John Y. Brown, Jr., became the 51st governor of Kentucky on December 11, 1979. He succeeded incumbent Julian Carroll after defeating Republican candidate Louie B. Nunn.

Born on December 28, 1933, Governor Brown graduated from Lafayette High School in his hometown, Lexington, and obtained a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Kentucky in 1957. He graduated from the UK College of Law three years later.

The Governor served in the U. S. Army Reserve from 1959 to 1965.

He has been named the Outstanding Young Man of America by the National Junior Chamber of Commerce (1965), as one of the outstanding Civic Leaders of America (1967) and Louisville's Outstanding Young Man by the same

Ashland Oil has an infinite source of energy-the creative minds of our research scientists and engineers.

Instead of searching around the world for new sources of crude oil, Ashland Oil is developing alternative sources of energy in the laboratory. For example:

More gasoline from crude oil. Ashland Oil's new Reduced Crude Conversion (RCC) process makes it possible to get 24 percent more gasoline out of every barrel of crude oil we refine. This means that Ashland will be able to produce the same amount of gasoline we're producing now, using fewer barrels of expensive crude oil.

And if the RCC process is adopted by other oil companies, America could substantially decrease its dependence on foreign crude oil.

Crude oil from coal. America has enough coal to take us well into the 22nd century. At Ashland Oil, we're experimenting with coal liquefaction, the process which turns coal into synthetic crude oil. This new synthetic crude oil can be refined into gasoline and other petroleum products.

We now plan to build a major facility in Breckinridge County, Kentucky, to produce oil from coal commercially.

Both our RCC and coal liquefaction projects are under way at our refinery in Catlettsburg, Kentucky.

Gasohol from corn. Ashland will soon be able to meet 12 percent of America's goal for ethanol production from its coal-fired South Point, Ohio, ethanol plant.

By converting corn into ethanol (ethyl alcohol) and adding ethanol to gasoline, we'll be producing gasohol—a third important ingredient in America's formula for decreasing energy dependence.

At Ashland Oil, we're depending on one of America's greatest natural resources—new technology from our innovative research team.

Your energy needs,
we're working on them.

Administration

The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the United States under the leadership of Dr. Otis Singletary, the eighth president of the University.

Dr. Singletary was named president of the University in August, 1969. He had previously served as executive vice-chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas System and director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Dr. Singletary, a native of Gulfport, Miss., holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University.

As president of the principal institution of higher learning in the Commonwealth, Dr. Singletary is greatly concerned with the University's role as a land-grant institution, a "people's university" accessible to all who can profit from education.

DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY
President, University of Kentucky

In the nine years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now more than 22,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 17,000 students in UK's 13 community colleges. The University has also become one of the major research institutions in the country.

Recognition of his service to the University was evidenced by the UK Alumni Association, which presented to Dr. Singletary its Alumni Service Award - an honor rarely bestowed upon a non-alumnus of the University.

Dr. Singletary is the author of two books and several monographs.

A Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, he is a commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve. He and Mrs. Singletary, the former Gloria Walton, have three children: Bonnie, Scot and Kendall.

The Singletarys live at Maxwell Place, traditional home of UK presidents.

Athletics Director

Expansion of the football training room and addition of a beautiful player's lounge at Shively Sports Center, new carpeting in the stadium football offices, a new basketball office complex in Memorial Coliseum, rearrangement of the baseball fences and a new surface for the running track are just a few of the recent improvements that signify the continuing progress of UK athletics since Cliff Hagan joined the Wildcat Staff eight years ago.

Recognized nationally as a progressive, business-oriented and promotion-minded administrator, Hagan has seen and overseen vast improvements in all phases of an ever-expanding operation that has encompassed 16 sports since the men's and women's programs were merged in July, 1978.

The merger, under Hagan's direction, has been orderly, with office space remodeled, and in some cases created, to make room for the women's coaching and administrative staff.

The indoctrination of Hagan into the UK athletics administrative structure came in 1972, when he was named assistant to Harry C. Lancaster and given the task of implementing the Blue & White Fund for 57,600-seat Commonwealth Stadium and later for Rupp Arena. The fruits of his labors in this area have provided the additional financial support that has elevated the UK athletics program into a first class operation.

Hagan was named Athletics Director in July 1975 following Lancaster's retirement.

Hagan has also been an advocate of a strong scholar-athlete program, feeling "a genuine commitment to provide all the academic support and encouragement we can to help our athletes leave our campus with a college education and a degree."

On the personal side, Hagan received one of his highest individual honors in 1978 when he became the first University of Kentucky basketball player to be installed in the Naismith Memorial National Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

He is married to the former Martha Milton of Owensboro. They have four children: Lisa, Laurie, Amy and Kip.

Head Coach

FRAN CURCI

Guiding a young, inexperienced and injury-riddled team to a 5-6 record in 1979, Fran Curci ended his seventh season at the University of Kentucky with a 41-35-2 overall record, a victory total equal to that of Blanton Collier, who was 41-36-3 at UK from 1954-61.

On the all-time Kentucky coaching list, Curci is second only to Paul "Bear" Bryant who had a 60-23-5 record from 1946-53.

Included in Curci's UK record are a conference co-championship and a Peach Bowl championship in 1976 and a 10-1 record in 1977, best for a Wildcat team since Bryant's 1950 team finished 10-1 and won the Sugar Bowl. The 1977 Kentucky squad was undefeated in conference play (6-0), but ineligible for the championship.

The 1979 Cats, weakened by the suspension of eight experienced players due to a dormitory infraction in the spring, got off to a slow start, but finished strong. UK won three straight games and was in bowl contention until losing to Tennessee, 20-17, on a field goal in the closing seconds of the final game of the year.

Kentucky finished 5-6 and was tied for fifth in the Southeastern Conference with a 3-3 record, having been selected to finish near the bottom by pre-season pollsters.

During his tenure at UK, Curci has been named SEC "Coach of the Year" by both wire services - UPI in 1973 and AP in 1977 - and has finished high in the national balloting (1977).

He has produced four All-Americans and three Academic All-Americans at UK, which did not have an All-American of any type during the nine years before he came to Lexington. He also has produced 10 All-SEC players named 15 times to the honor squads.

Curci came to UK from the University of Miami, FL, where he was head coach two years. He started his career as freshman coach there in 1962 after earning All-American honors as a quarterback for the Hurricanes in 1959 and playing QB for the old Dallas Texans in the AFL.

Curci went to Tampa as head coach in 1968, putting together a 7-3 season that included victories over Mississippi State and Tulane and earned him the Florida Sports Writers Association's "Coach of the Year" award, a recognition repeated in 1970.

His 1969 team finished 8-2, while his 10-1 record in 1970 included a 31-14 triumph over Miami and brought the Tampans the nation's No. 1 College Division ranking. Curci was runner-up for College Division "Coach of the Year" honors.

He coached the Hurricanes in 1971 and 1972.

A native of Pittsburgh, PA, Curci played his high school football in Miami, where he lettered three years as a quarterback at Archbishop Curley High and was All-City, All-Conference, Catholic All-State and his team's Most Valuable Player.

At Miami, where he was known as the "Mitey Magician," he parlayed intelligence and desire to become All-American as a senior in 1959 after receiving All-America honorable mention in 1957.

He set Hurricane seasonal and career marks for total offense, most passes thrown, most passes completed and most yards completed and most yards gained passing. He was co-holder of the record for most passes thrown.

He rolled up 2,767 yards rushing and passing during his varsity career, breaking a total offense record that had stood for more than two decades. He captained the Hurricanes his senior year and climaxed his career by engineering a stunning upset of Michigan State.

After graduation in 1960 with a degree in marketing, he played one year for the Texans and then served as a lieutenant in the Army, coaching and playing football for the Fort Eustis team, which won the National Service championship in the Missile Bowl.

Curci has been selected seven times to coach in all-star games. He assisted Bear Bryant with the South team in Tampa's first annual American Bowl game five years ago, then served as South head coach the next year. He helped Charlie McClendon of LSU and Alex Agase of Northwestern direct the East in the Coaches All-American game and has also appeared at the North-South Game, Japan Bowl, East-West Game and Hula Bowl.

Cawood: Kentucky's Amazing Voice

Bill Straus

Ledford requires intense preparation before football games.

He came from the mountains of Eastern Kentucky 27 years ago, and began calling University of Kentucky sports and horse racing. Since then, Cawood Ledford, the "Voice of the Wildcats" as he is affectionately known throughout the Commonwealth, has become one of the best-known broadcasters in the nation, and something of a legend in Kentucky.

From humble beginnings at WHLN in Harlan, Ledford first was introduced to radio broadcasting by a coach. It was during the time he was an English teacher at Harlan High. The coach had been moonlighting by doing some radio work in the summer. He felt that he wanted to stick strictly with coaching, and Ledford was talked into taking over the coach's position at the station.

The rest, as they say, is history.

After two years of calling high school football and basketball games, selling air time during the day, and doing a sports show in the evenings, Ledford was "found."

"It was hard work," Ledford remembers. "But I was young and I liked it from the start. I knew that if I had any talent at all, this was what I wanted."

His two years at WHLN were learning years for Ledford. In that time, he not only developed the techniques of broadcasting, but he also worked on getting his rich, consistent, distinctive voice refined.

A station official from WLEX radio in Lexington heard Ledford on the air, and within a week, he began broadcasting UK games over the Lexington station. That was in 1953.

"My years with WHAS were good."

Three years later, after spending a "pleasant and informative" period in Lexington, Ledford got a call from WHAS in Louisville, where he remained for 22 plus years as sports announcer, and then, after two years, sports director of the station.

His reputation continued to grow during this period—from broadcasting Kentucky football and basketball games, to calling the races at Keeneland and the Kentucky Derby. He now calls the NCAA finals, the two Derby Classics between Kentucky and Indiana all-Stars, and the Great Kentucky Shootout—a benefit basketball game between UK and Louisville stars.

In 1979, Ledford moved back to Lexington as he joined Jim Host in forming Cawood Ledford Productions in Lexington. Host and Ledford had become close friends during the 1950's when both broadcasted UK games. Host had begun a successful publishing business and had developed the statewide radio network that carried the UK games.

"My years with WHAS were good. But with Jim, I had opportunities to expand and develop," Ledford explained.

Now the Cawood, KY native is busier

Bill Strauss

Ralph Hacker has provided color commentary for nine years.

than ever. In addition to his football, basketball and racing broadcasts, he also does spot radio shows called "Cawood Comments" that is produced by Ledford Productions in Lexington studios, owned by Host. He also handles several radio call-in shows during the year.

Football season may be one of the busiest times for Ledford. In addition to Wildcat football broadcasts, Ledford also has Keeneland to call in October.

On Mondays before football games, he listens to tapes of the previous game he has called, and notes any errors, mispronunciations, bad pauses or signs of any uncertainty; then he goes over each error.

Tuesdays, he forms his charts with the name, number, height and weight of each player on both teams in a format that allows him easy access to them during the game as reference.

On Wednesdays, he reads the brochures published by both teams to become familiar with facts and figures on each squad. He puts down on his charts the home town of each player, his major in college, nickname and anything else he thinks he might be able to use which might add color to his broadcast.

On Thursdays he makes sure that he has memorized the offensive backs and receivers by number. He'll do this for about 45 minutes in order to be able to give as accurate a report of the game as possible. This will help speed his calls up because he will know numbers by heart and will not have to rely on charts.

Fridays he will take the day off from memorizing and looking over the material. But Saturdays he arrives at the stadium as much as three hours early for the game, and goes over his charts, notes and makes sure there have been no last-minute lineup changes.

And then he, and color man Ralph Hacker, who has been with Ledford since 1971 as his assistant in the booth, call the game. And according to most Kentucky fans, hearing Ledford and Hacker call the game is the next best thing to being there.

shillito's

Ledford has a colorful, distinct style that UK fans have become used to for 27 years.

Cawood," Hacker, who is president and general manager of WVLC radio in Lexington, said. "It was a gradual transition—I had been doing freshman basketball games at UK, and after those would end, I would help Cawood with his engineering or whatever. We were in contact then—I guess that was in 1966 when I started—so that when I became his color man in 1971, it was just a natural move."

"In radio, you have to remember the listener sees nothing, so you have to paint word pictures for him constantly."

"My philosophy fits in well with his, I think. I just try to fill in the blank spots. I let the play-by-play man tell the story. If I can make the picture he creates a little better, then I'll try."

During his 22 years with WHAS, Ledford was no stranger to television, either. But he says he prefers radio.

"At least I'm more used to radio," he said. "TV is much easier because the camera does so much of your work for you. In radio, you have to remember the listener sees nothing, so you have to paint word pictures for him constantly, show him in words what's going on."

That is why we really don't have any use for the three men in the booth that TV uses. We just don't have time for that much comment and banter. I keep a color man for the pauses, timeouts, halftimes, and a man on the field whose job is mainly to check on injuries, clear up any confusion over a call, that sort of thing.

"I don't make any attempt to keep my own stats. The only thing I keep track of is the yard marker where the series of downs begins. When the ball is within the five-yard line, I keep close check; for one thing, the officials sometimes move the ball on you—by mistake—so you have to watch it. Football is rough; it requires a lot more preparation than basketball and is harder to follow."

Maybe the most frequent criticism that Ledford faces is that he is often said to obviously favor UK teams when he is calling their games. But the criticism doesn't bother Ledford.

"You can't follow a team for 25 years without becoming attached to it," he says. "But I try to give a straight call. And, of course, when I'm on a national network, I make sure that there is no favoritism whatever."

And while Cawood may be a little attached to the Big Blue, it's an understatement to say the Kentucky fans are partial to Ledford.

They love him.

SEC Update

Tide Crushes Vols; Dogs Keep Rolling

Alabama took a giant step toward claiming an unprecedented fourth straight Southeastern Conference football title by beating Tennessee 27-0 in Knoxville over the weekend. Georgia, who does not battle Alabama this year, kept pace by blowing out Vanderbilt 41-0 in Athens. In action around the league last Saturday:

Alabama

Coach Bear Bryant's Crimson Tide ran its record to 6-0 overall, 3-0 in the SEC by crushing Tennessee 27-0 in what Bryant deemed "one of the best defensive games we've ever played." The Tide kept Tennessee completely befuddled, limiting the Volunteers to minus two yards total offense in the first half. Tennessee finished the game with 59 yards offense on the day, while Alabama gained 383. The win was Bryant's 302nd, leaving him 12 short of the record held by Amos Alonzo Stagg for most coaching wins. The victory was Alabama's 25th consecutive SEC win, and 10th in a row over the Vols.

Auburn

Georgia Tech came away with a moral victory, while Auburn celebrated the real thing, 17-14, over the fiery Yellow Jackets, who are 1-5 on the season. Tech came to play with their arch-rivals, tying the game in the fourth quarter when Ted Peeples hit Steve Henderson from nine yards out. Auburn, now 4-2, seemed stuck with a tie. But Ken Luke intercepted a Peeples pass, and Al Del Greco kicked a 21 yard field goal in the closing minutes to ensure the Tiger victory.

Florida

Despite losing their quarterback (Bob Hewko) two weeks ago against LSU, the Gators bounced back with Wayne Peace, a freshman QB who led Florida to five field goals by Brian Clark, and chalked up a 15-3 win over Ole Miss in Oxford. Peace simply handed off the ball to running backs who consistently moved the Gators into field position, as Clark hit goals from 19, 43, 27, 38 and 47 yards out — giving him a Gator single game record. The real honors go to Florida's defense, which held the highly-touted Rebel offense to only a field goal.

Georgia

Georgia matched Alabama in beating Vanderbilt this season — both teams did it by a 41-0 score. Georgia's latest win in Athens, before a Homecoming crowd of 59,300 was most impressive. Freshman sensation Herschel Walker, grearing up for his invasion of the Blue Grass next weekend, shattered a 35-year old Georgia rushing record and scored three touchdowns against the Commodores, enroute to a 283 yard day. Walker scored on runs of 60, 48 and 53 yards. The Bulldogs, 6-0 overall, 3-0 in the SEC, allowed Vandy only one serious scoring threat.

Kentucky

The Wildcats, struggling offensively, lost to LSU 17-10. Spotting the Tigers a 10-3 lead at halftime, QB Randy Jenkins rallied the Cats to a 10-10 tie with a little more than six minutes to go in the game when he plunged one yard. But Alan Risher directed the Bengals to the clinching touchdown on the ensuing kickoff.

LSU

A wild game in Lexington gave LSU a share of the conference lead as the Tigers bounced Kentucky 17-10 on a last-minute touchdown by Alan Risher. The win gave the Bayou Bengals a 3-0 conference mark, 5-2 overall. Risher directed an opening drive of 69 yards in the first period that produced points for the Tigers, Hoke Gajan getting the score from one yard out. Later in the second period, David Johnston booted a 45 yard field goal, giving LSU a 10-3 halftime edge over the homestanding Wildcats. After UK had tied the game 10-10 in the fourth, Risher drove the Tigers 80 yards for the final score, a two-yard run by the gutty quarterback with 41 seconds to go.

Ole Miss

An ineffective offense inside the 20 yard line proved fatal to the Rebels against the surprising Florida Gators over the weekend. Ole Miss lost to the Gainesville club, 15-3 at Homecoming in Oxford. The Gators shut down the John Fourcade-led offense whenever it entered Florida territory, except for a 49 yard field goal by Todd Gatlin, which closed the Rebels to 6-3 at halftime.

Mississippi State

Mississippi State climbed back into the bowl picture with a 34-31 win over Miami of Florida. The Hurricanes, coming off their first loss of the season at Notre Dame, looked good as they marched to a TD the first time they touched the ball. But the Bulldogs built up a 24-10 halftime edge, and then held off the home team. The winning edge was provided by Dana Moore's 37-yard field goal with 12:27 to go in the game.

Tennessee

The Vols, playing before the largest crowd to ever see a Southern sporting event — 96,748 — lost to Alabama at Neyland Stadium 27-0. The game was reginally televised. The closest Tennessee could come to scoring was on a 27-yard field goal attempt in the third quarter that was blocked. The Vols had two other opportunities at the Alabama end zone, but both times, passes were intercepted, ending the threats.

Vanderbilt

George MacIntyre's winless Commodores took it on the chin again this past weekend — losing to Georgia, in Athens, 41-0. The powerful Bulldogs completely shut down the Vandy running and passing attack, letting the Commodores inside the 20 only once, and then picking off a Whit Taylor pass in the end zone. On the day, Vanderbilt had only 224 yards total offense.

Tonight's Game

Cats Look For First SEC Win

Kentucky will be looking for its first Southeastern Conference win of the season tonight against Georgia — but it will be a tough one to capture. The Georgia Bulldogs, one of the surprise teams in the SEC this season is presently undefeated in both conference (3-0) and overall play (6-0).

The Bulldogs come to Lexington sporting a powerful ground game, primarily propelled by freshman sensation Herschel Walker, who shredded Vanderbilt's defense last weekend in Athens to the tune of 283 yards on 23 carries, including TD runs of 60, 48, and 53 yards. All in all, Georgia had 545 yards total offense against the Commodores, 331 on the ground and 214 in the air. Buck Belue completed seven of 11 passes, while his backup, Jeff Paulk had a perfect 6-6-0 day in the passing department for 75 yards.

While the Bulldogs will boast of a potent running and passing attack, they aren't any slouches when it comes to defense, either. They put a goose egg on the board by Vandy's name last week, and they did the same to Texas A & M 42-0 in Athens. Last week, the closest the Commodores could come to the goal line was to the 18 where a Whit Taylor pass was promptly intercepted by Jeff Hipp in the end zone.

What will it take for Kentucky to upset the Georgia Bulldogs tonight? Well, it might not hurt the Cats to get a little good luck going their direction. It seems all the breaks have gone against UK this season. Admittedly, you make a lot of your own breaks; but the football does bounce in strange ways — breaks can determine the outcome of games.

For the Cats to come through with a win tonight, it will take a valiant, error-free effort.

Coach Fran Curci will probably have to establish a balanced running and passing attack against the Bulldogs. While the Cats may have initial success in one phase of the game, the deep, experienced Georgia defense will eventually make adjustments to stop either a one-sided running or passing attack. This is not to say that the Cats should open the game up offensively. To the contrary. Kentucky will need to establish superiority at the line of scrimmage and grind it out, running down the clock in order to keep the ball away from the talented Walker and Buck Belue's pinpoint passing.

On defense, the Wildcats have to try to stop Walker from getting the big play. A couple of long runs for touchdowns could easily deflate the Cats. Should UK get behind early in the game, it will be very difficult for them to make a comeback. Kentucky's offense is not experienced nor poised enough to be able to make up a two-three touchdown deficit against a talented and experienced team like Georgia.

Bill Straus

The Kentucky defense could be sorely tested by Walker, Belue & Co. — Georgia's offensive team.

The Series History

Wildcats, Bulldogs Stage Some Wild Games

Kentucky and Georgia have had a colorful, but one-sided, series history. The schools began playing each other in 1939, and made the game a regular series in 1956, when the Cats won 14-7. Georgia leads the series 23-7-2.

The second game of the series (UK won the first one 13-6) was a game that then-head coach "Ab" Kirwan would relish for a long time.

It was a 7-7 tie with an old coaching rival from his days as a Louisville high school football coach. The tie came against legendary Wally Butts and one of his finest Georgia football squads—one that had All-American Frankie Sinkwich as its star. That tie propelled the Cats to a 5-3-2 season.

Georgia played an inauspicious role for Kentucky in 1946—handing rookie head coach Paul "Bear" Bryant his first coaching loss at Kentucky—a 28-13 setback.

Substitute back Ralph Genito recalled being summoned by Bryant that day to warm up just as Kentucky ran for two first downs and appeared to be launching a scoring drive, when Phil Cutchin committed another fumble—one of many that day in Athens.

"I was taking snaps from the reserve center on the sideline," Genito remembered, "and when the Georgia fans roared, I looked up to see what had happened. At that minute, the center snapped the ball and it bounced off my hands and onto the field.

"'Okay Genito,' Bryant said smugly, 'go in for Cutchin. You're ready.'"

Don "Dopey" Phelps was instrumental in a Kentucky upset of Georgia in 1947.

"The best game I ever played was against Georgia that year," Phelps recalled recently. "They were a top contender in the country. I mean they had Johnny Rausch and some other fine players. They were loaded.

"We kicked off and held them to three downs. I caught their first punt and returned it 60 yards for a touchdown. I ended up making a couple touchdowns, intercepting a pass and setting up a few other guys.

"That (a 26-0 win over the Bulldogs), in my opinion, was the start of UK in the Southeastern Conference. It was the first time we had beaten any of the 'Big Three'—Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee—and from that time on, UK had found its place in the conference."

Jumping to 1961, in a really wild game, Kentucky lost a heartbreaker to Georgia, 16-15, when the Bulldogs scored their last touchdown by recovering a quarterback Jerry Woolum fumble in the end zone. On the game, UK lost six bobbles.

The famous "Thin Thirty" team of 1962 under Charlie Bradshaw, played the Dogs to a surprising 7-7 tie in Athens. The Wildcats led Georgia on a 10-yard scoring pass from Woolum to Ken Bocard midway into the second quarter, but settled for a tie when Bingham Woodward intercepted a Woolum toss on the UK 31 and returned it for a touchdown. Later in the season, down to 22 players, that UK team knocked off Tennessee 12-10 in Knoxville.

One of the most impressive Kentucky wins came in 1965 in Athens. After choosing to receive and have the strong wind that was gusting at their backs, the Bulldogs rang up 10 first quarter points.

But with the wind to the Wildcats' backs in the second stanza, the Cats scored four TDs for a 28-10 win.

"It was real windy when we played Georgia, and we went crazy," quarterback Rick Norton remembered. "They had two or three weaknesses on pass defense, they changed at the half. We had (Rick) Kestner going on a post, (Rodger) Bird out and deep, and (Larry) Seiple splitting. They were trying to cover them with two men. It was just a matter of me picking the right guy. We kept (John) Andrighetti back to block

The SEC: A Kicking Conference

Thomas K. Shropshire

Jim Miller, punter, Ole Miss.

The kicking game—it can make or break you. Any coach in the nation will tell you the same thing. But for some reason, in the past few years, the kicking game has especially flourished in the South. And even more particularly in the Southeastern Conference, where such names as Berj Yepremian, Jim Miller and Rex Robinson have been heard.

Kentucky has seen its share of superb punters and placekickers. The names Larry Seiple, Lou Michaels and George Blanda are familiar ones to college and professional football fans alike. All three began their football careers at the University of Kentucky. Seiple was a punter for UK back in 1964-66. He went on to star in the professional ranks. Lou Michaels went on to the NFL, but was better known as a lineman. And then there's old, reliable George Blanda, who only recently retired from the professional game. But he stayed around until he was well in his 40s. Most of those later years he spent being an efficient and accurate placekicker. He performed on one of the best pro teams of his time—the Oakland Raiders.

But probably the best kicker to ever play at the University of Kentucky was punter Ralph Kercheval. Kercheval played and lettered from 1931-1933 under Coach Harry Gamage. Kercheval holds the record for the longest punt in UK history—a 78 yarder his senior year against Georgia Tech.

Phenomenally, Kercheval holds the SEC record in several categories in punting. He punted 101 times in 1933 for a 43.5 average and that set the SEC mark for a season. Not only did Kercheval punt the ball often, but he obviously did it well. He holds the conference mark for most yards punted in a season with 4,394, also in 1933. In one game (against Cincinnati in 1933) Kercheval had 10 punts for a 52.0 yard average.

"Primarily I learned how to kick as a kid," Kercheval remembered. "We had kicking games in Woodland and Transylvania Parks. There would be two or three players on a team and the object was very involved. We also had punting drills."

Not only did Kercheval punt the ball often, but he obviously did it well.

Among Kercheval's biggest thrills were the following:

"It was my first game to play in. We were playing Maryville College," he said. "And then Washington and Lee after that. My first collegiate kick was 75 yards in the air.

"Another big moment was . . . I believe I was a sophomore, we were playing Tennessee in old Stoll Field. I kicked three consecutive times because of two offside penalties. Each time we were moved back five yards and I kicked the ball to the same spot every time."

Today, Kercheval is a successful horseman in the Bluegrass. He is owner of Gallaher Farm and former manager of Merworth Farm.

On the differences in kickers today, he said that there wasn't that much.

"Coaches were a little bit more conservative (during the early years).

There was a rule of thumb, 'if you were on the 40, you would kick on fourth down . . .'" elaborated the seven-year pro, who played football with the Brooklyn Dodgers after college.

One of the best kickers seen in the SEC in the past couple of years, at least according to Wildcat head coach Fran Curci, is Jim Miller from Ole Miss. Miller had a phenomenal career with the Rebels. He owns the season career mark for the best punting average in 75 punts as a minimum. Miller had 76 for a 43.2 average. With 40 punts as a minimum, Miller had 66 for a 45.9 average in 1977, probably his best year.

In the placekicking department, one of the best in the SEC comes to Commonwealth Stadium tonight—Rex Robinson with the University of Georgia. The Bulldogs' point machine holds the SEC record for most consecutive Point After Tries made with 65 during the 1977-78 and 1979 seasons. In the field goal department, Robinson hit 15 of 17 in 1978 which placed him third in the SEC for a season. Robinson also holds the career field goals made record in the Southeastern Conference.

Rex Robinson, placekicker, University of Georgia.

Henry Parks Running Back

Filling in for the injured Chris Jones at running back for the Wildcats, Henry Parks had one of his finest games last week against LSU, including an exciting 40 yard kickoff return for Kentucky. Following Jones' injury against Bowling Green, Parks has been the starting running back in the past two games for the Cats. This season, the former Harrodsburg High School star has a 4.0 yards per carry average for UK. Only a junior, Parks has exciting speed and has utilized it on the outside option play numerous times, including a 12 yard gallop against Indiana.

Defense

Chris Jacobs Safety

An exciting punt return specialist as well as defensive back, Chris Jacobs put Kentucky in scoring position last week against LSU in the second quarter when he returned a punt 22 yards, putting the football on the Tiger 15. A personal foul penalty moved the ball to the eight. In addition to his kick returning, Jacobs, a senior from Coral Gables High School in Miami, FL picked off one Tiger pass for his second interception of the season. The 6-1, 175-pounder then returned it 16 yards. He is tied for the UK team lead in interceptions this year with two, returning both for a total of 52 yards this season.

Tennis Program is Rebuilding, Improving

Scott Webb is expected to compete with Tony Alroy for the No. 1 spot on the UK tennis squad this spring.

Two new coaches, a new tennis building and a tough schedule await the University of Kentucky's 1981 tennis team.

Replacing Graddy Johnson this year will be head coach Tommy Wade. He brings with him assistant coach Fritz Nau. In addition, these two men will witness the building of a structure to be used exclusively for tennis purposes.

"We wanted to build a utilitarian structure that tennis could use," said Athletics Director Cliff Hagan. "It will be used primarily for storage and for the offices for tennis. I don't want to mislead anyone and tell them this will be an indoor tennis center. It won't be that. But it will be a sign that we are making more and more of a commitment to our tennis program here at UK."

Indeed. In addition to the new structure, which will be built on the corner between the two bleachers where the tennis courts are now, and Shively Sports Center complex, Hagan also merged the men's and women's tennis programs in the spring, and made Claudia Young, the women's coach at the time, director of the UK tennis program.

But more to the point is the fact that the men's team will be returning several outstanding players, including two of the Wildcats' top players in Scotty Webb, a senior from Lookout Mountain, TN, and Tony Alroy, a 27-year old junior from Tel Aviv, Israel. Both competed very successfully in the Southeastern Conference matches last year and are expected to form a nucleus from which Wade and Nau can build from.

According to Wade, the Southeastern Conference, top to bottom, is one of the toughest leagues in the nation. Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama and Florida are usually in the Top 10, and LSU and Vanderbilt have recently finished in the Top Three in the SEC Tournament that is held annually.

"Kentucky is the northern-most Tony Alroy has been a consistent performer for the Wildcats in his three years at Kentucky.

school in the SEC," Wade explained. "And when you go to Florida and try to recruit, you are wanting boys to come north and play in the cold and sometimes have to practice in the snow.

"But we are trying to build a foundation and get the correct attitudes and be competitive," Wade said. "First, we have to work with the players we have and bring them along. Second, we need to bring in one top player. Anybody in the Top 30 in the US is top-notch. The biggest problem is getting the first player."

Recruiting the player that Wade is searching for will come as the program develops, he believes. And he obviously believes that one way to develop the program at Kentucky is to bring in a good teacher. That is where Fritz Nau comes in.

A graduate of the University of Georgia, Nau did not play college tennis. He has been a teaching pro for five years and is currently the pro at the Lexington Tennis Club.

But don't let Nau's seeming inexperience on the collegiate level fool you. The sandy-haired Barbourville native has brought up such champions as nine-year old Susan Sloane of Lexington.

"You wouldn't believe the number of kids that are trying to get Fritz to give them lessons," Wade said. "He is one of the most knowledgeable men around tennis. He added a new dimension around Lexington to the game of tennis"

And Wade's goal?

"We want to continue the interest around here in tennis to the point where we can contend for the SEC championship."

Claudia Young is director of the intercollegiate tennis program at UK.

Wade feels a big step in that direction is how Athletics Director Cliff Hagan has supported the program.

"He (Hagan) has been very interested in the program," Wade said. "He wants a championship program here and we want to give him a good program." Hagan and Jack Blanton (Vice President, Business Affairs at UK) were instrumental in getting this building built so quickly (it is expected to be completed before the beginning of spring matches).

Kentucky opens the season January 30 in Knoxville, with the SEC Indoor Tournament. But for UK, practice began in August.

And among those showing great promise were the following:

Scotty Webb—This 5-11, 145-pounder from Lookout Mountain, TN will have a good shot at playing No. 1 this spring. He is the brother to Wildcat All-SEC tennis player Jack Webb, who graduated two years ago. He has superb quickness and speed, with an exceedingly strong overhead game.

Tony Alroy—A 5-8, 144 pounder who will be Webb's main competition for the No. 1 spot on the 1981 team. He is an aggressive, charge-the-net type player who has the capacity to win at any position.

Scott Foster—Utilizes intelligence and a highly-developed backcourt game to be one of the Cats most consistent performers. A 5-11, 155-pound junior from Madison, WI, Foster is a fine doubles player, and an excellent student.

Joe Leytze—Only freshman last year, this 6-3, 190-pound Cincinnati, OH native, impressed coaches last spring with his overall play. He has size, speed and strength to go along with all the basic tools. He has unlimited potential and is an excellent doubles player.

The schedule could give the Cats some trouble. Among those trouble spots on the schedule are back-to-back road matches with Georgia and Tennessee—two of the toughest teams in the conference. Kentucky also takes on SEC opponents Ole Miss, Mississippi State, Alabama, Vanderbilt, Florida, Auburn and LSU—most of those matches being on the road.

How the new Chevy Citation

and mid-size at the very same time.

No mirrors, no wires, nothing up our sleeve. Citation really is both compact and mid-size. Watch closely.

Compact on the outside.

Outside, Citation measures only 15 feet bumper to bumper. That's trim enough to fit into 3/4 of a parking space.

Mid-size on the inside.

No hocus-pocus. What we did was to mount Citation's engine sideways, giving you enough room inside to seat five adults comfortably. With space left over in the hatchback that could even surprise Houdini. There's also a removable shelf panel that makes every bit of cargo just seem to disappear.

You've got to drive it to believe it.

Of course, there's a lot more about Citation than meets the eye.

- There's its front-wheel-drive traction on wet roads, through snow and in mud.
- The way its ride can make a stretch of road seem a whole lot smoother.
- Its impressive acceleration.
- And yet still, in the hatchback, wagon-like convenience.

Why not see your Chevy dealer about buying or leasing the new Chevy Citation. You might be amazed. It could be just the car you have in mind.

It's a whole new kind of compact car.

ca-Cola Bottling Co.

In simple terms, why every Honda has front-wheel drive.

Have you noticed how more and more car manufacturers are switching to front-wheel drive these days?

We're not surprised. We knew the advantages of front-wheel drive a long, long time ago.

In fact, only Honda has sold all its cars in the U.S. with front-wheel drive and a transverse-mounted engine. (Not to mention having sold more than anyone else too.)

So just what are the advantages?

For a start, we've designed a car that's smaller on the outside but with more than enough room inside for both driver and passengers.

This is partly due to the fact that there's no driveshaft running through the passenger compartment. So your passengers have more foot and legroom.

Eliminating the driveshaft also reduces another problem. Because the driveshaft can be a source of noise and vibration. But the advantages of front-wheel drive don't stop at improved space utilization and comfort.

Front-wheel drive puts more of the weight on the front driving wheels. That means better traction.

And since driving power is applied in the direction the car is being steered, it helps you through the turns. We could go on.

But the only way to really appreciate our front-wheel drive is to test-drive a Honda yourself.

The Civic. The car that was named Motor Trend magazine's Import Car of the Year.

The Accord. Our luxury car.

And the Prelude. Our idea of a sports car.

They all have front-wheel drive.

So if that's what you're looking for in a car, it's worth remembering that Honda is out in front all the way.

HONDA

We make it simple.

Dr. Fred C. Davison President

During his 13 years as President of the University of Georgia, Dr. Fred C. Davison has been an active force in University athletics. Dr. Davison was born in Atlanta Sept. 3, 1929 and grew up in Marietta. He attended Emory University and recieved a doctoral degree in veterinary medicine from the University of Georgia in 1952 and a Ph.D. from Iowa State University in 1963.

Davison practiced veterinary medicine in Marietta for six years before going to Iowa State where he taught in the College of Veterinary Medicine and led a research project for the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. He worked for the American Veterinary Medical Association national office in Chicago for a year before returning to Georgia in 1964 as Dean of the University of Georgia College of Veterinary Medicine.

In 1966, Davison was named Vice-Chancellor of the University System of Georgia, and on July 1, 1967, he became the 17th president of the University of Georgia, the nation's oldest chartered university.

Since Dr. Davison became president, the University's annual budget has more than doubled. Enrollment has increased by 30 percent, the number of faculty members has increased by more than 400 and the programs for academically gifted students have made the University one of the top schools in the nation in enrollment of National Merit and National Achievement Scholars.

Instructional and service programs have been vastly strengthened under Davison's leadership, and the University has become one of the strongest research and graduate institutions in the South. Graduate enrollment has more than doubled, as has the number of graduate degrees awarded. The research budget has risen to record levels and the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education has cited the University of Georgia as one of the leading 52 institutions of higher education in the country.

A.D. for Administration*

J. Reid Parker A.D. for Administration

Reid Parker assumed the duties of Athletic Director for Administration on July 1, 1979.

Born May 4, 1924 in Franklin County, Georgia, Parker served as the University of Georgia Faculty Chairman of Athletics from 1972 to 1979.

Parker was in the U.S. Army from 1943-46, serving in the European Theatre of Operations. Following his stint in the Army, Parker continued his education, attending Anderson Junior College, Clemson University and the University of Georgia. He received the Bachelor of Science in Forestry from the University of Georgia in 1950. After graduation, Parker was employed by Clemson University as an assistant Agricultural Economist.

From 1954-1979, Parker was a Professor in the University of Georgia School of Forest Resources.

Parker's campus activities have been numerous: member of the University Council for Superior Students, the University Grievance Board, Steering Committee for the School of Forest Resources Alumni Association, University Dialogue Task Force on Academic Concerns, University-wide Self Study Committee on Student Personnel and past chairman of the University Alumni Society Board of Managers.

He is a member of no less than seven professional or honorary societies.

Bulldog Chief

In 16 years as head football coach at Georgia, Vince Dooley has compiled one of the most enviable records in America: overall record of 118-56-6, three Southeastern Conference championships, 11 bowl games, SEC Coach of the Year five times, and NCAA District III Coach of the Year five times.

He currently ranks eighth on the list of the nation's Top 20 Coaches with a winning percentage of .672. Dooley is also the fourth ranking member of the survivor's club in NCAA Division I. With the exception of Alabama's Bear Bryant (22 years), Houston's Bill Yeoman (18 years), and Tennessee State's John Merritt (17 years), Dooley has been at his present school longer than any of the 142 head coaches in Division I.

His talents as an organizer and administrator were well-recognized when he was named Georgia's Athletic Director for Sports in July, 1979. His additional responsibilities have him directing not only the football program, but also the overall sports program at Georgia consisting of 20 intercollegiate sports.

His reputation is well-documented nation-wide through his involvement in many professional and charitable organizations. He is currently chairman of the American Football Coaches Association Ethics Committee, member of the Board of Trustees of the American Football Coaches Association, and Chairman of the Georgia Easter Seals Society.

Dooley was born in Mobile, Ala., on Sept. 4, 1932. He was a standout football and basketball player at McGill High and led his basketball team to the state finals twice. He went on to Auburn where he played safety and quarterback under legendary Shug Jordan (1951-53) and also started on the Tiger basketball team. Dooley captained the Tiger football team in 1953 and led them to their first winning season in 17 years—7-2-1 and Gator Bowl bid. After playing in the 1954 College All-Star game in Chicago, he served two years in the Marines before returning to Auburn as an Assistant Coach under Jordan. He coached the quarterbacks five years including the famous undefeated national championship season of 1957. He then coached the Auburn freshmen team for three seasons (1961-62-63) including two undefeated years.

New Georgia Athletic Director Joel Eaves tapped Dooley for the Bulldog head job in 1964.

Dooley earned his undergraduate degree in Business Administration from Auburn in 1954 and Masters Degree in history in 1963.

He is married to the former Barbara Meshad of Birmingham. They have four children: Deanna, 19; Daniel, 17; Denise, 16; and Derek, 12.

Bulldog Outlook

There's a tradition of good running backs at Georgia—Frank Sinkwich, Charley Trippi—and now, Herschel Walker. Everybody knew he was good. He was hotly recruited by Alabama, Clemson, Southern Cal and others. But he decided to stay home.

And has he ever made Bulldog coach Vince Dooley happy.

A consensus high school All-American at Johnson County High School and named Parade magazine's "National Back of the Year," the 6-2, 215 pound Wrightsville native has definitely made his presence known in only half a season in the Southeastern Conference.

For a freshman, he's done some pretty impressive things. He has led the SEC for much of the year in rushing. He made his debut by sparking the Bulldogs to a 16-15 win in their first game of the season against Tennessee in Knoxville, after the Dogs had fallen behind 15-3 in the fourth quarter. Currently unbeaten, 6-0 overall and 3-0 in conference play, Georgia and its prize running back are the talk of the SEC and could be one of the surprise teams of the year.

But at Georgia, there is more than just a one man team built behind a sensational freshman. As always, you have to start with the defense when you talk about the Bulldogs.

The "Junkyard Dogs", as they are affectionately known in Athens, are one of the best defensive units in the conference, currently ranking second. The secondary is the most noted spot on the Georgia squad, mainly because of a man named Scott Woerner, an All-Southeastern Conference choice last fall at cornerback. He ranked fourth in the nation in punt returns this year, going into the Vanderbilt game last week. At 6-0, 195 pounds, Woerner is expected to go in the professional football league draft next spring. Assisting him in the secondary are Bob Kelly, Dale Williams and pre-season All-SEC safety man, Jeff Hipp, who leads the SEC in interceptions.

The defensive line will have more experience than last year. Jimmy Payne, out with an injury in 1978, will play tackle this year. Other returners will be 270 pound Eddie Weaver, Tim Parks and Joe Creamons. Also on the line will be left end Tim Bobo. Linebackers are solid with Frank Ros and Pat McShea, two seniors, and sophomore Nate Taylor. McShea, a 6-2 senior, has been the anchorman of a tough-nosed Dog defensive unit this year.

On offense, running with Walker in the backfield will be senior Jimmy Womack and juniors Matt Simon, Steve Kelly and Carnie Norris. Kelly, a junior from Savannah, was the Bulldogs' leading rusher against Wake Forest and Clemson last year, had 143 yards against Vanderbilt, and 117 yards on 13 carries against Georgia Tech. He was recipient of the Chevrolet Award for Outstanding Offensive Player in the Tech game. Simon and Womack have both seen action in the Bulldogs' backfield, but it was Norris who exploded onto the scene against Ole Miss two weeks ago, racking up 150 yards rushing in only 15 carries to boost the Bulldogs to a 28-21 win over an aroused Rebel squad. Norris took up the slack when Walker was hobbled by sore ankles and was ineffective against Ole Miss.

Quarterback has not been a problem for the Bulldogs this year. Junior Buck Belue, a co-starter with Jeff Pyburn last year, has been most effective for the Dogs this year. He quarterbacked Georgia to their first win in four games last year, a 24-21 win over Ole Miss, and then propelled an SEC title drive that carried the Bulldogs into the Auburn game tied with Alabama for the league lead. Only a 33-13 loss to the Tigers, after Belue broke his ankle, put Georgia out of consideration for the Sugar Bowl berth.

A solid position for Coach Vince Dooley this year has been the receiving positions, where swift Lindsay Scott and Amp Arnold at the wide-out spots and big sophomore, Norris Brown, at tight end, have kept defenses honest against the Bulldogs, who tend to run more than pass.

The kicking game, always a Bulldog strength, is still so in 1980. Three-year letterman at punter, Mike Garrett, has graduated to the pro ranks, but the punting has been handled very effectively by sophomore Jim Broadway. The dependable Rex Robinson returns. Many teams in the league are rejoicing that he is a senior—he has been a great one for the Bulldogs, holding conference records for most consecutive extra points and most career field goals.

With a 6-0 record and 3-0 in SEC play, the Dogs are eyeing a Sugar Bowl berth. It could happen. Should both Alabama and the Dogs go undefeated this year, Georgia would go to New Orleans, since Bama went last Jan. 1. Neither team meets the other, which could be a real shame. Both teams are powerhouses.

University of Georgia

One of the nation's oldest public universities, yet one that's exhilarating, up-to-date, and in step with the times, the University of Georgia serves students from all over the world and the nation.

In addition to high calibre instruction, research is encouraged and carried out by both faculty and students in a constant search for updated knowledge.

Georgians are justly proud that their University is the oldest chartered state institution of higher learning in the nation. Incorporated by an act of the General Assembly on Jan. 27, 1785, the University of Georgia opened in 1801 and graduated its first class in 1804.

Growth and time have not altered everything at Georgia. The tree-shaded campus is rich in tradition. Reminders of the University's early beginnings are Old College, the Arch at the campus entrance, and the 140-year old Chapel.

On the undergraduate level, the University of Georgia offers 14 baccalaureate degree programs. On the graduate level, the University offers work toward 18 Masters degrees in approximately 73 areas of concentration.

The University of Georgia campus stretches over two of Athens' famous hills. The traditional North Campus is the home of the Colleges of Arts and Sciences and Business Administration, the Schools of Environmental Design, Law and Journalism, as well as the main library.

The South Campus, boasting of an array of modern structures, has grown southward as Georgia continues to expand. Buildings located here include Boyd Graduate Studies Research Center, and Colleges of Veterinary Medicine, Agriculture, Education, the Schools of Forest Resources, Social Work and Pharmacy.

Smith May Be Little and Slow But He Leads UK in Tackles

Chuck Smith's not that strong. And he's not that fast. But somehow, darn it, Chuck Smith has found a way to lead Kentucky in tackles this season from his linebacker's spot.

"I just follow my reads," he explains his secret to making all the tackles he does. "If you follow your reads well, you should always be around the football."

"Most of my tackles come in two areas—up the middle, around the noseguard's spot, or on the outside, usually on the ends."

Despite his proclamation that he is small and slow, Smith really isn't to people who tend to be below six feet tall and under 200 pounds. The 6-1, 216 pound Louisville native actually is a little smaller than your average linebacker.

"I use more technique than I do strength," he said. "Technique is the key."

But despite his lack of size and speed, he was third leading tackler last year with 56 solo stops, 39 assists and two tackles behind the line of scrimmage. In addition, he caused a fumble, knocked down two passes and earned a second straight varsity letter.

"I use more technique than I do strength," he said. "Technique is the key."

This year, Smith is doing it again. In the first five games, he had 40 solo tackles, 28 assists, and two tackles behind the line of scrimmage for a total loss in yard of two yards. Against Bowling Green last month in the Cats' 21-20 squeaker, Smith had his biggest day, coming up with nine tackles alone in the first half, and finishing the game with well over 15.

In high school, at Jeffersontown High, Smith was a four-letterman player, the school's first All-State selection, and an All-County member. He also played on the school's basketball and track teams, throwing the shot.

"I didn't pay that much attention to college football when I was in high school," he admits. "But my dad was a real big Big Blue fan, and he convinced me to come here. Once I made up my mind, I didn't think of going anywhere else."

One of Smith's most valuable assets is the fact that he has never really received a serious injury—quite an accomplishment considering that he is a senior playing major college football.

"Against Tennessee last year, I hurt my shoulder, but it was the last game of the year," he recalled. "It didn't require surgery or anything, anyway. I guess I'm just pretty durable and pretty lucky. In college football, there's a lot of roughness and hitting. I can totally understand why there are as many injuries in football today as there are."

The joke, as always with defensive linemen and linebackers, is that they would like to exchange positions with a member of the offensive team—like quarterback. Would Smith?

"No way. I've always loved line-backing," he said. "If you play offense, the best position is quarterback—you're at the center of all the action. But a linebacker calls all the plays for the defense. Whenever I watch television, I don't watch the quarterback or the ball like most people do. I watch the linebackers, watch them get their reads or call out their plays. I just couldn't think of playing any other place on the team."

This year has been, without question, something of a disappointment to the seniors, like Smith. But they all feel it can still turn out well for the Wildcats.

Most of the seniors were recruited

Commonwealth Stadium

Commonwealth Stadium, the University of Kentucky's football facility, is located on an 86-acre tract on the Kentucky Experimental Station Farm grounds south of the main campus. Completed in 1973, the concrete and steel cantilevered structure replaced Stoll Field, where Wildcat football teams had played since their beginning.

Constructed by Huber, Hunt & Nichols, Inc., the facility has a capacity of 50,000 sideline seats, with end zone bleachers swelling the total to 58,000.

Bids for the stadium were opened in mid-July 1972, and construction began a short while later.

The pressbox, located between the two levels on the south side of the playing field, is serviced by two elevators and contains a main working area, radio booths, food service areas, private booths and a camera deck extending along the entire front of the box.

Thirty-four concession areas and 30 restrooms are located conveniently throughout the facility. Four first aid stations with emergency health equipment also are provided. There are four major pedestrian ramps at each corner of the stadium and 40 ramp exits to seats.

The area immediately surrounding the stadium contains 6,000 parking spaces, with half of those paved and the other half in grass with gravel driveways. Another 8,500 parking spaces are located within a mile, all north, of the stadium.

The playing surface was sodded in Kentucky bluegrass in July 1973, and this was replaced with Bermuda in 1974. A fairly new scoreboard was moved from Stoll Field and installed with a similar scoreboard at the new stadium.

By action of the University Board of Trustees, the general area encompassing the old Wildcat playing field, located first on what is now an intramural field, was dedicated Oct. 14, 1916, as Stoll Field in honor of the late Judge Richard C. Stoll, prominent alumnus, trustee and benefactor of the University. Soon after the first sections of the concrete stadium on Euclid Avenue were completed Sept. 4, 1924, the new field site and stadium were likewise officially known as Stoll Field.

Kentucky Athletics Director Cliff Hagan has also announced a study be conducted to expand Commonwealth Stadium's seating capacity within the next five years. The expansion would call for enclosing one end zone. The seating capacity for Commonwealth Stadium would then jump to 73,000.

Last Week

Frustrating. It can all be summed up in that one word. Kentucky's loss to LSU, 17-10 last weekend, that is.

Playing superb defense, except for the opening drive, and that last-gasp march by the visitors, the Wildcats almost came up with something to cheer about. Almost. But it was not to be.

Alan Risher drove his LSU Tigers to a touchdown on the opening march of the game — 69 yards — as he gave the ball to Hokie Gajan for a one-yard touchdown. In the second quarter, David Johnston booted a 45-yard field goal to give the visitors a 10-3 edge. Then, with the score tied 10-10 with six minutes to go in the game, Risher again summoned his troops and drove 80 yards for the winning touchdown, which he himself scored with 41 seconds in the game, from two yards out.

But in between, a number of things happened.

The Tigers did a job on the UK offense which obviously struggled against the talented defense of the Bengals. But still, the Cats were scrappy — struggling right up until the end. And it was this scratching and fighting that almost gave Kentucky a win to be proud of.

After the Gajan score, Kentucky got some offense of its own working — behind the direction of Terry Henry. The quick-footed quarterback moved the Cats to the LSU nine yard line, and Tommy Griggs came on with 44 seconds gone in the second quarter, to cut the LSU lead to 7-3.

Then came several chances for Kentucky to put the game away. The Cats, despite getting the ball three separate times inside the 10 yard line, could not manage a single point. First, a punt sailed over Tiger punter David Johnston's head, Kentucky taking over first-and-ten at the six. Henry was stopped on fourth down from the one.

Again the Tigers couldn't move. However, Chris Jacobs returned Johnston's punt 22 yards to the 15, and had tacked on a personal foul against the Tigers, putting the ball on the LSU eight. Four plays later, a 27-yard field goal attempt was blocked by LSU's Ramsey Dardar.

A third attempt occurred when the Wildcats got the ball to the Louisiana State seven, thanks to three major-distance penalties. This time, on first down, Chris Williams picked off a Randy Jenkins pass in the end zone.

And that was about it. Certainly Kentucky got the ball into the end zone late in the fourth quarter to tie the game. It was set up when Andy Ryan partially blocked a punt which rolled dead at the LSU 35. Jenkins hit Allan Watson for 16 yards and on fourth and one at the nine, Jenkins lunged for another first down. The freshman from Stickleyville, VA picked up seven yards on the next play, and then fell the final yard for the TD, deadlocking the game. But it wasn't enough.

The three chances at the goal line in the second quarter came back to haunt UK.

About the Wildcats' chances in the second quarter, Curci moaned, "we tried everything, but nothing worked. We played exceptionally well, but couldn't score."

Kentucky's defense was solid against LSU.

Charlie Bailey, UK's defensive coordinator, and Curci were both pleased with the defensive effort given by the Cats.

"The defense played very well," Curci said.

"We just became passive, waiting for them to make a mistake," said Bailey about the last minute drive the Tigers put on for the win. "They just never committed the turnover."

"On the first drive, we had been off for two weeks, and it took our players awhile to get adjusted. On the last drive, we became a different football team."

UK Cheerleaders

UK Information Services

What's Number Two in the nation and Number One in the hearts of all Kentucky Wildcat fans? The unanimous choice is the University of Kentucky Wildcat cheerleaders!

The 1979-80 squad finished second behind Indiana State in the National Collegiate Cheerleading Championship held in Los Angeles. The competition was broadcast nationwide last spring on network television.

The UK cheerleaders are practicing a "new look" for the 1980 football season. Because of Southeastern Conference regulations restricting cheerleader routines, the Wildcats will be building smaller pyramids but creating more entertaining and crowd-pleasing routines.

Various UK squad members were injured last season suffering broken bones, concussions and displaced shoulders because of high-risk gymnastic stunts.

New this year to the squad is the UK Wildcat, Ralph McBarron, a senior majoring in marketing from Louisville.

"It's a magic suit," McBarron claims. "You put it on and suddenly the whole state of Kentucky starts smiling. I'm happy to be the Wildcat."

McBarron and all other members of the 1980-81 Wildcat cheerleading squad are true blue sports fans. Here's the 1980 cheerleader line-up:

This season's spirited squad includes eight persons from last year's championship team, plus six newcomers.

BARBARA BETTS of Somerset is co-captain of this year's squad. A senior majoring in therapeutic recreation, she is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Gordon Betts.

This is her third year as a UK cheerleader and her 16th year total -- she's been a cheerleader since fifth grade.

Kentucky is noted for its research efforts, especially in the fields of energy, tobacco and cancer.

UK's Institute for Mining and Minerals Research is a national leader in energy-related research, especially in the areas of coal liquefaction and gasification.

Kentucky's Tobacco and Health Research Institute is a world-wide leader in research on the problems of tobacco and health.

In the arts, close to 100,000 people attend the many art, music and theatre productions at UK. The Kentucky Marching Band is one of the best collegiate contingents in the country, and the UK orchestra, chorus, theatre and opera offer sterling performances throughout the year.

A real boon to the arts at Kentucky was the opening of UK's new Center for the Arts. The building contains a 400-seat recital hall, a 1,500-seat concert hall and the 20,000 square foot University of Kentucky Art Museum.

UK's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center has a wide range of programs in education and research. In addition to its 20-year mission as a major teaching and research center, the facility serves as a medical complex for the Lexington community and a regional center for the Commonwealth.

Of major significance in the area of medical research is the recent opening of the Sanders-Brown Research Center on Aging, one of the first facilities of its kind in the nation. The building, made possible by a matching grant from the John Y. Brown, Jr. Foundation, will enable UK scientists and researchers to study the biological aspects of aging with the ultimate goal of improving the quality of life for the elderly.

School spirit is on a continuous high at UK. The 1979-80 cheerleading squad was judged the second best collegiate cheerleader in the nation. The Kentucky band receives standing ovations wherever it appears.

The University has had only eight presidents since its founding in 1865. Dr. Otis Singletary, now in his 12th year as UK president, is a history scholar and nationally-recognized university administrator. Campbell's Catches Add Life to Kentucky Offense

When big Jim Campbell graduated from Trinity High School in Louisville three years ago, he was already being touted as one of the best all-around athletes to come from that tradition-laden school.

So he trucked off to Kentucky and Fran Curci's team, which was coming off a fine 10-1 record in 1977.

In 1976 and 1977, Campbell played on state high school championship teams at Trinity. In the 1976 title game, he scored the decisive touchdown from his tight end spot. In addition to his football antics, he lettered in basketball and track. He was treasurer of the student council at Trinity and was in the honors program in high school.

The awards started coming in as a junior and senior. He was All-State, then All-American. Then he played in the Kentucky East-West All-Star game. And when it came time for him to be recruited, they came from all over—Notre Dame, Michigan, Maryland, Tennessee, Virginia—they were all interested in the big kid from Trinity.

But he wasn't interested in any of them. Regardless of tradition or promises.

"I wanted to stay in the state and play close to home," he said. "That was it. I never thought twice about it.

So he trucked off to Kentucky and Fran Curci's team, which was coming off a fine 10-1 record in 1977. Hopes were high for 1978, especially with the addition of the big, talented tight end from Trinity High.

Then tragedy struck. The day before "Picture Day" 1979 at UK, Campbell stepped on a nail.

He saw his first action the second game of 1978, and played the rest of the year, catching four passes for 64 yards, his longest being a 24-yarder against Virginia Tech.

Then tragedy struck. The day before "Picture Day" 1979 at UK, Campbell stepped on a nail. He still was able to play against Miami of Ohio, and played in the next four games. But he never regained the effectiveness he had had as a freshman. A practice injury put him out of the season for good before the sixth game of the fall. Prior to that injury, Campbell had caught only one pass for a two yard total. However, that pass came against Ole Miss for a deciding touchdown.

Campbell returned this year, ready to make up for lost time—ready to show everyone that he was everything he was cracked up to be in high school.

"Tight ends are usually able to get open easier than the wideouts," Campbell explained.

And has he ever shown everyone.

A good case in point is this year's Bowling Green-Kentucky game. While the Cats just barely escaped with a win, the real story was that Campbell broke a Kentucky single game receiving record, snagging 11 passes on the day from Randy Jenkins. That broke a tie between Calvin Bird who had 10 against Ole Miss in 1958, and Steve Parrish, who had 10 against Vanderbilt in 1969. Campbell also caught a pass at the goal line in the fourth quarter that put UK in scoring position for the deciding touchdown against the Falcons.

"We were running flood patterns on most of those plays, and I was stepping just in front of the defensive backs to make those catches," Campbell described. "Randy was also throwing some real good passes to me, so that helped.

"I'd have to say that breaking the record has been the most exciting thing to happen to me since coming here. We won the game, and that was equally important. As long as I can make a contribution to the team, that is what makes me happy."

What made Fran Curci and the whole Kentucky team happy was the way Campbell played against Oklahoma, as well. In the first quarter, the 6-3, 224-pounder caught a nine-yard pass from Terry Henry that resulted in a touchdown for UK. The score remained 7-0 in favor of the Wildcats until the end of the third period.

"That was exciting, but we didn't win the game," Campbell said.

How is it that Campbell is always making all those big catches?

"Tight ends are usually able to get open easier than the wideouts," Campbell explained. "Defenses are geared to stop the wide receivers, to prevent the big play. Tight ends are the hardest receivers to cover, they're often left to the linebackers to cover, and linebackers have to make split-decisions as to whether the play will be a run or a pass. And then, the linebackers have to have the speed to keep up with tight ends. For that reason, tight ends are frequently open, and when Randy hits me right in the hand, the catches are usually easy to make."

But what is Campbell's secret to making all those catches successfully?

"Concentration is the key to catching the football," he insists. "You run your pattern well, the quarterback throws it perfectly, then your job is to block everything else out. It's just you and the ball. Then you have to put the ball away. Not until then can you really think about running with the football."

Much discussion has been made about Kentucky's young offensive line. As one of the "old-timers" (a junior), Campbell feels that they're coming right along.

"There has been quite a turnover up front," he admits. "Injuries have taken their toll and everyone lacks experience. But we've got some good young players up there. They've done a real good job protecting Randy (Jenkins) this year. They've developed into a good line now. It's just a matter of getting more and more game experience."

Jim Campbell would make some professional team a good tight end, also. But he refuses to think about the pros.

on their blitz. Kestner, Bird and Seiple each scored on the play."

In 1976, the Wildcats appeared snake-bit against the Bulldogs—Kentucky was marching to a Peach Bowl bid and an 8-3 regular season record, but Georgia visited Lexington and came away with a 31-7 win as the Cats played good defense, but poor offense. The Bulldogs went on to play in the Sugar Bowl that year as the SEC representative, propelled by their tenth win in eleven meetings with UK.

But revenge was to be had.

Before Bonnie Prince Charles of Wales, and 59,100 fans in Sanford Stadium in 1977, the Wildcats, ranked No. 8 nationally, led 10-0 on a 51-yard Joe Bryant field goal and a one-yard Derrick Ramsey to Dave Trosper pass at the half. At the final gun, the score stood 33-0 in favor of Kentucky.

Gazing up at Heisman Trophy candidate Art Still—six feet, seven inches—the Prince said: "You're a tall one, aren't you?"

In one of the wildest games of the rivalry in 1978, Georgia squeaked past an upset-minded bunch of Cats, 17-16, on a last-second field goal in Commonwealth Stadium.

It was Homecoming at UK, and Kentucky erupted for 10 points in the first quarter, and a second TD in the second, and led 16-0. A missed PAT after the second touchdown doomed the Cats. The sixteenth-ranked Bulldogs, a come-from-behind team all season, did just that, finally beating the Wildcats on a 29-yard field goal by Rex Robinson with eight seconds in the game.

"I'll just cross that bridge when I come to it," he said. "Only a select few get to go to the pros. It will be a scary time—like when I came to college. You may be good in high school, but you don't know about college. They may play a totally different game. It's the same way with the pros. And then, just when you get used to college, you get thrown to the pros. You always have that doubt in the back of your mind whether you're good enough to play pro ball or not."

"I'll just have to wait and see."

The UK Wildcat Marching Band

The University of Kentucky Wildcat Marching Band numbers some 290 persons from virtually every college of the University. The Band is known throughout the country as one of the nation's most progressive and innovative college marching bands, as well as a key to what is commonly referred to as the "spirit of Commonwealth Stadium."

Beginning a week before school begins, the Band's "early week" encompasses ten hours a day of rehearsal on the fundamentals of playing, marching and learning the intricate marching maneuvers and difficult music which have become its trademark. Once school begins, the students' academic responsibilities once again become primary, and the Band begins its one hour a day rehearsal.

PREGAME

The UK Band begins the pre-game festivities with the music of "There's No Business Like Show Business", "Great Day", "We'll Sing in the Sunshine", and "Cabaret", followed by the UK Fight Song, "On, On, U of K".

HALFTIME

The band's opener for this evening's performance is Bizet's "Toreador's Song" from Carmen. In concert, the majorettes are featured as the band performs Stan Kenton's "Cuban Fire Dance". As a finale, the band presents an elaborate production of "The Empire Strikes Back" including "Luke Skywalker's Theme", "Yoda's Theme", "The Imperial March" and "The Throne Room" from Star Wars.

A Look Ahead

Despite the loss of many top starters to graduation, Tulane is expected to be tough again this year. Although the 1980 squad may not quite be up to the 9-3 mark established by last year's team, a year which included a trip to the Liberty Bowl where Penn State defeated the Greenies 9-6, new head coach Vince Gibson should be able to guide the Wave to a winning season.

Quarterbacking the Bayou Boys will be Nickie Hall, a 6-5, 198-pounder from Lake Charles. Hall will be replacing Roch Hontas who, last season, set every season and career passing record in Tulane history. Others lost to graduation were receivers Alton Alexis and Darrel Griffin, and placekicker Ed Murray.

The running back positions will have four lettermen returning. Terry Harris is expected to be battling for the starting tailback position along with Marvin Terry Daffin, a 6-1, 185-pound senior and only returning starter.

The placekicking will go to Vince Manalla, who won the Ole Miss game this year for the Wave by booting a short field goal with no time left for a 26-24 win in Oxford.

Display At UK

By Jackie Bondurant

UK Information Services

Thousands of buttons, badges, posters and presidential campaign memorabilia like these are part of the exhibit now on display at the UK Art Museum.

Something you won't want to miss, particularly with this being a presidential election year, is the fantastic exhibit of presidential campaign memorabilia now on display in the University of Kentucky Art Museum.

The exhibit is called “Ballots and Bandwagons,” and it contains more than 16,000 items — everything from political buttons and badges to an original letter signed by George Washington.

The exhibit is both fascinating and educational and appeals to young and old alike.

The exhibit, which runs through Nov. 4, Election Day, is part of the Hillbrook Collection — the result of many years of collecting by Henry "Cap" Hershey and Paul Perlin, owners of Hillbrook Farm on Russell Cave Pike near Lexington.

Sponsored by the University of Kentucky Library, Department of Special Collections, the exhibit traces the history of United States presidential elections from Washington's time through the campaign of 1976.

Autographs of all presidents and most vice presidents as well as those of first ladies, assassins and major party nominees for the nation's highest offices are included.

Hundreds of medals, tokens, photographs, postcards, song sheets, broadsides, textiles, ribbons — as well as hundreds of campaign buttons — all the way back to 1896, when they were used in large numbers — are on display.

Visitors to the UK museum also will see the rare sulfide badges imported from France for the Van Buren-Harrison election of 1840 and gilt pins from former campaigns in the shapes of roosters, knights, sheep, stars and brooms.

One section of the exhibit deals with presidential assassins and contains original photographs of John Wilkes Booth, one of them autographed, and Charles Guiteau who assassinated President James A Garfield in 1881. There is also a Booth letter and what is thought to be a lock of Booth's hair. A letter from Lee Harvey Oswald to his brother is also in the exhibit.

Several rare ferrotypes of Lincoln and torchlights once carried in 19th century political parades are exhibited. Visitors also will see a multicolored campaign lantern from 1888 and such rare campaign hats as the Cox beanie of 1920.

The exhibit formally opened Sunday, Oct. 12, with the veteran CBS news correspondent Douglas Edwards and Kentucky historian Thomas Clark as guest speakers.

"We believe a large number of people, both inside and outside the University community, will enjoy seeing this collection, particularly during this presidential election year," says UK President Otis Singletary.

"Paul Perlin and Cap Hershey are to be commended for bringing this magnificent collection to us," Dr. Singletary adds.

The UK Art Museum, located in the west wing of UK's new Center for the Arts, is open daily except Mondays from noon to 5 p.m. The presidential memorabilia exhibit, like all other exhibits in the museum, is free and open to the public.

The Mid-Season Progress Report — Improvement, Growth, Healing are the Keys to a Successful Season

The following was compiled from quotes found in The Cat's Pause in an interview with Fran Curci by Gene Abell.

For Fran Curci, the 1980 season has been a trying, but learning, experience.

It's the mid-way-point in the season. The Cats have six games under their belts, and still have five toughies to go. But already, Kentucky has played with the likes of Oklahoma, Indiana and Alabama. UK was 2-3 going into the LSU game, and Coach Fran Curci has offered some interesting mid-season comments.

"The season has been pretty much like I expected," Curci said before the LSU game. "I also said we needed to survive the first part of the season injury-wise, because of games with teams like Oklahoma and Alabama. And if Indiana had beaten Iowa, which they should have, they would be undefeated and in the Top 15.

"Quite frankly, we are just beat up. We are young and our young guys can't take that. They are 18 and 19 years old and when they get to be more mature and bigger people, then we are right with them again."

Curci drew an interesting parallel with Indiana when he said, "they got beat 69 or 77-0 by Nebraska a couple of years ago. Yet that is the same team that comes back and goes to a bowl game and becomes a contender.

"I knew what was coming on. I wasn't trying to disguise it."

Curci believes that injuries have been the key to this year's mediocre season.

"Without naming individuals, there are some who are playing very good football."

"When you have people like (Shawn) Donigan, (Bob) Fogle and (Mickey) Cochran out—and those are quality athletes—you're bound to not be as effective as if they were in the game. You can't lose those kinds of people. And then (Andy) Molls. He is as good a defensive back as we have had since I have been here. They will be back next year, more mature and stronger."

But with five games to go, including battles with Georgia, Tennessee and Florida, one of the surprise teams in the league, what can Curci and his staff do?

"Not a whole lot," he said. "We can't make them older, we can't make them stronger. I can't take a kid like Richard Adams who gives you the best he has, but weighs 215 pounds. I can't make him 245.

"I have the patience to understand that. There is a certain group that thinks that regardless of who you line up with, you should be able to make an adjustment and go on and beat people with mirrors. It is impossible to do that.

"The impressive thing about this football team is that in every game that we have played, I don't know of a single individual that I feel let us down or quit on us or didn't try as hard as he could. There have been some guys that have played spectacular. People like (Tim) Gooch. Without naming individuals, there are some who are playing very good football. Yet because of a lot of mistakes and fumbles, and an inexperienced line and all those kinds of things that have happened to us, it has made us look very mediocre.

"I also think the kicking game has been fair, with the exception of a couple of dumb mistakes. Overall, the defense has been the most encouraging thing. The offense hasn't given them any help at all. I believe our defense is pretty good. And I think it is going to be a lot better.

"But look at the offense and the offensive backs. You take Terry Henry out of there and it is completely different—a new group. Last year, we had (Terry) Henry, (Shawn) Donigan, (Chris) Jones and (Pete) Venable. Not one of these is in there at this point. On the line, the only person that is back is (Ken) Roark. We have new receivers. (Allan) Watson is the only one that even played last year.

"I think we can have a strong second half finish if we can get these people I've mentioned who are hurt back."

"When you look at this thing objectively and realistically, the offense is made up of people who have never been under the gun. It is understandable that they are playing this way. I don't think we should panic. If it was a situation where it was a bunch of upperclassmen who we expected to go out and burn up the league, it would be very discouraging. But at least they are trying."

And what does the rest of the season hold for this young, injury-riddled yet clawing Kentucky team?

"I believe our defense is pretty good. And I think it is going to be a lot better."

"I think we can have a strong second half finish if we can get these people I've mentioned who are hurt back. Last year, I think we were 2-3 now. But that offensive line had not changed. This offensive line, almost from the first day, has not been the same. Last year's line kept getting better and by the Tennessee game, we were a dominant force on the offensive line. We are not enjoying that right now.

"This team is a little similar to the one in 1978, except for the fact that team might have had a little more talent than this one. But we have a chance to get one more recruiting year to help this team."

Bill Straus

Tim Gooch has had some spectacular plays this fall, according to Curci.

And what about Curci's switch to the passing game early in the season—does he see that trend continuing, or will he go back to the ground game?

"We are caught in a switch right now. We can't go back to the ground game because we are not big enough to knock people out of there. We stay with the passing game and we are not experienced enough to pick up all the blitzes.

"When we get everybody back, we will try to come up with what is best for our football team.

"Now we have to take what you have and try to really improve on it. I've always felt changes only make things worse. Right now, we just have to try and improve on what we are doing."

Finally, what does it look like for next year?

"All we have talked about so far is the impossible situations we are in. But beneath this impossible situation, we have about 14 or 15 guys coming back. Next year, that changes us to a pretty solid football team, if the guys stay in school and everything stays together. We got people like (Don) Fielder, Cochran and those people coming back. If they all come back, we are solid again."

The key to understanding the Cats' mediocre season to date has been injuries. Running back Chris Jones went down in the Bowling Green game, and has been out ever since.

Alumni News

By Liz Demoran
Alumni Editor

It's official now. Road D has taken on a name of its own and that name is "Alumni Drive". Road D is the designation that the drive was given on the blueprints when it was being built in 1976. The road which runs by Commonwealth Stadium connects Tates Creek Road and University Drive.

Ted Bates of Lexington and other members of the Association's Past Presidents Advisory Council recommended to the University this summer that the road be given its alumni handle. That recommendation subsequently was approved by the committee on naming campus buildings and roads and the UK Board of Trustees. Every morning and afternoon now Captain Tag Veal, WVLC's man in the sky, reports traffic conditions on Alumni Road and reminds everyone of this important constituency of the University.

following the Cats' sensational Peach Bowl victory over North Carolina in 1976. Several were freshmen on the 10-1 team. They really wanted to go to a bowl this season. But Smith insists they're not out of the running yet.

"No. I'm too little and too slow to play professional football," he insists.

"I'm not disappointed in the way the team has played at all," he said. "We're 2-3 going into the LSU game, and we could have been 3-2 very easily. Two teams were definitely better than we were—Alabama and Oklahoma. Indiana could have gone either way. One pass beat us. But that pass could just as easily have been picked off, or we could have scored a touchdown earlier in the game. There are several variables involved.

"Our record is not bad. I think we'll regroup and finish strong and go to a bowl. But, of course, we've got to get a few upsets. That will be important.

"We've had all these injuries, and that has hurt us in getting back together. We just haven't had a chance to play as a team. But everybody is back now. I think you'll really see a team develop."

What are Smith's goals for the rest of the year and afterwards? Now that he's a senior, what is it he wants? The Pros?

"No. I'm too little and too slow to play professional football," he insists. "I'm mainly interested in getting my degree in social studies and trying to become a high school football coach. I really want to teach and coach. I think that is where I'd like to be. I'm going to have to stay an extra semester to get the degree, but that's typical. It's hard to graduate on time when you play football, but I plan to get the degree anyway."

While all the scouts, and maybe some coaches think Smith is too little and too slow, there aren't many opponents or Wildcat fans who think that way. They really respect him. He's one of the players that can bring inspiration to a struggling team like Kentucky.

30 Years Ago —

AND THAT'S THE WAY IT WAS

Old-time Kentucky fans still talk about it--1950. The mere mention of that year brings back memories of "Sweet Kentucky Babe" Parilli, an All-American quarterback who led the Cats to 10 victories in 11 tries and a Sugar Bowl upset over national champion Oklahoma; Bob Gain, the big agile lineman who was the Outland Trophy winner that year and was recently elected to the College Football Hall of Fame; and Coach Bear Bryant, now on the verge of becoming the winningest college football coach ever.

That Wildcat team combined two elements to help them win: a passing offense and a tenacious defense. In the first four games of the year, against North Texas State (25-0), LSU (14-0), Ole Miss (27-0) and Dayton (40-0), Gain led the defense to shutouts while Parilli passed and ran the offense to impressive victories.

The season started Sept. 16 in Lexington against North Texas State. Gain, co-captain with Wilbur Jamerson, blocked a North Texas punt, picked up the ball on the 30 and returned it to the 19 to set up a TD plunge by Parilli. In the meantime, Parilli got the job done against the Mean Green, despite suffering a groin injury. The nifty quarterback completed 4 of 11 passes for 40 yards and scored a touchdown. A few of his passes missed their marks, but others were bull's-eyes with such force that receivers couldn't hang on to them. Following the North Texas State rout, Gain and Jamerson led the squad in wind sprints.

Babe Parilli

While Parilli recovered from his injury at the UK infirmary the week before the LSU game in Lexington, he was also studying the game plan. Bryant made sure of that.

"Coach Bryant came to me with the whole offense against LSU," Parilli recalled in 1975. "He threw them out on the bed and said, 'Learn them.' I couldn't walk, I couldn't move, but that Saturday night I was out there playing. The guy was something else. He believed you could do anything you wanted to. He was a great motivator. He got you up for a game better than anyone I know."

Indeed. Bryant, at age 66, is now on the threshold of breaking Amos Alonzo Stagg's victory total of 314. He should reach it sometime next season.

But against LSU, Parilli, ailing as he was, completed seven of 20 passes for 48 yards and threw only one interception in the game. Late in the first half, linebacker Harold Woodell intercepted an LSU pass. Bill Leskovar carried a Parilli handoff to the one yard line, and then scored on the next play. Parilli scored the second TD on a one-yard sneak to make the final score 14-0, Cats.

The next weekend, Parilli helped down Ole Miss by completing two long passes to Al Bruno as Kentucky blanked the Rebels 27-0. Against Dayton, he threw four touchdown passes and scored on a 38-yard run for a 40-0 win. Parilli did all his damage in the first half, as he sat out the whole second half.

Parilli threw five touchdown passes to tie a conference record, as he led the Wildcats to a 41-7 win over Cincinnati. He hit 18 of 29 passes for an SEC record 338 yards in that game. Bruno caught three of the scoring passes.

Kentucky blitzed through the rest of the season beating Villanova 34-7 in Philadelphia, Georgia Tech 28-14 in Atlanta, Florida 40-6 in a Lexington snow storm, and Mississippi State, with the Maroon defense ranked No. 1 nationally, 48-21.

"Coach Bryant came to me with the whole offense against LSU," Parilli recalled in 1975. "He threw them out on the bed and said, 'Learn them.' I couldn't walk, I couldn't move, but that Saturday night I was out there playing."

Before the annual blood-letting with Tennessee, the Wildcats killed North Dakota by an embarrassing score of 83-0 as Parilli basically only played in the first half, but completed 15 of 20 passes for 198 yards and five TDs.

Then came the UT game in freezing Neyland Stadium. Parilli hit 14 of 31 passes in the snow and Gain led the defense in an outstanding effort, but the Cats lost it 7-0.

After the disappointing season-ending loss, Kentucky players debated going to a post-season bowl. The Cats opted to take a Sugar Bowl bid and play undefeated Oklahoma who supported a 31 game winning streak. Parilli, Gain and Co. halted the Sooner express with a 13-7 upset of the national champions.

Kentucky walked away from 1950 with an 11-1 record and their first and, up to 1975, only SEC championship.

Parilli finished the year as the nation's fourth leading passer and was sixth in the country in total individual offensive gain. He was named by an Associated Press poll as the conference's best passer and most valuable player, an honor he also received from the Nashville Banner and the Birmingham and Atlanta Touchdown clubs.

Gain earned the Outland Trophy and went on to star in the professional ranks with the Cleveland Browns.

A Chess Player, a Flying Wedge... and the Rest is History

by JACK FALLA
Free-lance Writer

It is hard for us to imagine, in this day of wide open football, the fear and confusion a chess player struck in the hearts of football players 88 years ago.

Loris F. Deland's "flying wedge" was a tactic so brutal in design and execution that it threatened the future of college football and the lives of the boys who played it.

Mass-attack plays were nothing new. Even before 1892, there was Princeton's "V-trick" and Yale's "wedge," both sort of moving huddles in which blockers escorted the ball carrier downfield amidst pushing and shoving reminiscent of a rugby scrum. As an index of the game's roughness in those early days, one of the approved tactics for stopping the wedge was for a defensive player to give the lead man a hard slap in the nose — all in good sport, old boy.

The "flying wedge" hardly qualified as sport. This was the embodiment of the chessboard principle of concentration of force wedged to the Napoleonic maxim of "multiplying mass by rapidity." It was a mass-momentum play.

Deland, a Boston contractor, chess expert, student of military tactics and Harvard football fan (though not an alumnus), desinged the play for Harvard captain Bernard Trafford, who chose to unveil it at the start of the second half of the 1892 game against — who else? — Yale.

Try to imagine it. Here is Trafford at midfield tossing the ball to fullback Charlie Brewer and here, never before seen on a football field, comes the full force of the "flying wedge." Actually, two wedges. Slashing across from right to left comes a file of four of Harvard's biggest players, shock troops aimed at splitting Yale's right end and right tackle. The second wedge is a five-man, diamond-shaped affair that follows the four-man wedge into the same end-tackle hole, providing a sort of flying interference for the ball carrier. The play gained 30 yards the first time it was used.

Similar mass-momentum plays raised the level of football violence to a point where players were being killed and maimed. In 1905, the toll of Saturday afternoon dead came to 18, with another 149 seriously injured. And throughout it all, laments football historian Alexander M. Weyand in "The Saga of American Football," "no authoritative body could take the necessary action."

Even President Theodore Roosevelt met with limited success at his famous October 9, 1905, White House football conference, wherein he charged the game's leaders with reforming football before he or Congress outlawed the game.

It was then that Henry M. McCracken, chancellor of New York University, Made the single most important decision in the history of football and, arguably, in the history of college sport. McCracken called a meeting of his own on December 28, 1905, at the Murray Hill Hotel in New York City. Out of this meeting came the rules changes that, in the words of Yale coach Walter Camp, "reinstated football in popular favor."

Also, though less ballyhooed, there came out of these meetings a supposedly "educational organization," a loose alliance of colleges called the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of the U.S. In 1910, the name was changed to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The rest, as the saying goes, is history, in this case 75 years worth of history never before published in one book but now in progress and scheduled for release in the fall of 1981.

History is the action of people. The official 75-year history of the NCAA will be the flesh-and-blood story of the people, the actions and the issues that brought the NCAA from a small coalition to its current position as the most influential organization in college athletics.

It will be a history alive and charged with individuality. It will cover all of the major issues — the NCAA's influence in sports broadcasting, the development and failure of the famous "Sanity Code" followed by the slow, steady among the NCAA, Amateur Athletic Union and U.S. Olympic Committee; an account of the growth of women's athletics and the impact of Title IX, and a look at the evolution of the various championship series and rules changes that have influenced the history and direction of college sport.

The official history of the NCAA will interest everyone whose attraction for college sports extends beyond yesterday's game and this morning's agate.

It may even catch the eye of another chess player.
