-1936	$25,000.00	$21,380.55	$19,854.34	$17,555.65	$6,854.54
1936-1937	$21,380.55	$21,380.55	$16,316.74	$16,966.08	$9,548.40

These expenditures in each service include teacher training and supervision. Teacher training includes resident under-graduate training, resident graduate training, and teacher training in-service.

All vocational teachers received some in-service training. During the biennium, 187 teachers of agriculture took graduate courses in agriculture education at the University of Kentucky; 125 graduate students took resident courses in home economics at the University of Kentucky and 17 students took graduate courses in trades and industries at the University of Kentucky during the biennuim. This is in addition to the under-graduates receiving teacher training in all these fields.

Agricultural Education

During the fiscal year of 1933-1934 Kentucky had 139 departments of vocational agriculture. This number increased to 159 the year ending June 30, 1935. Table I shows that the number of all-day departments of vocational agriculture in Kentucky increased to 168 during the fiscal year 1935-1936 and further increased to 176 for the year ending June, 1937. The all-day enrollment in vocational agriculture for the year ending 1936 was 5,166, and the enrollment in all-day, part-time, and evening classes was 6,166. For the year ending June 30, 1937, the enrollment for all-day classes in vocational agriculture was 5,594, and the enrollment in all classes was 6,951.

Boys cannot learn to farm without farming, therefore, farm practice is central in the program of education in agriculture. For the year ending June 30, 1936, the farm practice labor earnings made by the high school boys studying agriculture was $227,582.00. For the year ending June 30, 1937, the labor earnings amounted to $337,302.56. During the biennium the boys taking vocational agriculture completed 1,935 tobacco projects, which brought in a total income of $402,764.00 and labor earnings of $228,311.00. During this same period, the boys completed 2,036 corn projects and 1,207 hog projects. Projects were completed in practically all farm enterprises found on farms in Kentucky.

The state appropriation of $9,000.00 made for 1934-1935 and 1935-1936 was not reappropriated. Departments of agriculture were established in twelve mountain counties through the use of this fund which was used to match federal funds. Evening classes for adult farmers were offered in addition to the courses offered in the high schools. Each one of these schools continued the program in vocational agriculture after the state funds were withdrawn.

An integral part of the program in vocational agriculture is the boys' national organization, the Future Farmers of America. Some of the purposes of the organization are:

1. To create and nurture a love of country life.
2. To provide recreational and educational entertainment for farm boys.
3. To establish a medium of cooperative buying and selling.
4. To develop local leadership.
5. To develop the confidence of the farm boy in himself and in his work.

In 1933-1934 Kentucky had 59 affiliated chapters. In 1935-1936 Kentucky had 96 affiliated chapters with a membership of 2,423. In 1936-1937 Kentucky had 156 affiliated chapters with a membership of 4,072. In addition to the active membership, there were during the fiscal year 1936-1937, a total of 467 associate members and 137 local honorary members. The Future Farmers sponsor and participate in a Public Speaking Contest, the Fat Cattle Show, two essay contests, and during the last year of the biennium the Future Farmers, with aid of their teachers and friends, secured a State Camp. This camp is located at Hardinsburg. The buildings were formerly used as a CCC Camp and were donated to the State of Kentucky for the use and benefit of the Future Farmers. The local chapters subscribed funds sufficient to buy 100 acres of land on which the camp is located. The camp was open for a short while during the summer of 1937 and 42 chapters attended the camp.

Home Economics Education

In 1935-1936 and 1936-1937 the number of home economics departments was 108 and 105 respectively. The home economics program has not expanded for the past three years because all funds were under contract and no additional funds were available for expansion. The departments dropped in 1936-1937 failed to employ qualified teachers. No other departments were added because of lack of funds. The funds released from departments dropped were used by departments already established. The enrollment had increased so as to change teachers from part-time teaching of home economics to a full-time program. There were a few small increases in salary to be matched by federal funds. The basis for subsidy has been 50% of the teacher's salary for the time she spends teaching home economics. We were unable to continue this basis for subsidy during 1936-1937 due to lack of funds. Two and six-tenths per cent was deducted from each contract in order to come within the appropriation for home economics. The enrollment during 1935-1936 was 3,478 and during 1936-1937 it was 3,884.

The state appropriation of $6,000 made in 1934-1935 for only two years was not reappropriated. This appropriation was used to match federal funds to establish departments in mountain counties having no home economics. Departments were established in eleven counties through this appropriation. All of these made provisions to match federal funds, thus continuing their departments when state funds were withdrawn. Evening classes were offered to adults in addition to the high school course.

Each subsidized home economics department carries a home project program, which enables girls to get practical experience in homemaking, a necessary complement of classroom instruction. The home project program is at all times coordinated with classroom instruction. It is desirable that all home economics teachers be employed at least one month outside of the regular school term for the supervision of home work. For the year 1935-1936 only 17 of the 108 teachers were employed for summer project supervision. There was no increase during 1936-1937. Federal funds were not available to subsidize summer employment. Applications for the next year show that at least 50% of the boards of education will employ teachers for summer project supervision. With increased funds to subsidize summer employment, all teachers will eventually be employed for supervision of home work.

There has been no expansion in the program for negroes. There are 5 subsidized departments in high schools. An additional member has been added to the home economics faculty of Kentucky State Industrial College for training home economics teachers. State conferences have been held with negro teachers to work with them in planning a course of study.

The annual state meeting of all teacher trainers in home economics education to work on teacher training problems has been continued this biennium. This meeting has been conducted each year by a member of the home economics education staff of the Office of Education, Washington, D. C.

The points to be stressed in the homemaking program for the next biennium are: (1) To provide classes in homemaking for women and out-of-school youth in urban centers, (2) to expand the home work program in connection with classes offered in high schools, and (3) to extend the homemaking program into all accredited high schools large enough to schedule and finance a program.

Trade and Industrial Education

Education for trades and industries has increased in the past two years. More people, both educators and lay-people, are realizing the desirability for some form of occupational training in the last two years of high school; therefore, classes in trade-preparatory subjects are being established in consolidated and medium-sized city high schools. In smaller cities, where it is impractical to establish shop courses for specific trades, a cooperative trade training plan between places of business in the community and the school is set up. This scheme gives an opportunity to extend trade and industrial education to the small community and to give small-town boys and girls practical training for employment in jobs they are destined to fill anyway but which they cannot fill properly without organized training. In the larger cities trade schools are established and have become an integral part of the city school system.

Trade and industrial educational is set up in several forms as follows:

1. Unit trade-preparatory classes for boys and girls of high school age preparing to enter trades.
2. Part-time classes for boys and girls working as apprentices at trades and callings and attending school part of the working day for cooperative instruction.
3. Evening classes for workers in trades and industries where they can attend school during their leisure hours for trade extension instruction.

Courses are set up for industrial occupations where there is sufficient learning content to form a course of study and take a suitable period of time for instruction. There is no reason why some form of occupational education should not be set up in every high school in the state.

NUMBER OF STUDENTS ATTENDING TRADE AND INDUSTRIAL CLASSES

School Year	Unit Trade Courses	Part-Time Courses	Evening Courses	Total
1935-1936	1,281	1,171	473	2,925
1936-1937	1,176	1,777	177	3,130

Trade and industrial education calls for special teachers with a special training. Therefore, persons are selected who are masters of the trades to be taught and given specialized teacher training. The teacher training is carried on by the University of Kentucky on an extension and itinerant basis. The number of teachers receiving this training in 1936-1937 was 175. The supervision of the teacher training is carried on by the State Supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education.

Industry is increasing in Kentucky. About 55% of the workers are in industrial and commercial pursuits. Industry progresses according to the proficiency of its workers; improving the proficiency of workers is a public responsibility in a democracy.

HIGHER EDUCATION FOR NEGROES

Kentucky State Industrial College

According to information submitted by President R. B. Atwood, the student enrollment in this institution has increased so rapidly that the funds appropriated by the state are inadequate to provide facilities for housing, boarding, class instruction and recreation. This college must secure additional income in order to provide for the ever increasing educational demands made of it.

In spite of the limited budget, however, the present administration has been able to effect a number of improvements. The training of the faculty is considerably higher, the quality of the student is better, and the morale of the entire school personnel is one that is conductive to good work. Placing of the college under control of the State Board of Education has served to bring the work of the college into a closer and desirable contact with the Department of Education and to remove from the college those outside influences which served to retard its development in previous years. The reading capacity of the library has been enlarged, the number of volumes increased, and the science laboratories improved. In addition, the numerous small repairs have been made which were designed to reduce the expense of operation.

The college has continued to maintain its Class B standing awarded by the Southern Association in 1931. As soon as it is possible to do so, the state should provide the funds necessary to meet the requirements for Class A colleges and for serving fully the negro students who enter its doors.

West Kentucky Industrial College

This school is of the junior college organization and is gradually moving to the field of specialization in vocational training. This appears to be a movement in the right direction for this particular school.

The present enrollment of one hundred and fifty-two is considered satisfactory. The enrollment for the second semester last year was in round numbers, one hundred. Of the present enrollment of one hundred and fifty-two, over one hundred are students who are new to the institution. This increase, together with the fact that so many of the present students are new, indicates that the institution is developing a program that has student drawing power.

After H. C. Russell took over the duties of the presidency, certain new policies and improvements have been inagurated; new courses in carpentry have been put in for the men, and courses in sewing and home making have been installed for the women. Considerable improvement has been made in the physical plan. The boys' dormitory has been repaired and repainted inside, and an apartment has been made in this dormitory to house the dean of men and his wife. This plan eliminates many problems of discipline. Considerable work has been done on the girls' dormitory, particularly on the first floor, to make the kitchens and dining rooms more inviting and sanitary.

The plan for the promotion of health and taking care of the medical needs of the students has been changed. The college now employs a doctor to make examination of all students entering the institution and to plan the general program of health.

With the installation of a new plan of business operation, the financial affairs of the institution are much improved. This new plan was inaugurated at the beginning of the second semester 1936-37.

Altogether, this college has made considerable progress in all its departments and continued improvement is expected.

Aid under the Anderson-Mayer Bill

At the 1936 Regular Session of the General Assembly of Kentucky, a bill was passed known as the Anderson-Mayer Bill. This bill appropriated $5,000 for each of the fiscal years ending June 30, 1936, and June 30, 1937. The aid is for persons who have been bona fide residents of the state for a period of five years and who, because of Section 187 of the Constitution of Kentucky, cannot pursue courses at the University of Kentucky or other institutions at which courses are offered.

This bill provides that not more than $175 shall be allowed to each person during any one school year of nine months. The State Board of Education shall prescribe rules and regulations governing the granting of state aid under this act. It gives the State Board of Education authority to prorate this sum, provided it is not sufficient to pay all legal applicants.

Pursuant to authority granted the State Board of Education, it has adopted the following rules and regulations governing the operation of this act.

1. Any person wishing to receive state aid under this act must file with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction written application on forms provided by him.
2. Official transcripts of college credits must be filed with each original application.
3. Applications should be completed and available to be considered on the following dates:
   Last Tuesday in July for the fall semester or quarter;
   Last Tuesday in November for the winter quarter, spring term and second semester;
   Last Tuesday in April for summer schools.
4. Applications will be considered for one quarter or one semester at a time.
5. Applications from graduates of standard four-year colleges will be given preference over other applications.
6. Payment of fees under this act will be conditioned on the applicant being accepted in the institution for the work indicated in his application.

The first aid granted under this act was for summer school work in 1936. There were twenty-two students granted aid to the amount of $1,046.83. Twelve of these students majored in Education and ten in Arts and Sciences. These people attended nine institutions as follows:

Atlanta University	4	University of Chicago	2
Columbia University	4	University of Illinois	2
Indiana University	4	Harvard University	1
University of Michigan	3	Ohio State University	1
		University of Pittsburgh	1

During the school year 1936-37, thirty-four students were aided to the amount of $3,444.28. Twenty-four of these students majored in Arts and Sciences, seven in Education, one in Law, one in Engineering, and one in Medicine. They attended seventeen institutions as follows:

Indiana University	10	Cornell University	1
University of Cincinnati	4	Municipal University of Omaha	1
Fisk University	2	Hampton Institute	1
Ohio State University	2	Massachusetts Institute of Technology	1
Atlanta University	2	University of Illinois	1
University of Michigan	2	University of Pennsylvania	1
Howard University	2	University of Chicago	1
Columbia University	1
Meharry Medical College	1
		Atlanta School of Social Work	1

In the summer of 1937, one hundred and fourteen students were aided to the amount of $3,586.10. Seventy of these people majored in Education and forty-four in the field of Arts and Sciences. They attended twenty-six institutions as follows:

Indiana University	24	Harvard University	2
Columbia University	14	Pennsylvania State College	1
University of Cincinnati	13	Wayne University	1
University of Michigan	10	Virginia State College for Negroes	1
Atlanta University	8	University of Washington	1

University of Pennsylvania	3	University of Toledo	1
Iowa State College	3	Municipal University of Omaha	1
Ohio State University	3	Western Reserve University	1
Indiana State Teachers College	2
Boston University	2

During the first semester of the school year 1937-38, eighteen students have been aided in an amount of $1,311.42. Fourteen are majoring in the field of Arts and Sciences, two in Law, one in Education, and one in Medicine. They are attending twelve institutions as follows:

Howard University	4	University of Chicago	1
Fisk University	3	Meharry Medical College	1
Hampton Institute	2	University of Michigan	1
University of Pennsylvania	1	Ohio State University	1
Atlanta University	1	Columbia University	1

SUMMARY

Summer School 1936	$1,046.83
School Year 1936-37	3,444.28
Summer School 1937	3,586.10
School Year 1937-38	1,311.42
Total	$9,388.63

There is left a balance for the second semester of 1937-38 approximately $300.00 for use in the second semester of the school term 1937-38. The 1937 summer school costs more than the fall term preceding it. The persons receiving aid during this period were majors principally in the field of Education.

COOPERATING AGENCIES IN EDUCATION

The cooperating agencies herein mentioned have aided our State Program of Education with a liberality and with a friendly, helpful spirit that we sincerely appreciate.

General Education Board:

During the school years 1935-36 and 1936-37, the Department of Education received from the General Education Board $16,635.20 and $15,538.38, respectively. This money was used to maintain the services of a Director of the Division of Teacher Training and a State Agent for Negro Schools for these two school years, and a Director of School Library Service until the close of January, 1937. The State assumed the cost of maintaining the Division of School Library Service for the remaining months of the biennium. The amount of public funds appropriated by the State was not sufficient to permit us to continue the valued service of this Division after that date.

The emergencies arising from the flood in January, 1937, caused the General Education Board to graciously appropriate $4,250 and make available before June 30, 1937, $2,000 of this amount, which is included in the $15,538.38 reported for the year 1936-37. This grant was made for the specific purpose of aiding the Division of School Buildings and Grounds in connection with the rehabilitation of school property damaged by the flood.

Anna T. Jeanes Fund:

The Anna T. Jeanes Fund made available during the school years 1935-36 and 1936-37, the sums of $2,768.32 and $2,682.50, respectively, for the purpose of paying a portion of the salary of colored supervisors in various counties of the State. This fund is devoted exclusively to providing supervision for rural colored schools, and is used only in counties and groups of counties having a considerable number of such schools. Twelve counties are now getting this aid.

John F. Slater Fund:

The John F. Slater Fund made available during the school years 1935-36 and 1936-37, the sums of $2,086.00 and $1,250.00, respectively. This money was appropriated to help local Boards of Education to provide approved County High School Service for colored children. This was done either by appropriations to aid in starting high schools and qualifying them for accrediting, or by granting aid to transport children to high school from counties not having enough pupils to justify starting colored high schools.

Julius Rosenwald Fund:

The Julius Rosenwald Fund made available during the school years 1935-36 and 1936-37, the sums of $161.00 and $125.00, respectively, for the publication of special day school improvement programs and forms. It also contributed liberally to a large number of school libraries, high school and elementary, white and colored.

KENTUCKY'S EDUCATIONAL NEEDS

We have witnessed the close of a century of public education. Today we move our goals forward another 100 years and as we contemplate the accomplishments of the past we anticipate the obligations of the future. The problem before the people of Kentucky, which transcends all other problems, is that of education of the present and future citizens of our Commonwealth. As we interpret this problem, it assumes gigantic proportions.

We realize as never before that the temporary expediences which we have used for plans in the past cannot solve the problem of the future, and that only long-time planning, planning which contemplates at least the scope of a generation can adequately serve this new century. The business of education is becoming increasingly social. Education has come to have a meaning it never had before, even a generation ago. Then, it was more a matter of acquiring encyclopedic information, now it is a growth, a continuous growth of the individual in adapting himself to life's needs in securing greater meaning from his life's experiences in the pursuit of more varied interests and in a more effective control of his environments.

The education of the future will deal not only with the children who are of conventional school age, but with those who are now considered of pre-school age and with those who have passed beyond the age limits for schooling set by the past century. Likewise, the scope of education will be broadened in the matter of its offerings and enriched curricula will go far beyond the present utilitarian standards. The children of the next generation will have an opportunity to develop the aesthetic side of their natures and public school education will provide training not only in the fields of citizenship, but in the vaster fields of character.

This contemplation of the needs of all the people everywhere leads us into consideration of many phases of education which have hitherto had little formal recognition. The long-time program of the future will keep in mind that the fundamental purpose of education is for life and not merely for living or for entrance into college. While major emphasis must be placed upon the problem of providing education for normal children of public school ages, there is also an imperative need for opportunity to be offered to every member of society, regardless of age, race, economic status, or physical ability. Therefore, the program must reach down to meet more effectively the educational needs of children of pre-school age and it must reach upward to meet the needs of adults.

The school program of the future must guarantee health and safety for both children and adults. Every child has a right to have a comfortable and a suitable place in which to be oriented to life. The schools of the future will, therefore, put great emphasis upon the matter of safety and comfort, and hygienic perfection in the school buildings.

The Pre-School Program will probably concern itself with the matter of devoloping habits and traits and social attitudes in addition to an orientation to the conventional activities of the elementary school level.

The Program of the Elementary Schools will doubtless be enriched by the incorporation of additional vocational elements which will assist in the very important matter of discovering individual aptitudes. The elementary schools will also lay greater emphasis upon the matter of citizenship and the laying of an adequate foundation for a philosophy of life.

The Secondary School must meet the individual and social needs of all adolescents, and must be prepared to accept them when they come. In the main, the secondary school in Kentucky at this time meets the needs only of those who plan to continue their education at higher levels. This is a natural outcome in a state which maintains small secondary schools poorly housed and equipped and inadequately staffed. In order that this secondary school may meet the needs of all adolescents, its program should include those experiences which are found in after school life and it should be organized in terms of abilities, aptitudes and life purposes, which have been discovered in the elementary school. This cannot be accomplished with economy until the small secondary schools have been combined into schools large enough to employ staffs, trained to carry out their programs. No secondary school of the future should be accredited as a first class school unless it offers a complete curriculum meeting the needs of all the groups to be served.

Education at the college level should be provided for all who can profit by such experience. This means that training for leadership in trades and industries, fine arts, practical arts, health service and social service should be offered as well as training in the liberal arts. To meet these needs, the program must be extended upward and outward so that it may serve the ever increasing number of persons who are advancing to higher levels of public service. If these purposes are accomplished the higher education programs will indeed be laboratories of leadership in the life of the state.

The program of the school at every level must be adequately housed. This means that the program of education will be planned and adopted before the building is erected. The school plant must meet not only the specific housing needs of the program to be offered, but must be sanitary and safe, and aesthetic values must not be ignored in planning and erecting the building.

Every person attending school is entitled to be under the leadership of a good teacher. Teaching, therefore, must have the ear-marks of a profession. To meet these requirements, teachers must be given long, or even indefinite tenure; provision must be made for economic security by the payment of salaries sufficient to enable them to live upon a plane of comfort, and to be guaranteed adequate retirement protection; and the members of the teaching profession must possess a high degree of education and training.

The school of the future at every level must be equipped so that the curriculum may be effective. This means that a broad program which meets the needs of the varying interests will demand a considerable increase in outlay over that in existence at this time.

Adult education will be a problem of major concern in the immediate future. Kentucky, along with the rest of the country, has accepted the fact that education is a continuous process and does not end with formal schooling. With the constant change in the demand for services and goods, large groups of our people at the adult levels must be re-educated in order to meet these changes. It is now recognized that society will profit by the expenditures of money for programs of adult education in citizenship problems, social welfare problems, training for trade and industries, aesthetic training, health education, parent education and the like; therefore, adult education cannot be ignored in the future.

Special education to meet the needs of those whom the regularly organized public schools cannot reach must be provided at public expense. Home-bound children, physically and mentally handicapped children, and persons confined in our social institutions must be given education, if education is to serve all the people everywhere.

The meager support given to public education at this time must give way if the educational goals set out here are to be accomplished during the next decade or two, and in its place there must be adopted a program of financial support adequate to maintain "an efficient system of public schools", as set out in the Constitution. Kentucky has wisely recognized the social value of a state system of highways by guaranteeing their continued support. The fight for the support of roads is over and the state can go forward with its service to the people by long-time road planning and building. The same principal should characterize the state's attitude toward the education of its citizens. It should no longer be necessary for civic and school leaders to wage a fight every two years for funds to maintain an adequate program. The increased effectiveness of the schools will demand larger financial outlays just as road improvement required increased expenditures. The average amount now spent in the United States is from sixty to seventy dollars per child. Kentucky should at least seek to finance an average program.

IMMEDIATE NEEDS

In conclusion, I desire to point out the immediate needs of the schools which should be met at the regular session of the General Assembly of 1938.

1. There should be enacted a state-wide teacher retirement system.
2. Provision should be made for the maintenance of present support for free textbooks and additional funds should be provided for the purchase of free textbooks through the seventh and eighth grades.
3. Teachers should be guaranteed a minimum salary of $75.00 per month for a term of 8 months. This requires a per capita of $15.00.

4. The appropriation for the Superintendent of Public Instruction should be increased from $60,000 to $70,000 in order that essential services to the public schools may be maintained.
5. The appropriation for the State Board of Education should be increased to $17,500 in order to care for additional costs for printing and binding and other essential services.
6. The appropriation for the Division of Teacher Training and Certification should be increased from $15,000 to $16,000 to partially replace loss of $6,500 from the General Education Board, and in order to meet the increased demand for services of this Division.
7. The increase in Federal appropriations to the Division of Vocational Education makes it necessary for the state to appropriate $40,980.68 to match Federal funds if we are to receive all of the $537,329.63 allotted to Kentucky.
8. The program of special education should have appropriation to meet the needs of those whom the schools cannot reach. In addition to $40,423.30 needed to match Federal revenues, there is needed $25,000 to carry education to those handicapped persons whom no agency of the school now reaches.
9. Since the $5,000 appropriated for graduate study for colored persons was insufficient to meet the needs during the present biennium, this fund should be raised to $7,500 for each year of the biennium 1938–1940.
