The University of Kentucky

A Tradition of Value

From its modest beginnings in 1865, when it was known as State College, the University of Kentucky has grown into one of the nation's most outstanding institutions of higher learning.

As a comprehensive land-grant university, UK offers an educational experience that cannot be matched anywhere in the Commonwealth. In fact, only a small number of institutions across the nation can offer the wealth of opportunities that await students at UK.

Enrollment on the University's campus in Lexington is more than 23,000, while about 33,000 attend UK's 14 community colleges throughout the Commonwealth. That represents one-third of all students attending public or private colleges, business schools and universities in the state.

Average scores on the ACT (the entrance exam for all UK freshmen) have been increasing every year, and now at 22+ are higher than those for any public university in the state and three points higher than the national average. The result is a better quality student body each year.

The number of students wanting to attend UK has also been increasing each year with applications for admission this fall at the 11,000 mark.

The University's academic scholarship program — scholarships awarded on merit alone — has grown from $70,000 a year in 1983 to more than $1 million in 1988. Tops among these awards are the Singletary Scholarships, which this year honored 13 students with four expense-paid years at UK.

The Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching has classified UK as a "Research University of the First Class," the only such institution in Kentucky and one of only 45 in the nation.

The University is now one of only a small number of universities in the nation to acquire a "supercomputer." UK's IBM 300E, with three "vectors," will attract more research funding and grants, and it will be made available to undergraduate students.

UK faculty brought more than $50 million in research grants and sponsored programs to the University and the state last year — a valuable resource to the economic development of the Commonwealth. UK ranks among the Top 100 research universities in federal research funding, the only one so ranked in the state.

A university's list of alumni indicates the quality of that school's service to the campus and community. Included in the University's list of more than 100,000 alumni are seven governors, two Nobel Prize winners, an astronaut, and several chief executive officers of national corporations.

The university's fine faculty includes Anthony DeMarie, president of the American College of Cardiology, and R. David Cobb, chairman-elect of the American Pharmaceutical Association's board of trustees.

David Kao, civil engineering, was named one of the nation's top 100 researchers by Science Digest Magazine. And Virgil Hayes, animal sciences, has been elected president of the Council for Agricultural Science and Technology in the United States.

Memorial Hall, built in 1929, hosts cultural events and holds large classes.

University of Kentucky graduates have entered every field; seven have been governors, two Nobel Prize winners, an astronaut, and several CEO's of national corporations.

Wildcats Have Something To Prove

By Ed Kromer

Beginning another college football season is like gazing into a crystal ball, clouded by the earthen shades of fall and the familiar colors of each school's team.

The Kentucky Wildcats' view is tainted by Indiana Crimson, Auburn Blue, LSU Purple and Tennessee Orange. But past all of those colors, they picture the Kentucky Blue out on the field contesting a winter bowl game.

And why not? On paper, they should have a fantastic season.

Meanwhile, the Indiana Hoosiers, Kentucky's first opponent, look into the ball and at the stats sheet and wince. But who will win the games and go to the bowls? The preseason and pregame predictions are now just that — predictions. Opening day will begin to answer these questions.

But let's take a look at these two teams. Kentucky has 13 returning starters. Indiana has just seven, and only one on defense.

Senior defensive tackle Oliver Barnett could be an all-American if he picks up where he left off in 1988 — sacking quarterbacks.

Today's Game Notes

THE SERIES — Indiana holds a 12-6-1 advantage in the battle for the bourbon barrel. Indiana possesses a 5-3-1 record in games played in Lexington and also has a 7-3 advantage in Bloomington.

THE LAST MEETING — Things looked bad for the Wildcats before the last meeting of these two teams commenced. Their bus was in an accident on the way to Bloomington. None of the players was injured, but their luck didn't get any better.

The accident may have shaken the Wildcats up more than they expected. They came out in a daze and allowed their first punt to be blocked. History repeated at the start of the second half, with the Cats down three. This time the block — Mike Dumas' second — set up a quick touchdown to make it 17-7, Indiana.

"That took the heart out of them," said Anthony Thompson. "After that they weren't the same."

After two of Pete Stoyanovich's three field goals, Indiana was up 23-7. Kentucky scored again, but Indiana was quick to counter. After the Wildcats punted with 11:59 to play in the final quarter, Indiana kept a vice-grip on the football. Their deliberate march to paydirt delivered the coup de gras, a last-second touchdown. The final was 36-15.

"I wouldn't necessarily say they were a better football team," said Randy Holleran afterward. "We just made way too many mistakes."

And no one looked forward to the bus ride home.

THE STORYLINE — The 1988 matchup is a reversal of last year's situation. This time Kentucky is the experienced squad, with 13 returning starters and 34 returning lettermen from 1988. Indiana is rebuilding with only seven starters, 28 lettermen and nine seniors.

Kentucky will try to avenge last year's loss in Bloomington. With that victory, the Hoosiers avenged a 1987 drubbing at the hands of the Wildcats.

THE COACHES — Kentucky's Jerry Claiborne enters his eighth year with the Wildcats hoping to improve on his 35-41-3 record. His career record is 173-117-8 spanning 27 years. Claiborne is 3-1 against the Hoosiers.

Bill Mallory has been at the helm of the Indiana Hoosiers for five years with a record of 26-30-1. He has taken his team to a bowl for the past three years, earning a record of 22-13-1 in those years. His career record is 125-82-2 over 19 years. Mallory is 1-2 versus Kentucky.

PLAYERS TO WATCH — The Wildcat defensive front returns Senior tackle Oliver Barnett and a cast of hungry Cats to battle the Indiana trenchmen. Barnett (6-4, 279) is the strongest player on the team and the steadiest on the line. His 19 career sacks and tough play have earned him preseason all-SEC honors.

Joining him on that team is the cornerstone of the Wildcat offensive line — Mike Pfeifer (6-7, 305). Pfeifer and company will attempt to open up some mammoth holes for a talented backfield that includes seniors Andy Murray (6-1, 242) and Alfred Rawls (5-11, 200), and junior Al Baker (5-11, 225). Rawls rushed for 477 yards and Baker for 373 in 1988. Murray has a career average of 4.2 yards per carry.

Indiana has a running back to brag about too. Senior Anthony Thompson (6-0, 209) is coming off a stellar season that earned him Big Ten Player of the Year and consensus all-America honors. He rushed for 1,686 yards and 26 touchdowns in 1988 and is a leading Heisman Trophy candidate.

Second-team all-Big Ten quarterback Dave Schnell also returns for the Hoosiers. Schnell passed for 1,877 yards and nine TDs. Snapping to Schnell will be Ron Vargo (6-2, 275), an all-Big Ten candidate.

A young defense will be paced by junior cornerback Mike Dumas, who blocked two punts against Kentucky a year ago. A rebuilt line features two-year letterman Nolan Harrison (6-6, 265) at tackle.

Kentucky has 21 seniors. Indiana lost 24. Kentucky has developed team speed, strength and experience. Indiana returns a few key players.

Kentucky is paced by preseason all-Americans Mike Pfeifer and Oliver Barnett. Flashy, high-profile players? No, offensive tackle Pfeifer (6-7, 305) and defensive tackle Barnett (6-4, 279) are just linemen doing their job, maybe just a little better than most. The rest of Kentucky's cast will not end up on the cover of Sports Illustrated, but seems vastly improved from the squad who was so close to being a power a year ago.

The stronger Wildcats have increased their combined lift by 78.9 pounds and cut more than a second off their previous time in the 40-yard dash. There are plenty of big, strong, fast seniors to go around.

The defense, despite the loss of linebacker Randy Holleran, should be one of the toughest in the SEC. Barnett is a safe bet to keep the pressure on opponents. Joining him on the line will be Mike Chism (6-0, 264), Joey Couch (6-1, 248) and Donnie Gardner (6-4, 235). Tony Massey (6-2, 221) returns at the left outside linebacker spot with Jeff Brady (6-1, 230) at the other.

Linebacker Craig Benzinger goes on without his fallen comrade, Holleran, while Billy Swanson attempts to fill his shoes. Free safety Ron Robinson returns to lead a veteran backfield that includes cornerbacks Chris Tolbert and Albert Burks. The punting duties, a headache of late, will be on the foot of Bill Hawk.

Experience on offense will allow Claiborne to experiment a little. With the talented threesome of runners, Andy Murray (fullback), Al Baker (tailback) and Alfred Rawls (tailback), Claiborne intends to use the option. Plenty of blocking should be there for the Wildcat carriers. The burly offensive wall, including Mike Nord, Bill Hulette, Brian Cralle, Joel Mazzella and led by Pfeifer, averages 6-4, 286 pounds.

The quarterback duel continues with Chuck Broughton and Freddie Maggard challenging for the start. Their option includes not only a strong running game, but also a large group of capable receivers. The air force includes split ends John Bolden and Alfred Jones, flankers Steve Phillips and Greg Hunt, and tight end Mike Meece. Split end Neal Clark has come on of late to challenge for a starting spot. Ken Willis should provide some stability and extra scoring punch to the place-kicking game.

Indiana was a force in 1988. Not a major force, but a definite threat to any opposition. An 8-3-1 record and a Liberty Bowl victory were the work of a team led by a talented senior class. Now they are without experience on defense and have an apparently one-dimensional attack.

Sophomore split end Neal Clark has come out of nowhere to challenge for a starting spot.

But what a dimension. Anthony Thompson (6-0, 209) is on everyone's preseason all-world list. The senior running back was a consensus all-American last year and enters 1989 as a strong contender for that coveted bronze stiff-arm, the Heisman.

But any extension of his 3,506 career rushing yards will come behind an untested line. Quarterback Dave Schnell adds an additional rushing punch and an accurate arm, if he can find some consistent targets. Much of the receiving corps with which he connected for 1,877 yards and nine touchdowns has been depleted.

The defensive line has also been knocked down and rebuilt for the new season. Inexperience can be found in most aspects of the Hoosiers' game.

So, on paper, Kentucky gets the nod for both the opening game and the more successful season.

But don't count the Hoosiers out. There is, after all, this thing about a bourbon barrel. It represents a longstanding rivalry between two states and two schools that may be most notable on the basketball court. But only on the gridiron do they play for the unusual prize.

It seems that football teams will do almost anything to earn rights to an empty liquor container for a year. What should happen, judging by statistics, is often thrown out to make room for what does happen after the opening kickoff. Games like this are won by desire.

Head Coach Jerry Claiborne

Jerry Claiborne knows the true meaning of college athletics.

Kentucky's head football coach, who turned 61 August 26, has long been an advocate of the proper mix between academics and athletics. His record bears witness to his integrity and an ideal turned reality.

In 27 years as a collegiate head coach, Claiborne has had four players named Academic All-American and 87 players chosen Academic All-Conference. On the field, Claiborne has had one player earn the Outland Trophy, one earn the Lombardi Trophy, 13 named All-American and 53 named All-Conference.

Claiborne's charges won the 1989 College Football Association Academic Achievement Award for highest graduation rate (90 percent). And since he became head coach at Kentucky in 1982, the Wildcats have led the Southeastern Conference in Academic Honor Roll selections with 51.

But while Claiborne's teams have hit the books, they have administered the same treatment to their opponents, appearing in 11 bowl games and winning four conference championships (one Southern, three Atlantic Coast).

Claiborne begins his 28th season with a career record of 173-117-8 (.594). He ranks fourth among active NCAA 1-A coaches in career victories, behind Bo Schembechler of Michigan (224), Joe Paterno of Penn State (212) and Bobby Bowden of Florida State (185). Claiborne's .594 winning percentage ranks 16th among active coaches.

The Hopkinsville native is one of only a handful of coaches to be named Coach of the Year in three different conferences: Southern (1963), Atlantic Coast (1973, 1975, 1976) and Southeastern (1983).

In December 1981, the University of Kentucky beckoned for one of its own to return; Claiborne accepted and became UK's 31st head football coach. In seven years, Claiborne has guided Wildcat teams to a 35-41-3 record and two bowls. Take away a transitional 0-10-1 record during his first campaign at UK in 1982, and Claiborne has compiled a 35-31-3 ledger.

Jerry Claiborne walks tall these days in front of his strongest, fastest Wildcats.

Only two Kentucky coaches have had six consecutive seasons with at least five victories and appeared in at least two bowl games — Claiborne and his mentor, Paul "Bear" Bryant.

But athletic statistics aside, Claiborne's greatest accomplishment has been to help place so many of his student-athletes into society. The UK football graduation rate, based on the 1982 and 1983 freshman signees, is 90.2 percent. Kentucky broke the stronghold of Notre Dame, Duke and Virginia this past year by winning the Academic Achievement Award, the first time another school has broken the triumvirate since the award's induction in 1981.

While earning three football letters at Kentucky, Claiborne accumulated a 2.7 GPA on the old 3.0 scale and graduated in 1950 with "high distinction" in mathematics and physical education. He was named Outstanding Senior in the College of Education.

Claiborne began coaching football and basketball at Augusta Military Academy in Ft. Defiance, Va. In two years, he established himself as an up-and-coming young coach with a state championship in both sports.

But a call from Bear Bryant brought a quick end to his high school coaching. Claiborne returned to his alma mater as an assistant coach on Bryant's 1952 staff.

In 1954, Claiborne followed Bryant to Texas A&M and became defensive coordinator. After a 1-9 record in '54, the Aggies took off and claimed the Southwest Conference title with a 9-0-1 record in 1956.

Claiborne's stock rose dramatically. Frank Broyles, then head coach at Missouri, hired Claiborne away from Bryant in time for the 1957 season. As defensive coordinator at Missouri, Claiborne helped the Tigers post a 5-4-1 record, their first winning campaign in four years.

Bryant called on Claiborne again, this time to join his staff at Alabama as defensive coordinator, and Claiborne again answered. He helped the Crimson Tide earn a three-year mark of 20-7-5 and appear in the Liberty and Bluebonnet Bowls.

His immediate success as a prep head coach and collegiate assistant prompted Virginia Tech to make Claiborne its head football coach in 1961. Little did the folks at Blacksburg know that Claiborne, then 33, would take the Hokies to unprecedented heights for the next 10 seasons.

Claiborne guided the Hokies to a 61-39-2 record and appearances in the 1966 and 1968 Liberty Bowls. His 1963 squad, which finished 8-2, captured Tech's only Southern Conference championship. Claiborne was named the 1963 Southern Conference Coach of the Year and later the 1966 District III Coach of the Year after Tech finished 8-2-1.

But in 1970, following a 5-6 record, Claiborne left Virginia Tech to become an assistant coach at Colorado under Eddie Crowder. The 1971 Colorado football team ended the season ranked third nationally (10-2) and defeated Houston in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

The University of Maryland, which had suffered through five head coaches in 16 years and a dismal 60-100-1 record, looked to Claiborne for help. After a one-year absence from head-coaching, Claiborne took over the Terrapin football program in 1972, then at age 44.

Claiborne quickly built Maryland into the model football program of the Atlantic Coast Conference. After a mediocre first year, the program took off. Maryland won no fewer than seven games the next eight years, claimed three ACC championships and appeared in seven bowl games.

Claiborne was named ACC Coach of the Year three times, NCAA District III Coach of the Year (1973, 1975, 1976) and Sporting News National Coach of the Year (1974). He also tutored All-American defensive player Randy White, the 1974 Outland Trophy and Lombardi Trophy winner.

From those Maryland squads came 36 Academic All-ACC selections and four Academic All-Americans. One of the four was Claiborne's son, Jonathan.

In 1982 Kentucky called on Claiborne to replace Fran Curci, who had been the UK head coach for nine seasons.

Optimism was high as Claiborne entered his first season at UK. But the nation's second-toughest schedule faced Claiborne and his new Wildcat squad. The 11 opponents went on to compile an impressive 63-34-5 record. Kentucky was not so fortunate; it could only muster an 0-10-1 record.

Claiborne was quick to return to his winning ways. UK roared to a 5-1 start in 1983 and tied Memphis State for the nation's Most Improved squad with a 6-4-1 regular-season record. The turnaround earned the Wildcats the right to play in the Hall of Fame bowl, Kentucky's first postseason appearance since 1976. Though UK lost to West Virginia, 20-16, in the Bowl, Claiborne was voted SEC Co-Coach of the Year by the Associated Press.

In 1984, the magic continued. This time, Kentucky ended the regular season with an 8-3 record, capped by a thrilling 17-12 road victory over Tennessee to assure itself a return to the Hall of Fame Bowl. A 52-yard field goal by Joey Worley gave the Wildcats a 20-19 victory over Wisconsin in the bowl game and a fitting end to a 9-3 season.

Since then, Claiborne and his Kentucky squads have played the bridesmaid, waiting for their chance to work back into the happy marriage of postseason play. The Cats have strung together consecutive seasons of 5-6, 5-5-1, 5-6 and 5-6.

Claiborne is married to the former Faye Hooks of Hopkinsville, also a University of Kentucky graduate. They have four children: David, Jonathan, Mrs. Katie Newell and Eileen.

Claiborne's 173 victories rank him fourth among active NCAA I-A coaches, behind Bo Schembechler of Michigan (224), Joe Paterno of Penn State (212) and Bobby Bowden of Florida State (185).

Today in the Stadium

By Joey Howard
Assistant SID/ Football

Welcome to another year of football in the Bluegrass — Kentucky Wildcats' style.

Today begins the 1989 football season for the Kentucky Wildcats and no better place to start than in Commonwealth Stadium where the 'Cats have won 12 of their last 15 games. Indeed, Commonwealth is "Home Sweet Home."

A year ago, this page was created to assist you in knowing what to expect during pregame and halftime — whether a presentation was planned or what theme the UK Band would follow. Again in '89, this page will direct its attention to letting you know what to expect, aside from the game itself, in Commonwealth Stadium.

Once again, the University of Kentucky Wildcats' Marching Band will field one of the best bands in the country. The UK Band, 280 members strong, is under the direction of Dale Warren. Warren is assisted by John Vallentine and David Henderson.

Today's halftime entertainment is entitled, "The Western Show." The band will play toward the press-box side of the stadium. Featured titles include "Westward Yo," "Magnificent Seven," "Silverado" and "Western Finale."

The UK Band will also perform before the game, starting at approximately 1:15 p.m. The usual spelling of "C-A-T-S" and chant of "Two Bits" by the UK Cheerleaders are also included during pregame. One item of note: look for a little different field configuration by the UK Band to welcome the football Wildcats onto the field just before kickoff.

The UK Marching Band, one of the first college bands in the country to use computers exclusively for drill writing, will have over 130,000 different positions or "moving sets" during its halftime show. That's an astronomical number when considering over 180,000 musical notes are being coordinated at the same time.

A close look at the 1989 UK Marching Band shows a flag corps of 28 members, 36 percussionists, 11 majorettes and two feature twirlers (Paula Bowen and Melanie Glasscock). In the UK Band are 80 music majors and members representing 18 states across the nation.

Also at halftime, the University of Ken-

Kentucky won the award by having the highest graduation rate in the country among CFA members. UK graduated 90 percent of its 1983 freshman signee class. A year earlier, Kentucky graduated 90.5 percent of its 1982 class and placed second.

Winning the award was not only a first for UK, but a first for the Southeastern Conference. Since the induction of this prestigious award in 1981, only Notre Dame, Duke and Virginia had claimed the honor of graduating the highest percentage of its players. That threesome was broken by Kentucky.

The presentation of the game ball will be undertaken in unusual fashion today. LeRoy Gallenstein, a UK med student, and his group of parachutists, called "Cloudburst," will drop in via the air at approximately 1:10 p.m. Gallenstein and company will parachute into Commonwealth Stadium (weather permitting) and deliver the game ball.

A reminder for the remaining six home games at Commonwealth: the University of Kentucky became the ninth of 10 Southeastern Conference schools to adopt a policy of "no umbrellas." Umbrellas are now prohibited in the stadium.

"We realize that the sun is not always shining during our football games," said C.M. Newton, UK's athletics director. "But we are concerned about the safety of our fans, and we want all of our fans to have an unobstructed view of the game."

Newton encourages everyone to check the weather forecasts and bring their rain gear — minus the umbrellas — if necessary. All concession stands will have plenty of ponchos available.

Commonwealth Stadium

When it comes to football, Kentucky-style, there is certainly no better place than home — Commonwealth Stadium.

Built in 1973, Commonwealth is one of the nation's best showcases for collegiate football. The stadium is located on the southwest corner of the University of Kentucky campus, convenient to both Cooper and Alumni Drives.

Commonwealth Stadium was built at a cost of $12 million by the firm of Huber, Hunt and Nichols, Inc. The stadium, including parking areas, rests on an 86-acre plot of what was once the UK Experimental Station Farm grounds.

The stadium was officially opened September 15, 1973. The Wildcats moved into their new home after spending 48 years at Stoll Field/McLean Stadium across from Memorial Coliseum. Kentucky defeated Virginia Tech in the stadium-opener, 31-26, behind three touchdowns by quarterback Ernie Lewis.

Since its opening, Kentucky has played 100 games within the friendly confines of Commonwealth Stadium. And indeed, the 56-41-3 record and .575 winning percentage is proof positive of the Wildcats' home-field advantage.

Kentucky has been particularly successful at home in recent years. The Wildcats have posted a 27-17-3 record (.606 pct.) at Commonwealth since Claiborne took over, winning 12 of their last 15 games. Included is Kentucky's 16-10 upset of 11th-ranked Georgia last October.

Large crowds have followed Kentucky football at Commonwealth Stadium. The Wildcats have averaged 55,325 spectators for contests at Commonwealth since its inception. In total, 5,532,451 spectators have witnessed Kentucky football at Commonwealth Stadium — that's about 1.4 times the population of Kentucky.

Commonwealth Stadium can officially seat 57,800, though standing-room only crowds exceed that figure. Most sat but many of the stadium-record 58,345 spectators stood to watch the Wildcats defeat Mississippi State 33-19 October 12, 1985. The second-largest crowd, 58,230, gathered a week earlier to watch Kentucky defeat Clemson 26-7.

An enclosed press box, which comfortably seats 120 members of the media, is located underneath the upper deck on the stadium's west side. The press box area has

At the beginning of 1989, the Wildcats had won 12 of the last 15 games at Commonwealth Stadium.

The University of Kentucky plans to eventually enclose the south end (Tates Creek Road) of Commonwealth Stadium to bring its capacity to 72,000. The addition of luxury suites and boxes is also in the plans.

The University of Kentucky provides first aid stations on the ground level on both

Persons in need of assistance with a health emergency should report the situation immediately to the nearest Boy Scout or usher.

Persons with any type of chronic problem should leave their name and seat location with the nurse on duty at either first aid station.

Tee-Time Is Over

Placekicker Ken Willis deals with a new rule

By Ed Kromer

Ken Willis planted his foot, snapped his leg and punched the football toward the goal posts that stood some 66 yards in the distance. The crowd watched in disbelief as the ball hurtled farther and farther through the autumn air.

A 66-yard field goal would shatter the school record of 52 yards held by Joey Worley and fall just one yard short of the NCAA record. Plus it would send the Wildcats into the locker room at the half nine points up on Florida in this game to decide who would play in the All-American Bowl. And Willis had already hit from 35 and 48 yards out.

The ball hooked to the side and fell wide but not short. Willis had plenty of air but not enough aim, typical of the Wildcats' 1988 season, a year of "almosts" and "what-might-have-beens." Characteristically, Kentucky went on to lose another close one 24-19.

Ken Willis proved one thing, though. Kentucky's kickoff, field goal and extra point man can kick the ball hard and far with "one of the strongest legs in the country," according to head coach Jerry Claiborne. Would-be return artists spent much of last season kneeling to Willis' deep blasts. Almost 40 percent of his kickoffs could not be returned.

So Willis can hit a field goal from 60 yards anytime? Not anymore. In this year's college kicking game, the emphasis will be on accuracy and height.

The elimination of the two-inch tee from field goal and extra-point kicking makes it tougher to clear the line of scrimmage and reportedly takes off up to 10 yards from each kick. Add the lack of ground stability, especially on grass, and the tee's absence will likely provide more of the things in football that cause headache and heartache — flubbed placements, blocked kicks and attempts just short of the crossbar.

Despite the necessary adjustments, the new rule suits Kentucky's placekicker just fine. Because he emphasizes his technical ability over his natural big foot, Willis feels he may have the edge off the ground. "I think I'm going to be better off than a lot of people not using a two-inch tee," Willis says. "You get away with a lot of bad technique with it."

This is not to say he has completely mastered the new style. It has simply given him another challenge to deal with in his football career.

Willis spent his childhood kicking soccer balls. When his Owensboro High School football team need a new kicker, he fit the bill. Willis took over the kicking game as a junior with soccer cleats and a big instep drive. "For two years of high school I placekicked and didn't know anything about it," says Willis.

He had some success, earning all-region and all-district honors for both punting and kicking his senior year. That season Willis went to a Kentucky game and watched Kevin Butler, Georgia's consensus all-American, kick the hide off the football.

"I was sitting next to my mom and I said 'someday I'm going to play down there.' I was just kidding at the time but I always look back to that point," he remembers.

But colleges barely glanced at Willis, so he decided to take his 3.78 GPA and head to Centre College. To break up his studies, he kicked a few for the football team and liked what he saw.

Meanwhile, Willis decided his talent had remained raw long enough. And Ron Pelphrey's Professional Kicking Services had the polish. The already strong-legged Willis listened to the technique lessons of Pelphrey, a sort of placekicker's guru, and learned.

After an admittedly enjoyable year at Centre, Willis decided to make good on his statement that fall day in Commonwealth Stadium. Kentucky never recruited him.

Ken Willis has proven his leg to be strong, but without tee he must rely on technique.

They even discouraged him from leaving his desirable situation at Centre. But Willis wanted no regrets and he transferred anyway.

Now his challenge is beyond making the team or earning a letter. It is to remain effective given a debilitating rule. He has already proven himself an asset, converting 63 percent of his field goal attempts and 21 of 23 extra points in 1988. He led all Wildcats in scoring last year with 57 points.

"I don't think the new rule will have much of an effect on Kenny," says Claiborne. "Kickers must get the ball elevated in a hurry and he does a good job with that."

But without a tee, Claiborne, or any coach, will hesitate to call out his kicker unless he can prove himself consistent in clearing the line and splitting the uprights.

So Willis is meeting the challenge with concentration and work. Before spring practice, he spent four weeks kicking nothing but six-yard chip shots through the goal posts.

"If you can clear the bar from six yards, you can clear the line of scrimmage," he says.

Once he became proficient from close range off the turf, Willis gradually moved away from the end-zone. But he still performs the bar drill every other day to remain sharp.

Willis has spent a great deal of time in his personal salt mine to excel on the football field and in the classroom. His earning UK's Outstanding Kicking Game award and selection to the Academic All-SEC Honor Roll are the fruits of a life with few holes for frivolity, much less hobbies. His days are dominated by football and school, with time left over only for life's necessities. So the necessities become hobbies.

"If I'm not working on schoolwork and I'm not working on kicking," he says, "then I'm pretty much sleeping or eating or...What else is there? Sleeping or eating."

The lessons learned at Pelphrey's kicking camps are drilled again and again. "I've heard nothing but technique for four or five years," he says. "When you start kicking off the ground, your technique is what gives you your height. I don't feel like I could be more prepared to kick than I am right now."

Willis kicked for 57 points in 1988, the Wildcats' leading scorer.

Part of preparedness is confidence and realistic knowledge of limitations. Willis knows that if a kicker is uncomfortable without a tee, he will be less effective. He believes he can kick a consistent 50 to 55 yards in a game if the weather conditions are calm.

But the weather is more often than not the placekicker's true opponent. At times it can be his sworn enemy.

The summer drought of 1988 gave way to a fall flood. On most Saturdays fans were drenched and kickers were frustrated. Wet weather could nullify the kicking game this year, not so much on the ever-solid footing of Astroturf as on natural grass — the kind that grows in Commonwealth Stadium.

"If it's pouring down and the field is muddy, you're not going to see any field goals off the ground," says Willis. "If it's like the first game last year, a 20-yard field goal or extra point, hopefully you'd make it but it wouldn't be uncharacteristic for anyone to miss that off the ground."

The way to beat the tee, and the weather and pressure, according to Willis, is through mental preparation. "To really achieve physically what you're capable of at this level, I don't think that I can go out and have a good time," he says. "Saturday is pretty much a job — that doesn't mean I don't enjoy it, but the concentration is intense."

Adjusting to the new rule will take even more concentration. Placekickers have even less room for error than before. Plus Willis will be working with new holders this season. Wide receiver Steve Phillips should take care of holding duties with Travis Powers and Freddie Maggard as backups. Dean Wilks returns as long snapper.

Judging by the weeks of full practice, Willis seems to be on top of his game. He has hit consistently from inside the 35-yard line — 52 yards from the crossbar — according to placekicking coach Farrell Sheridan.

"(Willis) is doing a good job," says Sheridan. "His leg is as strong as ever. You can see that he really worked over the summer at kicking off the ground."

But after all the pre-season work, Willis' future is up in the air until he can prove his ability to keep the football up in the air — and through the goal posts — on game day.

Make Sure Your Heart's In The Right Place.

The Saint Joseph Heart Institute

At Saint Joseph Hospital, we're Central Kentucky's most experienced cardiac care facility. In fact, more open heart surgery has been performed at Saint Joseph than at all other Lexington area hospitals. Combined.

So, it's no wonder that our experience in the diagnosis and treatment of heart problems has earned us the title "the heart hospital." Physicians and patients rely on us for our sophisticated cardiothoracic and coronary care facilities. And our highly skilled and experienced surgical support teams inspire the confidence of everyone involved.

In addition to having the most comprehensive cardiac surgery program, we also provide advanced non-surgical diagnosis and treatment of coronary disease. In some instances, we can even prevent the need for heart catheterization or surgery altogether.

So, consider our experience. When you choose Saint Joseph Hospital, your heart's in the right place.

UK Administration

Dr. David P. Roselle President

Dr. David P. Roselle became the ninth president of the University of Kentucky July 1, 1987.

Roselle came to UK from Virginia Tech in Blacksburg, where he served as provost for four years.

He has been one of the main participants in the university's efforts to attract adequate public funding of the university, and his leadership was recognized when he received a top national award from the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

Roselle believes that the new technology in computation and communications is important not only to academia, but also to business, government and industry. Consistent with that belief, he helped design and implement a strategy at UK to provide wider access to the new technology. As a result, computing and communications have become an increasingly important part of the university, both in the academic programs and in service programs that support all the citizens of the Commonwealth.

Because of Roselle's efforts, UK is one of a small number of universities in the country to have a "supercomputer" operating for the benefit of faculty and students.

Dr. Roselle's announced goal is to make the University of Kentucky recognized nationally for the quality of its scholarship, research, and graduates.

A native of Pennsylvania, Dr. Roselle earned a Ph.D. in mathematics from Duke University. He was a mathematics professor and researcher at the University of Maryland and Louisiana State University before going to Virginia Tech, where he moved up through the administrative ranks.

He is a nationally-known mathematics scholar and editor of two books, and was on the editorial board of a third.

He and his wife, Louise, have two children — a son, Arthur, 18 and a daughter Cynthia, 17. The Roselles live at the traditional home of UK Presidents on the UK campus, Maxwell Place.

Hemenway began teaching English at UK in 1966 and moved on to the University of Wyoming in 1969. He returned to Kentucky in 1973 as an associate professor of English and was later instated as a full professor.

From 1981 to 1986, Hemenway chaired UK's department of English before serving as Dean of Arts and Sciences at the University of Oklahoma. The widely published author was named chancellor this year.

Dr. Charles Wethington Community College System

Dr. Charles Wethington became chancellor of the Community College System in 1982. In 1988 his responsibilities were widened to include University Relations.

Wethington began his professional career at UK in 1965 as an instructor in educational psychology. He was acting director of UK's Lexington Technical Institute in 1966-67 and was named the first director of Mayville Community College in 1967.

He became assistant vice president of the Community College System in 1971 and was promoted to vice president in 1980, before he was named chancellor in 1982.

Dr. Peter Bosomworth A.B. Chandler Medical Center

Dr. Peter Bosomworth enters his 27th year with the University of Kentucky, having served as chancellor since 1982.

Bosomworth came to UK in 1962, just weeks before University Hospital opened. At age 32, he became the youngest chairman of a department of anesthesiology in the country. Bosomworth held that post until 1970, when he was named vice president of the UK Medical Center.

Under his leadership, the UK Medical Center has experienced a high patient occupancy rate and significant increases in outside research funding. In 1969, Bosomworth received the faculty scientific achievement award of the Kentucky Medical Association.

Director of Athletics C.M. Newton

Calling it "a new day for Kentucky athletics," University of Kentucky President Dr. David Roselle named Charles Martin (C.M.) Newton UK's seventh director of athletics, effective April 1, 1989.

In addition to a lengthy, impressive list of credentials, Newton brings to Kentucky a reputation of integrity at a crucial time in the history of UK athletics. In accepting the position at his alma mater, Newton summarized his goals and objectives by saying, "I have a resolve to try very hard to continue that great tradition and, at the same time, to totally do it within the NCAA and Southeastern Conference rules and not sacrifice the academic integrity of this University."

Newton capped an illustrious basketball coaching career by leading his 1988-89 Vanderbilt University to a 19-14 record, a second-place SEC finish and its second consecutive NCAA tournament appearance. He was named SEC Coach of the Year by the Associated Press and received the Kodak NABC District IV Coach of the Year award.

Newton served as head basketball coach and associate athletics director at Vanderbilt after 1982, compiling a 129-115 hoops record. In 32 years of coaching at Transylvania, Alabama and Vanderbilt, Newton compiled a 509-375 record overall, ranking him among the top 10 active coaches in the game in terms of total victories at the close of the '88-89 season. Newton's Alabama teams won three consecutive Southeastern Conference championships and he won more games than any other coach in Crimson Tide history. He ranks second in career victories in Southeastern Conference games behind his mentor, Adolph Rupp.

Perhaps more impressive, however, was Newton's ability to produce winning teams that also possessed exceptional academic credentials. During Newton's tenure at Vanderbilt, 18 Commodores were named to the Academic All-SEC team — over 50 percent more than any other league school. And including this spring's graduating class, all 21 of his seniors will have received their diplomas.

Newton is highly regarded at the national level. He has served on the board of directors of the National Association of Basketball Coaches and worked six years on the NCAA Basketball Rules Committee, serving as chairman for five years. Newton has also served as vice-president of ABAUSA, the nation's governing body for international amateur basketball.

C.M. Newton, Kentucky's new director of athletics, will seek to ensure integrity in the Wildcats' sports program.

Newton has literally circled the globe to promote basketball. He served as team manager — a combination coaching and administrative position — on the gold medal 1984 U.S. Olympic team. Indiana coach Bob Knight, who picked Newton for the Olympic staff, called him "the finest gentleman in our business."

In 1983 and 1987, Newton took his Vanderbilt squads to the Republic of China (Taiwan) to represent the United States in the R. William Jones Cup International Tournament, winning the gold medal in 1983 and the silver in 1987. He has conducted coaching clinics in many countries of the world.

After playing on the 1951 national champion Kentucky Wildcat squad and pitching in the New York Yankees' minor league system, Newton began coaching at then Transylvania College in Lexington. Recommended for the job by Rupp, Newton guided Transy to a 169-137 record in 12 years at the helm despite a limited scholarship program.

In 1969, once again with the backing of Rupp, Newton answered a call from Paul "Bear" Bryant to take on the challenge of building the downtrodden Alabama basketball program. During his 12-year tenure, Newton orchestrated a turnaround in the Crimson Tide's basketball fortunes, compiling a 211-123 record.

In addition to the three SEC championships, Newton guided the Tide to two trips to the NCAA Tournament and four berths in the NIT. "C.M. Newton is a winner, and that's important," remarked a satisfied Bryant, "but more than anything else he wins or loses with class, and that's more important."

With few horizons left to conquer at Alabama, Newton resigned at the end of the 1980 season to accept a job as assistant commissioner of the Southeastern Conference. A year later, he took over the Vanderbilt basketball program.

This business of global competition is really kids' stuff.

Long before they enter the boardroom, our children engage in global competition. It begins the day they start school. And America's position as a world leader in the next century will be determined in large part by what happens in today's classrooms.

Over the next decade, American children will have to learn as much as possible, as fast as possible, to succeed in the global marketplace of the 21st century.

They can, of course. If our nation's business leaders help by putting their brainpower and money to work in the right ways.

That's why for years, Ashland Oil has contributed human and financial resources in support of American education.

There is no more important task for American business than to help our country's schools in every way possible. The need is great, but so is the opportunity.

Ashland Oil urges business and community leaders everywhere to contact schools and boards of education to find out how you, your company and your employees can help.

It's the best investment you can make in everyone's future.

UK Assistant Coaches

Jerry Eisaman

Terry Strock

Chip Garber

Bill Glaser

Jake Hallum

JERRY EISAMAN Offensive Coordinator

Jerry Eisaman enters his eighth season at Kentucky and 24th year as a collegiate assistant coach.

Eisaman, 52, came to Kentucky in 1982 when head coach Jerry Claiborne took over. Returning to UK, his alma mater, Eisaman was Claiborne's quarterback coach at Maryland for 10 years.

As the Wildcats' offensive coordinator, Eisaman is responsible for coaching the Kentucky quarterbacks. In addition, he calls the plays from the pressbox on game-day.

A native of Bethel Park, Pa., Eisaman is a 1961 graduate of the University of Kentucky. He lettered three years (1958-60) under coach Blanton Collier as a quarterback. During his career, he completed 94 of 191 passes for 1,308 yards and 13 touchdowns.

He was a Kentucky co-captain during the 1960 season and played in the Blue-Gray All-Star game. Eisaman was awarded the Sam Huey Award, an honor which went to the UK football player who maintained the highest academic average for four years.

TERRY STROCK Defensive Coordinator

Terry Strock begins his eighth season at the University of Kentucky and his 23rd year as a collegiate coach.

As defensive coordinator for the Wildcats, Strock coaches the Kentucky linebackers and calls the alignments from the pressbox on gameday.

A native of Hagerstown, Md., he earned his bachelor's degree in business administration from Virginia Tech in 1962. He lettered three years in football and four years in baseball for the Hokies. During his senior grid season, he was chosen as a permanent game captain and was an All-Big 5 (Virginia) selection as well. A recipient of the Williams Award, he played under Claiborne at VPI his senior year.

Strock began his coaching career as an assistant at Colonial Heights (Va.) High School in 1963. In 1964, he became head football coach at Culpepper (Va.) High School. Prior to the 1966 season, he returned to Virginia Tech to serve as an assistant under Claiborne.

CHIP GARBER Defensive Backs

Chip Garber moves into his eighth season as a University of Kentucky assistant football coach. Overall, he is in his 10th year as a collegiate assistant.

Garber, 34, arrived at Kentucky in 1982 with current Wildcat coach Jerry Claiborne. He had previously worked at Southern Methodist University for two seasons.

The defensive backs coach, Garber earned his bachelor's degree from the University of Maryland in 1978. While at Maryland, he lettered three years as a defensive end and one year as a Terrapin pole vaulter in track. As a freshman, he placed third in the pole vault during the Atlantic Coast Conference Track and Field Championships.

BILL GLASER Defensive Guards

Bill Glaser begins his 13th year as an assistant coach at the University of Kentucky. Overall, he has been a collegiate assistant coach for 14 seasons.

Glaser, 46, arrived at Kentucky in 1977 from Morehead State University. He was the only full-time assistant retained by Claiborne from the Fran Curci staff in 1982.

Coaching the Wildcat defensive guards this year, the Louisville native graduated in 1965 from Bellarmine College where he lettered in baseball.

Glaser began his coaching career at his alma mater, St. Xavier High School in 1965 as an assistant football and assistant baseball coach. In 1970, he was named head baseball coach and led St. Xavier to an overall record of 112-48. Four years later, Glaser was named head football coach and paced his teams to consecutive state high school championships and a two-year record of 25-0.

JAKE HALLUM Offensive Line

Entering his eighth season at Kentucky, Jake Hallum is a 22-year veteran on the collegiate level.

Hallum, 50, came to Kentucky in 1982 with coach Jerry Claiborne from the University of Maryland staff where he served as offensive line coach.

His responsibility in 1988 is coaching Wildcat offensive guards.

UK Assistant Coaches

David Likins

Greg Nord

Rod Sharpless

Farrell Sheridan

Dick Redding

A native of Pickens, S.C., Hallum earned his bachelor's degree at Newberry (S.C.) College in 1960. He lettered two years at Newberry as an offensive guard and linebacker. He was awarded the game ball for his performance against East Carolina his senior year.

DAVID LIKINS Outside Linebackers

Dave Likins begins his eighth season as an assistant coach at the University of Kentucky. Overall, it is the ninth season Likins has been associated with the UK in a coaching capacity.

Likins, 33, was elevated to full-time assistant coach when head coach Jerry Claiborne arrived at Kentucky in 1982. Likins had spent one season as a part-time coach under Fran Curci during the 1981 campaign.

This year, his main responsibility is coaching Wildcat outside linebackers.

GREG NORD Running Backs

Greg Nord begins his eighth season as a Kentucky assistant coach. Overall, this is the 11th year Nord has been working with the Wildcat football program.

Nord, 33, was elevated to a full-time position when Jerry Claiborne became UK head coach in 1982. Previously, Nord had served as a graduate assistant and part-time coach under Fran Curci since 1979.

This season, he will handle Wildcat running backs.

A native of Louisville, Nord is a 1980 graduate of the University of Kentucky. He lettered three years with the Wildcats (1975, 1977-78) as a center-tight end. During his career, he caught four passes for 80 yards and two touchdowns. His first collegiate reception was a 43-yard touchdown catch versus Mississippi State in 1977.

ROD SHARPLESS Defensive Tackles

Rod Sharpless begins his eighth season as an assistant coach at the University of Kentucky and is in his 13th year as a collegiate assistant.

His main responsibility in 1988 is coaching the Wildcat defensive tackles.

Sharpless, a native of Jacksonville, N.C., earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Maryland in health and physical education in 1975. At Maryland, he lettered two years as a defensive end. He also owns a master's degree from Bowie State (Md.) College.

He began his coaching career at Wilkesboro (N.J.) High School as an assistant football coach and head track coach. He led one of his track squads to a state runner-up spot while his team claimed regional and sectional titles.

FARRELL SHERIDAN Offensive Tackles

Entering his eighth season as assistant coach at the University of Kentucky, Farrell

Sheridan enters his 11th year as a collegiate coach.

Sheridan, 39, arrived at Kentucky in 1982 when head coach Jerry Claiborne took over. Previously, Sheridan had worked three seasons at Maryland before joining the Wildcat staff.

His responsibilities in 1989 include coaching the offensive tackles and place-kickers and coordinating the film exchange with UK opponents.

Sheridan, a native of Rutherford, N.J., earned his bachelor's degree in history from the University of Minnesota in 1973. He lettered two seasons as a Golden Gopher defensive back.

DICK REDDING Administrative Assistant

Dick Redding begins his eighth season as administrative assistant at the University of Kentucky. Overall, Redding has been involved in collegiate football for 41 years.

Redding, 70, arrived at Kentucky with head coach Jerry Claiborne in 1982. He was a member of Claiborne's staff at Maryland for 10 seasons prior to joining the UK braintrust.

His main responsibility at Kentucky is coordinating football recruiting.

A native of Auburn, Maine, Redding is a 1940 graduate of Springfield (Mass.) College. A multi-talented athlete, he lettered three years in football and basketball and two years in track. He was a collegiate offensive-defensive end. In addition, he was elected to the Springfield College Hall of Fame for his efforts.

Reflections Of Your Success

Firebrook ESTATES

...you and your family, mirrored in the surface of one of our quiet, shimmering lakes...just one of the many opportunities you'll have to "pause and reflect" on your success, as evidenced by your new address in Firebrook Estates.

A limited number of estate, manor, and villa lots in the initial phase of our exceptional development are now available for homesites. Firebrook Estates...a stately, elegant clubhouse; pools and cabanas; a putting green; brick walls; gently rolling landscape...all reflect the meticulous planning and careful attention to detail that make both a dramatic difference, and a statement about where you've chosen to call home.

Sequestered behind the trees, off Harrodsburg Road, just a mile beyond Man O' War Boulevard; convenient to everything, yet resolutely private.

When The Wildcats Take The Field.

Talk about home Field advantage. For over 70 years Field hams and lunch meats have been made right here in Kentucky. So they're fresher. And better tasting. No wonder the Cats take the Field. Rip into some today.

OVER- NIGHT. THE EASY WAY.

Others find it convenient to deposit pre-paid letters and packages in an Express Mail box. (A stroll will reveal our ingeniously convenient downtown box placement.)

Then there are those who simply hand it to a walking Express Mail office, their friendly letter carrier.

Still others call us to arrange pick-up.

Best of all, we also ease the burden of bottom line watchers: by delivering up to 8 ounces overnight throughout the U.S. for a modest $8.75. Even on Saturdays. No extra charge.

We said Express Mail service was easy, didn't we. Overnight any other way is, well, hardly worth it.

Kentucky's Largest Volume Apple® Dealer ...Makes The Best Deals

In today's rapidly changing and competitive computer market, it takes three things to insure you get the most from your computer purchase:

1. Knowledgeable Sales Staff
2. After Sale Service & Support
3. Competitive Pricing

If any one of these are missing-you can lose big in lost productivity and down time. And if we didn't offer all three, Lexington Computer Store would not have become the largest volume Apple dealer in the state.

The Apple Macintosh® is now the number one selling business computer in the nation, and we have been selling Apple computers since 1977. We know our product and can recommend the right Macintosh for your company. Whether it may be an economical Macintosh Plus for wordprocessing, or a powerful Macintosh IIx for engineering and accounting, we have the accessories and software to provide a complete one stop solution.

It Only Looks Expensive

A luxurious two-room suite and free continental breakfast sounds expensive, too — but it's about the same as you'd expect to pay for a single room elsewhere. Hilton Suites of Lexington Green is just down the road from Commonwealth Stadium and is the perfect place to stay during a Wildcat Football weekend. For reservations call (606) 271-4000 or 1-800-HILTONS.

Teamwork

That's what it takes to get a simple construction of paper and string off the ground to fly free in the wind.

And the same principle applies, in a greater measure, to get a complex $1.1 billion automobile manufacturing plant up and running in Georgetown, Kentucky.

Teamwork has made Toyota Motor Corporation the third largest manufacturer of passenger vehicles in the world, with an unparalleled reputation for quality, value and excellence.

Teamwork will make Toyota Motor Manufacturing, U.S.A., Inc., an American company with a proud Japanese heritage, thrive and grow in its new Kentucky home.

Who could ask for anything more?

CATS Center

The University of Kentucky keeps the term "student-athlete" in the proper perspective — student first, athlete second.

For that reason, the University of Kentucky Athletics Association opened the nation's first academic center for student-athletes in 1981. The academic center is simply known as CATS — Center for Academic & Tutorial Services.

The CATS Center is located inside Memorial Coliseum. The center, designed with the student-athlete in mind, contains a results. Since 1982, Kentucky has placed 51 players on the Southeastern Conference Football Academic Honor Roll, the highest number among league schools. Graduation rate among scholarship football players is 90.2 percent.

The UK Football program was awarded the 1989 College Football Association Academic Achievement Award for the nation's highest graduation rate for its 1983 freshman class.

"The award certainly lets everyone know we are serious in making sure our players receive their degree," Claiborne said. "A lot of the credit in winning the award, though, goes to our CATS Center staff. They do an excellent job in monitoring our student-athletes' academic progress from day one."

Bob Bradley, assistant athletic director for academics, supervises the CATS Center. Barbara Deniston, director of student development, and Mike Jenkins, academic counselor, assist Bradley. The CATS Center also employs four graduate assistants and numerous tutors, both from the university and the surrounding community.

Not only has the football program flourished, but so has the entire UK Athletics program. During the 1988-89 academic year, Kentucky again placed more athletes on the Southeastern Conference Academic Honor Roll than any other league school.

"The CATS Center is an incredible advantage to a student-athlete over another without an academic center," Bradley said. "This is a medium which the student-athlete can get any question about his or her academic endeavors answered."

Having a head coach who places such an emphasis on academics is also an advantage, according to Bradley. "Many support systems across the nation do an excellent job at helping their student-athletes," he said. "I am blessed at Kentucky in having Jerry Claiborne. He really believes in the student-athlete concept. We are totally in sync."

The University of Kentucky believes it is obligated to give the student-athlete every opportunity to succeed not only in athletics, but in academics as well. Judging by recent statistics in academic honor roll selections and graduation rates, Kentucky is standing by its philosophy.

The CATS Center plays an instrumental part in keeping academics and athletics in near perfect harmony.

CATS Center Programs

1. ADVISING — Confusion about courses, campus or academic procedures is common to most freshman. In addition to the study center, the CATS facility also contains the offices of its entire staff — the assistant athletic director for academics, the director of student development, the academic counselor and four graduate assistants. These trained staff members are at CATS for one purpose — to assist the student-athlete in being successful outside the field of play.

2. STUDY SKILLS — The CATS Center staff conducts organized study skills classes each week to complement in-house publications given to each incoming freshman. The CATS Center publications — a Freshman Orientation Handbook and a Study Skills Workbook — help the student-athlete learn and use proven classroom study skills and university resources.

3. STUDY HALL — Research has shown the best time to study is immediately after class. The CATS Center provides study hall areas anytime during hours of operation. The center offers flexible hours and is designed primarily for afternoon study, an advantage over the evening study halls at many schools.

4. TUTORING — The CATS Center staff includes tutors from the university and community available to help in any subject. The center thoroughly screens its tutors to find which ones are most effective with student-athletes. CATS provides students the proper atmosphere for working with tutors. Sound-proof rooms are available for the student-athlete and tutor to meet and discuss concepts without either being disturbed or disturbing others.

5. READING PROGRAM — Each freshman student-athlete is given a reading test which measures his/her strengths and weaknesses. The CATS Center staff evaluates the results and determines which student-athletes may be encouraged to participate in the reading program. The CATS reading program provides individual and small-group tutoring in a variety of areas such as reading improvement and advanced vocabulary development.

Aided by the CATS Center, 56 UK student-athletes earned spots on the SEC Academic Honor Roll in 1988-89, more than any other conference school.

large general study area, along with several smaller rooms used for tutoring, computer assistance and small group sessions.

Plans are on the drawing board for expansion of the CATS Center. The expansion would add a language laboratory, additional tutoring rooms, a more comprehensive computer facility and a media center.

The UKAA appropriates nearly $500,000 per year for the CATS Center.

"There's no question, the CATS Center is a very important part of not only our football program, but our entire athletics program here at Kentucky," said head UK football coach Jerry Claiborne. "Academics comes first in our program."

The combination of the CATS Center and Claiborne has produced some impressive

The Indiana Hoosiers

22-13-1 and appeared in three bowl games in the past three years.

But at the start of a new season they have a lot of holes to fill, and but a handful of bright stars with which to fill them. The Hoosiers graduated two dozen seniors, including all but seven 1988 starters. Only one regular returns on defense.

"Yes, we've lost 24 players who have been the hub of this program the last three years, and yes, we have lost a lot of experience," says head coach Bill Mallory. "But we're not void of talent. We've got players who have been involved with the program for a couple of years, players waiting in the wings for their chance. Well, now it's their turn. I believe we have the makings of a good football team."

If Indiana does turn out to be a good team, then the primary ingredient will have been a great player, consensus all-American and Heisman Trophy candidate Anthony Thompson. Thompson has plenty of everything a running back needs. The 6-0, 209-pound senior from Terre Haute, Ind., possesses quickness, speed and strength.

Thompson holds IU records of 3,506 rushing yards, 803 rushing attempts, 43 touchdowns and 258 points scored.

"Anthony Thompson is by far the best running back we've seen in years and years." — Iowa coach Hayden Fry Thompson is by no means the only feature of Indiana's offense. Senior fullback Cal Miller (5-10, 226) was a steady performer in 1988. And senior quarterback Dave Schnell (6-2, 214), a second-team all-Big Ten selection, passed for 1,877 yards with nine touchdowns and ran for 307 yards and five TDs last year. Many believe Schnell could be all-American, provided he finds some reliable receivers.

That could be difficult. With the loss of leading receiver Rob Turner to academic ineligibility, Schnell has few experienced targets. Sophomore Eddie Thomas, who caught only three passes for 44 yards last year, is the only returner with much playing time under his belt.

Two newcomers take over at tight end. Senior Terry Saunders (6-5, 240) and sophomore Todd Walker (6-4, 240), both converted outside linebackers, are big targets and good blockers. And there's always Thompson, who hauled down 31 receptions for 233 yards last year.

The offensive line will be largely rebuilt around center Ron Vargo (6-2, 275), an all-Big Ten candidate. And large is the operative word. Guards Ian Beckles and Jack Francis, and tackles Randy Schneider and Todd Oberdorf average 6-4 and 276 pounds. All four are lettermen, but none has started.

On the other side of the ball, the Hoosiers look even thinner on experience.

The only returning starter is outstanding junior cornerback Mike Dumas (6-0, 178). In a solid sophomore season, Dumas registered 45 tackles (32 solo), broke up five passes, recovered two fumbles and blocked two punts.

He will be joined in the backfield by either Joe Zeigler, a three-year letterman, or Mark Newell at safety. Dave Ane and Jim Summerall will share time at strong safety, while redshirt freshman Mike Middleton has the edge at cornerback opposite Dumas.

Returning lettermen Mark Hagen (6-3, 222) and Paul Williams (6-1, 225) have never started, but have more athletic ability than Mallory's previous linebackers. They could be joined by redshirt freshman John Miller (6-1, 200).

The defensive line, also a rebuilding project, features tackle Nolan Harrison (6-6, 265), a two-year letterman who is "as good as we've had at that position," according to Mallory. The rest of the line is untested and uncertain.

Junior Mackie Smith will handle punting duties. Scott Bonnell will take care of placekicking.

"We have a lot of kids who want to prove they can play," says Mallory. "I think they can."

Around The SEC

SEC Best in the 1980s

As the final collegiate football season of the 1980s gets under way, the Southeastern Conference delivers more proof that it has been the best football conference of the decade.

The SEC leads the NCAA in final AP rankings (31 top 20, 17 top 10 and 8 top five), bowl appearances (50), bowl victories (26), and top-10 attendance averages. In addition, the SEC has had the best non-conference winning percentage. It is the only conference to post a non-league winning percentage of better than .500 every year and the only one to send every member to at least one bowl during the decade.

The jury is in and the decision, based on overwhelming evidence, is: the SEC is the best conference of the 1980s.

SEC tops all conferences with three bowl wins.

The SEC went 3-2 in bowl appearances at the end of the 1988-89 season. Alabama beat Army 29-28 in the John Hancock Sun Bowl, Florida topped Illinois 14-10 in the All-American Bowl and Georgia beat Michigan State 34-27 in the Mazda Gator Bowl. The ACC, Big Ten and Pac-10 each had two bowl winners, and five independents were victorious. But no other conference could boast three bowl champions.

Georgia coach retires with win 201

University of Georgia coach Vince Dooley captured career win number 201 in his final game. The Bulldogs downed Michigan State 34-27 in the Mazda Gator Bowl January 1, 1989. Dooley, who retired from Georgia after 25 years, closed his career with an overall record of 201-77-10. He and Bear Bryant are the only coaches to post 200 victories at an SEC school.

SEC produces two consensus all-Americans

Auburn senior Tracy Rocker and Alabama senior Derrick Thomas were the SEC's two consensus all-Americans, chosen by AP, UPI, Coaches and Football Writers. Thomas won the Butkus Award for the nation's top linebacker. Rocker won the Lombardi Award, for the nation's top lineman, and the Outland Trophy for the top interior lineman.

New rotation begins in 1996

The SEC athletic directors formally adopted a new conference football schedule for the 1996 through 2003 seasons.

The new plan changes the permanent opponents in the conference's seven-game rotation schedule. Under the current formula, each school plays five opponents every year, while rotating the remaining four schools on a two-year schedule. The new formula will still use the 5-2 rotation, but will alter the five permanent opponents.

Here's To You, Mr. Robinson

Ron Robinson's aggressive style makes him a first-rate defender

By Pat Henderson

It is a typical media day. An August day when many a picture is snapped. An August day where the temperature reaches the mid-90s and, for the most part, all the players do is sit around in full pads and sweat. An August day where media members flock to hear the pre-season rhetoric about their local team.

The usual questions arise. How do you think the team is going to do? What are the team's strengths and weaknesses? Can Local U. improve upon last year's successes/failures?

And when the question of individual goals arises, each player gives the favorite generic answer, "We want to win the conference and go to a bowl game."

When this question is put to a Southeastern Conference player at one of this year's media days, the reply is standard: "My personal goals are the same as the team goals. We want to have a winning season and go to a bowl game. Sugar Bowl champs, SEC champs."

Only this scene is a little different. This is not taking place in Auburn, Ala., or Athens, Ga. And the person answering the question isn't Emmitt Smith or Tommy Hodson.

It is in Lexington, Ky., and the person giving the answer is Ron Robinson — and he is serious.

The senior defensive back speaks with stark honesty when he says that this edition of the Kentucky Wildcats believes it can win the 1989 SEC title and come away with a Sugar Bowl victory.

"Some people may say that is a pretty high goal," says Robinson, "but if you don't set them high, you never reach what you really want."

While prognosticators are not quite as confident about the Wildcats' chances as Robinson, they do tout this as Jerry Claiborne's best squad since the '84 team that finished 9-3 and beat Wisconsin in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Many magazines and polls have Kentucky heading for a first-division SEC finish, no small accomplishment in one of the country's toughest conferences. In its pre-season es, came by a grand total of 26 points. Of the five winning teams, only Tennessee failed to receive a bowl bid.

"It's nice to be mentioned in the same breath with Alabama and Auburn among the top teams in the SEC," says Robinson, a Nashville, Tenn., native. "It's the kind of attitude the seniors wanted to see when we came here."

"(Winning) is a matter of who wants to get it the most. It's your mind set."

And the mind set around the Wildcat camp is upbeat, among both the players and the fans. Season ticket sales have been brisk with the thoughts of big things from Claiborne's crew dancing in the heads of the UK faithful. With the troubles facing the hoops program, could it be that a Kentucky football ticket is almost as tough to get as, gasp, a Kentucky basketball ticket?

"It's been exciting for my five years, seeing football rise," says Robinson. "Basketball has always been number one here, but the football team has been good. There is potential this year. If we work hard and do our job, everyone will be all right and we can be successful."

Working hard and doing his job are two things that Robinson needs no introduction to. The aggressive secondary patroller is in his fourth year of starting duty and has gained the experience necessary to make him even more valuable to the Big Blue coaching staff.

"Having Ron back as a fourth-year starter means a lot to us," says Kentucky's defensive backs coach Chip Garber. "He's like a coach on the field. He knows the ins and outs of defense. He can read all the formations and coordinate all situations."

"He's one of those kids that matures as a freshman or sophomore," continues Garber. "A lot of kids become leaders in their senior season, but Ron's been doing that since he came here."

One of the goals Garber has for Robinson and the Wildcat defense is improving on the college football issue, The Sporting News ranked Kentucky 27th, ahead of traditional SEC powers Georgia and Florida.

Robinson cites 1988 as evidence the Wildcats are capable of going facemask-to-facemask with the SEC's upper echelon. The Wildcats ambushed 11th-rated Georgia 16-10 and came oh-so-close against Auburn (a 20-10 road loss), Alabama (a 31-27 last-second heartbreaker) and LSU (a 15-12 setback in treacherous Tiger Stadium). Those three, and Kentucky's two other SEC loss-number of turnovers created. Kentucky ranked seventh in the SEC in turnovers in 1988, after committing 29 and creating 28. Moreover, the Wildcats finished ninth in the league in interception differential, recording 10 thefts to their opponents' 17.

Not coincidentally, interception totals are low when you check Robinson's career stats; two to be exact. But his tackle totals are enough to offset any lack of interceptions. As a freshman, Robinson led all UK defensive backs in tackles. His numbers have increased every year. Heading into the '89 campaign, he has the most total career tackles (214) of any UK returnee.

"He's always been among the SEC's leading tacklers in the secondary," says Garber of his seasoned field general. "He doesn't have the interception numbers others do, but I guarantee he has more tackles than the rest.

"His aggressive style makes him successful. All things considered, I think he's the best free safety, at what he does, in the SEC."

But will the Cats and Robinson be the best in the SEC when August opportunities have become November realities?

Robinson answers affirmatively.

"We know we can play with the Alabamas and LSUs; we're all evenly matched. But the winning edge is the mental attitude. We match up the same as the other teams. We're basically the same size, same strength and same speed."

As far as attitude goes, Kentucky and Robinson are extolling the positiveness surrounding the 1989 season.

"I think there is a lot of optimism this year," says the 6-1 free safety. "We're getting ready to play Indiana in the opener. We can't wait to play them. We have a lot of players coming back and I think it will be a fun year."

Ron Robinson returns as a three-year starter in the secondary for Jerry Claiborne's Wildcats.

GOOD TIME. GREAT TASTE.™

The Natural — Dermontti Dawson

By Katherine Blaydes

If you have any stereotypes of professional football linemen which include their comparison to large, sluggish, ill-tempered beasts, then meet Dermontti Dawson and prepare to change your point of view.

This 6-2, 279-pound offensive lineman looks enough like a NFL player, but both his demeanor and career path are different from what you might expect. A few years ago Dawson would have never imagined himself in the NFL, let alone in the starting lineup for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Unlike many players who play professional football, Dawson did not spend his life anticipating and preparing for that career. In fact, Dawson did not even play in high school until his junior year — only after he was recruited by the coach.

In the halls of Lexington's Bryan Station High School the story begins. One day young Dermontti walked to class as usual. But this day, the track star attracted a different kind of attention. Head football coach Steve Parker spotted a visitor, he assumed, roaming the hallway.

"Sir, may I help you?" Parker offered.

Of course, it was a child disguised in a 230-pound man's body. "I'm a student here," replied Dawson.

"Do you play football?"

"I played some in junior high."

Parker was determined to recruit Dawson. He could not believe he had not previously discovered this kid who appeared to be made for football.

Parker succeeded in persuading Dawson to look into their program, and once he was put on the field it was obvious that Parker had been correct in his assessment. Dawson was a natural.

The two essential qualities of a football player, size and athletic ability, seemed in-born. "He was raw when we first got him," says Parker, "but very coordinated, and we developed him."

As Dawson settled into his role on the team, he became dedicated. By his senior year he had developed into a strong player, and it was apparent that Parker's incidental find was Division I material. But still there was no talk of Dawson making it in the pros.

"Sometimes on the practice field you had to blink your eyes to believe if he had just done what he had." — Kentucky assistant coach Jake Hallum on Dawson.

UK head coach Jerry Claiborne kept an eye on Dawson during his years at Bryan Station, and soon had him playing for the Wildcats. Dawson found college ball more complex than high school because he "had to know all about offense," not just about his blocking role.

Dawson enjoyed a successful career at UK, and got the most out of the fierce Southeastern Conference competition, a great source of preparation for the pros. But he still didn't expect to ever play for pay. "I didn't really think about it," says Dawson. "It came upon me pretty quickly."

Others thought a great deal about it. "We knew from as early on as his sophomore year that with his strength and force he could play in the NFL," says UK offensive line coach Jake Hallum.

Head coach Jerry Claiborne had a good feeling about Dawson's future as well. Given Dawson's speed and strength, Claiborne had no doubt that his second team all-SEC guard would make it, "if he just worked."

If he just worked. Dawson was naturally a very good player, but it would take real effort to make him a great one. Hallum worked closely with his offensive players to strengthen more than just their physical ability. "I hope that I helped in some way to mold (Dawson) to be mentally tougher," Hallum says. "Once he masters that, he could be an all-Pro player."

In going on to play in the NFL, Dawson was actually following in the footsteps of three of his relatives who also attended UK — Uncle Art (Still) plays for the Buffalo Bills, cousin Mark (Logan) plays for the Miami Dolphins and cousin George (Adams) plays for the New York Giants.

It was Still who accidentally slowed Dawson's progress in his rookie season. Dawson made long snaps on the punting team for the first three games, and then got his first start the fourth week against the Bills. In that same game, Uncle Art fell on him, causing the knee injury that forced him to sit the next two months. When he did return, Dawson got the call to start the last four games of the season.

Aside from his injury, Dawson made a relatively smooth transition into the pros. He played right and left guard in his rookie season with the Steelers, and he plans to move to center this year. Many expect him to hold that spot for a long time.

Dawson replaces Mike Webster, a Steelers' mainstay who now plays for Kansas City.

Webster, due to his longevity in the NFL, has been Dawson's role model.

Dawson's own experience in the league has been "like a dream come true. My first time out on the field was a big shock. I was playing against all of the famous names that I had always heard, and then talking to them after the game."

He found that it was a change to be surrounded by so many exceptionally talented players. Because most of the players in the NFL have such physical strength already, Dawson has found that professional football demands more mental preparation.

Those who have worked with Dawson are probably his biggest fans. Words like "easy-going," "jovial" and "personable," are most often used to describe him. Parker called him "a gem to coach. He was never without a smile, and he never complained."

The story behind Dermontti Dawson and his football career contains elements of surprise. After all, how many other professional football players do you know whose outside interests include baking cookies?

He is a player who happened upon football — or perhaps it happened upon him. Whatever the case may be, the two seem to be made for each other.

Anyone who grew up in the sixties wasn't born yesterday.

Despite what some luxury sedan makers would have you believe, you know that "having it all" doesn't mean spending every cent you have on a car.

Which is why many people old enough to appreciate the luxuries in life are wise enough to buy the Volvo 740 GL. The European luxury sedan that costs under $25,000.*

VOLVO 740 GL
$21,680*

Volvo 740 owners are content to go through life on heated, orthopedically-designed seats. Handling curves with power-assisted rack and pinion steering. And cushioning bumps with a unique Constant Track Rear Suspension.

All the while, relaxed in the luxury of their 740s. And the knowledge they can still afford life's necessities.

The K-Men's Association

The K-Men's Association has been helping the University of Kentucky athletics department for a quarter-century with moral and financial support.

Originally started to keep former athletes involved with the University, the Association's goals are to: promote and develop fellowship among UK varsity lettermen; aid and assist UK in its athletics programs in ways that are consistent with SEC and NCAA regulations; equip, furnish and maintain the K-Men's House on the UK campus; award scholarships to deserving UK athletes; and feature an annual "K-Day" at a varsity event.

The idea for organizing a K-Men's Association originated in a May 1961 conversation between Frank Seale and Robert Montgomery, two teammates on the UK football team in the early 1930's. Their main idea was to establish an organization that would promote fellowship among UK varsity lettermen, while still helping UK athletics.

UK athletics director Bernie A. Shively welcomed the idea and organizational plans were discussed by a small group of UK lettermen in June 1961. Shively sent a letter to all K-Men announcing that the Kentucky-Florida football game on Nov. 4, 1961, had been designated the first "K-Day".

From those early beginnings, the association grew steadily, now boasting more than 600 dues-paying members. The constitution was drafted so that lettermen from all varsity sports could become members.

From its early days, the K-Men's Association established traditions including the K-Man of the Year award, K-Day at varsity events, and K-Day at Paintsville. The latter is a two-day golf outing at the Paintsville Country Club that was originally conceived by Dr. Paul B. Hall, a Wildcat baseball letterman in the 1920's.

However, the K-Men not only supply moral support for UK, but they also make financial contributions, including athletic scholarships. The scholarships are financed by private donations from K-members.

The K-Men's Association also acknowledges outstanding academic achievements by athletes. The K-Men sponsor awards for academic excellence in a number of UK sports. In football, tackle Bo Smith was awarded the 1988 K-Men Senior Scholastic Award for maintaining the highest GPA during his final year.

The pride of the association is the K-House, located on a plot near Commonwealth Stadium. Land was obtained from the University and a concerted drive raised over $100,000 from K-members and friends. Ground was broken on Nov. 12, 1976 and the house was in use the following autumn.

Ground was broken in May 1988 for the remodeling of the K-House. The K-House will be expanded to almost double its current size.

All-SEC linebacker Joe Federspiel (1971) served as K-Men's Association President in 1986-87.

The 280-member University of Kentucky Marching Band was one of the first in the country to use computers for drill writing.

Two of the nation's best groups line up beside the Kentucky Wildcats on a football Saturday each fall. Those groups are the award-winning University of Kentucky cheerleaders and Marching Band.

Under the direction of T. Lynn Williamson, the UK cheerleaders have become the model cheerleading squad in the United States. Three of the last five years, UK has earned the national cheerleading title. They were runners-up in 1988.

This squad's ability to help bring Wildcat crowd into the games and its precision stunts have become a trademark and a source of pride for the university.

The University of Kentucky Marching Band is also recognized around the country, especially for its sophisticated sound and visual images through innovative drill writing.

Under the direction of Harry Clarke, the UK Marching Band was one of the first in the nation to use computers exclusively for drill writing. An average halftime show will contain around 130,000 different positions or moving sets for all members of the band, coordinated simultaneously with approximately 180,000 notes.

The UK Marching Band numbers 280, with members representing 17 different states. The band includes 24 flags, 30 percussionists, 12 majorettes and two feature twirlers.

Kentucky In The News

Two Million Plus and Counting

On the way to its three-millionth volume, University of Kentucky Libraries got a bonus this summer when it acquired a private library in Cynthiana.

The library — a collection amassed more than a century ago by merchant George Howk, a native of Augusta, Ky. — contained about 2,000 volumes on Kentucky and world history, natural science, world travel and literature. Paul Willis, director of UK Libraries, said the collection also held many elaborate engravings.

Paula Pope of UK Libraries says one of the most important finds in the collection is a seven or eight-volume, over-sized Bible.

In its entirety, says Pope, the collection helps scholars see what reading habits book collectors were thinking about and tending toward in their times.

"Beowulf" Digitized

The ancient and the modern often come together in a university setting. This phenomenon has never been more vivid than when UK English Professor Kevin Kiernan used a digital image-processing system to decipher "Beowulf," one of the most important manuscripts in the English language.

Kiernan used the technology, usually found in sophisticated medical laboratories, to improve the legibility of several badly-damaged readings of the epic poem "Beowulf," an Old English manuscript dating back to the early 11th century. The renown tale of the warrior hero and his battle against a monster is housed in a library in London, England.

UK's Identity Unified

Beginning this opening game day, Commonwealth Stadium will be home to something more than University of Kentucky football, band and cheerleaders. Fans will notice a large, painted version of UK's new logo, a design with large UK letters and a figure of Memorial Hall rising between the letters.

The design is a creation of MER & Associates, a Lexington advertising firm. It appears on many other items around campus including blue and gold lapel pins and printed UK material like business cards, letterhead and envelopes.

"Once we distributed the first few hundred pins, interest just skyrocketed," says UK Public Relations Director Bernie Vonderheide. Several thousand have now been distributed across campus and around the state. For information on ordering the lapel pins, contact Harriett McVey, UK Public Relations, at 257-3308.

Saturday Seminar Season Kicks Off

With the ushering in of a new football season, one thing is certain — the Saturday by the UK Board of Trustees to the new position of director of development for the Lexington campus.

Bailey, who has been serving as director of annual giving and development publications, will coordinate the fundraising efforts of 23 colleges and other units of the university's Lexington campus.

Paul Willis, director of UK Libraries, peruses the books acquired from the Cynthiana private collection. UK President David Roselle and Jane Howk Parfet look on.

Seminars are back in session.

The seminars, held on campus on home football game days, give the public a free opportunity to sample new areas of knowledge in an informal atmosphere, says Phil Greasley of University Extension. Coming up in the next few weeks are: - September 16 — "Building Strong Blended Families," presented by Donna and Sam Quick of the department of family studies. Room 128, Erikson Hall, 10 a.m.

- Also September 16 — "New Age Music," presented by Ronald Pen, music department. President's Room, Singletary Center for the Arts, 10 a.m.

Alumni Notes

"The University of Kentucky: A Pictorial History," by Carl Cone, gives a new look at the University over the years.

Kay Johnson of the UK Alumni Office says the book is a great way for former students to recall their time at UK and to take a look at the times of students and faculty who were on campus before them and after. Alumni can relive their golden days at school as they thumb through this new book.

Cone's book includes the University's founding fathers alongside its presidents, faculty members, student leaders, coaches and athletes. It's full of dorm rooms, classrooms, laboratories, gymnasiums and athletic fields where thousands of students have worked and played on their way to the degree that marks them as University of Kentucky alumni. From that group have come Nobel laureates, statesmen and thousands of productive citizens whose influence reaches to the far corners of the world.

Cone has gathered 380 photographs for this 256-page book. He tells, in words and pictures, the story of the university's struggle for adequate funding, its joys and losses, its triumphs and accomplishments.

The pictorial history takes the reader from the University's humble beginnings 125 years ago as the Agricultural and Mechanical College of the newly formed Kentucky University to the proud institution it is today, enrolling 56,000. UK students, faculty and facilities stretch across the Commonwealth from border to border.

Former UK President Frank McVey once said that a university is not only a place but a spirit. The reader will feel that spirit again and again when enjoying the photographs and reading this fascinating book, according to Johnson.

As a highlight of the UK National Alumni Association's centennial celebration, this outstanding book, available only through the association, is being offered to association members for $29.50, and to non-members for $34.94.

To order "The University of Kentucky: A Pictorial History" return the order form with payment to the UK National Alumni Association, King Alumni House, Lexington, Kentucky, 40506-0119.

INTRODUCING PROEDIT. THE WORLD'S SMALLEST VIDEO PRODUCTION STUDIO.

The new, highly advanced RCA ProEdit™ camcorder is equipped with features many would consider remarkable in a studio, let alone a camera.

Quite simply, it places in your hands the most comprehensive array of recording and editing capabilities ever assembled in one camcorder.

These range from sophisticated dubbing features that allow such professional touches as narration and background music, to a time-lapse function that lets you create animated videos.

Of course, there's another reason you end up with such professional video with the RCA ProEdit. It gives you a better picture to begin with.

Thanks, in part, to a flying erase head that eliminates the irritating video distortion typical of scene transitions in conventional camcorders.

Also included among the RCA camcorder's many convenient operating features is a built-in mini-speaker that allows you to monitor your tapes during playback without the need for cords or earphones.

All of which strongly argues for a visit to your RCA dealer. Where you'll discover the pleasures of creating truly exceptional amateur video.

As opposed to video that's merely amateurish.

FIGHT SONGS

My Old Kentucky Home

The sun shines bright on the old Kentucky home,
 'Tis summer, the people are gay;
 The corn-top's ripe and the meadows in the bloom,
 While the birds make music all the day.

(Chorus)

Weep no more, my lady,
 Oh! Weep no more today!
 We will sing one song for my old Kentucky home,
 For my old Kentucky home far away.

The young folks roll on the little cabin floor,
 All merry, all happy, and bright;
 By-n-by hard times comes a-knocking at the door,
 Then, my old Kentucky home, good-night!

On, On, U of K

On, on, U of K, We are right for the fight today,
 Hold that ball and hit that line; Ev'ry Wildcat star will shine;
 We'll fight, fight, fight, for the blue and white
 As we roll to that goal, Varsity,
 And we'll kick, pass and run, till the battle is won,
 And we'll bring home the victory.

UK Alma Mater

Hail Kentucky, Alma Mater! Loyal sons and daughters sing;
 Sound her praise with voice united; To the breeze her colors fling.
 To the blue and white be true; Badge triumphant age on age;
 Blue, the sky that o'er us bends; White, Kentucky's stainless page.

Kentucky Strength Program

Mike Pfeifer builds his 305-pound body in the E.J. Nutter Center weight room.

Charlie Darrington spots for former Wildcat star Jerry Reese.

To compete in the Southeastern Conference, a team must have three things — strength, speed and size.

The 1989 Kentucky roster reveals ample amounts of all three.

In two years, Kentucky has made good use of its new E.J. Nutter Training Center. The constant cycle of workouts in the center appears to be paying dividends already.

The statistics prove it. Last March, when the Wildcats conducted Pro Day, team strength and speed averages were at an all-time high. In total lifts (bench press, clean and squat), the Wildcats' average jumped 78.9 pounds. That beats any improvement in previous years; it's never been more than 10 pounds.

This year's 'Cats are far quicker than their predecessors, shaving off better than a second in the 40-yard dash to average 4.83.

UK head coach Jerry Claiborne gives credit to strength coach Mike Florence and the Nutter Center for his team's improvements.

"A player can get as strong as he wants here," says Claiborne. "We have the most modern equipment available in our weight room for our athletes. Coach Florence and his staff do an excellent job. They have an excellent rapport with our players. We have an ideal situation if a youngster wants to improve his strength, size and speed through hard work." It has been easy for the players to take their coach's words to heart, considering the facility. The Nutter Center has 100,000 pounds of equipment housed in 9,000 square feet of weight room. Throw in Nautilus machines, stationary bikes and jogging treadmills and this weight room is as good as any in the country.

"Our weight room facility gives our players a feeling of pride, a feeling of success," Claiborne says. "You can actually see the accomplishments in this room."

At the 1989 Pro Day, the Wildcats averaged 557.25 pounds in the squat, 291.85 pounds in the clean and 323.60 pounds in the bench press. The year before, the 'Cats could only squat 496 pounds, clean 284 pounds and bench press 312 pounds. The total improvement in only one year is more than 78 pounds.

Defensive tackle Oliver Barnett was this year's standout in the strength tests. The Louisville senior shattered the school record for squats by 100 pounds. His 850 pound lift bettered the old school mark set by all-SEC guard Dermontti Dawson.

Barnett also set a new record for total weight lifted, this time by a mere 85 pounds. His 1,655 pounds beat Dawson's mark of 1,570.

The Nutter Center weight room holds 75,000 pounds of free weights and 25,000 pounds of dumbbells.

"A player can get as strong as he wants here."

Jerry Claiborne
Head Coach

The success of the Wildcat's strength program may have a lot to do with the positive atmosphere the new facility creates. The Nutter Center makes the long hours of lifting a little more pleasant and the player may work just a little harder, according to the coach.

"It's still up to the athletes, though," says Claiborne. "Our players have responded well since our move from the Shively Center to here. It's all been very positive. But the old saying, 'You can lead a horse to water,' still applies."

It appears that Kentucky's horses have been drinking their fill.

1989-90 Kentucky Basketball

Despite suffering through the first losing season since 1927 and looking into a dark crystal ball, University of Kentucky basketball fans have found cause for optimism.

Why are they so sure that happy days are on the way for their beloved program? The answer is simple — two words. Rick Pitino.

Pitino has made a career of overcoming challenges similar to the ones facing him at Kentucky. When he went to Boston University in 1978, the school had won only 17 games the previous two years. Know what he did? He won.

When Pitino went to Providence College in 1985, he inherited a team that had gone 11-20 the year before. What did he do? He won.

And while Pitino was coaching Providence to the NCAA's Final Four, the New York Knickerbockers were stumbling to a 71-175 two-year mark. Pitino took over as coach of the Knicks in 1987, and guess what he did. That's right, he won.

Ironically, as Pitino takes over the program that has won more basketball games than any other, winning is not just enough anymore. Pitino's charge is still to win, but to win with class, with integrity, with dignity, with a model program, with the student-athlete coming first.

Pitino's reputation in these key areas is what led Athletics Director C.M. Newton to bring Pitino to Lexington in the first place. Now, as he attempts to leave Kentucky's problems in the past, he must rebuild using the nucleus of a team hit hard by last year's controversy.

Pitino's bench will be missing last year's leading scorer, LeRon Ellis (16.0 ppg), who transferred to Syracuse this past summer. Chris Mills, UK's leading rebounder (8.7 rpg) and second leading scorer (14.3 ppg), transferred to Arizona. Point guard Sean Sutton, UK's assists leader (4.7 apg), transferred to Purdue. Combine these losses with the graduation of UK's two tallest players, Mike Scott and Jeff Ginan, and you have a small, inexperienced group.

Still, excitement is high in the Bluegrass. Pitino's hiring signaled the end of an unpleasant chapter in the Kentucky basketball history books, and the beginning of what Wildcat faithful envision as brighter days ahead. While the 1989-90 Kentucky roster may seem lean by Kentucky standards, Pitino's record indicates he is up for the challenge.

Although it is not deep, the Wildcat roster is not altogether void of talent, especially in the backcourt. There the Wildcats will be led by senior Derrick Miller, a 6-5 guard who averaged 13.9 points and 3.3 rebounds per game last season. Miller, who showed promise as a freshman but suffered through a nightmarish sophomore season, came into his own as a junior and became an offensive threat.

Richie Farmer, a 6-0 sophomore who was a Kentucky Mr. Basketball, joins Miller in the backcourt. Farmer battled injury and illness through a disappointing freshman campaign, averaging 3.1 points in 27 games.

A trio of newcomers, including sophomore Sean Woods and freshmen Jeff Brassow and Henry Thomas, will vie for playing time in the backcourt.

Up front, the Cats will be led by junior forward Reggie Hanson. The 6-7 Somerset native averaged 9.8 points and 4.5 rebounds per game last season and is consistently recognized for his defensive skills. Hanson is joined by three sophomores, 6-7 Deron Feldhaus, 6-7 John Pelphrey and 6-6 Johnathon Davis. Feldhaus may have the early lead on a starting spot following several strong performances last season; he averaged 3.7 points and 3.3 rebounds per game.

Although doomsayers predict a second-straight losing season for the Wildcats, Kentucky has not softened its schedule. The 1989-90 Kentucky slate includes Indiana, Louisville, Kansas, North Carolina and Notre Dame, in addition to the 18-game SEC rotation.

Kentucky Football Network

Cawood Ledford broadcasts Jerry Claiborne's Wildcats every week.

Ralph Hacker serves double duty — on radio and TV.

University of Kentucky football is brought to the Bluegrass by a veteran Wildcat television and radio network crew.

Sports Communication's home-game television coverage, featuring long-time UK analyst Ralph Hacker (play-by-play), former UK linebacker Joe Federspiel (color), and WKYT-TV anchor Rob Bromley (sidelines), is broadcast on a tape-delayed basis beginning at 11:30 p.m.(ET).

Calling the play-by-play for the Wildcats on radio is Cawood Ledford. Ledford, in his 37th year behind the microphone, has been honored 18 times as Kentucky's "Sportscaster of the Year." When Kentucky plays at home, he is joined by WKYT-TV sportscaster Dave Baker. Hacker calls the color when the 'Cats are away. WKYT-TV's Dick Gabriel reports from the sidelines.

The radio broadcast lineup:

"Cat Calls" — A 30-minute call-in show hosted by Ledford and Hacker which airs an hour and a half before kickoff.

"A Look at Football" — Ledford's 15-minute preview of the day's game with interviews of coaches and players.

"University of Kentucky Football" — Live coverage of Wildcat football.

"Wildcat Wrap up" — A 10-minute statistical review of game results.

"Wildcat Scoreboard" — WVLK AM/FM sports director Tom Leach provides UK listeners recaps of games played around the country for 10 minutes.

"The Jerry Claiborne Show" — Ledford spends 15 minutes recapping game highlights and key plays with Kentucky's coach.

"The Big Blue Line" — A weekly call-in show (Thursdays 7-8 p.m.ET) that gives fans a chance to talk with Claiborne and Ledford.

"Bench Talk" — A daily five-minute show featuring Claiborne.

Kentucky Football Traditions

Blue and White

The University of Kentucky adopted Blue and White as its official colors in 1892. UK students had first decided on blue and light yellow before the Kentucky-Centre football game on December 19, 1891. The yellow was soon dropped from the combination and replaced by white.

The particular Kentucky shade of blue, close to royal blue, was determined without ceremony. After settling on the base colors, a student posed the logical question, "what color blue?" Letterman Richard Stoll looked down at his necktie and raised it to the air. The vote was unanimous.

And so Kentucky Blue is really Stoll necktie blue.

Nickname

The official nickname of University of Kentucky athletic teams is "Wildcats."

The name became synonymous with UK shortly after a 6-2 victory over Illinois on October 9, 1909. Commandant Carbusier, then head of the military department of old State University, told a group of students in a chapel service following the game that the Kentucky football team had "fought like wildcats."

The name "Wildcats" became increasingly popular among UK followers and the media. It has since been adopted by the university.

Wildcat Mascot

The Wildcat mascot originated during the 1976-77 academic year at the University of Kentucky. Gary Tanner was the first Wildcat to dance and entertain crowds at Commonwealth Stadium and Rupp Arena during athletic events. Today the Wildcat mascot also attends academic functions and serves as a friendly ambassador for the university.

In the early 1980s, Wildcat mascot Terry Barney began the tradition of doing a one-armed pushup for each of Kentucky's points in front of the student section after every Wildcat score. The fans at Commonwealth Stadium still count out every pushup on football Saturdays.

Battle for the Beer Barrel

The beer barrel, painted blue, orange and white, is the prize awarded each year to the winner of the Kentucky-Tennessee football game. The first barrel was awarded in 1925. Two Wildcat supporters, Guy Hugelet and

The Kentucky Wildcat.

Rollie M. Guthrie, wanted to produce something to symbolize the fierce rivalry between the two schools.

A whiskey barrel was to be the original trophy, until the Women's Christian Temperance Union ruled it out. A beer barrel was more acceptable to the ladies.

But there was still the problem of Prohibition and the Anti-saloon League, which voiced displeasure at such a trophy. But the resourceful Hugelet and Guthrie appeased all parties by painting "ice water" on the barrel.

Tennessee has won the barrel 52 times in the 84-game series.

Battle for the Bourbon Barrel

The Bourbon Barrel is awarded to the winner of the Kentucky-Indiana football game. The series, which was renewed in 1967 after a 40-year break, began in 1893. No one is certain of the origin of this unusual trophy. Some think that the blue and red-striped barrel represents the distillery industry in Kentucky and southern Indiana. Indiana leads the series 12-6-1, but Kentucky has won three of the last four outings. Both schools have signed a contract to meet every year through 2000.

BREAK THROUGH THE BORE OF ORDINARY FAST FOOD, AND GET FRESH WITH RITZY'S.

De-lightful garden salads, steamed vegetables, soups, and chicken grill sandwiches have taste-full appeal.

Or dig into Ritzy's burgers, coneys, chili, and shoestring fries for a heartier meal.

Either way, you're sure to sweeten up with Ritzy's award-winning ice cream, shakes, sodas, sundaes, floats, and new light ice cream.

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY LICENSING PROGRAM

The University of Kentucky began its licensing program in 1985 to protect the use of its name and insignias and to insure that the public properly identify and associate University logos on products bearing the institution's marks. The licensing program is further designed to establish a cooperative relationship with licensees to assist in the development of a market for "Officially Licensed Products of the University of Kentucky".

Since its inception in 1985, the program has been very successful. The University has received cooperation from manufacturers, retailers, and consumers in setting and maintaining high standards. The University has joined a consortium of other prestigious universities throughout the country to bring about consistency in the marketplace for officially licensed collegiate products.

Collegiate Concepts, Inc./International Collegiate Enterprises (CCI/ICE), administers the programs for over 100 universities and 10 post-season Bowl Games. The objectives of the consortium are to assure that the names and logos of universities are protected, that the universities receive their fair share of revenues generated, and that alumni, students, and supporters can easily recognize authorized merchandise.

LOOK FOR THE LABEL

How does one tell if the merchandise seen in stores or on the street is authorized by the University? It's easy - just look for the label.

The "Officially Licensed Collegiate Products" label should appear on all licensed merchandise. With the label, the alumnus, student, and fan know that they are buying a product of quality and authenticity that represents the goodwill of the university. It is our way of identifying merchandise that has been approved by the University.

THE LABEL TELLS YOU IT IS AUTHORIZED

Unfortunately, there is still some merchandise being sold that is not authorized by the University. That is where we would appreciate your assistance. Look for the official label before you buy. It is your assurance that the merchandise you receive has been authorized and approved by the University.

We are launching an awareness campaign to our alumni, students, and supporters telling them how to make sure they are getting officially licensed merchandise. The sale of unlicensed merchandise (1) takes revenues away from the university, (2) increases the likelihood of inferior quality and offensive artwork, and (3) increases the risk of product liability problems. We appreciate and need your continued support.

“Whoever said ‘Victory at any cost’ never bought a sportcoat at Kuppenheimer.”

Doug Williams, NFL Quarterback

“A sportcoat from Kuppenheimer Men's Clothiers is not only a triumph of craftsmanship and attention to detail, it comes at a winning low price. That's because I make all my suits, sportcoats and slacks of the finest materials in my own factories, and sell them only in my own stores. That way, I block the middleman and pass the savings on to you.

Make Kuppenheimer part of your game plan when dressing for success. Because at Kuppenheimer, our prices make victory even sweeter.”

*We're Closer
Than You Think*

Step out the door of Marriott's Griffin Gate Resort and you're already within sight of our Rees Jones championship course — 6,845 yards of Kentucky greens and fairways. A course as challenging as it is beautiful, PGA sanctioned and site for the last five years of The Bank One Senior Golf Classic.

Marriott's Griffin Gate Resort offers, in addition to an excellent golf course, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, tennis, and other recreational facilities. Fine restaurants and lounges are also available, including the elegant Mansion Restaurant, a carefully restored 19th century mansion located a short walk from the entrance to the resort.

Rediscover golf in the grand Bluegrass style. For information and reservations, call 800-228-9290 or your travel agent.

Marriott's Griffin Gate Resort is conveniently located just off Interstates 64 and 75 in Lexington, Kentucky.
