LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION FRANKFORT

To the Governor and the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky:

In compliance with Section 4384-20 of the Kentucky Statutes, I submit herewith the report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction for the biennium ended June 30, 1939.

The report is given in two parts: Part I, the Report of the Superintendent of Public Instruction; Part II, a summary of statistical tables and detailed financial and general school statistics for the individual school districts of the state.

Respectfully submitted,

H. W. PETERS,
Superintendent of Public Instruction

PART I

REPORT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

INTRODUCTION

This report is made in accordance with requirements of Section 4384-20, Kentucky Statutes. It records developments in the public school system of the Commonwealth for the biennium beginning July 1, 1937, and ending June 30, 1939.

The Study of Local School Units of 1936-37 suggested a program of improvement and educational development for each of the school units of the State. It is the purpose of this report to state the activities carried on and the progress made toward the realization of the suggested program made for these units. Reports from the different divisions of the Department of Education contained herein will give some idea of the work being done by the department staff to aid in this connection and in the development of an adequate and desirable educational program. They will reflect the significant changes in the trend of educational progress which have taken place during this period.

During this biennium a new educational service has been provided by the establishment of the Mayo State Vocational School at Paintsville. Courses in vocational education for white people are provided in this institution. The West Kentucky Industrial College at Paducah was discontinued and in its place was established the West Kentucky Vocational Training School, in which instruction is offered in vocational education for colored people.

Probably the most outstanding developments during this biennium have been the increase in building construction and growth in the size of school units. These have resulted in considerable increase in the number of consolidated schools, as well as in the number of pupils transported to these schools. Significant problems demanding attention as a part of the educational program of the State are: Sufficient finance to provide safe and economical transportation to these schools; a curriculum suitable to meet the needs of the pupils of these units; teachers trained to meet the new demands of the increasing number of pupils coming to these schools; and a personnel in the Department of Education to provide the necessary state administrative and supervisory procedure to insure proper integration of the educational program.

The summary at the close of this report will show not only the changes in the educational situation during this period but will indicate some of the needs for the future educational program.

BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS

This Division of the Department of Education was created July 1, 1930, and for five years was financed by the General Education Board. Its personnel consisted of a director, architect and secretary until 1935, when the work was taken over by the State and budgetary limitations made it necessary to dispense with the services of the architect. This has seriously impaired the efficiency of the work of this Division and, as far as architectural services are concerned, has forced it to depend entirely upon stock plans for small school buildings, ranging from one to four teachers in size. Other functions of the Division are—

1. To assist local school authorities in conducting school surveys.
2. To assist in the selection of school sites.
3. To examine and approve or disapprove architects' plans and specifications for school buildings, in accordance with Section 4384-23, Kentucky Statutes.
4. To aid school officials with their school housekeeping problems.
5. To advise with school officials concerning alterations or extensions to existing school buildings.
6. To advise school officials concerning the program of the Federal Government relative to financial aid for schoolhouse construction.

Another extensive school building program was undertaken during the biennium which ended June 30, 1939. A brief summary of the work during this biennium follows:

Type of Project	Number	Total Cost	Federal Contribution
Additions and new buildings with P.W.A. aid	35	$2,623,751	$1,180,690
Alterations, additions, and new buildings with W.P.A. aid	123	4,007,083	2,326,990
Additions and new buildings with N.Y.A. aid	34	152,628	97,554
Additions and new buildings without Federal aid	52	863,000
Total	244	$7,646,462	$3,605,234

As shown by the above table, contracts were awarded for 244 projects at a total cost of $7,646,462 during the biennium and of this amount $3,605,234 was a direct grant or gift from the Federal Government. These grants or gifts were made by the Public Works Administration, the Work Projects Administration or the National Youth Administration, and this office wishes to express its sincere appreciation to these organizations for their splendid cooperation and support.

The total value of all school property in Kentucky at the time this Division was created in 1930 amounted to approximately $50,000,000. Since that time 1,758 new school building projects have been completed at a total cost of nearly $25,000,000. The following table shows the amount of construction which has taken place annually during that period:

SCHOOLHOUSE CONSTRUCTION IN KENTUCKY IN NINE-YEAR PERIOD

From July 1, 1930, to June 30, 1939

Year	Projects	Total Cost	Federal Contribution
1930-31	90	$ 1,500,000
1931-32	109	500,000
1932-33	137	1,160,000
1933-34	222	702,254
1934-35	259	1,466,400	$ 405,250
1935-36	458	7,957,859	4,145,720
1936-37	139	3,847,652	1,552,717
1937-38	86	3,871,927	1,636,300
1938-39	158	3,774,535	1,968,934
Total	1,758	$24,780,627	$9,708,921

It should be pointed out again that this fine record was made possible because of the large grants made for this work by the Federal Government. As will be noted from the table, the government has contributed $9,708,921 toward the construction of needed school buildings in Kentucky during the past five years. These projects constructed with federal aid vary in size and cost from small one-room schools costing less than $1,000, to large centralized school buildings costing more than a half million dollars. It is extremely gratifying to know that fewer but larger and better school buildings are now being constructed in Kentucky. A great majority of the small one-room schools, which have been constructed in this state in recent years, are in remote and isolated places where consolidation will be impossible for many years to come because of the topography of the land, the sparseness of the population and poor road conditions.

The future, insofar as federal participation in schoolhouse construction in Kentucky is concerned, is very uncertain. Although great progress has been made in recent years, the need is still very great. Conservative estimates indicate that approximately $20,000,000 must be invested in new school buildings in Kentucky within the near future, in order to provide anything like adequate physical facilities for all school children of the state.

CENSUS AND ATTENDANCE

The Division of Census and Attendance was established July 1, 1934. As indicated in the school laws, the function of this Division is to supervise the enforcement of the Compulsory Attendance and School Census Laws within the school districts of the Commonwealth. The report of the activities of this Division must of necessity be a report of the services rendered by the attendance officers in the local school districts.

It is interesting to note that at the present time over fifty per cent of the attendance officers are college graduates and experienced teachers. This is an important factor when consideration is given to the fact that a person is not required to have more than two years of college and no teaching experience to become an attendance officer. It appears from this that school administrators are increasingly recognizing the importance of this work. This fact is further emphasized by the comparatively small turn over from year to year in the position of attendance officer.

The attendance officers are looking at their jobs from the standpoint of eliminating those conditions which cause non-enrollment and irregular attendance rather than from a legal standpoint. In view of this attitude, attendance officers have made approximately 500,000 visits each year to schools, homes, business firms and other organizations. This has been done in order that there may be a better understanding between the home and the school to the end that the two institutions will work together for the good of the child. These efforts have produced slow but steady improvement in school attendance. One of the duties of the attendance officer is to maintain a continuing school census. As the name implies, such a census represents a correct accounting of all eligible children in the school district from day to day. This is a radical departure from the former procedure of having the census taken every two years by an enumerator who was not qualified for the job. As a natural result the school census has shown a remarkable increase from 721,265 in 1934 to 795,374 on June 1, 1939. To facilitate the proper functioning of the school census laws, each attendance officer makes a monthly census report to the state office which shows the census at the beginning of the month; the number of additions during the month; the number of children becoming ineligible during the month and the net census at the close of the month. In order that the census of any school district will be free from duplications there is established in the office of the attendance officer a master file for each school district in addition to the regular census file.

The following table gives a partial picture of the results of the work that has been done within the last two years.

	1933-34	1934-35	1935-36	1936-37	1937-38	1938-39
Census	721,265	762,690	784,802	790,032	792,079	795,374
Enrollment	609,684	625,776	634,861	635,109	618,318	614,036
Average Daily Att.	471,920	489,932	490,220	501,566	482,124	494,339

The advent of the new Compulsory Attendance Law naturally brought an increase in school enrollment. The total public school enrollment for the school year ending June 30, 1939, was 614,036. This is an increase over the year just preceding the enactment of the new Compulsory Attendance Law. In this connection it should be pointed out that during the period from 1934 to the present time the child accounting methods have been revised. This revision has made it possible to secure from each school district an enrollment figure which is free from duplications. If the same basis had been used in reporting the enrollment in 1938-39 as was used in 1933-34, there would have been a large increase since in 1933-34 the methods of reporting made no provision for eliminating transfers between school districts.

It is difficult to measure the work of the attendance officers in an objective manner. The increases in school census, school enrollment, and average daily attendance reflect to a certain extent the results of the conscientious efforts which have been made by these people. There is no way to adequately show the great effort which has been made to provide the necessary food and clothing for those children who are in need and are thereby forced out of school and become irregular in attendance. The numerous contacts made with the civic organizations, parent-teacher associations, and public spirited citizens have made it possible to relieve many of these conditions.

As a result of the conscientious efforts of these attendance officers, those children enrolled in the public schools are attending more regularly than in any period of the history of Kentucky schools.

FINANCE

During the past biennium the Division of Finance has been engaged in giving assistance to school authorities on problems of finance and other related work. Summed up in a few words, the main work of this division consists of advising public school administrators and boards of education concerning proper budgeting of funds, outlining good and uniform bookkeeping practices, and seeing that individuals and institutions handling state school funds are properly bonded. If these ends are accomplished, the school children of Kentucky are insured of getting $1.00 worth of education for each $1.00 spent in the name of education.

In 1937-38 the expended sum of the state appropriation for common public schools was $9,148,570.56, or a per capita distribution of $11.58. This sum was increased by revenue brought in from local revenue sources, making available aproximately $23,000,000. Thus the state expended approximately 40 per cent of the total amount for this year. In 1938-39 the state expended $9,599,997.48, or a per capita of $12.12, while the entire amount expended for education on the public common school level amounted to about $24,000,000, or again almost exactly 40 per cent.

As compared with ten years ago an increasingly larger proportion of the cost of education is being paid by the state. If the State were to pay the entire cost of public education on this level, and no part of the revenue for schools came from local taxes on property of highly-variable assessed value, then the present plan of distributing funds on a census-pupil basis would admit of equality. Further increases in the amount of state support will tend toward equality.

The school dollar makes many purchases. Chief among these purchases are: (1) the employment and payment of approximately 18,500 teachers to serve nearly 800,000 children of school age; (2) employing a competent, well-trained school executive; (3) providing for school buildings and grounds; (4) the transportation of about 90,000 boys and girls to school centers where more modern and better service is being given; (5) such other expenditures as are necessary to make it possible to present the best program possible in a particular district. All of these services are given at a cost of about $30.00 from all sources for each of the 800,000 school children.

It has been stated that one of the services made available by school expenditures was the teaching. It will be interesting to see just how well Kentucky pays her teachers. In 1937-38, 3,267 white men teachers were employed in the elementary schools of the Commonwealth. The median salary paid for this group was $567 annually. The same year 9,411 white women teachers were employed in the elementary schools. This group received salaries such as the median fell at $645.00. The same year 2,161 white men were employed on the high-school level with a median salary of $1,176.00. Two thousand two hundred seventy-one white women teachers were employed in the high-school field with a median salary of $1,006.00.

To supply the same data for the negro schools, it is necessary to point out that 186 men were employed in the negro elementary schools. These men received a median salary of $689.00, while 870 negro women worked in this same field with a median salary of $714.00. In the negro high-school division, 217 men received a median annual salary of $1,044.00, while the high-school women working in the same field received a median salary of $956.00.

To arrive at less complicated data, let us use the median salary for all teachers in all districts for this same year, 1937-38. This was $717.00, or slightly less than $13.80 per week for the typical teacher when based on fifty-two weeks in the period covered by the annual salary of a teacher.

With this condition prevailing, we should stop defending the amount of money we spend for teaching service and, instead, apologize for spending so little. If we take passage on one of the large ships of our airlines, we ride with a pilot who receives $6,000.00 annually for his expert knowledge and service, yet we are content to have the "co-pilot" of our children receive $717.00 for a year's work and preparation. Not all teachers receive these extremely low salaries. In fact, some districts are able to pay reasonably good salaries. These wide differences are brought about by the variance of ability of the different school districts to secure revenue locally.

Under the present law, a city of the third or fourth class may budget for the proceeds of a levy of $1.50, while a county district may use a maximum of only 75c. This is an inequality which cannot be justified, for in addition to the variance in the levy, usually the assessed valuation of property in cities is considerably higher per census pupil than in the county district. In addition to the variance in the levying authority, there is a vast difference in the amount of taxable property in districts of the same classification.

For instance, in Wolfe County the assessed valuation for each census pupil was $286 in 1938-39, while in Woodford County it was $10,307.00 or a range of $10,021.00. Wolfe County might reasonably expect to receive less than $2.25 per census pupil from local sources while in Woodford County, by making the same levy as Wolfe County, over $75.00 could be raised for each of its census pupils. Such inequalities should not exist.

The only way by which these inequalities may be removed under the present law is for the state to assume the responsibility of maintaining the minimum program required by law. Instead of 40 per cent of the cost of education in Kentucky being borne by the state and 60 per cent by income from local sources, 60 per cent should soon represent the part that the state pays and 40 per cent the amount coming from local sources. If such provisions were made in the near future, certainly this would be a long stride toward insuring all districts a minimum program of education.

FREE TEXTBOOKS

Free Textbooks have been a vital factor in accelerating the slow but steady progress in the development of public education in Kentucky during the period they have been supplied by the State.

Adequate buildings, transportation, libraries, and other supplies have placed within the easy reach of every boy and girl a High School education. Along with such service of the State came FREE TEXTBOOKS.

No longer are we compelled to argue the point that free textbooks are essential to the equal opportunity in educational advantages.

The present Free Textbook Law though enacted in 1928 was inoperative until 1934 because the General Assembly failed to provide funds at the time.

In 1934, the "Appropriation Act" provided five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) per annum with which to buy and deliver books for the pupils of the public schools in Kentucky free of any charge to them. According to the provisions of this Act books were purchased beginning in the first grade and so on as far as the funds for the year would provide (Sec. 4421c-7, Kentucky Statutes).

The first free books were furnished in the school year 1934-35 at which time one million, three hundred and thirty-three thousand, four hundred and two (1,333,402) books were purchased. This number supplied completely the first three grades, serving approximately 300,000 pupils and in addition supplied three subjects in the fourth grade.

In 1935-36, one million, ninety-three thousand, three hundred and sixteen (1,093,316) more free books were purchased. These supplied replacements in books bought the year before and new books up through one section of the fifth grade.

In 1936-37, one million, forty-one thousand, nine hundred and fifty-two (7,041,952) more books supplied the necessary replacements in the lower grades, and provided the second section of the fifth grade and one section of the sixth grade.

In 1937-38, one million, one hundred and sixty-one thousand, five hundred and thirty-three (1,161,533) new books were supplied which furnished replacements in the first five grades and one half of the sixth. New books were then supplied to the second section of the sixth grade.

In 1938-39, nine hundred and twenty-nine thousand, five hundred and seventy-nine (929,579) books of which five hundred and eighty-seven thousand, nine hundred and eighty-four (587,984) were for replacements and three hundred and forty-one thousand, six hundred and eighty-five (341,685) were seventh grade books, supplied all in this grade except music, art, spelling, civics and one of the social science books for the grade.

From present indications, it would seem that from funds available practically all books in the required subjects in grades one to eight will be supplied for the year 1939-40.

Some Observations:

1. Approximately five hundred and sixty thousand (560,000) pupils are now using free textbooks in Kentucky.
2. The cost per pupil per year is ninety cents ($.90). This is approximately one-third of the cost per pupil when the parents were purchasing the books.
3. The average life of a book is three and a half or four years.
4. Superintendents, teachers and parents are offering splendid cooperation in the care and use of State owned books.
5. Free books appear to be a vital factor in attendance and promotion of pupils.
6. One of the greatest problems connected with State owned books is: What should be done with these books when they become wholly unfit for use?
7. No state that has ever had FREE TEXTBOOKS has ever reverted to the old plan of parent bought books.
8. Superintendents, teachers, and parents favor FREE TEXTBOOKS through the twelfth grade.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

Vocational Rehabilitation

The State Board of Education of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, in cooperation with the Federal Government, provides vocational rehabilitation for physically handicapped persons as a training process to prepare them for remunerative employment in occupations for which they are best fitted and in which they will be able to earn a living wage for themselves and families.

To be eligible for this service one must have a permanent physical disability, but must be physically and mentally capable of learning a trade or vocation and engaging in that vocation to the degree that he becomes a self supporting citizen.

The major services of vocational rehabilitation offered by the State Board of Education are advice in the selection of a proper vocation, advice in the methods of preparing for that vocation, advice in the methods of entering and making progress in that vocation, and vocational training required in preparing for that vocation.

Vocational rehabilitation is maintained by State and Federal Governments on the thesis that it is socially and economically sound for governments to promote public welfare by aiding individual members of society to become a part of and to take their places in that society.

In view of this thesis, the Federal Government included vocational rehabilitation as part of the recent Federal Social Security Act.

Because of the increasing demands for these services by eligible applicants, Congress increased federal money available from $40,423.30 to $71,432.85 for vocational rehabilitation in this State.

Rehabilitation Service Defined: Vocational rehabilitation is generally accepted as the process of rendering a disabled person fit to engage in a remunerative occupation. It is designed to assist (1) in removing inequalities of opportunities for the disabled; (2) in preparing physically handicapped boys and girls for some vocational pursuit; (3) vocationally handicapped individuals who have been engaged in one occuation to become readjusted to another in which they may be self supporting. It is a case study designed to provide for adjustments and readjustments of eligible disabled persons to the employment world. The service rendered may be guidance, prosthesis, training, retraining, placement, or any combination of these, provided such service results in placement in remunerative occupation.

Rehabilitation—a Public Responsibility: Rehabilitation through vocational preparation is a new phase of educational systems. Such special preparation satisfies a demand not otherwise provided. This new idea in education contends not only that vocationally handicapped people should be prepared but that the preparation provided be specifically adapted to the needs of the individual. This special service is provided by the Commonwealth of Kentucky and the Federal Government because it is considered to be sound economic business. It adds to the social order as well as to the productive power of the Commonwealth and the Nation. It is accepted as a public policy of government. The inability of a person to earn a living wage or support dependents brings not only discouragement, but also a loss of morale which consequently threatens the welfare of the social order. It is a well-founded principle and an accepted fact that injured citizens should be rendered fit to engage in remunerative employment.

Service Extended to All Groups and Communities: Local educational officials and social agencies in many cities have become interested in organizing within their departments rehabilitation programs which are carried on in cooperation with state plans. The service of this division reaches every county and community in the Commonwealth.

Policies Add to Public Education: Since exploratory training is provided and vocational trends indicated during the period of high school preparation, physically and vocationally handicapped persons need all such training obtainable before entering upon a special program preparing specifically for an occupation. The Kentucky Division of Special Education has, therefore, established a policy of:

I. Advising all eligible persons within the legal school census age who have not completed high school to secure as much preparatory training as possible before entering upon a training program for rehabilitation.

II. Giving vocational guidance and counsel to eligible persons under nineteen years of age who have not completed high school until they are ready for specific programs of rehabilitation.

III. Recording information of physically handicapped children.

This policy adds to:

I. The general system of education.

II. School attendance.

III. Preparation for a sound foundation upon which to build a more permanent and successful vocational future.

IV. The probability of being able to render adequate service to all physically and vocationally handicapped people who should receive it.

Special Activities: We desire to call your attention to the following special activities for the period covered in this report:

I. Special Education Association: In compliance with the desire to expand, promote, and make more efficient the service rendered physically and vocationally handicapped people of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, the Special Education Association was organized three years ago. The organization functions through a large membership composed of representatives of clubs, welfare organizations, many school administrators, and persons who have received the aid of this division.

II. Rehabilitation a type of special education: A study of the the problem of special education under the direction of the Kentucky Educational Commission shows that rehabilitation, adult education, and the care of the handicapped child require a cooperative service which provides a program of special education.

III. The handicapped survey: In compliance with the Acts of the General Assembly of 1934, a census of handicapped persons throughout the Commonwealth, ages one to fifty, was made.

The most accurate of these surveys are those of Harlan, Kenton, Magoffin, Pike, Jefferson, Caldwell, and Wolfe counties.

The Handicapped Child

The Legislative Acts of 1934 established the Division of Special Education in the Kentucky Department of Education. Section 4434-33, Kentucky Statutes, provides for district boards of education to carry on programs of special education. Special education is rendering special service to special groups of handicapped children and citizens throughout the Commonwealth in order that they may be trained for some specific occupation. The Constitution and court rulings of the Commonwealth of Kentucky provide that educational opportunities be furnished all school children. Surveys made in fifty counties indicate that there are homebound, mentally fit, handicapped children in every county and in every large city school district who are not furnished educational opportunities as required by these legislative and other legal provisions.

The same educational opportunities furnished normal children should be furnished these homebound, mentally fit, handicapped children. Since the training or education of the handicapped child costs more than that of the normal child, it is the duty of the State Government to provide this additional cost as boards of education are not in position to spend more on the handicapped than on the normal child.

Programs of special education are administered by the State Board of Education, in cooperation with local school boards, which has adopted rules and regulations governing these special programs throughout the various districts of the Commonwealth.

Since the State survey indicates there are approximately five thousand homebound, mentally fit, handicapped children between the ages of six and eighteen unable to read and write, it becomes a very important obligation of the Commonwealth to furnish funds to the State Board of Education in order that this neglected group of crippled and otherwise handicapped children may receive the same educational opportunities as the normal child.

Local boards of education in thirty-seven school units are employing special teachers or special supervising teachers to carry on training programs for homebound handicapped children who are not able to attend or make satisfactory progress in the regular school. Many other school units are furnishing transportation to and from the public school for these children and some are providing special rooms within the school plant for the handicapped group.

Preschool Education

During the last two years the WPA Nursery School Program has been providing care and training for approximately ten thousand underprivileged children from two to four years of age. Although the number of nursery schools has decreased from sixty to forty-four, these forty-four are better staffed and equipped than at any previous time. The program has been handicapped in many ways by various administrative rulings of WPA but, in spite of many drawbacks, the program has suffered surprisingly little. Necessarily these nursery schools have been tied up with many of the civic organizations—which contacts have created widespread interest in furthering some program which will provide training for preschool children.

Although the preschool division of the Department of Education has been devoting almost its entire time to the WPA Nursery School Program, there have been a few activities which affected the development of the other preschools in the State.

The 1930 Federal census showed 123,000 children four to six years of age in Kentucky. A recent survey made in the State Department of Education indicates that only 4,837 of the children are in public or private kindergartens. This means that little more than twenty-five per cent of these children are receiving training in the one hundred twenty-five kindergartens in Kentucky. Another interesting item noted in the survey was that approximately eleven hundred of the two thousand children entering the first grade in 1939 have had one year of kindergarten training. Covington was the only city reporting two session kindergartens, that is, one teacher handling a class in the morning and another class in the afternoon. Tuition is charged in only a few public kindergartens. One school charges fees for only those children under four years of age. The tuition rate ranges from $2 to $6 a month. The minimum preparation for kindergarten teachers was found to be two years college work, while the majority of schools require college graduation with special training in the kindergarten field. Salaries for these teachers range from $900 to $2,600 annually. Louisville was the only one reporting a salary schedule based on the training and experience of the teachers. An inquiry was made as to the boards' of education policies concerning the kindergarten training. A few superintendents evidenced no interest in such a program. However, the great majority (one hundred out of one hundred sixty) were intensely interested in establishing kindergartens in the public school system but, due to the lack of funds and inadequate space and facilities, it is impossible at this time.

Adult Education

Section 4399-50, Kentucky Statutes, provides for adult education. Although a few local boards have been making some provisions for adult education, the major part of this phase of educational work has been carried on as a WPA project under the sponsorship of the Kentucky Department of Education.

The State Department of Education and the Division of Special Education have, to some extent, carried out the recommendations of the Kentucky Education Commission. This Division is assisting local educational units in the promoton and supervision of adult education programs carried on in many of the school units throughout the State.

Educational Service for the Blind

The Kentucky School for the Blind, Louisville, Kentucky, provides for the visually handicapped children of the State full educational opportunities from kindergarten through an accredited high school. Instruction also is given in music, commercial work, home economics, and other vocational occupations. Opportunity is provided for those qualified to pursue higher education.

Eligible for admission are boys and girls, residents of Kentucky, who are blind or whose sight is so defective that they cannot obtain an education in public schools. It is further required that they be of good health, sound mind, and between the ages of six and eighteen years. Upon admission to this school, each pupil is given a complete physical examination.

There are special schools for white and colored children some distance apart, each with its own staff of teachers. Tuition, books, board, laundry, and medical attention are furnished without cost to the pupils.

Vending Stands for Blind Operators: Under authorization of a recent Act of Congress which provides for the placement of vending stands for blind persons in Federal and other public buildings, fifty-one blind adults have been trained and placed in profitable stands located in various sections of the State. This has proven to be one of the most successful occupations for blind adults.

The Kentucky Workshop for the Blind: The Kentucky Workshop for the Blind, operated in connection with the Kentucky School for the Blind, is a self supporting employment project for blind adults. Broom and mop making, paper bag making, leather-work, chair caning, and other various types of hand work and vocational training for the blind are carried on.

The Kentucky School for the Deaf

This institution is directly administered by a local board of education and is part of the State Department of Education. The Kentucky School for the Deaf is a residential public school where free tuition, board, and lodging are provided by the State for all deaf children of Kentucky whose hearing is so impaired that they cannot be taught in the regular public schools. The school has a course of study which covers eleven years of school work. In addition to the academic work, the school maintains a vocational department. Children from six to twenty-one years of age are admitted to the institution.

SUPERVISION

As the word "supervision" implies, this Division of the State Department of Education is directly responsible for the general evaluation of all the public elementary and public high schools of the State. In addition it is the responsibility of this Division to give some supervision to private schools, especially private high schools which wish to be accredited by the State Board of Education.

Upon the members of the Division of Supervision devolves the responsibility of supervising the approximately 6,650 public elementary and secondary schools. This fact alone should impress the thoughtful reader with the magnitude of the tasks in seeing that acceptable school conditions are promoted, encouraged, extended and preserved throughout the State. Naturally, in the discharge of their duties, the supervisors travel many thousands of miles, carry on much correspondence, deliver many addresses and hold many conferences. Obviously, it is impossible to outline in detail all the educational activities in which the supervisors engage.

The members of the Division appreciate the fact that the discharge of such duties as holding conferences, inspecting schools, writing educational articles, delivering addresses, preparing bulletins, gathering statistics, carrying on correspondence, etc., do not in themselves constitute an adequate measure of the extent or effectiveness of their service; still, they are essential to desirable results in the promotion of programs for the improvement of local school administration throughout the State.

Number of School Districts. In connection with the matter of local school administrative units, it may be of interest to point out that the number of such units continues to decrease. There are now 262 local school administrative districts in the State. Of this number, 120 are county districts and 142 are independent districts. This number is in contrast to the 305 school districts existing four years ago and the 281 districts which were in existence two years ago.

Elementary Schools. The number of public elementary schools white and colored, located in the 120 county school districts was 6,203 at the close of last school year. This number is in contrast to the 6,397 elementary schools in county school districts two years ago. Of the total number of county elementary schools at the close of the biennium, 4,383 were one-teacher schools. Two years ago, July 1, 1937, there was 4,522 one-teacher schools in county school systems. It is obvious that the Division of Supervision with its very small staff cannot possibly inspect but few of these many schools during a school year. It has been the policy of this Division, however, to inspect with care the elementary schools which are connected with high schools visited in order to discover whether high schools are being maintained at the expense of the elementary schools with which they are connected.

During the biennium just closing, there has been a marked effort on the part of the county school authorities to consolidate many small, struggling one- and two-teacher schools into stronger and larger school centers. Naturally, this development has been determined by such practical considerations as road conditions, finances and public sentiment.

In recognition of the fact that it is impossible for the Division of Supervision to do much in the way of supervising and inspecting the many elementary schools of the State, it must be apparent that the best solution for this problem lies in the employment of one or more elementary school supervisors in each of the counties. If each county school system would employ one or more such supervisors, specially trained for this work, then state supervisors could work directly with them in developing a better system of elementary schools throughout the State.

High Schools. There were 783 high schools, public and private, in Kentucky during the school year 1938-39. This number is in contrast to 808 such organizations in 1937-38 and 833 in 1935-36. Of the 783 high schools operating last year, 686 were complete organizations, i.e., they offered work through the twelfth grade. More than one-half of these complete high school organizations were organized on the six-year basis (grades 7–12). There were 295 complete high schools organized on the traditional four-year basis (grades 9–12). The number of four-year high school organizations is decreasing in favor of the six-year type of organization. Especially is this true of rural high schools. So pronounced has been the movement in the direction of the six-year high school that this type of organization now appears to be the standard rather than just another form of school organization.

The following table gives data regarding the various types of high school organizations found in the state last year.

TABLE I. TYPES OF HIGH SCHOOL ORGANIZATIONS AND NUMBER OF EACH—1938-39.

Types of Organizations	County Districts	Independent Districts	Private Secondary	State and Municipal	Total
Grades 7–12	263	108	12	8	391
Grades 9–12	159	75	60	1	295
Grades 10–12	0	8	1	0	9
Grades 7– 9	16	18	0	0	34
Grades 9–11	15	2	1	0	18
Grades 9–10	15	2	1	0	18
Grades 7–10	18	0	0	0	18
Totals	486	213	75	9	783

It will be noted in the foregoing table that 486 high schools were operated and maintained by county boards of education and that 213 were maintained by boards of education in independent school districts. Seventy-five were private high schools. The other 9 represent 5 high schools which were operated in connection with the state teacher training institutions, the 2 state vocational high schools located at Paintsville and Paducah, the School for the Blind in Louisville, which was operated by the State, and the Ormsby Village School in Jefferson County, which was maintained by the municipality of Louisville.

Size of High Schools. The following table gives interesting data regarding the size of high schools in Kentucky.

TABLE II. SIZE AND NUMBER OF HIGH SCHOOLS—1938-39

Size Based on Enrollment	County Districts		Independent Districts		Private Secondary		State and Municipal		Total
	White	Colored	White	Colored	White	Colored	White	Colored
Below 50	66	15	1	17	12	0	1	0	112
50–99	158	7	18	17	34	1	1	0	236
100–199	163	0	53	13	20	0	3	1	253

500 and above	6	0	30	4	1	0	0	0	41
Total	463	23	157	56	74	1	8	1	783

The above table shows that 348 of our high schools last year enrolled less than 100 pupils. This number is in contrast to 407 such schools during the school year 1937-38. In other words there was a decrease of 59 high schools with enrollments of less than 100 pupils. In 1937-38 there were 246 high schools enrolling 100–199 pupils. In 1938-39 there were 253 such schools, or an increase of 7. In 1937-38 there were 117 high schools that enrolled 200–499 pupils. In 1938-39 there were 141, or an increase of 24. In 1937-38 38 high schools enrolled above 500 pupils. In 1938-39 there were 41, or an increase of 3. In other words the day is passing when we shall think of high schools in Kentucky as small thirty-, forty-, or fifty-pupil schools. We are definitely headed in the direction of high schools that enroll 100 or more pupils. When one considers that among the high schools enrolling less than 100 pupils there were 47 private schools and 46 high schools for Negroes, it becomes apparent that Kentucky does not rate so badly when we recognize that in the Nation the median high school enrollment was less than 100 pupils in 1938-39.

Even though there has been a marked decrease in the number of high school organizations in the State, we have entirely too many small, struggling high schools in operation. Many of these small high schools will continue to exist not because of any conviction of their worth, but due to such factors as sparseness of population in areas where they are located, inadequate financial ability of many counties to operate a better system of schools, or poor road conditions for transportation to larger and better high school centers. In some sections of the State it is a question of whether to maintain a very small high school or have no high school advantages for their children at all. In counties where the population is fairly dense, where they have money to maintain better schools and where road conditions are good, one may reasonably expect to find consolidated elementary and high school centers with enrollments large enough to justify a board and enriched program of work.

An examination of the annual reports of high schools employing fewer than five or six teachers and enrolling fewer than 125 or 150 pupils, as well as an observation of such schools in operation, convinces one of the marked limitations of these schools. Usually one finds that the experience of the teachers in these schools is less than the experience of teachers in larger schools. The teaching load of teachers in the small high schools is usually greater than that of teachers in high schools with 150 or more pupils as judged by such factors as the number of classes taught, the number of different daily preparations required, the number of different subjects taught and the number of subjects which the teachers are required to teach in fields of work in which they have had poor preparation. Also in the small high school one usually finds that science, shop and library facilities are inferior, extra-class activities are limited, cost of instruction per pupil is high and curricular offerings are confined almost entirely to the traditional academic, college preparatory subjects. In addition to these conspicuous items of weakness in the small high school, one frequently finds that the general tone and dignity of the larger high schools are more desirable as are also the opportunities for contracts with a large number of fellow pupils which stimulate many worthwhile social and personal characteristics on the part of students.

It is hoped that county school authorities and those who pay for the upkeep of schools in the various counties will see the wisdom of abandoning many more of our small, expensive and usually inefficient county high schools and through transporting their pupils to larger community school centers enable rural boys and girls to enjoy the advantages which a broader and more enriched program of work offers. Every county superintendent and every county board of education in counties where small, struggling high schools continue to exist should carefully survey the possibilities that are open to them to provide the boys and girls of their little high schools with the opportunities that are now offered pupils in larger centers of population. To bring this about requires a high type of leadership, since such proposals often run afoul of local pride, community jealousies and non-educational interest of the people themselves. It is only in this way, however, that secondary education in rural areas can provide boys and girls with a program of work that better fits them for college or for passage directly into life activities if college entrance is not possible.

Fortunately, county boards of education have been assisted in this work through the series of studies of attendance areas which were carried on in the State two years ago with funds furnished by the Federal Government. The findings and recommendations of these studies, based upon an intensive and comprehensive survey of local school conditions have given county school authorities facts and sound judgments rather than opinions and sentiments as a basis for attacking the problem of reorganizing their elementary and high school programs in line with modern demands. If county school authorities will map out their future program for school development in line with the recommendations of these surveys, it will not be many years before most of our counties can boast of an elementary and high school program that is commensurate with the best. It has been and should continue to be the policy of this Division to see to it that the recommendations of these studies in each county be the line of attack in developing a more efficient school program throughout the Commonwealth.

The above table shows a continuous growth in the number of high schools from 1915-16 to 1934-35. Since 1934-35 there has been an increase in the number of colored high schools, while there has been a slight decrease in the number of private high schools and a more marked decrease in the number of public white high schools.

The following table gives the story of Kentucky's high school enrollment from 1914 to the school year ending with this report.

high school enrollments in the different types of high schools. This increase in high school enrollments during the years outlined above represents a far greater increase in the number of pupils attending high school than has been the increase of the State's population during the same period. Only one conclusion can be drawn from these figures and that is that the idea of a high school education for boys and girls does not have to be sold to the citizenship of this State.

The foregoing table shows the situation as regards the number of accredited high schools by years since 1909. When one thinks of a high school in its true sense, one thinks of an institution that offers a program of work through the twelfth grade. High schools that are organized to give work which does not extend through the twelfth grade, excepting junior high schools (grades 7–9) should be looked upon as iscomplete, feeder schools for regularly organized high schools, i.e., schools that offer pupils a complete high school program through the twelfth grade.

One might go on and cite figures and facts that indicate progress during recent years in many phases of our public schools, both elementary and secondary. Not many years ago a review of public education in this state was necessarily very limited. Such a review today, to be anything like complete, would tell of the increased emphasis that is being placed on safety education and health education. Such a review today would tell of improved school libraries; of greater educational use of the radio and of visual aids; of modern school plants and equipment; of improved and increased use of transportation; of guidance; of adjustments that are being made to meet pupil needs; and many other fields and activities in the way of improvements in our educational system. Suffice it to say in conclusion that our public schools as a whole have made marked improvements in all of these fields and activities during the past two years.

Schools for Negroes

Those who visit schools observe that colored schools are not very different from white schools similarly situated and with about the same number of pupils. The teachers of the two races are about equally well trained, and the pupils are about equally attentive to their school duties.

Policies of school administration and procedures in school improvement are generally applied first to the white schools and then to the colored. Buses are used first to transport white children to school, then similar service is provided for the colored. A good building constructed for a white school paves the way for a similar building for the colored school. It is so with other improvements, for as a general thing our school superintendents and boards of education want to give equal opportunity to children of the two races, giving it first to the greater number.

During the last two years, as for many years before, the Negro population of Kentucky has been reducing. Negroes in most of our counties have been leaving farm tenant life, moving to cities and towns within the State and to industrial centers in states to the north. Very few go south. The reducing population is due to emigration from the State and to small families. Negro families in Kentucky average slightly smaller than white families, and their infant mortality rate is higher, so the pupil-age census ratio to total census is slightly less for colored than for white.

While the school census shows the smallest enumeration of colored children in school age at any time since they began to be counted, we now have the largest number in high school. Within the two years of this biennium the number of colored children in high school, in grades nine to twelve, has grown from 6,081 to 6,617, an increase of nearly nine per cent (8.81%). In this two years the number of colored high schools that offer service through grade twelve has increased from 63 to 70, and the number accredited from 56 to 61. The number of these schools will now reduce. With the consolidation of high schools, the discontinuance of those not accredited, and the survival of the fittest, the fewer high schools will have more pupils and will teach them better.

Our laws are essentially the same for both races. The board of education of any district, county or city, must provide school for its elementary pupils, either maintaining the school within reasonable walking distance of their homes or transporting them to school. It is different for high school pupils. County and independent boards of education may satisfy their legal obligation to a high school pupil by giving him the privilege of attending an accredited public high school anywhere within the school district and they are not required to transport him to high school within district. White accredited high schools are maintained in all counties and in all independent districts (with three exceptions), but in half the counties and a majority of the independent districts there are no accredited colored high schools. The county boards in such counties and the boards of education of independent districts having no colored high schools, are required to provide for these children either by transporting them to high school outside their boundaries or by paying their room and board in lieu of transportation, so they may attend high school.

Daily transportation to another county is costly. So is board in lieu of transportation. Yet for small numbers the boarding plan is less expensive than long-distance transportation. This is done only where there are not a sufficient number of pupils to have a high school in the home county or district. With decreasing Negro population, more districts are finding the boarding plan to their advantage.

Meeting this situation, the State Board of Education, which administers the State College at Frankfort, has by rental contract taken over Lincoln Institute, located in Shelby County, to operate it as a boarding high school in connection with the college and under direct control of its president. The school is now the training high school of the State College, and serves districts that find it more practical to provide the required high school service by the "board and room" plan. This school offers cultural and vocational training.

The progress that has been made in Negro school service in recent years could not have been realized in full without the help of cooperating philanthropies including the General Education Board, of New York City, the Julius Rosenwald Fund, of Chicago, and the Southern Education Foundation of Washington City.

The basic conditions of our colored schools are approaching more nearly the conditions of our white schools. The teachers are certified on the same basis. The high schools are accredited under the same regulations. The teachers are paid on the same salary schedules, and the colored teachers in most counties get salaries that average even with those paid to white teachers. Sentiment as expressed in the policies of boards of education is tending more to an equalized service. A majority of the boards of education spend as much money per pupil for colored as for whites, yet no district in the State gives to its colored pupils a better service than it gives to its white pupils. Probably none gives even as good a service within the district to its colored. Some still discriminate as a matter of policy. A county board may provide several good white high schools within the county and transport children to them, while providing only one colored high school within the county and no transportation. An independent district may maintain a superior high school for its white pupils, and send its colored to an inferior high school. Two or three counties have left small numbers of cloored children without an elementary school or have given them only a half term. But such discriminations have lost favor in the profession of public school administration.

This biennium has witnessed some significant developments outside the common schools. Our state college service has been unified in the State College at Frankfort. It has been so improved as to be accredited in class A by our regional association of colleges and secondary schools. Only seven per cent of the children of school age in Kentucky are colored, and but slightly over five per cent of those graduating in high school and qualifying for college are colored. Five state institutions of higher learning (one university and four teachers colleges) are maintained for the white ninety-five per cent and one (State College) is maintained for the colored five per cent. And the City of Louisville maintains the Municipal College, it being the University of Louisville's liberal arts college for Negroes. It, too, is accredited in class A by our regional accrediting agency.

By Act of the General Assembly of 1938 two vocational schools were provided for, one to give trades training to young white people and one to young colored people. The colored school, located in Paducah, has a large enrollment, mainly but not exclusively high school or junior college graduates, learning various trades. Training is given in six trades for young men and four for young women.

Public School Transportation

Transportation of pupils at public expense in large numbers is a rather new educational responsibility in this State. It has enabled children to have the advantages provided by larger and more effective school centers, which are beyond reasonable walking distance from their homes. It has now grown to be one of the major school activities. Its growth during the last two years is little less than phenomenal.

During the school year 1935-36, there were in operation approximately 800 school buses which transported 58,000 school children at a cost of approximately $725,000. During 1938-39, there were more than 1,600 vehicles of transportation which carried approximately 90,000 children 60,000 miles daily to the schools of the Commonwealth. This was done at a cost of approximately $1,317,000.

So vast a business involves many problems. Among the most important of these is that of providing safe and economical transportation. During the school year 1938-39, all of the 90,000 children were returned home safely each day except one. A comparison of the fatality of the school bus transportation with the fatality experience in the report of the Secretary of the Kentucky State Safety Commission indicates that even though these children take their chances with traffic hazard in inclement weather and unfavorable road conditions, they are much safer in school buses in Kentucky than they are when they travel in motor vehicles on the highways of the State. If this record of one of the major school activities is to be made better or kept to the present good standard, every precaution must be taken by those responsible for carrying on the transportation program.

This means of providing desirable educational facilities challenges the best thought of people not only in Kentucky but throughout the whole of the United States. In an effort to provide more safe and economical transportation for the school children of our country, the chief school executive officers of the different states, at one of their meetings within the last biennium, were instrumental in having a national study made of the equipment used for transportation of public school pupils. As a result of this study, a conference was called at their request at Columbia University. At this meeting there was present a representative from each of the states and one from the Indian Service. In this conference also was a representative and an engineer from the different chassis and body manufacturers. During the week's conference there was agreed upon a set of national standards for bus chassis and bus bodies.

These standards have been used as a basis of conferences called by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. In these conferences there were present a majority of the superintendents who carry on the greatest amount of public school transportation in the State. These conference groups had the benefit of the advice of people who were specially in charge of transportation in the different districts, members of boards of education, representatives of chassis and body manufacturers, and interested citizens. At the close of these conferences, there were assembled in the Department of Education reports of the different committees and such modifications of the national standards of school bus chassis and bodies as were agreed upon. At these conferences were also developed operating rules and regulations and minimum qualifications for school bus drivers. The recommendations of these conferences have been adopted by the State Board of Education as minimum standards which should be required by local boards of education. They will become effective July 1, 1940. Copies of them may be had by addressing the Superintendent of Public Instruction, Department of Education, Frankfort, Kentucky.

TEACHER EDUCATION AND CERTIFICATION

Kentucky has accepted the view that the education of the people at public expense is an essential service of government in our democracy, and that the success of the educational program is, to a major degree, dependent upon well trained teachers employed in the public schools. In order that each child may attend a school in charge of a good teacher, the State has, during the past years taken steps to provide opportunities for teachers to be educated for their responsibilities. When persons have completed the training program, thought by the State to be suitable, they have been authorized to teach.

A certificate to teach is a legal document issued under the authority of the State, showing that the holder has met the educational requirements of the State for teachers, and authorizing boards of education to employ the holder in the public schools at public expense. No person may teach in a tax-supported school unless he holds a legal certificate.

The Division of Teacher Training and Certification. The teacher training and certification functions of the state are performed through the Division of Teacher Training and Certification, manned by a full-time staff of five persons and a part-time staff of three persons. The full-time staff consists of a director, assistant director, certification clerk and two stenographers; and the part-time staff consists of two file clerks, and general information clerk.

The director has general charge of the work of the division, is secretary of the Council on Public Higher Education, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Council, and represents the superintendent of public instruction in the inspection for approval, of all higher institutions which apply for permission to educate teachers. The assistant director has general responsibility for authorizing the issuance of certificates, directs the work of the clerical staff, and supervises the assembling and organizing of information for reports. The certification clerk collects the fees for issuing certificates, writes the certificates and acts as secretary to the director. The stenographers get out correspondence of the division. The files of the Department of Education are in charge of a file clerk and an assistant, and this staff gives about 70% of its time to the Division of Teacher Training and Certification. The general information clerk gives part-time to the division.

Facilities for Teacher Education. The curricula for the education of teachers are prescribed by the Council on Public Higher Education and approved by the State Board of Education. All colleges desiring to educate teachers in Kentucky must offer curricula substantially equivalent to the curricula prescribed by the Council on Public Higher Education. Each college in the State is regularly inspected by a representative of the Council on Public Higher Education and the State Board of Education. There are six colleges maintained by the State, in which teachers are educated, five for white persons and one for negroes. In addition to the State Colleges, teacher education takes place in private colleges to a limited extent. There are 12 four-year private and municipal colleges in which there are departments of teacher education, one of which is for negroes. There are also 12 private two-year colleges which have departments of teacher education.

Number of Teachers Educated per Year. Since every teacher must take supervised teaching, the number of teachers actually educated may be estimated if the number who take supervised teaching is known. The annual output of all institutions in Kentucky is approximately 2,700, approximately 1,500 being elementary teachers and 1,200 secondary teachers. Information on this point is contained in Table I. It should be pointed out that the state continues to prepare relatively too many secondary teachers.

Number of Teachers Certificated. The Division of Teacher Training and Certification works with the Council on Public Higher Education in the formulation of the various curricula for the education of teachers, examines the programs of teacher training institutions and teacher training departments and reports the findings to the Council and State Board of Education, and issues all certificates to teachers, principals, and superintendents.

Training of Certificated Teachers. An examination of Tables II and III will show the amount of training certificated teachers have. It can be seen that no new certificates are issued to persons with less than two years of college training and that, approximately, two out of five certificates issued in 1938-39 were based upon four or five years of training. Table III shows that the certificates issued upon training below college level have about disappeared. It should be pointed out that certificates shown in Table III as having been issued upon one year of college have been reduced to less than 1,000 and that the holders of every certificate of this type now have more than two years of college training.

Training of Employed Teachers. The typical teacher employed in the public elementary and secondary schools of Kentucky has had three and one-half years of college training. Two years ago the typical teacher had about two and one-half years of college training. Out of every 100 teachers employed in the common schools of Kentucky in 1939-40, forty-five had four or more years of college, twelve had three to four years, thirty-five had two to three years of college and only eight had less than two years.

In 1934, about 37 per cent of the certificated teachers had less than two years of college, while in 1939, this percentage had been reduced to eight.

In 1934 the chances were one in 7 that the classroom teacher would have no college training, while in 1939 this chance was reduced to 1 in 19.

In 1934 the chances were one in 5 that the classroom teacher would not have one year of training, while in 1939 this chance was reduced to 1 to 16.

In 1934 the chances were more than 1 to 3 that the classroom teacher would not have 2 years of college training, while in 1939 the chance was reduced to less than 1 to 10.

In 1934 the chances were 3 to 4 that the classroom teacher would not be a college graduate, while in 1939 this chance was reduced to 2 to 5.

Teacher Turnover. The tenure of teachers has increased along with the increase in training. In 1931-32 there were 1,958 persons employed in the public schools who had had no experience. In 1937-38, there were 972 employed who had no experience, and in 1939 there were 1,070 inexperienced teachers employed. About 200 of this number entered the secondary grades and about 800 entered the elementary grades.

Patterns of Teacher Education. The curricula for the education of teachers in Kentucky provide that (1) the teacher should have wide general knowledge of the major areas of human experiences through contact with English, sciences, social sciences, languages, mathematics, fine arts and health; (2) the teacher should have adequate knowledge within the fields in which he is to work; and (3) the teacher should understand children and how they learn. The understanding of children involves (1) the study of individual behavior through courses in the psychologies, (2) experiences in how to select, classify and organize learning materials in terms of child interests and aptitudes at the different age levels, and (3) actual experiences in a laboratory school observing and teaching children.

Upon the basis of this conception of what the education of a teacher should be, those who are now issued certificates to teach at any level, have had well-rounded training. The elementary teacher has had definite courses not only in the liberal arts fields but also in art, music, physical education, and health. A secondary teacher is certificated to teach only on condition that he has completed a curriculum which trains for the position he is to hold.

Selecting Persons to Train for Teaching. A student-in-training for teaching should be under the constant observation of his instructors in order to determine whether—

1. He is genuinely interested in teaching
2. He respects teaching as a profession
3. He has an aptitude for the work he has chosen
4. He has planned to procure the necessary training to become a superior teacher
5. He is fitted by temperament to stimulate learning
6. He has the capacity for attaining sufficient poise
7. He is healthy in body
8. He has at least normal mental capacity
9. He is interested in learning
10. He speaks correct English.

Cooperation With Other States. The Division of Teacher Training and Certification has taken the lead in developing a spirit of cooperation among the states in the education and certification of teachers. Under the leadership of the Kentucky division, the Ohio Valley Conference on Teacher Training and Certification was inaugurated in 1937 for the purpose of considering problems which affected the certification of teacher in participating states. This conference consists of Kentucky and all the states which border her. There is a constant flow of teachers and prospective teachers across our borders, making it necessary for leadership in teacher education to be cooperative.

The Kentucky Director of Teacher Training has been working for the past two years, under the sponsorship of the Southern University Conference and the Southern Association, and under a grant from the General Education Board, in an attempt to bring about desirable uniformity in the education of secondary teachers in the Southern area, and to make effective the principle of reciprocity in the certification of secondary teachers. Thirteen Southern states have worked together under his leadership and there is promise that the work may bring about saner conditions in this area as they affect teacher certification.

Platform of Principles. The Director of Teacher Training is chairman of a National Education Association's Committee on Teacher

Supply, Preparation and Certification and is in the second year of an attempt to formulate a platform of principles which may guide in curriculum making for teacher education. It is hoped that it may represent what America expects of the teacher of the children. This platform had its birth in Kentucky's concept of what an educated teacher should represent and this platform of principles adopted by the National Education Association at the 1939 convention follows:

I. Teacher education in a democracy must have a definite objective. The objective of teacher education is to make available leaders in learning who have (1) an understanding of the purposes and functions of education in our democracy, and (2) the ability (a) to guide learners at the different learning levels in the selection of worthwhile activities and experiences, and (b) to aid learners in using their abilities, aptitudes, experiences, and interests toward the achievement of their life purposes.

II. Teacher education must lead to an understanding of the major problems of social life. There should be provision in teacher education for broad general knowledge which offers reasonable guarantee that the prospective teacher shall, through extensive study in such areas as language, arts, fine arts, practical arts, mathematics, sciences, social sciences, health, and welfare, acquire an understanding of the major problems of social life and their implications for the learners whom he leads, for his fellow workers, for the parents, and for the public in general.

III. Teacher education must develop leaders in the major learning areas and learning levels. There should be provision in teacher education for intensive study of the problems in those teaching areas and learning levels (1) in which the prospective teacher is interested, (2) for which he has aptitudes, and (3) in which there is reasonable promise that he may find employment.

IV. Teacher education must provide for professional integration and orientation. Provision should be made in teacher education whereby the prospective teacher may employ his knowledge and understandings in learning situations, and to that end his preparation should include (1) understanding of the vital problems in connection with the growth and development of children, (2) an understanding of the organization and control of learning programs in the school, (3) knowledge and understanding of the application of methods and uses of materials suited to the different learning levels, and (4) an opportunity to integrate his own educational experiences by actual teaching under competent guidance

V. Teacher education must provide for selection and guidance, and for evaluating results. Teacher education should provide a workable plan of pretraining selection, in-training guidance, and follow-up evaluation to the end that only those persons may be permitted to complete teacher-education curricula who manifest during their preparation: (1) physical, emotional, and mental fitness, (2) an appreciation of the science and art of living, (3) a genuine interest in teaching as a profession, (4) an understanding of the implications of education as a constructive agency in maintaining and improving our American way of life, (5) capacity for becoming effective leaders of learners, (6) an aptitude for the teaching area and school level chosen, (7) satisfactory academic achievement, and (8) adequate general scholarship.

Higher Education for Negroes

Subject to the constitution and laws of the Commonwealth and in conformity with them, the State Board of Education has the management and control of public higher education for Negroes and of public vocational education (Sec. 4377-12, Ky. Stat.).

The Legislature of 1938 cooperated with provision for each of these. It unified the program of higher education in Kentucky State College for Negroes, located at Frankfort, and added to the program under this board the West Kentucky Vocational Training School for Negroes, located at Paducah.

The College. The funds appropriated to the State College at Frankfort have been used to the best judgment of the State Board of Education and of the college president. The teaching staff has been definitely strengthened and the college library and the science laboratory services have been improved, and a larger student body is being served. These improvements have qualified this college for promotion to class A rating by our regional association of colleges and secondary schools.

A building program is under way to meet immediate needs resulting from increased enrollment of students, an increase in two years of nearly forty per cent. A new dormitory for girls is nearing completion, while a dining hall and a heating plant are in the process of construction.

With cooperation by Lincoln Institute, the college now has a training school, Lincoln Institute at Lincoln Ridge in Shelby County. This training school is of high school level, grades nine to twelve, and serves (1) as a laboratory school for the training of high school teachers, and (2) as a boarding high school for the use of counties and cities that have no Negro high schools within their districts or within transportable distance. Its facilities are now used to capacity in the services of above two hundred fifty high school pupils from districts that have no such schools. While this training school is at present on trial basis of annual contract, it is hoped that it may justify permanent incorporation in the State program.

The United States Supreme Court decision in the Lloyd Gaines case came in the last year of this biennium and after the Legislature had adjourned. The Governor has appointed a committee to study the problem of higher education for Negroes, but it has not yet made its report of recommendations.

The Vocational School. The Vocational Training School for Negroes occupies the campus of the former college in Paducah. Its beginning is encouraging. Its student body comes from all parts of the State, and in numbers to tax its classroom facilities to capacity. Its first graduates (from two-year courses) will be completing training for their several vocations in 1940.

Aid Under the Anderson-Mayer Bill

Aid under the Anderson-Mayer Bill for the biennium July 1, 1937 to July 1, 1939, shows an increase in the number of people who have taken advantage of the terms of this Act. It may be recalled that aid under this bill is for persons who have been bona fide residents of the State for a period of five years, and who, because of Section 187 of the Constitution of Kentucky, cannot pursue courses at the University of Kentucky and other institutions in which courses are offered. The terms of the bill were not changed by the acts of the last Legislature during its last session, nor was the appropriation increased. In order to meet the increased demand for aid, it has been necessary to transfer $3,817.46 from the Governor's Emergency Fund. Receipts and disbursements during this period were as follows:

During this biennium, students have attended thirty-five institutions in sixteen states and one in the District of Columbia. It is interesting to note that the larger number of people attended summer school. For example, during the summer of 1938, 110 people attended summer school in twenty-four institutions. The largest number of students in any one school was eighteen in Columbia University; Indiana University enrolled sixteen; the University of Michigan, fourteen; the University of Cincinnati, thirteen; and the University of Chicago, ten.

During the summer school of 1938-39, 131 students attended twenty-three institutions. Fisk University had the largest enrollment with twenty-nine. The next was Indiana University with twenty-three. In the University of Cincinnati there were twelve; and in the University of Michigan, eleven. During the school year 1937-38, twenty-nine people attended school in fourteen institutions. During the school year 1938-39, thirty-six students attended eleven institutions.

The tabulation submitted below will show the different institutions attended and the number attending each one.

An examination of the courses of study of these people shows that they were enrolled in nineteen fields of study. Of the 110 people attending summer school in 1938, fifty-seven were enrolled in Education and sixteen in English; of the 131 enrolled for the summer school of 1939, seventy-four were enrolled in Education and fourteen in English. The enrollments for the regular school years 1937-38 and 1938-39 show that they were fairly well distributed through the nineteen fields. The tabulation submitted herewith will show the total number of fields of study, as well as the number enrolled in each one during the biennium, 1937-1939.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

The function of education in a democracy is to provide equality of opportunity for each individual to develop the abilities and attitudes needed for efficient participation in activities necessary to individual happiness and the well being of society. Democracy cannot guarantee equality of capacity nor equality of progress, but democracy should guarantee equality of opportunity to serve and to be happy in that service.

The average man spends approximately one-third of his productive life in economic or vocational activities. Through or from the returns of one's vocational activities, he must provide for himself and those dependent on him the necessities, comforts, and conveniences of life. Vocational education is a part of the total program of education and the aim of vocational education is to provide opportunities for young people to develop vocational competence and for the continued training of adults in accordance with their needs in earning a livelihood. There is abundant evidence to the effect that vocational education as carried on through the secondary schools has enabled people to develop increased vocational efficiency. It is true that man cannot live by bread alone, but it should be equally apparent that he cannot live without it. One's self-realization, his efficiency in economic relationships, and his ability to accept civic responsibility depends in no small degree upon his vocational efficiency.

The State's vocational program during the years covered by this report has been concerned with agriculture, trades and industries, home economics, and distributive occupations in each of which instruction is provided in the schools or in vocational centers, and for which institutions of higher learning train teachers. Table I gives the number of departments offering vocational courses in these fields together with the total amount of Federal funds used for the program.

TABLE I. NUMBER OF VOCATIONAL DEPARTMENTS BY FIELDS AND DISBURSEMENTS OF FEDERAL FUNDS FOR EACH OF THE YEARS OF THE BIENNIUM, 1937–39

School Year	Vocational Fields				Federal Funds
	Agriculture	Home Economics	Trades and Industries	Distributive Occupations
1937-38	194	163	87	6	$293,415.72
1938-39	224	208	128	38	381,975.30

The State appropriation for vocational education has been $25,000. This amount was not sufficient to enable Kentucky to participate fully in the vocational program. In order to supply the additional amount needed and to avoid amending the budget bill as submitted in 1938, the Governor agreed to allot yearly from his Emergency Fund $15,980.68.

Ten years ago the State appropriation for teacher training and supervision in vocational education was 16.83% of the total Federal allotment for vocational education in Kentucky. During the past biennium, the State appropriation plus the amount from the Governor's Emergency Fund was 7.4% of the Federal appropriation. The State's program of supervision and teacher training in vocational education has not been expanded sufficiently to keep pace with the expanded program of vocational education. Thus, additional funds are necessary if the program of teacher training and supervision is to be expanded to meet the present needs. Five times as many people are being served today by vocational education as were being served ten years ago. The expenditures for teacher training and supervision during the past biennium are as follows:

Year	State Funds	Federal Funds
1937-38	$30,268.46	$29,941.16
1938-39	31,635.51	32,540.92

These expenditures are for teacher-training and supervision in the four phases of vocational education. Teacher training includes resident undergraduate training, resident graduate training, and teacher training in service. During the biennium, all vocational teachers have received some in-service training. Approximately 200 teachers of agriculture have taken graduate courses in Agricultural Education at the University of Kentucky. More than 150 graduate students took resident courses in Home Economics.

Agricultural Education

The total number of persons receiving some type of instruction in vocational agriculture increased from 6,914 in 1936-1937, to 11,271 in 1938-1939. This represents an increase of 38.6 per cent in enrollment for the biennium. Although the increase in number of all-day pupils enrolled in vocational agriculture is encouraging, the greater expansion has been in the number of out-of-school young men and adult farmers reached through part-time and evening classes.

The primary aim of vocational education in agriculture is "to train present and prospective farmers for proficiency in farming." In keeping with the viewpoint that boys and farmers cannot learn to farm without farming, supervised practice is made central in the program of vocational education in agriculture. During 1938-1939, the net labor earnings from supervised farm practice of all-day pupils reached $361,309.48, the highest yet reached in Kentucky. In addition to the productive enterprise projects, an increasing number of pupils engaged in supplementary farm practice and improvement projects, giving opportunity for much worthwhile teaching designed to make for a more satisfying life on the farm. The supervised practice also occupies an important position in the program for part-time and evening students.

The activity and leadership training program, sponsored by the Kentucky Association of Future Farmers of America, has greatly increased in scope during the biennium.

Plans made in 1938 to conduct activities and contests on a district as well as a state basis have proven effective in 1939. More than 2,500 Future Farmers attended the seven district field days held in 1939, while more than 1,500 attended leadership training schools during the year. During 1939, 200 F.F.A. chapters provided training in parliamentary procedure, 189 chapters had public or impromptu speaking contests, 179 chapters sponsored individual or chapter thrift programs, 50 chapters sponsored organized conservation work, and 162 chapters published newsletters.

After elimination in local chapters, winners of activity and leadership training contests competed at district F.F.A. field day program held in May, 1939, in each of the seven districts in the state. Participation in the seven district field day programs is shown in Table II. District winners of each of these contests competed at the annual State Convention.

The number of active Future Farmers in Kentucky increased from 4,072 in 155 chapters in 1937, to 6,026 in 209 chapters in 1939. F.F.A. participation in the Fat Cattle Show and Sale, numerous livestock shows and sales, and other agricultural activities in the state has increased from year to year.

One hundred and sixty-two judging teams from as many high schools competed in the vocational agriculture livestock judging contests at the State Fair in 1938, while 176 such teams competed in these contests in 1939. One hundred and fifty Future Farmers entered more than 300 exhibits in the F.F.A. department of the State Fair in 1939, besides making numerous entries in open classes. F.F.A. exhibits included dairy cattle, hogs, sheep, poultry, corn, potatoes, and record books. Future Farmers won many premiums in open class competition with experienced breeders.

The F.F.A. State Camp program started in 1937, has increased in popularity and effectiveness. The camp has been attended by more than 1,200 Future Farmers during the biennium. Recreation and leadership training activities are central in the camp program. More than $1,000 has been spent for improvements and equipment during the two-year period. The camp is free of debt.

The tenth annual F.F.A. State Convention, held in Louisville in August 1939, was attended by 1,100 Future Farmers from 164 chapters. Marking ten years of progress in vocational agriculture and F.F.A. work, the convention was the most successful yet held by the Kentucky Association.

Home Economics Education

The home economics program has grown rapidly during the past two years. This program provides instruction in homemaking for pupils in high school, for out-of-school youth, and for adults through all-day classes, part-time classes, and evening classes, respectively.

The following table shows the growth in the number of all-day departments, part-time classes, and evening classes together with the enrollment for each during the past four years.

NUMBER OF ALL-DAY DEPARTMENTS, PART-TIME AND EVENING CLASSES IN HOME ECONOMICS AND ENROLLMENT FOR EACH YEAR FROM 1935-36 TO 1938-39

In September, 1937, an assistant supervisor of home economics in charge of the adult homemaking program was appointed. The assistant supervisor has given teachers of adult and part-time classes help in recruiting classes, in finding needs and interests of homemakers and out-of-school youth, and in organizing material to teach to the groups by preparing mimeographed material for teachers, by having conferences for groups of teachers of adult classes, by visiting teachers and giving individual help, and by teaching a course in "Method of Teaching Adult Homemaking Classes" at the University of Kentucky summer sessions. In connection with the classes in "Methods of Teaching Adult Homemaking Classes," an adult class and a part-time class in homemaking were taught for observation by the students enrolled in the methods class.

Home projects are an integral part of the home economics program. The home project is a means of applying in the home and daily life of the pupils under the guidance of the teacher and the parents, the principles developed in the home economics courses. Projects in all phases of homemaking have been completed by pupils enrolled in home economics. The following table shows the number and distribution of projects in the various phases of homemaking completed by pupils during the past four years.

Extended employment for home economics teachers is a recent development. In 1935-36 there were 18 home ceonomics teachers employed for at least one month beyond the regular school year. This number decreased to 16 in 1936-37 because federal funds were not available to subsidize for this work. The number of home economics teachers who were employed for at least one month beyond the regular school year in 1937-38 was 78, and 218 in 1938-39. Supervising home projects was the major activity engaged in by the teachers during their extended employment. Reports from the teachers show that more than 13,000 home visits were made during the extended employment in 1938-39. Some of the activities that the teachers engaged in during this time other than home visiting and supervising projects were:

(1) Giving some publicity to the work through newspaper articles, taking pictures, etc.

(2) Having a "Get-together Day" to increase interest in project work.

(3) Making a survey of the community.

(4) Promoting adult and part-time work.

(5) Visiting prospective members of next year's beginning home economics class.

(6) Taking part in community affairs.

District conferences have been held each year of the biennium. During the year, 1937-38, there were 8 district conferences for home economics teachers and one state conference. The state conference was held at the Future Farmer's Camp, Hardinsburg, Kentucky. How to have a good home project program was the general theme of the state conference. In 1938-39, district conferences were held in the fall and in the spring. There were 199 who attended the fall conferences. Evidences of achievement and planning the home economics program of work were the topics discussed at the fall conference. Planning the use of the extended employment was discussed at the spring conference.

The colored home economics program grew from 5 departments in 1935-36 and 1936-37 to 11 departments in 1937-38 and to 18 departments in 1938-39. The number of colored pupils enrolled in home economics was 203 in 1935-36, 226 in 1936-37, 436 in 1937-38, and 798 in 1938-39. Conferences with Negro teachers have been held each year of the biennium. In the 1937-38 conference, the teaching of household service was emphasized. The two district conferences in 1938-39 were for the purpose of giving the teachers help on their home project program and on the use of the extra month's employment. In June of 1939, at Kentucky State College for Negroes, a two weeks intensive course was offered for colored home economics teachers. In this course, the teachers determined what to teach in light of the survey they had made of their community and they observed a high school class taught by the teacher-trainer at Kentucky State College for Negroes to help them with methods of teaching.

Trade and Industrial Education

Trade and Industrial Education is one of the services comprising the larger field of vocational education. It is concerned with occupational preparation and improvement. Formerly, schools were concerned with education of an intellectual or bookish sort leaving all specialized training to industry. With the rapidly growing complexity of industry and commerce, youth on the whole is given little time and thought when it comes to training within the organizations. Society must help to prepare boys and girls so they can enter industry and commerce with employable assets to be used to the mutual advantage of the employee and employer. Also, society must prepare young workers for advancement by providing part-time and evening schools for their use. The purpose of trade and industrial education is to provide ways and means in the public schools to supply the needs in occupational training along with general education.

Progress has been made in the last few years both in numbers of classes and the quality of instruction. More areas in the state have been served. The following figures show the numbers served in this biennuim and a comparison of the numbers for the last four years.

NUMBER OF STUDENTS ATTENDING TRADE AND INDUSTRIAL CLASSES

School Year	Day-Trade Classes	Part-Time Classes	Evening Classes	Total
1935-1936	1,281	1,171	473	2,924
1936-1937	1,176	1,777	177	3,130
1937-1938	1,514	1,537	747	3,798
1938-1939	2,210	1,865	950	5,025

The foregoing figures show the number of students who have received instruction in the various types of classes as follows:

(1) Day-Trade classes are for boys and girls of high school age preparing to enter occupations upon leaving school. A typical schedule for such a course is 3 hours of shop instruction in manipulative skills, 1½ hours of related information to the shop work, and 1½ hours of regular academic subjects.

(2) Part-time classes are for young workers employed as learners or apprentices. They attend school a part of the working day or week for related instruction applicable to the daily employment. Part-time classes are set up in connection with a cooperative program of training between industry and school.

(3) Evening classes are for workers in trades and industries and are arranged at such times so they can attend during leisure hours and for the purpose of receiving extension instruction supplemental to the daily employment.

The major developments in trade and industrial education during the past biennium have been the establishment of centralized Vocational Schools, Part-time programs in Miscellaneous Occupations, and Evening Extension training. Two state vocational schools have been established; one for white students, the Mayo State Vocational School at Paintsville, and the other for Negroes, the West Kentucky State Vocational Training School at Paducah. A description of the activities of these two schools appears in this report. The Lincoln Institute, which is a State institution for Negroes, offers instruction in trades. Central Kentucky has a potential centralized vocational school with the opening this year of a trades department at the Lafayette High School in Fayette County.

Several towns have instituted cooperative part-time classes in Miscellaneous Occupations to give occupational training to students of high school age in the occupation available in the community. It is impossible to set up shops in a school for such occupations as are carried on in a small town. There are not enough people employed at each trade in any one year to warrant a class. Therefore, a cooperative arrangement is made between school and commercial shops whereby the learner or apprentice acquires the skills on the job and the related technical information in school. Time is also arranged for the student to complete the regular high school subjects necessary for graduation.

A typical course and enrollment follows:

Working on the job three hours per day, studying technical information in school 1½ hours per day and regular high school subjects 1½ hours per day. Young workers were employed in the following occupations on this program:

Auto Body Work	1
Dry Cleaning	2
Doctor's Technician	1
Milling	1
Clothing Manufacturing	2
Auto Mechanics	1
Wholesale Selling	1
Service Station Attendant	2
Show Card Writing	1
Diesel Engine Mechanic	1
Radio Technician	1
Office Practice	1
Retail Selling	1
Auto Parts Salesman	1

The total earnings of these young people during the year was $3,086.00.

Occupations of all types are continually changing with the times and workers need supplemental trade skills and information to keep abreast and prepare for advancement in their lines. Evening Trade Extension programs offer facilities in this type of education, and more people are taking advantage of them year by year.

A trade and industrial education program would not be fulfilling the function for which it is organized unless students were placed in the occupations for which they are being trained. Therefore, placement and follow-up of students is carried on by coordinators and instructors.

Up to and including the year 1937-38, vocational education in trades and industries was provided in the following lines of employment:

Auto Mechanics	Electricity
Book Binding	Garment Servicing
Building Trades	Machine Shop
Cabinet Making	Masonry
Dressmaking	Printing
Carpentry	Sheet Metal Shop
Commercial Arts	Woodwork

Drafting

Shortly after the close of the 1937-38 school years, a survey was made to determine what had become of those who had received trade training in day-trade classes in the above fields of employment. The survey revealed that 59% of the people who had completed the two-year prescribed course were employed in the specific trade or in allied trades, and 14% of the group were continuing their education.

Trade and Industrial Education calls for special teachers—people who are well-grounded in the trade to be taught and trained as teachers in special methods suitable to their needs. A department of Industrial Teacher-Training is maintained at the University of Kentucky and operated in close cooperation with the Division of Vocational Education. Two itinerant teacher-trainers visit teachers on the job and hold Extension classes. During the past biennium, classes for trade teachers have been held in Paintsville, Lexington, Louisville, Owensboro, and Madisonville.

Mayo State Vocational School

During the first special session of the Legislature, 1938, a bill was passed to purchase part of the old Mayo College buildings located in Paintsville and establish a vocational school.

This school is known as the Mayo State Vocational School and is open to white persons, 16 years of age or over, who are interested and can profit from vocational training. The instruction is free to all residents of Kentucky and the instruction is below college level.

The plant consists of two buildings, one in which the shops and classrooms are located, and the dormitory. The latter will house 75 boys. A new shop building is being constructed which, when completed, will relieve the overcrowded condition in the main building. This new building is being erected as a cooperative project between the N.Y.A. and students from the school shops.

At the present time, the following departments are in operation in the day school: Mining Mechanics, Carpentry, Electricity, and Retail Selling. The shops are well equipped for practical instruction. Instruction is offered in the field of mathematics, drawing, and science and is related to the shop work. Additional shops will be added as the needs arise. A full-time coordinator is employed to place boys in employment and keep the instruction in line with the requirements of industry and business. A full-time itinerant instructor visits mines and holds classes for employed miners in General Mining, Safety Mining, Foreman Training, etc. The number of miners attending classes during the school year, 1938-39 was 560.

The school is administered by a director and has a faculty of eight (8) teachers. The enrollment in the day class for the school year, 1938-39, was 120.

Evening trade extension classes in occupations, in industry, and in business are held in the school building and at other locations within a reasonable distance from the school. Enrollment in these classes for the school year 1938-39 was 330.

The object of the institution is to serve youth and adults and to contribute to the welfare of the industrial life of Kentucky. The day program is set up to train youth for places in industry and this is done by a cooperative plan of training between job and school. Students spend one year attending school full time and then two years alternating every two weeks or month between industry and the school. A full time coordinator supervises the young workers on the job and in school to see that the school instruction functions in connection with the practical skills performed on the job.

West Kentucky Vocational Training School
Paducah, Kentucky

The 1938 1st Special Session of the Legislature passed a bill establishing the West Kentucky Vocational Training School for Negroes. This school is housed in the buildings originally occupied by West Kentucky Industrial College at Paducah. These buildings were made available by the consolidation of West Kentucky Industrial College and Kentucky State Industrial College at Frankfort.

The school is operated for the purpose of preparing Negro youth to enter occupations. It was opened September 19, 1938 with a President, Business Manager, and a faculty of eight teachers. The total enrollment for the fiscal years, 1938-39, was 301 students. All shops are well equipped and the buildings have been renovated and repaired.

The plant consists of four brick buildings, namely, an Administration Building, a Girls' Dormitory, a Boys' Dormitory, and a Model Home Economics Building. In addition to these buildings, there has been erected an auto service building, the latter building being constructed of concrete blocks. The buildings at the present time are quite adequate with the exception of a gymnasium. The Girls' Dormitory is a three-story building and will accommodate 200 girls. The Boys' Dormitory is a three-story structure and will house about 65 men.

The following departments are in operation with expert teachers in each department:

Woodworking	Janitorial Service
Masonry	Household Service
Auto Mechanics	Cosmetology
Garment Servicing	Barbering

Related information courses are also offered in the subject fields of mathematics, science, and drawing arranged to fit the needs of the boys and girls in the occupations for which they are preparing.

The school is not organized as a high school but opportunity is offered to students to complete requirements for high school graduation in cases where students have not previously done so, and time is available for taking extra subjects. Negroes enter service occupations where well-rounded academic education is an asset as well as vocational skills.

The aims of the West Kentucky Vocational Training School are:

1. To help the student find himself and become skilled in a worthwhile vocation.
2. To help the student form a philosophy of the world and of human relations, and of one's place and part in the making of the future, through actual practice in working out constructive social attitudes and habits which embody this philosophy.
3. To help the student develop into a respectable self-supporting citizen of the community in which he lives.

Distributive Occupations Education

A new service has been added to Vocational Education since the last report was published. It is called Distributive Occupations Education and deals with occupational preparation and advancement of workers in the fields of distribution, namely, retail and wholesale selling.

Federal money was made available for this service at the beginning of the 1937-38 fiscal year through the George-Dean Act which provided for the further development of Vocational Education. The

NUMBER OF STUDENTS ATTENDING DISTRIBUTIVE OCCUPATIONS CLASSES

School Year	Part-Time Classes	Evening Classes	Total
1937-38	69	94	163
1938-39	138	704	842

The program of vocational education in distributive occupations is designed to meet the needs of two groups as follows:

1. Young workers who are employed in stores on a part-time basis and attend school for part of the working week.
   a. The workers may attend school for half a day each day and work half a day. This Cooperative Training scheme enables the student to learn the manipulative skills and duties of selling in the store and the necessary technical and academic education in the school. Students in these courses may graduate from high school and, at the same time, prepare for permanent employment in a distributive occupation.
2. Adult workers who can attend evening classes in Distributive Occupations for the purpose of improving their abiltiy on the job and to prepare them for advancement.

The possibilities are great for this future development of education for distributive workers. There are approximately 48,000 retail stores in Kentucky and these stores provide employment for some 8,000 new workers each year. All of these workers need to be trained.

Distributive Occupations Education calls for special teachers—people who have had experience in store work. A department of teacher-training for this service is maintained at the University of Kentucky and operated in close cooperation with the Division of Vocational Education. One itinerant teacher-trainer visits teachers on the job and holds Extension Classes to meet the needs of those who are teaching or planning to teach Distributive Occupations. The supervision of the distributive education program is handled by the Division of Vocational Education of the State Department of Education.

SUMMARY

The following statements are given to summarize briefly the present educational trends as well as to present evidences of the educational progress that has been made during the past four years with particular emphasis on the advancements made during the biennium ending June 30, 1939.

1. Approximately $19,500,000 has been invested in new school buildings and grounds during the past four years as compared with $3,800,000 during the preceding four years. This represents the largest program of school house construction in any similar length of time in the history of the State. This program of school-house construction has been accompanied by a reorganization of attendance areas designed to provide fewer but larger and more efficient school organizations.

2. Due to a more refined and extensive accounting system, there has been an increase in the number of pupils included in the school census. This census has increased from 762,690 on June 1, 1935 to 795,374 on June 1, 1939. The average daily attendance has increased from 490,220 in 1935-36 to 494,339 in 1938-39. The figures in reference to average daily attendance do not take into account the pupils that attend private and parochial schools.

3. As is shown by the statistical data contained in this report, our schools in many sections are far from being adequately financed. A wholesome trend, however, is indicated in the increasing state appropriation for public elementary and secondary schools. This appropriation was $8,367,500 for the school year 1935-36, $9,153,720 for 1936-37, $9,153,720 for 1937-38 and $9,600,000 for 1938-39. In other words, the state appropriation amounted to $10.95, $11.66, $11.58 and $12.12 per census pupil for the school years 1935-36, 1936-37, 1937-38 and 1938-39 respectively. To the extent that our common schools are financed by State per capita appropriation, we have an equalized school program, but to the extent that our schools must depend upon local taxation, we have a highly unequalized program.

4. There has been available for the purchase of free textbooks in the elementary grades the sum of $500,000 annually. With this amount of money available, it has been possible to supply free textbooks to the first seven grades and to part of the eighth grade. Five hundred and sixty thousand (560,000) pupils are now using free textbooks in Kentucky. The cost per pupil per year is ninety cents (90¢). This is approximately one-third of the cost per pupil when the parents were purchasing the books. The average life of a book is three and one-half to four years.

5. A serious attempt has been made during the past four years to provide for all types of handicapped persons in all phases of special education. The Federal Act providing for Vocational Rehabilitation has become a permanent provision and is included in the Federal Social Security Act. The Federal Government has made $71,432.85 available for this work in Kentucky while the State has appropriated $25,000. During the fiscal year which ended July 1, 1939, 67 special teachers and special supervisors were employed by local boards of education to furnish training opportunities for homebound and other handicapped persons.

   a. In cooperation with the Kentucky School for the Blind, 51 persons handicapped because of blindness have been trained for operating vending stands and placed in public buildings throughout the Commonwealth. The Kentucky School for the Blind and the Kentucky School for the Deaf now enroll 191 and 367, respectively.

6. a. Four years ago there were 305 local school districts in the State. At the close of the school-year 1938-39 there were 262 districts. Of this number, 120 were county school districts and 142 were independent districts.

   b. The number of one-teacher schools has been decreasing rapidly. At the close of the school-year 1938-39 there were 4,383 one-teacher schools in the county districts. This represents a decrease of 984 in the number of such schools during the past three years.

   c. There were 833 public and private high schools in Kentucky during the school-year 1935-36. At the close of the school-year 1938-39 there were 783 public and private high schools, a decrease of 50 in three years.

d. In 1934-35 there were 104,412 pupils enrolled in all types of public and private high schools in the State. At the close of the school year 1938-39 this enrollment had increased to 136,037.

e. In the field of education for Negroes, significant improvements have been made during the past four years. Each school district now has charge of the complete program of education in its boundaries for both white and colored pupils. Prior to 1936, the obligation of school service for the Negroes in about half of our independent school districts was imposed upon their respective county school systems, relieving these independent districts of this legitimate obligation.

Increased attention has been given to higher education for Negroes. Kentucky State College, Frankfort, is now a fully accredited, standard institution and the college at Paducah has been replaced by a modern institution for vocational training. The Negroes, too, have shared in the unprecedented program of school house construction, and, while the Negro popualtion has decreased, the Negro high school enrollment has increased approximately nine per cent in the biennium ending June 30, 1939. Discriminations in the salaries for white and colored teachers have been practically eliminated.

f. Four years ago there were in operation approximately 1,200 vehicles which transported 58,000 school children at a cost of approximately $725,000. During the school-year 1938-39, there were more than 1,600 vehicles carrying approximately 90,000 children 60,000 miles daily at a cost of approximately $1,317,000.

7. The percentage of certificated teachers with two or more years of college training increased from 63 for the school-year 1935-36 to 92 for the school-year 1938-39. The percentage of certificated teachers who were college graduates increased from approximately 25 in 1935-36 to approximately 40 in 1938-39.

The typical teacher in Kentucky during the school-year 1935-36 had approximately two and one-half years of college training. During the school-year 1938-39, the typical teacher had approximately three and one-half years of college training. Out of 100 teachers employed in the public elementary and high schools in 1938-39, 45 had four or more years of college work, 12 had three years, 35 had two years and 8 had less than two years.

8. In 1935-36 the number of persons taking trade, industrial and distributive occupations education was 2,924. By the year 1938-39, this number had increased to 5,867. The trend toward centralized trade schools operated by the State and counties is significant. Two state vocational schools have been opened, one at Paintsville for white people and the other at Paducah for colored persons. One county unit also has been started this year. In small towns where it is impossible for the schools to offer practical instruction, cooperative porgrams between industry, business, and school have been introduced. Young people work and learn the manipulative skills on the job and attend school for half a day to get the related and academic instruction.

b. The number of vocational home economics all-day departments in high schools increased from 108 in 1935-36 to 208 in 1938-39. During this same period the number of girls enrolled in these departments increased from 3,884 to 9,327.

The colored vocational home economics program has grown from five departments in 1935-36 to eighteen departments in 1938-39. The number of colored pupils enrolled in vocational home economics was 203 in 1935-36 and 798 in 1938-39. The adult home economics program has grown from 13 evening classes with a total enrollment of 191 in 1935-36 to 101 part-time and evening classes with a total enrollment of 1,377 in 1938-39.

During the past four years, the number of projects completed by pupils enrolled in vocational home economics has increased from 8,894 in 1935-36 to 20,499 in 1938-39.

During the school-year 1938-39, 218 teachers were employed for at least one month beyond the regular school year. This is twelve times the number which were employed for at least one month beyond the regular year in 1935-36.

c. During the school-year 1935-36, there were 168 high schools teaching vocational agriculture to 6,150 people. These figures had increased to 221 high schools teaching vocational agriculture to 11,271 people in 1938-39.

In the past four years, the number of young men being served by part-time classes in vocational agriculture has increased from 49 to 1,713. In this same period, the number of adult farmers being served by departments of vocational agriculture has more than doubled.

The net earnings of boys studying vocational agriculture in 1935-36 was $227,582. These earnings had increased to $361,309.48 in 1938-39.

d. The membership in the Kentucky Association of Future Farmers of America has, during the past four years, grown from 2,423 to 6,026, an increase of more than 250 per cent. More than 2,500 Future Farmers of America attended seven district field days and participated in public speaking, impromptu speaking, music contests, enterprise contests, parliamentary procedure, etc. A permanent state camp for Future Farmers of America has been established at Hardinsburg which provides for wholesome recreation and leadership training.

RECOMMENDED LEGISLATION

There is an ever increasing demand from the people that the schools serve better the needs of the children. Every citizen wants good schools and will cooperate in securing them. We are now facing problems which are preventing the schools from serving the children as they should be served. These problems are presented to the Legislature with recommendations for their solution.

1. There must be an increase in the general state aid for the public elementary and secondary schools. The curriculum of the schools has been expanded through the increase in the number of such courses as Art, Music, Physical Welfare, Industrial Arts, Trades and Industries, General Shop, Commerce, Agriculture, and Home Economics. It has been necessary to increase the number of teachers employed. The rapid increase in consolidation has doubled the number of children to be transported. At the same time, the total revenue in the State for school purposes has not increased, regardless of the increased per capita, due to the decrease in local school income. County tax rates are limited to 75 cents on $100.00 and they have the added burden of transportation. Other districts without the transportation burden are permitted to levy as much as $1.50 on each $100.00.

To partially meet the situation the Legislature should increase state aid for general school purposes to fifteen ($15.00) dollars per census child, and should remove the obstacles to an increase in income from the local districts.

2. Many districts in Kentucky are forced to deny their children an acceptable minimum school program due to low income. After the per capita has been given to these districts and the maximum tax rate levied for school purposes, the districts cannot maintain an acceptable minimum program.

The Legislature should provide for an equalization fund in accordance with the program of the Kentucky Education Association.

3. The Teacher Retirement Law should be made operative. Practically every group of citizens in Kentucky has been provided with a sound program of security in old age; the Federal Government has a retirement system for all its employees, and many states have sound teacher retirement systems. Up to this time, the teachers in Kentucky have been left out.

The Teacher Retirement Law, as recommended by the Kentucky Education Association should be restored during the regular session of the 1940 Legislature and should provide an appropriation sufficient to make it effective at once.

4. Provision should be made for equal opportunities for negroes in higher education. At present no provision is made by the state for higher education for negroes in several fields which now are provided for white persons, nor has there been established in Kentucky facilities for graduate study for negroes. A recent decision of the United States Supreme Court places the duty of providing equal opportunities for higher education for white and negro persons upon the states.

The Legislature should by appropriate legislation provide a program adequate to meet the needs of those negroes who desire education at higher levels.

5. The essential features of the 1934 school code should be preserved. This law has tended to equalize educational opportunities by providing for uniform procedure in the operation of the school programs. During the five years of its operation, problems have developed making it desirable to make minor changes and additions. The following amendments to existing laws are recommended:

a. Some districts have been given the freedom of choice in the selection of text books and teaching materials. This freedom has been denied other districts. It is recommended that all districts be given the right to select the books and teaching materials to be used in their schools in accordance with a uniform plan.

b. Under existing laws (not the 1934 school code) the Governor may remove at will any officer appointed by him for any reason deemed sufficient by him. To apply this practice in the removal of Boards of Regents, the Boards of Trustees of the University, and the State Board of Education is contrary to the principles of school administration, and often may result in the domination of education for political purposes. It is recommended that this law should be changed so that members of the State Board of Education and Boards for Institutions of Higher Learning may serve out the terms for which they were appointed unless removed for generally accepted causes.

6. There should be provision whereby the State Department of Education may render services in the following special fields: Curriculum development, elementary education, health and physical education, public school music, and public relations.
