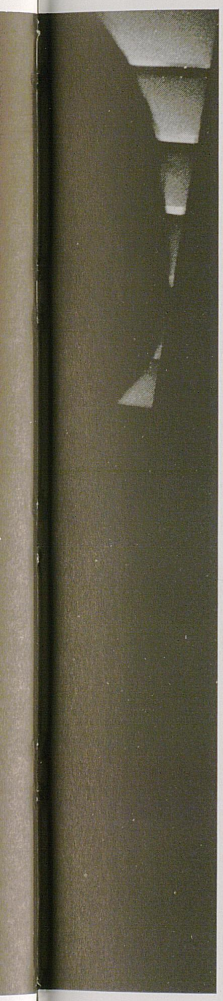
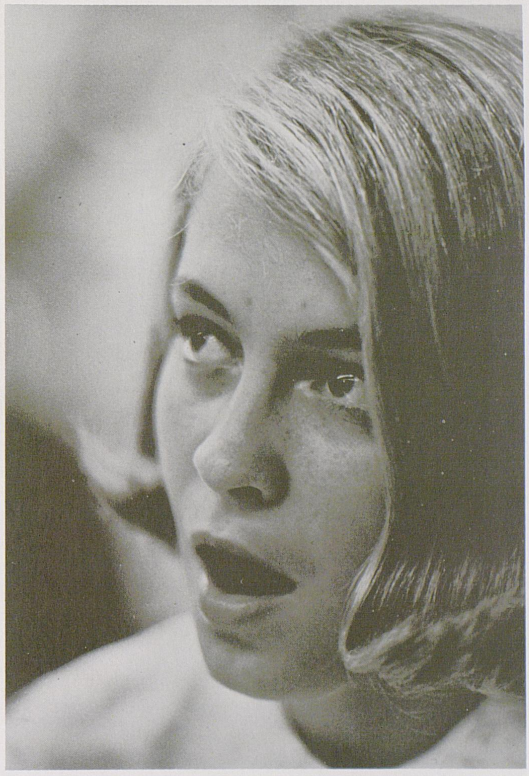
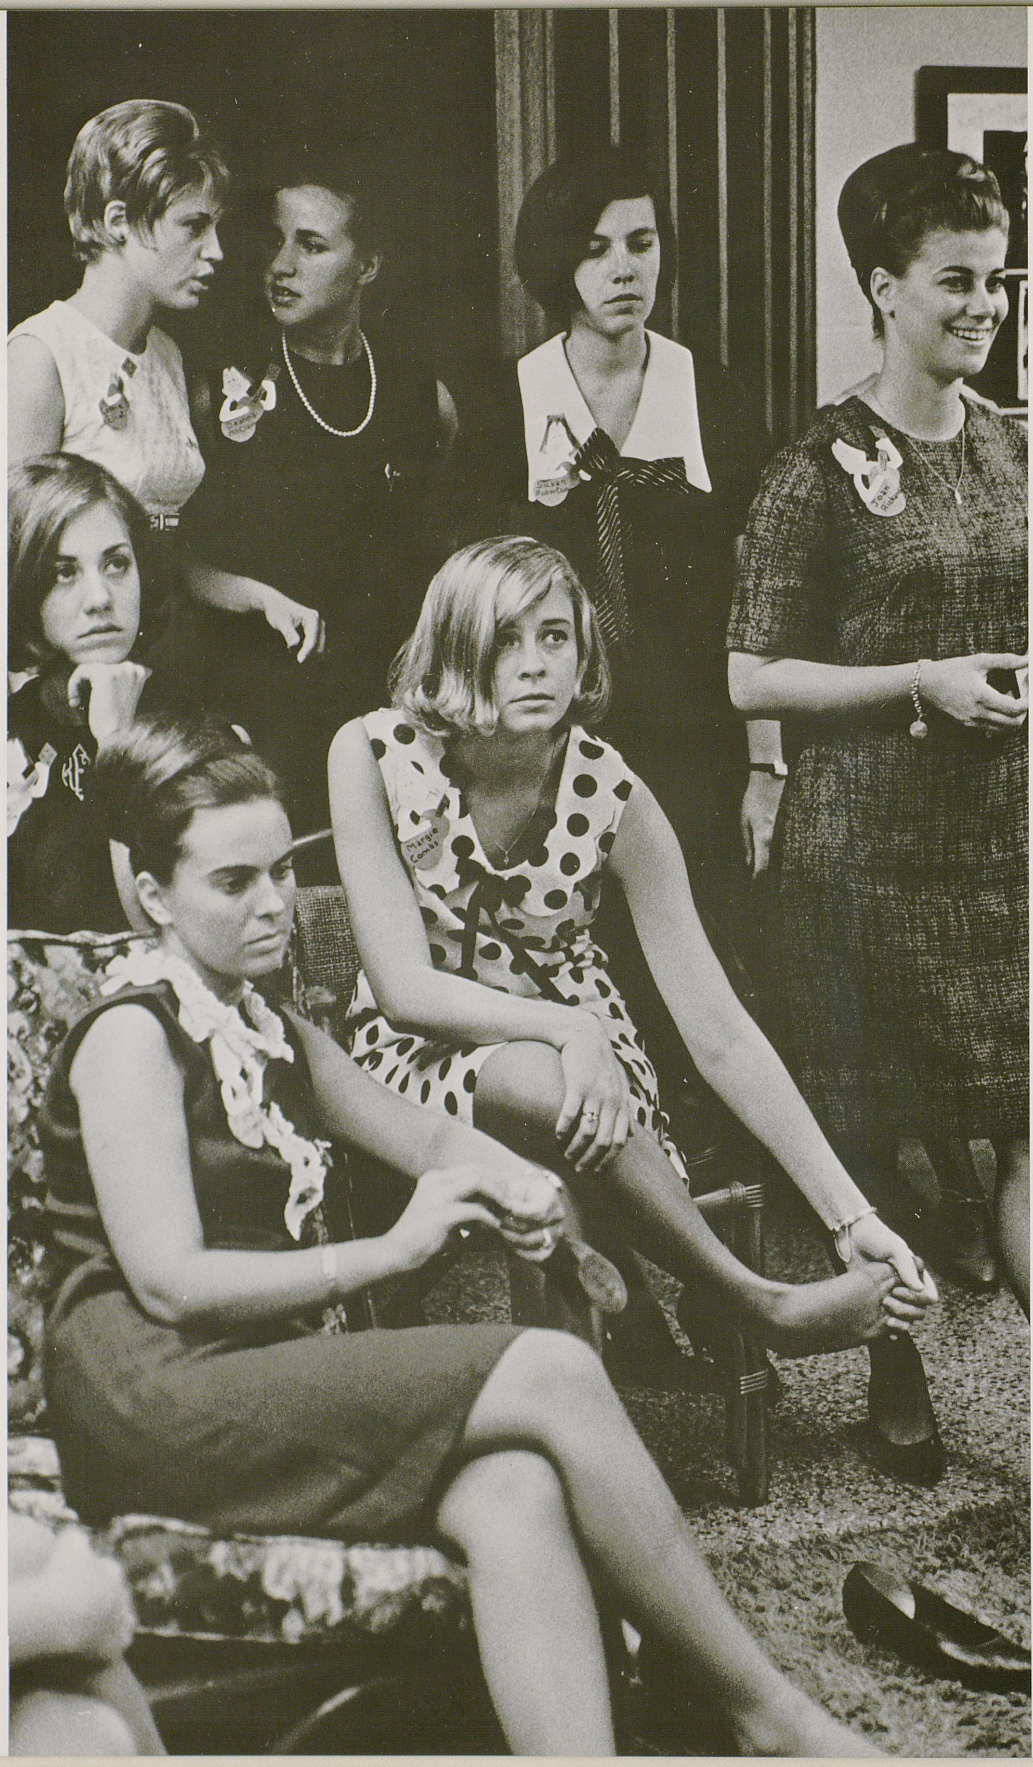
GLEANINGS

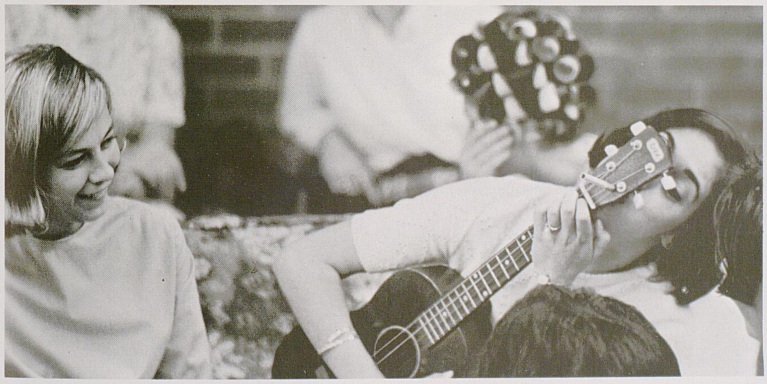


THE ACTIVES' RUSH

It was just a year ago that most sorority members stood on that same sidewalk imagining the ease and security of rush from the inside. Only after having been through rush as actives do sorority members realize that they, themselves, behind those huge white doors, feel more tense than any rushee.







To the actives, rush involves hours of practice and preparation, tired feet, last minute instructions, clowning to release tensions, the all-out effort and enthusiasm during the parties, the silence that occurs only after the last rushee has left the house,

theme parties,

with the real theme going deeper,

late hours, exhausting cut sessions, wondering at the real significance, but knowing the outcome is so important.

The final parties, when the mood changes from one of questioning and hoping to one of inexpressible emotions.

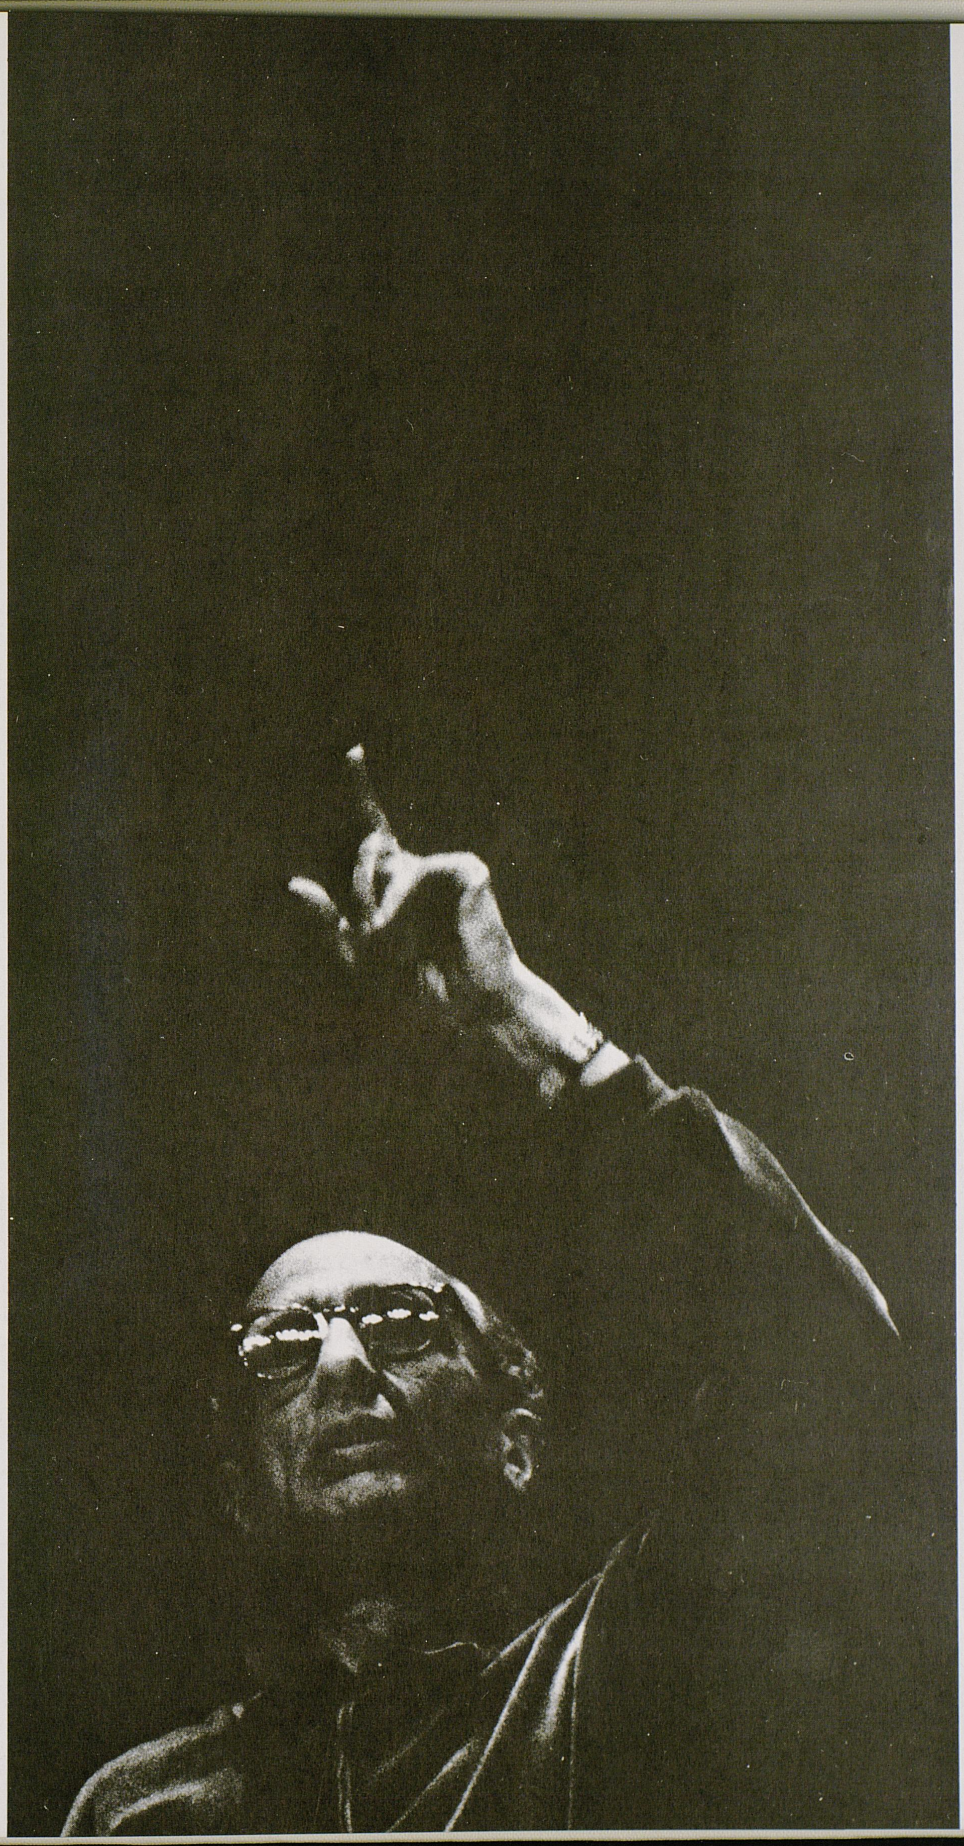
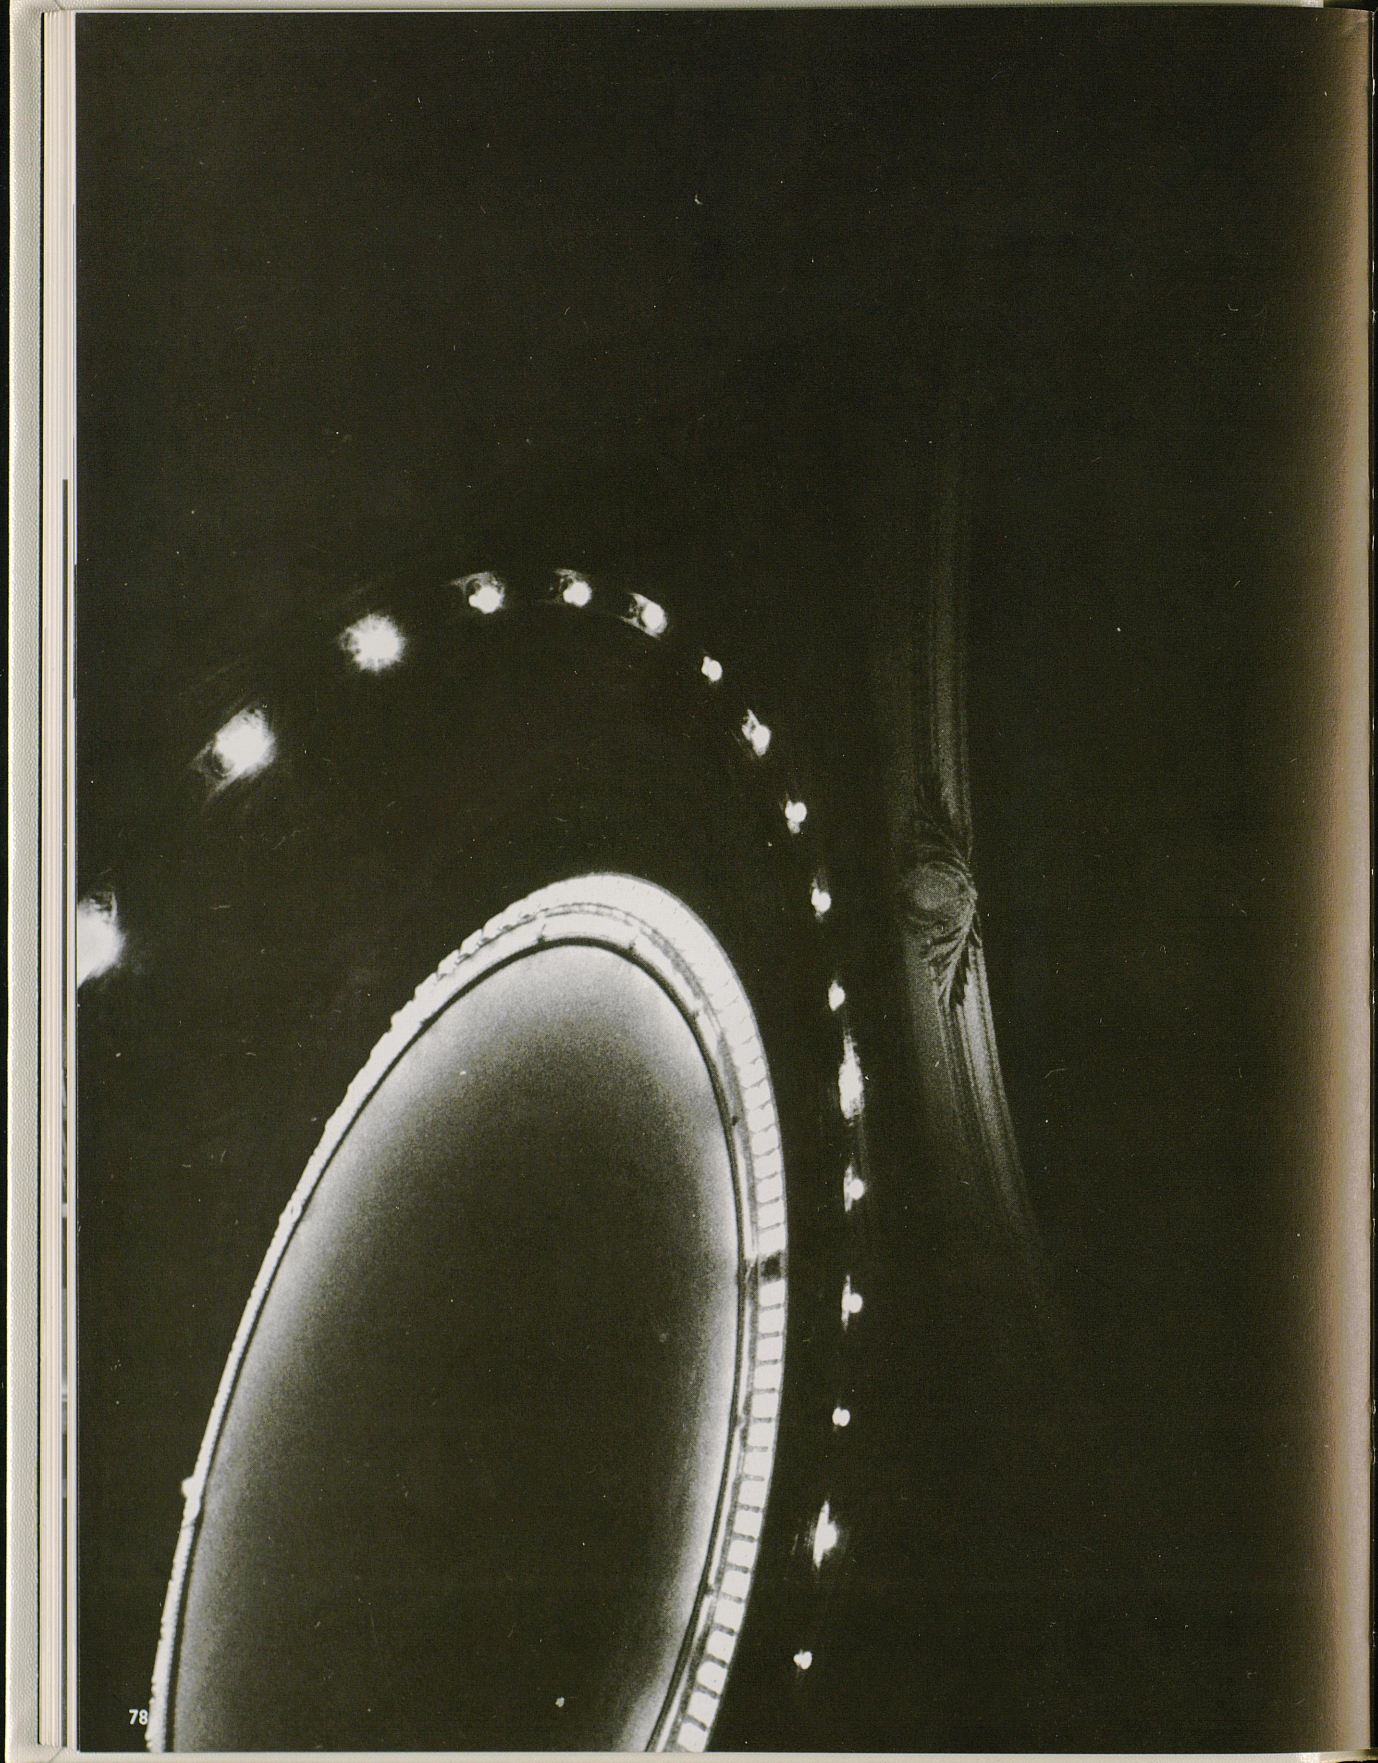
And yet the mood changes still.

The Wildcats didn't go to the NCAA this year, but a significant victory was scored at Carnegie Hall by the University Choristers and the Lexington Singers. Together with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra and the LaSalle String Quartet, they performed Wilfred Josephs' "Requiem," which won first place in international competition at the LaScalle Opera House in Milan. The event had marked significance not only for the Music Department, but also for the entire University, as evidenced by President and Mrs. Oswald's attendance at the New York performance.

PERFORMANCE AT CARNEGIE HALL

Carnegie Hall, the symbol of musical excellence, inspired the University participants. Four operatic stars were also in the program, including Norman Treigle, bass-baritone (left); the composer himself was there (lower left); Max Rudolf (right) led the orchestra and chorus through the monumental work. It was an exciting moment for the University. Hours of strenuous and demanding practice resulted in a performance of high professional quality, as indicated by the audience's response.





"UPON EACH CURTAIN CALL, THE AUDIENCE RESPONDED WITH AN INCREASING CRESCENDO OF APPLAUSE."

Dick Kimmins, Kentucky Kernel.

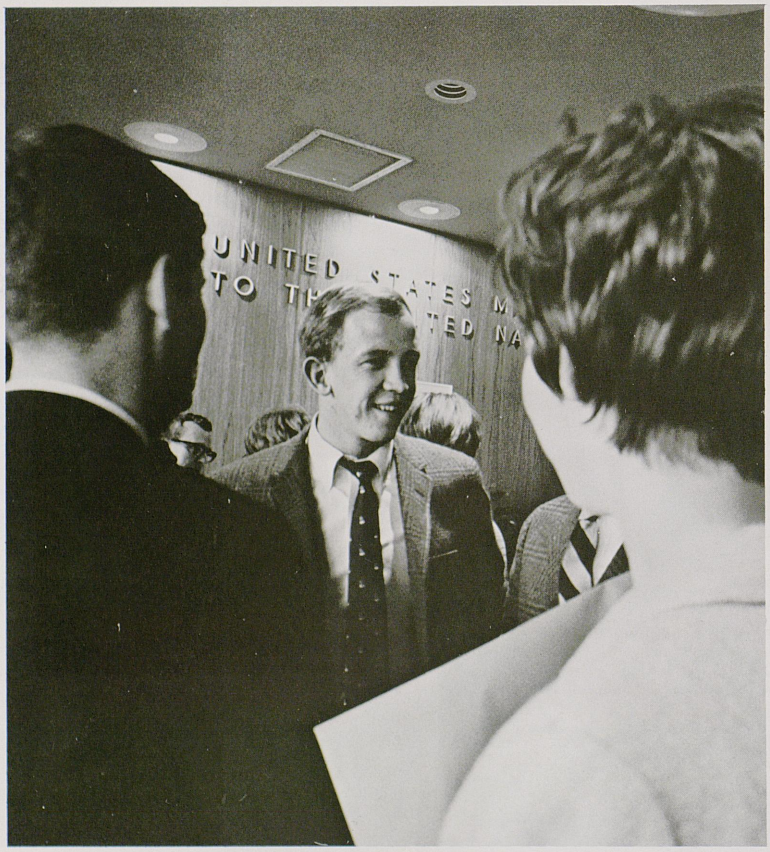
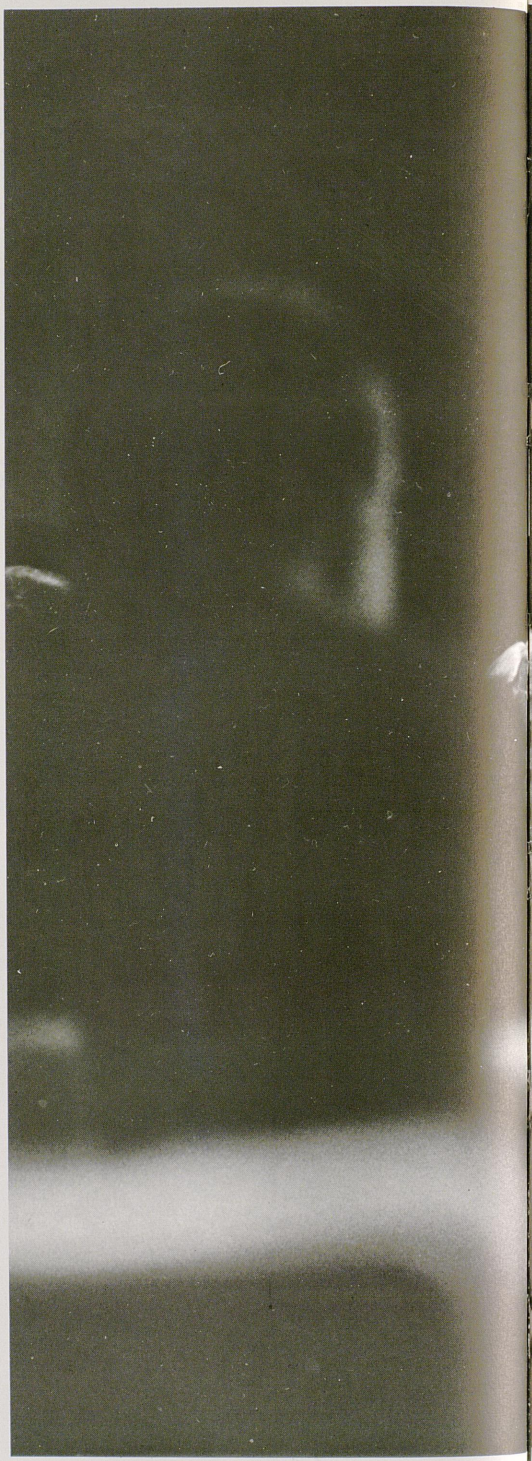
THE UNITED NATIONS SEMINAR

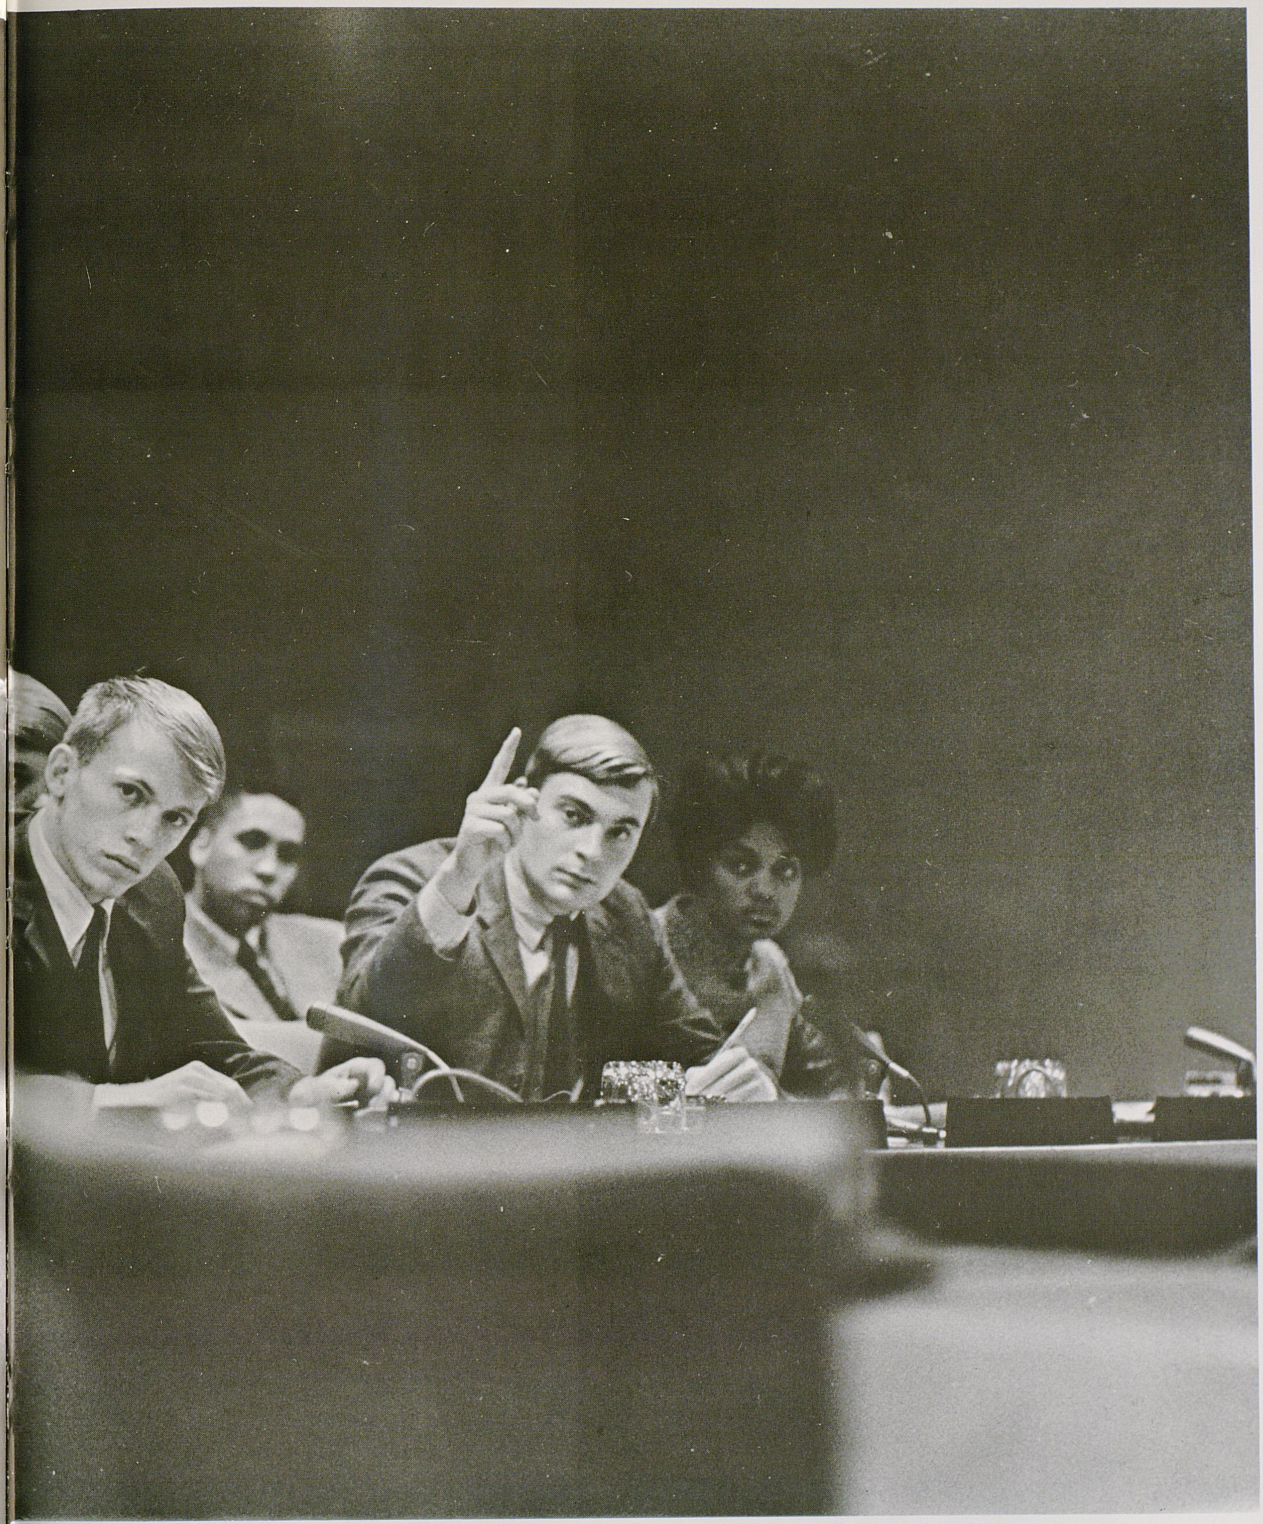
They went for many different reasons. To see New York ... visit friends ... go night-clubbing ... to attend the U.N. Seminar. After a sixteen-hour train ride and all night bull sessions, the fifty University of Kentucky students arrived in New York more fatigued than excited.

The purpose of the annual YMCA-sponsored Seminar is to further acquaint the students with the functioning of the U.N., and to provide contact with international representatives. The discussions with delegates from India, Thailand, France, and United States centered on the immediate question under debate in the General Assembly—the admittance of Red China. The stimulating sessions produced spontaneous discussions between delegates and students. Many questions were asked—some showing a lack of knowledge and understanding, but more showing intelligence and comprehension. Although they went for many different reasons, they returned with a realization of the significance and function of the U.N.



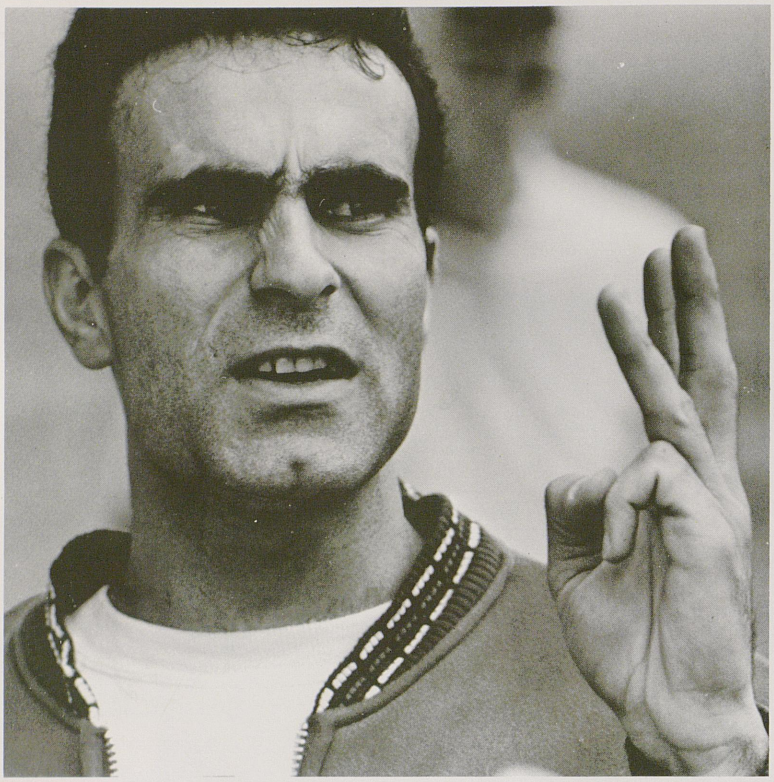
CHAIRMAN



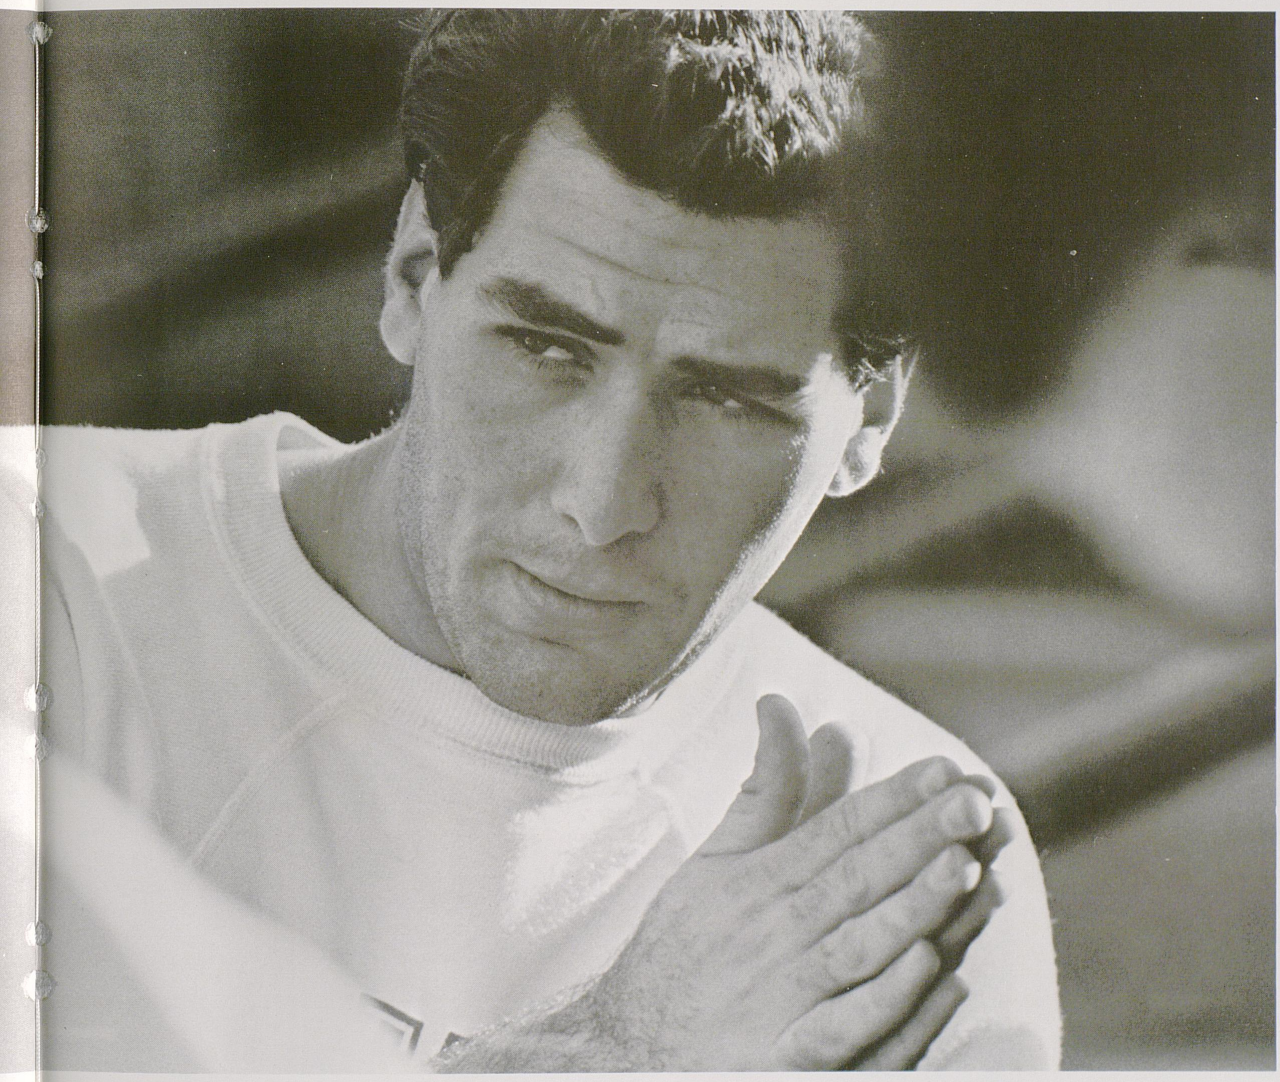


SOCCER TEAM FINISHES

THIRD IN SEC



Lacking University support and a coach, with soccer balls for their only equipment, several interested students banded together and created the most exciting athletic team at the University. The cosmopolitan aspect of the team and a mutual love for the game closely united the players. They were a rare group of athletes working together and playing hard, communicating and understanding, representing athletics at its best.



Soccer is both exciting and physically taxing. Outbursts of genuine joy were not unusual during the matches. And always the team competed strenuously.

Lack of University support made it impossible for some members to attend the SEC tournament in Knoxville. Those who went paid their own expenses, and Kentucky was unfortunately one man short for the first match. After winning the consolation match the following day, UK's first soccer team ended its season. This was true athletics.

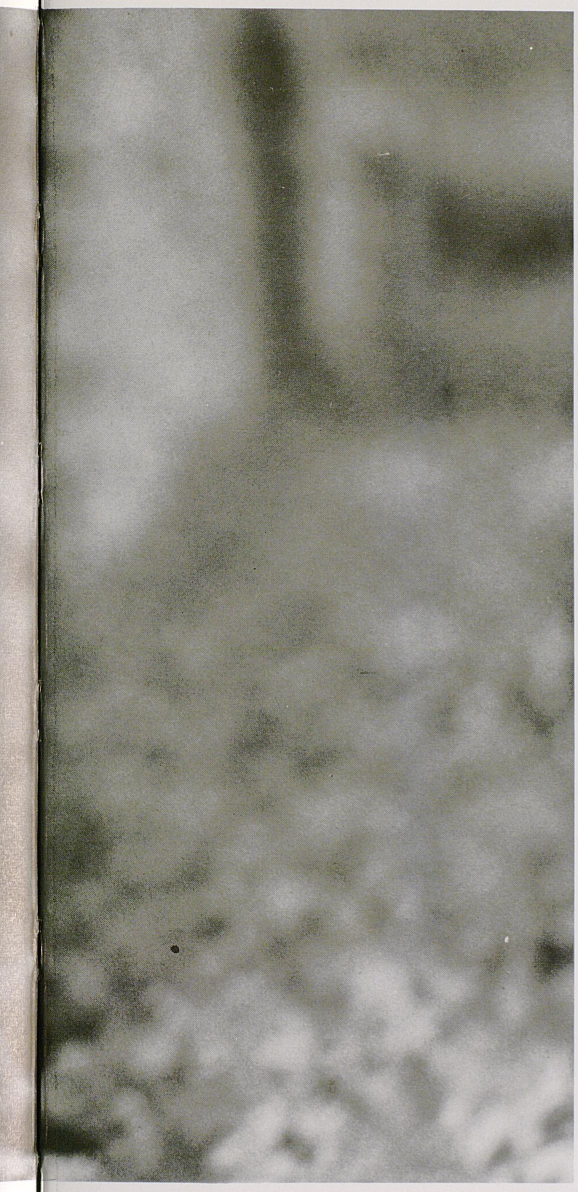
WALTER GRANT

for the past two years has been editor-in-chief of the Kentucky Kernel and from that post launched drives that revolutionized not only the Kernel, but the way this university regards the student press. Under him the paper turned from a campus calendar into an expanded five-days-a-week forum of news and opinions on significant campus, state, regional, national and international events. This type of coverage put it in line with the top papers in the nation and placed Walter on the National Executive Board of the U.S. Press Association. In his first year as editor, he placed third in the William Randolph Hearst National Editorial Writing Competition; this year he was second. As Walter leaves to direct the Collegiate Press Service from Washington, D.C., he can take satisfaction from the fact that the students on his staff have gained considerable capability in the difficult business of news reporting and judgment, and will continue to probe and pursue significant issues in higher education. He can also take satisfaction that on a campus unused to his way of thinking and acting, he probably caused more thinking and acting among students than any other student.

WILLIAM GRANT

in league with a handful of fellow journalists, most notably David V. Hawpe, presided over the pivotal year at the University as far as student activism and journalism are concerned. It was 1964-65, and the impact of the Kernel's shift into significant questioning of equal rights, student freedom, and the position of big-time athletics in the academic community are still felt in 1967. Between those dates Bill served as the most effective director the Collegiate Press Service has had, and then returned to the University as the first graduate assistant in the Kernel's history. Thus, under the combined influence of the Grants, the concerned student coming into the University Community found the Kernel to be the most provocative student operation in existence.



JOY GOCKERMAN

committed herself
two years ago to a dual role that few students attempt and fewer accomplish. Now entering her senior year, she has earned the deserved respect of both the University academic and activity communities.
Unlike others at the University who glibly rise to and ride on high office, Joy's hallmarks are relentless efficiency and refreshing candidness. Joy follows Nancy Fitch as Mortar Board's second consecutive superb president.

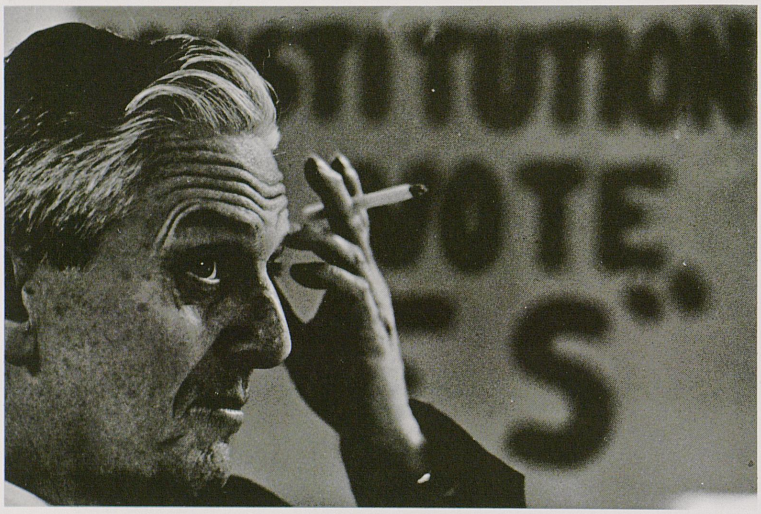
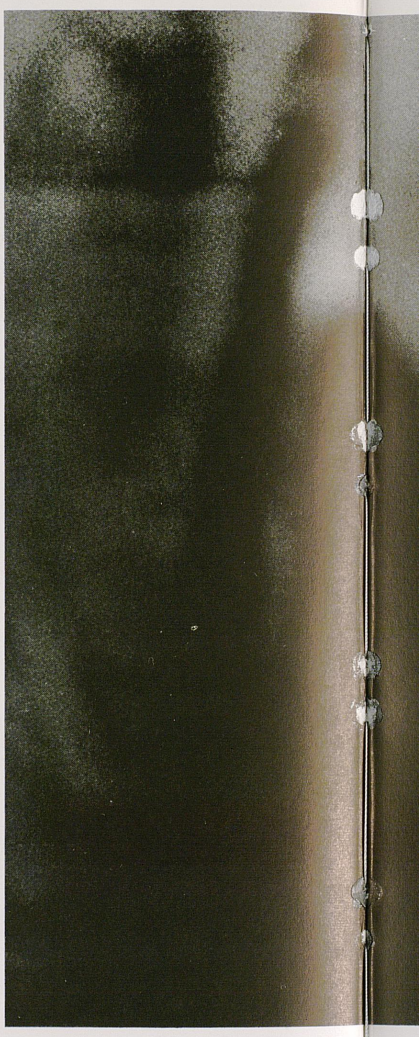
BOB O'TOOLE

was counselor to two different communities of people during his senior year. One was the predominantly freshman floor in Haggin Hall where he was Corridor Advisor. Having won an Outstanding Corridor Advisor Award the previous year for his work in Cooperstown, Bob stepped on the floor of Haggin B-2 in the fall of 1966 and deservedly captured the respect of his advisees and his colleagues. It was widely acknowledged by the other advisors that Bob was the best in the system; his fellas thought so too. Bob carried with him into his second community the consistently quiet self-confidence which brought him success in the dorm. In fulfilling the requirements for his degree in social work, Bob did field work at Kentucky Village, working directly with the children as a case worker. To Bob, this experience was the most educational aspect of his four years at the University. While to most these two communities may seem very different and totally dissimilar, it is to Bob's credit that he approached them equally and consistently, imparting to both his interest, concern, affection and understanding.

JACK REEVES,

Associate Professor of Political Science, felt that this year the object of a two decade crusade had its best chance of approval. The object he felt so strongly about, and worked so strenuously to see achieved, was the proposed constitutional revision for Kentucky. When, after a year of severe effort and work, he witnessed the revision measure decisively rejected, he was sharply disappointed and conjectured that perhaps the proposed constitution was too advanced for the state. Later, a somewhat more optimistic Reeves was charting strengths and weaknesses, and it was felt he wouldn't be quiet long when his voice was still needed.





BEN EISEMAN, M.D.

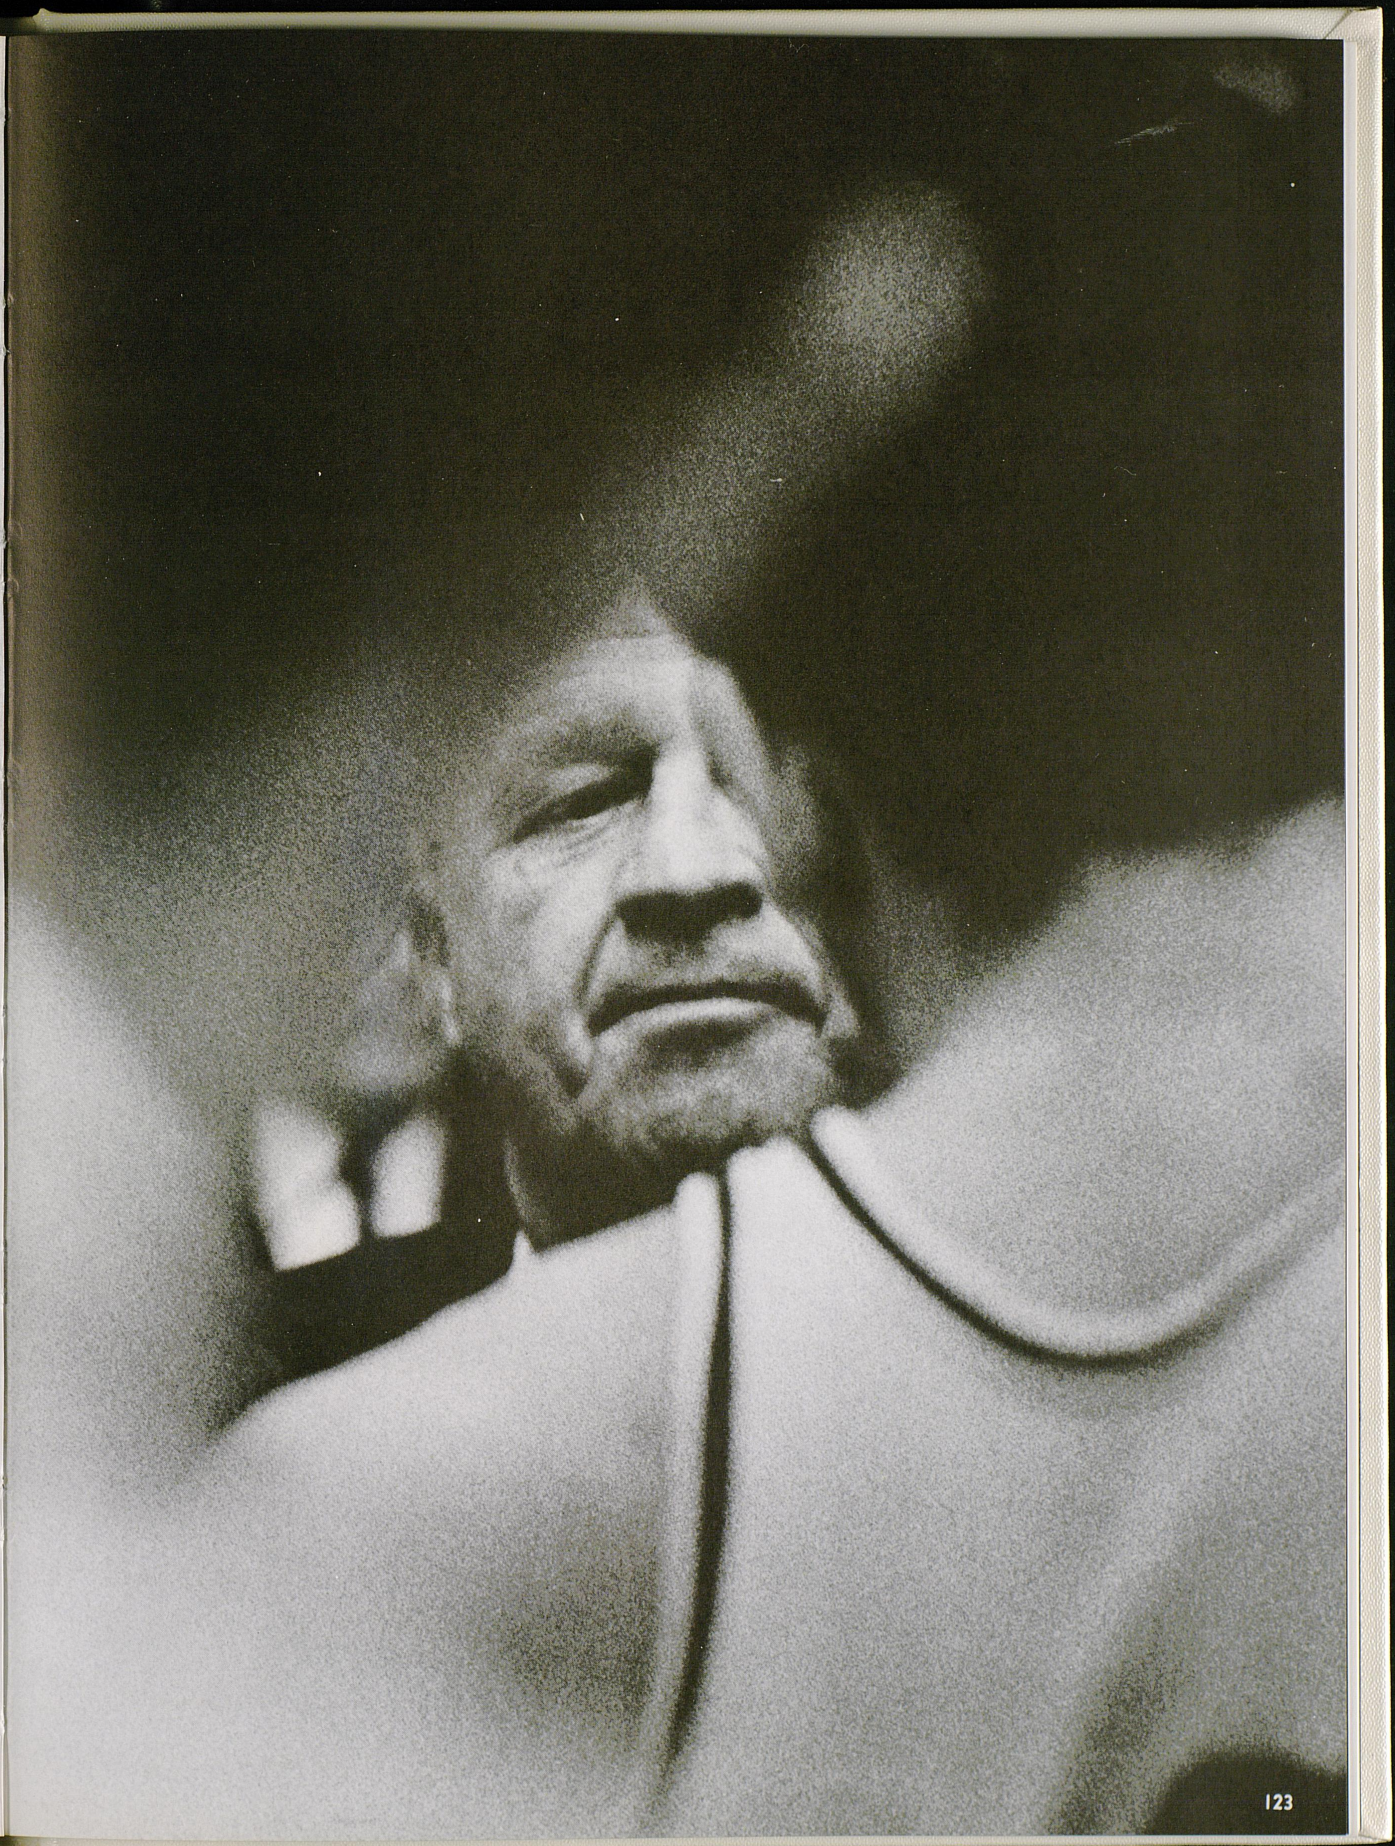
came to the University of Kentucky Medical Center when it was an empty architectural colossus on the edge of the agricultural experiment farm. When, last fall, he announced he would resign as chairman of the department of surgery and return to the University of Colorado, the University, and particularly the Med Center, felt a deep sense of loss. Leaving was a man who had learned medicine at Harvard and practiced it in Bangkok in 1951 and Viet Nam in 1966. Leaving was the man who had been president of the Society of University Surgeons, and Moynihan Lecturer at the Royal College of Surgeons of England. Gone, at last, was the man who, more than any other, instilled a pride in medicine and a pursuit of excellence among his colleagues at Kentucky.

HARRY LANCASTER

is the other coach of basketball at the University of Kentucky—the freshman coach. This was never so evident as this year when his team surpassed the varsity not only in record (not uncommon considering their inconsistent schedule) but also in excitement. But beyond that, and beyond this year, it is evident that Lancaster annually sends boys to Adolph Rupp who have yet to reach their potential as athletes, but who have somewhere in their freshman year gleaned considerable maturity and dependability that characterizes Kentucky basketball players for more than just four years.

BONNIE COX

was one of the best undergraduates UK persuaded to stay in Lexington to finish graduate work. For the University this effort has paid off remarkably: Bonnie was one of the most highly regarded graduate instructors in the English Department for two years before she received a $7,000, two-year NDEA grant for research and writing.



ELLIS BULLOCK

(preceding spread) has articulately addressed himself to three areas of campus affairs: In AFROTC he twice received the Merkel Award for Outstanding Leadership; by founding an Alpha Phi Alpha chapter at UK he was named APA's Outstanding Undergraduate in the Nation for 1966; more recently he, with Bill Turner, was predominant in efforts to recruit top Negro athletes to UK. With these achievements, it can only be expected that Ellis, as founder of ORGENA, will guide this group to its goal of improving race relations among the students at the University, and insure ORGENA'S existence after he leaves next year.

KATHY TABLER

committed her talents in horticulture not only to the classroom, but also to national competition where her project placed in the top three. She also revitalized the Horticulture Club and made it one of the most enjoyable clubs at UK.

"LINDSEY

is good because he does what he says he will . . . lots of the art students talk and plan but never do anything . . . ." That quote from a friend of sculptor John Lindsey sheds light on a person who was active in and concerned with the growth of the art department. Lindsey, shown working with torch and scrap metal for sculpture, is also good not only because he said he would create, but because he created with imagination and taste.

JOHN ALEXANDER

came to the University just two years ago from Oberlin College. In that short period he remolded the Men's Glee Club into an excellent music ensemble. He also built the Chamber Singers into one of the finest vocal organizations in the University's history. In a year characterized by staggering losses of faculty and graduate personnel, John Alexander is foremost. In the fall he leaves for the University of Illinois.

THE BAND

had more spirit and determination to be good than ever before. They practiced a week before school started in the fall. They drilled in the rain, marched in the snow. Volunteers played at every home basketball game. A young band, a good band, they could achieve their goal of greatness in this student generation.

WALLY SCHMIDT

is accruing wide acknowledgement as a promising tenor. This year his solos in "The Messiah" and the Men's Glee Club Concert ("Yonder, Yonder") were nearly unsurpassable. Besides directing a church choir, he is a member of the Choristers, Men's Glee Club, Chamber Singers, and Chorus.

CECILE MOORE

gave the most memorable Senior recital of the year. Because she combined excellent musicianship with a flair for music education and leadership, she was the logical choice for the Fine Arts Festival Representative from the Music Department.

"MISS B"

Jane Batchelder, was the driving force behind an increasingly ambitious Student Center Board each of her three years on campus. As she leaves Lexington for a new life and job in Indiana, Jane also leaves a legacy of friends among students and administrators, proving that she was one of the most successful liasions between these groups at the University.

WALLY BRIGGS

this year takes on one of his most important roles: he is the first director of the newly-founded Theatre Arts Department. In previous lead roles, Wally has excellent reviews by the students he has taught and by the actors and actresses of Guignol Theatre he has directed. These same two groups of students, as well as the University community at large and the city, can only continue to expect the same dedication to the Department that Wally has always given to drama.

JOHN O'BRIEN

knows Lexington and knows how to get the things done he sees no one else attempting. As only a sophomore he and Willis Bright founded an embryonic Tutorial Program at the 2nd Street "Y" and the Manchester Center. Two years later, after trying to make Student Government relevant and being a free lance writer for the Kernel, he could visit any of eight locations in Lexington and talk with the people about a tutorial program that had sprung from his original two locations.

RALPH WESLEY'S

finest trait is that he is always Ralph Wesley. Ralph was a dorm hero at LR Complex 4 because of his frank and candid manner. He published the Rogue and praised SMOC-4, always with wit, humor, and clear visioned satire. His healthy involvement was most evident in his work in Student Congress where he spoke with refreshing and unusual veracity, maintaining a clear perspective with his humor, insight, and constancy.

GENE WARREN

(left) put the Donovan-Quadrangle Government on the first firm footing that it has ever had. The government successfully sponsored jam sessions to raise money for a dormitory library and stimulated other freshmen to become active in campus affairs.

STAN FORSTAN

(below) demonstrated on the field and in the classroom the kinds of qualities the University should be looking for not only in quarterbacks but in all perspective athletes. He is the most promising student athlete in this generation.

JEAN-PAUL PEGERON, who came to the United States two years ago from France, quickly established himself at the University. He was a member of the Honors Program, the Pryor Pre-Med Society, a leading scorer on the soccer team, and a member of the winning Quiz Bowl team.

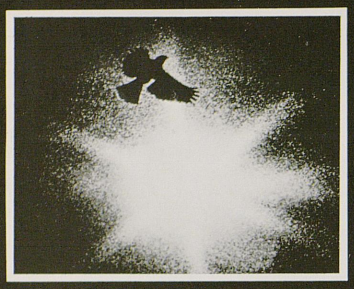
BOB HOWELL

(left) is representative of the promising scholarship of the freshman class. He was the key member of the winning UK Quiz Bowl team and was a member of the GE College Bowl team. Bob is a history major with special interest in Ancient History. He plans to teach at the college level.

A FINER UK

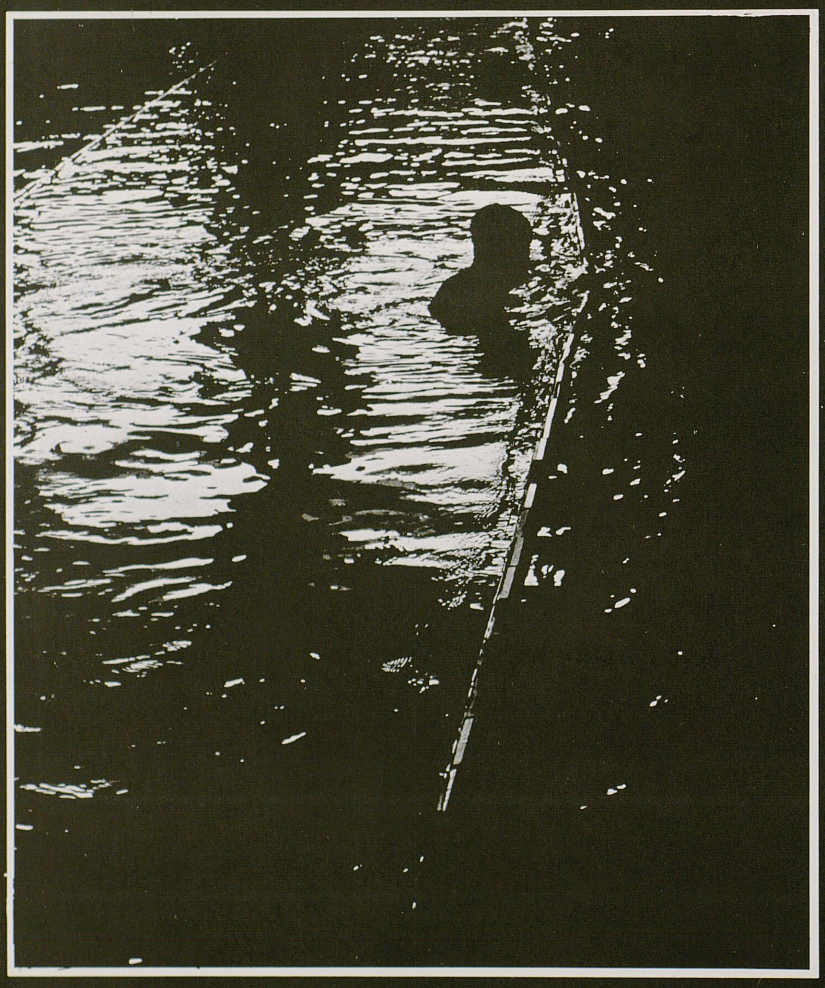
JOAN RUE

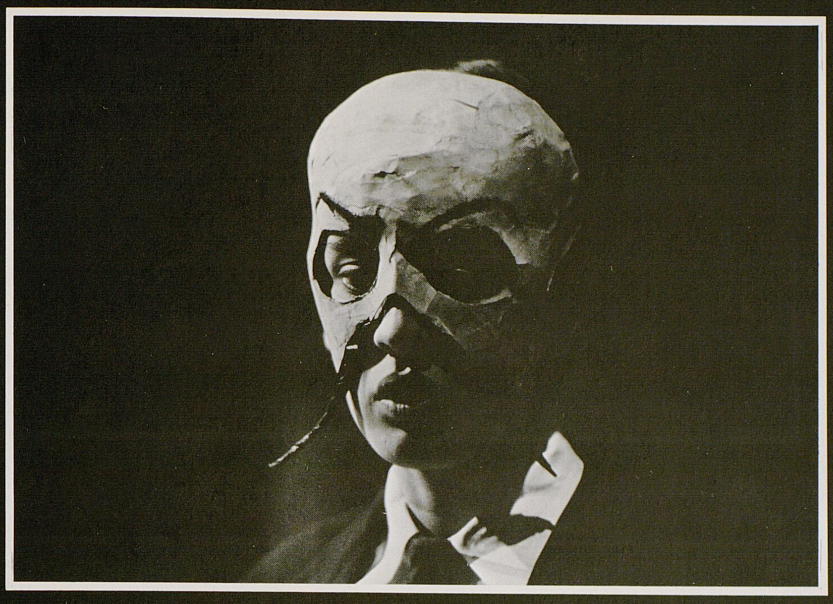
sensitive and mature lead in Chekhov's difficult "The Seagull" introduced the most promising actress in this student generation and keynoted the establishment of the Department of Theater Arts.

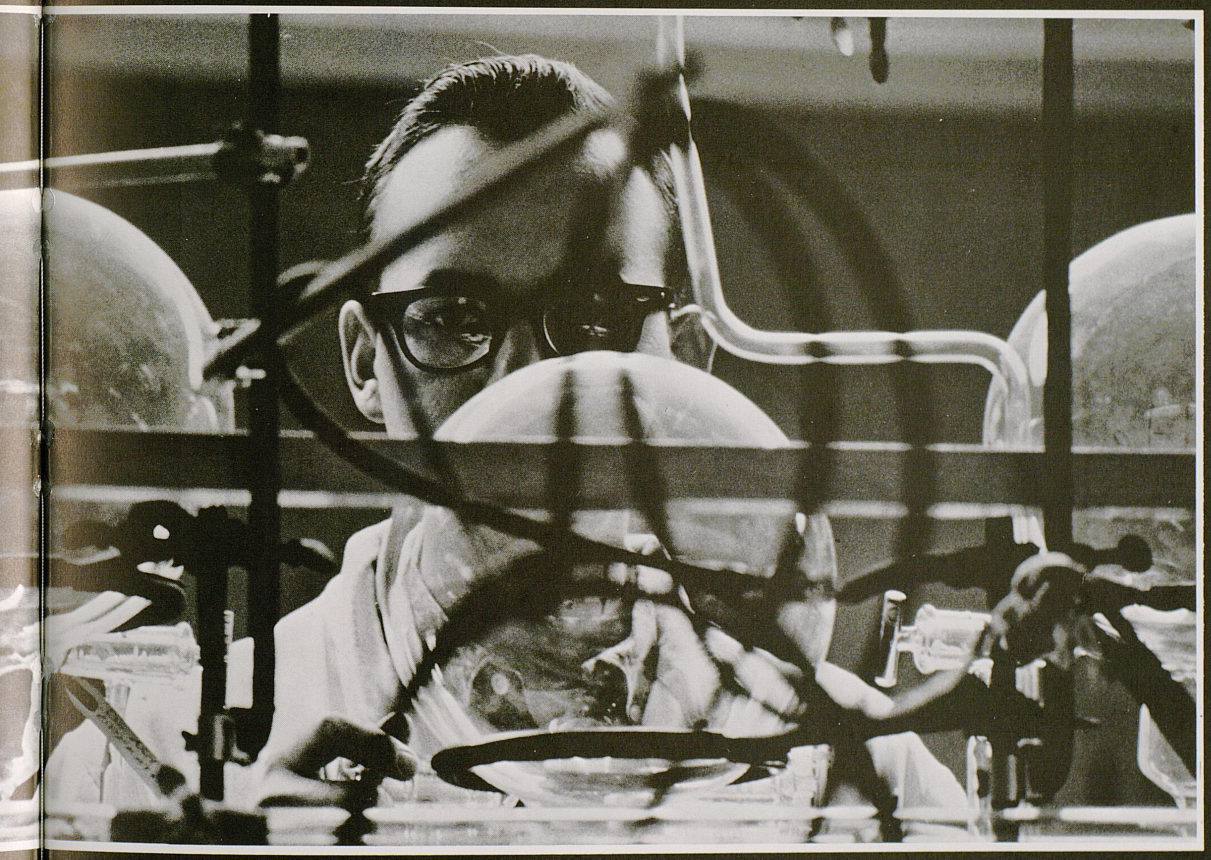


In an expanding university there are many areas which are never seen by most students. Three such areas are minor sports, fine arts, and graduate research. Representing these three areas are a swimmer, an actress, and a chemistry graduate student. The Kentuckian presents them as its

HIDDEN STUDENTS



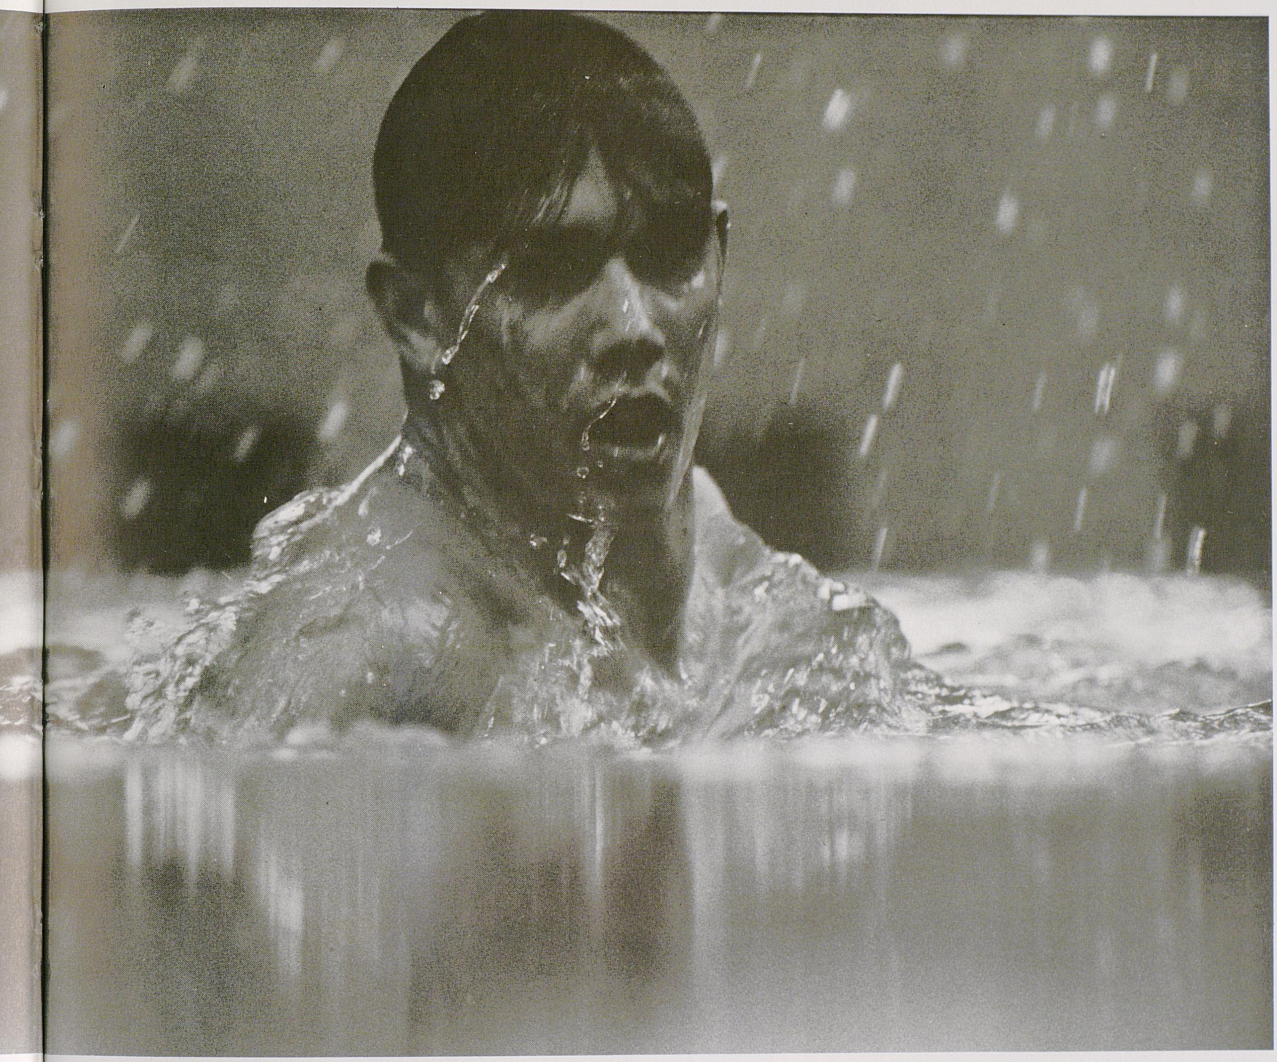


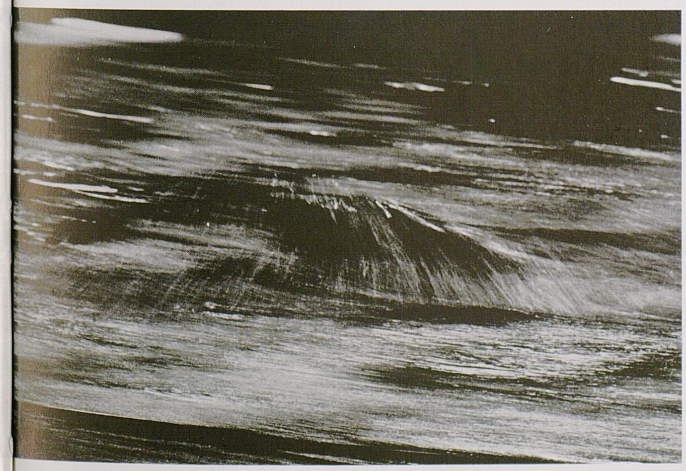


HIDDEN STUDENTS/I

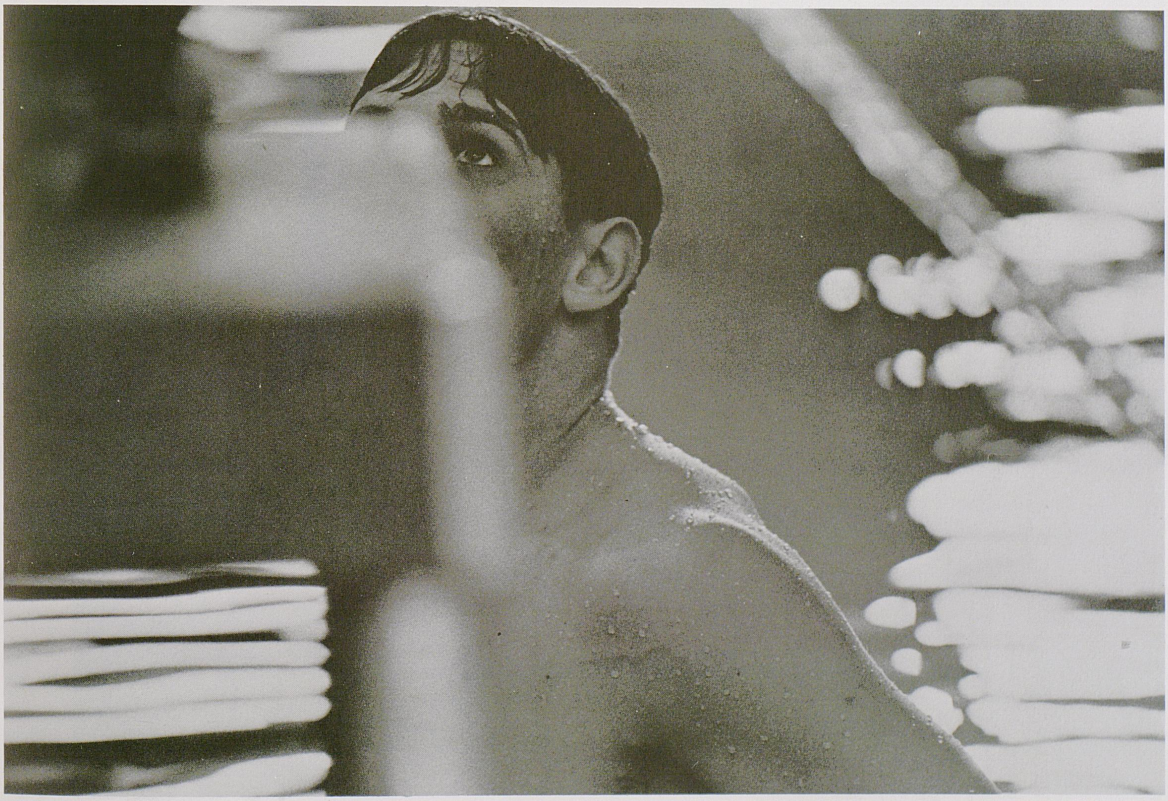
MINOR SPORTS

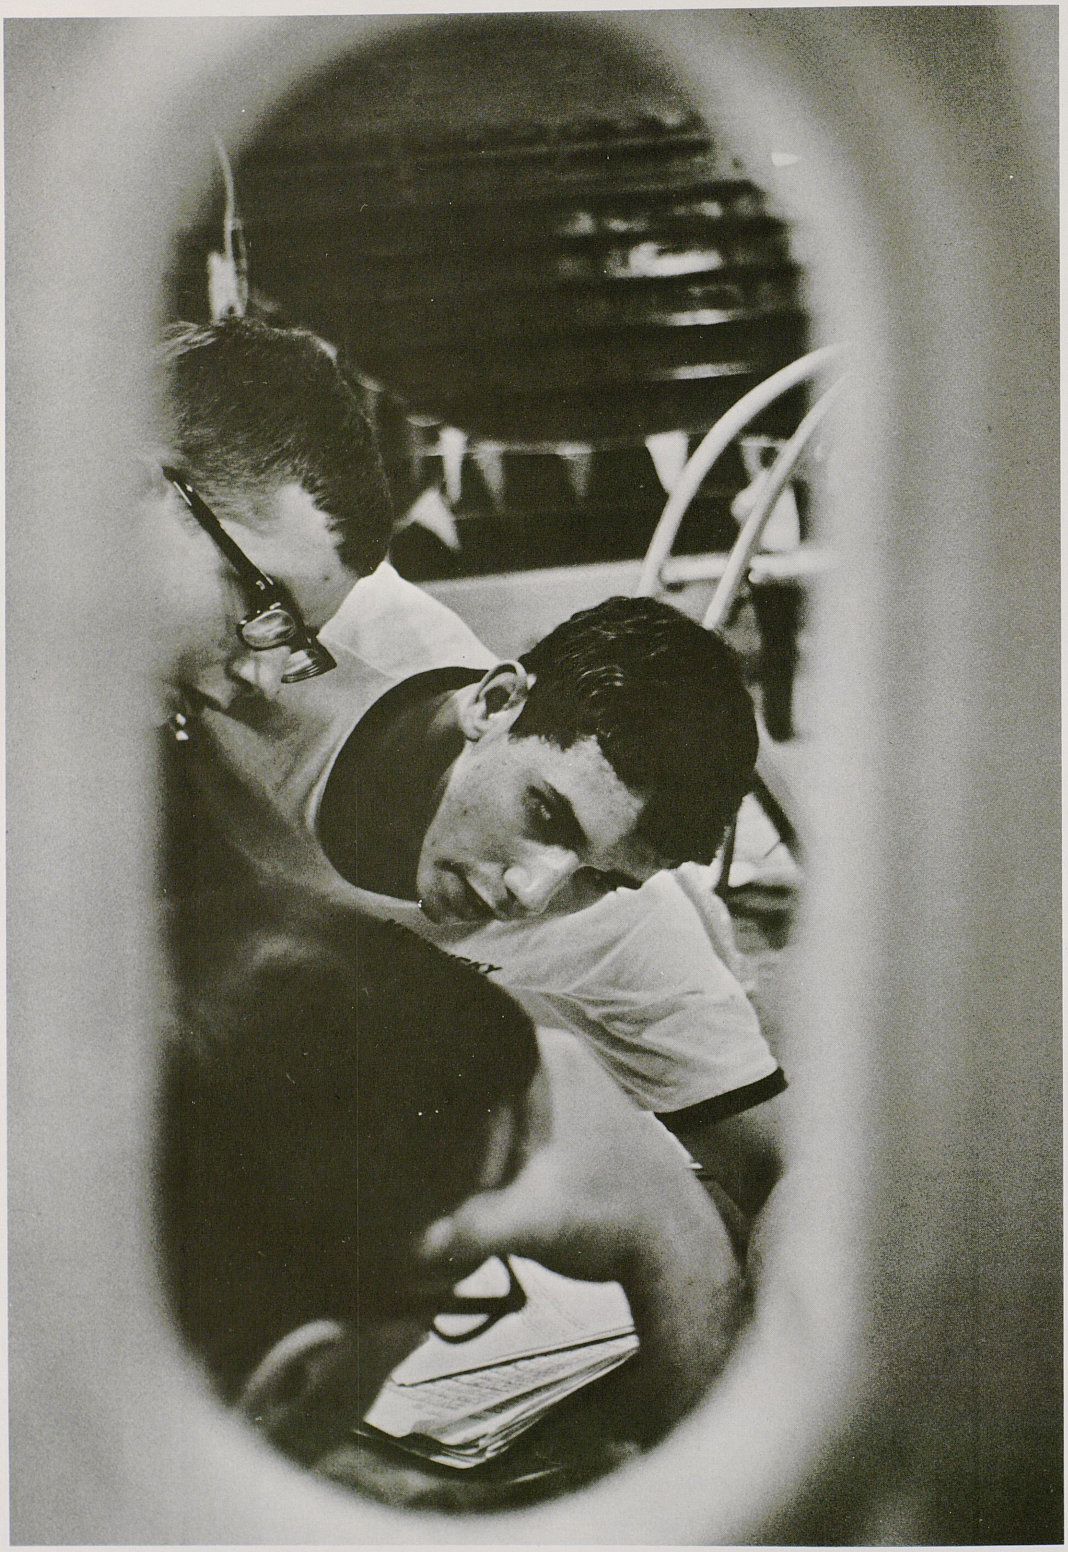
"All universities are trying to build up their minor sports," believes the University's first full grant-in-aid swimmer, Ed Struss. This is the story of a minor sportsman who may signify an emergence: the emergence of the lesser hero whose efforts do not win many dollars, and the emergence of a University which may have sensed the value of an excellence less blatant than is screamed through the cheerleader's megaphone.





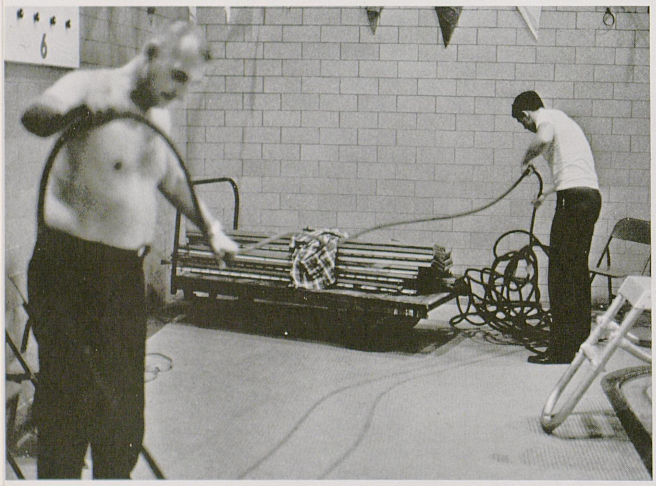
The coach comes early to give special help.

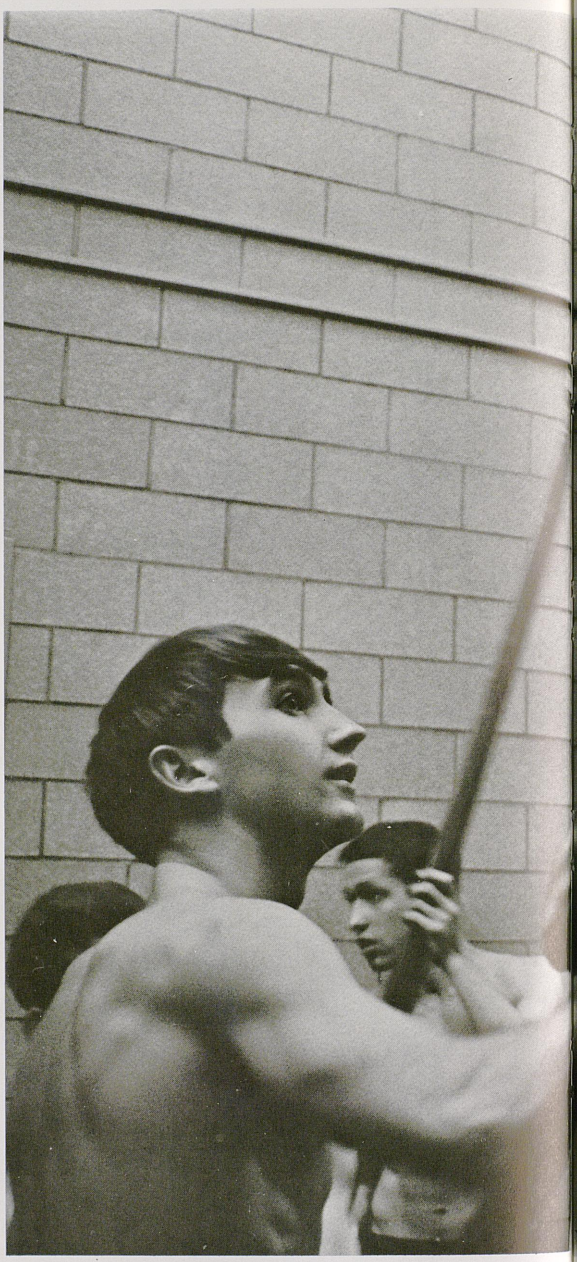


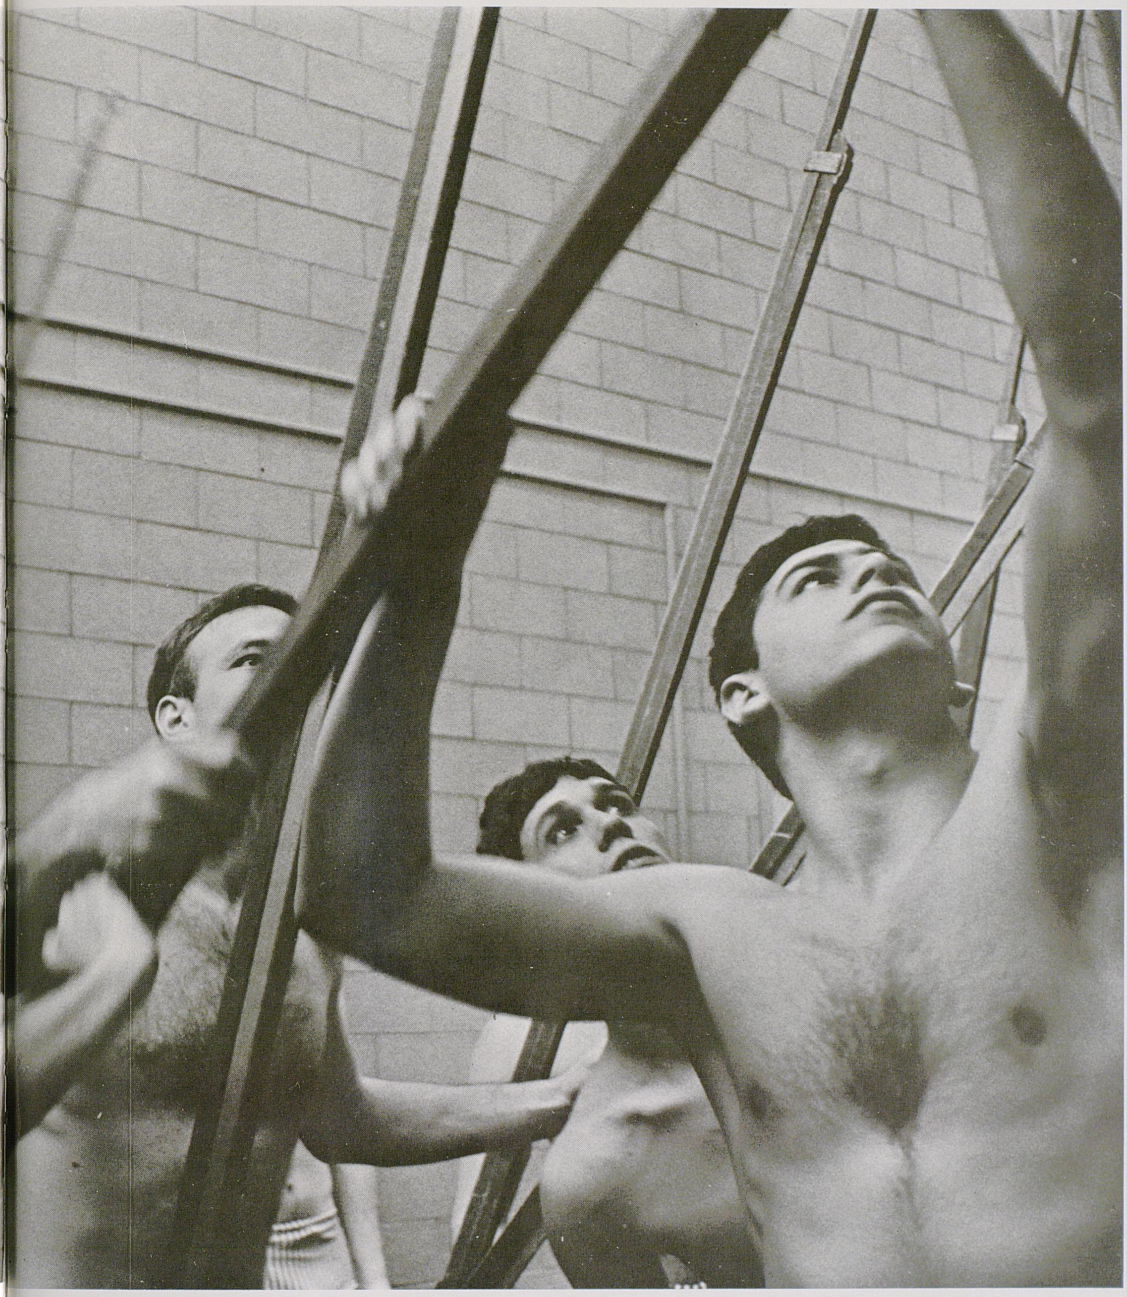


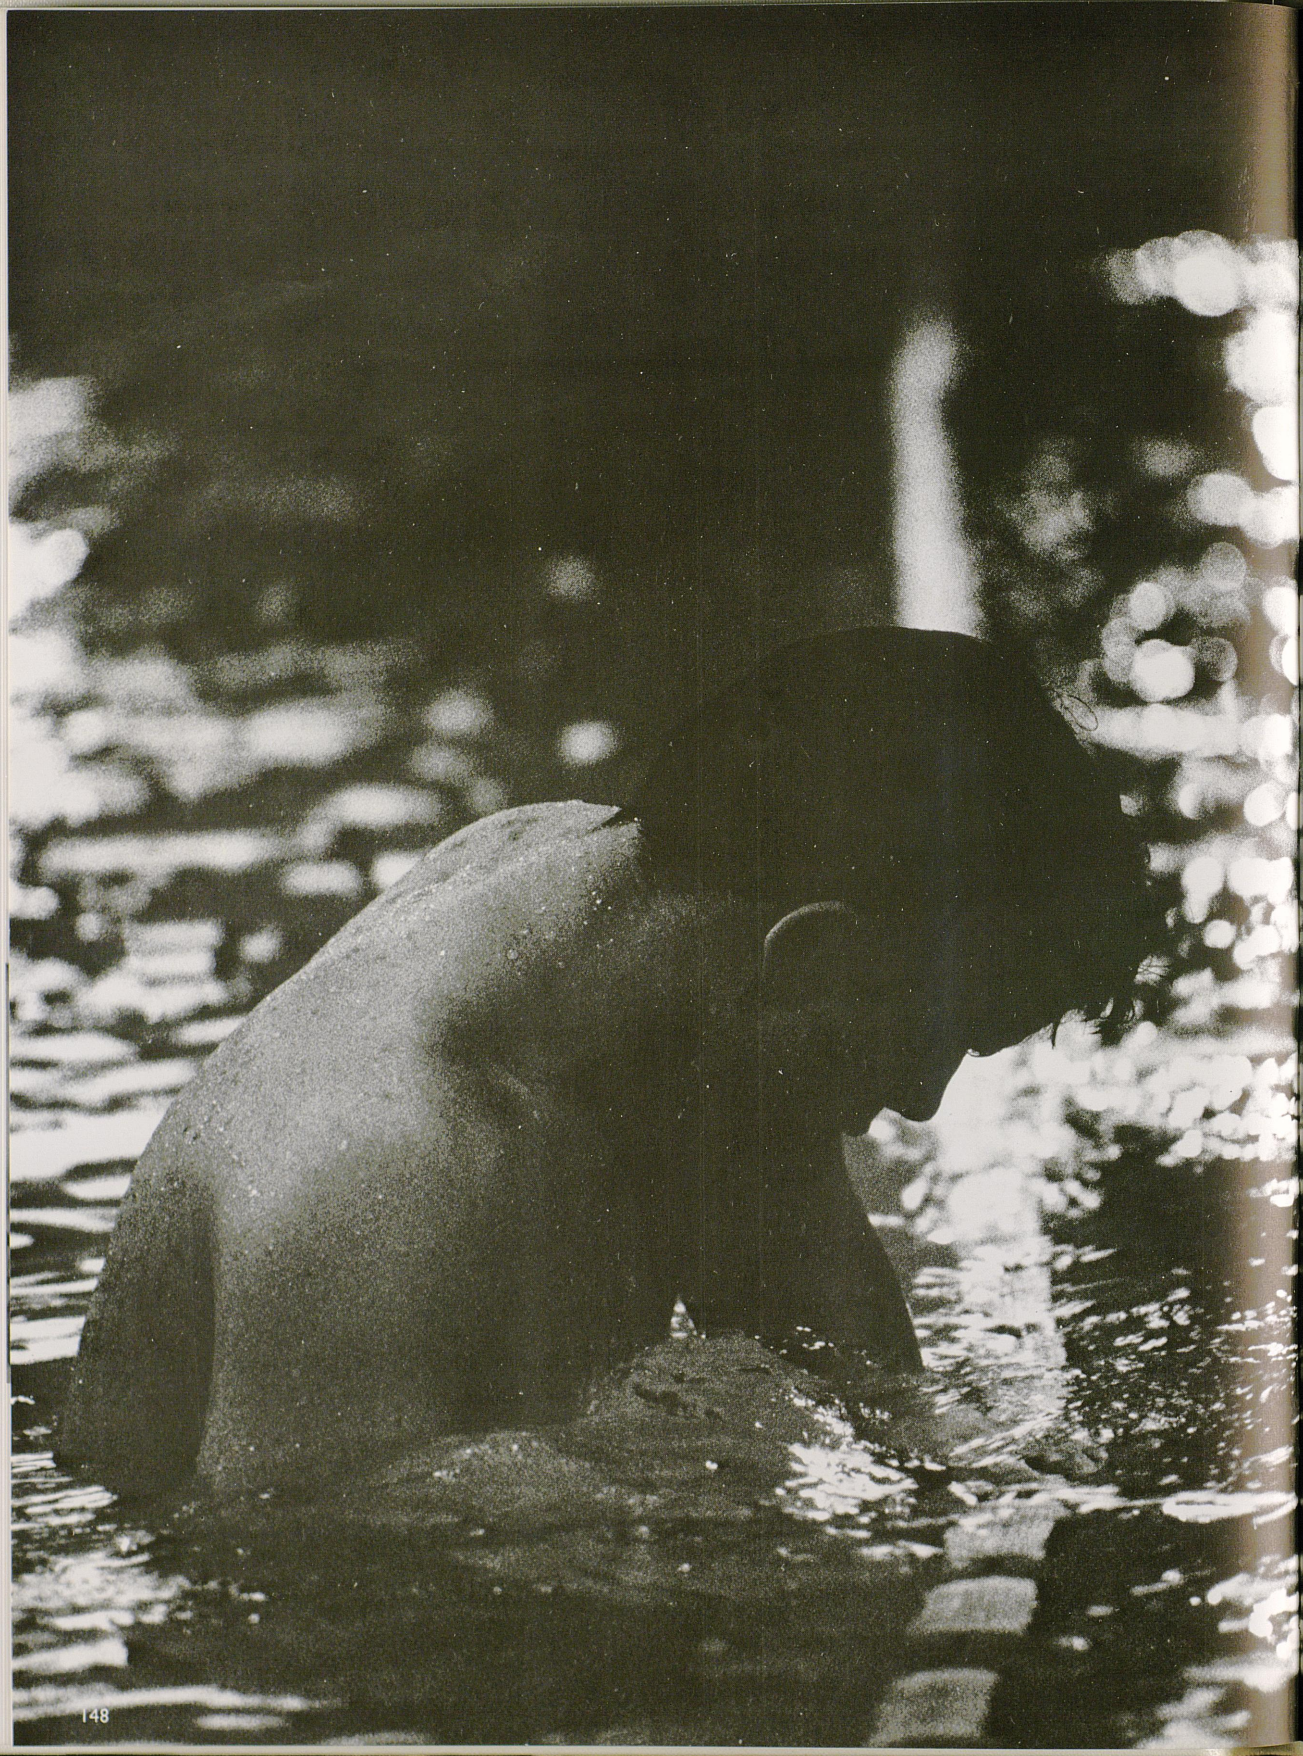
"Coach Paul tries to get us to do most of the helping out, keep score, make posters. We're happy to do it. We know the team doesn't have money or facilities—so somebody has to do it."

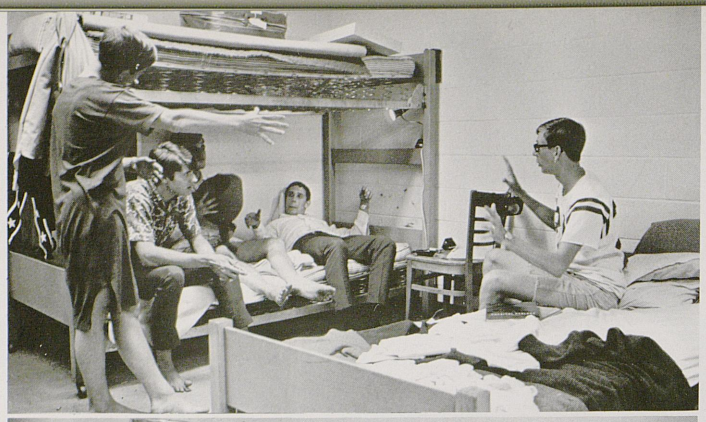
"We don't have a work crew."



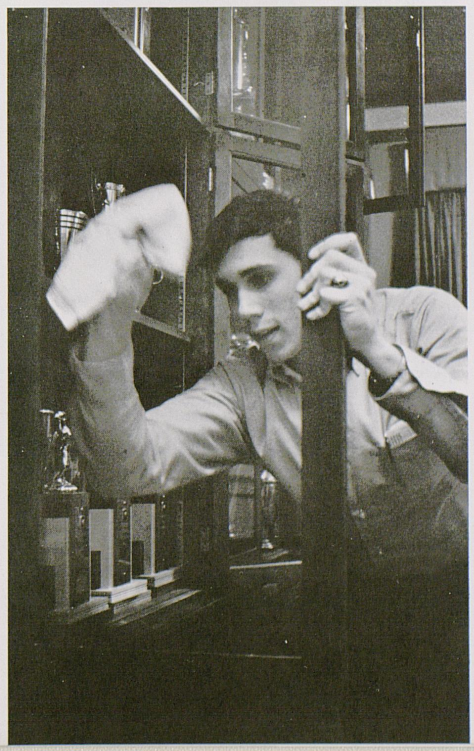


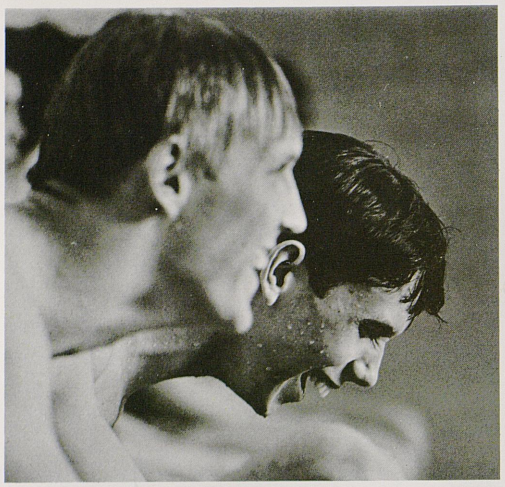






Struss wore neither badges nor beanies to distinguish him from other class-going, pillow-fighting, pledging freshmen.

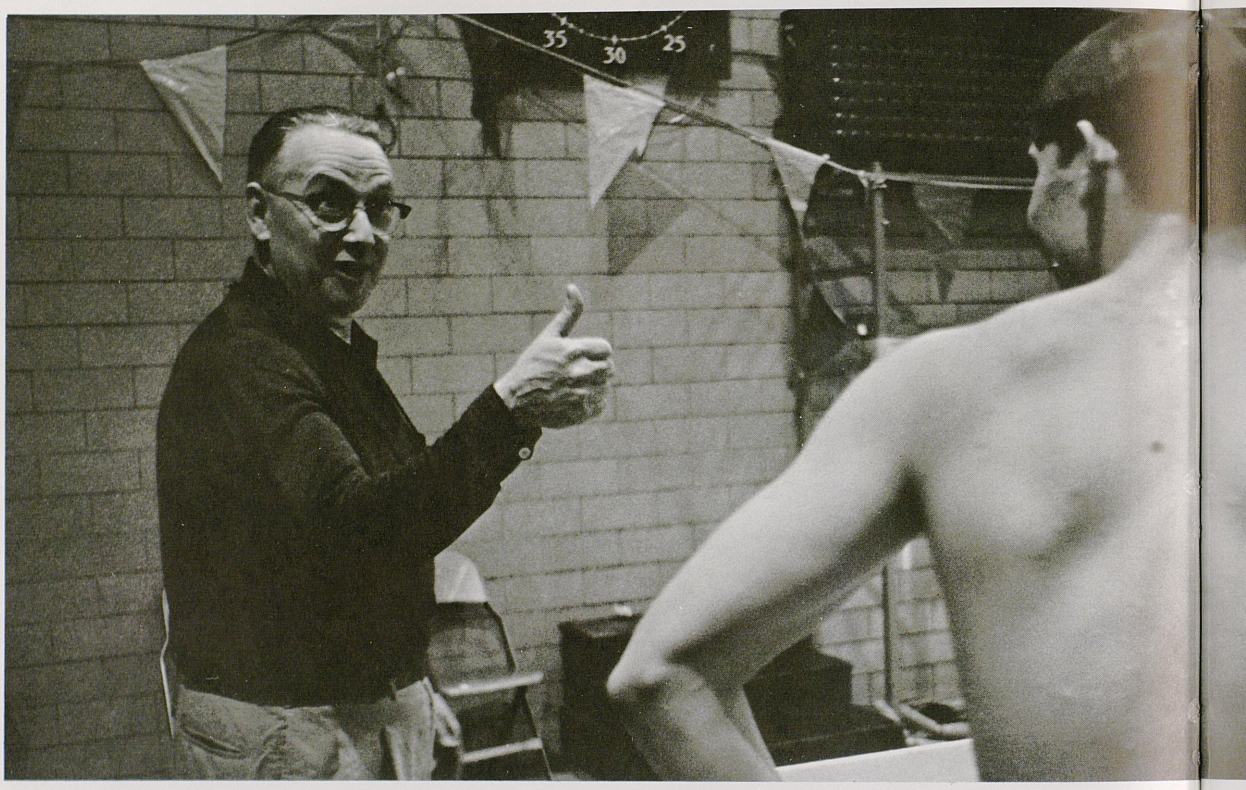


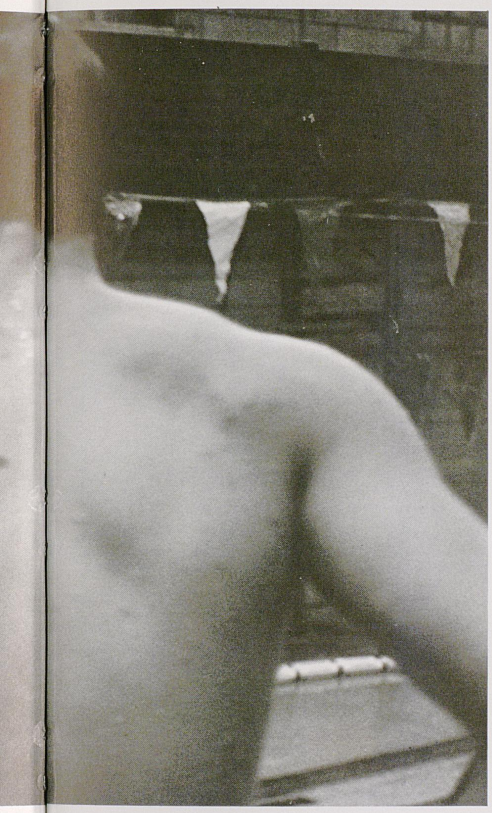


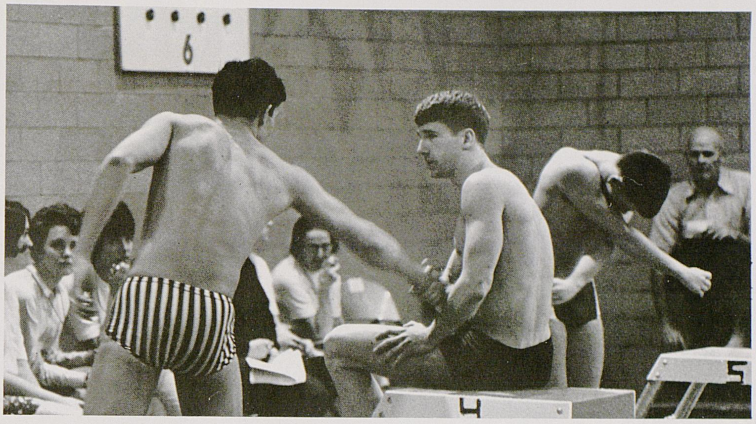
The coach clowns to break monotony

. . . but wants to win at everything he does.

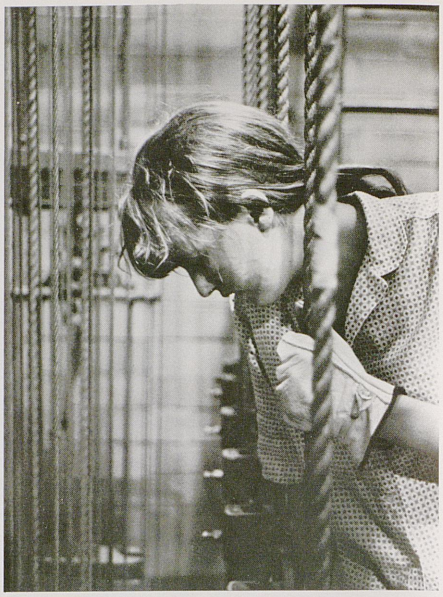
The SEC championship meet is the high point of the season. Struss and his father have a sign: "Thumbs up means, 'go! let's move! let's do the best you can!' "







"Nobody knows you're a swimmer. If you wear a K-jacket or something, people ask you where you got the letter. There're just a very few people who notice." Struss knows there are few who notice the sport of swimming; opposite, he sits alone and unnoticed after winning the SEC meet.



"GUIGNOL IS LIKE A HOME YOU

HELP TO BUILD"

Home? Home is mostly a place to sleep. Guignol is my home. I have a home—much more than my apartment—and a second family here.

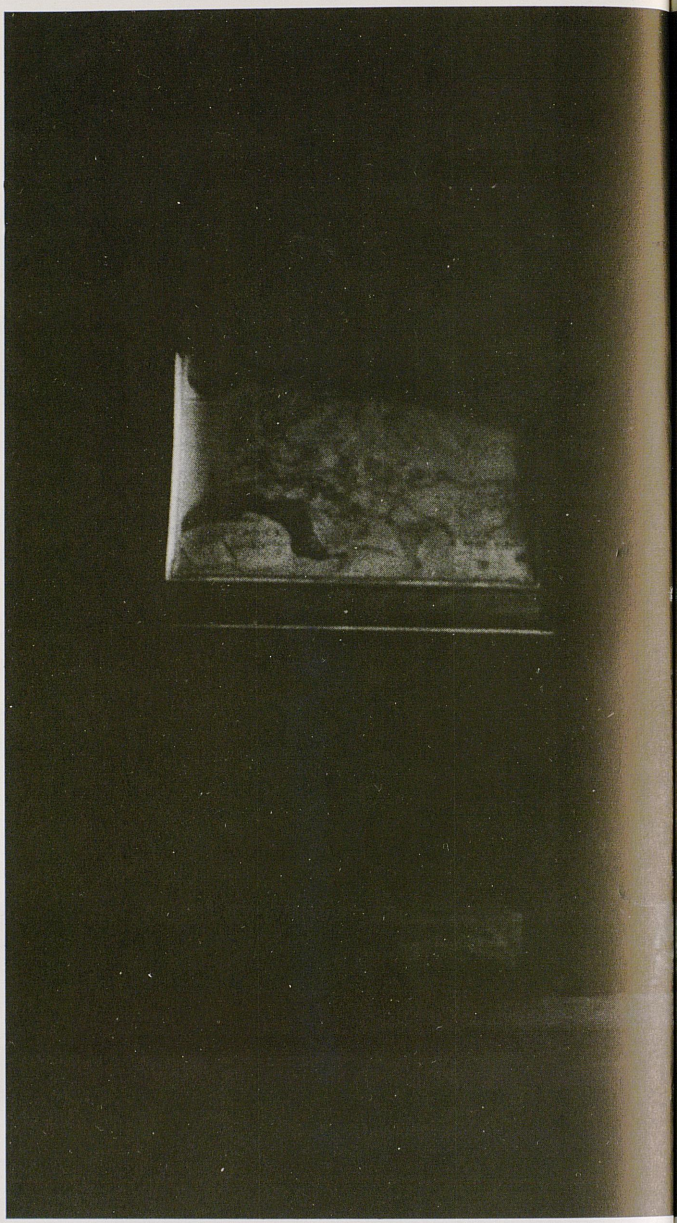
I've taken tickets, scrubbed floors, been an usher, sewed, served coffee, typed, done publicity, drawn, designed sets, gossipped, wasted time, studied, been a stage manager, been on the light set, been on the sound crew, been on the props crew, done carpentry and painting and wiring.

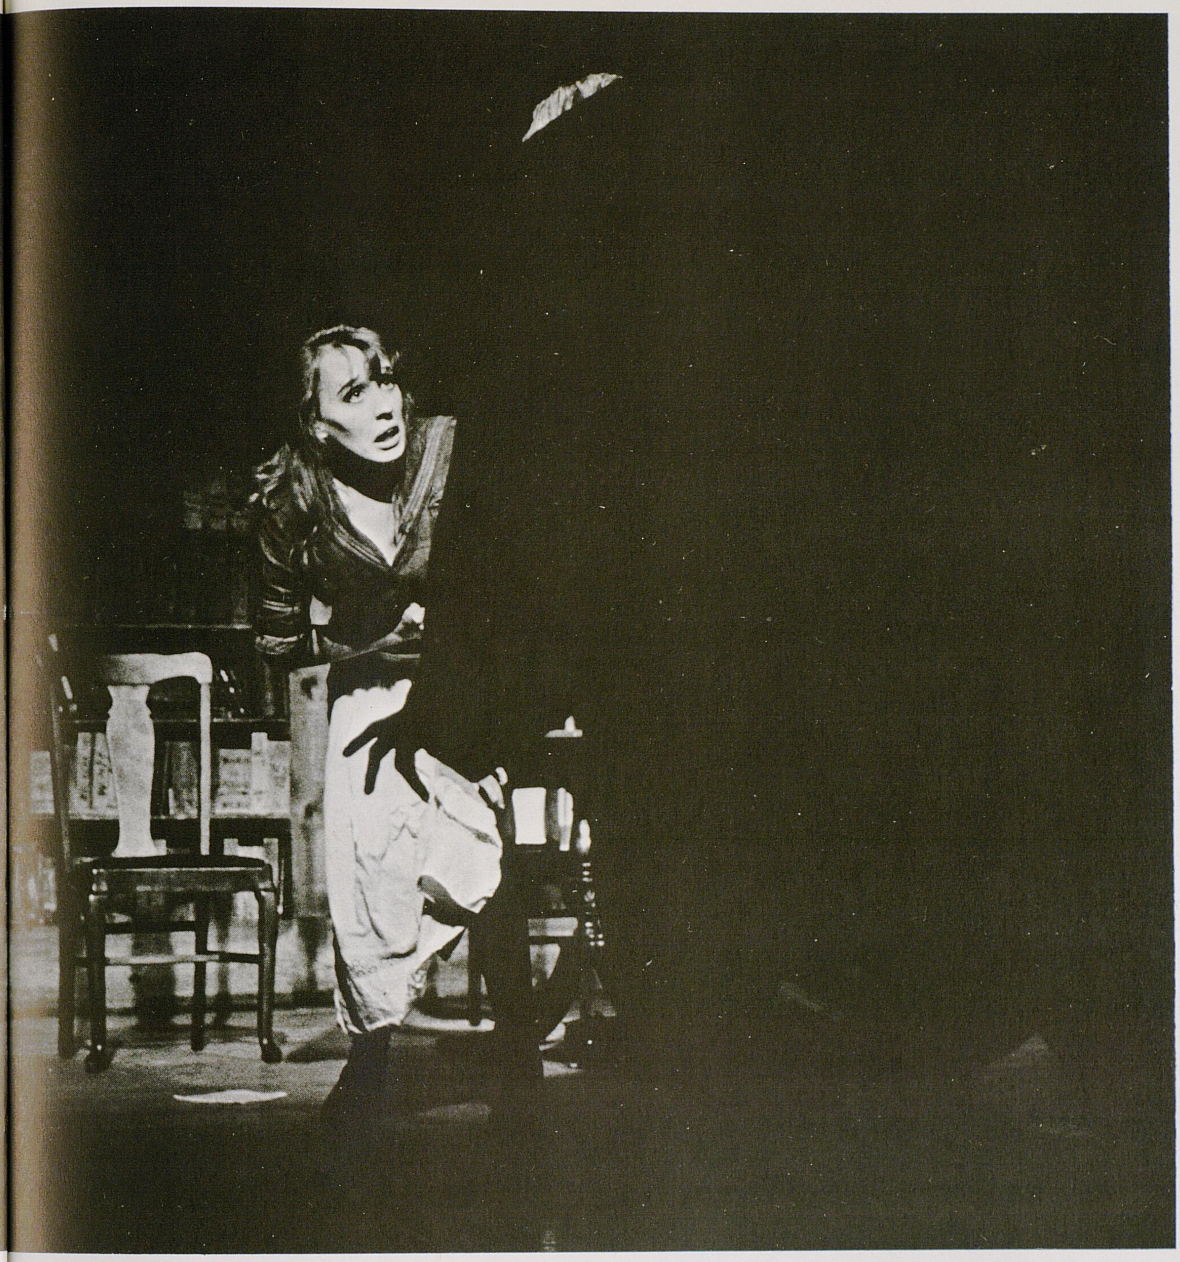
And so after the shows when the girls come down with their dates and say, "Oh, how neat it is," they only see a fraction of what it takes to make that moment.

—Susan Cardwell, junior drama major

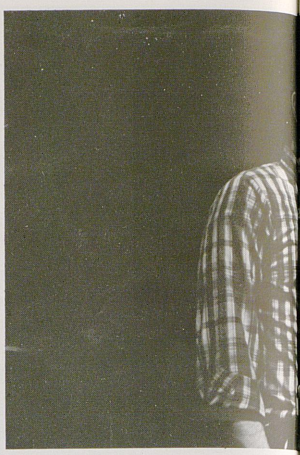
HIDDEN STUDENTS/II

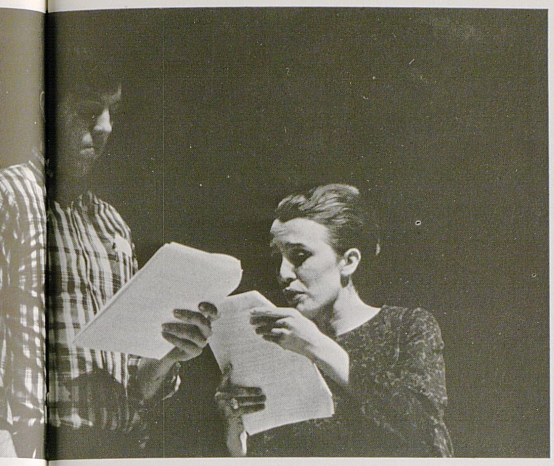
FINE ARTS

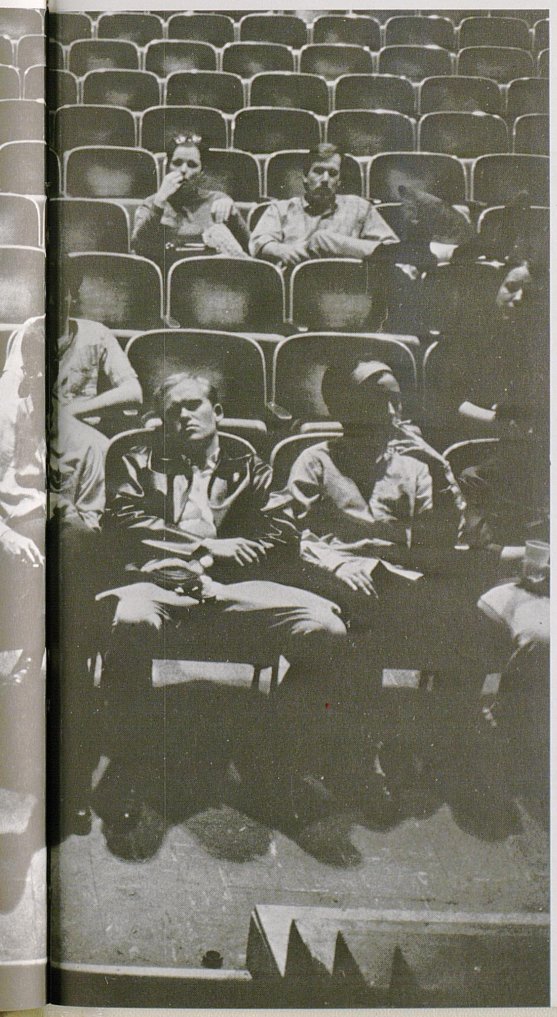




"The Lesson" was produced in early season. Susan was leading lady: "It didn't have the magnitude of 'The Good Woman of Setuan,' but what it lacked in magnitude it made up for in intensity."



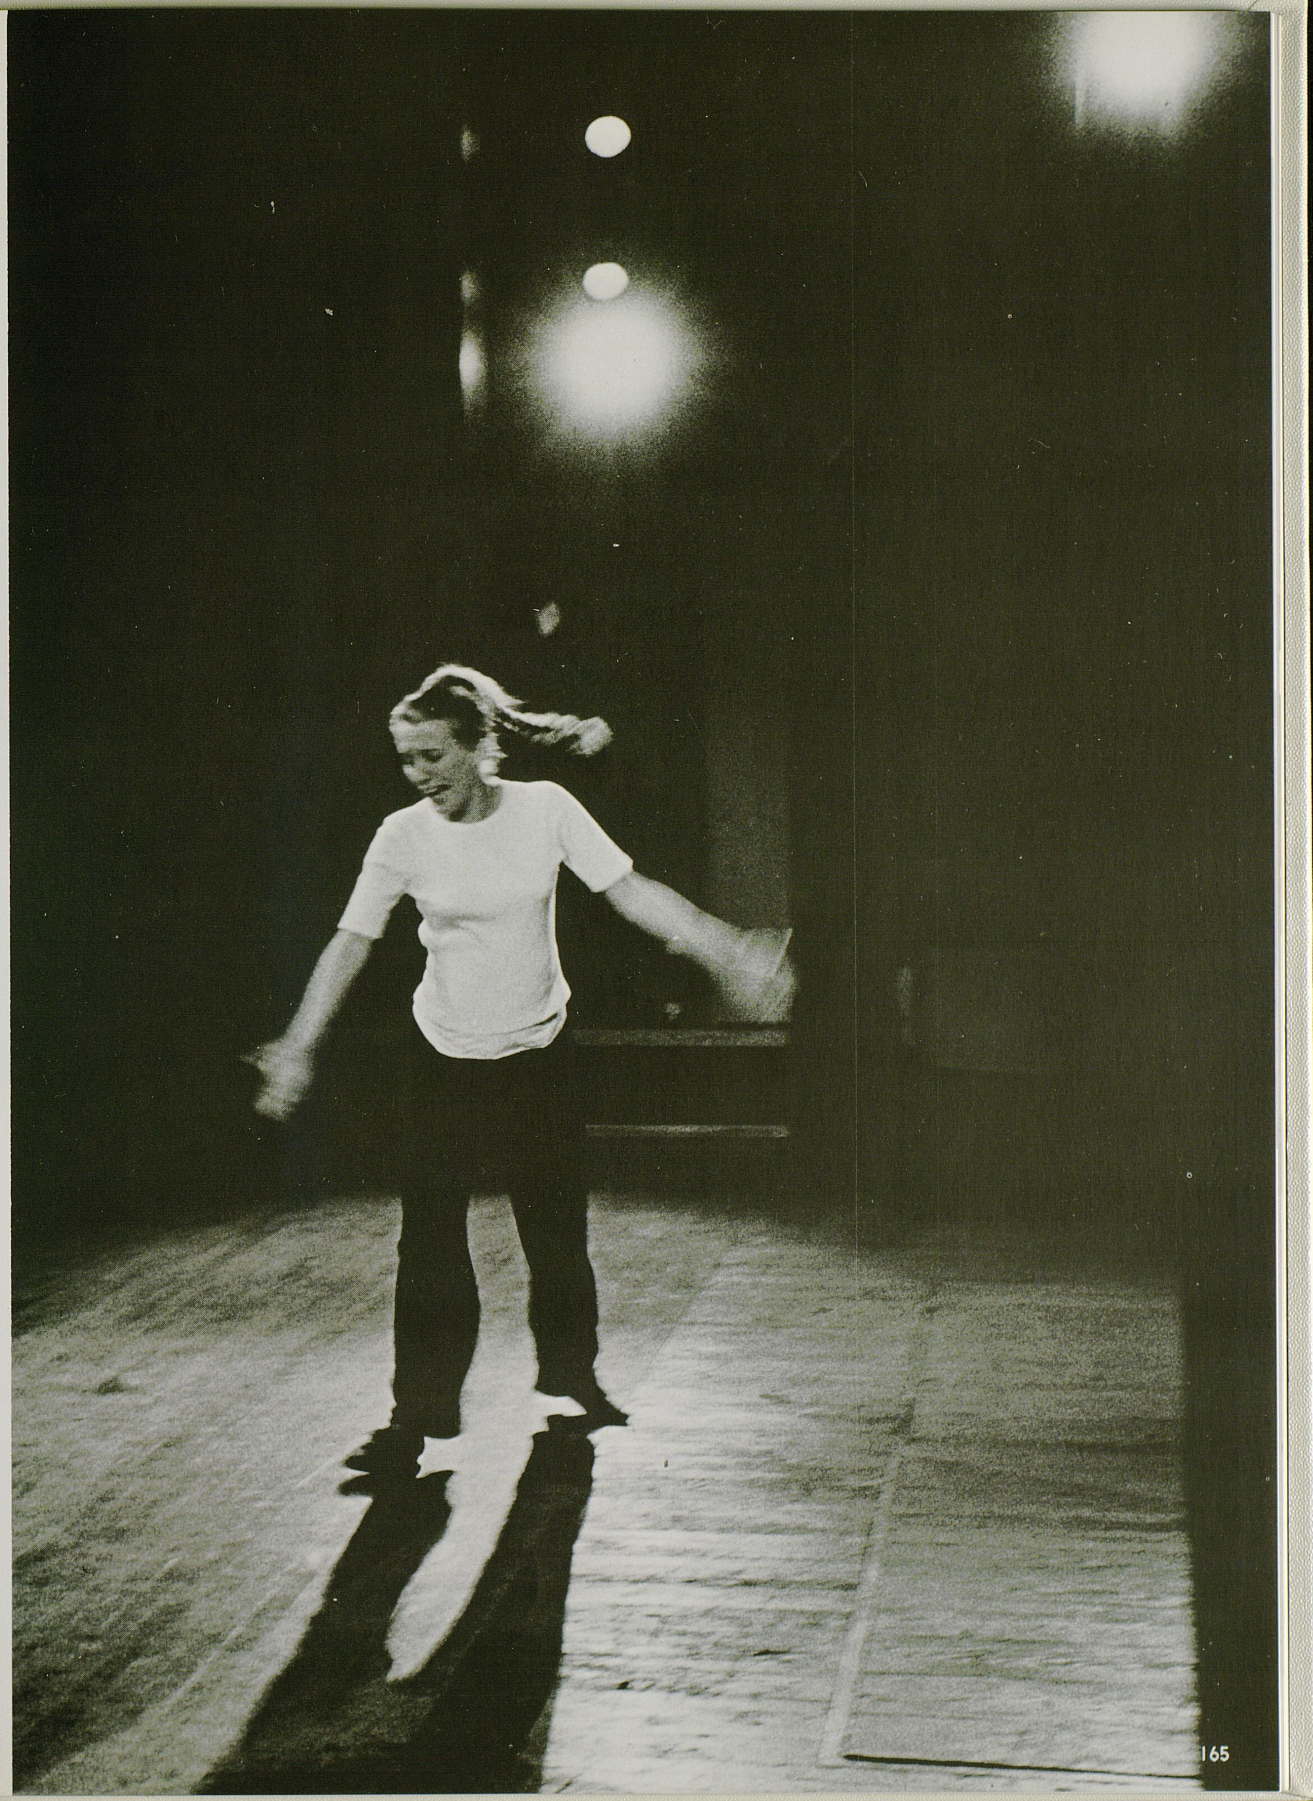




"Auditions are excruciating! That's all I can say. You're sitting there, and you look at your best friends, and they aren't your best friends anymore. There's almost nothing I wouldn't do to get a part I wanted. When you see you didn't get a part, you realize it's total. The chance to play Nina or Madam Markadee is gone—not forever, but for now, and that seems like forever. And that tears me up."

Occasionally a Lexingtonian, or "townie," gets a part. "I could get on a soap box for days about it ... We pay dollars to come here to learn, not to entertain," Susan says with no uncertainty. "The only thing in my whole life that I wanted desperately that I didn't get was Blanche Dubois in 'Streetcar Named Desire.' And when you lose something you want that bad for the wrong reason you are really upset—it's been two years and I'm still upset." A "townie" got the part.

Time: early arrival to think in the dark, or spare minutes to feel a man's role, or hours to run through grueling technical rehearsals.



Ray Smith, who directed "The Good Woman," holds a reputation for extremely intense drive toward perfection. "Ray is very important to this department. A lot of the things he does are painful and ugly, but they make people think, and that's exciting."

"It usually takes a week to block the play once; that's basic. Then reblock, rethink it again. They're long and tedious sessions. Hard, hard physical work."

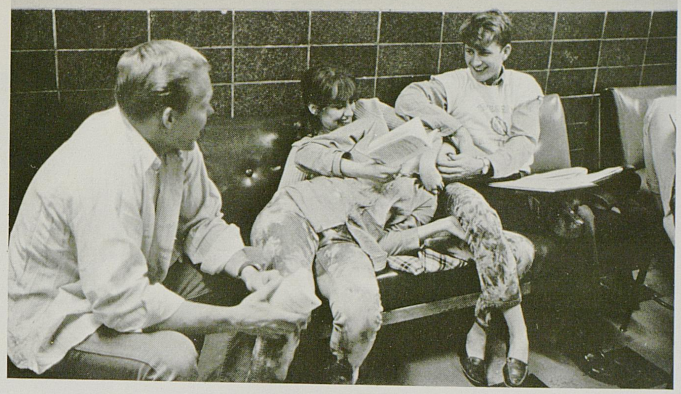
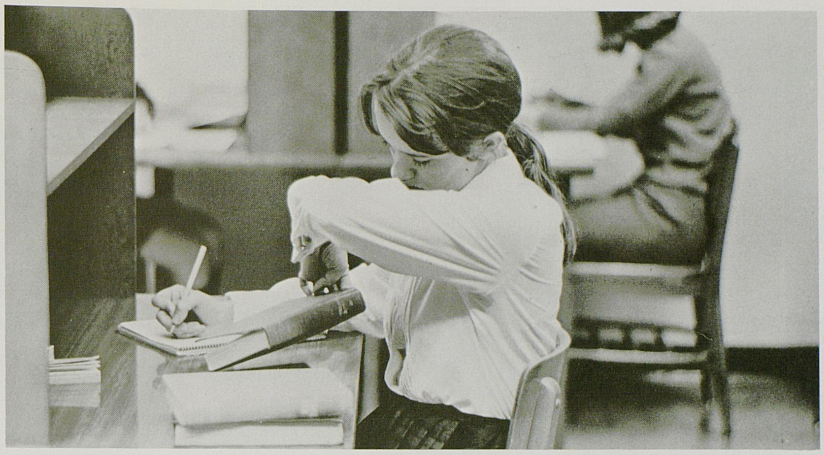
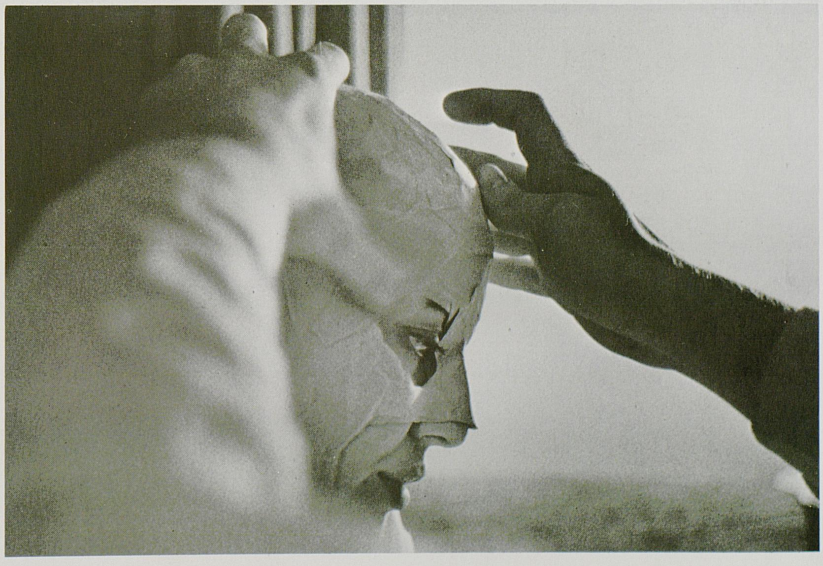
"To me the drama majors—the ones that are really in it—are really exciting, warm, happy people."

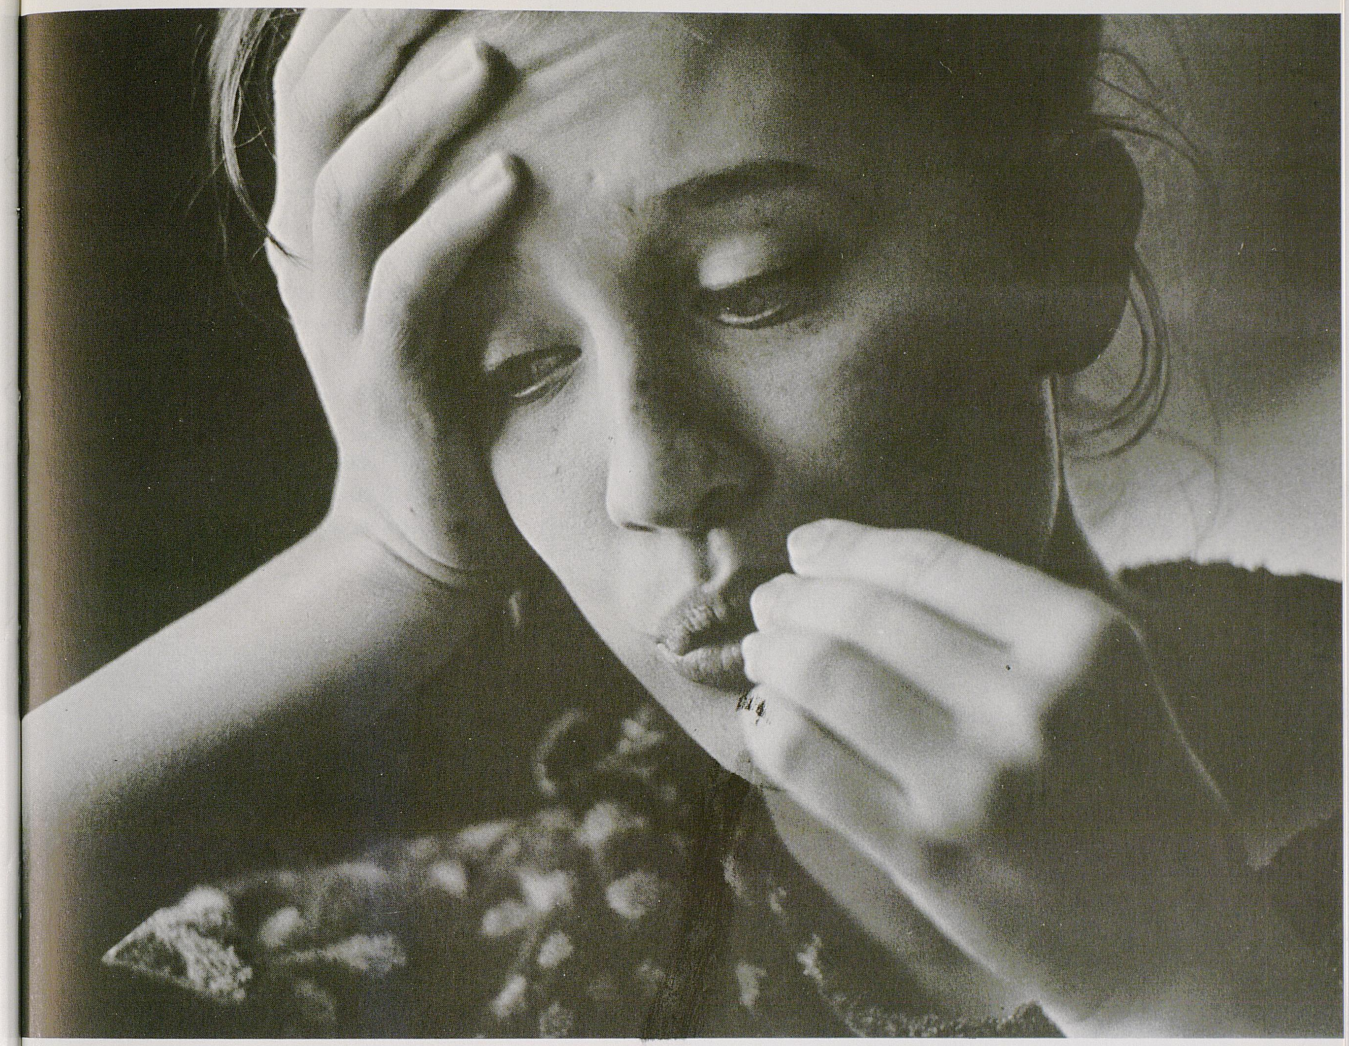


"After I get a part, everything changes. I imagine it's like finding out you're pregnant and from then on everything you do is not only for yourself but for somebody else." Like not doing dances and parties, but making TV and radio spots or researching a character or fitting a mask.

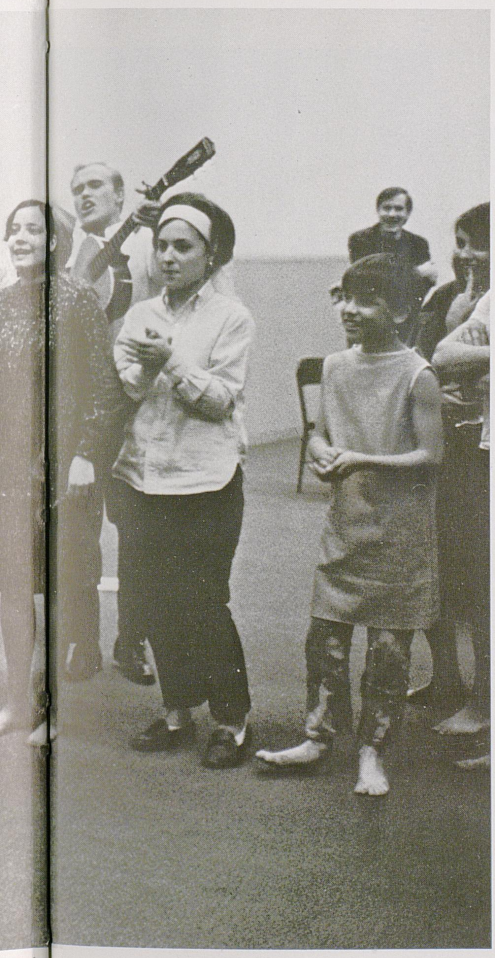




"We cook and eat well." A place to sleep and learn lines with roommate Dawes Miller.

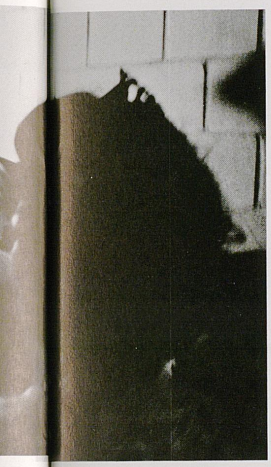


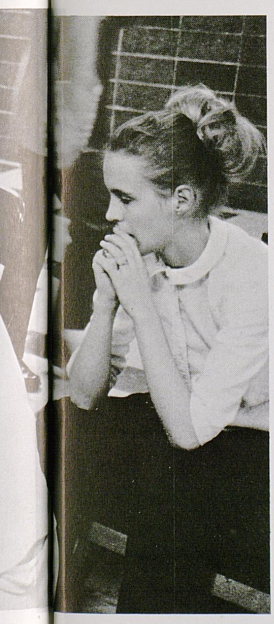
Fire broke out in the prop room dress rehearsal night. "After the fire, when we were sitting outside under the trees, someone started playing the harmonica and singing. We just got a tremendous boost of energy; we'd been through half of it but by now we had stopped many times and it was 2:30 a.m. . . . we felt it shouldn't open tomorrow." Had rehearsal not continued till four o'clock it would not have opened. "It's the kind of spirit you read about."



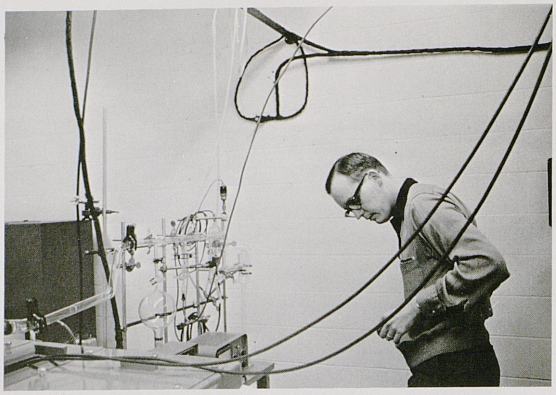
"Then before you know it, before you're ready, it's there."

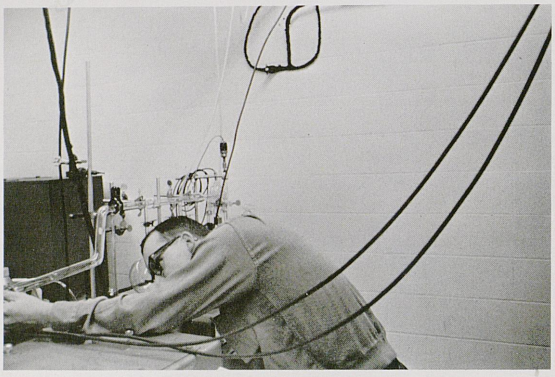
Opening night of "The Good Woman." There are three men (500 pounds) on 200 pounds of solid wooden box. They are the gods. "They fly away from me on piano wire. I'm down center stage alone, my arms up in the air watching them; they're saying good-by. It got 10 or 15 feet off the floor, then fell. All I could see in front of me was legs, arms, boards, and nails." But the gods arose, sang their exit song, and the show closed as rehearsed. Director Smith rushed backstage to his players. "Drama always makes you close, but there were so many crises in this play that we were seemingly closer than ever."

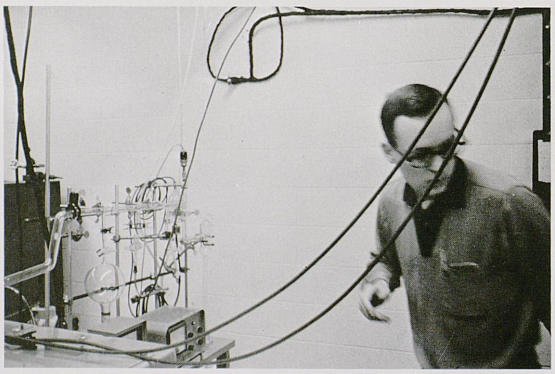




"Afterward, you feel warm, you feel significant,
you feel proud.
Then you feel empty because it's all over.
It's time to study."

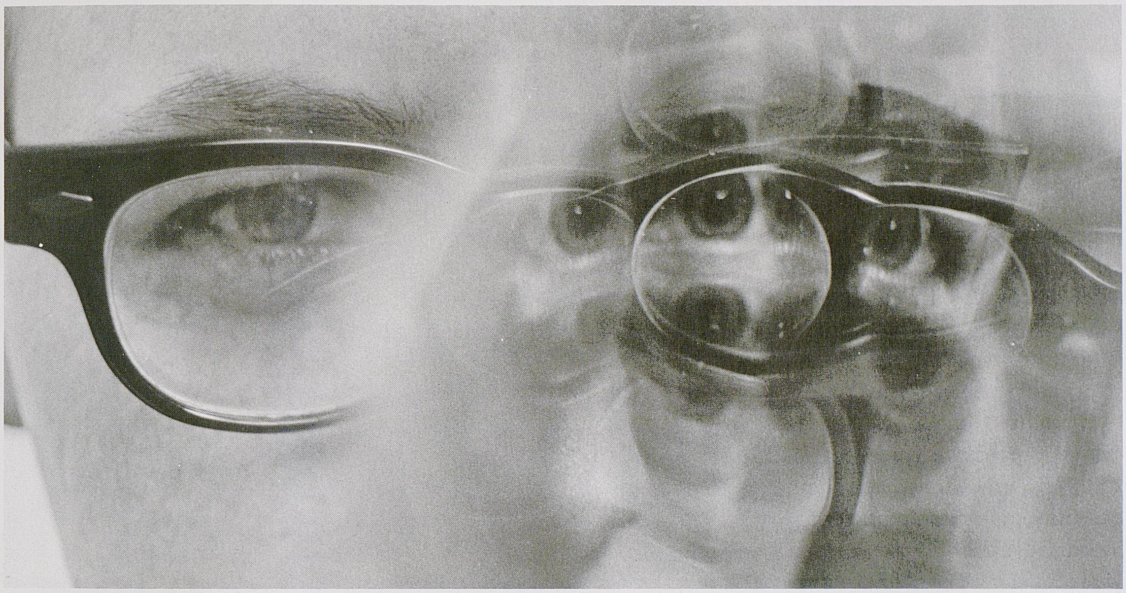




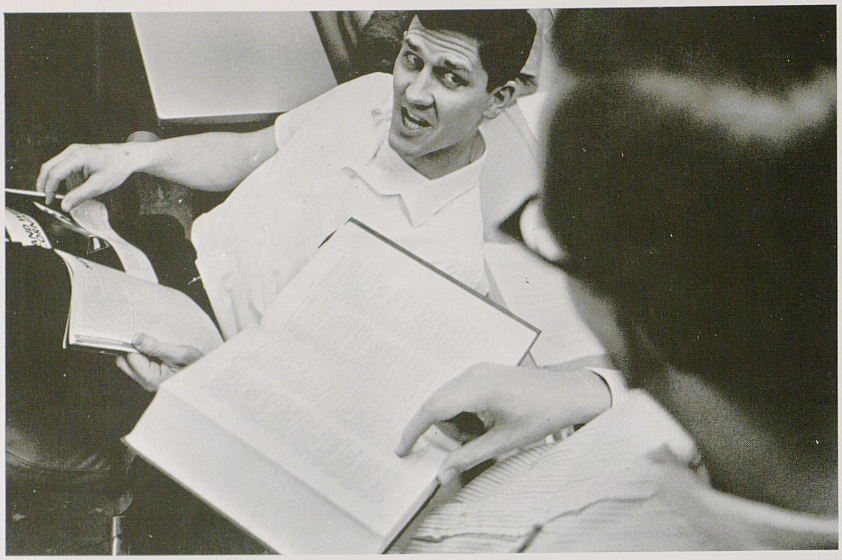


HIDDEN STUDENTS/III

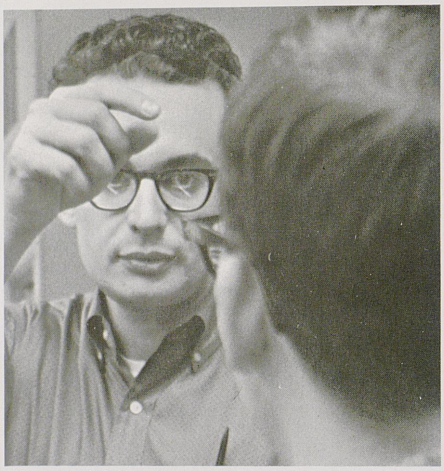
GRADUATE RESEARCH

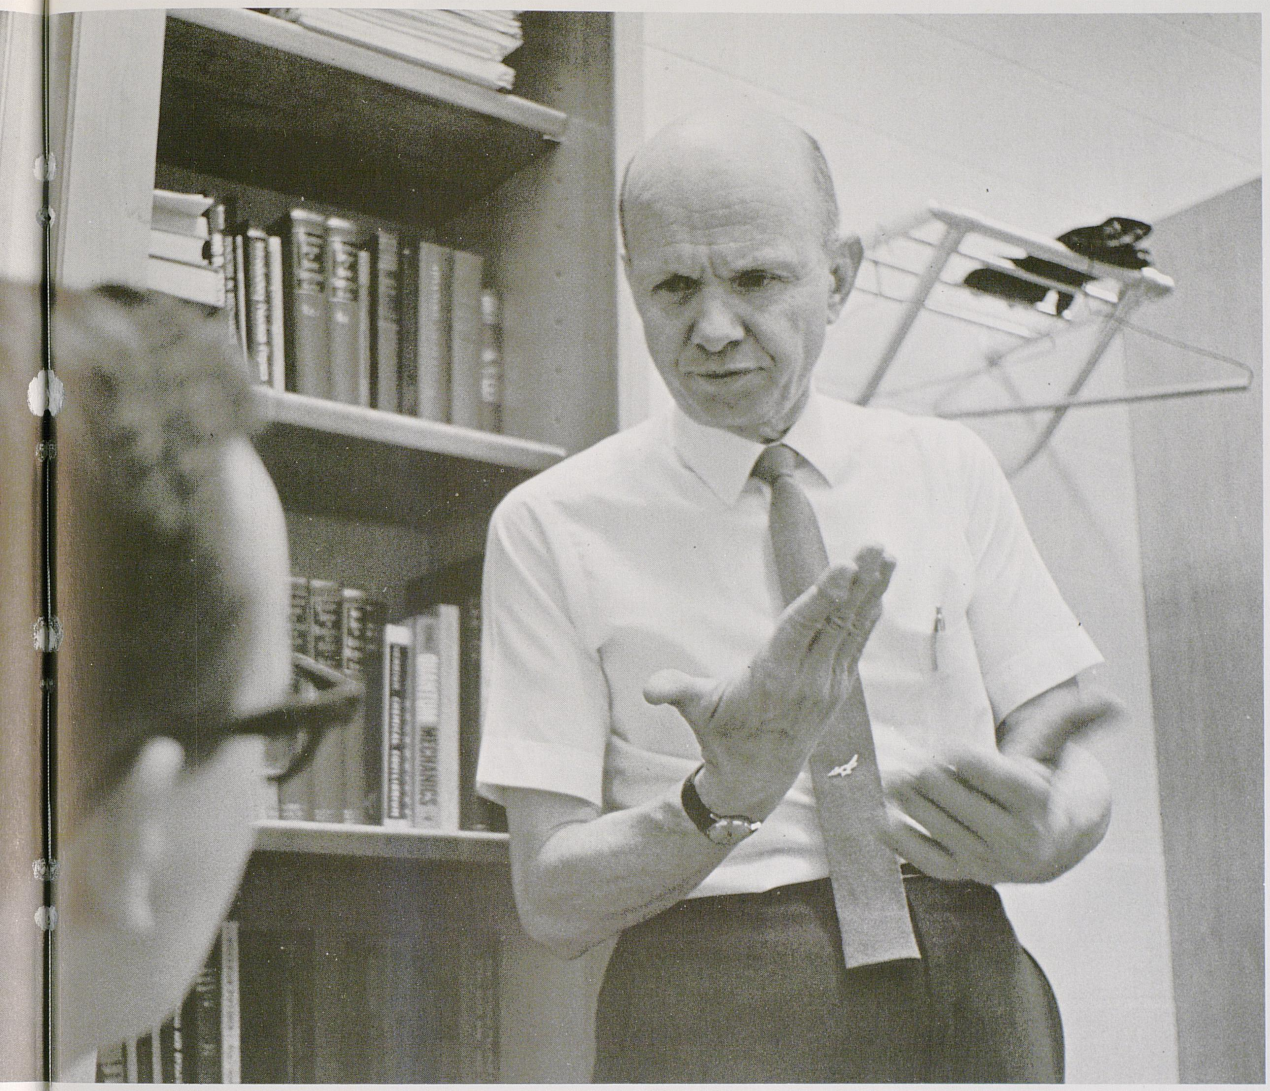


The fellow gazing thirteen-eyed down a light pipe above, and studying, adjusting, leaving, then re-checking his wire-draped equipment opposite, is Steven E. Hannum, a 25 year-old chemistry graduate student who sees and is involved in the most important transition the University of Kentucky Graduate School has made. When he came to the University four years ago from Wheaton College, Illinois, Steve found a school and a department less research oriented than he had anticipated or wanted. Now he and a team of associates and authorities in the Department of Chemistry are engaged in high level research which has implications as theoretical as understanding the very nature of matter and as practical as controlling the catalysts which are the backbone of the chemical industry. In the white walled, windowless room 40 of the Chem-Physics Building, Steve and three other men are studying the structure of molecules chemisorbed on the surface of pure metal. The project, nearly five years old, has recently taken a large step forward due to major financial commitments from the University administration for advanced equipment. Yet it is at this same time that the University must find itself lacking in the Graduate School. With the phenomenal increase in the importance of the university in society, and particularly to the technological community, this condition should never have been allowed to exist and should be quickly erased by increased financial commitments, a still increased change in attitude toward research, and lastly, the finest possible recruitment of undergraduates.

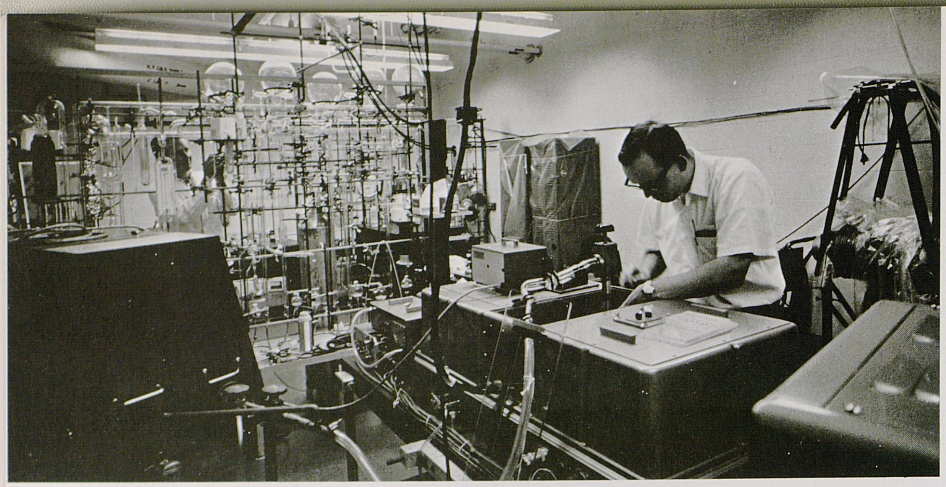


Team effort, the pooling of minds and methods around the same materials, is as important to modern research as it is to athletics. Steve is part of one such team. Working together, they achieve results impossible individually. Glen Possely, B.S. Western Illinois, is also a fourth year graduate student. Bill Smith, a UK graduate in 1962 and Ph.D., Princeton, has returned for a year and a half of post doctoral work under Dr. H. C. Eckstrom, opposite, originator and director of the project.

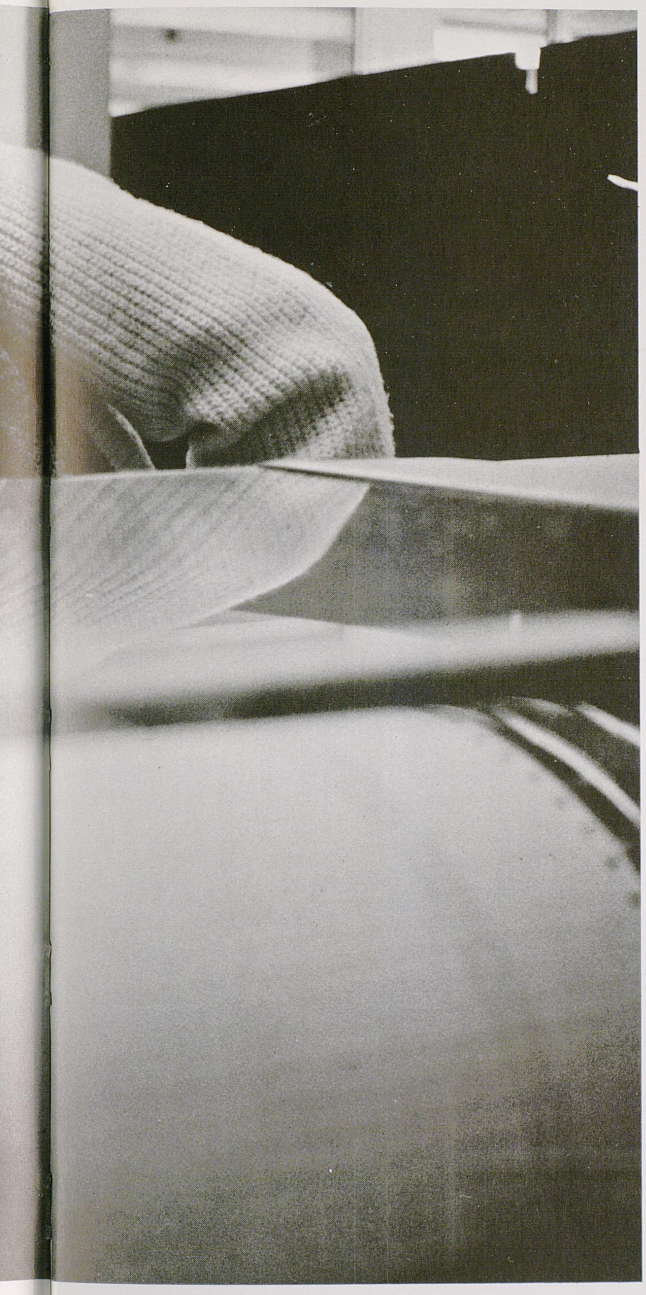




MECHANICS



$90,000 in sophisticated electronic and chemical instrumentation surrounds Steve in a 20 x 30 foot lab. The price and precision of the equipment is exceeded only by its delicacy: in order to use the instrumentation at highest accuracy and sensitivity levels, it must repeatedly be tuned and maintained at the very highest tolerances. Consequently, the slightest maladjustment from man or machinery cuts deeply into its effectiveness and slows or ceases the research of a half dozen people. Nucleus of the research is a small metal box engineered to maintain a high purity metal surface under vacuum. This year it rarely did. Steve (top and right) spent a great deal of time combing the cell, trying to locate and seal minute leaks which if left unchecked would contaminate the experiment. Vacuum leaks were not the only problem: because of its complexity, new equipment had to be finely tuned several times by flown-in specialists like Mr. Clair Baesler (above), from Norwalk, Conn. This year, the result of all the work could not always be measured in research output, but rather it was in the necessary business of mastering the "personality" of complex instrumentation that is the backbone of modern research.



IBM. The letters are the hallmark of an entire burgeoning society of technology and research, just as the insignias of guilded craftsmen were the hallmark of another age. And as a center for change and development in all areas of this new society, the leading universities are and must be relying more and more heavily on computer oriented programs. Already at M.I.T. one department divides its instruction into "B.C." and "A.C." —before and after computers. In Washington, the President's Science Advisory Committee estimates that 75% of all undergraduates are enrolled in classes where computers would be "very useful." At Kentucky, computer capability has increased steadily. For Steve, what happens in that room is as important to the research as anything that has taken place previously. In only a small spectrum, a staggering 30,000 or more calculations are required. The results, printed and plotted, take twelve minutes—by computer. But as Steve commented, "You don't just walk over and say 'I want to use the computer.' It has taken months to learn the best way to have the data analyzed and presented." During those months there was constant adjustment and one major overhaul of his program. It was only in the late spring and early summer that, with the help of the 360-50 computer, the program began to yield meaningful results.

"YOU CAN CALCULATE REAMS OF DATA, BUT IT MEANS NOTHING UNTIL IT IS INTERPRETED."

Research has its most decisive moment following experiments and accumulation of data. The first phase of interpreting the computer output occurred as Steve (below) compared two spectra to determine if there were any meaningful correlation. If there were, further experiments would be run in the lab to guarantee the preliminary findings. If not, there are several alternatives, one of which (right) is recomputing the same data in order to study it in a different presentation.

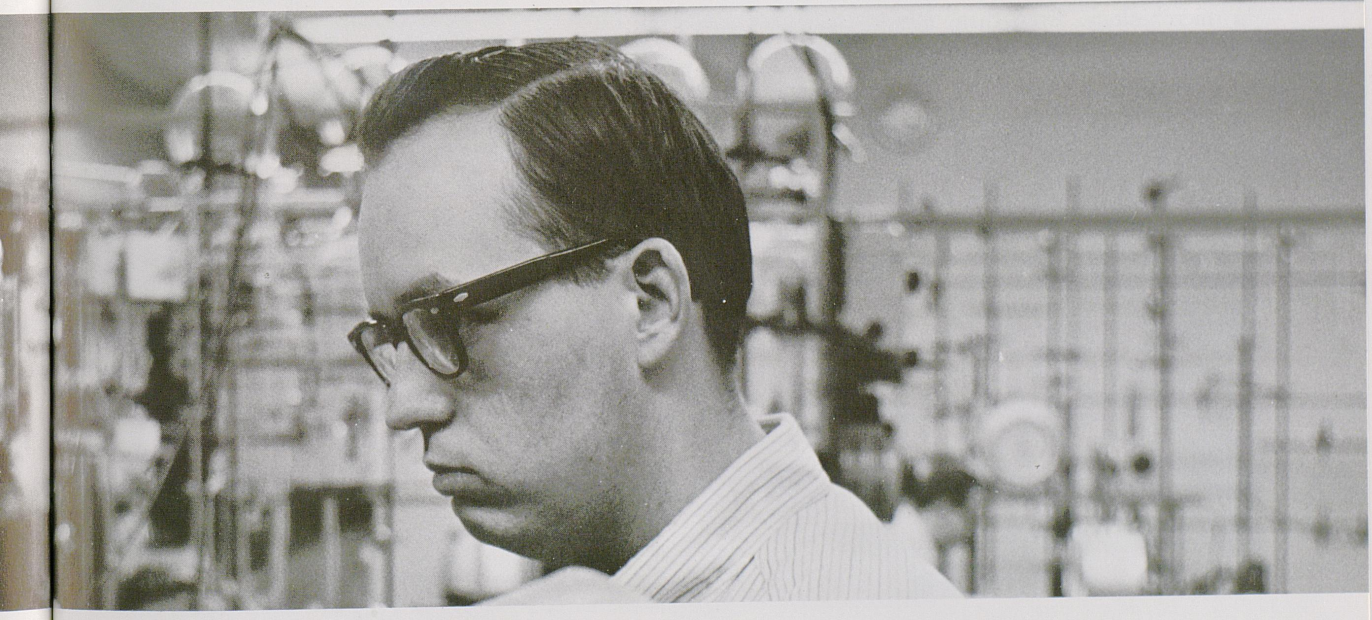
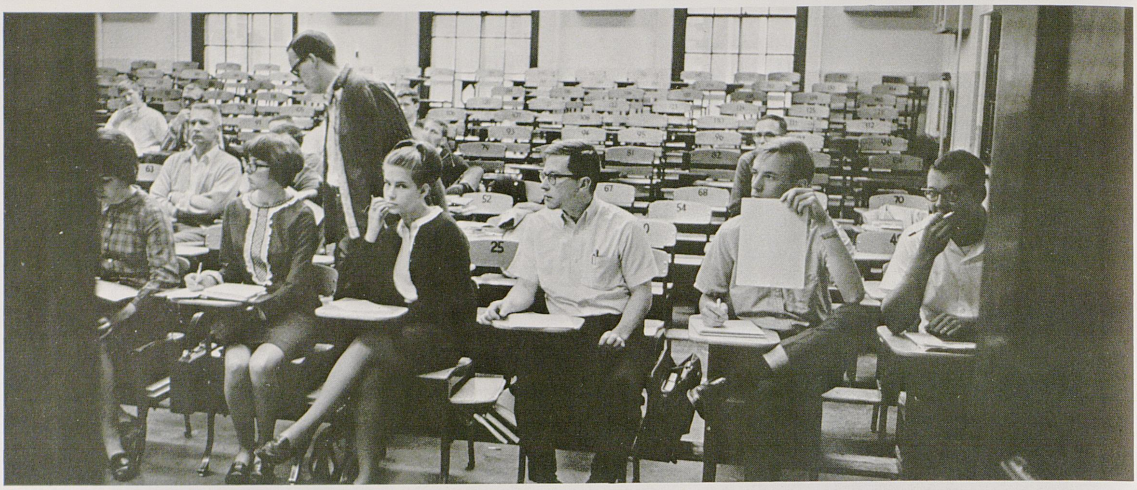
"If it were easy it would have been done a long time ago." That is Dr. Eckstrom's way of stating a basic given of research: frustrations are inherent. Of chief concern to him are the financial and theoretical problems. Each September he must make a thorough presentation of progress and needs to the Atomic Energy Commission which then decides whether to continue its funding of the $30-40,000 a year research program. Last November, the team received word from AEC that the project was set for another year. Yet due to the year-to-year existence, the pressure to produce grew as winter turned to spring. By then an additional pressure was mounting: Drs. Eckstrom and Smith were pushing to complete publication of the over-all concepts of the program. At last accepted for publication, their papers were published in the summer. Meanwhile the nagging day-to-day equipment breakdown, design problems, and the continuing problem of "something-I-need-now-won't-be-in-until-next-week (month)" confronted Steve and Glen. Underlying it all is the knowledge that if, for just once, everything worked right at the same time, the results would be beautiful.





Steve's time was splintered by so many forced commitments and desired interludes that he found it difficult to sustain needed momentum in the lab. Although he did not have to teach any undergraduate labs, two 500 level mathematics courses were required as well as study for the foreign language proficiency exam. The latter, considered by many graduate students to be an anachronism, sapped a considerable amount of Steve's research hours. Between sprinting from lab to class (late) to graduate students meetings, Steve found only a half hour a day to lunch with his wife, Dianne, a Ph.D. candidate in microbiology. Even then, part of their time was spent discussing a phase of her research project.

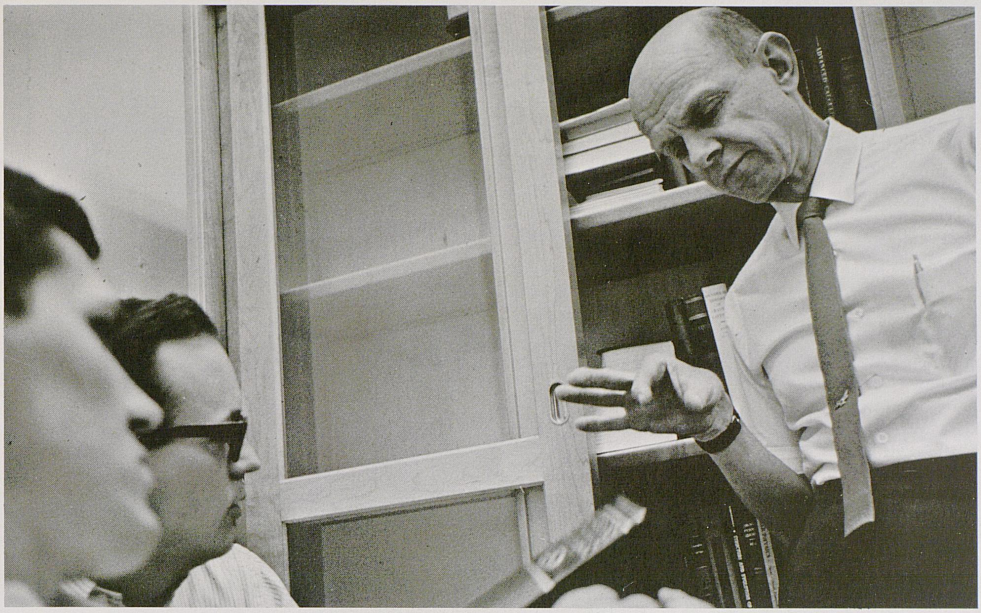
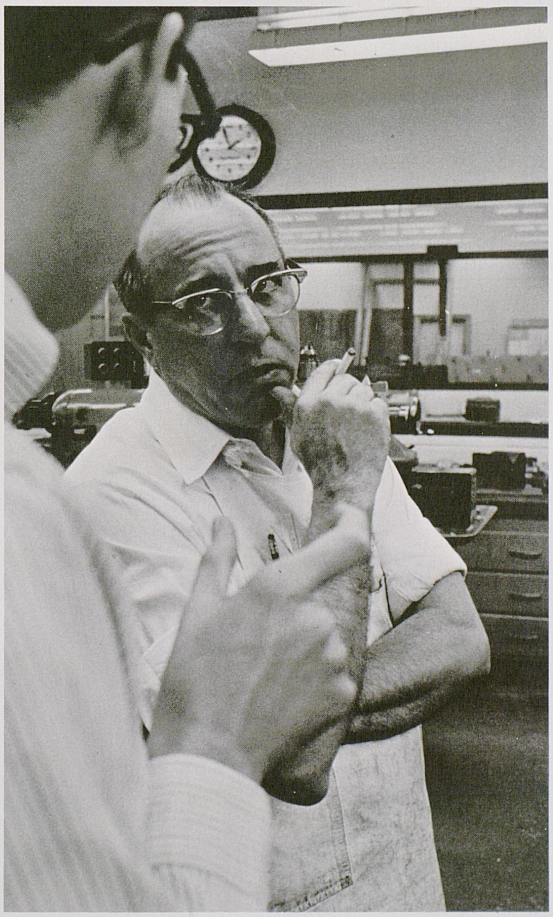
PHYSICAL PLANT DIVISION





One of the most satisfying elements of graduate research is designing, in conjunction with resident authorities, a vital piece of research equipment. An instance of this occurred mid-way through the spring semester when the need for a new cell design became apparent. After some time at the drafting table, Steve carried his basic plans to Wib Mateyka (opposite), the Chemistry Department glassblower, who advised Steve on what the proposed cell would be like made from glass. From Wib, the idea was transmitted to the other end of the building. There, Larry Fecher (left) physics machinist, gave Steve the properties the same cell would have if made from metal. Lastly, he and Bill listened as Dr. Eckstrom advised them on Steve's final presentation. When finally the cell is made, it will bear the combined expertise and influence of them all.

"WE KEEP RIGHT ON BUILDING—IN A ROOM THAT WE'VE ALREADY BUILT."

Four years ago, when the Chem-Physics Building was fairly new, Steve received a publicity brochure from UK. It showed huge, empty classrooms, huge, empty labs, and huge, empty instrument rooms. When he arrived, sure enough there they were: huge, empty rooms. In the basement, room 40 barely had any equipment in it. In the past four years, partly due to an increased emphasis on research and partly due to the specific success of chemisorbed molecules research, the walls, floors, and shelves are filled with an ever increasing flow of materials. The result has been improvised interior design (opposite) that barely keeps one experiment from overlapping onto another, and often puts the team into a cramp (above).

THE PHOTOGRAPHS

Two of this book's major photographic essays are the work of student publications photographer Dick Ware. The sorority rush (58-73) and actress (158-181) stories required and were given much time past the regular working day. Both stories also fit Dick's continuing eight-year photographic interest in the changing role of the college woman. Between work on these essays, Dick also traveled to New York City to photograph the United Nations Seminar.

PHOTOGRAPHS ON PAGES 52-53, 58-73, 158-181, c BY DICK WARE 1967.

THIS BOOK IS IN DEBT TO THE LOYALTY OF SOME FRIENDS. THE EARLY INFLUENCE OF TWO DISSIMILAR 1965 GRADUATES, DAVID V. HAWPE AND ROBERT RICH, NOW SEEMS CLEAR AND NECESSARY. MORE RECENT IS THE COMRADESHIP OF WILLIAM ROUGHEN, JR. HIS COMBINED SENSE OF GRAPHICS AND CONCERN FOR STATEMENT ARE EVIDENT IN IMPORTANT SECTIONS OF THE BOOK AND FROM A THOROUGHLY FINE STAFF, GRETCHEN MARCUM, SALLY GRANT ATWOOD, AND LINDA KOPPER (FOREVER) REMAIN AS ONES WHO CONTRIBUTED UNSTINTINGLY AND WITH DISTINCTION. LASTLY, A RESOLUTE, BUT INSUFFICIENT, THANKS TO TOM GRALER. THERE REMAINS BUT ONE DEDICATION: THE 1967 VOLUME OF THE KENTUCKIAN TO MY VERY GOOD FRIEND, DAVE MILLER.

S.A., JUNE, 1967

"Good . . . good luck!" cried Bilbo, stuttering with the cold. "I don't suppose you will be able to keep a dairy, Frodo my lad, but I shall expect a full account when you get back. And don't be gone too long! Farewell!"

how to live with it.

Sometimes we have to stop and get our bearing—

How far are we from Yesterday?
The dirt-smothered snow shows we're getting farther

How close are we to Tomorrow?
The rich brown earth shows we're getting closer to that Dreamland.

But meanwhile it's time

when your proud chest snaps the finish tape
And you ARE your best self.

ADPi Indians whoop it up . . .

. . . after winning Sigma Chi Derby Cup.

There was a sorority, lived in a shoe, they had so many good times, they didn't know what to do . . . Rushees, rushees sat on the wall, rushees rushed in the heat of the fall, Coke parties, folk-singing, Peanuts too, and now they're all living with us in the shoe . . . Pledge be nimble, pledge be quick, pledge go under the limbo stick . . . Hi diddle diddle, the Sigma Chi riddle, can we win again? . . . ADPi went up the hill to fetch a load of hay, rain came down, all on the ground, but they went anyway . . . One little, two little, three little Indians . . . Sing a song of six pence, to Alpha Delta Pi, four and twenty ADPi's before the public eye, some of them are sponsors, some of them are queens, isn't that a dainty dish to make the campus scene . . . Little Miss Muffet sat on a tuffet, lived in Dillard and had to rough it . . . Winkin' and Blinkin' and Nod sailed out on the misty sea, these days are gone, but more will come, who knows what is to be.

GAMMA PHI BETA

To be a Gamma Phi Beta means . . . carrying bright balloons to classes for Mardi Gras . . . picking straw out of your hair after a fall hayride . . . Wednesday night meetings and lectures about pledge pranks . . . cleaning attics and $5 fines . . . meeting the Peace Corps . . . trimming Christmas trees . . . collecting for the March of Dimes . . . establishing permanent residence at the library . . . most of all, Gamma Phi Beta means loving, learning, laboring, and remaining loyal to the best sorority.

The closest the Gamma Phi's came to repeating the '65 Pushcart Derby win was to be shouldered by the winning Triangle Team.

KAPPA ALPHA THETA

There once were twin stars ... then triplets! All three finalists for Homecoming Queen ... odds like that and you're bound to win ... KD-Theta Funday, and the Theta Ladies were young at heart ... so young, they retreated to the lake ... more fun with the Philly-dog and a favorite for the pledges ... "Pep, smile ... you can tell a Theta girl" ... "she's the Sweetheart of Sigma Chi"—and Kappa Sigma, Lambda Chi Pushcart Derby Queen, a sponsor for Army and Air Force ROTC and shows her spirit by cheerleading ... Broadway and rush brought thirty new Thetas and mountains of P. B. and J.'s ... Fall also brought Pumpkin Carols, the Halloween Queen, candlelights, and nine hundred and sixty pieces of bubble gum for the football boys ... Thetas also began to help pilot the LKD and Stars in the Night Steering Committees ... Christmas ... and the Thetas brought their holiday spirits and stockings to the date dinner and winter formal ... Santa even got a kiss on the cheek that night ... and in the spirit of giving, the Thetas again contributed to the Institute of Logopedics, gave a children's Christmas party and had a wonderful holiday ... Therefore, other than kitchen raids and footfalls on the roof, it was a very good year for Theta ... proverbial last words ... bye, gotta go now.

Stacy shies at Santa's surprise.

DELTA TAU DELTA

Delta Tau Delta has been on the Kentucky campus for more than 40 years, steadily maintaining a chapter tradition of well-rounded college men who study hard and with a purpose, who play hard when it is time for relaxation but are self-disciplined and decorous in fun and frolic, who render helpful service as worthwhile members of the college community, and who contribute to, rather than detract from, the good name of the University and its student body.

Members of Delta Tau Delta readily admit that theirs is a proud tradition, and the chapter during the last year continued to measure work and play, to keep them in proper proportion and to derive the utmost from each.

Delts at Kentucky, for more than 35 years housed in their own property on the fringe of the campus, point with pride to the chapter's bright scholastic record through the years. They boast, too, of enthusiastic participation in many campus activities—in intramural sports, in varsity athletics, in leadership, honorary and professional groups, in principal roles and committee duties in various campus programs and projects. They may be a bit smug about their warm fellowship within the fraternity, their social rating, and the interest and support of alumni.

THE ORDER

In 1893 at UK was born
The tradition of KA, to which we are sworn.
Lee is our leader, The Old South our way.
We continue our heritage, ever today.

From the Clubhouse on Friday, to Old South in Spring,
At football and basketball games in between
The bearded brothers stand, when they hear Dixie play
For the Southern feeling lives on in KA.

The house with the cannon on Kalmia still stands
Despite our parties and "colorful" bands.
Rush is our high point, we know what we say
We take only the best and show them the way.

We're socially best as one can see—
But we also serve our community.
The party for orphans with Tri Delts was fun
Our Muscular Dystrophy drive, very well done.

Showing versatility among the men of the Order
KA's grades rank in the top quarter.
Having shown we're tops not only in play
We've proved our point; what more can we say?

Traditionally, Kappa Sigma has always been primarily concerned with the social aspects of fraternity life. But this year, with the pledging of thirty-three Rhodes Scholars, we have started an academic drive that has once again tied us for fifteenth place among fraternities. Of course, this switch in emphasis did not damper our social calendar, which included our annual Wild West Party, and numerous other inebriated gatherings. However, due to the high cost of hunting licenses, the Beta-Nu Beaver Ball was temporarily abandoned. The annual Black and White formal was held this year in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, much to the chagrin of the Gatlinburg Police Department.

Intramurally, Kappa Sigma tied for third in flag football and were beaten in the final heat of the Lambda Chi Pushcart Derby. Led by All-Americans Butch Nichols and Lee Hess, All SEC Barry Ogilby, and All-Academic Frenchie Curtis, Kappa Sigs finished with an amazing 4-4 record in basketball.

A new addition to the house this year was the installation of a housefather, famed international playboy Babe Kimbrough, who has certainly provided the impetus for a better year and wilder parties.

PHI GAMMA DELTA

Tonite there's action at Perry Lodge, September of '66
Half of the house is used for dancing, the other for drinks and kicks;
Everyone is having a blast, the rushees most of all,
Out of this nite will emerge a pledge class, 16 will pledge us this fall!

Fiji activities come and go, each semester is tightly planned—
Rush parties always start things off, each accompanied by a band.
After that a beer blast or two with girls and music and fun,
Then Bob starts chasing someone's date, to see how fast she can run!
Even though he always catches her, you never hear him brag,
Resulting from Brother Harper's bad luck, girls leave him holding the bag.

Now Irvin was voted M.O.A. and Perry M.B.P.,
Intensive care is all I can say for Ratterman's M.K.C.
There may be difference in opinions as to dates agreed upon,
Yet, you can't remain a pledge forever, and Fiji's go marching on!

Of all the dances throughout the year, one stands above the rest.
Fiji formals are the best all around, though one may heavily invest.
Pledgeship is upon us once again, a very important thing,
Heaving our fraternity membership, eighteen pledges this spring!

Intramurals are No. 1, wrestling is the pitch;
And, alas! An active hits the mat; congratulations Rich!
Giving roses and serenades to Fiji's who lost their pins;
And dinners both formal and exchange; the "Pig" and Robin's Glen!
Many a party is yet to test, the "pledge" and "LKD,"
Many a graduate brother will feel the rise of our Fraternity.
And, yet, poor Mom still holds her breath at the end of every repast;
For the showers are on full force and waiting, the bannister will never last.

During the month of April, while rallying on the way,
Each Fiji and date go native on Fiji Island Day!
Lighting the way to education—with Fiji goals a'fixed;
The fall semester academically found Fiji's rated sixth.
All in all this has been a great year for the men in Fijiland . . .
May our future remain clear and bright, guided by the star of our Hand.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

For Pi Kappa Alpha, this was a year of progress, as shown by fall spring pledge classes of 29 and 25 men, respectively. Pikes progressed also in academic ranking and intramurals. The active chapter's cumulative jumped to fourth, while in intramurals ΠΚΑ competed in both football and basketball semi-finals.

Pikes celebrated their 99th anniversary March 4th at the Founder's Day Banquet, held at the Phoenix. Keynote alumni speaker, "Happy" Chandler, presented awards to other outstanding alumni and to active brothers. Following the banquet, a reception was held at the Pike house for visiting alumni.

Socially, the Pikes acquired a reputation for rush parties. During fall rush, the ΠΚΑ fire engine was overworked, hauling daily crews of rushees past women's residences and sorority houses. Later in the semester, the Pikes had a (Philly) Dogpatch Weekend Party, and prior to the activation of the pledge class, hosted a jam session with the Kappa's KD's, and KA's.

The spring social calendar began with an intense two-week rush, followed by the Winter Wonderland Party, which involved hundreds of evergreens, two indoor lakes, and a lot of wet needles. The semester was culminated by the Spring Formal held at the Barkley House in Cincinnati.

AN UNFORGETTABLE YEAR

All in all, this has been an unbelievable year at the Phi Sig House. We enjoyed rush functions, parties, and other social events. Our annual Monte Carlo Party with the house decorated as a gambling casino was a rollicking success, as was our Western Party, complete with hay and corral.

Intramurals were the order of every day in the Phi Sig country. Our participation this year, in almost every event, has topped any year in recent history.

But some "STRANGE" things have also happened: A trouser-less brother, looking for a quick way back from Herrington Lake . . . A head-on battle between the Buick and the Chevy . . . A brother living three places at the same time . . . "Captain America" can't dunk them anymore . . . Five years of college activity have drained the power of the "Tooth" . . . A famous quote, "This game is at an end."

Even after all this, you can bet the ranch . . . WE CAN'T LOSE!

SIGMA CHI

Sorority pledges were initiated into campus life this year by the 15th annual Sigma Chi Derby. The affair was started by a four block parade of floats, costumed girls, and high spirits. In spite of cold weather the day's events provided a warm welcome to Greek life for the competing girls.

At any time of night one might have heard "The Sweetheart of Sigma Chi" as the Sigs joined in serenading their pinmates or sweetheart. This year the song has special meaning to the Sigma Chis—their sweetheart, Gee Gee Wick, is one of the three finalists in International Sweetheart Competition. The brothers also combined forces to regain lost treasure "captured" by various sorority pledges.

Ranking high on the Sig social calendar were the annual Playboy Party, House Party, and Sweetheart Formal. Each was made a huge success through the efforts of the brothers of Sigma Chi.

Brotherhood, to Sigs, only begins during these years of campus life. It is here that lasting friendships are built and goals are transformed into realities. To use these four short years well in building good character is the goal of Sigma Chis everywhere.

A door has many meanings, but the Red Door of Sigma Phi Epsilon signals entrance into a world of brotherhood and fellowship, bound together and emanating from the badge—the Golden Heart of "Sig Ep."

With 509 East Main as a base of operations, SPE's ever-increasing circle of activities included frequent visits to our private beach, spring formal at Rough River, exchange dinners with sororities, community projects, and maintenance of our reputation at the "best-singing fraternity." Here at Kentucky Alpha the balance of social life and studies is maintained by the rich regard for our common element—brotherhood.

Sig Eps have to bear flag—and each others singing—to win back their kidnapped president from the Alpha Xi's.

The TEKE house has had its share of exciting parties this year. They included two rush parties at the Campbell House, a beach party with 5 tons of real sand dumped into the party room, a Hell's Angel Party, a 3 foot ceiling party, and of course our annual Red Carnation Ball.

The fraternity band, The Pagans, entertained the Alpha Xi Delta Sorority early in the year to regain our captured president. Later in the year our band played in a concert with the Kingsmen on campus.

The year has shown the largest growth for the chapter since it was re-established at UK in 1961.

The fraters were 4th in scholarship and pledge Joe Luibel was elected Jr. IFC president.

Gamma Sigma of Tau Kappa Epsilon initiated a program of inviting professors for dinner and informal discussions. Among those invited were Dr. Norman of the chemistry department and Ken Brandenburg, assistant dean of men.

Youth, brotherhood, enthusiasm make Triangle a campus leader . . .

With twenty-two pledges in spring rush, Triangle at Kentucky is rapidly becoming a campus leader like its brother chapters at Purdue, Illinois, and Michigan.

Socially this year, the brothers enjoyed the top bands in the state at the mattress party, "Hell's Angel's Party," "Hard Times Fast," and a "Get Away From It All," Spring Retreat, just to mention a few. Serenades and jam sessions also helped break the monotony of a gruelling collegiate year.

Academically, the fraternity was again among the tops on campus while tackling the physical sciences and applied engineering and architecture courses with reluctant enthusiasm.

The brightly successful athletic year was highlighted by a fourth victory in the last five years in the annual Pushcart Derby. Equally impressive was the second place finish by "Lurch" in the Turtle Derby. The bowling team also looks to be the team to beat this year.

To conform to the new look, support has been acquired from the Triangle National Office to develop plans for a new fraternity house in the near future.

"I'll never make it."

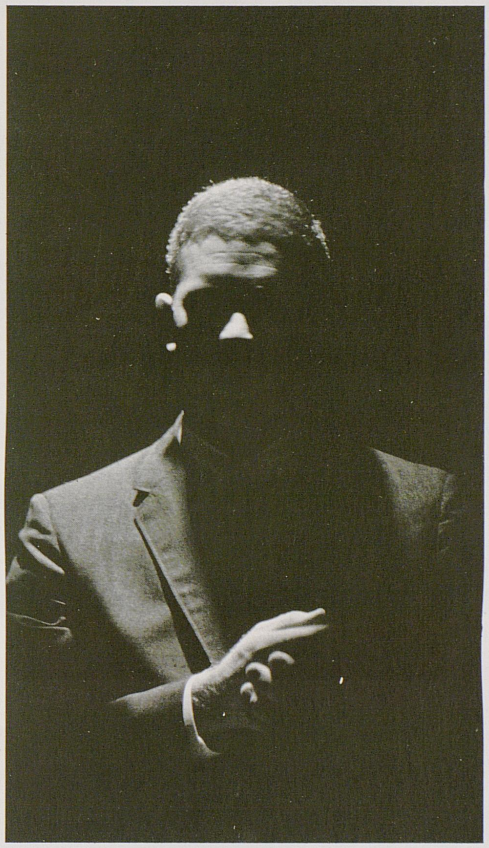
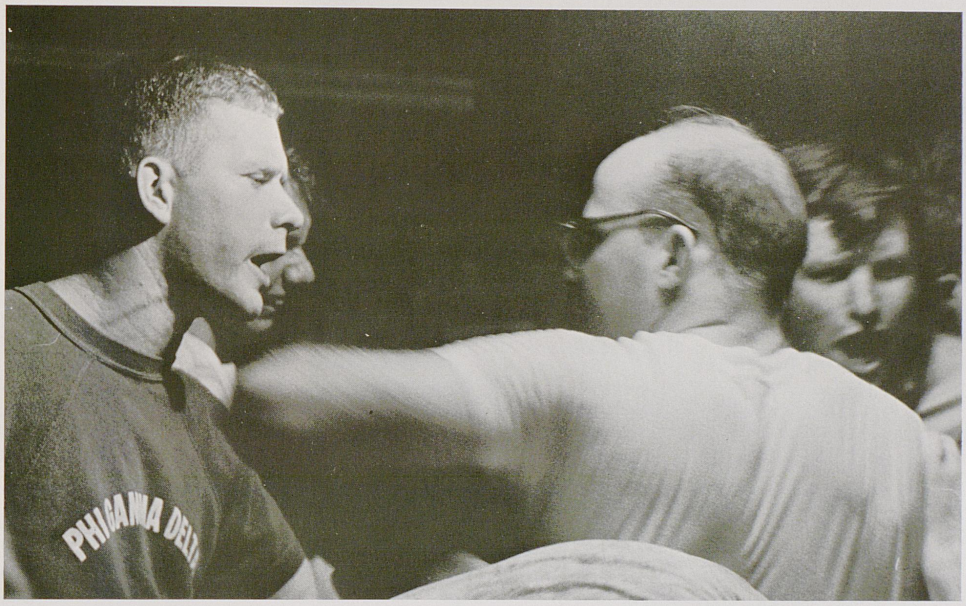
RICH ROBBINS:

A SENIOR'S YEAR

Rich Robbins' fraternal peers paid him a great honor when they elected him Fiji president. But they also bestowed on him some burdensome obligations. He alone was responsible for the efficient functioning of the fraternity; he alone had to think, plan, and prepare while others relaxed and drank Cokes.



First semester, he explained the IFC regulation against beer at rush parties; second semester, he took the rushees to Martin's when beer parties were allowed. He acted as a conciliator to enforce the national regulations during Hell Week, and he was the main host when the Oswald's came to dinner.



DELTA

He shared his beer when the drink ran low after initiation; he laughed with the members before Wednesday night dinner; he chatted and reflected during a Sunday night study session break.

And in return the Fijis gave Rich a superlative bachelor party.

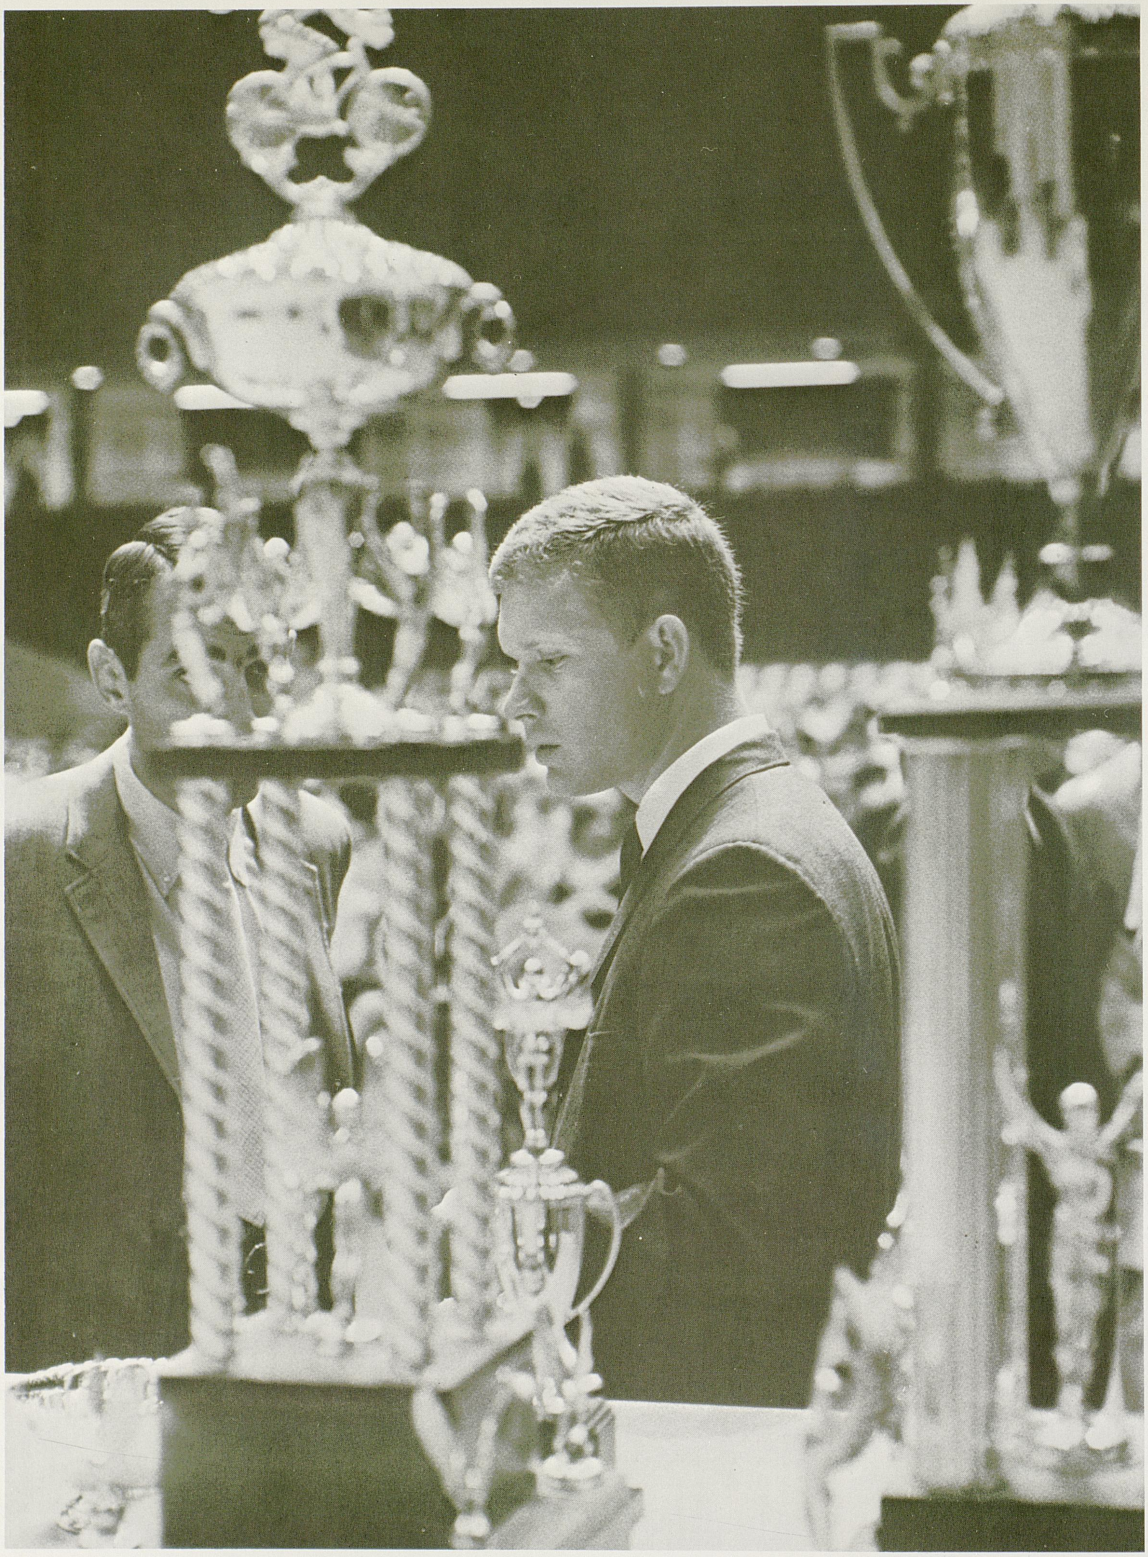
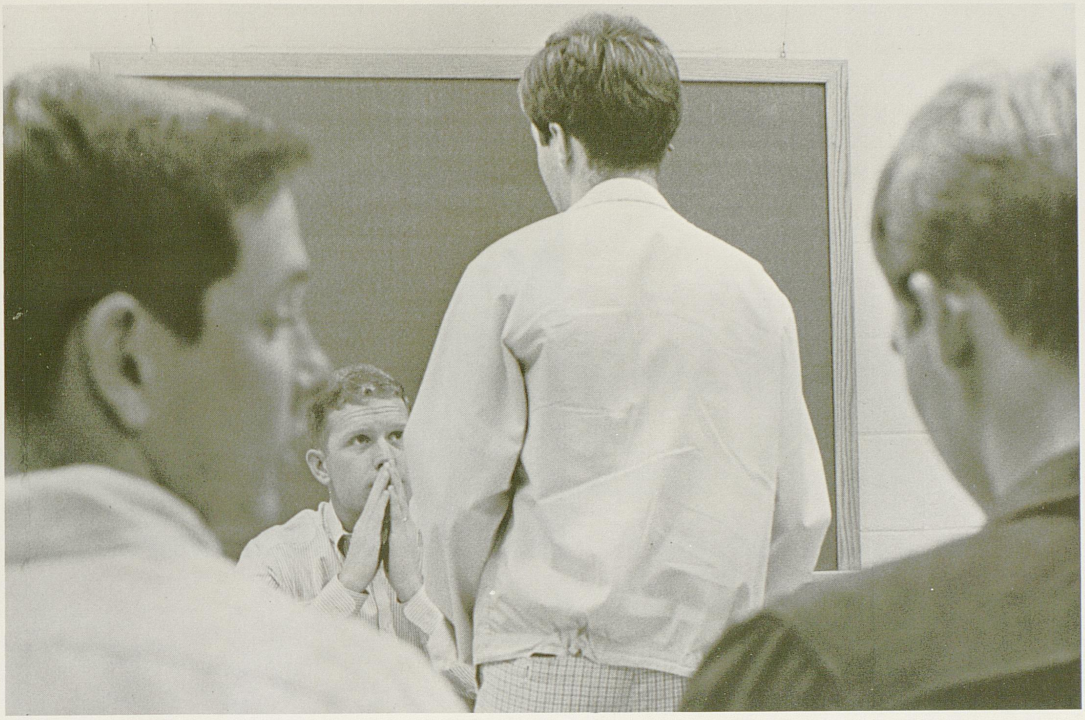
On that October day when Rich placed third in the Lambda Chi Derby Ugly Man Contest, he and Trish Clevinger didn't know that they would be married on November 22. As it was for many, Rich's senior year was a time of important decisions and life-lasting actions. The fact that it was their senior year was a definite influence in prompting Rich and Trish to marry. Even amid the responsibilities and rush of a senior year, things do begin to finalize themselves.





After stepping down as Fiji president, Rich continued to be a senior leader by handling the races for LKD. It could have been predicted that under his guidance the races would run more efficiently and smoothly than ever before. And they did.
