JULIAN M. CARROLL
Governor of Kentucky

Julian Morton Carroll became Kentucky's 58th governor on Dec. 28, 1974, succeeding Wendell H. Ford, who was elected to the U.S. Senate. Carroll was elected to a full four-year term as governor in November 1975 and was inaugurated in December of that year. Born in McCracken County in 1931, Carroll attended Paducah Junior College after graduating from Heath High School. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1954 and received his law degree from UK in 1956. Before becoming governor, Carroll served three years as lieutenant governor and ten years as a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives, the last four as Speaker of the House. He is an active member of the Optimist Club and a former Jaycee. He attained the highest office in Kentucky for laymen of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in 1966-67 when he was named moderator of the Kentucky Synod. The Governor and his wife, Charlann, have four children.

STADIUM INFORMATION

FIRST AID—The University of Kentucky provides, for your convenience and welfare, First Aid Stations on the ground level on both sides of the stadium. On the West side is Room 156, the East side Room 172. An ambulance is available at each corner of the stadium. Twenty doctors on duty are spotted in each section of the stadium and are easily accessible to Boy Scouts and ushers. Two golf cart ambulances are equipped for immediate aid and located on the second level on each side of the stadium. Persons with any type of chronic medical problem are requested to leave their name and seat location with the nurse on duty at either First Aid station. A person in need of assistance with a health emergency should report the situation immediately to the nearest Boy Scout or usher.

CARDIAC CARE—In cooperation with the University Medical Service, the University of Kentucky provides a cardiac resuscitation program.

LOST AND FOUND—Lost and found articles should be reported or turned in to an usher or a security officer. You may wish to write to the director of public safety (305 Euclid Avenue) and describe lost articles which will be returned if found.

CROWD NOISE PENALTY—Uncontrolled crowd noise can result in a five yard penalty against your team. Please observe quarterback and official's signals for quiet.

NO HORNS—Horns are not permitted in Commonwealth Stadium and will be picked up at gates. Be considerate and allow your neighbor to enjoy the game. Keep portable radios at a low volume.

GATE INFORMATION—All gates are open two hours before game time. Parking lots are open three hours before game time. All stadium exits will be opened after the game. Please do not leave the stadium during the game or at half-time if you plan to re-enter. No "Pass-out" tickets will be issued and you will not be permitted to re-enter.

FIELD REGULATIONS—Spectators must keep off the playing field at all times and after the game. Spectators must use the stadium ramps for exits.

LIQUORS—Alcoholic beverages are strictly prohibited within the stadium as are all food and drink containers including hard surfaced materials of any type, bottles, cans, thermos bottles, ice bags, ice chest, and any object related to above. Gate personnel are instructed to enforce this rule in the interest of safety.

PUBLIC ADDRESS—Messages for the public address announcer are acceptable only in emergencies and must be approved by the Sports Information Director at the Press Box.

SIGNS—Signs and barriers are restricted for Commonwealth Stadium in accordance with University regulations and policies established by the Public Safety Division.

PARKING—More than 5,000 parking spaces are located in four lots around the stadium, along with a bus-camper lot. Some areas are set aside for Blue & White Fund members, handicapped persons, staff and the press. Located nearby on the campus are many free parking spaces in University lots. Shuttle buses carry passengers to and from the campus lots and the stadium.

GENERAL TICKET POLICY FOR STADIUM

The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the United States under the leadership of Dr. Otis Singletary, the eighth president of the University.

Dr. Singletary was named president of the University in August, 1969. He had previously served as executive vice-chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas System and director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Dr. Singletary, a native of Gulfport, Miss., holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University.

As president of the principal institution of higher learning in the Commonwealth, Dr. Singletary is greatly concerned with the University's role as a land-grant institution, a "people's university" accessible to all who can profit from education.

In the eight years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now some 22,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 17,000 students in UK's 13 community colleges, and the University has become one of the major research institutions in the country.

Recognition of his service to the University was evidenced by the UK Alumni Association, which presented to Dr. Singletary its Alumni Service Award—an honor rarely bestowed upon a non-alumnus of the University.

DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY

President, University of Kentucky

Dr. Singletary is the author of two books and several monographs.

A Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, he is a commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve. He and Mrs. Singletary, the former Gloria Walton, have three children: Bonnie, Scot and Kendall.

The Singletarys live at Maxwell Place, traditional home of UK presidents.

The champion Spendthrift came off the same pastures of the farm now named for him. The Belmont winner in 1879, Spendthrift was the great-grand-sire of Man O' War. He was bred and raced by Daniel Swigert, great-grandfather of Leslie Combs II, present owner of Spendthrift. Mr. Swigert bred three Kentucky Derby and two Belmont champions.

CLIFFORD O. HAGAN

Progress and excitement have marked Cliff Hagan's first two years as director of athletics at the University of Kentucky, and football has been a major part of the overall success of his program.

Two of his personal "high peaks" last year were possession of the beer barrel and the Peach Bowl trophy, respectively, after the Wildcats defeated Tennessee at Knoxville and North Carolina at Atlanta.

Other high peaks in football were an 8-4 record, the Wildcats' best in 25 years, and a record-breaking attendance of 393,483 at seven home games in Commonwealth Stadium.

Elsewhere on the UK sports scene, the basketball Wildcats, coming off a 1976 NIT championship, were conference co-champions and advanced to the finals of the Eastern Regionals.

One of Hagan's primary aims since becoming AD has been to upgrade the Wildcat athletic facilities. Recent improvements include a new baseball pressbox, resodding of the Commonwealth Stadium field, beginning of construction of a new basketball house, completion of a 110-yard Astro-Turf practice field in the Shively Sports Center complex, installation of open-air type lockers in the dressing rooms, and a planned expansion of the main building, with the size of training and conditioning rooms to be increased.

Hagan joined the Wildcat athletics staff as assistant to Harry Lancaster, with varied administrative duties, including creation and implementation of the Blue & White Fund for the then-new Commonwealth Stadium. He was named director of athletics in July 1975, while Lancaster, whose retirement was not effective until February of 1976, remained as a special assistant to Hagan.

Hagan's path to the athletics directorship began at Owensboro, Kentucky, where he established a then state high school tournament record of 41 points in leading Owensboro to victory over Lafayette in the championship game of the 1949 tournament.

At UK, he played on teams that won 86 of 91 games and an NCAA championship (1951). The 1954 team, undefeated in 25 games, elected not to participate in the national tournament.

Hagan set a dozen Southeastern Conference records and an NCAA record of 528 rebounds as a junior. He averaged 24 points a game, led the nation in rebounding, and scored a UK record of 51 points against Temple in 1954.

After graduating from UK in 1954, Hagan served two years at Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., as a commissioned officer. He led the base to two World Wide Air Force championships and won All-Service honors both years.

During ten years with the St. Louis Hawks, he ranked high among 11 players on the league scoring charts with 12,433 points in 672 games for an 18.5 mark and was selected to play in five East-West All-Star games and was named to the NBA second All-League team twice. He hit over .790 from the free throw line seven years in a row and held the NBA record for most field goals scored in a single quarter (12).

During his 11th year in St. Louis, Hagan did radio and television commentary for the Hawks' basketball team and for Anheuser Busch.

He then joined the Dallas Chaparrals as player-coach and was selected as the 1958 Texas Professional Coach of the Year. When he left Dallas, he was only 92 points shy of a regular-season career total of 15,000 points.

In 1974, he was named to the Hall of Fame Magazine's All-America second-team for the 1951-1973 period, to the Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel Star's All-Time Southeastern Conference first team, and the All-Time top collegiate player in the State of Kentucky by Inside Kentucky Sports Magazine. In 1975, he was named to the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame, was inducted into the UK Alumni Association Hall of Distinguished Alumni and was a recipient of the University of Kentucky Centennial "K" Medallion tendered by the UKAA for past athletic accomplishments, during UK's Centennial Year observance.

He is married to the former Martha Milton of Owensboro. They have four children: Lisa, Laurie, Amy, and Kip.

THE FRAN CURCI SHOW

SUNDAYS 6:30 PM

FRAN CURCI

Now in his fifth year as head football coach at the University of Kentucky, Fran Curci reigns as the most successful Wildcat grid mentor since the nationally famous Paul (Bear) Bryant and Blanton Collier led the "Big Blue" during the 1946-61 years.

In addition to posting two winning seasons in the past four years, something that had not happened at Kentucky in 20 years, Curci led the Wildcats to a 7-4 regular season record, their best since Blanton Collier's 1954 team finished 7-3, and to their first post-season appearance—the Peach Bowl—in a quarter-century.

Another amazing thing about the 1976 season was a tie for third place in the Southeastern Conference after practically all experts had picked the 'Cats to finish last.

Curci's combined record at UK now is 21-23-1, compared to 35-74-4 for his two immediate predecessors. He was 5-6 his first season, best record for a UK team in seven years, and then gave the Wildcat fans a 6-5 record for their first winning season in eight years.

Plagued by injuries, failure to find a suitable quarterback and some unfortunate extemporaneous factors, the Wildcats fell to 2-8-1 in 1975 and were counted out of conference and national contention in the 1976 pre-season roundups.

Then came the 1976 season, which included victories over such national powers as Penn State, Florida and LSU, and was climaxed by a 7-0 victory over Tennessee. It was Kentucky's first victory over the Vols in 12 years.

A 21-0 victory over North Carolina in the Peach Bowl gave Curci an 8-4 record, best for a UK coach since Bryant's 1951 team finished 7-4 and then beat TCU in the Cotton Bowl.

Curci came to the University from the University of Miami, Fla., where he was head coach two years. He started his career as freshman coach at Miami in 1962 after making All-American there in 1959 and playing as a 5-foot-9, 152 lb. quarterback for the old Dallas Texans of the AFL. In four years his Hurricane frosh teams won 12 and lost two. He later served as varsity offensive assistant at Miami (1966-67) and in both of those years Miami wound up in bowl games.

He was tapped by the University of Tampa in 1968 to see what he could do about a faltering football program; in three campaigns, he wrote one of the most amazing success stories in college football.

In his first year at Tampa, he put together a 7-3 season, which included victories over Mississippi State and Tulane. That earned for him the Florida Sports Writers Association "Coach of the Year" award, a recognition repeated in 1970. Curci's 1969 season was a brilliant 8-2 affair. His 10-1 record in 1970 also included a 31-14 triumph over Miami and brought the Tampans the nation's No. 1 College Division ranking as well as bringing Curci College Division "Coach of the Year" runner-up honors.

He took over as Miami grid boss Dec. 19, 1970, and left the program there in good shape for his successor.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., he played his high school ball in Miami, where he lettered three years as a quarterback at Archbishop Curley High and was All-City, All-Conference, Catholic All-State and his team's Most Valuable Player.

At the University of Miami, he was known as the "Mite-y Magician." Playing at 152 pounds, he parlayed intelligence and desire to become All-America as a senior in 1959 after receiving honorable mention All-America and winning acclaim as one of the foremost sophomore football stars in the country in 1957.

His record-shattering feats at Miami included breaking of seasonal and career marks for total offense, most passes thrown, most passes completed and most yards gained on passing. He also was co-holder of the record for most TD passes thrown.

He rolled up 2,767 yards rushing and passing during his varsity career, breaking a total offense record that had stood for more than two decades.

After graduation in 1960 with a degree in marketing, he played one year with the Dallas Texans and then served as a lieutenant in the Army, coaching and playing football for the Fort Eustis team, which won the National Service championship in the Missile Bowl.

A veritable Noah's Ark—ranging from Anteater to Zebra—encompasses the realm of the birds and beasts selected as mascots of the college and university teams. Behind the selections of many of these mascots lie interesting stories.

For instance, everyone associates the Army Mule with the U.S. Military Academy. That's a natural, it would seem, because mules have been associated with the military since the first wars. But did you know the first Army Mule started out pulling an ice wagon?

The tradition of the Army Mule started in 1899, when an officer in the Philadelphia Quartermaster Depot decided Army needed a mascot to counter the Navy Goat in the football game of that year. Tradition says the ice wagon mule, a large white animal, was curried and groomed and fitted out with a gray blanket.

According to the legends of the Academy, the first meeting of the Army and Navy mascots resulted in the mule "hoisting the astonished goat toward the Navy stands to the delight of the yelling, laughing crowd."

But where did the Navy Goat enter the picture? Legend says the Naval Cadets, marching up the steep hill to West Point for the game in 1890, spotted a goat outside a noncom's house and commandeered "Billy" as the mascot.

Official files list 1893 as the year for the appearance of the first goat, named El Cid, who was supplied by a young naval officer from the cruiser New York.

Tradition says the goatkeepers must keep the goat pointed in the direction of Navy's offensive goal so the quarterback may draw assurance by checking his direction with Bill.

Some mascots were adopted for less colorful reasons. Take the Owls of Rice University. When the Rice Institute football team of 1912 or so went out to play Houston High, someone remembered a team needed a nickname. During the discussion, someone noted the new official seal of the school had the figures of three "Athenian Owls" who were known (via Greek mythology; thus, Athens) as "the bird of knowledge." "Why not the Rice Owls?" someone yelled, and the name stuck.

Wyoming has a horse, "Cowboy Joe," but the nickname came when a 220-pounder from Harvard joined the football team against the Cheyenne soldiers in the 1890s. When this ex-cowboy trotted on the field, a spectator razzed, "Hey, look at the Cowboy." And it stuck.

The Arizona Wildcats owe their nickname to an early game report by a famed writer, the late Bill Henry, which noted the team "fought like Wildcats."

Southern Cal's nickname, Trojans, was picked by a local sportswriter at the request of the school's president. Besides a bronze statue of "Tommy Trojan" on campus, a rider in Trojan garb rides a white horse, Traveller, along the sideline at home games.

And Arkansas owes its razorback mascot to Coach Hugo Bezdek, who summarized after beating LSU in 1909, "It's a team of wild razorback hogs." Previously, Arkansas had been called the Cardinals.

One of the more original nicknames is the "Gorilla" of Kansas State of Pittsburg. "Gus" and "Gussie" Gorilla are so popular even some of the rest rooms are labeled "Gus" or "Gussie." Originally, the teams were known as the Manuals, because it was a Manual Training Normal school in 1903. In 1926 the yearbook used the term gorillas to describe the football team. It stuck. One president of the college thought it undignified and tried to replace it, but opposition to the change was too great.

The Georgia Bulldog started out as a goat. In 1892, for the game against Auburn, Georgia displayed a goat with U.G. on his blanket and ribbons on his horns. Two years later, a bull terrier was the mascot.

Why a bulldog? Best research indicates the mascot was borrowed from Yale, since the first university president was a Yale man, many of the teachers were Yale grads, and several buildings were designed from blueprints of Yale buildings.

While most universities and colleges have replaced the live mascot with a student dressed in costume, Louisiana State still boasts of its tiger, Mike IV.

And while some complain about the captivity and the expense (10-12 pounds of meat daily) of Mike, when the vet suggested Mike's ailing predecessor needed air conditioning, the athletic department came up with the funds.

Another unusual mascot is the Golden Griffin of Canisius. A Griffin? It, says the legend, has the head and wings of an eagle and the body of a lion. Its image appeared on the first ship ever built on America's inland seas.

How about Albert the Alligator, the University of Florida mascot? He was adopted because the owner of the student book store ordered some pennants and didn't realize until too late the school didn't have a mascot.

"Alligator" seemed natural. Once there was a big cage on campus where Albert the Alligator lived, but pressure forced his moving to Lake Alice on the campus, where he has plenty of alligator company. Florida dresses a student as Albert now, and has a Gator Man who rides the alligators around Lake Alice.

As early as 1861, Michigan students called themselves the Wolverines. And the nickname is older than the state itself.

Way down South in the Land of Cotton, the recent rise of collegiate basketball to national prominence has been as spectacular as that of peanut farmers in Plains, Ga.

Basketball, for so many years the athletic stepchild in the football-crazed Southeastern Conference, is now as much a part of the winter sustenance as hominy grits and turnip greens.

Almost anyone along highways and dirt country roads in Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, or Mississippi will tell you, with pride, that this past winter the SEC finished with three teams—Kentucky (3), Alabama (11), and Tennessee (15)—in a wire service poll's national top 15.

No other major conference can make this claim. Not even the traditionally strong basketball conferences.

Through this great upheaval in sports priorities and popularity in the South-

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—John Mooney, past president of the Football Writers Association of America, has been associated with newspapers in Salt Lake City since 1939. A native of Iowa and a graduate of the University of Iowa, he went directly from the editorship of The Daily Iowan, student newspaper at Iowa, to the sports desk of the Chicago Tribune. He moved to the Salt Lake Telegram in 1939, became its sports editor in 1941, and switched to the morning Tribune as sports editor in 1948.

Maybe it was because of fur trading that the name stuck.

Minnesota became "The Golden Gophers" even though there has been an argument whether the animal is a gopher or a 13-striped ground squirrel.

Since 1857, Minnesota has been identified as the Gopher State. A fight developed between those favoring gopher and beaver for the state name, but when a political cartoon poked fun at the gopher, the Gopher State became reality.

Wisconsin has its Bucky Badger, a nickname associated with the early miners in the state. When winter came, the miners "holed up" in their mine shafts like badgers.

Wisconsin had a live badger for a time, but he was replaced as a safety measure.

Missouri had the same logic for not getting a live tiger. The nickname came after the Civil War when a band of men was recruited to stave off an expected attack. It never came, but the group in Columbia, known as Missouri Tigers, lived evermore.

The Texas Longhorns maintain a live mascot in Bevo X in a tradition started in 1916 at the Texas A&M game at Austin. The first steer to be named Bevo and mascot reportedly wound up branded and barbecued by the Aggies.

The University of California adopted the Golden Bear from the state flag, but UCLA had bigger problems. First known as Southern Branch of the University of California, its teams were known as the Grizzlies. But when UCLA joined the Pacific Coast Conference, Montana already had that mascot. And California had Golden Bears, leaving Bruins as a final choice in the bear family.

Texas Christian has Addie the Frog as a mascot. Why "Addie?" Because TCU started out as Add-Ran College. The Horned Frog started as the name of the school annual, and eventually moved to the athletic teams.

Bucknell picked Bisons because it lies on the edge of Buffalo Valley, one of the last stamping grounds of the vast herds that roamed the continent.

State University of Iowa has Herky the Hawk, who came along years after the Hawkeye State had been named. The original name came from Cooper's Last of the Mohicans.

UGA III roams the sidelines at the University of Georgia.

Penn State's "Nittany Lions" comes naturally, because the university is located in Nittany Valley, at the foot of Nittany Mountain, home of a legendary mountain lion. The student who wears this costume has to be in shape because he does a push-up for every point on the scoreboard each time Penn State scores.

Boston University boasts of its Terrier, and claims this is one of the few dogs actually bred first in the United States.

Colorado has an 800-pound Buffalo named "Ralphie" which was known as "Ralph" until she turned up pregnant.

Washington claims "Huskies," but only after a protest against the campus magazine "Sundodger" had tagged that name on the teams. Chamber of Commerce pressure beat down "Sundodger" and public support picked Huskies over Malamutes.

The Jayhawker was a popular frontier term, and not always complimentary. But there was a fighting regiment known as Jennison's Jayhawkers and one of the first wagon trains for the gold fields of California claimed, "We are gonna jayhawk our way." Kansas took that trademark after the Civil War term applied more and more to Kansas.

North Carolina State retained Wolfpack in spite of protests, some criticizing the name and its association with the Nazi sub fleets.

For a strange mascot, consider "Testudo," the 500-pound indestructible mascot of Maryland. Testudo is a bronze replica of a diamondback terrapin, one of the state's culinary delights. This mascot also started as the nickname of the student newspaper, the Diamondback. Soon after, the athletic teams became known as Terrapins, later shortened to Terps.

Sometimes mascots are made, not born. In the 1954 Gator Bowl, Joe Kirk Fulton leaped on a horse named Blackie and led the Red Raiders onto the field. With his scarlet and black cape, slouch hat and coal black horse, the Red Raider made a sensational entry in Texas Tech history.

And leave it to Texas to settle the question as a last incident. When West Texas State was locked in public debate over the selection of the school mascot, an old Panhandle cowboy named Parson Gough spoke up. He noted that while riding the T-Anchor range in 1882, he shot a buffalo about where the administration building stood and "Buffalo" would be an appropriate name. The student body voted unanimously for the name. But the Buffalo mascot didn't fare as well. In 1970, "Little Joe" broke his neck trying to escape, and another live mascot bit the dust.

This is the latest Z-Car from Datsun. But allow us to delve into perspective for a moment to put it into ever. It had zap. One of a kind. The 240-Z was the first Z. A two-seater, four-speeder GT that quickly became America's most-wanted sports car. And you know, it still is. A good used one is worth more today than it originally cost.

Next came the 260-Z, and so did a lot of Z refinements. The engine grew, for example, from 2400cc's to 2600cc's. It had zzap. And so does its resale value. Then came the 280-Z, with an electronically fuel injected 2800cc overhead cam engine.

ZZZAP. To this year's Z, in both its two-passenger and four-passenger versions, we've added functional hood louvers, a 5-speed optional, mag type wheel covers, breathable vinyl, center armrest console and 13 other small, but rather nifty, refinements.

Z-Cars keep getting better. It's like investing in a sure thing. Just see your Datsun Dealer for a zap-drive.

And if you decide to buy one and keep right on going, your friends will understand.

THE QUARTERBACK

by Paul Attner, Washington POST

Leadership and Confidence are the Keys

Coaches are crafty mortals. They'll tell you that quarterbacks are no more important to a team's success than pulling guards. And they'll say it with a straight face.

But if you look fast enough, you might find a few of them with their fingers crossed behind their backs.

Even if they'll never admit it, every coach worth his x's and o's takes special interest in the care and feeding of the man who lines up behind the center. A coach can have all the elements necessary to make a team go except a quarterback, but he might just as well be starting an auto race with a flat tire.

Besides, if the quarterback weren't so important, why would the coach always be having extra meetings with him every day?

Not that any 6'2", 215-pound specimen can step in and do everything the coach wants out of the position Hollywood loves best. There is more to the spot than a sound arm. A sounder mind helps, one that can produce leadership and display confidence.

"You can win a lot of games without a confident quarterback who has good leadership," said one prominent coach. "But when it comes down to the big games, the ones that make and break the season, your quarterback better have both things in big doses."

Leadership and confidence. The intrinsic that can make a gifted quarterback sensational and an average quarterback merely better than anyone could have anticipated. All the great ones have had both elements in varying proportions—but without them, you won't have a winner or an All-American.

They are the reasons lots of 5'9" scrappers have been able to survive as quarterbacks for big-time teams. And they are the reasons that coaches devote special time to searching beyond the computer readouts for the real personality and habits of eligible men.

THE SPORTS CARWAGON

The 1977 Corolla Liftbacks uniquely combine the features of a sporty car and a family wagon. Plus Toyota's durability and toughness—like welded unitized-body construction, not nuts and bolts, so you get a quiet ride.

Practical. A fold down, split rear seat makes these '77 Liftbacks three ways convenient: Carry two passengers. Carry one. Or carry up to 20 bags of groceries. And every Liftback comes with no-cost features like power front disc brakes, steel-belted radials, and many more. SR-5 Liftbacks also come with 5-speed overdrive transmission and sporty mag-type wheels as standard equipment.

Sporty. Performance is backed by a durable 1.6 liter engine. Match it with a 5-speed, overdrive transmission, the Deluxe model's standard 4-speed, or the optional 3-speed automatic, and you'll get great gas mileage and performance. For example: In 1977 EPA tests, the Deluxe model with 4-speed transmission got 38 mpg highway, 26 mpg city. These mileage figures are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment. The 1977 Corolla Liftbacks. A. Easy. Would you want to take orders from a high-voiced person? Of course not. A deep, resonant voice commands respect. You stand up and listen to it. You can't detect any hint of nervousness.

Q. So you expect your quarterbacks to lead by hollering?

A. Hold on now. That's not necessary. You can lead a lot of different ways. Some guys do it by words, others do it by actions.

The point is, I'm more concerned that somehow, somehow my quarterback leads. Even if you have a superstar at another spot, eventually the team will look to the quarterback for leadership. It's only natural because the position is that important.

He's got to take command. I tell him, if they start talking a lot in the huddle, tell them to shut up. We don't want any fooling around in the huddle. We want them to line up, we want the quarterback to call the play and we want them to break to the line.

Q. Doesn't a quarterback have to be careful not to be too vocal or what once was leadership might turn into cockiness?

A. Sure. I tell my guy, if a player messes up, I'll yell at him, not you. If a guy runs the wrong pattern, tell me and I'll take care of it. The players want someone to take charge, especially in pressure situations. But they can be pushed too far.

Q. Someone has said that in many ways, a team is a reflection of a quarterback's leadership. Do you agree?

A. Wish I had said that myself. Look for yourself. If a quarterback is a bit rowdy, the team usually is. If he is a quiet kind of guy, so is the team. I'm convinced that it's not always what play you call at any point during the game, but how you call it. If you make it sound like the best play for that moment, those guys will run through a wall for you.

Q. Okay, give me some specifics. You've got a young quarterback and you want him to be a leader. How do you go about it?

A. You mean beyond the deep voice and stuff? Well, I don't think you can force a guy to lead unless he wants to. He's got to have an inner confidence in himself first; he's got to know he can do the job.

Q. Okay, how do you instill confidence?

A. That's easy. You make sure the man is sure he can execute. If he's having trouble, I'll set up my practices so things start working right, so plays are run perfectly. Once that happens, the man says, 'hey, I can do this here, why not in the game?'

The quarterback has to take command and a deep, resonant voice helps.

Confidence is a crazy thing. Some players will still think they are great at age 90. Others, if you sit them on the bench for a minute, their confidence is shattered. It will take time to restore it. That's why you can't treat everyone the same. Players with different personalities will react differently to the same situation.

Q. I mentioned cockiness before. Doesn't a cocky quarterback threaten to turn his teammates against him?

A. I think they can hate a quarterback's guts and he still can get the job done. But I'd prefer the team to like the quarterback. But first he has to like himself. He has to have respect for himself and his ability.

That's why it all comes down to how he performs in a game. You asked me how do I make a guy a leader? Easy, I have him throw a 50-yard TD pass to win a game.

Q. Explain that one. Why is that important?

A. For two reasons. First, the quarterback gains confidence. He's done something really special under pressure, before lots of people, when he had to.

If a quarterback is cocky, he'll be doing stuff that will benefit himself. If he's confident, he'll call things because he knows they will work. And it won't take long for the team to notice it.

That leads me to the second point. All of a sudden, the man knows he can perform, and so do his teammates. They'll start listening to him a heck of a lot more than they would if he wasn't completing anything. They've got to know that he will come through for them when they need it. Maybe not everytime, but enough to make them winners.

It's simply leadership by example. If my kids see him going back to pass and then duck away from the rush, or unload it right away instead of waiting until the last possible second, it hurts their confidence in him. Everyone else is working their tail off to make the play work and he darn well better, too.

If he hangs in there, takes a beating and gets up for more, just like the man in the trenches, watch out. That special chemistry every winning team has develops from stuff like that.

Q. By that, do you mean a great team has to have a great quarterback?

A. Not always. I can name you some fantastic teams with pretty average quarterbacks. And I can name you some great quarterbacks who played on average teams.

What I'm saying is this: Sometimes a quarterback with average physical skills can blend in with a bunch of great athletes in such a way to produce a champion. They supply the real skills, but he gives them the leadership they need. And when it comes down to that fourth and one situation, he somehow gets the first down.

That's why the quarterback is so essential. Remember, this man touches the ball on every play. So he can mess it up every play. I don't care if all he does is hand it off. He better do the handing off flawlessly.

Q. But what about these coaches who say a quarterback is given too much credit for victories and criticized too much in defeats?

A. Wish I could answer that one, but I got to run. Got a quarterback meeting in two minutes. ☐ east, however, one thing remains constant.

Kentucky, winner of the first SEC championship tournament 44 years ago, still reigns as the dominating force in Dixie.

This winter, the tall, muscular Wildcats again will be heavily favored to capture their 31st SEC title, despite predictions that the 1977-78 season will lure record crowds to see the finest cotton-picking basketball teams, from top to bottom in the conference, that the South has ever produced.

"On paper, we look good, I guess," admits Kentucky coach Joe Hall. "But, our league will be incredibly strong. There will be more good players, and outstanding teams, in the SEC than I can ever remember. Championships are not awarded on how you look, but how you play. And we have our work cut out."

The best team, however, unquestionably should be Kentucky. The Wildcats return almost intact the team that shared the SEC championship last year with Tennessee and finally was beaten in the NCAA Eastern Regional finals by North Carolina, the eventual national runner-up. It is, in fact, almost the same team which two years ago won the National Invitational Tournament (NIT).

Returning to Lexington, Ky., and its awesome 23,000-seat Rupp Arena are three-year veterans Rick Robey and Mike Phillips, each 6'10" and 240 pounds.

Add freshmen recruits Chuck Aleksinas (6'11", 250), Scott Courts (6'10", 215), and Freddie Cowan (6'8", 200), and a squad meeting of the Kentucky team will look like a lumberjack convention.

Robey and Phillips have been the musclemen of the SEC for several seasons and now comes Aleksinas, who Kentucky sources say "weighs 250 pounds and has upper arms like oak limbs, without one ounce of fat on them. He is an extremely strong person and is put together physically like not too many men."

Mingled with all this power and muscle is sleek All-American candidate Jack (The Goose) Givens and hotshot guards Truman Claytor, Jay Shidler and Kyle Macy, the latter a transfer from Indiana who practiced (spectacularly) with the Wildcats all last season as he awaited eligibility.

The 'Cats have firepower. They have muscle. They have all the ingredients of a national championship contender, not to mention the SEC.

Almost immediately after accepting the assignment to write an article on football cheerleaders, I began to have second thoughts. Uh-oh, I figured, this really sinks me neck deep in a subject I know nothing about. Sure, I've been a keen observer of cheerleaders for years, but what serious information can I impart to you that you don't already know?

Historically, football cheerleading may have begun as early as the first college game, that 1869 meeting of Rutgers vs. Princeton. The onlookers were allegedly overheard exhorting their favorite team with derivations of Civil War yells. Whatever the truth is, it's obvious that organized cheerleading had enough intrinsic value to quickly make itself an indispensable part of the game.

Exactly what it is in cheerleading that makes it so complementary to football's total pageantry seems to be worth a little armchair analysis.

For openers, college football is characterized by the boundless enthusiasm and joy of youth. Yelling for the sheer pleasure of it is a natural by-product to the excitement that football generates. From that kind of spontaneous, uncontrolled yelling, it's a short step to the syncopated cheering heard at hundreds of stadiums each Fall Saturday afternoon.

Equally as important as the vocal release of energy is the visual aspect of cheerleading. From the maze of colors and styles in the parking lots, to the elegant tailgate lunches, to the contrast of the uniforms, football is a spectacular visual feast. The cheerleaders long ago recognized this fact, and they have added to this happy visual assault by employing colored card stunts and choreographed dance routines.

My own earliest memories of football include the surreptitious acquisition of my older sister's high school student body card on an Autumn Saturday and then making my way to the home team sidelines, there to stare in equal admiration at the brawny athletes and beautiful cheerleaders. I don't think I've really changed much; still today the activities of the attractive yell leaders can distract me from concentrating on a crucial play.

Football players and the concomitant cheerleaders have worked themselves into a special place in American culture. It's hard for me to imagine any novel or motion picture about college life that doesn't focus a large segment on the doings of the star player and the comely cheerleader. The cheerleaders may not get much space in the Sunday morning game summaries, but take them away from even one game and you'll see how interdependent are the players, the crowd and the cheerleaders.

Give the College Game an Extra Dimension

The importance of cheerleaders to football is not merely as an attractive window dressing to the pageant. With proper organization, they can produce an experience that changes the whole complexion of the game. Cheerleading is designed to deepen the emotional involvement in an already emotional game. I'm not saying that to sound overly pompous or profound. It is a serious remark, and I'll be happy to explain.

As an undergrad at Syracuse University, I attended a game against Army at New York's Yankee Stadium, and in that huge edifice I sat far from the Army cheering section (admittedly the whole student body for that institution, but still less than 3,000 people). Well, the cheerleaders organized a continuous drone-like yell of "Syracuse is out of shape, Syracuse is out of shape." For over 13 years that chant has stuck in my crow (although I'm positive that no Ben Schwartzwalder team was really ever out of shape). To my mind, that insistent yell had a whale of an impact on the game—it certainly affected my perception of the contest. As I recall many years later, a vastly overpowered, underweighed Army team gave my alma mater all it could handle and barely lost the game.

To carry the idea of well-organized cheerleaders one more step, let me remark on Army's Cadets, 3,000 men in unison, whistling "On, Brave Old Army Team." It must be inflating for the Army players to hear, and I can vouchsafe that it is beautiful and deflating for the opposition.

The brunt of yelling has traditionally come from student sections. The youngsters are loaded with exuberance, and since their friends and classmates are down on the playing field, there's a natural inclination to want to cheer them on to victory.

One method used to harness this youthful bounty is a program designed to instill the cheering spirit in the freshmen. When the freshmen are taught at orientation that cheering is an established part of the school's game time repertoire, they are more likely to contribute their lung power without second thoughts.

Sadly neglected, in a lot of cases, is one of the largest units of fans from which cheerleaders ought to draw: the alumni and their families. A recently elected yell leader brought this observation to her new hobby. "I always see the alumni sitting out there with their tailgate parties and think we could get out there and talk to them a little before the game. You know they'd jump at the chance to feel they were a part, to revert to their college days." You bet they would. Most alums are screaming for the ol' home team anyhow; it merely remains to get them to yell in unison. Throw in the voices of their spouses and kids and pretty soon you'll have a nifty home field edge. Why, after all, should the opposition get the powerful feeling that they're playing on neutral turf?

Besides handing out plaudits to those vivacious attributes to game day, the message here is to let it all hang out. Give a big yell for the home team. It's darn near the American way. And when all is said and done, even the most cerebral coach and logical strategist quickly admits that football is an emotional experience. ●

Living on Campus

For whatever reasons, on-campus housing at the University of Kentucky has been extremely popular for the past few years, with the demand for such housing exceeding the supply.

The maximum capacity in University-owned housing on campus is about 5,600 students, with an additional 1,300 spaces in fraternity and sorority houses. The UK enrollment on the Lexington campus is about 21,400.

Most students living in UK housing would probably agree that fellowship and friendship is about as important as the physical facilities, and the UK residence hall programming office tries to encourage this.

"We try to provide all the warmth and comfort students need and want without being bogged down with too many rules and regulations," says Dean Rosemary Pond, of the programming office.

Freshman women living in UK's oldest residence hall, Patterson, are proud of the rich historical tradition of the hall and the alumni who lived there. Men and women in the Kirwan-Blanding complex like the comfort of newer surroundings and the special grille and sundry shop located in the area.

Dean Pond finds that students often prefer one hall over another because of location. For example, students in the health professions and agriculture prefer Kirwan-Blanding because it is nearer to their classes, she explained.

She adds that the University residence halls are designed to promote a living-learning experience for students.

OFFENSIVE STAFF

PERRY MOSS, OFFENSIVE COORDINATOR

Perry Moss, offensive coordinator, came to UK from San Antonio, where he guided the Wings to a 7-3 record and a World Football League division championship in 1975.

A native of Oklahoma, he earned football, baseball and basketball letters at Tulsa Central HS and was quarterback of the Tulsa team that defeated Georgia Tech in the 1945 Orange Bowl.

After service in the Army Air Corps in WWII, he quarterbacked Illinois to the 1946 Big Ten championship and the 1947 Rose Bowl championship. He was an A-A honorable mention in 1944-46-47 and recipient of the Boston Gridiron Club's National Award for Sportsmanship (1947). He played in the Chicago Trib's all-star games in 1945-48 and the 1945 Blue-Gray Classic and played professionally with Green Bay as QB in 1948.

Moss has served as an assistant coach at Illinois, Washington, LSU, Miami (Fla.) and Wisconsin. He was head football coach and AD at Florida State University in 1959, and head coach and GM of Montreal (1960-62) in the Canadian League, improving the struggling Alouettes from a last-place team to a play-off team.

He worked for Vince Lombardi as special assignment scout for the Packers in 1963 and then produced four championship teams in the Continental League at Charleston and Orlando (1964-67), earning league Coach of the Year honors in 1965-66-67.

LARRY KIRKSEY—RECEIVERS

Larry came to UK this year after coaching wide receivers the past three years at Miami (Ohio) University. A native of Harlan, he graduated from high school there and then played split end four years at Eastern Kentucky University, where he had 82 career catches for 1,155 yards.

He served as a graduate assistant coach for the Colonels before going to Oxford.

JIM NIBLACK—OFFENSIVE LINE

A native of Georgia, Jim came to UK this year from the University of Florida, where he coached the Gator Jayvee team. He played offensive tackle for the Gators, graduating from Florida in 1951.

Jim was head coach at Sante Fe High School before beginning a 15-year tenure (1959-74) at Gainesville High School. He then coached the offensive line for the Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League (1974) and was defensive coordinator when the team became the Express in 1975.

DEFENSIVE STAFF

CHARLIE BAILEY, DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR

Charlie came to UK in 1975 from Rice University, where he served three years as defensive coordinator and was assistant head coach. A native of Poca, W. Va., he was a high school quarterback there, earning three letters each in football, baseball and basketball. As an end on both offense and defense, he lettered four years at the University of Tampa, being named outstanding lineman and team captain, among other honors. After graduating from Tampa, he coached one year each at Poca High and Brandon, Fla. High before serving as an assistant at Tampa from 1964-70. He was defensive coach for Curci one year at Miami before moving to Rice.

BILLY MITCHELL, DEFENSIVE ENDS

Billy returned to his alma mater in 1974 from Wake Forest, where he was a member of K-Letterman Tommy Harper's staff. A native of Georgetown, he earned four letters as quarterback at Garth High, plus three letters each in basketball, track, and tennis. He was All-State two years in basketball and regional high jump and tennis champion. As a U.K. halfback, he earned three letters and also lettered as a high jumper for the Wildcat cinder squad. He was head coach at Manual High in Louisville in 1965 and then served as an assistant at Murray State, Virginia Tech and Wake Forest.

GEORGE CATAVOLOS

One of four new coaches on the UK staff, George is a native of Chicago and a graduate of Cleveland's West Tech High School (1963), where he was All-City and All-Scholastic offensive end and safety, and a basketball letterman.

He earned his bachelor's degree at Purdue in 1967 and his M.A. there in 1969. A three-year letterman, he earned the Noble E. Kizer Academic Award his senior year and was named outstanding defensive back on the Boilermakers' 1967 Rose Bowl team.

After being drafted and trying out with the Philadelphia Eagles, he returned to Purdue to serve two years as a graduate assistant and then was at Middle Tennessee in 1969 and Louisville in 1970. He returned to Purdue in 1971, working with the secondary.

BILL GLASER—DEFENSIVE LINE

A native Kentuckian (Louisville), Bill came to Kentucky this year from Morehead State University, where he was defensive coordinator. He played offensive guard and linebacker at St. Xavier High and returned there as an assistant coach after graduating from Bellarmine College. He became head coach at St. X in 1973, winning the State AAA crown in 1974 and the AAA title in 1975.

He was named Courier-Journal "Coach of the Year" both those years.

NEW TODAY
IN A CHEVROLET.

The Third Generation Monte Carlo. A new dimension in affordable luxury.

With immense pride, we present a trim and timely new edition of Chevrolet's personal luxury car: The Third Generation Monte Carlo.

Although thoroughly redesigned, today's Monte Carlo retains the unique personality of Monte Carlos past.

You see it dramatically reflected in the stately stance and sculptured sides.

The new interior is a virtual "Driver's Suite" —with sumptuous cloths and carpets, tall windows, an impressive new instrument panel, and special Monte Carlo "touches" throughout.

Available enhancements include a new roof with removable tinted-glass panels.

The Third Generation Monte Carlo.

Drive it soon.

We think you'll be impressed.

You won't believe the sound. You'll never believe the price.

Magnavox Modulares. They're packed with everything that goes into super stereo—except a high price tag. For example, the 1725 has:

- a solid-state stereo FM/AM tuner-amplifier to pull in those weak stations you'd like to listen to, and to keep them from drifting;

- a 3-speed automatic turntable with diamond stylus and smoked plastic dustcover;

- a built-in 8 track recorder/player;

- a pair of newly-designed 2-way tuned-vent speakers to give you rich, deep bass with astonishing efficiency;

- a price that's surprisingly low for such high performance.

Why not stop by your Magnavox dealer and tell him you'd like big sound at a small price. He'll know just what to show you.

Once upon a time there was a clever gal in Franklin, Tennessee. Her name was Mary McDaniel. She created a clever little Wildcat Keychain that captivated the jewelry buyer at Dawahares. So, the smart jewelry buyer and the clever artist got together and put the clever little Wildcat Keychains in all the Dawahares stores. Customers came in and saw the keychain. After they oohed and aahed, they looked sad. The lady customers wanted cute little earrings for their little ears so, the clever artist and the smart buyer got together again and behold! They produced, as if by magic, hand painted pierced earrings with 14kt. gold filled posts.

Now you can get your clever Wildcat keychain for just $4.50 in the jewelry shops at Dawahares.

And, you can get the cute little earrings for your little ears, too. They're only $3.00.

THE LITTLE MAN

by Dwight Chapin, Los Angeles TIMES

DOES HE STILL HAVE A PLACE IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL?

Eddie LeBaron was a 5'7" quarterback at Pacific.

Walk onto almost any practice field of almost any college football team these days and you'd swear another remake of "King Kong" was underway. Nearly everybody looks ready, willing and able to pick up the World Trade Center in one hand—and the Empire State Building in the other.

It's an age of football specialists. Big specialists. A 280-pound tackle. A 6'4", 220-pound quarterback. A 215-pound tailback who runs a 9.5 hundred. That kind of thing. Where have all the Eddie LeBarons and Buddy Youngs and Howard Stevens gone, anyway?

But then look again. Only two years ago Archie Griffin of Ohio State won his unprecedented second straight Heisman Trophy. Sure, he weighed 184 pounds. But he's only 5 feet, 8 inches tall.

Griffin was a positive thinker; he didn't think small. "It's not the size of the dog in the fight," Griffin said, "but the amount of fight in the dog."

"Every time someone told me not to play, it made me that more determined—to play and to excel. In fact, one of the reasons I went to Ohio State was because a lot of people told me I was too small to be a runner of Woody Hayes' type. But the irony is that I consider myself more of a straight-ahead, power runner than a breakaway threat of the type that most runners my size are."

Griffin says he was angered by the derisive attitude of many college recruiters.

"I knew they were wrong," he said. "My father always told me, if you set your mind to it, you can do whatever you want. I had a lot of inspiration from him and my three older brothers."

"Also, a long time ago, my junior high school coach taught me about the three Ds—desire, dedication and determination. He told me to apply the three Ds to anything I did and I would achieve success."

A recruiter once said this of Archie Griffin: "His only drawback is that he's a bit short. In every other way he's a big little man. He has power, speed and strength."

Nevertheless, it's tough even for the extremely talented small football player to escape the stigma, the question marks.

USC's Mike Garrett, another Heisman

Trophy winner who stands just 5'9", said, "It's toughest in the beginning. I knew I had to make it early or I wouldn't make it at all. I had something to prove and I did it. Of course, all I really lacked, too, was height. And height, in my opinion, is only important to the power runner, which I wasn't. That's not to say I couldn't run with strength. I played at about 200. I was strong."

Most of the highly successful small players in recent years have been short, rather heavy running backs—like Garrett, Griffin and Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt.

"A little guy has more incentive," said Pruitt, "but it goes beyond that. Sometimes, when I follow a big lineman, the tackler can't even see me. I sort of hide behind them and then make my move. But other times I have to be careful how confident now as I was then. I played against big people and I had no trouble passing over them. I'll admit, though, that today's linemen are not only big, but agile and quick as well.

"What I worked on most when I played was my faking, so that I'd have more time to find my receivers. I also could throw off the run, like Fran Tarkenton. I may be alive today because I had the ability to scramble."

Tarkenton, only 6'0" himself, once said a quarterback must display arrogance. LeBaron agreed. He said his size was never a handicap in issuing orders.

"What it comes down to," he said, "is leading by example. If the team doesn't think you can do the job, it wouldn't matter if you were nine feet tall. I had confidence in myself and I felt that the

"What I remember most," he said, "is being sacked by Big Daddy Lipscomb. Each time, he'd pick me up. I'm sure fans were saying, 'Gee, isn't Big Daddy nice to be picking up little Eddie,' but what they probably didn't notice was that he would do it by putting the squeeze on my passing arm."

There's no doubt, given a choice, that the average college football coach of today would opt for a big player who can run like a small one. That didn't have as much importance once, because the human race simply wasn't as large when college football began—or in its formative years.

Red Grange, the Illinois Galloping Ghost, was only 5'10" and 170 pounds. The Four Horsemen of Notre Dame—Harry Stuhldreher, Jim Crowley, Don Claude "Buddy" Young scooted through Big Ten tacklers at Illinois.

Incentive was a factor for Oklahoma's Greg Pruitt, who also hid behind big linemen.

I position myself—so I can see what's out front."

Two of football's most famed little men were Claude (Buddy) Young, who scooted with impunity through Big Ten tacklers at Illinois in the 1940s, and Eddie LeBaron, a tiny (5'7", 162 pounds), nifty quarterback at College of the Pacific in the late 1940s. Neither is sure he'd get much of a chance to show what he could do today.

Said LeBaron, "I probably wouldn't get a shot at starting, although I'd be as team shared that confidence."

Some of that confidence came from the incentive LeBaron carried as a small player. "In high school," he said, "I was about average size. In college, I was smaller, but there wasn't too much mention of it. Later, people were suddenly saying I was too small to make money playing the game. That only gave me that much more incentive."

He was asked if opposing players treated him more gently because of his stature and he smiled.

Miller and Elmer Layden—averaged just 160 pounds. For every Bronko Nagurski of Minnesota (6'3", 200), there was a Cotton Warburton of USC (5'5", 145).

Run down through history for a moment and think of the contributions of: Albie Booth of Yale (5'6", 144); Davey O'Brien of Texas Christian (5'7", 150); Nile Kinnick of Iowa (5'8", 167); Glenn Davis of Army (5'9", 170); Joe Bellino of Navy (5'9", 181); Howard (Hopalong) Cassady of Ohio State (5'10", 172); Fran-

But, as usual, it won't be easy for them.

In almost every instance, SEC basketball observers list Alabama and Auburn as the logical contenders, just under Kentucky. After this alignment, there appears to be no agreement on the relative strengths of the other seven teams: Tennessee, Florida, Louisiana State, Vanderbilt, Ole Miss, Mississippi State, and Georgia.

"This is because talent is everywhere," said Alabama coach C.M. Newton. "The race this winter will be out of sight. The traditional basketball schools will be very good and the others are obviously on the rise. The recruiting success this year for our league is phenomenal and makes it difficult to rank most of the teams in any pre-season evaluation."

Tennessee, one of the defending SEC champions, is a prime example.

The Vols, coached by Ray Mears, one of the winningest coaches in college basketball history, lost two of America's greatest players, All-American Ernie Grunfeld to graduation and Bernard King to the pros.

But the Vols recruited well, picking up prep All-American James Ratiff, 6'9", out of Washington, D.C., and 6'11" Kevin Nash from Detroit to go with sophomore Reggie Johnson, an awesome 6'9" player who one year ago was one of the most celebrated prep players in the nation.

Auburn was, as one coach put it, riding high in recruiting this past spring. The Tigers picked up two blue chip prospects in Alabama, 6'11" Bobby Catage and 6'8" Earl Banks, to go with an array of vastly-talented lettermen by the name of Mike Mitchell, Myles Patrick, and Stan Pietkiewicz.

Tiger coach Bob Davis has what he needs to win it all, Kentucky notwithstanding.

But, he'll have a hard time just winning the mythical state championship because Alabama has built a basketball program akin to the football dynasty which has been established in Tuscaloosa by the man with the catchy name, Bear.

"We have, like so many others, recruited to our needs, picking up a 6'10" center, Norman Anchrum, the top prep player in the state; a 6'7" forward named Ken Johnson from Phenix City, Al.; and a junior college player, 6'6" Richie Hood," said Newton, the Bama coach. "We think we'll have a good team. But so will everyone else."

No one else has a player like Reggie

John Stroud was All-SEC Freshman from Ole Miss last year.

King, a 6'6", 235-pound junior, who is nicknamed Mule. He earned the name with incredible strength, forever dispelling any belief that the game is for skinny guys.

King, along with super-swift guards Anthony Murray, Robert Scott, and Kent Looney, and workhorse forward Keith McCord, make the Tide a formidable force.

A darkhorse team in the league could be Louisiana State, which has enjoyed incredible recruiting success over the past two seasons, brightening the future of Coach Dale Brown who has had trouble getting the Bengal program out of the swamp.

Led by Kenny Higgs, a player with a 20.1 ppg career scoring average, the Tigers are equipped with vast talent in the form of super sophs Durand Macklin and Jordy Hultberg and Rick Mattick, who is 7'0" and 260 pounds.

Mississippi State is the same kind of team—a squad with a lot of talent, but with little success in beating others with it. A new coach, Ron Greene from the University of New Orleans, may make a difference, particularly in squad discipline which many felt denied the Bulldogs success last winter.

State returns the SEC's Freshman of the Year, 6'10" Rickie Brown, along with solid guards Ray White and Al Perry to make the Bulldogs a very dangerous outfit. Certainly, one capable of a high conference finish.

Georgia is another team of the same physical strength and talent as LSU and Mississippi, but injuries last year relegated the Bulldogs to last place in the 10-team league.

With 6'10" giants Lucius Foster and Lavon Mercer anchoring a lineup of speed and muscle from the likes of Walter Daniels, Charlie Dorsey, Curtis Jackson, and Tony Flanagan, Georgia is another of those traditional SEC also-rans who appears ready to explode on the national basketball scene.

Florida coach John Lotz, utilizing the pressure defense he learned as an assistant to Dean Smith at North Carolina, has brought the Gator program a long kie Albert of Stanford (5'9", 170); Chris Cagle of Army (5'9", 167); Frank Carideo of Notre Dame (5'7", 175); Benny Friedman of Michigan (5'8", 172); Les Horvath of Ohio State (5'10", 167); Dixie Howell of Alabama (5'10", 164); Vic Janowicz of Ohio State (5'9", 189); Beattie Feathers of Tennessee (5'10", 180); Bill Dudley of Virginia (5'10", 175); Charlie (Choo-Choo) Justice of North Carolina (5'10", 165); Tommy McDonald of Oklahoma (5'9", 169); Hank Lauricella of Tennessee (5'10", 169); Frank Sinkwich of Georgia (5'8", 185); George Welsh of Navy (5'10", 164); Wilford White of Arizona State (5'9", 161); Jerry Levias of Southern Methodist (5'10", 170); Art Luppino of Arizona (5'9", 178); Sherman Lewis of Michigan State (5'8", 154); Anthony Davis of USC (5'9", 183).

You'll note all of the above gentlemen are backs. But there was a time when the men in the line weren't constructed like Godzilla, either.

Going way back, Pudge Heffelfinger of Yale, still considered by many experts the finest guard ever to play the game, weighed a robust 205 pounds.

Outstanding tackle Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of Mississippi was 6'1" and 210 pounds; Bill Hewitt, a terror at defensive end for Michigan, just 5'11" and 191; guard Danny Fortmann of Colgate, 6'0" and 210; guard Mike Michalske of Penn State, 6'0" and 209.

Obviously, linemen with that sort of size are not common among today's gargantuans, but a gutty little guy occasionally sneaks through.

The small man in the pit must survive on guile and quickness, however. The tiny back can still do it on speed, moves and a little luck.

It is perhaps no accident that one such back—Eric (The Flea) Allen of Michigan State—still holds the NCAA single-game rushing record of 350 yards, and that it took a fellow named Tony Dorsett to supplant lilliputian Howard Stevens of Louisville (5'5", 165) as the NCAA's career rushing leader.

He may have to be about twice as good as his bigger brothers, but the little man apparently will endure in college football, if barely.

There was a classic example in the 1966 Rose Bowl, where big and mighty Michigan State met small and unheralded UCLA. Tommy Prothro's Bruins were ahead, 14-12, when Duffy Daugherty's Spartans went for the two-point conversion that would have tied it.

Quarterback Jimmy Raye moved to his right, then pitched back to Bob Apisa, who weighed 212 pounds. UCLA's Jim Colletto hit him first, short of the goal line, then Bob Stiles—listed generously in the program as 5'9" and 175—leaped bulldog-style on Apisa's shoulders, stopping him a few inches from the end zone.

"Stiles looked like an elephant boy on top of Apisa," Los Angeles Times columnist Jim Murray wrote.

Stiles didn't remember much of the experience. The blow knocked him cold. Later, when he got the Player of the Game award, Stiles said, "I should be sharing this with my teammates. I feel like a thief."

He may now understand, however, the little man in football needs every edge he can muster. ●

Ohio State's Archie Griffin won the Heisman Trophy twice with a 5'8" frame.

Practical.

Practically perfect.

After bringing you a perfectly practical car, it should come as no surprise that we now bring you a car that's practically perfect. The Volkswagen Rabbit.

In February of 1976, Car and Driver said of our car, "What we have now is a faster Rabbit that has benefited from step-by-step, under-the-skin attention to detail—which is damn encouraging because it shows that VW is sending the already-excellent Rabbit down the yearly refinement path that made the Beetle last almost four decades. Using that system, the Rabbit may be the world's first perfect car in just a few short years!" Last year alone, we made 17 major changes and improvements toward making our '77 Rabbit even more perfect.

Since it was already big on room and performance, we added fuel-injection to help give it easier starts, yet allow it to use an economical grade of gas.

In a world that's far from perfect, isn't it nice to find something that's practically there.

Around the country coaches express similar feelings about their preparation for those Saturday afternoons:

- Maybe you can outcoach me. Maybe you can outthink me. Maybe you can even outreruit me. But no way in this world are you going to outwork me," boasts one successful coach in the Midwest.

On-the-field workouts take just a small part of a coach's work schedule which is designed to make Saturday "a day to go out and have fun."

- Another mentor, pausing in the midst of a typical 18-hour work day, says: "My daughter keeps saying to me, 'All you ever do is change your clothes here, Daddy.'"

- From the Midwest comes: "The latest I ever get into the office is quarter-to-eight in the morning. And I never go to bed until 2 a.m. I don't even need an alarm clock; when the game films run out of the projector, that popping wakes me up."

- And from the Southeast: "All my young players want to be coaches, so I ask them all the same question: Can you live without it? If you can, don't get in it."

- From the West: "Some restaurants, they won't give me a placemat anymore. They give me a pad and a pencil. They know that from September to December, I draw Xs and Os instead of eating."

- From the East: "I always tell my players and my assistants if you take care of the little things, the big things will take care of themselves. That's when you prepare. Saturday afternoons, that's when you go out and have fun."

Ah, yes, Saturday afternoons in the autumn. Leggy cheerleaders and throbbing bands and a stadium full of hysteria. Tailgating and second-guessing. A time when, for perhaps three crunching hours, six days worth of dreaming and scheming, of diagramming and programming, of rehearsal and healing, of practice and preparation, all come together.

Before, back in the days of the Galloping Ghost, Grantland Rice, and the Four Horsemen, back before coaches had discovered clipboards and stopwatches and computers and films and videotape and slide rules and organizational genius that would make an efficiency expert blush with envy, college football was a lot more, well, casual.

At halftime, a Knute Rockne might squeak a few Xs and Os on the chalkboard and then deliver himself of fire-and-brimstone oratory.

But today, fans, the product of what you see on the field is the end result of the sort of technology and preparation NASA used to put into launching spaceships.

The following is an example, a composite look behind the scenes of what goes into getting ready for Saturday afternoon:

SUNDAY

The coaching staff will gather after lunch, offense in one room, defense in another. For roughly four hours they will view films of the previous day's game, running them over and over.

Each player is graded on each play. In late afternoon, the team gathers and watches the game films in their entirety, with periodic stoppages for critiques. From 7 to 11 that night, the coaching staff meets again. This is a sophisticated second-guessing session, a time for evaluating last Saturday's overall performance. If, for example, four games into a season a certain play that was supposed to be extremely dependable has averaged only 1.7 yards, it will be re-evaluated. At this point, the coaches are like a race driver's pit crew, tinkering and making minor adjustments.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Bill Lyon has been a sports columnist for The Philadelphia Inquirer since 1973, covering Penn State football on a regular basis and reporting on such other major events as the Super Bowl, World Series, Masters, U.S. Open, pro basketball, Stanley Cup playoffs, heavyweight fights and even the Evel Knievel Snake River Canyon jump. His columns appear in over 35 papers, including the Miami Herald, Boston Globe, Chicago Tribune, and Detroit Free Press.

MONDAY

An early start, before the secretaries arrive and the phones begin to ring. The trainer's report—who's hurt, how serious, how long will he be out? The body count is followed by an evaluation of personnel. Should there be changes in the depth chart? Demotions? Promotions?

It is also film time again. Films of this Saturday's opponent. Plus elaborately detailed reports, charts, percentages, the other team's tendencies. What, for exam-days in the fall. Once the season starts, bodies are too precious to waste beating up on each other.

That philosophy differs, depending on the personality of a team, and of its coach. One coach, for example, has been known to stage a short but solid goal-line scrimmage on Thursdays.

Either late Monday afternoon or early Monday evening, neatly typed scouting reports are distributed to the players. They may vary from six to 20 pages. They are a condensation of what the films have shown, what the scouts have reported, what the computers have burped out.

WEDNESDAY

Practice will run around an hour and a half, again with emphasis on what the opponent does. A light dummy scrimmage. Perhaps not so light if the coach feels his team is not aggressive enough. And The Game Plan will be finalized, as lovingly, calculatingly, scientifically put together as an annual report for a conglomerate. Practice films are shot and reviewed.

Common thought has it that football coaches watch more footage than all the sensors in Hollywood put together.

Light dummy scrimmages at mid-week help a team sharpen up its timing and blocking assignments.

ple, are they most likely to run on third-and-long when deep in their own territory? Such reports used to be submitted by scouts. Now they are supplemented by computer readouts. Almost every university has its own computer today, and in something like 36 hours it can crank out an impressive amount of information on what the other team is apt to do.

Nothing is left to chance. The computer is also fed tendency information about your own team. It is a continual guessing game. Nobody wants to become stereotyped, or easy to read in advance.

There will be a workout in the afternoon, but not much contact, if any at all. Most coaches like to reserve all the head-knocking for spring practice and two-a-

TUESDAY

Usually the longest and busiest day of the week.

Another 7 a.m. start. More films, a more thorough analysis of the computer printouts. And, finally, the preparation of The Game Plan. The workouts will be longer, perhaps two to two-and-a-half hours, but still primarily in sweatsuits or shorts and pads. The cannon fodder, or the team that will imitate this week's opponents, runs through the plays.

Many a school will take its own films of this session for a closeup look at how its defense is reacting to the simulated opponent's offense, how its own offense seems to fare against the opponent's defense, trying to sniff out what plays look

Game plans are diagrammed early in the week after hours of film viewing.

THURSDAY

A catch-all day. Polish The Game Plan. Stage a dress rehearsal. Go over all the special things like onside kicks, two-point conversions, all those "little things." And, as always, more film.

"Sometimes," states an SEC leader, "I get to wondering if we don't try to do too much. There's always a danger of outsmarting yourself. You get to lookin' at so many films and doin' all this analyzin' and writin' game plans that are bigger than a

Every football fan knows that the score doesn't always give a good picture of a game. A few statistics, like those that can be kept on this page can make the picture clearer, show what the individual stars contribute and help to win post-game "debates." Besides, it can be fun to second guess the official scorers whose statistics will appear in tomorrow's papers. But before you start, here are some pointers on being a statistician:

1. Keep cumulative totals to be informed "up to the minute" and to simplify your figuring of team totals. Example: Jones gains 3, 6, 9, 2 yards and you write 3, 9, 18, 20 on his line.

2. On plays involving penalties measured from the point of the foul, credit the rusher or pass receiver with yardage only to the point of the infraction.

3. Charge gains and losses on fumbles to the player who, in your judgment, contributed most to the error.

4. Don't score two-point conversion attempts after touchdowns as rushing or passing plays.

way. But, he hasn't brought it much farther than a junior college guard did last year. Richard Glasper is super quick and makes things happen in Gainesville.

He will be back, directing a deliberate offensive show which includes 6'10" Larry Brewster, 6'6", 225-pound Al Bonner, and 6'8" Malcolm Cesare in the cast.

The other two SEC teams included in the so-called "Scrambling Seven" at the bottom of the league are Vanderbilt and Ole Miss, one traditionally good in basketball, the other just the opposite.

Vanderbilt, which sells out its 15,600-seat gymnasium in pre-season sales every year, is rebuilding under second-year coach Wayne Dobbs. Last year's team included two super frosh, 6'7" Charles Davis at forward and 6'3" Mark Elliott at guard, and recruiting this year has brought in 6'5" Mike Rhodes, with a 42.0 ppg average from the outside in high school; and prep All-American Brian Allsmiller, 6'8", from a Chicago suburb.

Mississippi has a second-year coach by the name of Bob Weltlich, who last year was fresh off the staff of Bobby Knight at Indiana. He brought the same fire and discipline to Oxford, Miss., but needs time to lure championship recruits to his campus. Most of his scholarship players this year will be freshmen and sophomores. He does have three starters back: soph forward John Stroud (6'7") who hit 14.5 ppg to be All-SEC Frosh, junior guard Henry Jackson (5'11") who was seventh in SEC assists, and senior guard Joe Kyles (6'2"), a defensive specialist who is learning to score. One analyst says Ole Miss may have a better team, but a worse record; maturity should bring more wins.

Stan Pietkiewicz is Auburn's leading returnee.

Rickey Brown was the SEC Freshman of the Year at Mississippi State.

The season 1977-78 already is exciting because of its unpredictability.

All of a sudden there is something else to do in the wintertime in Dixie besides listing football recruits and watching bowl games on television.

The bounce has come to the South. The bounce of a basketball, suh. ●

Give our country a college education.

As an Army ROTC graduate, you bring more than training and gold bars to your new job in the active Army, Army National Guard or the Army Reserve.

You also bring a college education which makes you one of our country's most valuable assets. Why? One reason is the wealth of experiences and ideas you bring with you. This enables the Army to better relate to an ever-changing society.

And since you'll be an Army officer, you'll have plenty of opportunities to put your ideas to work. In fact, you'll be running your own show, right out of college.

Another reason we value your education so highly is that the people you'll be leading are better educated and more highly motivated than ever before. This makes your job as an Army officer more of a challenge.

To help you meet this challenge when you get out of school, we'll help you while you're in by giving you a living allowance of up to $1,000 each year you are enrolled in Advanced ROTC.

There are also opportunities for scholarships that cover tuition, books and lab fees.

That way, you can make the most of your education. And when you graduate, our country can make the most of it too. For details, see your professor of military science or send in this coupon.

phone book and what it usually comes down to is who's got the better hosses. But, by the same token, the worst feelin' in the world is to lose one and then spend Saturday night wonderin' if there was something you overlooked."

FRIDAY

If a team is playing at home, the players might not have to show up, except to drop off written tests, based on the week's Game Plan, which was given to them on Thursday. If it's an away game, everyone leaves in the late morning, then walks out to the stadium to let the players stretch their legs and get the feel of the playing field, whether it's artificial turf or natural grass.

From a coach of a leading independent camp, "I know when I played football, coaches used to tell us to get our game face on. Well, sure, you want the players to be thinking about tomorrow by now, but not so much that their collars are getting tight and they can't swallow. If you make any changes in your game plan by now, you try to play them down. That's psychological. You don't want to upset the team's confidence, muddy their minds after you've got them ready.

"There's an old saying, you know, that by Friday night the hay's in the barn."

Echoes a Midwestern coach: "Football is a very simple but complicated game. By that, I mean you can get so caught up in technology and sophistication that you forget that most games are won by blocking or tackling."

Or, as Duffy Daugherty used to say when he was at Michigan State: "It's all a matter of luck, and the worst luck of all is not having enough good players."

Practically every successful college football coach is a bonafide workaholic as their Sunday-through-Friday masochism shows.

"But the invigorating part comes each week with each new challenge," says the Midwesterner. "You become addicted. I allow myself to savor a win only for a few moments, then I'm thinking about next Saturday. But you know, I can still remember every down of every game I ever coached, and that covers 29 years. Most of that is determined by what you have done Sunday through Friday."

"I tell my players to enjoy themselves on Saturdays, 'cause it may be the only time in their lives 60,000 people will be cheering them," says another coach.

He concludes: "It's more than just Sunday through Friday. There's not been a time I can remember that after a game I didn't mention next week's opponent. So you see, really we're talking about Saturday through Saturday." ●

Let's face it.

The best insurance salesman isn't a salesman at all. He's a buyer. A buyer of insurance, for you. A professional. And if he buys the right insurance for your particular need, he's sold himself to you. C.D. Harris, Jr., Jim Harris, Grant Lewis, John English, Charlie Aton, Mike Sheehan, Jim Hill, Ray Hatton, Cissy Musselman, Eric Tachau, Cliff Elgin, Jim Elliott, David DuBose, Pamela Wessel, and John Beam. Ask your friends about them. Chances are, you'll want them to buy for you, too.

The place for people who like to dine out often.

One of the nice things about our Magic Pan creperie is that so many people come back so often. We show our appreciation by serving an ever changing variety of delicious crepes along with our special salads and hearty soups. In the evening, even the ambience changes subtly as lights are dimmed and candles glow. And we keep our prices so reasonable that we can enjoy the company of our many friends more often. We like it that way at The Magic Pan.

The time for decision . . .
is now

Decisions about saving energy and keeping warm this winter should be made now. Having enough insulation in your home is the single most practical thing you can do to lower your electric bill and conserve energy.

As a property improvement, insulation is an investment—returning "dividends" in heating and cooling cost savings, year after year. Contact KU for insulation guidelines.
