Foreword

To us, the Editors, has been granted the privilege of directing the composition of a book which we have endeavored to keep at the high standard set by former Kentuckian editors. In this we have been hampered by one of the most unfortunate years any University has ever weathered. That we have in some measure succeeded in our endeavor is due to the co-operation of the student body as a whole and a large part of the faculty and friends of the University. Particularly we wish to thank Professor Enoch Grehan, who put the entire resources of the Journalism Department at the disposal of the staff; William Wallace, Jr., Art Editor, who, though a Junior, gave of his time and talent freely to make the Senior year book a success, the Registrar and his assistants, who helped in securing the pictures for the dedication section, and above all, President McVey, who assured the management of the financial backing of the University. We offer the 1919 Kentuckian for what it is worth. Read and judge leniently.

THE UNIVERSITY

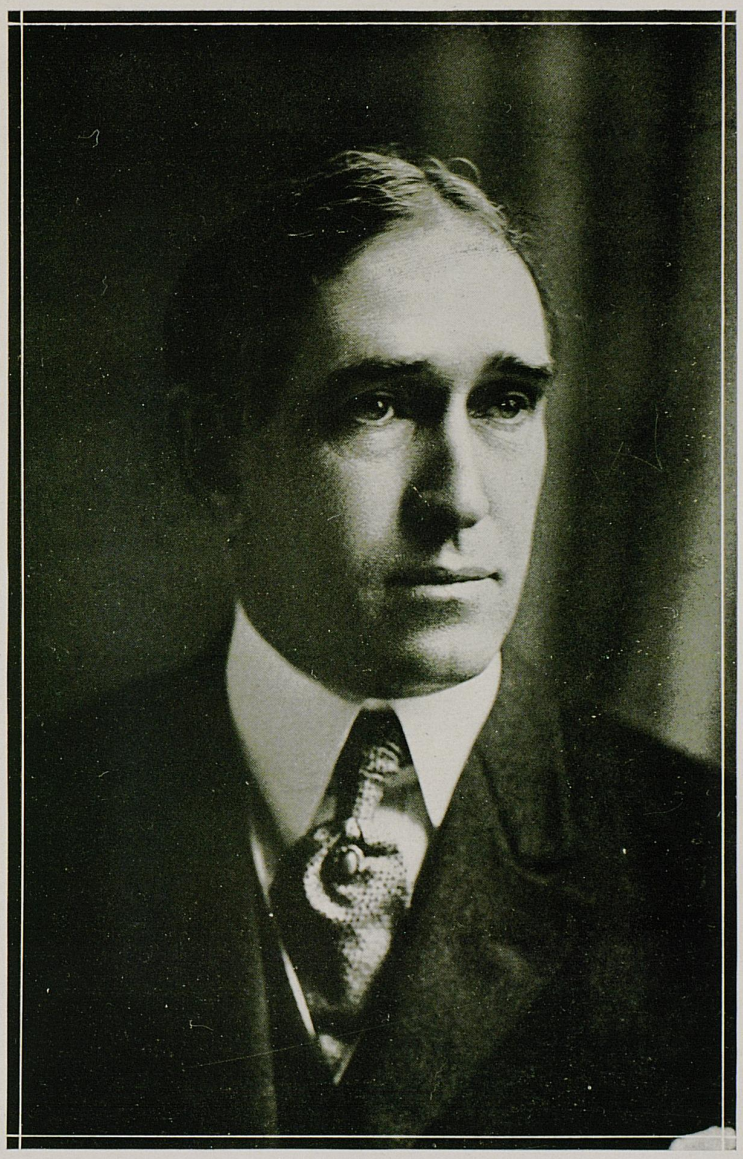

The New University

THE scholastic year that is now drawing to a close has been the annus mirabilis in the recent history of the University of Kentucky. Under President McVey's leadership improvement has followed upon improvement. On the grounds, in the buildings, in the reorganized colleges, the new courses, and in the new faculty members we have evidences of the spirit of growth that is taking possession of the University. The new spirit of life and enthusiasm can almost be felt in the air. It is with pride that "The Kentuckian" presents in the following pages a resume of work of the various colleges with an account of the new departments and a word concerning the new members of the faculty. The best of it is we feel that this momentous growth is but an earnest of the great development that is to follow; the University of Kentucky will soon take the honored place we desire for her among the universities of the nation.

PRESIDENT FRANK L. McVEY

College of Arts and Science

DEAN P. P. BOYD

The last year has held many changes for the College of Arts and Science. First, the entrance requirements were modified so that greater latitude was given in high school preparation. Second, the requirements for graduation were changed. Under the new plan, students are required to take a year's work in each of six diverse groups. Having thus secured some breadth of view in the field of knowledge, the students in their junior and senior years proceed to devote, by means of a major and minor system, more particular attention to some one subject or group of subjects. There is provision also for the election of courses in other colleges, and for combined courses in Arts and Agriculture, Arts and Engineering, Arts and Law. This, in effect, includes as possible major subjects, courses taught in the other colleges of the University. Third, the organization of the college has been modified in that instead of the former thirteen departments there are now twenty-two, and instead of forty-two instructors there are now fifty-five. The Departments of Music and of Art and Design have been established; the Department of Psychology organized; the Departments of Botany, Zoology, Bacteriology, Military Science and Physical Education transferred to this college; while other departments have been divided, combined and extensively reorganized.

WALLACE '20.

Department of Music

Nothing is more indicative of the new era at the University than the establishment of the Department of Music, offering courses in Harmony, History of Music, Sight Singing, and Appreciation of Music. There is also a normal course for band and orchestra, a men's and women's glee club. The Lexington Oratorio Society, in charge of the department offers additional opportunity for the study of the world's masterpieces of music. The department seeks to encourage self-expression, to prepare the student to take part in the musical activities which are constantly assuming more importance in civic life, to stimulate a love for the best there is in music, and so to produce the enthusiastic and effective leadership which must be used to develop the latent feeling for music in the State.

Department of Botany

The Department of Botany which has recently been transferred to this college aims to meet the needs of several classes of studnts. To the student desiring general culture and scientific discipline, it offers an opportunity to develop powers of observation, description, clear thinking, and sound reasoning by inductive methods, and gives moreover, a keen appreciation of plant life in its fundamental relations to human life. Work in this department is indispensable to those who expect to teach botany or agriculture in the secondary schools. And to those who contemplate a botanical career, the subject presents an inviting, intensely interesting, and inexhaustible field of research. The department offers special training to such students, preparing them to serve in agricultural colleges, experiment stations, or in the Department of Agriculture.

Department of Zoology

The Department of Zoology has been transferred to the College of Arts and Science and will include all the courses in Zoology and Entomology except the purely economic work which is retained in the curriculum of the College of Agriculture. The department is well-equipped with lecture-rooms, laboratories, demonstration-rooms, office and library, and offers undergraduate courses in zoology, entomology, osteology, embryology, and ornithology, and graduate work in entomology and herpetology.

WALLACE '20.

Department of Bacteriology

The Department of Bacteriology has been transferred from the College of Agriculture to the College of Arts and Science. An introductory course and advanced courses in bacteriology are offered. These meet the demands of students in science, agriculture, home economics, sanitary engineering, nursing, and pre-medical courses. As occasion arises, it is planned to institute other advanced courses.

Department of Economics and Sociology

The work given in the Department of Economics and Sociology has a three-fold value. In the first place, the general courses in these subjects rank high in cultural value, due to mental discipline and more especially to the awakening of intellignt interest in human life by the analysis of its subtle relationships. Secondly, there is the training in citizenship. A student cannot hope to take an intelligent part in government unless he is familiar with the merits and defects of social and economic programs. Lastly, the more practical courses give training leading to professional careers in business administration and social service.

Department of History and Political Science

The Department of History and Political Science suffers a loss of half its classes in the creation of the new Department of Economics and Sociology. Emphasis is now being placed upon English and Modern History. The Great War had reduced the post-graduate work, but the time thus lost has been saved for study and investigations which will be published in the near future. The greatest gain is President McVey's course in International Law.

Department of Romance Languages

Department of Romance Languages has been reorganized. Courses are offered in French, Spanish and Italian, and plans are being made for offering graduate and correspondence courses in these languages another year.

Department of German

The courses in German Language and Literature have been taken out of the Department of Modern Languages and now constitute the Department of German, with Professor Melcher as head.

Department of Ancient Languages and Literatures

The Department of Ancient Languages and Literatures, of which Professor Jones is head, is the result of the consolidation of the Departments of Latin and Greek. The aim of the department is to make the study of Greek and Latin as attractive and useful as possible. Emphasis is laid upon the connection of these languages with English, and the indebtedness of our legal and political institutions to the Roman is not overlooked.

Department of Philosophy

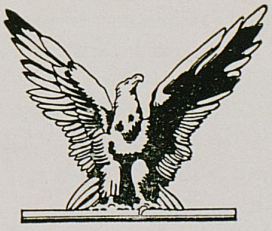

The Department of Philosophy has been reorganized with Doctor Terrell as head. In addition to the courses in Logic, Ethics, History of Philosophy and Advanced Philosophy, an introductory course in Philosophy is now offered to Freshmen, giving them an opportunity to become acquainted with the subject so that they may now major in it if they desire.

Department of Physical Education

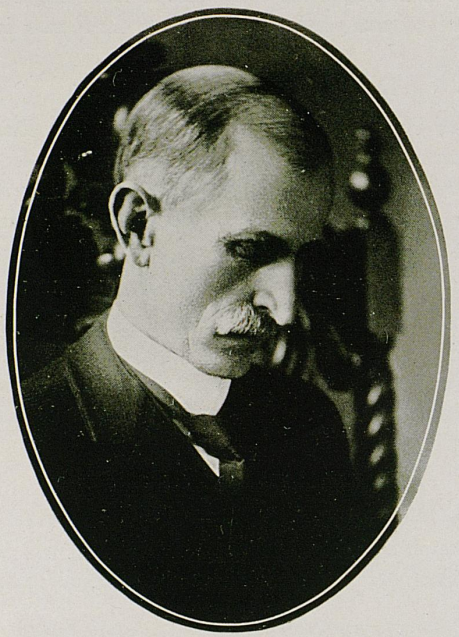

The Department of Physical Education of which Mr. Boles is head, has been reorganized and transferred from the University general to the College of Arts and Science. The work consists of gymnasium classes, football, basketball, baseball, track and tennis. Great stress is being placed upon every student taking part in athletics.

Department of Art and Design

The Department of Art and Design is another new department from which the University expects great results, hoping that in the future there will be a student body of trained designers and illustrators to bear witness to its accomplishments.

College of Law

DEAN W. T. LAFFERTY

The College of Law is constantly adapting its course to fit the growth and development of the country. The design of the college is to teach the student the fundamental principles of English and American law, and to so extend the course of study as to fit him for the bar in any State. The course offered is thorough and comprehensive, giving such training as will prepare him for usefulness as a citizen, and success as a practitioner. The instruction is not limited to persons choosing the law as a profession, but is given also to special students who elect to take a limited course in such subjects as will be found useful in the pursuit of some other business or occupation.

Applicants for admission to the first year classes of this college must be at least eighteen years old and must offer the preparatory work required of all students entering the University. Students in the College of Arts and Science in their senior year do work in this college which will be credited on both the Arts and Science and Law degrees, thus enabling them to receive both degrees in six years. Students entering in 1919-20 must complete the equivalent of the first year in Arts and Science before they can be classified as Seniors. In 1920-22 this work must be complete before they begin the law course, and in 1922-23 two years of arts and science work will be required for entrance. Under certain conditions special students may be admitted and advanced standing for the equivalent of not more than two years' work may be granted upon the presentation of satisfactory certificates or by examination.

The course of instruction covers a period of three years and continues the subjects uniformly taught in the leading law schools of the country. Court practice work is given in the third year, so that students who graduate not only have a comprehensive knowledge of the theory and application of substantive law, but possess a knowledge of procedural law, as well, which enables them to begin practice without embarrassment. The effectiveness of the course is increased by a law literary society, courses of special lectures and by the free use of the law library containing ten thousand carefully selected volumes and all the current issues of new text books, court reports, magazines and pamphlets.

College of Engineering

DEAN F. PAUL ANDERSON

The College of Engineering is the result of the consolidation of the Colleges of Civil Engineering, Mines and Metallurgy, and Mechanical and Electrical Engineering. The College of Engineering is prepared to train men so as to enable them most effectively to adapt the achievements of sciences and art to the use of mankind. For two years all the students in engineering are given the same course, involving a fundamental training in English, mathematics, physics, chemistry, mechanical drawing, free hand drawing, wood shop work, surveying, foundry work, blacksmithing, and machine shop work. At the end of two years the student may elect a course in the Departments of Civil Engineering, Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, or Mining Engineering. The three degrees given are Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering, Bachelor of Science in Mechanical and Electrical Engineering, and Bachelor of Science in Mining Engineering.

Department of Civil Engineering

The Department of Civil Engineering is organized to give young men a thorough course of instruction in those branches most vital to the civil engineer. The course is planned to give the student a knowledge of the skillful practitioner in any of the branches of the profession. The course is strengthened by the general training given in the first two years, and by the fact that the course in surveying now covers a full year. The work given by the department is covered under the following heads. Construction, Contracts and Specifications, Hydraulics, Highway Engineering, Sanitary Engineering, Railway Engineering, Surveying and Geodesy and Structural Engineering.

Department of Mines and Metallurgy

The Department of Mines and Metallurgy equips men to take charge of mining operations. Although the field for coal mining in Kentucky is the most important one, training is given in gold, silver, iron, and copper mining processes. Especial attention is given to metallurgical processes, principally those pertaining to gold, silver, and iron. The following courses are given: Course in mining engineering, course in metallurgical engineering, two years' course in mining, eight weeks' course for practical miners. The courses are planned to afford a thorough basic engineering training with special emphasis in mining and metallurgy, thus establishing a good foundation for professional work by so preparing the student that he may readily assimilate the knowledge of the details in practice which may be gained only through experience.

Department of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering

The Department of Mechanical and Electrical Engineering is organized to give to young men a comprehensive training in dynamic engineering. All the fields of human endeavor dealing with the development, use and transmission of power are well defined, component parts of dynamic engineering. The aim of the curriculum in this department is to prepare graduates for doing creditable work in the various branches of mechanical and electrical engineering.

Department of Automobile Engineering

The Department of Automobile Engineering has been created in the College of Engineering. This department will give courses of lectures and carry on class room work relative to the theory of design, operation, and construction of motor vehicles. Laboratory and testing work pertaining to the efficiency of power vehicles maintenance and repair of motor vehicles will occupy a considerable part of the course. At present it is proposed that no separate course in automobile engineering leading to a degree be established, but that all theoretical and practical work will be carried on as a part of the training in all engineering courses.

College of Agriculture and Home Economics

DEAN THOMAS COOPER

The College of Agriculture and Home Economics of the University of Kentucky comprises three great divisions of work: the college proper, representing resident teaching; the Agricultural Experiment Station which is devoted to research and regulatory work; and the Agricultural Extension Division organized for the purpose of carrying information on agriculture and home economics to those not in attendance at the College of Agriculture.

There have been a number of changes in the teaching corps of the college during the past year. Additional courses which have proved most popular have been offered. These comprise work in farm mechanics and its allied branches; work in meats; and additional work in home economics.

Many improvements have been made and others are in contemplation. The live stock pavilion for use in judging live stock has been partly completed. A meats laboratory and the installation of refrigerating machinery have been completed and are now in operation. A beginning has been made in the introduction of new breeds of live stock. A Gernsey herd has been added to the dairy herd, and a small herd of Herefords and Shorthorns to the beef classes. Attractive rooms and laboratories have been set aside in the agricultural building for home economics' work. They have been refitted and complete new equipment in the laboratories has been added. This department of the College of Agriculture is now in a position to offer as good work as any other institution. Two new members were added to its faculty in addition to the professor in charge.

With the close of the war it is expected that renewed vigor will be put into some of the lines of work of the Agricultural Experiment Station. The Agricultural Extension Division has grown rapidly during the past year. The emergency appropriation made by the Federal Government has supplanted funds appropriated by states and counties to a sufficient extent to employ enough agents to cover practically all agricultural sections of the State.

Department of Farm Engineering

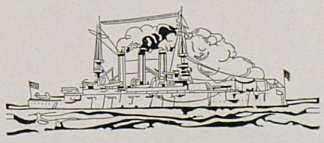

The Department of Farm Engineering will offer five very useful courses: farm machinery, farm motors, farm construction, land measurement and land drainage, and home conveniences.

Department of Public Service Laboratories

The Department of Public Service Laboratories, of which Mr. La Bach is director, is organized so that the Experiment Station has charge of all laboratory examinations and analysis for the State Board of Health. The department is a potent factor in promoting the health and wellbeing of the State.

Department of Home Economics

The Department of Home Economics is well-established in its new quarters in the Agricultural Building. The laboratories are well-equipped, the offices and practice dining room comfortably and attractively furnished. A practice cottage is maintained where senior girls live for a month and keep house under the direction of an instructor. Two cafeterias have been established on the campus, which furnish the students in the department with training in cafeteria management. They have been very popular. All Home Economics work in the Model School is under the supervision of the department. Every girl taking the Smith-Hughes teachers' training course is given excellent practice teaching training here.

Library

THE University Library has expanded in usefulness during the collegiate year 1918-19. With an increased income, there has been made possible considerable growth in the number of bound volumes and other working material, and—what was greatly needed—the staff has more than doubled in size. The librarian now has two full-time assistants and three student assistants. Miss Mary Allen is head cataloger, and Pearl A. Bastin (U. of K. '16), is desk reference assistant. Margaret Tuttle, '19, Vivian DeLaine and Ora Lee Jones have been student assistants. With this staff of energetic workers, the library is giving better and more service than ever before.

Alumni Greeting

TO the Class of 1919 the Alumni of the University of Kentucky extends cordial greetings with hearty wishes that its members will add strength to the chain already extending from 1858, when the first class was graduated, to the present time.

Reference to the strength of the Alumni gives rise to the hope that each year's graduates will become active, earnest Alumni, joining, or rather starting magnificent movements for the good of their Alma Mater and seeing the undertakings through to the finish.

Never in the history of the University did an outgoing class have opportunity to ally itself with the institution at a more progressive period. As much of the future of the University depends on the support the Alumni give it as on any other. On the roll of the Alumni of the University of Kentucky are names of leaders in science, art, law, agriculture, engineering and social service and it is hoped that names of members of the Class of 1919 will not only be on the list, but pointed to with pride because of special and outstanding attainments.

Old graduates invite you to become members of the Alumni Association of the University of Kentucky, and they invite you to join the organization the day you receive the degree entitling you the privileges so that not a single day will pass without the full honor being yours that is due the finished product of an institutions whose reputation and standing is so assured. Make it unanimous, Class of 1919, and support the institution that has taught you to live and serve, in the most effective way. Be active Alumni, support the policy of advancement and identify yourself with the State's best investment—its University.

Senior Class

FREDERICK PAUL ANDERSON, JR., B.M.E. . . . . Lexington

Sigma Chi; Westinghouse Society; Vice-President '17, Secretary '18; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E.; Yellow Dog; Tennis Team '16, '17, '18, '19; S. N. T. C.; Lexington High Club; State Golf Champion '17; Winner Bluegrass Tournament Doubles '17.

"Little Paul," although he is the son of the Dean, is the best liked fellow of the Senior Mechanicals. A game has never been known to exist within the realms of Mechanical Hall that he has not been connected with. From the playing of tennis and golf to the handling of the "planimeter" his skill excells that of his colleagues. His ever-smiling countenance and pleasing personality have won him many friends, and we feel certain that he will make a name for himself as his forbears have. No, he is not a woman hater, as we all know, but his attentions are centered on just one member of the fairer sex.

ROBERT SAMUEL ARNOLD, B.M.E. . . . . Paint Lick

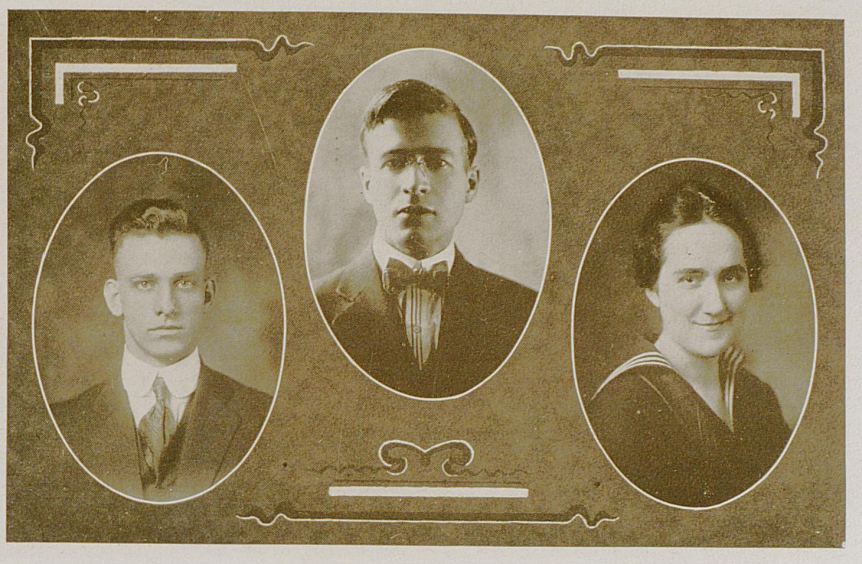

Kappa Sigma; Mystic Thirteen; Edison-Joule Council '15-'16; Westinghouse Society '17, '18, '19; Pan-Hellenic Council; First Sergeant S. N. T. C. Naval Aviation; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Tau Beta Kake; Yellow Dog.

Everybody likes Bob, and the "sunshine of his smile" has made him quite a favorite with the ladies, even if he is from Paint Lick. "Patt" Hall is his favorite loafing place, and after the toils of the day are done his beaming countenance can be seen scanning the corridors for any of the fair damsels upon whom he vents his siren-like charm. He has soared so often into the realm of bliss that soaring became his hobby and he entered into the aviation branch of the Navy. Unable to find there the happiness he so desired he returned to the University to once more rush the ladies, and, incidentally, to receive his degree.

CECIL NORMAN BATSEL, B.M.E . . . . . Fulton

Kentucky Mining Society.

The farmer lad with mining aspirations. May he be as successful with his mining projects as he has been in his conquest of one Mary. Cecil is undoubtedly the best man in the Senior Mining Class, and the best scout in the whole school.

Senior Class

WALTER SCOTT BAUGH, B.M.E. . . . . London

Varsity Football '17, '18; Glee Club '16, '17; President Westinghouse Society '17-'18; Tau Beta Pi; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E. '19; Yellow Dog '19; U. S. N. R. F.; Company Commander S. N. T. C. '19.

It is a historical fact that great men hail from small places, and so it is with "Plumber." He comes from London, but with his vast store of engineering knowledge and his gridiron ability, he might make a town of it yet. So far as we know, the rustle of silk and damask have held no charm for him, but it is whispered about Mechanical Hall that there is a bonnie lassie back home to whom he renders devotion. He is a hard worker and his steadfastness of purpose has made him a great favorite and it was just a trick of fate that kept him from being class president.

LOUIS HENRY BAUER, B.M.E. . . . . Louisville

Edison Joule; Westinghouse; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E.

"Common Beer," as we love to call him, comes from Louisville, and is a man of whom she should be justly proud. He seems to take every one seriously but himself, but you never can tell. Louis is in love as is seen by the books he reads and the far-away look that so often comes into his eyes.

MARY E. BEALL, A.B. . . . . Mt. Sterling

Alpha Gamma Delta; Strollers '18, '19; Y. W. C. A. '17, '18, '19; Cabinet '18; Philosophian '18, '19; Horace Mann '18, '19; Pan-Hellenic '18; Mathematics Club; Staff and Crown.

Mary is one of those rare co-eds who has a positively masculine intelligence in math and kindred subjects. During her years at the University, she has certainly upset the tradition that these subjects could be really managed only by the superior sex. Mary has made herself famous for her Eight Week Club work. Her abilities have won her the admiration and her sweetness the friendship of all.

Senior Class

FRANK HOMER BELL, B.S. . . . . Madisonville

Alpha Chi Sigma.

The sunny lad from Madisonville has always been a bright rift in the densest cloud of laboratory fumes. A favorite among his associates, and a prominent figure in all University affairs, we warn the big jobs to beware of his coming.

TRICE MORTON BELL, B.M.E. . . . . Madisonville

Westinghouse Society '16, '17, '18; A. I. E. E. '19; Vice-President A. S. M. E. '19.

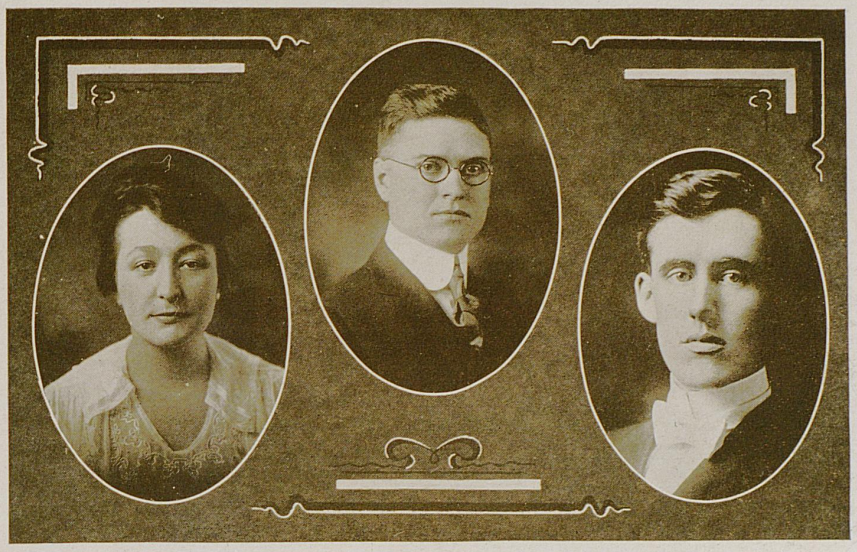

Trice, the crutch of E. A. Lillard and the man from whom the Tau Beta Pi men copy their problems, is the pride of Western Kentucky. He comes from Madisonville, a suburb of Earlington, "God's country," of Kentucky. Patterson Hall knows him not, which is its misfortune.

EDNA K. BERKELE, A.B. . . . . Lancaster

Kappa Delta; Strollers; Cast, "Mice and Men"; Y. W. C. A.; Secretary of Senior Class; Pan-Hellenic '18, '19; Mathematics Club.

A mathematical brain guides her feet, so Edna can go through the mazes of the shimmie-shi-wabble with a mathematical exactness which would delight the heart of "J. Mort." In spare moments she records the momentous events of '19, or strolls with the Strollers—and others.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

ALMA LOUISE BOLSER, A.B. . . . . Dayton

President Philosophian '15; Winner Horace Mann Barker Prize '15; Philosophian Play '15, '18, '19; Glee Club '17, '18, '19; Y. W. C. A. '17-'18; Social Service Committee '19; Student Assistant Batterson Hall '17, '18, '19; Proctor-Student Government '19; Strollers.

As a king would feel after losing his domain, so must Alma feel now that the Student Government has superceded her as the official "shusher" of Patt Hall. At first glance cynical and cold, yet in reality a warm friend to a chosen few, she has that which carries a woman far in the world of today—poise and self-confidence.

I. A. BOWLES, A.B. . . . . Tyner

Republican Club; Union Literary Society; History Club; Band; Orchestra; Three years at Berea.

Although spending but one year at the University, this Berea recruit has been identified with more activities of the University than the average four-year student.

E. E. BRATCHER, A.B. . . . . Caneyville

Charter Member Horace Mann; Smith-Hughes Representative.

Bratcher, a member of the "Old Guard" in the "good old days" of the University, returned to us this semester to get his A.B. degree preparatory to his extensive work in the Smith-Hughes vocational training. "E. E." hails from Grayson county, Kentucky, where for several years he was engaged in molding the minds of the youths of that section.

Senior Class

LOIS REALE BROWN, B.S. . . . . Providence

Kappa Delta; Philosophian; Cast "Kentucky Belle"; Secretary Home Economics Club '15, '16; Vice-President Home Economics Club '17, '18; Y. W. C. A.

The Class of 1919 borrowed Lois from the Class of '18 and feels that it has gained one of its most valuable members thereby. Seldom do you find a sweeter girl or one more popular with faculty and students.

JULIA YEOMAN BURBANK, B.S. . . . . Montclair, N. J.

Philosophian Literary Society '16, '17, '18, '19; H. E. Editor on Rural Kentuckian '18, '19; Glee Club '17, '18, '19; Y. W. C. A.; Home Economics Club '18, '19.

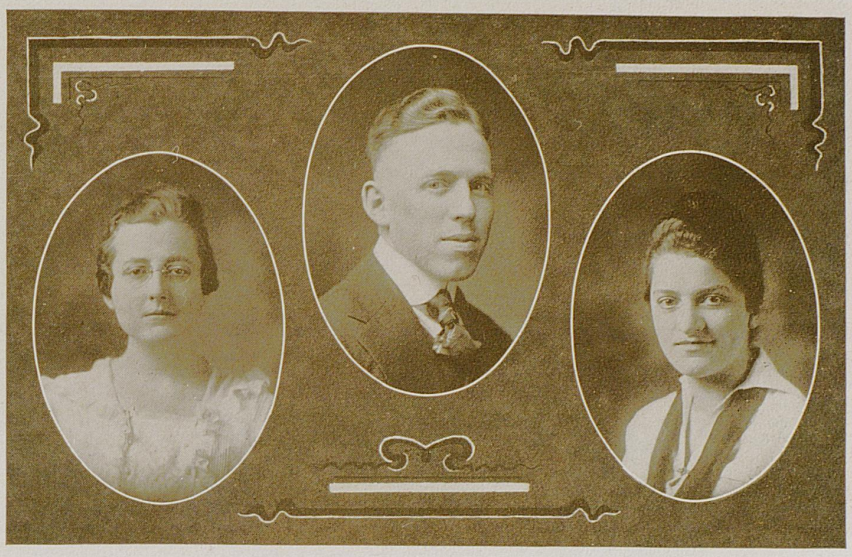

To Julia, the old adage, "to know her is to love her," may well be applied. She has the solid sort of virtues that count for the most in the long run and makes her a valuable member of the class. Julia is sure to win success in any field of work she undertakes for the verdict of those who know her is "quiet but wonderfully capable."

RUTH HOWARD CARDWELL, A.B. . . . . Shelbyville

Alpha Gamma Delta; Y. W. C. A.; Philosophian '17, '18; Horace Mann '17, '18; Glee Club '17; Strollers '17, '18, '19.

"We gazed and gazed and still the wonder grew
That one small head could carry all she knew."

Ruth's talents lie especially in her linguistic ability, making her a source of delight to all the modern language profs. We long for Ruth's wit, then we could better tell you how dearly she loved philosophy and "Tige."

Senior Class

BESSIE TAUL CONKWRIGHT, A.B. . . . . Winchester

Kernel Staff '18; History Club; Secretary-Treasurer Democratic Club.

Competent and independent, "Bessie Taul" is proof that "the modern woman" is not an idle phrase. Her professors remember her for her direct thinking, and her classmates for the ease and assurance with which she held her own against all comers in the race for the scholastic supremacy. Already a journalist of ability and a historian of some note, she is a member of which the Class of 1919 may well be proud.

JOHN THORNTON CONNELL, A.B. . . . . Paris

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Alpha Delta Sigma; Editor-in-Chief "Kentucky Kernel" '17-'18, '18-'19; Assistant Editor '17; Athletic Editor 1919 Kentuckian; Member Kernel Board '18.

Although Thornton has lost the "O" out of his name, he still retains much that shows whence his emanation. The fact that he is the greenest thing on the campus—we mean on St. Patrick's Day—and also that he displays a natural affinity towards the "Boss" down in the Journalism Department, leads us to suspect that he is Irish, too. Thornton lacks the usual loquacity of those famous politicians, however, but when it comes to slinging the ink on editorials, even "Marse Henry" ain't in the race.

MARIE COLLINS, A.B. . . . . North Middletown

Delta Delta Delta; Staff and Crown; Y. W. C. A.; Horace Mann; Strollers; Glee Club.

If Marie changes her profession as often as she changes her major she will indeed benefit many lines of endeavor by her efforts. But we feel sure that Red Cross work will be the final choice, and we have a prophetic feeling that she is the future Jane Addams of our class. Marie's list of achievements covers many fields of activity, but we will remember her best perhaps as one of the most popular and attractive of our "sweet Kentucky ladies."

Senior Class

SARAH MILDRED COLLINS, B.S. . . . . North Middletown

Kappa Kappa Gamma; Pan-Hellenic Council '16, '17; Class Vice-President '17-'18; Y. W. C. A.; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet '16, '17; Blue Ridge Delegate '16; Horace Mann Society; Strollers; Home Economics Club; Glee Club.

"Pisgy" is the junior member of the Collins firm that has put North Middletown on the map. She is an ardent exponent of the "balanced ration," a true friend to all, a loyal college girl.

GROVER HOWARD CREECH, B.S. . . . . Pineville

Sigma Nu; Mystic Thirteen; Strollers; Cast "Lion and Mouse" '17, "Mice and Men" '18, Treasurer '17, President '18, Stage Manager '19; Glee Club '16-'17; Drum Major '17-'18; Captain Band '19; Snap Shot Editor 1919 Kentuckian; Agricultural Society; Mountain Club.

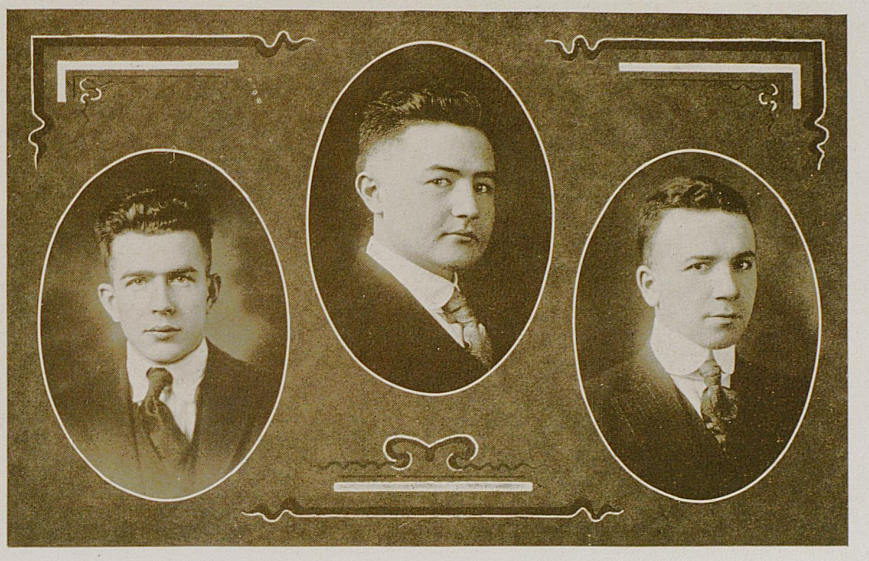

"Stroller Screech" is the Nat Goodwin—minus the wives—of the class. We wonder why he is going to be a farmer; he has a big heart, plenty of ability and a way which has won him a large number of lasting friends. Lexington won't seem the same without him.

WILLIAM RUSSELL DAVID, B.M.E. . . . . Lexington

Tau Beta Kake; A. S. M. E., President '18-'19; Senior Class Treasurer; A. I. E. E.; Westinghouse Society '16-'17; Treasurer '18; Cadet Second Lieutenant '17-'18, Captain '18-'19; S. A. T. C.; R. O. T. C.; Morton Club '16, '17, '18, '19.

"She is a winsome wee thing,
She is a handsome wee thing,
She is a bonnie wee thing,
This sweet little wife of mine."

Russell is a product of Lexington, and some day she will be justly proud of him if nothing interferes. Notice the "if" clause. His first two years at the University were womanless, but at the close of the third year he took unto himself a wife. This added burden, though small, did not impede his progress but rather added impetus to his efforts. He is a good engineer and with his high ideals, bright disposition and true sense of humor we cannot but predict a bright and glorious future. His character deserves the unpretentious truth and if it is easy to write about those about whom many good things may be said, "Russ" will give little trouble.

Senior Class

CARL HENRY DENKER, LL.B. . . . . Paducah

Henry Clay Law Debating Team '18; Attorney-General Patterson Literary Society '19.

"Midnight shout and revelry
Tipsy dance and jollity."

Carl has a famous motto and he is following it to the letter. However, he is a good student and an orator of much renown. U. K. will lose in him a good student, a deep thinker and a logical legal mind.

CHARLES FREDERICK DE MEY . . . . . Louisville

Tau Beta Pi; Cadet First Lieutenant '17-'18; Cadet Captain '19; R. O. T. C.; Louisville Club; Westinghouse Society '15, '16, '17, '18; Second Lieutenant Infantry, Personnel Division, U. S. A. '18; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Yellow Dog.

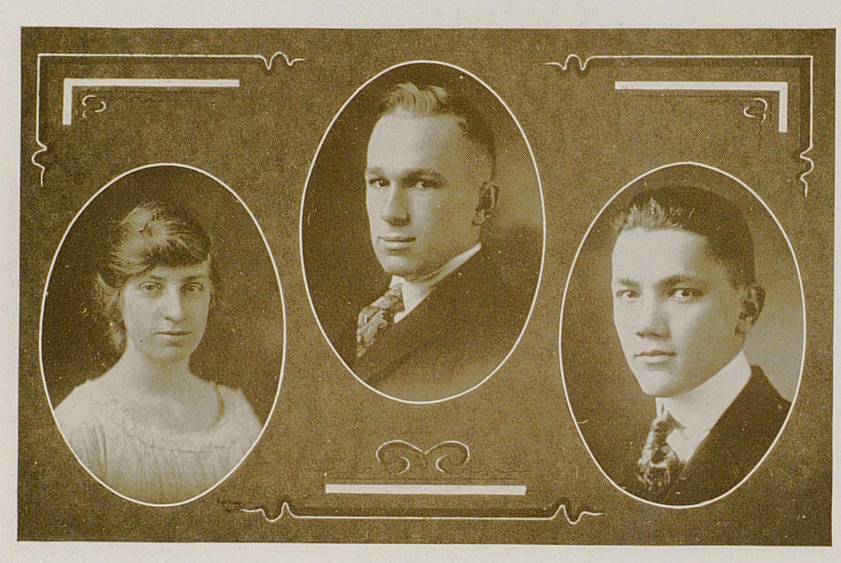

"A wise old owl sat on an oak,
The more he heard the less he spoke,
The less he spoke the more he heard,
And he is a fellow like that old bird."

Why "Fritz" decided to take engineering instead of philosophy has been a question mark to the fellows of Mechanical Hall. Although not exactly a woman hater, he prefers the society of the fellows and especially those of a quiet nature. It is thought by all that when "Fritz" leaves these ivy-colored walls that have so long been his retreat from the world, and enters the world of industry that all mankind will be astonished with his vast store of knowledge, he has so patiently and laboriously gathered. "Fritz" is an all-round good fellow, liked by all who know him and we cannot help but predict a bright and glorious future for him. We wish him success in his personal affairs in Knoxville.

RUBY KARL DIAMOND, B.C.E. . . . . Louisville

Sigma Alpha Mu; Transit '16-'17; Brooks Engineering Society '16, '17.

The only thing we have against Ruby is that he comes from Louisville. Ruby is a sturdy, quiet, industrious boy, never seeking the limelight but contented to do his duty. He is not much inclined to "kidding" and when the "Thermo Special" is published the recitation is given over to him and "Son." He loves the society of the fairer sex, but as yet he has not tied himself down to one girl. We predict unlimited success for him in the financial world.

Senior Class

RUTH MONTGOMERY DUCKWALL, B.S. . . . . Louisville

Y. W. C. A. Secretary '17, '18, Vice-President '18, '19; Delegate to Student Volunteer Conference at Berea; Delegate to Blue Ridge Student Conference; Agricultural Society, Secretary '17-'18, Corresponding Secretary '18-'19; Editor-in-Chief Rural Kentuckian; Philosophian, Secretary '17, President '18; Senior Representative Student Government Council; Staff and Crown.

Ruth had intentions of being a farmer before she heard that someone from France had returned. We haven't asked her about it lately. Just a glance at her accomplishments tell that she is a student, and in many activities she will be missed by both faculty and students.

RICHARD LINDSEY DUNCAN, B.S. . . . . La Grange

Alpha Tau Omega; Mystic Thirteen; Lamp and Cross; Union Literary Society; Declamatory Contest '15, '16, Treasurer '17, '18; Agricultural Society; Glee Club; Strollers; Y. M. C. A., Vice-President '17-'18, President '18,'19; Football Manager '18-'19; Delegate Blue Ridge Student Conference '18; Delegate Northfield Conference '17; Business Manager Rural Kentuckian '18-'19; Associate Editor Kentuckian '18-'19.

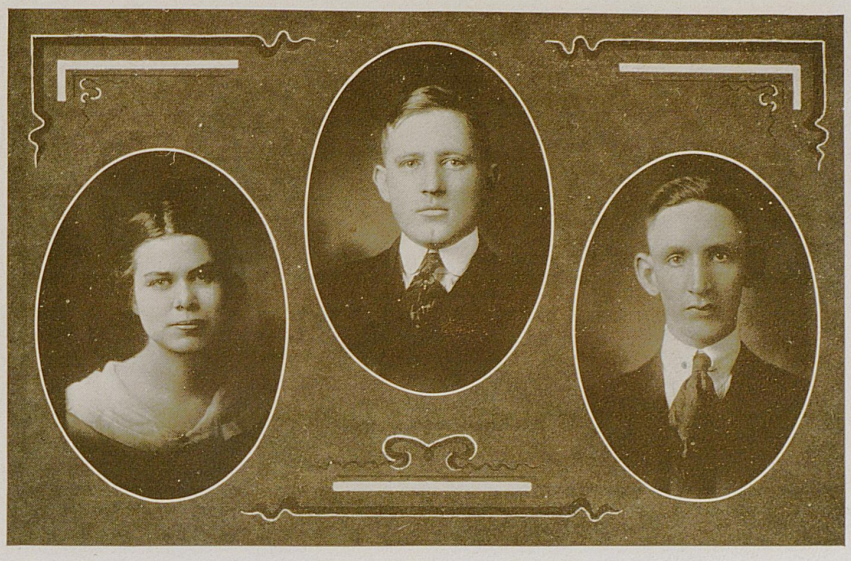

While still in Freshman Botany Dick discovered that he was properly classified as belonging to the genus "bantum," species "rooster." Yes, he is small in stature, but like Napoleon, he has done great things, as the huge line of achievements above testifies. In fact, when one considers that he has a longer list of achievements than any other man in the class, it is no wonder that the exertion of carrying them around has prevented his growing. His pleasures are not wine, women and song, as yours or mine might be; but rather, "Y," Betty and Chem.

DAVID RUSSELL DUDLEY, B.M.E. . . . . Earlington

Pi Kappa Alpha; Class Treasurer '17-'18; Westinghouse Society; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.

"Dave" hails from Earlington, if anybody knows where that great city is. At least he knows where it is and that is enough. Dave is a conscientious worker through the week, but no studies ever interrupted his Sunday afternoon dates. Dave is a good engineer, but somehow he often forgets his profession in the presence of —— bank, and takes a serious view of his future. He has his good qualities, too, when some of the fellows are busted. With his congenial personality and his true sense of duty we expect him to make a success in the industrial world.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

ELEANOR EAKER, A.B. . . . . Princeton

Y. W. C. A.; Philosophian; Horace Mann Literary Society; Glee Club; Library Club, Secretary and Treasurer '18-'19.

We never think of this serious minded maiden without thinking of the word conscientious. It would be a much better world if all of us were as faithful to our duty as Eleanor. She is one of the few who really feel "called of God" to the noble profession of teaching school. We predict that her enthusiasm and unselfishness will make her an unqualified success in her chosen work.

EUGENE ALLEN EDMONDS, B.M.E. . . . . Winchester

A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Charter Member Thomas Jefferson Society; Edison-Joule Society; Union Literary Society.

Eugene is another one of those men who fall a victim to the wiles of women. Eugene, like the other married men of our class, confines most of his attention on his studies and neglects the frivolous things of school life. He is a hard worker and when he enters the mechanical world we know that his success will be unlimited, especially if he enters the "boiler manufacturing industry."

FOSTER FLOYD ELLIOTT, B.S. . . . . Eubank

Alpha Zeta; Associate Editor Rural Kentuckian '17-'18, resigned; Editor-in-Chief '18-'19; President Masonic Club '18-'19; Agricultural Society.

"Buck" is our walking dictionary and keeps us thinking when we talk to him. He once heard a great orator speak and is constantly reminding us of this other great man's stream of eloquence. "Buck" has charmed the profs not only by his convincing line, but by the genuineness of his character and ability.

Senior Class

JOSEPH MICHAEL EYLE, B.M.E. . . . . Lexington

Westinghouse Society, Vice-President '18; A. I. E. E. and A. S. M. E.; Yellow Dogs; Morton Club; Catholic Club.

"Joe" is of Welsh descent. Having spent most of his life on a farm and seeing the hardships of rural life he decided to take engineering. It has been suggested by many that the reason Joe took engineering was to learn methods of utilizing bailing wire. Joe did not make any noise for three years and he has made less the last year. Although not exactly a woman hater, Joe is never seen with any members of the opposite sex. However, we know that some day when some sweet little "Welsh" girl happens around, that Cupid will not let Joe escape his arrows.

ELIZABETH FEATHERSTON, A.B. . . . . Lexington

Strollers; Lexington High School Club; Girls' Glee Club '16-'17.

Elizabeth is one of our Lexington girls whose heart has never been on the campus. She has safely weathered the most dangerous of the profs—even some, who with the hero of the Marne have as their slogan, "They shall not pass!"

OLA LOGAN FIGG, A.B. . . . . Shelbyville

President Romance Language Club '19; Y. W. C. A.; Vice-President Student Government Council and Chairman of Patterson Hall; Glee Club.

Conscientious, capable, complimentary, everybody's confidante, everybody's chum; but there is not a single "C" in Logan's scholarship record. Although she has been here only two years, as President of the Romance Language Club, Vice-President of the Student Government Council, and a prominent member of every leading activity on the campus, she holds a place at Patterson Hall and in the University which will be difficult to fill next year.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

GILBERT FRANKEL, B.M.E. . . . . Louisville

Sigma Alpha Mu; Tau Beta Pi; Manager Baseball '19; Westinghouse Society, Treasurer '16-'17; Louisville Club, Vice-President '18; A. I. E. E. and A. S. M. E. '19; Yellow Dog.

"Gibbie," better known to the Freshmen as "Prof," hails from Louisville, the center of the universe. Although he spends most of his time attracting the women, he sometimes finds time to set up the crowd. "Gibbie" is much sought after by L. K. "Butch," and Ethel, but his whereabouts are seldom known. He has been accused of being in love. Everybody likes Gibbie.

ELI BAERB FRIEDMAN, B.S. . . . . Paris

Sigma Alpha Mu; Alpha Chi Sigma.

"Doctor Friedman" camps weekly at Paris. Coming to U. K. from the University of Cincinnati, he took Chemistry and "Mighty." The other chemists got "took." From his record here, we prophesy for him a brilliant future.

EFFIE LEE GENTRY, B.E. . . . . Prentiss

Home Economics Club '16-'17, Secretary '17; Horace Mann; Y. W. C. A.

Effie is a typical Home Ec major, and lucky will be the institution that adds her trained services to its facurty. She has been far too busy pulling down A's to have absorbed much of the limelight rays, but in her own unassuming manner has made a place in the University that no one else can fill.

Senior Class

MILDRED HAZEN GRAHAM, A.B. . . . . Louisville

Alpha Xi Delta; Strollers; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet '16, '17, '18, '19, Vice-President '18, President '19; Blue Ridge Delegate '16, '18; Student Volunteer Delegate '17; Pan-Hellenic '16-'17; Kernel Staff '16, '17, '18, '19; Glee Club '17, '18, '19; English Club, President '18; Stroller Prize Skit '16; Senior Class Prophet '19; Y. W. C. A. Delegate to Chicago '19; Co-Editor Kernel '18, '19; President Student Government '19; Staff and Crown.

Mildred has had her hands full since she has been at the University settling the problems of the world with the various members of the faculty who are also interested along that line, and settling the problems of the girls of Patt Hall almost alone and unaided. Many professors have realized through Mildred Bobbie Burns' wish: "To see themselves as ithers see them." However, her frankness has never interfered with the unending march of A's cross her erport cards. But most of all Mildred will go down in the history of the University for her untiring efforts to introduce Student Government at Patterson Hall.

VIRGINIA TAYLOR GRAHAM, A.B. . . . . Lexington

English Club; Kentuckian Staff '19.

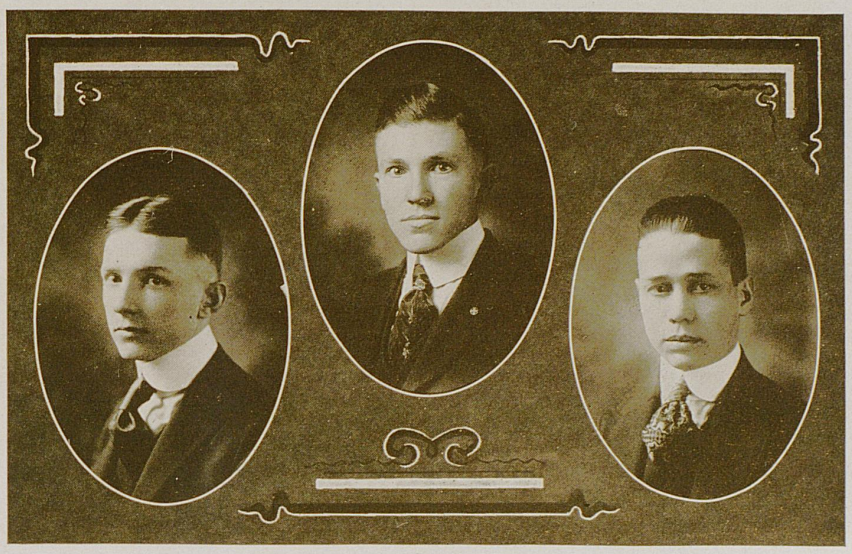

Virginia's classmates have marveled for four years at the ease and indifference with which she overcomes the natural antipathy of all professors against giving "A's." All things are alike to her and none of them are even hard enough to call for an effort. Her modesty excells her brilliance, so few of us have come to know her well; but we all expect to see her rise to dizzy heights in whatever line of endeavor she undertakes.

HERBERT HORTON GREENE, LL.B. . . . . Bruin

Scholarship Prize Winner Law Department '18; First Lieutenant Cadet Corps; Patterson Literary Society; Henry Clay Law Society.

Herb is a quiet, unassuming lad who says little but does much. The fact that he was the best Junior in the Law Department speaks for itself. We can assure you that "Herb" will acquit himself well wherever he may go.

WALLACE '20

Senior Class

ALEXANDER D. HALL, B.M.E. . . . . Lexington

Sigma Alpha Epsilon; Westinghouse Society, President '16; Class President '18; Tau Beta Pi; Lamp and Cross; Lexington High School Club; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E. President '19.

"Handbook" Hall is a good student and possesses a quick mind. These qualities make him the best man in the Senior Mechanical Class. He is a general favorite with his classmates, in spite of his sarcasm and his attempts at reforming some of the wayward members of the class. Alex is a Lexington man, red headed, small of stature, but he loves one smaller still.

CARSIE HAMMONDS, B.S. . . . . Russell Springs

Alpha Zeta.

When the Ags want to find out anything they go to Carsie. In his work he has been very thorough. He is married, has a little home of his own and expects to be a teacher of agriculture some day. The young farmers of the State could not be in better hands than his.

RAYMOND W. HANSON, B.C.E. . . . . Germantown

Delta Chi; Tau Beta Kake; Brooks Society of Civil Engineers; U. S. Air Service, A. E. F.

Hanson is one of those fortunate members of our class who has seen French women just as they are in Paris. We don't see him rushing "Patt Hall" since he has returned, and we firmly believe that he prefers French to American girls. Raymond is liked by all the engineers and we feel sure that had he returned sooner he would have been pledged a "Yellow Dog." We know that the business world had bright prospects for him.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

ADA LOUISE HARDESTY, A.B. . . . . Fort Thomas

Alpha Gamma Delta; Strollers; Horace Mann; Philosophian; Glee Club; University Tennis Club; Patterson Hall Tennis Club, President '16, '17, '18; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet '17.

"Better late than never" is the adage that describes our titian-haired Ada with the R. S. V. P. eyes, which fascinate faculty, students and lieutenants alike. If you want to make her happy, just tell her she has a special delivery or a Western Union. Her talents are many and varied. She may be called a tennis shark, the Patt Hall pianist, and in Doctor Cornell's words, a regular dynamo.

SARAH CALDWELL HARBISON, B.S. . . . . Shelbyville

Chi Omega; Home Economics Club; Y. W. C. A.; Glee Club '16, '17; Student Government Council '19.

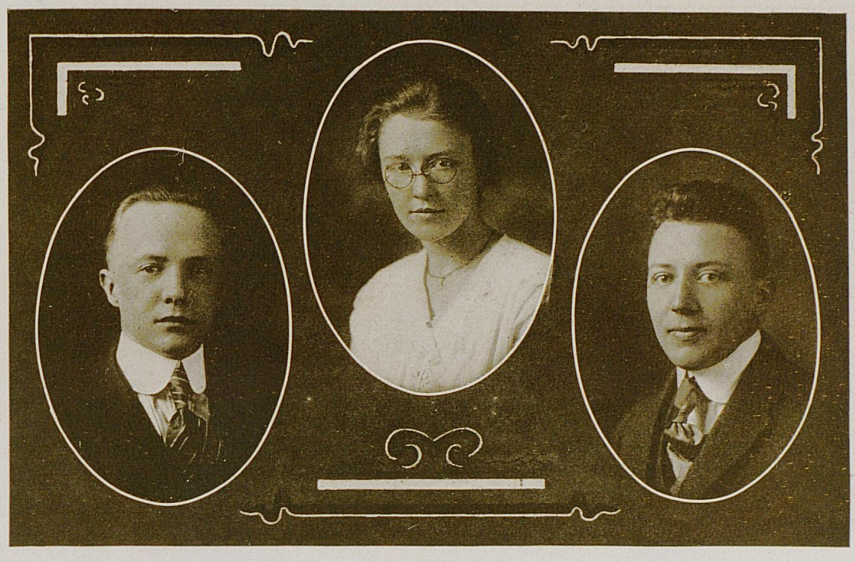

Quiet, reserved, modest! The very sweetness of her disposition and her gentleness withal is a charm. Sarah has always done her work in the class room well and is now rewarded with a good record at the end of her course. She is a loyal student. When she goes out into the world to fill her place she will not clamor for position but as she has done in her school life will do quietly and sincerely the work that lies ahead.

LILLIAN ELLA HAYDON, A.B. . . . . Lexington

Alpha Gamma Delta; Basketball (Varsity) '16, '17, '18, '19; Manager '17; Captain '19; Lexington High School Club; Library Club.

When Lillian first started playing basketball in her Freshman year she was known as "Bill"; but now, when a Senior, with her two "K" sweaters, she has won another name—that of "Captain." Bill's affections are not centered in Lexington alone, for there are times when she feels as if she must pay a flying trip to Louisville. We wonder if the oratory of a lawyer and the fascination of a uniform do not make a combination that is too strong to resist.

WALLACE '20

Senior Class

CECIL H. HEAVRIN, LL.B. . . . . Owensboro

Alpha Sigma Phi; Henry Clay Law Society; Strollers; Owensboro Club; T. K. B.; Band '17, '18; Quarter '18.

"Ephus" is a regular lady-killer. His melodious voice not alone placed him on the University quartet, but won for him an indelible spot in the hearts of the belles of the Bluegrass.

VENETA THOMAS HORLACHER, A.B. . . . . Lexington

B. S. Purdue '18; Honors achieved at Purdue: Glee Club; Girls' Club; Eurodelphian Literary Society, President '17-'18; Treasurer '18; Little Theater Committee '18; Omicron Nu '18.

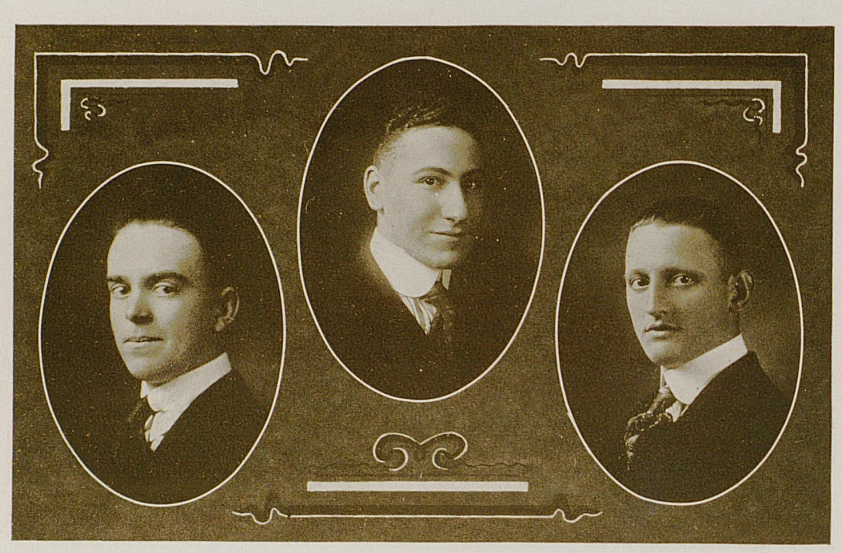

Mrs. Horlacher came to us with a formidable list of achievements from Purdue. Although she has been with us only a short time we have already learned to appreciate her brilliance. We have all been amazed at the ease with which she takes a degree while presiding over hearth and home in the traditional womanly way.

FREDERICK M. JACKSON, A.B. . . . . Versailles

Alpha Delta Sigma; Kernel Staff '16, '17, Feature Editor '18, '19; Strollers, Cast "Mice and Men," Publicity Agent Strollers '19; Business Manager 1919 Kentuckian. .

"Freddy" is an editor, Stroller, reporter, Marine, and lots of other things besides being an admirer of universal feminity. Of course he has his choice. This lad harks from Versailles, a suburb of Lexington, and has carved his niche in the campus with his manifest polish and extreme chivalry, coupled with an ability in studies that almost rivalled that of certain studious girls. His club was the Journalisms rooms and his warmest friends are there. If Freddy does go to Columbia, he will be known as the "lad from Kentucky." In exaggerated girlish diction, some Freshmen have described Freddie as sweet.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

CHARLES FRANKLIN JOHNSON, B.C.E. . . . . Mayfield

Kappa Sigma; Tau Beta Pi; Brooks Society of Civil Engineers '16, '17, '18, '19; Lamp and Cross.

Johnson worked for the first three years of his University life until he won the Tau Beta Pi honors and since then he has just rested on his laurels. We even see him hanging around Patt Hall and taking afternoon strolls. He also takes delight in describing all sorts of mathematical figures with ivory balls.

ALVIN KOHN, B.M.E. . . . . Louisville

Sigma Alpha Mu; Tau Beta Pi; Track Team '17; Baseball '18-'19; Vice-President A. I. E. E. '19; A. S. M. E.; Westinghouse Society; Louisville Club; U. S. Navy; Tau Beta Kake; Yellow Dog; Athletic Association '19.

Al comes from Louisville, though you would not guess it ,for he is agreeably different. Perhaps this is because he obtained his preparatory education at "Louisville High" instead of "Manual." Athletics is his hobby, and you will notice from his achievements that he has fooled "Daddy" more than once. He is not exactly a ladies' man but still he does not hate them.

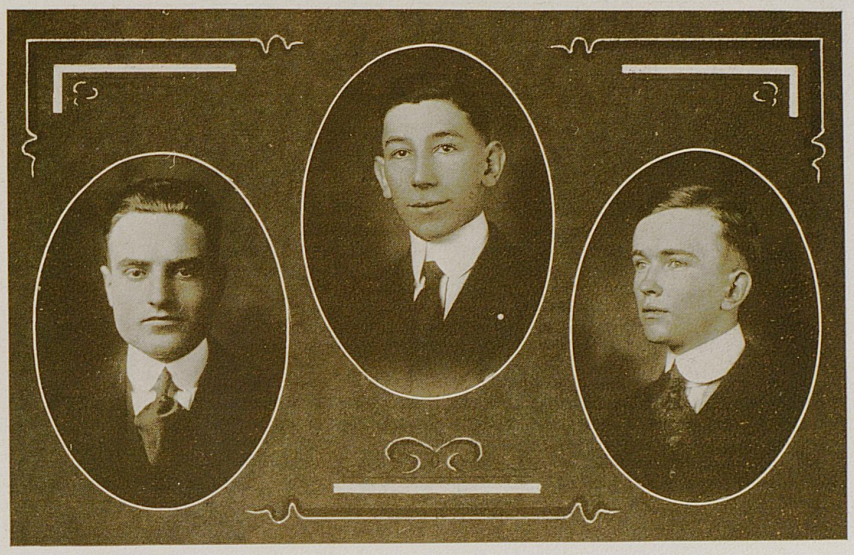

WILLIAM J. KALLBRIER, LL.B. . . . . Pewee Valley

Alpha Sigma Phi; Tau Kappa Alpha; Law Debating Team '16; Henry Clay Oratorical Winner '17; Strollers; Prize Winner Kentucky Law Journal; President Patterson Literary Society '19.

"Friendship, mysterious cement of the soul;
Sweet'ner of life; and solder of society."

"Nuf-sed." Judge's achievements readily speak for his capability, and this, together with his ambition and self-confidence, will go to make him the "young" candidate for the bench. A splendid orator, lawyer and dancer, we predict success in all.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

EVERETT EDWARD KELLY, A.B. . . . . Whitesville

Alpha Sigma Phi; Class Treasurer, '15-'16; Football, '18; Class Historian, '18-'19; Union Literary Society; History Club; Horace Mann; Democratic Club; Owensboro.

Old E. E. comes from a noted family of smart people; whether he lives up to the family reputation we will not say. He "manages" well in his class; he is very versatile, being a football performer of good standing.

JOHN JULIAN LEMAN, B.M.E. . . . . Pineville

Sigma Alpha Mu; A. S. M. E.; Secretary A. I. E. E.; Cadet First Lieutenant; Westinghouse Society; Kernel Staff, '17-'18; Mountain Club; Democratic Club; Lamed Pe; Kentuckian Staff; Glee Club, '16-'17-'18-'19; Yellow Dog; Tau Beta Kake.

John possesses a superabundance of loquacity and does, when anyone will listen, cover a scarcity of ideas with a multiplicity of words. John has not ceased talking for three long years and Mechanical Hall will certainly deserve a rest she will receive when he issues forth with his degree. John's favorite pastime is dictating letters and selling oil lands, and we wish merely to suggest that he provide himself with a real live wide-awake secretary who can help him handle the growing business. John is the money man of the Mechs, and we believe that in the near future he will be returning to double the University endowment. As far as ladies are concerned he loves them all and none in particular.

EUGENE ALLEN LILLARD, B.M.E. . . . . Versailles

Sigma Chi; Westinghouse Society; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E.; R. O. T. C.; S. A. T. C.

"Tinnie," short for tin angel, hails from Versailles, the home of fox-trotting and crapshooting. "Son" started his education in a girl's school, therefore his ladylike manners. He is the gentlest when he is gentle, but watch him, for he is roughest when he is rough. The ladies are his hobby, and variety his motto. Good nature is his virtue, and studying a habit he must have contracted early in his life and has not been able to get away from. If he hates anything at all it is a civil engineer.

WALLACE '20.

AUSTIN PAGE LILLY, B.S. . . . . Richmond

Alpha Xi Delta; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '16-'17-'18-'19; Secretary, '18-'19; Delegate Blue Ridge Conference, '17; Pan-Hellenic Council, '16-'17, '17-'18; Philosophian Secretary, '17-'18; Home Economics Club, President '18-'19; Home Economics, Editor Rural Kentuckian '17-'18; Kernel Staff '18-'19; Strollers; Glee Club; Secretary University Red Cross; Class Poet, '18-'19; Staff and Crown.

Austin is one of the most accomplished girls on the campus, and as a booster of all the University activities, she has acquired an astonishing list of achievements. During her spare time, and "when there was nothing else to do," she concentrated upon the attainment of a sufficient numbers of A's to win honor and distinction in the Home Economics Department.

LEE MCCLAIN, A.B. . . . . Bardstown

Kappa Alpha; Alpha Delta Sigma; Class Orator, '18-'19; Strollers. Stage Manager, '18, Business Manager, '19; English Club; Captain Battalion; Lamp and Cross.

Lee has a happy smile, a heavy melodious voice and the most contagious laugh ever heard on the campus. He could laugh with seeming pleasure at some Prof's. jokes. He is a Stroller of no mean ability and can also add the title of lieutenant to his name. Barbers love his beard. He has absolutely refused to allow Farquhar to convince him that he is a blockhead, even continuing his arguments when commanded to "stand up." He is the constant possessor of at least one intense love affair and says, "No Senior is complete without one." "Happy" has a campus full of friends.

LILLIAN FRANCES MCCONNELL, B.S. . . . . Lexington

Morton High School Club.

In her quiet and gentle manners she has made friends with all. She is one of the few to obtain a B.S. degree and we predict for her a success in her pedagogical career.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

JAMES ELLYSON MCCLELLAN, B.M.E. . . . . Springfield

Alpha Sigma Phi; Baseball, '15-'16-'17-'18; Captain Baseball, '18; Edison-Joule Society; Westinghouse Society; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Athletic Association; Tau Beta Kake; U. S. Navy, Naval Aviation.

"Mac" is one of those fellows whom everybody likes. His ever-present smile and happy disposition have made him a favorite of the Senior "Mechs." He is not much of a ladies' man, but still we all think that he is subject to feminine charms and we predict that some day he will fall heir to that inheritance that his colleagues have already attained. Baseball has claimed "Mac's" attention ever since he entered the University, and his efforts along that line were crowned by his being elected captain of the team in 1918.

ELIZABETH MCGOWAN, A.B. . . . . Bagdad.

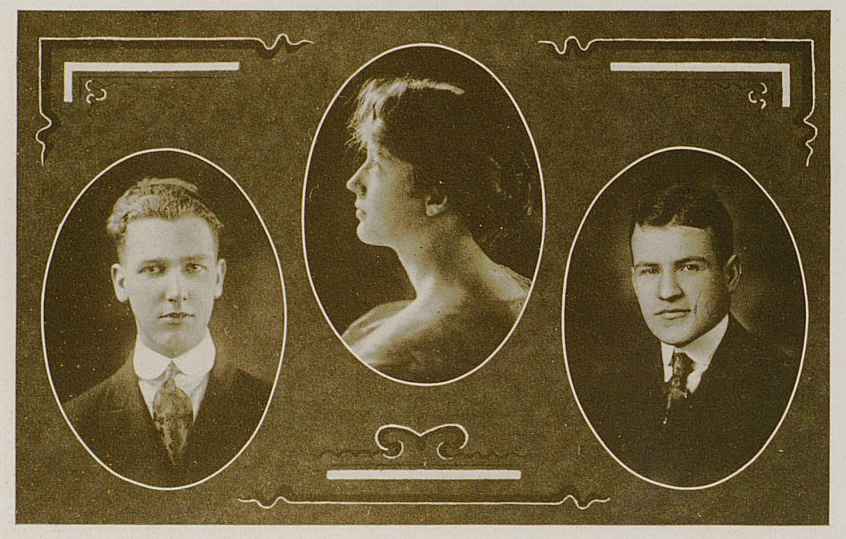

Philosophian Winner Essay Contest, '16; Cast: "Southern Cindrella," "You Never Can Tell"; President, '18-'19; Horace Mann, Treasurer, '16-'17, Secretary, '17-'18, Vice-President, '17-'18; Winner Short Story Contest; Y. W. C. A. Blue Ridge Delegate, '17; Cabinet, '17-'18; Treasurer, '18-'19; Strollers, '18-'19; English Club; Staff and Crown.

Calmly, nonchalantly, Elizabeth strolls into class never less than fifteen minutes late. A few of us hold our breath for a minute, but lo! this demure lady smiles so sweetly that the most stony-hearted of the professors will wonder if he really did hear the whistle blow quite a while before. And as for ability! Ask her professors who have formed the habit of giving her A's and all those who have worked with her in the Y. W. C. A., Horace Mann or those who have seen her presiding over Philosophian meetings, or starring in Philosophian plays.

HARRY EDWARD MADDOX, B.M.E. . . . . Newport

Edison-Joule; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; First Lieutenant, Infantry, U. S. A., 1917.

Harry has the essence of eternal sunshine in his hair and when all dressed up in his military regalia he is some commanding figure. Harry is one of those self-sacrificing few who in their junior year, sacrificed their education in order to answer the appeal of Old Glory. When the armistice was signed he was a first lieutenant of infantry and although military success seemed eminent, he chose to return to the University to complete his course and receive his degree. He is a hard worker and keeps his experiments up.

Senior Class

BEN GORDON MARSH, B.S. . . . . Maysville

Agricultural Society; Strollers, Cast: "Lion and the Mouse," '17; Mystic Thirteen, '16-'17; Sophomore Football Team; Basketball, '16-'17, '18-'19, Varsity, '17-'18.

B. Gordon breathes air long before it gets down to earth. My, how the little girls do like to dance with him, for when he looks down and they look up someone's heart begins to melt. Oh, yes, he is from Maysville, too, and looks after the rest of his fellow townsmen.

ELIZA CLAY MASON, B.S. . . . . Paris

Y. W. C. A. Blue Ridge Delegate, '18; Philosophian Corresponding Secretary, '18-'19; Home Economics Club, Student Government Council, '18-'19.

Capable, clever, witty and sincere, that is Eliza Clay. All her spare moments are spent in the Home Economics Department designing costumes or managing the cafeteria. Her brilliant record as a student would make us predict for her a future equally as bright whether in public or domestic life.

BERNARD MOOSNICK, A.B. . . . . Nicholasville

Patterson Literary Society; Henry Clay Law Society, '18; English Club, '16-'17-'18-'19.

When "Bullneck" arrived four years ago he was exceedingly fresh and decidedly verdant. As the campus and various residents thereof began to get in their influence he became slightly less fresh and a great deal less verdant. After four years the University authorities are not afraid to allow him to represent the school outside. He is a "gnat" on Latin and languages, and sometimes convinced English teachers that he knew their subjects. His ambition is law, and he intends to go on in that study. He claims fame as one of the residents of the Third Division of the Dorm and an expert hurler of water.

Senior Class

HUGH MEGLONE MILTON, B.M.E. . . . . Lexington

Morton Club, '16-'17-'18-'19; Glee Club, '16-'17; Captain R. O. T. C., '17-'18; Adjutant R. O. T. C., Major R. O. T. C., '19; Lieutenant, F. A., U. S. A., '18; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; U. S. F. Association; Westinghouse Society; Tau Beta Kake.

Captain "Hooie" as the girls call him, stands at the head of his class in height. In spite of the handicap, he has one little girl well-trained in the terpsichorean art. Hugh is the military man of the "Mechs," and when sent to Fort Sheridan he showed what engineers could do if they had their way. He returned from Sheridan with his bars and spurs and after spending four months trying to learn the equestrian art, he gave it up and returned to school. While "Hooie" has never expressed himself, we believe the time is limited until he shall assume the responsibilities of matrimonial life.

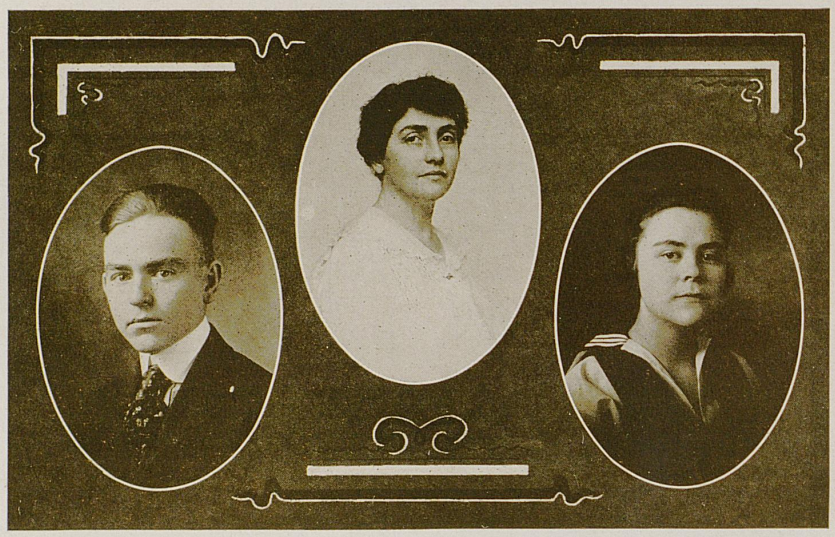

REBEKAH MAXINE PARITZ, L.L.B. . . . . Lexington

Morton High School Club; Secretary Henry Clay Law Society, '18; Vice-President Henry Clay Law Society, '19.

Rebekah is our only girl graduate in the Law Department. Her large brown eyes, together with her eloquence and logic, will convince any jury. If "reason is the life of the law, and law the perfection of reason," we are sure she will be successful in her legal career.

KATHERINE PARRISH, B.S. . . . . Lexington

Although Katherine is a quiet little girl on the campus, all who know her love her, and as to her ability, if any one doubts that Home Ec girls can cook real food, just try some of the things that Katherine can cook.

Senior Class

ARTHUR WALTON PETREY, B.S. . . . . Pineville

Pi Kappa Alpha; Alpha Sigma Chi.

With two years' start at Cumberland College, Petrey decided to come to the "big school" and show 'em up. Q. E. D. Petrey's greatest ambition is to make enough money to support a family.

ELIZABETH DANFORTH PICKETT, B.S. . . . . Finchville

Secretary Home Economics Club, '16-'17; Assistant Matron Patterson Hall, '15-'16; Assistant Director Patterson Hall, '16-'17, '17-'18; Assistant University Cafeteria, '19.

The Home Economics Department is as proud of having graduated Miss Pickett as she is of being a member of the Department. She first went to Columbia, but she says "she'd just as soon have Miss Sweeney." Her refined, attractive personality, her warm sympathy and understanding made her a favorite with the girls when she was matron of Patterson Hall, and her soul-satisfying menus were a delight.

ELIZA MACLEAN PIGGOTT, A.B. . . . . Irvington

Chi Omega; Staff and Crown; Editor-in-Chief 1919 Kentuckian; Junior Editor 1918 Kentuckian; Kentucky Kernel Staff '16; Co-editor Kernel '17; Managing Editor Kernel '18; Associate Editor Kernel, '19; Bulletin Editor, '17; Class Vice-President, '17; Stroller Prize Skit, '16, Cast: "Mice and Men," '18; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, '16,-'17-'18-'19; Delegate Blue Ridge Student Conference, '16; Pan-Hellenic, '16-'17-'18-'19, Secretary '17-'18, President '18-'19.

"A" for her grades and "A" for her achievements, "Piggy" combines rare qualities, executive force with social charm, and scholarship with a sense of humor.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

WALTER CLAY PIPER, A.B. . . . . Lexington

English Club, '17; Secretary Patterson Literary Society, '17; Morton Club, '17; President Patterson Literary Society, '18; Crum Medal, '18; First Lieutenant Battalion, '19; Class Representative, '19.

We have traced his ancestry back to "Tom, the Piper's Son," and even to the "Pied Piper of Hamelin," but we found none in his line so voluminous a personage as "Piper." He has all sorts of titles stuck to him—everything from president to "shave-tail." And they even say in English he's a Major. Some say "Piper" will be a writer some day, some say he'll be a speaker, but we believe he'll always be a Piper.

CHARLES EVANS PLANCK, A.B. . . . . Lexington

Alpha Delta Sigma; Track, '18; Kernel Staff; Managing Editor, '19; Cheer Leader, '17-'18; Staff 1918 Kentuckian; Strollers, Cast: "Mice and Men"; Patterson Literary Society; Patterson Medal; Glee Club, '16-'17; Morton Club, '17.

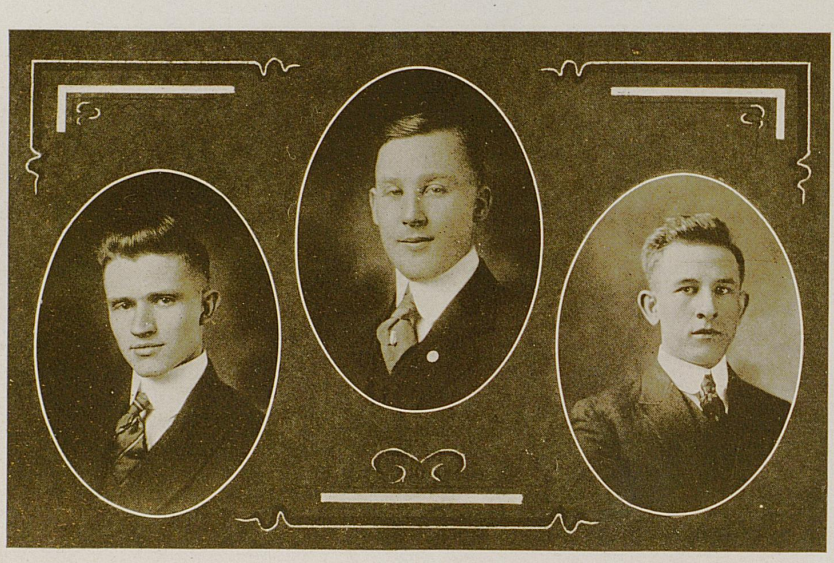

There is an old saying that great talkers are like broken pitchers—they hold nothing. Charlie is a splendid example of this adage, for Charlie is the most loquacious youth about town, and yet always holds a gaping audience. Kentucky has the makings of a sure enuf, live newspaper man in Charlie Planck, and we hope he'll make a name for himself as well as his Alma Mater.

ELSIE GERTRUDE POTTER, B.S. . . . . Somerset

Glee Club; Philosophian Literary Society; Home Economics Club; Y. W. C. A.

Elsie is so reserved and modest that only a few are permitted to know her. Many may appreciate her charming personality, but to those who know her, words are inadequate to describe her depth and beauty of character. In her eyes there shines the spirit of kindness and friendliness which rules the world of human hearts, but especially Julia's. It is still an unsolved problem how these two will ever exist when one leaves for Oregon and the other for New York.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

HOMER G. PROCTOR, B.M.E. . . . . Mt. Vernon

Westinghouse Society, '16-'17-'18; A. I. E. E., '19; Treasurer, '19; S. N. T. C., '19; Pink Tea Society, '17-'18-'19.

Proc, though small, is a man of considerable weight in his realm. He is from the small town of Mt. Vernon, in whose population he has been very much interested until recently. He has grown solemn and dignified since and has been making his way with considerable long green or granger. During all his four years he has been very quiet, and it is only natural to expect an eruption from him soon.

MARCUS CARLISLE REDWINE, L.L.B. . . . . Sandy Hook

Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '15; "Y" Gospel Team, '15; Quartet, '16; State I. P. A.; Medical, '16; Secretary Mountain Club; Patterson Literary Society; Henry Clay Law Society.

Redwine is a staunch prohibitionist who hails from the mountains. His achievements point to the fact that he is made of "sterner stuff" than some of his classmates. Moreover he is an orator of ability.

LOUIS REUSCH, JR., B.S. . . . . Bellevue

Mystic Circle; Alpha Zeta; Lamed Pe; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet, '16-'17-'18-'19; Student Council, '17; Captain Infantry, U. S. A.; Class Football, '18.

Speaking of a soldier, a scholar and a gentleman, all combined in a human being, Reusch certainly is a worthy representative. In the army he held the commission of captain, in classes he received the highest possible reward, and before everyone he is commended for his princely bearing and pleasing Southern manners. If he does not make good in his endeavors, we will lose faith in humanity.

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

WILBUR PRESTON RHOADS, B.S. . . . . Hartford

Agricultural Society; T. K. B.; Little Yellow Dogs; Circulation Manager Rural Kentuckian, '17-'18; Glee Club, '18-'19; Color Sergeant S. A. T. C.; Keeper of Records and Seals of Senior Court.

"Has anyone seen Terrill Tapscott, the object?" That's what William P. Schomockus Rhoads, the "shadow," is usually asking. The Senior Court will have to be draped with crepe when he puts out to sea. They say he is going to be a teacher of something. Will it be Soil Physics or Piggery?

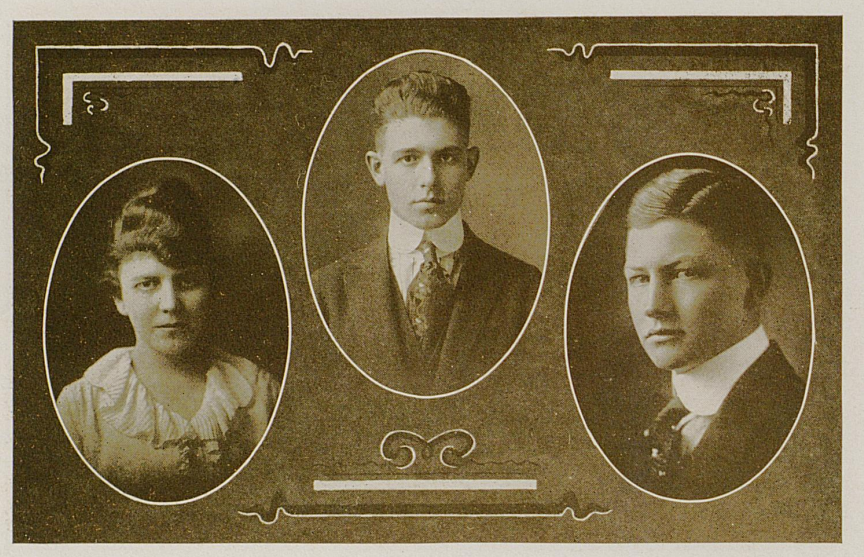

MARY GRAY RILEY, A.B. . . . . Lexington

Mary Gray has probably spent more time on the campus in her last year than even the hard-worked engineers, for morning, noon and night have found her ably assisting Miss Graddy in keeping the "cards" straight. Quietly she has pursued the even tenor of her way, but her associates say that "efficiency" is her middle name.

ILA SEE, A.B. . . . . Levee

Horace Mann Literary Society, Secretary and Treasurer '17, President '18; History Club; Philosophian; Y. W. C. A.; Strollers.

Ila has perhaps endured more puns upon her name than anyone else in the class; even the most staid professor will remark, "I see," when she answers the roll call. But she meets this with characteristic good humor and we have yet to see her disturbed in the even tenor of her way, by any minor unpleasantness. Those who know her best find that she has a fund of practical philosophy and a quiet humor that is never failing.

Senior Class

MARGARET SEXTON, A.B. . . . . Lexington

Margaret made a hard race to be the shrinking violet of the class and most of us are sure she wins. She has never made enough noise on the campus to attract notice and her admirers, who are legion, sometimes are surprised that others do not know her. She is a girl well worth knowing. Knowing that girls are artful, one might suspect that Margaret was coy and quiet for the advantage the contrast gives her with other girls less quiet, but that does not take away from her attractiveness. She insists that she is not in love. These one-sided affairs are so hard on the men.

JOHN FELIX SHOUSE, B.M.E. . . . . Lexington

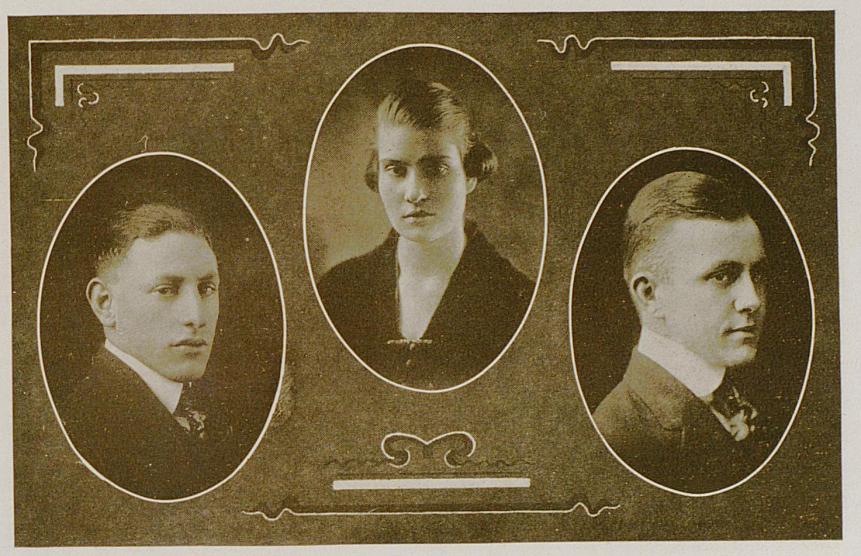

Phi Delta Theta; Westinghouse Society, Treasurer '15-'16, Vice-President '16-'17; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Yellow Dogs; S. N. T. C.

"Hubby" is a Lexington product, but prior to that time Versailles had the honor. Aside from the notoriety obtained by his excuses to Buddy Freeman for being late to first hour class, he has the distinction of being the second man of the class to try double harness. May we all do as well as Felix did. In class meetings he is a wonder and a sticker for the Mechanicals.

SAMUEL HEADLEY SHOUSE, B.S. . . . . Lexington

Phi Delta Theta; Alpha Zeta; Lamp and Cross; Class President, '18-'19; Mystic Thirteen; Pan-Hellenic Council, '17-'18; Cadet Second Lieutenant, '16-'17; Captain, '17-'18; Major, '18-'19; Lexington High School Club, President, '16-'17; Agricultural Society.

Headley heard the call to arms last summer and when he came back to school there was a little gold bar on his shoulder. One cannot say too much about him. The days he has spent at the University have been spent well. He is high minded, a good student, a prince among men, and has made an excellent class president.

Senior Class

MOSE SMITH, B.C.E. . . . . Ruston, La.

Sigma Alpha Mu; Brooks Society of Civil Engineers.

The Man from Louisiana who had to come to Kentucky to get an education. Mose is some spitfire, little but loud. The nerve he uses in his clashes with "Hawk" makes us all green with envy. With the ladies he is a wonder, and like most of the rest of the engineers has found one smaller than himself.

ELIZA KAYE SPURRIER, A.B. . . . . Louisville

Kappa Delta; Strollers, President '17-'18, Cast of "Father and the Boys," "The Lion and the Mouse," "Mice and Men"; Pan-Hellenic Council, President '16-'17; Kernel Staff, Squirrel Food Editor '17-'18, Managing Editor '18-'19; English Club, Chairman '18-'19; Louisville Club, Secretary-Treasurer '17-'18; Philosophian, Cast: "You Never Can Tell," Critic '18-'19; Class Grumbler, '18-'19.

Eliza's quick wit and ready invention have delighted her classmates for lo, these many years. Skits and quibs flow ceaselessly from her pen and the "stude" does not exist who can beat her at the popular indoor sport of "bluffing through." A glance at her list of achievements proves her ability. Despite the fact that she has been the mainstay of the Strollers and one of the chief contributors to the Kentucky Kernel, Eliza has found time to make many friends and to become known on the campus as a "dead game sport."

HARVEY WORLEY STEDMAN, B.S. . . . . Versailles

Sigma Chi.

"Hard Boy" Stedman comes to school every day in a little brown car that just misses the stone gates a few centimeters. Luck has followed Harvey all the days of his life and here's hoping it will be with him always. He is somewhat of a dance promoter, eh!

WALLACE '20.

Senior Class

EDWARD TERRILL TAPSCOTT, B.S. . . . . Owensboro

Business Manager Kernel, '18-'19; Assistant Business Manager Kentuckian, '18-'19; President Agricultural Society, '18-'19; Judge Senior Court; Secretary Boys' Glee Club, '18-'19; Sergeant-at-Arms Masonic Club, '18-'19; Supply Sergeant Company "C," S. A. T. C.

We will always remember "Heavy." We don't want to forget him. We couldn't if we did. He has given individuality to our class and has shown us what real college spirit is. "Tapp" didn't gain control of the Senior Court gavel by divine right, but by survival of the fittest.

CHARLES LANDEN TEMPLIN, B.M.E. . . . . Paris

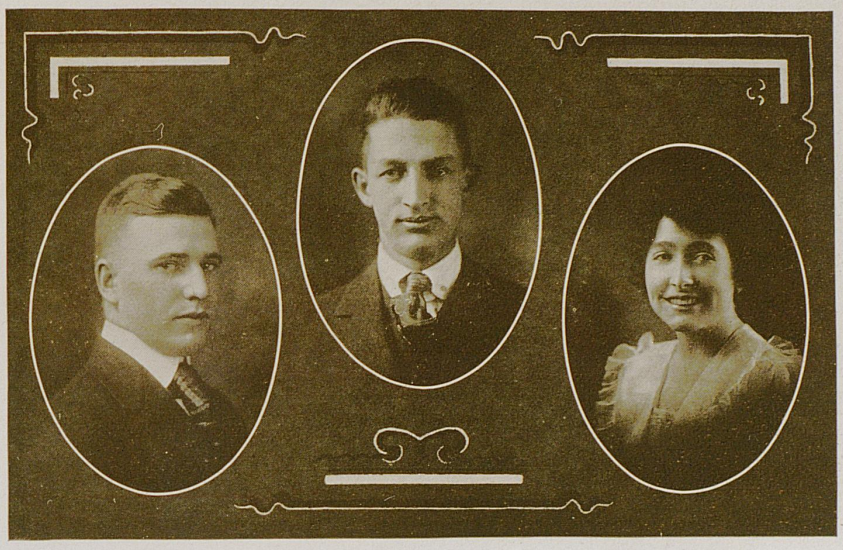

Westinghouse Society, President '16-'17; A. S. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Band, '16-'17-'18-'19; Tau Beta Kake; Orchestra, '18-'19; S. N. T. C.; R. O. T. C., '16-'17-'18; U. S. N. R. F., '18; Pink Tea, '17-'18-'19.

Dear old "Temp;" our first acquaintance was in the fall of 1915. This, I think, was the year when the Freshmen were noted for their ignorance and he was no exception. But look at him now. He has steadily grown in our estimation until now he stands pre-eminently the one and only flivver king in our midst. His sojourn through "Mecha-nickle Hall" has not always been over paths the rosiest in the world. However, now our only hope is that in his coming hour of commercial success he shall not be lost to us forever.

PERRY ELMO THOMAS, B.S. . . . . Murray

Delta Chi; Republican Club; Student-Teacher in Department of Geology, '18-'19.

Thomas, the "rockologist," has done well during his four years of study under "Monkey." He has chased untiringly for things of the earth, earthy, and rocks have been his goal.

Senior Class

CARDWELL DOUGLAS TRIPLETT, A.B. . . . . Beech Grove

Pi Kappa Alpha; Union Literary Society.

Smooth, oily, unctious; our vocabulary fails us when we try to describe this youth. He surely could get by the profs with flying colors. As a logician he is a wonder. Ask Tige. He will make a bland politician some day.

DILLARD HAZELRIGG TURNER, A.B. . . . . Frankfort

Phi Delta Theta; Assistant Editor Kernel, '16-'17; Union Literary Society; History Club; Economics Club; Kernel Board of Control, '15-'16; Second Lieutenant Battalion, '16-'17.

Dillard was among the first that heard Columbia's call and responded with that good old traditional Kentucky spirit. He was one of our intrepid heroes who withstood the siege of Camp Stanley and fought the mosquitoes so gallantly at Hattiesburg. When Dillard writes his history he will doubtless give us a graphic account of his experiences.

LOUISE TRUNER, B.S. . . . . Lexington

Chi Omega; Home Economics, Secretary '17-'18; Lexington High School Club; President University Red Cross, '18-'19.

Louise knit so many sweaters during the war we wonder she had time for school, but then you must remember that she did not let one interfere with the other, for her knitting bag was used to carry books as well as knitting. She was such an enthusiastic president of the Red Cross, she made that organization quite a force on the campus.

Senior Class

MARGARET HELMSING TUTTLE, A.B. . . . . Lexington

Alpha Xi Delta; English Club; Literary Club; Lexington High School Club; Secretary-Treasurer Library Club, '17-'18, President '18-'19; Vice-President Romance Language Club, '18-'19; Student Assistant at Library, '17-'18-'19.

The steady march of "A's" across Margaret's report card is a small indication of the quality of her work. Her ability to shush would-be disturbers of quiet hours in the library is an indication of her efficiency in whatever line of work she undertakes. As student assistant to Miss King, Margaret has developed an unlimited supply of patience and the ability of a clairvoyant in discovering what book is wanted when the person has forgotten the name and only knows the color.

DOROTHY CALDWELL WALKER, A.B. . . . . Pineville

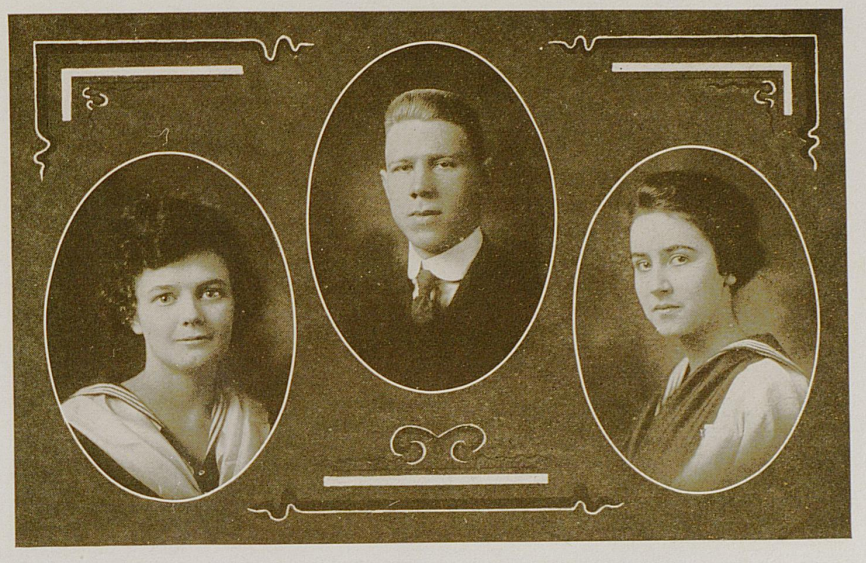

Kappa Kappa Gamma; Treasurer Tennis Club, '17; Basketball Team, '17-'18-'19; Stroller Play, '17-'18; Beauty Contest, '17-'18-'19; Vice-President Senior Class.

"Dot" arrived from K. C. W. a human dynamo, and has been putting brain into basketball, steam into the Strollers, and thrills into the hearts of the stronger sex ever since.

JAMES STUART WALLINGFORD, B.M.E. . . . . Paris

Kappa Sigma; Tau Beta Pi; Westinghouse, Secretary '15-'16; Captain Cadet Battalion, '17-'18; Commander Company S. N. T. C., '18-'19; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Kentuckian Staff, '19.

"J. Rufus," true to his name and the town from which he comes, is some "devil," although no one guessed it in his Freshman year. He is the terror of his profs. His questions and theories stagger them. We might have added his Patt Hall activities to his already long list of achievements. For three years he had trouble with directions, but he is straightened out now and is headed "West."

Senior Class

FLORIS WHITTINGHILL, A.B. . . . . Glen Dean

Philosophian; Horace Mann; Y. W. C. A.; History Club; English Club; Vice-President Horace Mann, '19.

Floris has completed her college course in three and one-half years and has done it in a way that has been eminently satisfactory to the powers that be, despite the fact that she has caught almost everything which has made the rounds at Patt Hall during that time. Floris is known for her sweetness and amiability. She will make a successful school mar'm, if her gentle nature does not incline her too much to spare the rod.

MARSHALL B. WOOD, L.L.B. . . . . Maysville

Kappa Sigma; Henry Clay Law Society.

"Buck" is certainly a good scout. He loves a joke and his laugh will never be forgotten. The ladies will all be sorry to see him go, for while in our midst he made many a fair damsel's heart flutter.

LUCY ALOYSIA YOUNG, A.B. . . . . Lexington

Chi Omega; Kentuckian Staff, '18-'19; Strollers, Cast: "Under Cover," '18-'19.

If the 1919 Kentuckian dealt in platitudes we would say of Lucy, "divinely tall and most divinely fair." But, alas, the editors, having profited by a term of Verbal Criticism, taboo bromides—but it's true, nevertheless. Moreover, although the aforenamed maiden joined the ranks of the Class of '19 in her Junior year, she has made her presence felt in many circles, mingling classic English courses with shorthand, typewriting and dramatics in a most surprising manner. Though Lucy did not arrive until her fellow classmates had passed the vernal periol, it is rumored she did not omit a term of campustry. The registrar's office fails to record this work, however.

Junior Class History

Years from now, when glancing through these pages, many of our descendants will want to know the history of the Class of '20. That it is unusual can be seen from the picture, but its list of achievements can be recorded best in written words.

'Twenty is an unusual class; that could be deduced in September of 1916. The entire university recognized the fact and held a jubilee, even a Golden Jubilee, that very fall. The Fresmen liked this little act of thoughtfulness, and by way of appreciation determined to show just what can be done by a class of "newcomers" with plenty of "pep" and initiative.

The Tug-of-War was first tackled with splendid results, the artistic Freshmen scalps gleaming in the beaming sun victorious as any Roman helmets. 'Twenty it was that gave the loudest yells that year, the jolliest school dance, the most attractive girls in the beauty section. And it maybe recalled that only this class has had the same girl on the beauty page three years in succession.

So it was with a feeling of self-content that the illustrious members awaited the following fall and more activity, not suspecting how very "active" many of them would be. The war it was that sent some of the boys across seas and is responsible for decreased numbers. A rather valiant "Soph" Class is expected this year, because by pure luck and through peace negotiations it has added a number of should-be Juniors to its roll.

But it is as Juniors that they shine, the 'Twenties. It is as Juniors that they have given to the university orators, dramatic artists, gridiron heroes and charming co-eds. Their talent is unusual, their ability unquestioned. Fortunate are the undergraduates who will return in the fall of 1919 and see how the '20s run the university.

SOPHOMORE CL

Sophomore Class History

The Class of 1921 made history in its Freshman year, and even in this year of 1919, which has been so disturbed that it has given little opportunity for the expression of their unusual ability and spirit of progressiveness, the members of '21 have made a deep impression on the entire student body.

As a Freshman Class of 291 members it fairly overflowed with eagerness and enthusiasm and excelled all Freshman Classes of recent years. It has not lost that spirit which makes its participation in any enterprise an assured success, whether it be in classical pursuits, athletics or projects for the upbuilding of the university.

OMORE CLASS

The girls of the Class of '21 surpassed all the other girls of the university in beauty and popularity as shown by their prominence in the beauty contests and their marked popularity at all university dances.

One is continually reminded of the pre-eminence and juvenility of the Class of '21 by their numerals painted on the most conspicuous buildings on the campus, always on the highest and most dangerous places to reach. (See the smokestack.)

In short, the Class of '21 is the embodiment of all that goes to make Kentucky men and women the leaders of their country and famous the world over. The boys are loyal, courageous and daring. The girls are beautiful, charming and sincere.

KENTUCKY MEN AT FORT SHERIDAN

Fort Sheridan

Thirty-five members of the Senior R. O. T. C. of the University of Kentucky attended the summer camp for the 3,000 R. O. T. C. men of the Central Division held at Fort Sheridan, Ill., from June 3 until July 3, 1918.

From the time the Southern train pulled out of the Lexington station on a beautiful Sunday afternoon in June until the Northwestern pulled into the Chicago station on the third of July, bearing Kentucky boys homeward, some on a fifteen day furlough, after which they would return to continue their work for the commission, others impatient to enlist in the navy or marines, the minutes of training were filled with instruction, romance and chivalry.

The instruction involved an intensive course in the "artis belli," where 3,000 college men on the beautiful shores of Lake Michigan received from most capable officers, practical training in military tactics. The romance situation was interesting, as seen by the onrush to the mail box after morning drill and the culmination in the happy marriage of one valiant soldier with a certain little brown-eyed beauty of Frankfort. Chivalry was seen in the aggregation at all times of the training. True to the tradition of Southern chivalry, the Southern boys in Company 11, R. O. T. C., representing the Southern States, Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana and Alabama, surrendered their seats on the "L" to the weary "wurkin'-gurrl," or escorted the interested visitors over the Fort Sheridan reservation.

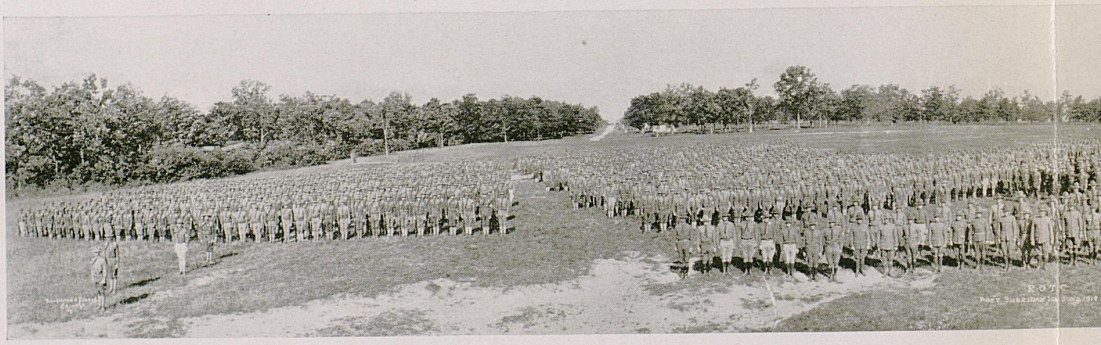

In short, these men of Kentucky, true to their Alma Mater, lived cleanly, learned rapidly and profited richly in the summer camp at Fort Sheridan and the memories of that training will ever be pleasant ones.

The University of Kentucky's part in the war is a story of which every student, alumnus and faculty member may well be proud. From May 7, 1918, when the first contingent of men to be technically trained for military service arrived on the campus, until December 20, 1918, when a third contingent of these men, with the student branch of the S. A. T. C. and S. N. T. C., were mustered out of the service, the campus was the personification of intensive preparation for war.

During this time three contingents of selective service men, 1,200 in all, were trained as skilled auto mechanics, blacksmiths, radio operators, carpenters and electricians. The entire equipment of the university was put unreservedly at their service. The armory was converted into shops, a huge tent in front of the Library housed other shops, a large brick building near Mechanical Hall was completed in time for severe weather. All class rooms in all buildings were utilized, and when the flu appeared the gymnasium and "old dorm" were pressed into service as hospitals.

From May until October the men were housed at the Fair Gounds. Until then the camp was known as Camp Buell in honor of that general of Civil War fame, for whom the armory is named. But October 1, 1918, the technical division became a part of the S. A. T. C. and the men were sworn into service with the students composing Section "A" of the S. A. T. C. and the S. N. T. C. About this time the entire unit was transferred to the barracks near Stoll Field, erected by the university.

Scenes

Camp Buell U. of Ky.

Hardly had the men become established in their new quarters, however, when the influenza germ invaded their ranks. So quickly did it proceed that on October 11 a furlough was granted Section "A" men. Section "B," however, remained at the university. The Lexington Red Cross established hospitals on the campus, and with volunteer trained and untrained nurses successfully combatted the disease. November 4 saw the return of Section "A" and the S. A. T. C. was again intact.

Seven days later, however, the Kaiser decided to quit, and again training plans were interrupted. Flu again made its appearance, forced the co-eds to take another furlough, and until December 20, 1918, the S. A. T. C. had undisputed possession of the campus. On that memorable day, December 20, 1918, however, the S. A. T. C. disappeared forever when Section "A," Section "B," army, navy, et al., were mustered out of the service.

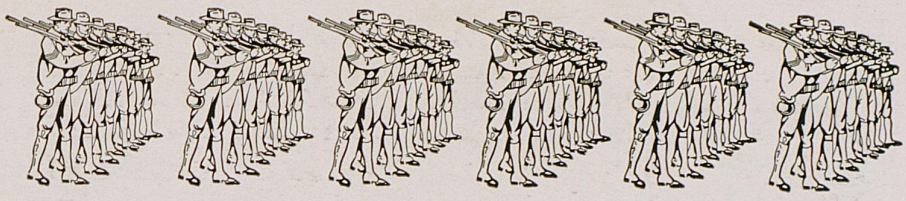

The university gave of its resources gladly to aid in the battle for democracy. It has its scars even as the war-torn field of France. The S. A. T. C., abolished as it was before it had begun to fulfill its mission, proved a distracting force. Had it been allowed to complete its training and enter the conflict, as many of those trained earlier at the university, there is not a doubt but that it, too, would have added another glorious page to Kentucky's war record. And so we say of the S. A. T. C. and its short, eventful life—

CHIEF TURNER

It all began when three Juniors last May decided to join the undergraduate U. S. N. R. F. After consuming numerous bananas and frequent pints of water they were overjoyed to find that they had passed the physical examination. Others were not long in following suit. Thus twenty Kentucky men found this kind of life at Great Lakes to their liking.

Although the University unit gave great promise of obtaining remarkable achievements in the near future, it must be admitted that very little system was as yet evidenced in Captain Royden's Navy. Therefore this treatise must deal chiefly with things accomplished away from old U. K.

RUB in SCRUB

Having purchased a three months' course in a pre-ensign school under personal observation of men versed in naval lore, those men who were fortunate enough to be attending a school in which a naval unit had been installed were sent back as instructors. Others were either given indefinite furloughs or told to report to another university.

The University of Kentucky's quota for naval training was two hundred. As it was impossible to find so many lads in old U. K. who had the necessary salty aspirations, some were imported into this, the third largest S. N. T. C. school in the United States.

The University is justly proud of the Unit, and no small credit is due to the showing of the men who went to Great Lakes to represent the University.

Uncle Sam, well started in his war program, suffered no small internal difficulty with spies and enemy aliens to divert his attention from the all-absorbing theme of "Force to the utmost without stint or limit." One day along came a ship load of immigrants who carried what appeared to the federal officials very negligible baggage. This baggage in the form of the infinitesimal "flu" germ wrought such havoc as has seldom been viewed in this fair land of ours. This intruder in fact caused more interruption than all other forms of agitation during the war. The picture below shows how the germ affected the University. This picture shows the naval unit lined up for furloughs, giving them a three weeks' cessation of all activities.

Too great a tribute cannot be paid to the Allied airmen who played a magnificent part in bringing the Hun to terms. No small part of this was accomplished by our United States Naval aviators. Finding themselves of a restless disposition, quite a few of the men in our own naval unit preferred to chase the elusive gold stripe in a naval officers' flying school than to return to seemingly inactive duty while others were winning the world's greatest war—the death grapple between Democracy and Autocracy.

For the Good of the Ship

After two hundred men have lived, laughed and labored together for a period of time, it is generally the custom when the time approaches for them to part never to be together again, to celebrate and commemorate their association in a feast. The men of the Naval Unit lived, laughed and labored together, sharing joys and sorrows, and then the time came when their paths divided. Some remained in school to continue their collegiate career, others entered civil life. To appropriately commemorate this breaking up of friendly ties, they planned this banquet. They were "gobs" together, had their shots and grumbled about detail work and drill, strung up their hammocks, frequently "hit the deck" unexpectedly, worried over bag inspection. And this, their farewell chow, was an event to be remembered throughout their lives. "Live tonight, for tomorrow we may be jacks of the dust."

Wildcat Football for 1919

IT might be proper to start off this long distance look into 1919 football with a question mark, thus—"?"—but we don't think so, for from what Coach Gill and Dady Boles say, Kentucky is going to have a record-smashing aggregation when we gather here next fall.

It is thought that the 1918 football material will be back without exception, and in 1918 there was more good football material on the campus than has been seen here in one season for a long time. For sundry reasons, including the war, the S. A. T. C. and the flu, the best couldn't be got out of the squad.

In addition to those men who had berths on the 1918 team, there will be the usual inflow of first year men this fall, and the probable return of several "K" men who have not yet been discharged from the army. "Shorty" Heick, guard, has already signified his intention of returning to the University. Jim Server, famous tackle of the '15 and '16 team, will probably return if he comes back from France in time.

At least Tony Dishman, 1919 captain of the 'cats, and resident of the same town that Jim belongs to, is certain that the famous tackle will hear the call of the gridiron. Some of the most optimistic fans, including Casey Jones, persist in blushless declarations that the Old University war-horse, the immortal Doc Rodes, will clothe himself in moleskin while he is completing his education in the University next year. Watch your step, Centre, watch your step.

S. A. T. C. FOOTBALL SQUAD

Wildcat Football for 1918

One defeat sandwiched in between two victories was the Wildcat football record for 1918. Only three games were played.

There are just two lenses through which to look at that gridiron record. One is lettered S. A. T. C., the other FLU. In roughneck parlance, if such will be pardoned, "S. A. T. C. and flu sho' busted up Kentucky football last fall."

No games were played at home. For the first fracas the Wildcats took the team to Bloomington, Ind., where they rode rough-shod over the crack team representing Indiana's State University. The score was 27 to 0.

The Kentuckians came back home to be declared the best team in the South, but shortly afterwards suffered an enforced vacation and subsequent breakage of training rules on account of influenza. This was "the weight what broke the bridge down."

For the Wildcats started the season with the best prospects in several seasons. The champion high school timber of the State was in the Freshman class. The Wildcats made up their minds to gobble up everything in the State including the college made famous by Professor "Jawn" Price, and to wear blinds for no team in the South. Wildcat stock looked like safest security on the market.

With a slight abatement of the flu, the student-soldiers were called to 1, 2, 3, 4 some more. Remnants of what would have been one of the strongest teams that ever represented the Blue and White on the gridiron were loaded on a train and sent to Vanderbilt. There had been no flu to interfere with Vandy's hopes. She downed the Wildcats for the knockout count with a 33 to 0 blow.

Kentucky men had but little opportunity to put in any training before they went to Georgetown, but Georgetown was easy. Three points against the Wildcat 21 was the best the Tigers could do.

Heber, "The Flying Dutchman," captained the 'cats and held down one end of the Wildcat line. He played like lightning and always put the best interests of the Wildcats first.

"Tony" Dishman, who will call the coins next fall, was rangy end on the other side of the line. Like Jim Server and Governor Stanley, Dishman helped to put Henderson on the map. He blocked, tackled and otherwise cut up in the approved manner.

Baugh, Bastin, Murphree and Downing crouched at tackle positions, while Moore, Murphree and Kelly played guards. These men were like Gibraltar Rock on the defense and tore holes in the opposing lines when the Wildcats had the ball.

Kelly and Downing took turns at center, with the former performing most.

Craig Riddle played his second season as Wildcat pilot. Medium-sized but exceptional in head work, broken field work and tackling, the boy Craig was the most feared Wildcat on the squad. He is in Texas now, but he will probably answer "here" when the moleskins are first in evidence on the gridiron next fall.

Shanklin, Bartlett, Snoddy and Muth played half positions. Shanklin, who had made the coveted "K" in 1918 football, was every bit as good. He played aggressive football and usually answered with a gain when he was given the ball. Bartlett and Snoddy, two young men who played on the famous Owensboro High School eleven of 1917, wore the Blue and White. Bartlett was excellent on the field. He was fast and fearless. Snoddy was big, heavy and fast. He played good football and scored more than one Wildcat touchdown. Strictly speaking, Muth was a sub, but he was a good one.

Bland was the bulwark of attack and defense from his place in the middle of the Wildcat backfield. It took a clever submarine to stop this heavy battleship, because he hit the line like a ton of lead. In short, Bland's brand of football was unassailable.

Faulconer, Boone, J. F. Baugh, Burnham and Beam were first out for substitute positions. They were given opportunities and rarely failed to fulfill all expectations.

Basketball, 1919

Wildcat basketball results for 1919 would go down on graph paper with the stagger of a stew. The team was as erratic in its victory and defeat as last April was in its days of sunshine and storm. Neither could be predicted with any certainty. In short, it was no proposition to gamble over.

Fourteen games were played. Kentucky was out-of-luck in eight of them.

Schedule and results such as they were follow:

Jan.	11—Kentucky	46;	Wesleyan	5
Jan.	18—Kentucky	30;	Georgetown	32
Jan.	25—Kentucky	30;	Centre	38
Jan.	31—Kentucky	18;	Cincinnati	28
Feb.	6—Kentucky	28;	Chattanooga	25
Feb.	7—Kentucky	7;	Cumberland	21
Feb.	8—Kentucky	22;	Tennessee	40
Feb.	14—Kentucky	26;	Vanderbilt	36
Feb.	15—Kentucky	18;	Georgetown	22
Feb.	21—Kentucky	34;	Cincinnati	21

WALLACE '20.

From that night on January 11, when the Wildcats hung it into a team from Wesleyan College by an overwhelming score, well up into the middle of the season, the fans believed that the Kentucky quintet had the stuff in it to come to the top and stay there like a bar of that famous floating soap, but lost games one on top of another soon broke that spell. Withal, however, the Cats put up a bully brand of basketball, showing fight at all times and ability now and then.

Dishman, Chief and Captain of the squad, was, without doubt, its best all-round man. The way he guarded 'em all was marvelous. Certainly he picked no favorites. Dishman's importance on the basketball quintet was like the importance of a trunk to a tree. His natural and developed physical qualities fitted him well, for when he smashed into a play there was seldom anything left but dust.

Thomas, Captain-elect of the 1920 squad, should have been the demon on offense for the Wildcats, but he fell below the standard that he set in his Freshman year.

EVERETT DISHMAN THOMAS

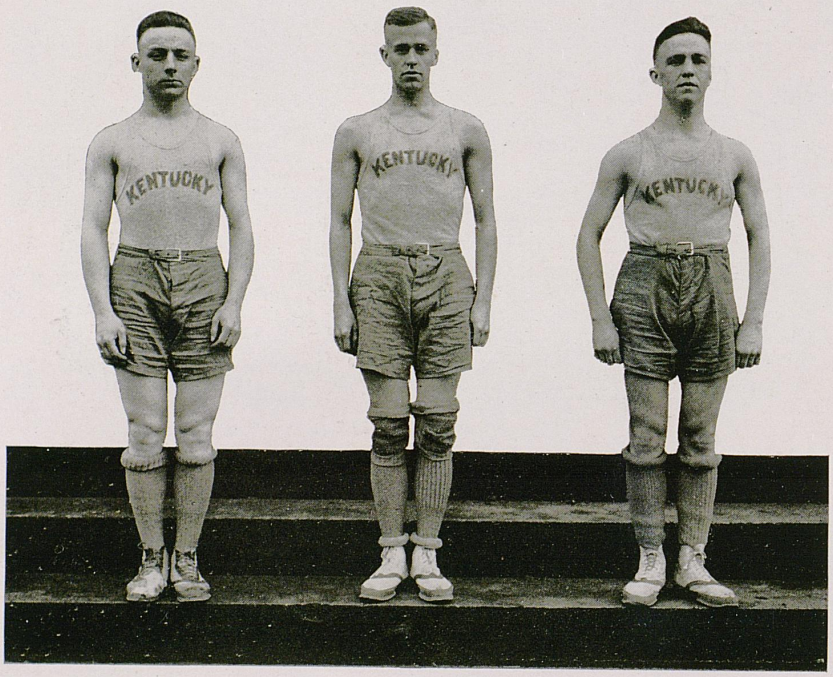

WALLACE '20.

Nevertheless, toward the last of the season he picked up enough to show shades of his former self. It is predicted that Thomas will be better than ever next year.

"Chen" Everett, who is a long, tall, rangy lad, played center for the Wildcats. Although a Freshman, and an inhabitant of a little river town across from Aberdeen, O., Everett probably pointed more for the Cats than any other man on the team. But respect for Everett's extreme modesty concerning his knowledge of and ability to play basketball forbids us from saying anything further about this shrinking violet.

Burnham, popularly known as "Dutch," played guard alongside Captain Dishman. He was not particularly brilliant, as are stars, but for a good steady, hard, scrappy player you've got to hand it to him. He was everlastingly in the thick of it, employing all his knowledge of basketball and strength in keeping opponents from scoring. A lot is expected of Burnham next winter.

Lavin, another member of the class that wore green until the 17th of March, was shoved in at forward toward the last of the season. Our only regret is that the coach didn't see him earlier. For this small Freshman was wondrous. He was a good goal shot, fast and aggressive. Here's hoping he stretches upward just a little before the basketball game begins again.

George Zerfoss, who made a letter with the team of 1916, wore the Kentucky jersey in several games. Zerfoss had a good eye for the baskets, but something or other kept him from holding up the high reputation which his brothers, and he, too, have set in Southern athletic circles.

Ed Parker, manager of the team, was one of the best second string men with the squad. Parker didn't get in all the games, but when he did he never failed to make one or more goals for the Wildcats. Parker, however, was especially proficient in managing the team. He was a good advertiser, and it is due a great deal to his efforts that the Wildcats had so many spectators at their games.

Gordon Marsh, one of the 1918 "K" men, was in the line-up during the early part of the season. "Big Ben" played center and was good, but interests other than basketball soon took up all his time.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL SQUAD

WALLACE '20.

Girls' Basketball

As probably never before in the history of athletics, the female Wildcat Basketball squad finished the 1918-1919 season with a perfect standing—an even 100%. Two games were played with Kentucky Wesleyan, one in Winchester and the other on the Kentucky gymnasium floor. The scores of the two games were respectively, Kentucky 12, Wesleyan 10; Kentucky 15, Wesleyan 9.

Students in the University generally considered it unfortunate that it was not possible for the fast Lady Wildcats to schedule more games, but with the exception of the Wesleyan women there was total lack of basketball contenders. It is strange, too, that the mainstay of the Methodist five formerly starred for the Wildcat girls.

Perhaps it is owing to Miss Nancy Innis, former Kentucky star and captain, that the wild ones attained this perfect average. She put plenty of pep, jazz and confidence into the squad individually and collectively.

Regulars for Kentucky were:

Forwards—HAYDON, JAMESON
Center—CROMWELL
Guards—WALKER, DEAN

WALKER HAYDON CROMWELL

WALLACE '20.

"Bill" Haydon, captain, was playing her favorite season for the felines. Always in the game from whistle to whistle she was capable and clever in offensive onslaughts.

Minnie Jameson, who played the other forward position maintained the snappy standard she set in her freshman year.

Lillie Cromwell, center, was in the thick of each game, going strong, both in offense and defense.

Dorothy Walker, veteran of the preceding season, played the strong, fast game for which she is noted.

Lucy Dean starred for Varsity in the other defensive position. Very few goals were shot by her particular opponents.

Prominent among the substitutes were Katie Henry, Margaret Harbison and Mildred Porter. On account of the close scores in the two games played they were not permitted to show their ability, but in practice their playing gave members of the first team a close run for their money.

ZERFOSS, CAPTAIN 1919

1919 Prospectus

"Hit the dirt, you Wildcat!" Slide! Slide!! Slide!!!" The baseball season at the University of Kentucky began when we pecked for punch and our lead sentence. Stoll Field grass was greening and baseball cleats were singing on the diamond when Coach Andy Gill and a group of fans yelled, "Hit the dirt, you Wildcat! Slide! Slide!! Slide!!!"

The Varsity was out for first outdoor practice. In their brand new uniforms, colored blue and white for "Old Kentucky," between twenty and thirty promising young athletes were warming up with spring. "The poor horsehide is being initiated into a season of slapstick stuff," I thought, as willow met leather and leather met turf on the back side of the fence.

I looked 'em over, as the saying goes, and I saw several whom I knew by past performances. To be exact, there were nine men and each one wore a "klean-kut" K. In addition there were quite a few athletes of the modern build, who seemed as capable of playing as they were of making various "co-eds" sigh, "O, death, where is thy sting." But laying all jokes to 1 side, as my friend Ring Lardner would say, the 1919 baseballers are going to throw fits into more than one team that stacks up against them.

BASEBALL SQUAD

Baseball Review

Breaking out with victory on April 6 when Georgetown had to be content with the light end of a 12 to 5 walkover, the Wildcat aggregation romped through a glorious season of nine games spotted by only two defeats. Seven wins and two defeats—some record.

Here it is in tabulated form:

Kentucky	12;	Georgetown	5
Kentucky	16;	Wesleyan	3
Kentucky	3;	Tennessee	8
Kentucky	5;	Georgetown	1
Kentucky	7;	Maryville	3
Kentucky	6;	Maryville	5
Kentucky	8;	Maryville	5
Kentucky	0;	Tennessee	1

Baseball Review—Continued

For the baseball season of 1918 the Wildcats were fortunate in having a captain who had weathered three seasons of collegiate baseball with his good right arm. Else McClelland, of Springfield, premier pitcher of the Wildcats, was that lad. Although Else had been regarded for the last two or three years as one of the best college hurlers in the South, he was out of luck last season, as his arm was overworked. McClelland is probably ineligible this year, because of the time limit on college players, but as long as bat meets ball on Stoll Field the spirit of the mighty "Mc" will hover near.

The other man who served up steam twisters to opposing batsmen was Doc Lasley, the Wildcats' southpaw. Doc worked in the majority of the games last season, and the greater number of the wins were chalked up to his credit. He closed the season with a 4 to 1 victory over Tennessee.

"Cupid" Dempsey and Henry Thomas took turns behind the bat. Dempsey was wicked with the stick, while Thomas was a demon with his tongue, supporting the pitcher and putting new life into the team.

LASLEY THOMAS MCCLELLAND KOHN

WALLACE '20.

Baseball Review—Concluded

Gregg held forth at the first stop, and here he showed real class. He was especially good in pulling them out of the air on wild baseman heaves.

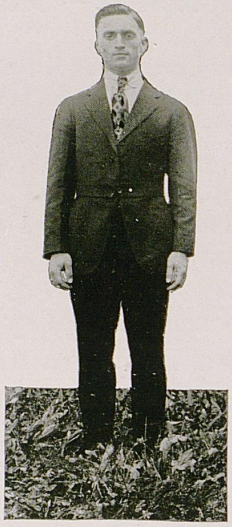

Joe Cambron played his second season at the keystone sack, performing in a worthy manner. In the game with Maryville College about the middle of the season he broke his leg. Alex Hall, who had been giving more than one infielder a close race for his position, was put on second, at which station he performed in a creditable manner.

George Zerfoss, who is to captain the team this season, rambled around the short field in a manner all his own. George was easily the best infielder in the State, and was not far behind anything in the South. He hit for a good average.

In the gardens for the Wildcats was a trio that is hard to beat, Kohn, Muth and Mizrach. Kohn perhaps hit for more bases than any other man on the team. Muth fielded an even thousand in the tall grass behind second base, while Mizrach played the sun garden for the limit.

Fair Kentuckians

HOW can mere man who knows so well the limitations of his sex speak fittingly of woman and her beauty when men like Socrates called it "a short-lived tyranny," or as Plato, "a privilege of nature," or as Ovid, "a favor bestowed by the Gods!" We should heed Durivage's admonition, "If you tell a woman she is beautiful, whisper it softly; for if the devil hears it he will echo it many times," but with eight beautiful faces—types representing the fairest of the fair—Kentucky's women—how can man refrain from praising since 'tis said of woman, "Thou wert fashioned to beguile."

It has been said of the Kentucky belle that she has a fairer form, a sweeter face, a rarer charm, a truer heart, and that Kentucky's women are the poetry of the world in the same sense as the stars are the poetry of heaven—clear, light-giving, harmonious; they are the terrestrial planets that rule the destinies of mankind.

To you, Kentucky queens of 1919, we admit,

"Nature made thee to temper man;
We had been brutes without you."

Angels are painted fair to look like you; there is in you all that we believe of heaven—amazing brightness, purity and truth, eternal joy and everlasting love.

Blue Ridge

OUR first thrills of the Blue Ridge Conference of June, 1918, really began at Black Mountain, North Carolina. There hundreds of delegates had arrived and were eagerly awaiting automobiles which would take them to the Blue Ridge Association grounds, three miles away.

At last our machines were ready and we began ascending the mountain road, which was bordered by blossoming laurels, rhododendrons and wild flowers of every hue. A little later we saw the white cottages and hotel of Blue Ridge and soon we stopped in front of the largest building, known as Robert E. Lee Hall. We registered there and were assigned and conducted to the Kentucky Cottage.

How proud we were when we saw our new cottage, the prettiest one of all. It was at the foot of one of the mountain peaks, and at its back and sides grew the thickly foliaged mountain laurel and rhododendron. In front of the cottage a clear cold stream rushed down the mountain side. Within the cottage a comfortable living room with a huge log fire-place gave an inviting homey atmosphere to the place.

Then followed busy days—days crowded with inspiration and good times. The inspiration came mainly from listening to lectures by men and women of wide experiences, and high ideals, and in group discussions led by Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. secretaries.

There were many good times. Some afternoons were spent in taking long hikes to places of interest, such as Spanish Castle, Montreat, High Top, Sunset Inn, Webb's Tower, and Turkey Ridge, where the beauty of the mountains was at its heights. Other afternoons were given to athletics, such as races, swimming contests in the ice-cold out-door pool, basketball, tennis, and baseball. The most exciting event for us was when the leaders of the conference accepted our challenge to a baseball game. It was the first of its kind and was the source of much fun for both sides. Then there were many delightful "get-together" parties where both leaders and delegates learned to know each other better.

At every opportunity we sang. Wherever there was a group there was almost sure to be a "sing." At meals, in the cottages, on the hikes, and on the long veranda of Robert E. Lee Hall we sang—college songs, popular airs, hymns, according to the mood of the crowd.

We were all friends there, whether we knew each other's name or not, and a smile was the only necessary means of introduction.

When the time for leaving came, we all felt how very much Blue Ridge had meant to us, and realized why former delegates had returned filled with the spirit of fellowship and enthusiasm of the place. Living on the mountain top for that short time in company with so many different people, we were inspired to look far out on the horizon and to see our work in the plains in a new light.

WALLACE '20.

The Strollers

THERE are certain little things every self-respecting university, even what these traveled modern novelties negligently term "fresh-water" universities, must maintain: a library, a bald-headed professor or two, a prexy, some students, and a dramatic club.

Perhaps some of these unimportant details may be only incidental to the existence of the university, but one of the dispensable details is most assuredly not the Dramatic Club. "Where two or three are gathered together," whatever be their primary purpose, as a side issue they must act. They feel the Urge toward Self-Expression, as the dreamy-eyed student has it; they want to have a show, as the up-and-doing youth vociferates.

So a few moving spirits, a meeting, elections, committees, a cast, a production, success, a permanent organization! Incidentally, a name under which the Thespian frenzy is to be handed on; at the University of Kentucky, the now famous one of "The Strollers."

Various theatrical performances had been given by different groups of University students up to 1911, but it was not until that year a dramatic club, as an organized unit, came into existence. The founders of "The Strollers" were Paul L. Cocke and Ernest Becker, who were the first president and stage-manager respectively.

The roster of Stroller productions since their initial venture includes "Brown of Harvard," "The Virginian," "The Lost Paradise," "The College Widow," "Charley's Aunt," "Father and the Boys," "The Lion and The Mouse," and "Mice and Men." Comedy melodrama, farce, "straight" drama, have been successfully "put across" by an organization unusual in its self-support, self-direction, and ability.

Until the present year no professional assistance has been used by the Strollers, the play director being one of the students, and known as the stage manager; but in order to keep up with the trend of the times, for "Under Cover," the 1919 play, Mr. Carroll Sax, director of the Provincetown Players and of the Vagabond Theater, Baltimore, was with the Strollers for ten days, to put the finishing touches to the production.

An attractively furnished room on the lower floor of the Administration Building is the home of the Strollers. It is known as "The Stroller Room." The members are far too unassuming to call it a "studio!" Here meetings are held, rehearsals conducted, and—ah—romances cultivated.

Numerous and interesting are the personalities which have gone to make "The Strollers" the unified, strong power they are among University organizations.

The student stage-managers have, with few exceptions, served as officers in the war against Germany, making in that occupation, as in their previous one, records to be envied and admired.

While independent in management, the Strollers have appreciated and benefited by faculty advice and assistance. Especially are they indebted to Professors Farquhar, Grehan, and Mabie and to Miss McLaughlin and Christine Hopkins.

Officers of the Strollers for 1918-19 are Augustus Gay, president; Mary Turner, vice-president; J. P. Barnes, secretary and treasurer; Grover Creech, stage-manager; Lee McClain, business manager; Fred Jackson, advertising manager; and Mr. Enoch Grehan, faculty adviser.

Perhaps to an extent greater than in any other campus society, are democracy, good-fellowship, esprit d' corps, evinced in the make-up of "The Strollers." And it is these qualities, combined with sincere ambition, earnest endeavor, and capacity for hard work, that made the 1919 presentation of "Under Cover" measure to the ever-mounting Stroller standard.

The 1919 Production

"Under Cover," by Roi Cooper Megrue, was produced May 3, at the Lexington Opera House, with the following cast:

James Duncan . . . . . Duane Rogers	Amy Cartwright . . . . . Mary E. James
Harry Gibbs . . . . . Terrill Tapscott	Michael Harrington . . . . . Lee McClain
Peter . . . . . Fred Augsburg	Lambart . . . . . Auryne Bell
Daniel Taylor . . . . . Emery Frazier	Nora Rutledge . . . . . Margaret Smith
Sarah Peabody . . . . Carlisle Chenault	Alice Harrington . . . . . Eliza Spurrier
Ethel Cartwright . . . . . Lucy Young	Monty Vaughn . . . . . William Baker
Steven Denby . . . . . Augustus Gay

A brilliant audience greeted enthusiastically a performance remarkable for the universal finish of acting and scenic effects. "Under Cover" is one of the most difficult plays for an amateur cast to undertake, and the success of its presentation was due not only to the excellence of the actors, but to the hard work and untiring efforts of the stage manager, Grover Creech, and to the enthusiastic coaching of Carroll Sax.

The splendid showing made this year by the Strollers more than assures the success of the little theater planned for the University next year.

JUST TALK

Senior Class Prophecy

A DIARY

MILDRED H. GRAHAM

January 3, 1935. Midnight.

I HAVE kept a diary since I was in college fifteen years ago, and now I am glad I have, for tonight I can connect what I have seen today with those days long ago when we were saying that Kentucky would in the future come into its own and that some day we would be proud to say that she was our Alma Mater. Now in the year 1935 that time has come. I realized that as I sat there. The Class of 1919, however, I say it modestly, has done more than anything else to bring this day about.

Today was the first time I had been on the campus in these fifteen years. I was sent down from the New York Times to cover the story, for Kentucky had done something new in the way of advertising and the papers all over the country, seeing that it was a good thing, determined to make a feature of it. Of course, I was interested personally, as the whole affair had to do with the Class of 1919, and as I sat waiting for the performance to begin I thought of the times I had sat, not in that beautiful hall, but in the old chapel, and listened to the inspired speeches of the smartest professors in the country.

I have just looked back in my diary to April of last year for the beginning of the whole affair, and I see that the idea was originated by Doctor McVey, who, though old, is still President, and is being highly praised throughout the country now for his splendid idea of advertising his university. I remember in April as I was in Berlin working my head off covering the installation of the first President of Germany for the Times, Lee McClain and Grover Creech called on me to explain the plan. It seemed that Doctor McVey, knowing what wonderful things the members of the Class of 1919 were accomplishing, decided to have men visit these members at all the corners of the earth, taking moving pictures of their every-day life. These pictures would be shown all over the country to show what a University of Kentucky education can do for one later in life. Naturally the President chose the 1919 Class, as it had done more and become more famous since graduation than any other class in the history of the school. True, a few members were dead and buried, but the majority were alive and kicking. As Grover and Lee were the biggest men in the moving picture world and in dramatics, having got their start in the "Strollers" when in college, they were naturally asked to take charge. Lee added his persuasive tones to secure the best pictures possible. I learned that Virginia Graham, who as a literary critic, has a reputation throughout the earth, had charge of the arranging of the pictures and heading them making for a complete whole.

The University was paying all of the expenses of these people, which amounted to a good deal, as they had to travel over all the world, but the University felt that by showing 1919 at home and at work it could make itself better known than by any other means.

WALLACE '20

And so they had come to me in Berlin and snapped me in my work of covering the biggest event of the country. Today I sat in the wonderful men's and women's building erected ten years ago, the plan of which was started by the remarkable Class of 1919, and waited for the completed picture to be thrown on the screen.

The whole film was called "Around the World in Thirty Minutes with the Class of 1919." The lights went out and the Hall was silent. The picture was to be shown here at home first, before going over the country, and everyone knew how important the whole affair was. So there was a breathless silence as the screen read for the first picture, "Is It Heaven or Hell?" thereby showing that Virginia knew her Mark Twain fairly well. The picture was of Mount Aetna, its snowy peaks rising above the surrounding country. At the foot of the mount was a large tabernacle filled with jabbering people, and standing before them, preaching to them and showing them how to get to Heaven and escape Hell, and incidentally telling them the good and bad effects of volcanoes and how the craters can be utilized, all of which was learned under Monkey Miller in the old University, were Mr. E. E. Gotherman and Mr. D. D. Dugan. Right under the preachers' noses was Elizabeth McGowan, who, after fifteen years, was still trying to get a Ph.D. in English, and who was writing her doctor's thesis even then on why each preacher throughout the world has his first and second name beginning with the same initial and taking Mr. E. E. Gotherman and Mr. D. D. Dugan as examples. Over to one side sat Perry Thomas at a seismograph listening for earthquakes, and every few minutes when one would come, he would stop the worship to announce it, after which the congregation would rise and sing (so the screen read) "How Firm a Foundation."

The next picture which flashed before us was called "The Story of an African Farm," and showed Eliza Clay Mason and "L. B." surrounded by a cloud of enthusiastic darkness, which cloud they were teaching to run a cafeteria in the latest approved style. This cafeteria served all the missionaries as they got off the boat with cocoanut soup. Just then a lecture was being given on the subject of "A Balanced Diet," and when one of the dusky pupils was asked by Eliza Clay to demonstrate he politely stood on his head.

The scene changed quickly and Honolulu was pictured. A small white house was seen in the background and before it was a class in mathematics under the direction of Edna Berkele. The class was figuring out the problem of how long it would take a man to get to heaven if Alpha Centuri, the nearest star, was 26,000,000,000,000 miles away from the earth. Soon the class passed out and in came Mary Beall. I was surprised to see how thin Mary had got in these fifteen years of toil under the tropical sun. She and Edna sat down to continue their figuring which they had started eight years ago, namely that of working out how long it would take them to get back to home, sweet home by airship if fifteen years ago it had taken them five weeks to go by steamer. They soon seemed to despair, and the picture passed on to show a scene in Rome. It was moonlight and a crowd was dimly seen filing into the Coliseum. When they were seated Marie Collins, in a Red Cross uniform, appeared and gave a long talk in Latin about the Red Cross and showed them the Latin way of folding bandages as well as the English. True there was no war, but Marie liked her job nevertheless. Louise Turner was helping her and cutting the material, but in a rather abstract way, as she was thinking "Erl, Erl." In the background sat L. H. Bauer, the artist of the class, painting the spectacle before him by the light of a candle. When the finished picture was thrown on the screen to show what Kentucky art meant to 1919 it showed in the foreground Grover winding out the film in taking the picture and Lee with a megaphone yelling and gesticulating to the crowd to throw their hats in the air when Marie finished speaking. Bauer believed in realism more than in idealism, and this had been taught him back at old Kentucky.

The next picture was called "In Time of Peace Prepare for War," or "The Result of Kentucky Militarism." A large military camp was seen, but it looked rather deserted. A chapel was then shown and there were all of the men kneeling and praying for war. This was their strictest duty and three times a day they would gather to invoke the gods for a fight. Not so much that they wanted one, but that John Leman would lose his occupation in life if there wasn't a war soon. He had lived on hopes now for fifteen years and he wanted reality for a change. Fritz deMey, a Kentucky militarist, was leading the service, while Captain Reusch lead the song. First came "Blow, Trumpet, Blow," then "Encamped Along the Hills of Light," and finally "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

In one corner sat a man in the naval uniform whom I recognized as C. L. Templin. Every one near him was listening to what he was saying. After the service Charlie Planck came forward and lead the boys in their daily yells so that when a war did come they could use them to the best psychological advantage, namely of scaring the enemy to death. The yells were used in other ways, too, for every week Charlie would take out his worst bunch to try to raise a fight, and after the awful yells were rehearsed every one in camp thought that he would meet with success, but no such luck, for the yells were so bad that they didn't even move the people to complain. Outside during this time F. F. Elliot could be seen. He always missed the invocation to go and sit quietly by the cannon and talk to it.

In the background was seen a green and white house. The next picture was of its interior, where Miss Elizabeth Pickett and Mildred Collins were preparing a meal. They were put there by the government to keep the home for soldiers who were too lazy even to pray for war. In this way punishment was given these men, for invariably the food drove them out to seek solace in work and prayer beside their fellowmen. At the time the picture was taken Dillard Turner was there trying to smoke, but was too lazy even for that—or was that look on his face indicative of indigestion?

Steinhauser was seen outside, for though he worked for war also, he, while waiting for it to come to pass, worked a garden and kept the farm needed by the camp.

The next reel was called "Home, Sweet Home," and showed a country store. In this store Dick Duncan was seen sorting out the mail before he and Mrs. R. L. Duncan, in other days known as Betty Davis, started out to deliver it over the country. As the picture machine followed them on their tour down the road the first place they stopped was the home of Alec Hall, who six years ago had married Elizabeth Smith. I knew it was Alec's house by the motorcycle that was standing in front of the house. Next Dick and Betty entered the country bank to deliver mail to Russell David, who was bank president, and was a competent one, as he had learned so much about handling money when Treasurer of the Class of 1919.

The last house on their tour was a very good looking one. At the gate stood D. R. Dudley, looking sour and disconsolate. The screen read "Three is a Crowd," and he was angry as he had been since the night he had married Julia because she would not give up Elsie for him and he had to take care of them both.

The scene changed again and the inside of a church was shown. The decorations seemed to indicate a wedding. On the platform sat Eliza Spurrier and Bessie Conkwright taking notes as fast as they could, which was very fast for they had had so much practice under Mr. Grehan in the days of their youth. Finally the organ began to play and in walked Eliza and Freddy. It was startling to me, to say the least, for I thought them married long ago, but a note was thrown on the screen to explain that the reason that it hadn't happened sooner was that Freddy had got mixed up in politics with W. S. Baugh and couldn't get married till he got out. It took him ten years, for Baugh was a good political fighter and Freddy would never have got out but Walter Piper came along and with his persuasive power of speech got him free. Walter had learned this art when representative of the Class of 1919. Behind Eliza came Lucy Young as Maid of Honor, and behind her was Sarah Harbison, though she could not keep in step, for she was thinking of a wedding of her own. Thornton Connell was best man, so that I felt that it was quite a class affair. I was conscious of someone at the back of the church, looking into a small mirror and powdering her face, then she patted her hair, dampened her eyebrows and I recognized Ruth Cardwell, who had not lost the habit in all that time. Beside her sat Dorothy Walker, who was seeing that her wig was on straight. Her hair hadn't grown out in fifteen years. Messrs. Moosnick and Tapscott were ushers and they spent most of their time in trying to keep quiet a bunch of people at one side of the church who seemed to be in a heated argument. I recognized Richard Henry, Floris Whittinghil and Eleanor Baker, all of whom were gesticulating and scowling at some one whose back was to the camera. The man looked around as the ushers approached and then I understood. He had come to see two of his old pupils marry and had met others at which they had got in an argument over Poe during the ceremony. F. Paul Anderson, Jr., and Douglas Triplett soon joined the mob, not because of their interest, but vying with each other in talk-talk, bluffing the rest of the bunch into silence by their mighty language. They had learned the art at the university. After the ceremony Austin Lilly presented the happy couple with five of her oil wells as a small token of her great regard.

The next reel was called, "Oh, Death Where Is Thy Sting," which was a scientific film, and showed that science had developed so much in the hands of the members of the Class of 1919 that no fear was felt toward anything in life or death. The Cincinnati waterworks was seen and Louis Goldburg, Loften Burge and Eli Friedman were preparing a very delicate test for microbes. The greatest care was being taken. Over in one corner W. B. Kallbrier, C. B. Denton and Isaac Bowles were in an argument as to whether the chemists could make a microbe in the test tube if they didn't find one, and Rebecca Paritz was trying to make peace, though she loved to argue also. They had all been taught the art when they were students. The argument became so heated that the kindling point of some of the surrounding chemicals was reached and an explosion followed. The rest of the film was, of course, ruined, and the next picture showed a graveyard still at Cincinnati, and beside the graves sat Louise Stevenson with her Milton, trying to justify the ways of God to man.

A picture was next seen which I think would mean more toward advertising Kentucky than all others. An asylum was shown with Alma Bolser, Logan Figg and Ruth Duckwall in charge. They had had their experience along this line fifteen years ago when they were on the Student Government Council. As I recognized some of the inmates I was very much grieved. There was Auther Petrey, who went crazy over Virginia Burch; Ruby K. Diamond, who thought that he should be in an engagement ring; Mose Smith, C. N. Batsell and J. S. Wallingford, although the women were to blame in their cases; Frances McConnell, the man hater, who thought that she had been married nineteen times in fifteen years; G. R. Reddish, who was mad over bugs, and Margaret Tuttle, who went crazy four years ago when Austin tricked her and got married.

The Class of 1919 was next seen in the athletic world, for its members were known in all familiar fields of modern history. Bill Hayden was manager of the All-Woman Team, which played at a late Suffrage Convention and beat the men 118 to nothing, though the men were lead by Gordon Marsh and George Frankel. Gordon got hurt as usual and when the game was over he went back to the farm to try to farm according to the methods taught by W. P. Rhoads in one of the high schools of the state, though he and Stedman spent most of their time in argument, as Stedman thought that his farm was the best in the country.

In the next picture H. G. Proctor was seen smoking away as he supervised the work of R. W. Hanson and E. A. Lillard and J. M. Eyl in building a bridge to bind us to England should another war come.

Mrs. Horlacher was seen conducting a matrimonial agency as she wanted others to follow in her footsteps. At the time the picture was taken Margaret Sexton, Ada Hardesty, Katherine Parrish and Elizabeth Featherston, who had taught languages for a couple of years, had all given up and were out for a quick catch. Ada was so enthusiastic over the prospects that for the first time in her life she was excited and danced around, hugging Margaret Sexton, while both were singing for joy. This soon ceased, however, when Laura Cassidy came in. This was the fourteenth agency she had visited, and they wondered if they were to suffer the same fate.

Headley Shouse was shown in politics in New York. His talent had been developed when he was Class President of the class and he was making the state walk the chalk.

Ila See and Everett Kelley were seen next hard at work on the greatest history of the century, chiefly that of the remarkable class as seen by the pictures. Ila had had the theory well in hand when she left Doctor Tutthill fifteen years ago, and Kelley had had the practice at the same time when he wrote the class history.

The last picture shown was of the hospital where Grover, Lee and Virginia had retired after their many experiences. They were smiling and happy though, for they knew that they had done much both for advertising Kentucky and its education and for humanity in general. Who could have seen the startling results of such an education and not made an opportunity to be educated themselves?

I have written a good deal for one day's diary and must now retire, knowing that Kentucky will go forward from now on.

Things As They Are

A DREARY, rainy Sunday, just the kind that puts one in an old time religion sort of mood. The combination of a rainy March day, a quiet hour at Patt Hall, the heavy consciousness of work put off and then the memory and after effects of a Sunday dinner would reduce Job himself to a condition, in which he would lift his voice and cry aloud, that of happiness, there was none in the world.

Four years at Patt Hall, four years trying to fit one's self into the various procrustean beds of the various deans, house-directors, and matrons who have come and gone; four years of living in a rioting mob of girls, shoving for anything from petty honors to obtaining an extra "wiennie" at the table. After these four years a Senior may well be permitted to place the hand on the aching brow and murmur, "Oh, death, where is thy sting?"

A number of us came to the University with the burning desire to do something. Instead, we have been running about "bluffing" the professors in our classes; gathering in one another's rooms at midnight to nibble a bit of cheese and sing "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here." Most of us have learned well that we are but bubbles of the frailest texture which the eternal Saki from his bowl hath poured. We have learned that college is not a place of quiet study and meditation on grand and eternal truths, but that rivalry, greed and injustice hold sway upon the college campus as emphatically as in the greater world outside college gates.

The innocent Freshman arrives in Lexington and takes a South Lime car—never to be forgotten—expecting a hearty welcome upon her arrival at Patt Hall by a band of fellow travelers. Does she get it? That depends. She will soon learn that the first few weeks of school are a process of elimination, sifting and selection. If she is one of the favored she is rushed, lunched and admired; if not, about all she ever gets in the way of a welcome is the sight of a table in the parlor with a sign "Y. W. C. A." If this poor Freshman is of a certain type she will shrug her shoulders and follow her own path. If she is of the adorable "feminine type" she sits on her little two-by-four bed and sobs until her eyes look like Roman candles in the dark. In any case, she soon realizes that though the "quality of Mercy is not strained," it is surely an extremely rare article when one is a stranger in a strange land at the University of Kentucky.

The Freshman is soon impressed with the fact that the course of true love never runs true, especially at the Hall. It is safe to say that Romeo and Juliet would never have thrived in such atmosphere. The blooming young thing from the country usually meets some gallant youth whom she is convinced is the equal of any knight of old. Even Sir Galahad, himself, would have appeared rather commonplace, if he had had to woo Guinevere at the Ben Ali or the Fayette Drug. Every maiden hunts for a quiet, peaceful corner, where the two can sit and reveal themselves to one another as understanding souls, but it is a safe bet that she never finds such a haven. With no cozy corners, the one choice is the picture show, and those still possessing those Puritanical ideals of the time of Cotton Mather, have only the street to stroll up and down.

Then in February another ideal is shattered. The unsuspecting young thing finds that plagiarism, to put it rather mildly, is a thing that "ain't," when it comes to the examination room. But there is still one more evil that is worse than the small one of cheating—the evil of bluffing. Good old conscientious work for the "A," that may go back home to the grand old people who are paying the bills, that their hearts may be made glad, knowing that their daughter is working to make herself capable of demanding a position of respect in this cruel old world, is far more rare than legs on an angle worm.

AT PATT HALL'S DOOR
The Porch May Be Dark, But —

Possibly the most disgusting child of all nature is the one who flirts with these grand old Profs, and openly makes love to them so that they may stand in the good graces of the Mighty, so to speak. Of the three evils, cheating, bluffing, and love making, there is not a doubt but that the latter is the worst. The girl who is the criminal of this type is always found hanging back after class to slip a sweet smile under the face of the prof, or gets the habit of calling him up at his home on the pretext of asking some question about the lesson.

KENTUCKIAN

OUSTED.

Member of Soused family: Alas, this is all that is left of Senior Heaven.

In Memoriam

There are poems and songs and pictures drawn,
  Of the end of a perfect day;
But there comes to my mind a view more sublime
  That soon shall pass away.

By an old swinging door, in a vacated store
  Once a bar-room with fixtures grand;
O, so empty and old, with its staves all cold
  'Tis empty, boys, can hardly stand.

His symmetrical shape, now altered by fate,
  Has changed to a crumbling pile;
And round him are heaped "dead soldiers" who sleep
  While silence reigns high all the while.

So, Old Timer, good bye, we all have to die,
  It is sadly I sing you this carol;
Tho' useless you are like your old friend, the bar,
  Here is to you "My Old Empty Barrel."

—Frizzy.

ED DABNEY
Announces himself for President of the Senior Class 1920.

SMITH PARKS
Some people live on the achievements and reputation of their kinsmen.

JOE CAMBRON
Now sailing on the "bounding sea" of matrimony but once a passenger on ships that sail on other seas, that lash themselves against the shores, almost hiding beneath the foam.

EVERETT ELSEY
God bless the woman. Without her life is a bore; with her it is a tragedy.

TERRILL TAPPSCOTT
Nobody loves a fat man, but Tappscott is an excellent judge of cattle.

J. P. LAND
Some people are born with brains, others with big feet—and others just happen.

ED PARKER
For three long years Ed has tried to be the first athlete in the Kappa Alpha chapter since its establishment at the University of Kentucky.

CATHERINE TUCKER
At one time school was a pleasure, but since "Tillie" has absconded the hardware store is much more attractive.

NEAL KNIGHT
Some ships may pass in the (k)night, but others may stay so close to Mechanical Hall that they cannot lift anchor.

JESSIE TAPP
You may take the boy out of the country, but you certainly cannot take the country out of the boy.

BETTIE DAVIS
Only a short time now until Bettie will be assistant mail carrier. Poor Dick Duncan—for four years in the Mechanical College, preparing to lick postage stamps.

TOM GORMAN
Without him the Sigma Nus would be a whole cage of "squirrels." It is a fact that one good fellow can be the support of a chapter.

BILLIE WALLACE
Absolutely the most "popular" man in the Mechanical College. Are you a Red Cross member? Then knit.

TODD GREEN
Once upon a time a fellow wore a frown from worry. Then there was another fellow who wore a frown on account of daughters of "oil kings."

SIGSBY SHERWOOD
Escaped from the jungles of Africa, captured and named "Tarzan" by Barnum-Bailey, now released and hitched in Lexington.

Dante's Inferno

(With due apologies to all parties concerned)

I dreamed a dream last night,
  It made me laugh with glee;
For the scene laid out before my eyes
  Furnished unclothed joy for me.

I found myself in the bottomless pit
  Some few thousand feet below,
But Satan knew not that I was there;
  Undisturbed, I beheld the show.

The old scratch was much too busy
  To pay me any heed,
For there in the brimstone fire
  Was "Red" Farquar making unrefined speed.

An imp just outside the office
  By whirling him on a fork,
Was demonstrating to "Big" Paul
  New ways of describing a torque.

I could hardly keep from shouting
  When down in the gate below,
"Old Monk" begged a holiday
  And the imp sternly said "No."

Then J. Mort, in anguish, listened
  To a fresh imp at the board,
"Say seven times eight is fifty-six
  'Cause the old cow crosses the road."

Driving on through the hottest fire,
  Enveloped in the whitest heat,
Our Prexy was steering the Franklin,
  While Prince Pat held down the rear seat.

A train loaded with boiling soup
  Came rushing madly through Hell.
The cars were labeled "Patt Hall,"
  And in bold type, "Handle with Care."

That I saw the whole —— faculty
You have no doubt concluded;
But lest you overlook, I'll simply add
Ezra was there also.

Paragorically Speaking

Poor old Pi Kappa Alpha, only one man left in school this year and no meeting place, no fines to pay—no nothing. Guess the chapter will turn its charter over to Transylvania.

If these S. A. E's. continue to pledge men in the same rampant manner that they have practiced this year, it will be but one more year until there will be an S. A. E. political party, with the odds in favor of a President from this bunch.

* * *

The way Chi Omega and Kappa Kappa Gamma rush prospective pledges, reminds one of election day at a Democratic primary.

Who ever heard of a Jew being associated with a bunch of Greeks?

PAT CAMPBELLL'S MUSTACHE

Isn't it funny how meeting places of fraternities change during a few years? Now look at the K. A's. This year they hold their meetings in the Y. M. C. A. Then there is that A. T. O. bunch, with their weekly gatherings at Patt Hall. The most unique way of imposing fines belongs to this bunch. The fine is paid by the malefactor in chocolate sundaes, which are fed to the sweethearts of the dear brothers.

There was once a time when the Sigma Chi's had a little old song called "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." But that did not happen this year, because no one would go with them.

Some bunches make a mistake by taking in members of certain nationalities, not exactly according to best taste—but when the Phi Deltas slipped one over on the other boys, several sororities thought they were covering too much territory.

Now that "Old Brit" has passed through the gates of the dear old institution, what will become of the Kappa Sigs? Of course, "Tubby" will do all he can, but with all of his "understanding," the "shimmy" dance won't stay forever.

If the Sigma Nu bunch would plant a bunch of trees in their front yard, there wouldn't be a chance in the world to keep all the squirrels in the country out of them. But then Nuts is Nuts and Squirrels is Squirrels.

GIRL'S ATHLETICS.

It certainly is time to quit when the Pan-Hellenic Box Party adjourns from the theatre to the private dining room of the Phoenix. You know a number of "pops" just had to fit into the occasion.

Beauty may not make up the Alpha Xi Delta fraternity, but the superabundance of brains makes up for all that.

The only man in the Horace Mann is dead.

If every crowd of girls stuck together as closely as the Kappa Deltas, then "in union there would be strength."

* * *

The last act—"Alpha Delta Sigma."

Where the "bull" flows—Tau Kappa Alpha.

Iron Heads—Tau Beta Pi.

Beauty personified—Alpha Gamma Delta.

The biggest joke of the season. The forty cents received (?) by the members of the R. O. T. C.

It is reported that in the future "individual playing" on the part of the members of the basketball team will be punished by severe fines and possible expulsion from school. Grand, grand.

* * *

From the looks of this annual, it seems that about all some people come to the University for is to get their picture in the year book.

As long as politics plays the leading role in an educational institution, there will be no education.

* * *

If there is anything that a college crowd loves and still has not the possession, it is College Spirit. But the Class of '19 makes up for all faults.

* * *

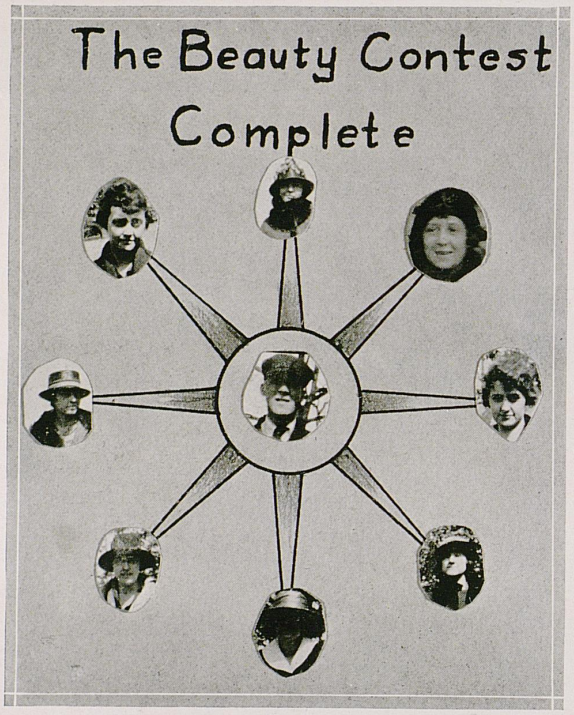

As long as the Sophs remain afraid of the Freshmen, there will be no Tug o' War. Future classes will look after this, no doubt.

Now that the Mechanicals have been moved over to Scovell Park, they feel very much more at home.

Stafford Engravings Are Used in This Annual Because of Quality— and Service

You will find our engravings in a great number of the high-class year books that are published throughout the entire United States. We have a department which specializes in making halftones, color plates, zinc etchings, art work and designs for college and school publications. We use the famous Levy Acid Blast process, which produces halftones that print far better than plates made in the ordinary way, and which greatly aids the printer in making an artistic success of his work.

In order to co-operate with our customers more closely, we have prepared a valuable book "Engraving for College and School Publications," which we loan to the staff of every publication which uses Stafford Engravings. This book contains 164 pages and over 300 illustrations, and will be of great assistance in simplifying ordering, in preventing costly mistakes and in securing highest quality engraving at lowest cost. This helpful book is not sold—simply loaned to Stafford customers.

We also specialize in Commencement Invitations; Fraternity, Sorority and Club Stationery; Visiting Cards, and other Copper Plate Engraving and Steel Die Embossing. Samples with Prices on Request.

A "Good Anytime" Dessert

Such a dish of plain Jell-O as Bobbie and Jack welcome with clapping of hands and cries of "Oh, Good-e-e-e!" is good enough for anybody.

But just now, when "substitutes" are still having their day, Jell-O, whipped like cream, is one of the most useful and enjoyable of all foods.

What particularly interests college girls is the fact that whipped Jell-O—say in the form of a pineapple Bavarian cream—is a treat, and one that any girl can provide.

The new Jell-O Book tells how to make all the whipped Jell-O dishes and it will be sent to any address.

Jell-O is put up in six pure fruit flavors: Strawberry, Raspberry, Lemon, Orange, Cherry, Chocolate, and is sold by all grocers, 2 packages for 25 cents.
