THE 1995 CKJF CAMPAIGN

The CKJF Board has approved a 1995 Campaign goal of $378,000, approximately a 10% increase over funds raised in 1994. Campaign Co-Chairs, Nancy Hoffman and Michael Ades, believe the goal is realistic and can be achieved with the full support of the entire community and enthusiastic work of the Campaign leadership and solicitors.

In adopting a Campaign goal, the Board considered and adopted a proposed budget for allocation of the funds on the assumption that the goal of $378,000 will be achieved. The major categories for use of the funds are:

1. Local budget:	$ 188,342
2. United Jewish Appeal:	136,817
3. Other Charities:	20,000
4. Senior Citizen Center in Kiryat Ata, Israel, a Project Renewal project:	20,000
5. Exodus/Resettlement (in Lexington, the U.S. and Israel):	13,243
TOTAL	$ 378,402

Among the major activities that are a part of the $188,342 local budget are:

1. Family Service Agency providing social welfare services for the elderly, children and other persons in need through a professional social worker.
2. Camp Shalom for younger children operated for over 25 years.
3. Camperships in Reform, Conservative and Young Judea camps; Israel education and group trips for high school and university students.

4. Support for the University of Kentucky Hillel Chapter.
5. Resettlement efforts in Lexington and nationally of Jews from the former Soviet Union.
6. Loan guarantees in Israel for housing for new immigrants.
7. Emergency loans to needy in Lexington for food, housing, health and other emergency needs.
8. Community relation activities including Yom Hashoa, Chai Awards, the Institute on Judaism for Lexington clergy, and community education and other issues involving the Jewish community and the Lexington community.
9. Other community activities including Forum programs, preschool parties, Israel Independence Day, the federal prisons program, preschool education (at TAI) and a Jewish heritage college scholarship program.

Finally, the whole purpose of Federation is its commitment to the Jewish community, in Lexington, in the United States, Israel and worldwide. It is our responsibility to take care and assist others with basic needs, in addition to helping ourselves and our children.

Think Israel Bonds for IRA's

It's tax season again which means that many people are funding their IRA's and reevaluating investment portfolios. If you are in this process, it may be a great time to consider adding Israel Bonds to your portfolio. Israel Bonds can be purchased from new or existing IRA funds.

Since 1951, Israel has maintained a perfect record on the payment of principal and interest on the securities it has issued. Today, proceeds from the sale of Israel Bonds play a major role in Israel's continuing absorption of immigrants and the creation of an economic infrastructure ready for the next century.

To purchase an Israel Bond in an IRA, your broker or other custodian must process the transaction. Many brokers will also hold Israel Bonds for your other investment portfolios. The Cincinnati Israel Bonds office will work with your broker to ensure that the process of investing in an Israel Bond for your IRA is a smooth one.

Howard Ross Resigns as CKJF Executive Director

Howard Ross presented his resignation as Executive Director of CKJF at the March 22 meeting of the Board of Directors. His resignation is effective the end of April.

Mr. Ross came to Lexington as executive director in January, 1993. He was the first trained and experienced professional in this capacity. He will be leaving Lexington, but will continue to serve the Jewish community as a Jewish communal professional.

The Board has begun a search for a replacement. In the interim, Holly Pessin Barnhill will be serving as temporary Director. It is expected that all activities and programs of the Federation will continue.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE CKJF ANNUAL MEETING

Michael E. Adelstein, Contributing Editor

Martin Kaplan announced for the Nominating Committee that the names of seven candidates--Michael Grossman, Tomas Milch, Marty Friedman, Boris Shur, Jeff Davidson, Mark Wides, and Evelyn Geller--would appear on the ballot sent to voters. Only eligible voters, those with paid pledges during the past two years, will receive ballots.

Michael Ades reported that Super Sunday was only moderately successful. Donations equaled last year's on a card-by-card basis. Consequently, in view of the time and effort spent, the committee is reviewing the Super Sunday event.

One applicant has applied for the director's position at Camp Shalom.

The Board approved the request of five relatives of one of our families to resettle in Lexington on condition that the Lexington family agreed to assist. The Board also approved the hiring of a temporary social worker to help with this process.

Mark Plavin reported that one interview had been held to fill the vacant position of Social Worker and that others were planned.

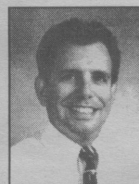

The Board accepted Executive Director Howard Ross' resignation and approved paying the necessary expenses for conducting a search for his successor and also for paying a temporary interim Director.

The Torah This Month

Rabbi Jon Adland

We begin the month of May with one of the most significant portions of the Torah—Kedoshim—and conclude with the opening chapters of the book of Numbers reading the portion called Bemidbar. The chapters of the Torah that conclude the book of Leviticus, 19-27, contain many insights into the culture of our Israelite brethren and much of this is passed down to us today. For example, Leviticus 23 teaches us about the observance of our major holy days: Passover, Shavuot, Sukkot, as well as Yom Kippur. Leviticus 25 tells us about the Sabbatical and Jubilee years deepening our understanding about the concept of rest and the meaning of freedom. The beginning of Numbers takes an accounting of the Israelite people before they continue on their journey to the promised land.

In my opinion, the verses written in Leviticus 19:1-18, are, without question, the most important words among these four portions, as well as some of the most important teachings and insights in the Torah. These verses teach us, without qualification, how we as Jews must treat other human beings. This portion of the Torah is known as the Holiness Code. It tells to be holy because our God is holy. It gives us the Torah's definition of holiness. This includes:

- * revering one's mother and father;
- * keeping Shabbat;
- * not worshipping false gods;
- * leaving part of the fields for those in need;
- * don't steal or deal deceitfully;
- * not insulting the deaf or placing a stumbling block before the blind;
- * doing justice fairly;
- * loving your neighbor as yourself.

The chapter also contains several references to sacrifice which was a means for our ancestors to develop and deepen their relationship with the God of Israel.

Most importantly though, Leviticus 19 is about being holy. In a comment on Leviticus 11:44, which says, "Make yourselves holy therefore, and be ye holy," the Talmud states the following:

When a man reaches out by ever so little for holiness, he will be judged most holy. If ye reaches out for holiness here below, he will be judged holy up above. If he reaches out for holiness in this world, he will be judged holy in the world-to-come.

Therefore, we learn from this passage that holiness is not something you are born with, but a state-of-being that you strive to become throughout your entire lifetime. Leviticus 19 offers the signposts to living that life of holiness as I mentioned above, but it is the command in Leviticus 19:2 toward which we should focus our attention. "You shall be holy, for I the Lord, your God, am holy."

God doesn't tell us to think about being holy. God doesn't tell us to give it some cursory consideration. God commands us to be holy because God is holy.

Our image of a holy person may contain such pictures as peaceful, kind and soft-spoken, smiling and grateful. Others may think that people are holy by the miracles they cause to happen, the power in their oratory, or the charisma in their words. These images may be correct, but they are not necessarily a Jewish vision of a holy person as understood from this chapter.

Here, in the Holiness Code, we are to be holy by how we act toward others, by what we do concerning Tikkun Olam, the repair of the world or the finishing of God's creation. God did not make the world perfect, rather God saved some of this work for human beings to complete. After we left the Garden of Eden, our task, our mission, became the work of finishing God's creation. It is not until Leviticus 19, that we get a good glimpse of what this means.

At Sinai, with the giving of the ten commandments and the following commandments in the next few chapters of Exodus we are told many things to do and not to do. In this portion we are told to do them because they lead an individual to achieve to become holy. This is not holiness for its own sake, but reaching toward holiness, because the Lord our God is holy.

Each of us must ask ourselves to what extent do I participate in Tikkun Olam? The answer to this must contain something. Without the mission to make a difference in the world in which we live, what purpose would our existence contain. Yes, we can go through the routines of daily life without giving much thought to the meaning of our existence or our purpose in life, but if we want to see ourselves as part of a larger picture, then we must seek our path to holiness.

Leviticus 19 provides an answer, maybe even the answer, to this search. When a man reaches out by ever so little for holiness, he will be judged most holy. Our chapter teaches us to do the little thing. Providing food for the hungry and not taking what doesn't belong to you are just little things that make a big difference in this life's path. Contributing to the IOPE Center or taking canned food items to God's Pantry may just mark the turning point for someone at some moment. Though it is the little thing, God judges it as most holy and brings you closer to being holy.

If ye reaches out for holiness here below, he will be judged holy up above. Kindness and compassion for those who are mentally or physically disadvantaged or challenged are the acts of holiness here below. Don't curse the deaf or place a stumbling block before the blind. The Rabbits ask:

"Why? Since the deaf cannot hear the curse, what is so reprehensible?" They answered, "Thou shalt not curse the deaf because even a deaf man is created in the Divine image. Even though he is unable to hear, when you curse him, you are also cursing the Divine image."

What we do in this life does make a difference. We should strive to leave behind a good name. By doing so, we will be judged accordingly by those who come after us. If he reaches out for holiness in this world, he will be judged holy in the world-to-come.

Let us all strive to become holy. Our God is holy and teaches us through the commandments to be holy in everything we do.

Largest Cultural Festival in Israel in May

More than 10,000 musical and dance performances will be given in schools throughout the country on May 21, 'Music and Dance Day in Israel.' It was initiated by the ministers of education and culture, and coordinated with the Ministry of Sciences and the Arts. It is intended to make this an annual event. Some 36 orchestras will be mobilized, including the Israeli Philharmonic and other major symphony orchestras, various musical bands of the Defense Forces, municipal bands and groups. They will play for school pupils during the morning and for the public in the afternoon. In addition, all the country's dance troupes will be involved. The event will be launched the evening before at a ceremony at the national parliament, the Knesset. The Educational TV Service will devote a whole day of live and prepared programs on the occasion.

Book Review

Creation: The Comedy?

"Before there was anything, there was God, a few angels, and a huge swirling glob of rocks and water with no place to go. The angels asked God, 'Why don't you clean up this mess?'"

I'm not sure anyone will ever look at creation quite the same way again after reading Rabbi Gellman's book, Does God Have A Big Toe? Rabbi Gellman's "stories about stories in the bible" provide fresh interpretations to many well known biblical stories, breathing new life and color into these ancient tales. This book includes twenty-one brilliant stories with beautiful illustrations by artist Oscar de Mejo. The stories travel from creation, as quoted above, to Adam naming the animals, Noah's ark, even G-d's reason's behind testing Moses with a burning bush. These stories can be enjoyed by people of all ages, as Rabbi Gellman's style and sense of humor gently turn these stories so that we may look at them from a completely different and wonderfully new angle.

(Does God Have A Big Toe?, Harper Collins Publisher 1989, ISBN 0-06-022432-0)

A Wonderful Journey

In this day and age, few of us take the time to truly search for G-d in our daily lives. Ari Goldman, in his book The Search for God at Harvard, describes his search for G-d through his sabbatical from The New York Times as a student at Harvard Divinity School. Mr. Goldman's search for G-d takes us through his year of graduate courses in comparative religion. Goldman goes on this sabbatical so that he may better understand the worlds of religion as a religion writer for The New York Times. The book describes how Goldman comes to terms with his early Yeshiva education, and his desire to become a great reporter for The New York Times. Goldman also explains his desire to succeed in the secular world without sacrificing his Orthodox religious beliefs in the process.

The Search for God at Harvard not only provides a glimpse of a little known graduate school at Harvard, but gives a good look at one person's struggle to maintain his and his family's Orthodox practices while expanding his knowledge of religions, and the world. While perhaps not of interest to everyone, The Search for God, gives a good look at all the religions Goldman studied through the year and of all the people and their reasons for being there with Goldman at Harvard Divinity.

Fellows Program Addresses the Plight of Abused Children

Over the past few years there has been a growing awareness of the problem of abused and neglected children. JDC-Israel has taken an effective leadership role in shaping national social policy and planning on this sensitive issue.

It has recently initiated a fellows program to develop research projects on children-at-risk assisting professionals from a wide range of specialties: psychology, medicine, education, law, and the social services.

Among the first fellows is a social worker who developed an intensive program for young couples expecting their first child. These couples were all the second or third generation of dysfunctional families caught in the cycle of poverty. The social worker aimed to help them build the foundations to function as a normative family. Under the title "Breaking the Bonds of Distress," the grant is enabling the social worker to explore the broader significance of his work for the service system to families.

Another recipient is a psychiatric social worker who has addressed the emotional and behavioral problems of family abuse victims. He has developed a diagnostic tool to help professionals identify abused children, and the scholarship is enabling him to examine how it can be used more widely.

I sent Barb and Michael a little thank-you note for the other night.

But they won't find it in their mail.

Your thank-you's come across loud and clear when we deliver them.

Indianapolis and an honorary chair of the event, will introduce the evening. Other honorary chairs are Evan Bayh, Governor of the Jewish Continuity... Who's Going to Run the Show?

Ginni Walsh, UJA Press Service

NEW YORK, NY.—The night before Regan Weil, 17 and from Corpus Christi, Texas, was scheduled to leave for a six-week program in Israel, he was having second thoughts. The first-time traveler was getting sick at the idea of leaving home alone.

At the conclusion of the Hadassah-sponsored Young Judea program in Israel, a confident Weil was once again feeling sick, but this time it was at the prospect of leaving Israel. He says, "I wanted to stay. I had such a feeling of belonging."

Weil is one of thousands of American teenagers to visit Israel on a variety of different programs that fall under the rubric of the "Israel Experience." The Israel Experience is funded in part by the Jewish Agency with contributions made to the United Jewish Appeal/Federation Annual Campaign.

The purpose of Israel Experience programs is to educate a generation of young American Jews about their heritage, their religion, and the State of Israel. Given their success, these programs may be the best answer yet to Diaspora (Jews residing outside of Israel) and Israeli concerns about Jewish continuity.

Weil was unusual in his group because he was more religious than his peers. But his advantage ended there. He says, "I didn't have any idea what it would be like to be around Jewish kids because there are hardly any Jews where I live. I had no ideas about Israeli culture or Israel itself. I thought it was a big, hot desert."

The image changed shortly after arrival when Weil was struck by Jerusalem's ancient beauty. The reality of Israel continued to unfold as Weil traveled from north to south, trekking through the desert and walking along Mediterranean beaches. By the time students leave they have been well exposed to the country and to Jewish history.

Weil eager to discuss his feelings, says, "I'm much closer to other Jews now than I ever was before. And looking down the line, I know how important it will be to raise a Jewish family and to always be active in the Jewish community."

Among many American Jews as well as Israelis, the need for Jewish communal feelings and Jewish continuity is often placed on this side of the Atlantic. But as Israeli institutions such as Melitz can attest, the problem doesn't end at Ben-Gurion Airport.

Melitz was founded by Rabbi Avraham Infeld in 1974 in answer to a 1973 letter written to then Prime Minister Golda Meir. The letter was from a group of 12-year-olds who questioned their responsibility to serve in the army. Melitz answered that question and many more by guiding young Israelis in the search for Jewish values.

The enigmatic Dr. Tvi Beckerman, Director of Melitz since 1974, sees an ever evolving need for the instruction of Jewish values both in Israel and in the Diaspora. Using one example, he says, "There is one thing that religious and secular schools in Israel have in common. They both view Judaism as a religion." Beckerman teaches that Judaism as a world view cannot be divided into separate subjects. He says, "You can't teach Tanach separately. You can't teach Jewish culture separately." Melitz has been successful in getting its message across to a large cross section of the Israeli population as well as to Diaspora Jews. Melitz staff work with the local police department as well as with students throughout the country. They train educators who work with Israel Experience participants and they have exported "Roots," an after-school program now operating in South Africa and in several American cities.

It could be said that Melitz was ahead of its time. Beckerman admits that the growing and relatively recent concern about Jewish continuity is because, "Americans and Israelis got serious."

For those youngsters newly attached to their heritage as a result of Israel Experience programs, this seriousness came none too soon. Weil has tapped into a core concern of those involved with Jewish continuity. He says, "The more kids who go to Israel, the better off we'll all be. After all, we're the people who will be running the show for the entire Jewish people."

Testing of Computers to Take Place in Tel Aviv High School

The Herzliya Gymnasias High School in Tel Aviv is planning an experimental project for the next school year, involving 20 pupils of Grade Eight (junior high) who will work only with computers, and not touch a pen, a copybook, or a textbook. They will have portable computers supplied by the Ministry of Education, with the school financing the other expenses, including transposing textbook material onto diskettes. The principal of the school and originator of the idea, Ron Huldai, said this will prepare the pupils for life in the future, when computers will be an inseparable part of their lives. The school is also planning next year, to introduce first year courses in B.A. degrees into the high school curriculum, starting with Grade Eleven. The Army will cooperate, allowing the pupils to finish their first degree before being called up for compulsory service.

Help the Hope Center

For my Bat Mitzvah, I have decided to support the Hope Center. The Hope Center helps people less fortunate than ourselves. They have told me that there is a need for donations of personal items, such as toothbrushes, toothpaste, soap, shampoo, etc. and clothing. There is always a great need for any type of personal hygiene items. There is a box outside the gift shop for anything you wish to donate through May 15th. Please contribute generously!

Guest Chef of the Month

Gloria Katz

Gloria Katz, this month's guest chef, insists she is more known for her artistic talents than her culinary abilities, and has in the past depended upon her mother and mother-in-law, both of whom were excellent cooks, for many of her more successful dishes. She felt it was only right to include two of their recipes along with her own.

Although there are many outstanding brisket recipes around, Gloria prefers this one with beer because it is especially popular with men and boys. (Contributing editor, Michael Adelstein, agrees).

Also, she wants our readers to know the halibut is a lot easier to prepare than it appears. In fact, the only hard part she's encountered each time is finding cheese cloth in the fabric stores.

BRISKET WITH BEER

Ingredients:

4 to 6 lb. beef brisket
1 pkg. onion soup mix
1 cup chili sauce
2 Tbs. brown sugar
1 12 oz. can of beer
1 onion, thinly sliced (optional)
1 Tbs. minced garlic

Method:

Trim the excess fat from the brisket. Place the meat in a large baking pan. Cover the meat with the sliced onion. In a separate bowl, combine the chili sauce, brown sugar, garlic, onion soup mix and beer. Pour the mixture over the meat and cover with aluminum foil. Bake at 325° for 4 to 5 hours (or until the meat is fork tender). Uncover the meat and bake an additional 30 minutes, basting occasionally with juices.

To serve, slice the meat across the grain. Skim the excess fat from the drippings. Reheat the drippings and spoon over the sliced meat.

PICKLED HALIBUT

Ingredients:

3 lbs. (or more) halibut slices
1 dozen black peppercorns
2 bay leaves
1 large onion
Juice of 1 lemon (about 3 Tbs.)
½ tsp. salt

Method:

Place the fish slices in a large square of cheese cloth and tie up securely. Put the fish in a deep pot and cover with water. Add the peppercorns, bay leaves, sliced onion, lemon juice and salt. Bring the fish to a boil and simmer for 20 minutes. Leaving the fish in the cheese cloth, remove it from the pot and place it in a bowl. Cover the bowl and refrigerate overnight. Discard the other ingredients.

The next day remove the fish from the cheese cloth and break into pieces. Mix together 1 qt. of real mayonnaise to the juice of 3 lemons. Slice 4 large red onions very thin.

In a large, deep jar layer the fish, onion slices, and the mayonnaise/lemon mixture. Continue repeating the layers. Refrigerate the fish at least three days and preferably longer. This keeps very well for several weeks in the refrigerator. Serve the fish with party rye.

FLORENCE'S CORN PUDDING

Ingredients:

7 ears fresh corn (can substitute 2 cups canned corn)
2 eggs
2 Tbs. sugar
1/4 cup flour
2 Tbs. melted butter
½ tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. white pepper
2 cups light cream
or half & half

Method:

Preheat the oven to 350°. Lightly butter a 1½ quart baking dish. Cut the ears of corn in half. Grate the uncooked kernels into a large bowl; about 2 cups of kernels will be needed. Beat the eggs well and pour over the corn. Stir in the rest of the ingredients, blending until the mixture is well combined. Pour the mixture into the prepared baking dish. Place the dish in a larger pan with one inch of water. Bake for 40 minutes or until a knife inserted in the center comes out clean.

JESSIE'S BLINTZ SOUFFLÉ

Ingredients:

1 dozen cheese blintzes
4 to 6 eggs, well-beaten
4 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. salt
1 stick butter or margarine
1 ½ cups sour cream
4 Tbs. sugar
3 Tbs. orange juice

Method:

Melt the butter or margarine in a square baking dish. Line the pan with the blintzes with the fold down. Mix all the other ingredients together and pour over the blintzes. Chill overnight. Bake at 350° for 45 minutes.

Here Are The Cards Our Clients Need To Access Their 24-Hour Bankers.

Around-the-clock access to most banks means slipping a nice plastic card into a machine for instant cash. But for clients of Vine Street Trust, the need for constant communication is served by professionals who understand and often anticipate their banking needs.

Superior service comes with a bank whose owners are day-in and day-out going beyond the normal expectations of their clients. Why?

Because at Vine Street Trust, you will work with the owners of the bank, needs as well.

Vine Street Trust continues to be one of Kentucky's banking success stories. Personal service from experienced professionals who know

24-hour banking is more than getting cash from a machine at 3 a.m.
