The SEC

Basketball: A Strain of Endurance

By Elmore (Scoop) Hudgins

To the first fifty years of the life of the Southeastern Conference the sport of basketball has contributed an admirable strain of endurance.

The typical American family on achieving a position of unexpected prominence, after years of work and study, discipline and sacrifice, takes stock of itself and attempts to identify the outstanding characteristics which enabled it to climb past the many other fine families in the chase to the mountaintop.

In the case of the SEC, several could be cited. Among them Courage: the courage to strike out into the wilderness of intercollegiate athletics with little more than half the members, as they did at organization in the winter of 1932-33. Another, Intelligence: the good sense to seek out the core of their problem (the differences in the good athlete and the good student) and attempt to eliminate it. Another, Perception: the ability to perceive good from bad, right from wrong. Also, Acuteness: they quickly put the most accomplished former students, the Presidents, in charge of the operation. Others which apply are Diligence, Patience and Endurance.

The characteristic of Endurance, one of at least a half-dozen strains which made the SEC family strong, is perhaps best exemplified by basketball.

The game was being played during the three meetings of presidents and faculty chairmen of athletics which accomplished the withdrawal of the 13 members (Alabama, Auburn, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, LSU, Mississippi, Miss. State, Tennessee and Vanderbilt, plus Ga. Tech, Sewanee and Tulane) from the 23-member Southern Conference and organization of the new Southeastern Conference, Dec. 8-9, 1932, in Knoxville, Feb. 16, 1933, in Birmingham and Feb. 27, 1933, in Atlanta.

Basketball was the chief intercollegiate sports activity of the proposed members during those three months, against one another and against other colleges within the area. During the week of the final meeting, a tournament of the 13 teams was being played in Atlanta. The Southeastern Conference was pronounced alive by President Frank L. McVey, also President of the University of Kentucky, on Friday, Feb. 27 and on Saturday the 28th Kentucky defeated Miss. State in the finals of the basketball tournament to become the first SEC Champion.

The rapport that came from competing with each other in basketball in that period without a recognized family name strengthened that strain of endurance and helped produce a healthy (pardon the pun) bouncing baby, quickly nicknamed SEC.

The Southeastern Conference is now being mentioned, by sports analysts outside the SEC area, as the strongest overall, certainly the best balanced, in the nation. Last March four SEC teams (LSU, Tennessee, Ole Miss and Kentucky) competed in the NCAA Tournament and two more (Alabama and Georgia) in the NIT. New Year's Day of 1982, two SEC teams, not one, took a shot at the national championship in football. Last March the fastest swimmer in the world competed for an SEC school, Rowdy Gaines of Auburn. Teams of SEC schools were prominent in the NCAA championships of baseball, track, golf and tennis. The University of Georgia campus has been recognized by the NCAA as the best place in the nation to hold the tennis championships.

All this comprises a position of prominence for the SEC among athletic conferences of the nation, surely beyond expectations of the men who organized so well during the dread winter of 1932-33.

Sound leadership is also a continuous characteristic of the Southeastern Conference. Dr. Otis Singletary, President of the University of Kentucky, is President of the Conference and Dr. Boyd McWhorter is Commissioner. These gentlemen attend to the needs of the SEC family in the national competition for college athletics on a practical and honorable basis, as have their thoughtful predecessors.

Tournament '81:

Where The Underdogs Were Top Dogs

By John Tishler
Ole Miss Associate SID

All Bob Weltlich could do was shake his head. He was totally alone. It was cold outside, and Weltlich felt great despair. It was January 10 and the Ole Miss head coach was sitting in the press room at Ted Smith Coliseum with his thoughts following Alabama's 74-46 thrashing of Ole Miss in a game that saw the Rebels shoot a miserable 31 percent from the floor for the game while the Tide made 51 percent of their field goals. Weltlich had just told the media gathering that the whole Ole Miss basketball program would have to be rebuilt—from the ground up. Little did he know that that rebuilding job would take exactly 56 days and culminate in the Rebels' winning the school's first SEC Tournament championship.

Ah, the Southeastern Conference Tournament! Ask Bob Weltlich about it and he will praise it all day long. He'll tell you about how it gives everybody a new chance—as if everyone were starting over again. Just like it gave his Rebels a fresh start only last year when Ole Miss finished sixth in the conference. A respectable year. Better than many of the prognosticators had thought. But then the Ole Miss team surprised its most loyal fans, even some of the team members. The Rebels beat Tennessee, Vanderbilt and Georgia to claim the conference basketball tourney title in a shocker. But to be fair to everyone, the 1981 SEC Tournament was filled with more surprises than Tiny Tim's Christmas.

The Tournament started according to plan as Vanderbilt put an end to Mississippi State's frustrating season with a 71-58 victory. Vandy shot the lights out in the first half, connecting on 77 percent of their field goals and running out to a 40-23 lead. That margin increased to 19 five minutes into the second half before the Bulldogs made it very interesting, pulling out within two at 51-49. But just as it looked that State would put it all together, they fell apart, losing the ball six of the next seven times down court, to put an end to the Bulldogs' hopes. The Commodores got balanced scoring with Al Miller scoring 17, Willie "Hutch" Jones getting 15 and Ted Young and Al McKinney picking up 12 apiece. Jeff Malone, as he had done all year, scored 18 points to lead Mississippi State, while Butch Pierre added 11 to the State total.

In the second game of the first night at Birmingham's Jefferson Civic Center Coliseum, Florida and Auburn squared off and as two arch-rivals will do, played a hum-dinger of a game, the Gators finally gaining a 50-48 overtime win over the Tigers.

The first half was dull, setting up a wild, wild second half. After one period of play, the Gators led 18-14. But things heated up in the second stanza, the lead changing hands 26 times before being tied and going into overtime where a 40-foot desperation shot almost went in. With the score at 43-43, Vernon DeLancy hit what appeared to be the game-winner with nine seconds to go. But he was called for traveling. Auburn's Byron Henson missed a shot from the top of the circle, but Darrell Lockhart tipped it in. Unfortunately for the Tigers, it was after the buzzer had sounded, sending the game into overtime. Florida won the game with 43 seconds to play in the extra period when forward Ronnie Williams scored a layup to boost the Gators into a 49-48 lead. From there, there were plenty of opportunities, but no conversions, as Florida missed two one-and-one situations. With eight seconds to go, Auburn's Alvin Mumphord was whistled for traveling, and the Tigers were forced to foul the Gators' Mike Moses who made one of the two-shot free throws. As the buzzer sounded, Darrell Lockhart's desperation heave at the basket hit the front of the rim before bounding away.

Florida beat Auburn in the final seconds in the first round

The second day, March 5, would go down as a day of upsets, and set the stage for the rest of the tournament. The nation's No. 7 and No. 10-ranked teams would lose and No. 3 would get a big scare. All-in-all, three upsets were recorded in the four games played.

Ole Miss and Tennessee opened up with their annual game in the tournament, and the Rebels came out on top, 81-71, in a game that was close in the first half, but decided in the second by a crucial

Rebel spurt early in the period, and then Ole Miss' ability to hit free throws came into play as the Rebels made a tournament record 31 in the process, and Cecil Dowell of Ole Miss hit a record 16-of-18. Both teams shot 50 percent or better in the first half as the Rebs eked out a 39-35 lead over the tenth-ranked Vols. In the second half, Sean Tuohy and Carlos Clark went on scoring binges to give the Rebs a 13-point lead they never relinquished, though the Volunteers threatened, cutting the lead to six points with 4:26 to go. Dowell, after a shaky start in missing the front end of a one-and-one with 3:47 to go, commenced to making 11 of the next 12 free throws to ice the win for the Rebels. Dale Ellis led Tennessee in scoring with 31 points, while Dowell had 22 points and Clark 21 for Ole Miss.

The next game of that Thursday was a great exhibition of offensive basketball as Georgia and the Bulldogs' talented front line of Dominique Wilkins, Terry Fair and James Banks upset Alabama and the Crimson Tide's great inside game of Ken Johnson, Eddie Phillips and Phillip Lockett. The key to this win was that the 'Dogs' front line accounted for 53 points while Alabama's could muster only 40 as Georgia won 88-80. Alabama spurted to a 25-15 lead, but from there, Georgia outscored the Tide 26-9 to take a 43-36 halftime lead to the dressing room. With Lockett in foul trouble, the Tide had a fit keeping up with the Bulldogs on the boards as Georgia steadily pulled away for the win. Wilkins finished with 31 points while Phillips had 25 for Bama. And the upsets kept occurring.

Vanderbilt came to the tournament an embattled team. Their coach was under fire and there had been rumors of problems on the team. But all that was swept away by the Commodores' incredible 60-55 upset of Kentucky in the quarterfinals of the tournament. The Wildcats went up 10-0 in the first half, and it looked like a breather for the No. 2-seeded Cats, seventh nationally. But suddenly, Al Miller began to hit. And Ted Young began to rebound and score. And Charles Davis, the grizzled, veteran forward with the smooth-as-silk jump shot, started to score and breathe confidence into a young team. Suddenly, Kentucky went cold. At halftime, the two teams were knotted at 27. In the second half, with Vandy playing a sticky match-up zone, the Commodores forged ahead 43-42 with 8:07 to play, and from there, Vanderbilt hit their free throws to stave off a Kentucky rally. The win capped a day when upsets were the rule. It made the race for the tourney crown a wide open affair.

Oh, and the fourth game? That one featured LSU, who had anything but an easy time of it, with Florida. With LSU playing very poorly, Tiger coach Dale Brown benched four of his five starters late in the half, and the Tigers trailed 41-34 at halftime. But the second half was all LSU as the starters came back in off the bench to lead the favored Bengals to an 85-73 win. Leonard Mitchell came back to hit for 27 points to lead the Tigers, Howard Carter had 20, Rudy Macklin 13, and Greg Cook 15. Florida was led by Vernon DeLancy's 26 points and Ronnie Williams' 23. And the favored teams for the semi-finals were worried.

Vanderbilt, the '81 Tourney giant-killers, faced Ole Miss in the first game of the semis, and at the half, it looked like the Commodores were going to knock off another team that was favored to beat them. With the score tied 20-20, Vandy decided to hold the ball for the last shot of the first half. But Mike Rhodes was called for charging, and the Rebs' Cecil Dowell canned a 22-footer at the buzzer to give Ole Miss a 22-20 edge. Ole Miss' center Roger Stieg helped keep the Rebels in the game, hitting for nine points and pulling down five rebounds in the half. In the second period, it was all Ole Miss as the Rebels took advantage of Vandy's weariness (the Commodores were playing their third game in three days). Ole Miss outscored Vanderbilt 19-4 to open the second half, and at one point, the Rebels led by 24 at 65-41 with 1:32 to go before winning 71-51. Elston Turner paced Ole Miss with 22 points while Stieg finished with 11 points and seven rebounds. The Commodores were led by Al Miller's 13 points while Mike Rhodes became Vandy's career scoring leader when he scored a free throw with 2:43 to play in the first half. He finished the night 1,699 points on his career, 10 for the contest.

While the first game may have broken the form of the underdog winning the game, the second one the creative minds of our research scientists and engineers.

Ashland Oil has an infinite source of energy-

Instead of searching around the world for new sources of crude oil, Ashland Oil is developing alternative sources of energy in the laboratory. For example:

More gasoline from crude oil. Ashland Oil's new Reduced Crude Conversion (RCC) process makes it possible to get 24 percent more gasoline out of every barrel of crude oil we refine. This means that Ashland will be able to produce the same amount of gasoline we're producing now, using fewer barrels of expensive crude oil.

And if the RCC process is adopted by other oil companies, America could substantially decrease its dependence on foreign crude oil.

Crude oil from coal. America has enough coal to take us well into the 22nd century. At Ashland Oil, we're experimenting with coal liquefaction, the process which turns coal into synthetic crude oil. This new synthetic crude oil can be refined into gasoline and other petroleum products.

We now plan to build a major facility in Breckinridge County, Kentucky, to produce oil from coal commercially.

Both our RCC and coal liquefaction projects are under way at our refinery in Catlettsburg, Kentucky.

Gasohol from corn. Ashland will soon be able to meet 12 percent of America's goal for ethanol production from its coal-fired South Point, Ohio, ethanol plant.

By converting corn into ethanol (ethyl alcohol) and adding ethanol to gasoline, we'll be producing gasohol—a third important ingredient in America's formula for decreasing energy dependence.

At Ashland Oil, we're depending on one of America's greatest natural resources—new technology from our innovative research team.

SEC Tournament Is Second to None

By OSCAR Y. COMBS

The Cats' Pause

The legendary Adolph Rupp has probably asked for a short leave of absence from the big court in the sky. Babe McCarthy most likely has petitioned St. Peter for a four-day pass to accompany Rupp back for one of their famous confrontations. And those skeptics of basketball in the South can be found nowhere.

You really couldn't expect any other reactions as college basketball's most exciting and famous post season conference basketball tournament tips off at Lexington's Rupp Arena.

And the spectacle will be second to none. It won't be second to any other sport, any other conference or other city. Yes, the facts clearly illustrate that the Southeastern Conference will rule the spotlight this week.

Records will be shattered left and right during the next four days. The Atlantic Coast Conference, which has always prided itself on sponsoring the top conference event in the nation, will finish second. All those attendance records established by the ACC in Landover, Maryland, last March will be washed away.

Consider the following:

* The all-time attendance mark for a post season conference to tourney is 76,140 set last year by the ACC in Maryland. Rupp Arena, which seats almost 23,000, is expected to go over the 100,000 mark.

* With almost 20,000 seats sold two weeks prior to the SEC tournament, this year's event is expected to gross more than $1 million, the first league tourney to ever break that impossible financial barrier.

* The one-game attendance mark for a conference tourney game was set during each of the four ACC tourney sessions last year with 19,035 at Landover. You can bet that will be shattered this week in Rupp Arena.

Rupp and McCarthy and Tennessee's John Mauer who won the tourney twice, never dreamed the game would become so popular in the South. Yet, they are prime examples of pioneers who have made the SEC what it is today.

Way back in 1932, the Southeastern Conference was formed and the tourney began as a continuance of tournament play in which all SEC members participated while members of the old S.I.A.A. (1921-23) and of the Southern Conference (1924-32).

The first two SEC tourneys were staged in Atlanta, as had been the S.I.A.A. and Southern tournaments, with Kentucky winning in 1933 and Alabama in 1934. The following year saw the tourney dropped, but it was quickly reinstated in 1936 in Knoxville and held again there in 1937. After one year in Baton Rouge, the tourney returned to Big Orange Country for 1939 and 1940.

After that, the tourney was moved to Louisville, Kentucky, where it met great success from 1941-52. There, Kentucky dominated the tourney so often (10 titles in 13 tries) that officials decided to forego the tourney since the NCAA wasn't recognizing the tourney champion, anyway. Often, the NCAA ignored the champion when selecting teams for NCAA.

That occurred in 1951 when Vanderbilt upset Kentucky 61-57 in the title game. However, the NCAA invited UK because of its regular season play (14-0 in SEC) and the Wildcats went on to capture the NCAA title, Adolph Rupp's third in a four-year-old period. In thirty years at SEC tournaments, Kentucky leads with 13 titles. Alabama with 4, is the only other team to win more than one.

Not until 1979 did the SEC revive the post season tourney. This time, proponents argued it would give the SEC another entry in the NCAA, plus add more money to the dwindling financial coffers around the league.

During the first three years of the renewed tourney, supporters were right on target on both counts. Last year, the SEC distributed some $60,000 to each school as its share of the proceeds. It may reach $100,000 this year.

More importantly, two of the three tourneys enabled underdogs to win a place in the NCAA. In the first renewal back in 1979, Tennessee finished second in the regular season and then won the title with a thrilling overtime win over Kentucky. LSU, the regular season champion, was also invited.

In 1980, LSU, Kentucky and Tennessee were issued invitations after a wild affair in Birmingham. Last season, Ole Miss took Birmingham by storm and scored the biggest upset of all as the pretenders fell by the wayside long before the championship game.

Although most league coaches would like to change the regular season format and reduce the number of conference games from 18 to 14, the overwhelming number still favors the post season tourney.

They point to the fan interest, to the financial rewards and to one last opportunity of salvaging a poor season with a strong showing at the end.

Auburn coach Sonny Smith, for instance, loves it. He is also one of a minority who has some positive thoughts about the tourney being staged in Lexington although he still has some reservations.

"It's good," says Smith of the tourney. "It has changed our league and given it some media attention nationally. It provides monies to the schools and has made the presidents open their eyes to the fact that basketball could be a real money-maker. As far as the tourney being held in Lexington, I have two feelings about it.

"First, I think it's great because it is THE basketball spot in our league. There's more attention to basketball in Lexington and the fans are more knowledgeable. More media attention is going to be given to the tournament in Lexington and it's going to help basketball in our league from that standpoint. I have one negative view about it because I don't believe that a coach in the league should have been given any advantage and I felt the Wildcats got an advantage by playing on their home court, but as a coach you should feel that way."

However, if recent history is any indication, home-standing Kentucky could be in for a shocking surprise.

In 1979, LSU was a big favorite and although Tennessee finished second in the regular season race, many predicted Alabama would be just as strong because the tourney was being played in Bama's home-away-from-home, Birmingham. Alabama was awesome in the opening round with an 81-64 win over Florida but was ousted by Kentucky, 101-100, in what many consider to be the greatest game in the history of the SEC tournament.

In 1980, Alabama won its first game only to be eliminated by LSU in the semi-finals. Last March, Alabama was upset by Georgia in its first game. So much for being the game-site sentimental favorite.

Nevertheless, Kentucky could be entering the tournament with a 28-game home court winning streak if the Cats beat Florida and Mississippi State in their two final home games of the regular season. That would be the longest current home court win streak in the South.

Earlier this season, Kentucky snapped Alabama's 17-game home court streak late in the season and on the very same day, Georgia broke LSU's 23-game home court streak. When the ten SEC clubs get together at Rupp Arena this week, UK's streak will be in jeopardy.

With some 100,000 fans rooting for their respective teams, only the unexpected can be anticipated. By the week's end, there will be plenty of upsets, electrifying slam dunks, tears and jeers for everyone.

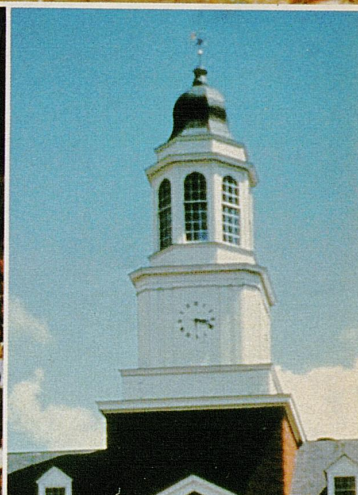

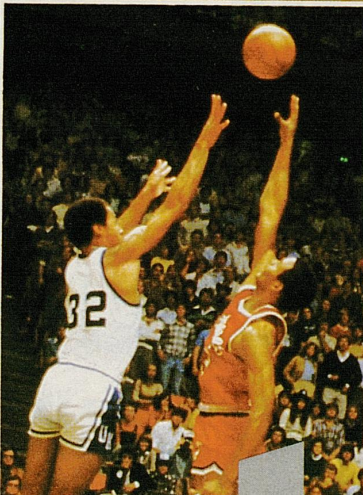

And when some of the old-timers remember when it took two days just to ride the train to Atlanta for that first SEC tournament back in 1933, you know the SEC has come a long way, from the very bottom to the very top.

Legends like Adolph Rupp, Babe McCarthy and John Mauer would be mighty proud today. They gave birth to basketball in the South and the sport has enjoyed unmatched growth over the past five decades. Someway, sometime, those fellas will make their presence known this week. Just you wait and see.

What is the Ronald McDonald House?

T.M.

It's a "home away from home" where families can stay while their children are receiving treatment at hospitals for chronic illness such as cancer, heart disease, cystic fibrosis, kidney disease, or prematurity.

Ronald McDonald Houses are now open in over twenty cities across the country.

Here in Lexington the same need was perceived by doctors and parents of children from all over Kentucky who had undergone treatment at hospitals in our area. The Fayette County Medical Society and Auxiliary, parents, McDonald's representatives, and other volunteers formed a non-profit organization called Children's Oncology Services of the Blue Grass, Inc., to found and operate a Ronald McDonald House.

Plans are underway to find a site for a Blue Grass Ronald McDonald House. If you would like to help financially or in other ways, please write:

A super effort by Dominique Wilkins in a losing cause.

reverted to form as Georgia upset LSU, the No. 3 team in the country, 68-60, to move the Bulldogs into the finals against the Rebels. In a game that may well have been one of the most exciting due to its see-saw nature and last minute heroics, Dominique Wilkins showed what kind of player he was—to the tune of 18 points in leading the balanced Bulldogs past the faltering Tigers. It was hardly easy for Georgia, as they trailed 32-31 at the half, and 44-39 with 12:46 to play. But Wilkins and Co. kept chipping away, playing good defense and getting good shooting from the inside from Wilkins and James Banks, who finished with 12. With under four minutes to play, Georgia got a big break. Down 52-51, LSU's Ethan Martin stole the ball from Vern Fleming, who had 15 points for the eventual winners, and was fouled while going for the snow-bird. Martin, a 74 percent free throw shooter, missed both shots, giving the Bulldogs new life. Wilkins promptly came down and canned a baseline jumper and Georgia was never in trouble from there. Down the stretch, the Bulldogs connected on 11-of-11 free throws, and that was the ball game.

And so it was on to the finals, where two underdogs would play each other for the championship of a tournament that had come to be a Waterloo for favored teams. LSU, the No. 1 seed, had lost to Georgia; Kentucky, the No. 2 seed, had lost to Vandy, who had lost to Ole Miss;

Tennessee, the No. 3 seed, had lost to Ole Miss; Alabama, the No. 4 seed, had fallen to Georgia. So, in a way, it was fitting that Georgia and Ole Miss would hook it up in the finals, each at least having had a hand in the demise of those "favored" teams. And once again, the underdogs would come out on top, the No. 6-seed Rebels would tag No. 5-seed Georgia with a 66-62 loss in the finals. And as much as a cliché it is, neither team went home the loser. If nothing else, both schools gained a lot of credibility for their growing basketball programs—programs at two schools that for 40-some years had been the jokes of the league in basketball.

The first half went pretty much as planned for the 9,743 witnesses to this game, Georgia completely dominated. And when you say Georgia, you mean Dominique, who made eight of 11 field goals for 20 points in the first half alone, while the Rebels struggled to score 30 as a team. Wilkins looked like he would not be denied a championship. And in a slump was Ole Miss' big gun, Elston Turner, who was guarding Wilkins and not doing a real bang-up job of it, either. He wasn't doing much offensively, making four of 12 floor shots for only 10 points. But the Rebs weren't out of the ball game, trailing 38-30. In the second half, it took All-SEC point guard Sean Tuohy to wake up the slumbering giant that was the Ole Miss offense. Tuohy, a 6-1 junior who earned All-Tourney honors, began driving on Georgia's inside game, and scoring, or handing off for easy jumpers to Turner or Carlos Clark. In the end, with under 10 minutes to play, Ole Miss still trailed. And Weltlich jerked Turner out of the game. For one minute, "E", as he was called by Ole Miss fans, sat and listened to Weltlich who told him to either start playing like he had all season long, or to sit out and watch the Rebels come so close, only to lose it all. That got Turner going. He re-entered the game at 8:42 to go, and promptly got fouled by Wilkins. Then, he went wild on the offensive end. While holding Wilkins to four points the rest of the way, the All-SEC senior scored a 15-foot baseline jumper to make it 53-50, then slammed one home on a Stieg steal to make it 53-52, and then he canned a 20-footer to give Ole Miss its first lead of the game, 54-53. That did it for the Rebels. Though Wilkins came right back down to score on a 20-footer, Chris Barrett answered that basket with a 20-footer and the Rebels never trailed again. Turner finished the game with 22 points, making the All-Tournament team along with Wilkins, named Tourney MVP, after scoring 28 in the finals. Al Miller of Vandy and Howard Carter of LSU were also named. He was backed up by Carlos Clark's 13 points, and Tuohy's 12 points and 10 assists. When the buzzer sounded, making the Rebels the champions of the 22nd SEC Tournament, it signaled the arrival of a basketball program that had been the butt of basketball jokes for so long. Now Ole Miss had a team that would have to be dealt with on a yearly basis, and could no longer be taken for granted, or overlooked.

It was an improbable ending to an impossibly frustrating tournament for the favored teams. But it bore out the idea that Weltlich had had when he entered the tournament: It gave every team there new life. Weltlich just didn't know it would be his team that would be born again and benefit from it the most.

PAUL "BEAR" BRYANT
Athletics Director

The world watches in amazement as Alabama athletic director and head football coach "Bear" Bryant builds on his legendary reputation. This past season he set the all-time record for football victories. Coach Bryant passes milestones and breaks records, which never again may be threatened.

In 25 seasons at Alabama, Bryant has won an astonishing 83 percent of his games. His Crimson Tide teams have won six national championships.

His coaching career has spanned five decades. He has been named National Coach of the Year three times and SEC Coach of the Year seven times. He was honored as SEC Coach of the Century and the NCAA picked him as Coach of the Decade for the 1960s.

DR. JOAB THOMAS
University President

Dr. Joab Langston Thomas assumed the presidency of The University of Alabama on July 1, after serving since 1976 as Chancellor of North Carolina State U.

The 48-year-old native of Holt, Ala., is certainly no stranger to this University, though, having served here in both faculty and administrative roles for 15 years, prior to accepting the chancellorship at North Carolina State. A noted and widely published botanist, Thomas joined the Alabama faculty in 1961 as assistant professor of biology, rising to professor of biology, assistant dean in the College of Arts and Sciences, and vice president for student affairs. In 1965, he received the Outstanding Professor Award.

Thomas received his bachelor's, master's, and doctoral degrees from Harvard University. He is married to the former Marly Dukes of Boise, Idaho, an alumna of Harvard and Radcliffe. The Thomases have four children, Catherine, David, Jennifer, and Frances.

He has maintained a keen interest in college athletics, serving as chairman of the collegiate athletics committee of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges and as a member of the President's Commission on Collegiate Athletics of the American Council on Education. Last Spring, Thomas was named to a three-year term on the executive committee of the SEC.

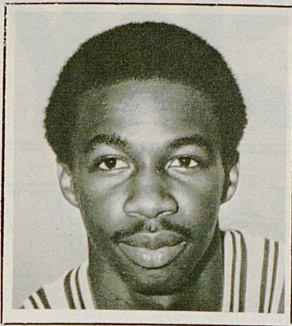

WIMP SANDERSON
Head Coach

Entering his second year as head coach at the University of Alabama, Winfrey "Wimp" Sanderson can hope for only one thing. That is to get as much out of his players in 1982 as he did last year, for it was generally conceded that his first year produced as close to getting 100 percent utilization of available talent as possible. And that is a credit to any coach, especially a first-year mentor.

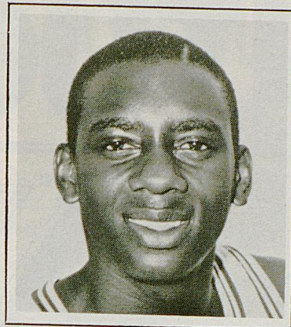

He joined the Alabama staff in June, 1960, as a graduate assistant and earned a Master's degree in School Administration in 1961, at which time he was made a full-time assistant coach on the Tide staff with oncourt coaching, recruiting and scouting responsibilities.

Sanderson also has been the director of the National Association of Basketball Coaches-Converse Co. Basketball Clinic in Birmingham since 1977. The clinic annually is the largest in the South and one of the largest in the nation.

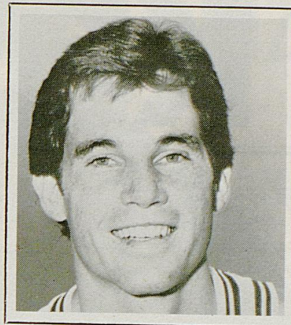

The esteem in which he is held by his peers was never more in evidence than his selection as Chairman of the Assistant Coaches Committee of the National Association of Basketball Coaches for the four years preceeding his appointment as head coach at Alabama.

PAT DYE
Athletics Director

Pat Dye was named athletic director at Auburn University on May 9, 1981, four months following his appointment as head football coach.

He has been associated with only two losing teams since he began playing football 28 years ago. The first was in the ninth grade. The only other loser was at Georgia in 1958. It was that team, he said, that taught him the value of discipline.

Discipline and a desire to excel has paid off for Pat Dye. He was a two-time All-American at Georgia, on the playing field and in the classroom. He graduated from Georgia in 1962 with a degree in education.

Dye got his first coaching job in 1965 and he got it with the best, Paul "Bear" Bryant at Alabama. Alabama would win 80 games and play in nine straight bowls while Dye was on the Crimson Tide staff.

He left Alabama after the 1973 season to become head coach at East Carolina University.

In one year at Wyoming, Dye turned the Cowboy program around. Wyoming went 6-5 in its only season under Dye.

DR. HANLY FUNDERBURK
University President

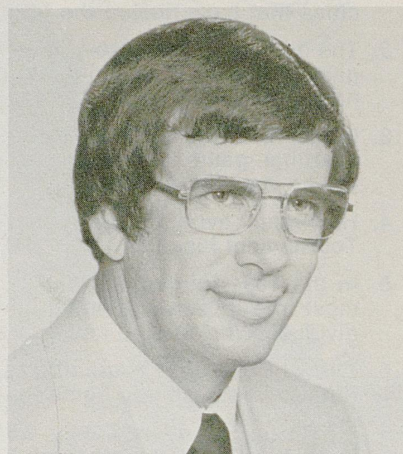

Hanly Funderburk became president of Auburn University in April of 1980.

Seven months after becoming president, Funderburk's commitment to athletic excellence led him to make wholesale changes in the athletic department. Those changes culminated with the naming of Pat Dye as athletic director and head football coach.

Prior to becoming president at Auburn, Funderburk was chancellor of the Auburn University at Montgomery campus. AUM was established in 1969 and Funderburk directed its growth and development from its inception in an 11-year period, 12 buildings were built and an academic program for more than 4,700 students was developed.

Prior to his appointment at AUM, Funderburk served as assistant dean of the Graduate School at Auburn. He was involved in all aspects of administering the doctoral and master's graduate programs.

A native of Carrollton, Ala., in Pickens County, Funderburk graduated from Auburn in 1953 with a degree in agricultural science. He earned a master's degree from Auburn in botany and a Ph.D. in plant physiology from LSU in 1961.

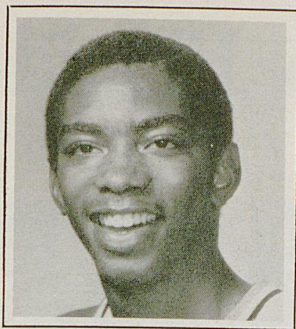

SONNY SMITH
Head Coach

Smith is beginning his fourth year as Auburn's head basketball coach.

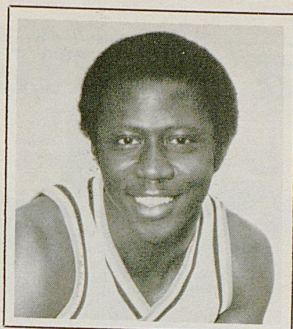

Formerly head coach at East Tennessee State University for two seasons, Smith replaced Paul Lambert, who had been on the job for only two months when he was killed in a motel fire.

Smith's first head coaching job in the college ranks was at East Tennessee State University. In two seasons, Smith took a team that had lost 20 games the year before he arrived to an 18-9 record and a share of the Ohio Valley Conference championship. He was named OVC Coach of the Year in 1978.

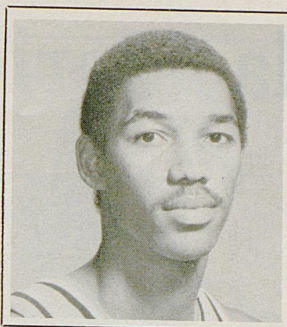

Smith put together a 126-87 record in 11 years while coaching in the hotbeds of prep basketball in North Carolina, Virginia, Indiana and Kentucky. He broke into college coaching as an assistant at William and Mary in 1969. In 1970 he moved to the West Coast and Pepperdine, where he coached under Gary Colson. Don DeVoe, then head coach at Virginia Tech, convinced Smith to take a job as an assistant under him in 1971. Smith stayed there five seasons, before accepting an offer in 1976 to become head coach at East Tennessee State in Johnson City, Tenn., near his hometown of Roan Mountain, Tenn.

BILL CARR

Athletic Director

Bill Carr, a dynamic young leader who worked his way up through the ranks in the Gator athletic program, assumed duties as Director of Athletics at the University of Florida on March 15, 1979.

Carr served as a graduate assistant football coach at Florida in 1970-71 and joined the staff full-time in April of 1972 as academic advisor and junior varsity assistant coach.

He turned to athletic administration in 1974, and was named assistant to Athletic Director Ray Graves. In 1976, he was named assistant athletic director working primarily with spring sports budgeting, scheduling, facility maintenance and athletic eligibility.

Carr, in his own words, best describes his former position as "the nuts and bolts man in the organization."

Carr was a first string All-America center for Florida in 1966. He started 32 consecutive games for the Gators, playing in the 1965 Sugar Bowl and the 1966 Orange Bowl. He was offensive captain of the 1966 team and was on the taxi squad of the New Orleans Saints in 1967.

DR. ROBERT Q. MARSTON

University President

Dr. Robert Quarles Marston, the seventh president of the University of Florida, has spent his professional life in medicine and education. He was Associate Director of the National Institutes of Health and Director of the Division of Regional Medical Programs, 1966-68; Director of the National Institutes of Health, 1968-73; Dean of the College of Medicine of the University of Mississippi, 1961-65; Vice Chancellor of the University of Mississippi, 1965-66; and a member of the faculty of the Medical College of Virginia, 1954-57 and 1955-61, and the University of Minnesota, 1958-59.

Dr. Marston was educated in the Virginia Military Institute (B.S.-1943), Medical College of Virginia (M.D.-1947) and as a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University (B.Sc.-1949). He also received training at Johns Hopkins, Vanderbilt and the National Institute of Health. He came to the University of Florida August 1, 1974, from positions as scholar-in-residence at the University of Virginia and as a distinguished fellow at the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences.

In addition to being a Rhodes Scholar, Dr. Marston has been honored as a Markle Scholar; a member of the Society of Scholars, Johns Hopkins University; and a fellow (honorary) of Lincoln College, Oxford.

NORM SLOAN

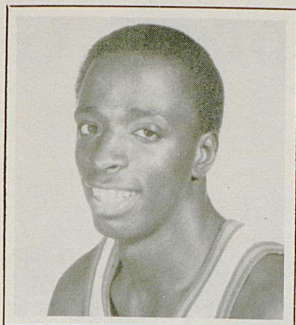

Head Coach

After a very successful first campaign back with the Florida Gators, Head Coach Norm Sloan has captured the enthusiasm of the Sunshine State with his impressive coaching style. Underdog in every game last season, the Gators managed to win 12 games including big wins over arch-rival Florida State, Alabama, Mississippi State and SEC tournament champion Ole Miss.

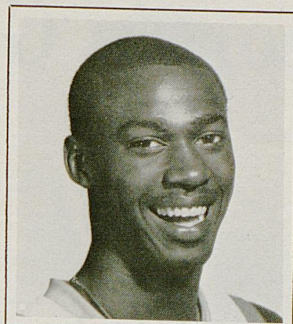

On February 24, 1980, Norm Sloan was named head coach of the Gators, returning to Gainesville after leading the Florida program from 1960-66. During that time, Sloan directed his teams to a 89-63 record, including a fine 18-7 record in 1964 which earned him SEC Coach-of-the-Year honors.

Since that time, he has gone on and accumulated one of the finest coaching records in modern times. Sloan has been named Coach-of-the-Year in the Southern, Southeastern, and Atlantic Coast conferences. At North Carolina State, he produced three ACC champion teams and the 1974 national champion team.

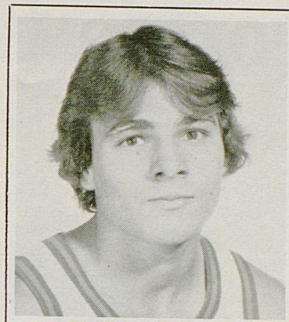

He is currently the nation's fourth-winningest active collegiate coach with 489 wins against 280 defeats. In 1974, he was named NCAA Coach-of-the-Year when his Wolfpack team finished 30-1 and national champions.

VINCE DOOLEY
Athletics Director

Vince Dooley, after 15 years as Georgia's head football coach, was named Athletic Director for Sports in 1979. Still retaining his head coaching responsibilities, Dooley is now also involved in the administration of the entire athletic program for the University.

He has become one of the most successful head football coaches in the country during his long tenure at Georgia, and his Bulldogs won the 1980 National Championship.

A native of Mobile, Ala., and graduate of Auburn, Dooley has compiled an enviable record at Georgia. In his 16 seasons as head coach he has taken teams to 12 bowl games, won four SEC championships, been named SEC Coach of the Year five times, and been chosen NCAA District IV Coach of the Year five times.

FRED C. DAVISON
University President

Dr. Fred C. Davison is the seventeenth president of the University of Georgia, the nation's oldest chartered state university.

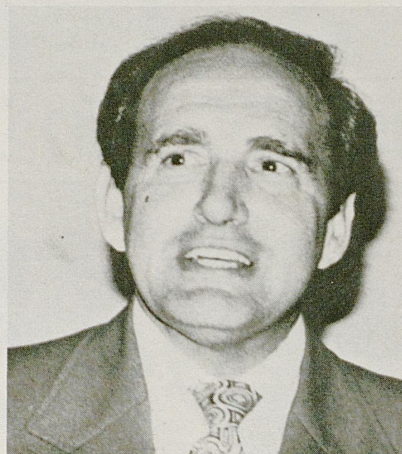

Dr. Davison was born in Atlanta and grew up in Marietta. He holds the D.V.M. degree from the University of Georgia (1952) and the Ph.D. degree from Iowa State University as Research Associate. At ISU he was appointed assistant professor on the department teaching staff and an Associate of the Institute for Atomic Research.

Dr. Davison left Iowa State in 1963 to become Assistant Director of the Department of Scientific Activities of the American Veterinary Medical Association in Chicago, a position he held until he became Dean of the University of Georgia School of Veterinary Medicine in 1964.

After two years, he was appointed Vice Chancellor of the University System of Georgia.

Founded in 1785, the University of Georgia offers majors in seven different fields of study. Undergraduate degrees may be obtained from 13 different colleges on the Georgia campus. This is supported by a faculty of nearly 2,000.

HUGH DURHAM
Head Coach

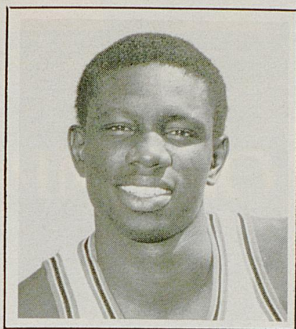

Durham enters his fourth season at Georgia with a record of 47-39. His 15-year coaching record is an outstanding 277-134, good for a winning percentage of .674. In terms of winning seasons at Georgia, there have only been seven in the past 30 years, and Durham has directed Georgia to back-to-back winning seasons.

Durham was one of the finest athletes to exit Louisville, Ky. He earned 14 letters in four years, and was All-State in football, All-Region in basketball.

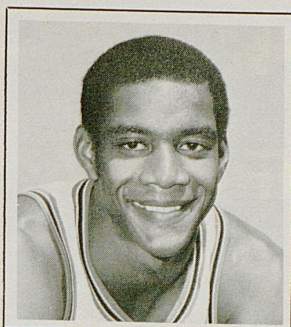

Durham enrolled at Florida State University in 1956 and went on to become one of the finest guards in FSU history. In three years as a varsity regular, Durham scored 1,387 points, good for seventh on FSU's all-time scoring list.

Durham graduated from FSU in 1959 with a B.A. in Business Administration. He then earned his Masters in the same field at State. Durham served as a graduate assistant for six seasons before being named head coach for the Seminoles in 1966.

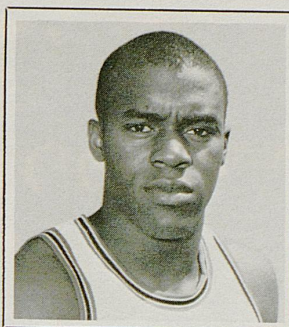

After taking over the Seminole head job, he compiled a 230-95 record for a .708 winning percentage, the 12th best record among collegiate coaches at that time.

WE FOLLOW THE BOUNCING BALLS

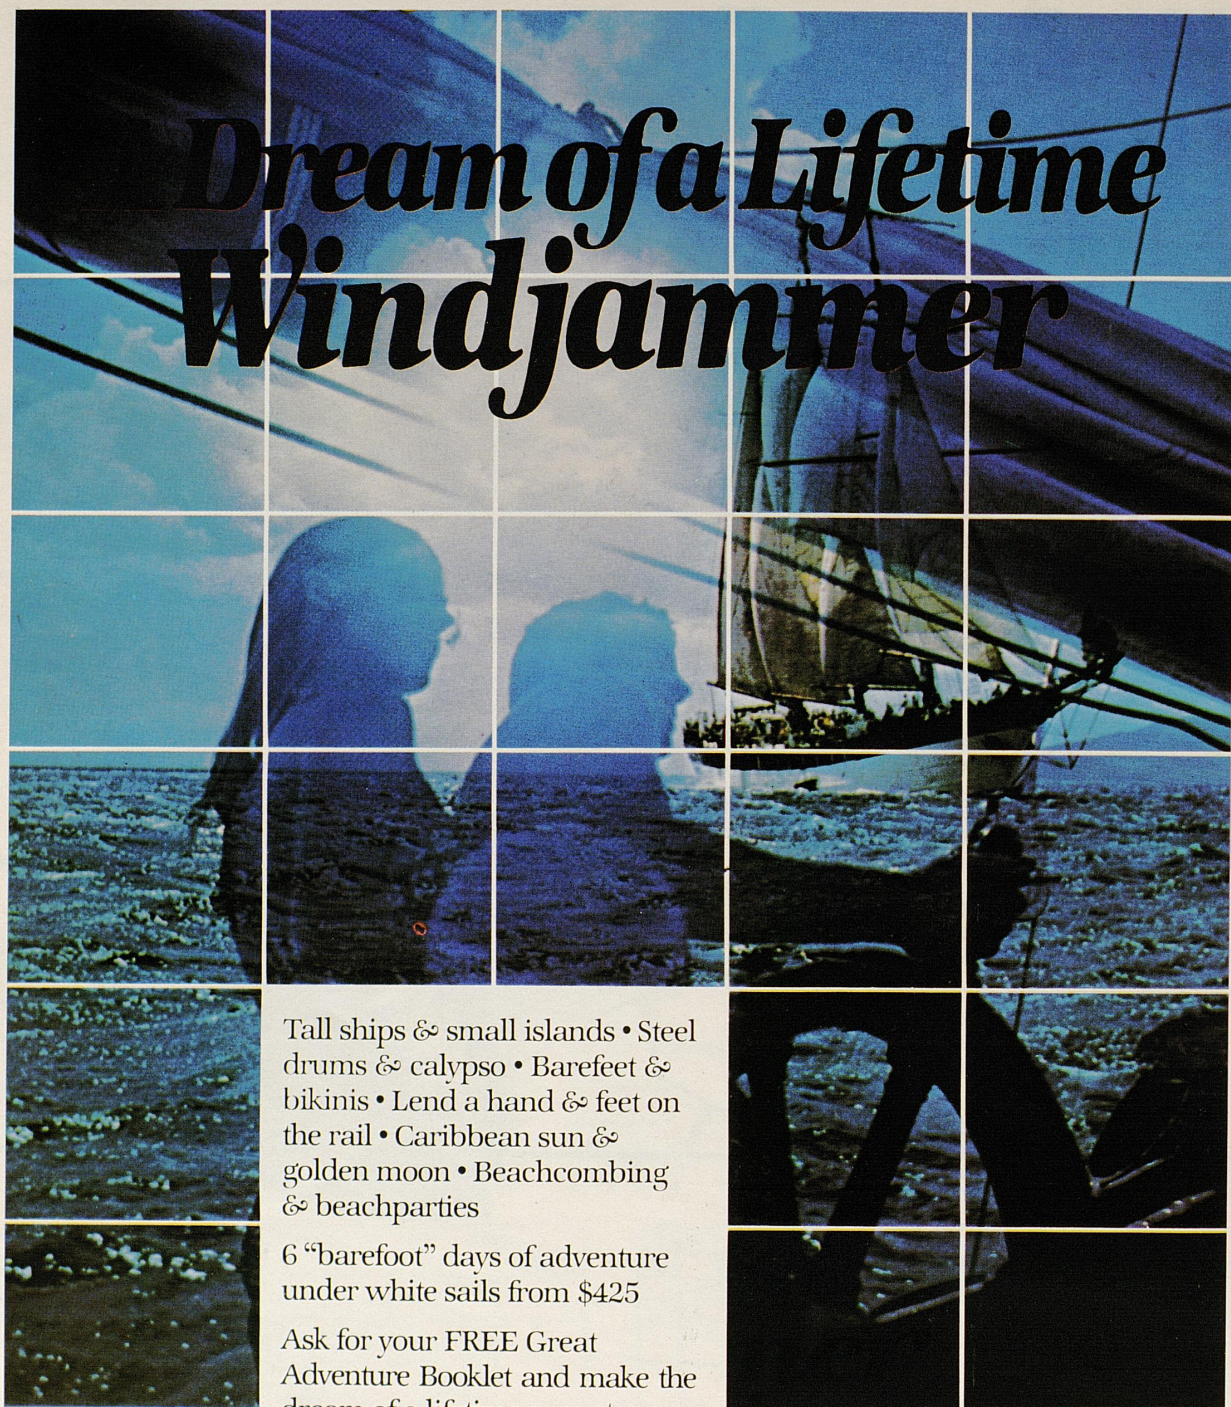

We're TVS, America's leading independent producer of television sports — now offering the widest range of coverage in our history. Everything from baseball to tennis and golf. Plus even more of the live basketball action that's made us famous. From the Hall of Fame "Tip Off" Classic in November to the NABC East-West All Star game, we'll be there live and direct. We'll be regional college games on NBC and SEC in the prime time. We'll be the Big 8, the Big 10, the PAC 10 and the Southwest Conference — the ECAC, the WAC, the SEC and the Big East, too. We'll be courtside at Notre Dame, Marquette and Louisville. At TVS, the balls just keep bouncing our way.

CLIFF HAGAN
Athletics Director

Cliff Hagan is recognized nationally as a progressive, business-oriented and promotion-minded administrator. Since 1975, he has overseen vast improvements in all phases of an ever-expanding operation that has encompassed 16 sports since the men's and women's programs were merged at UK in 1978.

Hagan joined the athletics administration in 1972 as assistant AD. He was an All-American basketball player under Adolph Rupp at Kentucky and received one of his highest individual honors two years ago when he became the first UK player to be enshrined in the Naismith Memorial National Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, MA.

During the Hagan years at Kentucky there have been many improvements in the athletics facilities. Among them: expansion of the football training room and addition of a players' lounge at Shively Sports Center; a new basketball office complex in Memorial Coliseum and a new surface for the running track.

DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY
University President

The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the country under the leadership of Dr. Singletary, the eighth president of the university.

Before coming to Kentucky in 1969, Dr. Singletary served as executive vice chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas system and as director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Gulfport, MS, native holds degrees from Millsaps College and LSU. He is the author of two books and several monographs.

In the twelve years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now more than 22,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 19,000 in UK's 13 community colleges. UK also has become one of the major research institutions in the country—outstanding in the fields of energy, cancer and tobacco research. The Sanders-Brown Research Center on Aging is one of the first of its kind in the world.

The University of Kentucky has a nationally-recognized graduate school and 17 academic colleges.

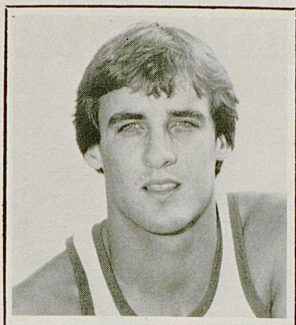

JOE B. HALL
Head Coach

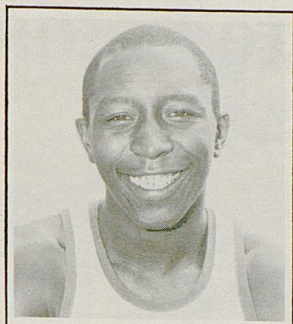

In only his tenth season as head coach at Kentucky, Joe B. Hall already has won more than 250 games. Entering this season his 15-year head coaching record stood at 281-122.

He has won such honors as Kellogg's 1978 National Coach of the Year and three SEC Coach of the Year awards in ten years. In 1978 when his Kentucky Wildcats won the NCAA title, Hall was presented the Rupp Cup as SEC Coach of the Year and his most coveted personal award, the Dr. James Naismith "Peachbasket" award.

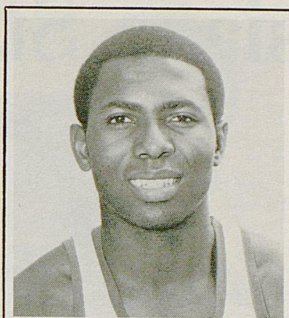

Gathering such honors has been a Hall trademark during a career that began at Shephardsville (KY.) High School and continued through Regis College and Central Missouri State College before he returned to his alma mater as an assistant to Adolph Rupp. Hall had played basketball at UK for one year before transferring to the University of the South where he was a stand-out performer.

LARRY JONES
Acting Athletic Director

On Feb. 8 Larry Jones was named LSU's acting Director of Athletics.

Jones, who has been serving as an assistant A.D. for sports under former director Paul Dietzel, assumed full duties immediately, according to Dr. Wharton.

Jones, 48, a native of Pottsville, Ark., lettered as a lineman at LSU from 1951 through 1954, coached at LSU, U. S. Military Academy, South Carolina, Tennessee and Kansas as an assistant and was head coach at Florida State. He returned to LSU in 1979 to his present post.

"I appreciate the confidence the Chancellor has shown in me," Jones said. "What has happened is behind us and now is the time to go ahead and get our job done. I appeal for the unified support of all LSU fans to keep the Tiger athletic program on its accepted national level and I know this support will be forthcoming."

Jones is married to the former Judy Bianchi of Dallas, who attended LSU, and they have three children.

JAMES WHARTON
University Chancellor

Louisiana State University (LSU) is a co-educational, state-supported university system with its largest campus in Baton Rouge, Louisiana's capital, which has a population of 204,897.

Founded in Pineville, La., 1860, LSU's first president was General William T. Sherman.

The Baton Rouge campus, with an enrollment of 28,673, is headed by Chancellor James H. Wharton, and includes the colleges of agriculture, arts and sciences, business administration, chemistry and physics, education and engineering, professional schools in library science, veterinary medicine, law, social welfare, music and environmental design; a continuing education division; and a university college.

Dr. Martin D. Woodin is President of the LSU System, which includes six campuses with a total enrollment of more than 40,000. In New Orleans are a Medical Center, including a School of Medicine, and the University of New Orleans (UNO), founded in 1958. UNO's program extends into graduate education. A School of Dentistry in New Orleans began operation for the 1968-69 school year and a School of Medicine in Shreveport served its first classes during the 1969-70 school year.

LSU-Shreveport (LSUS) is a four-year branch of the system and there are two-year colleges operating in Alexandria (LSUA) and Eunice (LSUE). LSU also operates 14 agricultural research centers throughout Louisiana.

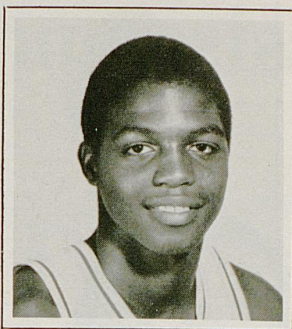

DALE BROWN
Head Coach

Now entering his 10th season at LSU, Dale Brown has brought Tiger basketball from mediocrity to a position of perennial contention for the national championship. After nine seasons, Brown has averaged almost 19 wins a year and over the past four seasons, he has produced teams that won 18, 23, 26 and 31 games, an average of almost 25 wins a year!

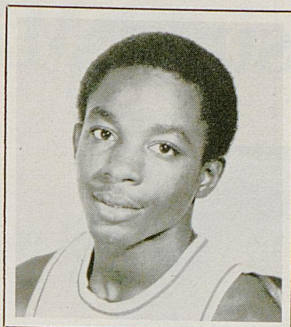

Brown has won the SEC regular season title two out of the last three years (he won the SEC Tournament title the other) and has appeared in the NCAA playoffs for the past three years. Last year he was named Sporting News and Chevrolet Coach of the Year; SEC Coach of the Year; District Coach of the Year by NABC and Kodak; and was also Louisiana's Coach of the Year.

Brown has been either SEC Coach of the Year or runner-up six of his nine years at Tigertown. In 1978-79, he was selected as Coach of the Year by the league and then added to that honor as recipient of the prestigious Rupp Cup, named in honor of former Kentucky coach, Adolph Rupp.

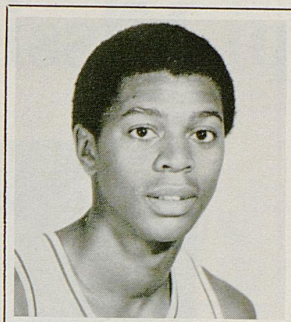

Before coming to LSU, Dale coached basketball, track and wrestling and assisted in football. His first collegiate job was as an assistant at Utah State (1966-71) before he moved on to Washington State as an assistant for a year before taking the LSU job.

WARNER ALFORD
Athletics Director

The personable, public relations-minded Alford was named athletic director at Ole Miss on February 1, 1978.

A former player, coach and now an administrator, Alford left the coaching field in 1974 when he was named Assistant Director of Athletics and Director of Rebel Recruiting.

In 1977, the 43-year-old Alford relinquished his recruiting duties in order to devote full attention to administrative duties of the athletic program on a department-wide basis.

Co-Captain of Ole Miss' 1960 football team, the Football Writers Association of America national and Southeastern Conference champions, Alford played left guard. He also served as the Rebels' defensive line coach from 1971-73.

Alford has served as assistant football coach at Georgia Tech (1968-70), and Davidson College (1967-68). He graduated from Ole Miss with a BBA degree in 1961.

DR. PORTER FORTUNE
University President

One of the Rebels' most avid fans, Dr. Porter L. Fortune, Jr. became the University of Mississippi's 12th Chancellor and 14th administrative head after having a brilliant career in both the academic and business fields.

Born in Old Fort, N. C., Dr. Fortune received his B.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He received the M.A. degree from Emory University.

Dr. Fortune, a former president of the Southeastern Conference, has versatile talents and interests and they are reflected in the honors he has received for his contributions as a citizen and as an educator.

In April, 1981, Dr. Fortune was awarded the Navy Distinguished Public Service Award; in April, 1980, he was awarded the U. S. Distinguished Civilian Service Medal by the Secretary of the Army; in January, 1980, he was awarded the Mississippi Distinguished Civilian Service Medal by the Adjutant General of the State of Mississippi. In April, 1977, Dr. Fortune received the first John R. Emens National Award for support of a Free Student Press presented by Ball State University; in 1976, he was the recipient of the Governor's Outstanding Mississippian Award; in 1974 he received the Toastmasters Club Leadership Award.

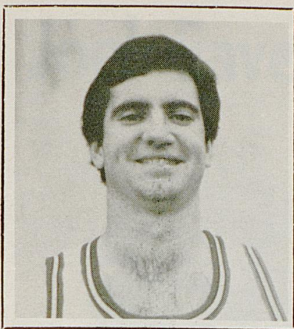

BOB WELTLICH
Head Coach

When Bob Weltlich accepted the head coaching job at Ole Miss in 1976, a lot of people around the country just shook their heads. The Ole Miss basketball situation looked hopeless.

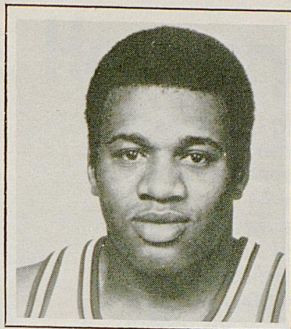

Indeed. The former Indiana assistant under Bobby Knight inherited a 6-21 team at a school that had never participated in a post-season tournament. All that changed dramatically though through Weltlich and his staff's hard work and good recruiting.

It all culminated last season when the 36-year-old Orrville, Ohio native coached a team that pre-season pollsters had named for an eighth or ninth place SEC finish to the SEC Tournament championship and the school's first-ever berth in the NCAA Tournament.

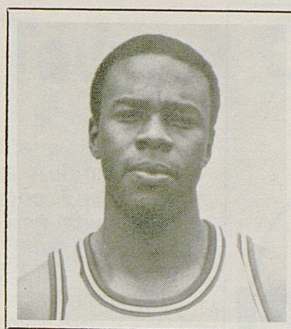

An indication of things to come was seen in 1977 when Weltlich's first Rebel team won the Toledo Tournament, and in 1979-80 when the Rebs won the Sugar Bowl Tournament and went 17-13, the school's best record in 42 years, and advanced to the second round of the National Invitation Tournament. Personal honors have come Weltlich's way, as well, when he was named the SEC's Coach-of-the-Year in 1980, and was named to coach the South team in the National Sports Festival in Syracuse, N. Y. this past summer.

Harry Lancaster: Honorary Tournament Co-Chairman

The SEC Tournament is proud to have Harry Lancaster serve as the tourney's honorary co-chairman.

Harry C. Lancaster helped build the athletic program at the University of Kentucky into what it is today. Lancaster assisted Adolph Rupp during the years Rupp compiled the winningest record in the sport and was present when Rupp's Wildcats won four NCAA Basketball championships.

The Paris, Ky., native lettered in football, basketball and baseball under Coach Blanton Collier at Paris High and went on to Georgetown College (Ky.) where he lettered in football, basketball and baseball and served as Student Body president. Upon graduation, Lancaster coached football and basketball at his Alma Mater and then in the high school ranks at Paris, Bagdad, and Gleneyre High Schools.

He earned his M.A. degree at Kentucky in 1943 and then entered the Navy, eventually attaining the rank of lieutenant (SG). He returned to Kentucky in 1946, in time to assist Rupp in winning UK's basketball titles in 1948-49-51 and 1958.

Lancaster and Rupp were together during the days of the "Fabulous Five," "The Big Three" and "The Fiddlin' Five."

In 1968, Lancaster left the basketball staff to become the University of Kentucky's Director of Athletics and during his term, Commonwealth Stadium was built and numerous improvements were made, improvements that contributed greatly to the Wildcats' winning athletic traditions.

Lancaster has traveled on special assignment for the State Department and has served as an advisor to the Greek National Basketball Team. He has conducted numerous clinics and coaching schools and has lectured extensively overseas.

Lancaster turned over the Athletics Director duties to current Kentucky AD Cliff Hagan in 1975 and remained a special assistant to Hagan until the next year. Last season, Lancaster served as a volunteer coach for the Wildcat basketball team.

Joel Eaves: Honorary Tourney Co-Chairman

Joel Eaves, Athletic Director Emeritus at the University of Georgia, serves as honorary co-chairman for the Southeastern Conference Basketball Tournament. Eaves served as Georgia's athletic director for 15 years, retiring in 1979.

Among his many achievements as Bulldog AD is his success in bringing the NCAA basketball regional and national competition to the deep South. Eaves' efforts as a member of the NCAA Basketball Tournament Committee in landing the 1971 Mideast Regionals in Athens has since paved the way for other SEC sites to be chosen for NCAA competition. Prior to 1971 only Kentucky had hosted the event. Since then Vanderbilt, Tennessee, Alabama and LSU have all served as host school with Georgia hosting the 1977 NCAA Finals in Atlanta.

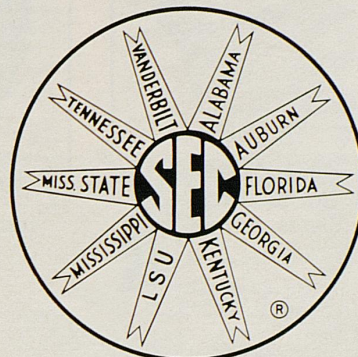

Another important factor which all SEC schools should appreciate is that this exposure, first on a regional basis and then for the finals, has been and will continue to be a strong influence in causing the quality of basketball in the conference to rise.

While a member of the NABC, the SEC schools have hosted one NCAA final, four regionals, and two first round events.

In 1975, the NABC voted Eaves its Appreciation Award for his contributions to basketball and in 1979, he was inducted into the National Athletic Directors Hall of Fame.

In 23 years as a basketball coach in high school, service and college competition, Eaves' teams compiled a string of 19 straight winning seasons, a period in which they posted a composite won-lost record of 304-115. As Auburn's head coach for 14 seasons, Eaves never experienced a losing season and compiled an impressive 214-99 record, including the SEC championship in 1960. For his accomplishments he was named SEC Coach-of-the-Year three times. Eaves has twice served as a member of the U. S. Olympic Committee (1969 and 1972) and is a member of the Georgia Sports Hall of Fame (1972) as well as the Alabama Sports Hall of Fame (1978).

CARL MADDOX
Director of Athletics

Indefatigable Carl Maddox, a true crusader for the maintenance of quality college athletics, became Director of Athletics at Mississippi State University on Jan. 26, 1979.

His previous post was Director of Athletics at Louisiana State University for 11 years as he oversaw one of college athletics' largest budgets and managed outstanding capital improvements in facilities at the same time.

Known not only for his talents as a director but also for his acclaim as an administrator nationwide, he is on the prestigious NCAA Television Committee and the NCAA International Relations Committee.

Born Dec. 10, 1912, in Natchitoches, La., the past chairman of the Southeastern Conference Coaches and Athletic Directors Association represented the NCAA at the 1977 World University Games in Sofia, Bulgaria.

In 1954 he moved to LSU where he had earned his Master's degree after completing undergraduate studies at Northwestern (La.) State University in 1932 as backfield coach under Coach Gaynell Tinsley. Maddox assisted current LSU Athletic Director Paul Dietzel when the Tigers copped the national title in 1958.

DR. JAMES D. McCOMAS
University President

Dr. James D. McComas, 47, became the 14th President of Mississippi State University, July 1, 1976.

McComas, who succeeded Dr. William L. Giles, came to MSU from the University of Tennessee where he served as Dean of the College of Education since 1969. Before then he was Dean of the College of Education at Kansas State University and professor and head of the department of elementary and secondary education at New Mexico State University.

The MSU president holds a bachelor of science degree from West Virginia University in vocational and agricultural education and biological sciences, a master of science degree in vocational and secondary education from Ohio State, and the Ph.D., also from Ohio State, in agricultural-vocational education with additional study in educational administration, sociology, and educational research. He also has done post graduate work in curriculum and instruction at Ohio State.

A former high school teacher, he held assistant professorships at New Mexico State and Ohio State University.

He is a native of Pritchard, W. Va., and is married to the former Adele Stolz. They have a daughter, Kathleen; and a son, Patrick.

BOB BOYD
Head Coach

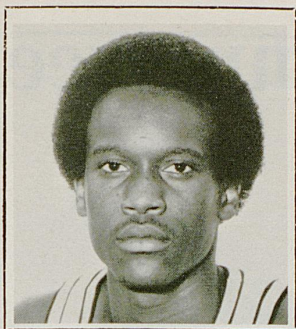

Coach Bob Boyd, one of the most highly-respected mentors in the game of college basketball today, returns to the wars this year for the first time since 1979.

Coach Boyd embarks on a career at Mississippi State in the Southeastern Conference with a glowing, 256-145 mark for 15 seasons as a head coach on the major college level.

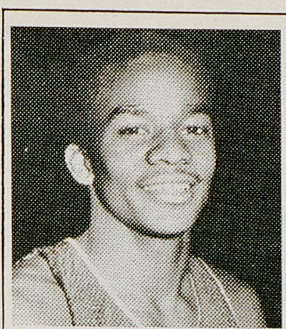

After several years in the California high school coaching ranks he coached at Santa Ana Community College in Orange County, Calif., while simultaneously teaching College Algebra.

That led to the head coach's post at Seattle University during the 1963-64 and 1964-65 campaigns, and Boyd established himself as one of the bright young cage skippers in the West with a composite record of 41-13 at the Washington college.

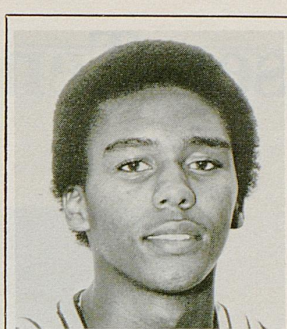

Following a brief respite from coaching as he worked for the Converse Basketball Shoe Co. in Los Angeles, the 51-year-old whiz took the reins at Southern California as head coach in 1966-67 guided the team to an unprecedented, 215-132 mark for the next 13 seasons.

BOB WOODRUFF
Athletics Director

SUCCESS by Vol teams in head-to-head combat has characterized the UT sports program since Bob Woodruff took command as director of athletics in 1963.

The Vols have captured seven Southeastern Conference all-sports championship since 1969.

As evidence of the confidence placed in his judgement, Woodruff frequently is called on to bring his thorough knowledge of athletics to bear in other areas affecting amateur sports. As example was his involvement as a member of the United States Olympic Committee. Woodruff serves, too, in important committee work for the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

The Tennessee Hall of Fame opened its door to Woodruff in 1971, enshrining him as a standout football player at UT in the late Thirties, the highly successful head coach at Baylor and Florida, and for his achievements as UT Athletic Director.

A native of Athens, Georgia, Woodruff was a standout tackle at Tennessee in 1936-38 on teams that won 23 games and lost only five.

DR. EDWARD J. BOLING
University President

Dr. Edward J. Boling, seventeenth president of the University of Tennessee, was appointed in 1970 after a career in teaching, industry, state government and university administration.

He is the chief administrative officer of a statewide system of higher education which includes four primary campuses, several special units and statewide programs of research and public service. During his presidency, the alumni and fund raising programs of the University of Tennessee have received national recognition. And, in 1980, UT completed a $57 million fund-raising campaign.

The Knoxville campus offers a full range of academic programs to approximately 29,000 students. Professional and graduate education in 300 fields of study is available at UT Knoxville and the campus offers a wide range of undergraduate and graduate degree programs in 19 colleges and schools.

Development in graduate education has been accompanied by growth of major research programs, particularly in the field of energy. Researchers have also been cited for their contributions in cancer research, effects of noise pollution, transportation, life sciences and many other fields.

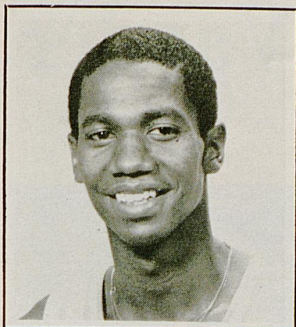

DON DEVOE
Head Coach

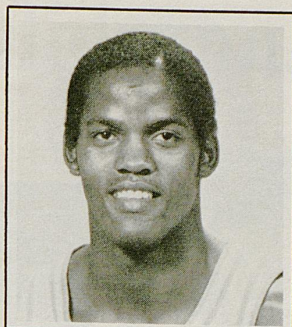

DeVoe's reputation as a solid basketball coach, with a special predilection for effectively arraying his troops for defensive combat, has spread far and wide. In 1979, his first year at the Orange helm, DeVoe was the choice of the Associated Press' panel of experts as SEC coach of the year.

A similar honor was bestowed at the end of the 1980-1981 season. Picked to finish seventh in the SEC, Tennessee fashioned a very respectable 12-6 record, good for third place in the league and finished 21-8 overall. Taking that achievement into account, and allowing additional credits for UT's position among the nation's top-ranked teams from the midseason point, SEC coaches named DeVoe coach-of-the-year. The poll, conducted by The News-Sentinel of Knoxville, is recognized by the SEC as the official coach-of-the-year selection. He was also selected as District Coach-of-the-year by both the Basketball Writers Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

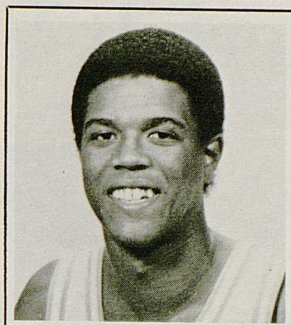

The combination of 88-45 at Virginia Tech, 29-25 at Wyoming and 60-31 at Tennessee gave DeVoe a nine-year coaching record of 177 victories against 101 defeats for a percentage of .637.

ROY KRAMER

Athletics Director

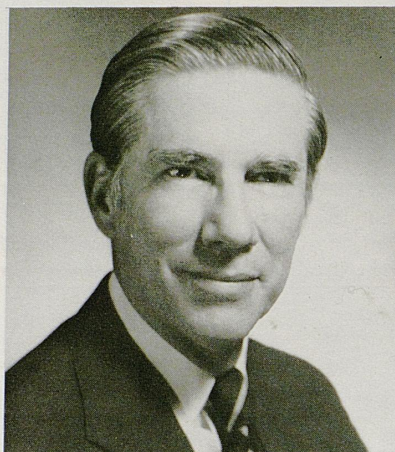

Roy Kramer has wasted little time in putting the Vanderbilt athletic program on the move since arriving in the fall of 1978.

The decision to renovate and expand Dudley Field to 41,000 seats ranks as the biggest step forward in a series of changes that are transforming Vandy into the program of the future in "Music City USA." A new computerized scoreboard and artificial turf were installed for the 1979 football season. Locker rooms have been refurbished and equipment upgraded and new uniforms designed in all sports.

Other facilities changes include new coaches dressing rooms, renovation of McGugin Center for use by women and cosmetic changes for Memorial Gym.

Under Kramer's term, the Vandy basketball teams won the SEC championship.

Kramer came to Vanderbilt from Central Michigan University where he established a remarkable record in 11 years as head football coach. His team won the Division II National Championship in 1974. He is a Maryville College graduate and holds an M. A. from Michigan.

ALEXANDER HEARD

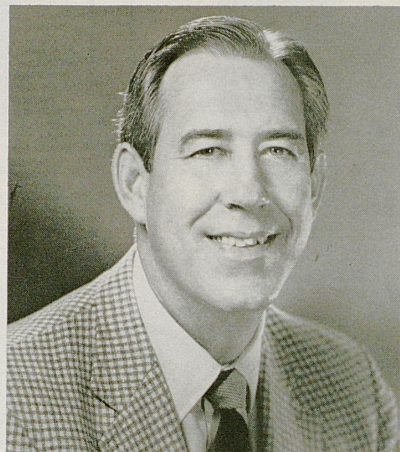

University Chancellor

Chancellor Heard enters his 19th year at Vanderbilt. Arriving in 1963 as a noted author and political scientist, Heard also brought with him a wealth of experience in public service. In 1961-62 he served as chairman of President Kennedy's Commission on Campaign Costs. President Johnson appointed him to the National Citizens' Committee for Community Relations and the Task Force on Education as well as the Advisory Committee on Intergovernmental Relations.

In 1969 President Nixon appointed him to the Commission on White House Fellows, the Task Force on Priorities in Higher Education and as special advisor on campus affairs.

He is a 1938 graduate of the U. of North Carolina and earned the M. A. and Ph. D. from Columbia University.

The only member of the Association of American Universities in the Central South, Vanderbilt enrolls approximately 9,000 students in its nine schools, expanded by the merger of the University and the prestigious Peabody College of Education in 1979.

C. M. NEWTON

Head Coach

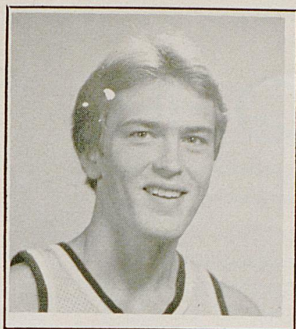

C. M. Newton, one of the most successful and widely respected individuals in college athletics today, begins his first year at the helm of the Vanderbilt basketball program this season, performing the dual roles of head basketball coach and associate athletic director.

A 24-year veteran of the coaching profession and a four-time Southeastern Conference Coach of the Year, Newton joined the Commodore staff in April. He served previously for one year as an assistant commissioner of the SEC.

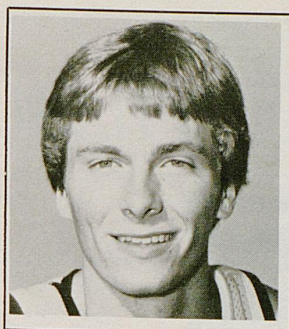

Called "the finest gentleman in our business," by Indiana head basketball coach Bobby Knight, Newton, a native of Rockwood, Tenn., began his coaching career at Transylvania College in Lexington, Ky.

In 1968, Newton answered the call from Alabama athletic director Paul "Bear" Bryant to rebuild the Crimson Tide basketball program.

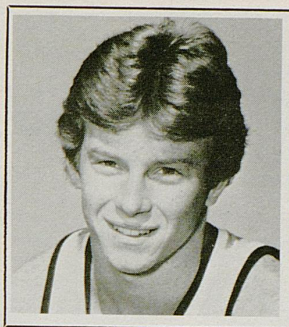

Often honored by his peers, Newton, a 1952 graduate of Kentucky and a letterman on the Wildcats' 1951 National Championship team, has been named NCAA District III Coach of the Year in addition to his conference coaching laurels. He currently holds membership on the Amateur Basketball Association, USA, Men's Games Committee and is chairman of the NCAA Basketball Rules Committee.
