The specific place of origin of this book is unknown. Internal evidence seems to indicate Paris. I rather think is an early Lexington book. There are many prominent names in it. There is some indication that it belonged to John Cockey Owings.

"BLESSED ARE THE PURE IN HEART FOR THEY SHALL SEE GOD."

BY MRS. J. Y. FOSTER.

She is thine! Almighty Father!
Sure of love and mercy now;—
Of such spirits is Thy Kingdom,—
And Thy seal is on her brow;
Threescore years she walked among us,
With a gentle, upward tread;
Where time marked by deeds of goodness,
Centuries had crowned her head.

In our hours of social gladness
All her sympathies were stirred,
Youth and Age around her gathered
To receive the kindly word;
Anger fled from her appearing,
And the heart forgot its pride,
Charity, that suffereth all things,
Was a dweller by her side.

In the hour of pain and trial,
Tender were her touch and tone,
Yet her presence seemed a sunbeam
Bright'ning all where'er it shone;
Cheering the faint-hearted mother
Till the infant's wail was heard;
Ne'er her arms received the stranger
But she spoke the welcoming word.

But when Sorrow was our inmate,
Or when Trouble pressed us sore,
Or when Death approached our household,
She was ever at the door;
When of us our Heavenly Father
Asked the treasures that he gave,
Little loved ones she had welcomed,
She appareled for the grave.

Mother's hand was not more tender
To support each drooping limb,
Or to part the clust'ring ringlets,
While with tears her eyes were dim;
"This is but the little casket,"
She would say, in pleasant tone,
"And the jewel 'Master' lent us
He has taken for his own."

Little children, poor, forsaken,
Ever in her heart had place;
They will miss her word in season,
They will miss her kindly face,
And the fallen she would plead with,
Letting no one cast a stone,
"Sister, come to seek our Father,
He His erring child will own."

Everything for HER had beauty,
Flowers that bloom or leaves that fall,
She would spare the meanest insect,
"One Creator made us all;"
Many a weary, foot-sore pilgrim
She hath cheered along Life's road,
Treading still the narrow pathway
That hath led her up to God.

Brief the time for soul communing—
Few the hours for vain regret;—
But her law was trimmed and burning,
And her house in order set;
Few her words—but fitly-spoken,
"She awaited Master's call:
Poor and feeble—yet she trusted
She would pass the gates of Pearl!"

"Only just within," she murmured,
And we felt that she was near,—
Graven were the words she uttered,
As the last from one most dear;
"Some have thought my time and substance
To the poor too freely given;
But there's hope in this remembrance,
It may smooth my path to heaven.

"For we read that 'he is blessed
Who considereth the poor,'
God hath said, 'in time of trouble
His deliverance is sure.'"
They who knew her well remember
When her voice the silence broke,
How she charmed a list'ning circle
With the happy thoughts she spoke.

Once she said, "a feeble vessel
Seem I—tossed by passing breeze,
But my Master gives me comfort
Cheering me with words like these;
Haply little bay or harbour,
Or some lonely island stream,
Where proud ship may not enter,
Joys to see thy white sails gleam.'"

Once she told us, and each feature
Lighted up with feeling warm,
"Through this world I bear a basket
Resting on my spirit's arm;
'Tis my Master's gift—and ever
In His service it shall be,
As I wander forth, I gather
Crumbs of bread that fall for me.

"When I see a hopeful spirit
Struggling through temptation's hour;
When I see a poor, weak blossom
Bearing up against the shower;
Every word that falls is precious,
Every leaf becomes a gem,
And I lay them in my basket
For a priceless diadem.

"From the lips of little children
I have gained instruction sweet;
From the pris'ner, thoughts of wisdom,—
From the beggar in the street;
From the things of God's creation;
From the rainbow arching o'er,—
And I lay them in my basket,
Adding ever to my store.

"Then when illness comes, or sorrow,
And I fain would comfort give,
Trustful turn I to my basket,
Words of healing to receive;
Thus I labour for my Master,
Never weary—never faint,—
Unaware, a cup of water
I may offer to a saint."

Thus she spake—and inspiration
Made her loving face more bright;
Now her lips have lost their sweetness,
And her eye its holy light;
Strange it seemed to see her powerless,
Who so helpful was to all,
Oh! on some one now among us,
May her heavenly mantle fall!

When we gathered with her children,
To perform the last sad rite,
Then we missed her cheerful spirit,
Always hopeful, always bright;
But we take from out her basket
Thoughts of comfort for each breast,
Through the blood of her Redeemer
She hath gained immortal rest.

TO MARY.

MARY,

To-night, my heart is gushing with memories—
Sweet memories of thee—though many years,
Like summer flowers ser'd by autumn winds,
Have passed away, since first I gazed
Upon thy fair face, whose strange, wild beauty
Rivals with the rainbow's gorgeous hues.

"Rich thought lay mirror'd in the crystal depths
Of thy sunny heart, which is a vestibule
Wherein all things of beauty and of truth"
"Do glass themselves as skies in summer lakes,"
And tremble like stars on Southern waters;
And the mild, fragrant flowerets which bloom
Amid Grecian isles, are emblems fit
Of thy rare, sweet virtues all.

MARY, to thee,
I bow in silent worship, and I breathe,
To-night, to thee, fond blessings on thy name;
For lovely art thou as e'er a poet's dream
Hath form'd a spirit from the world of thought:
Thine image haunts me in my visions,
And oft methinks I hear thy low sweet voice,
Murmur softly in my ear.

The nightingale, that to the magnolia
Pours plaintively his sweet song, while the stars,
The twinkling glories of the azure sphere,
List to the touching melody, and the streams
Ripple an echo to the dreamy song,
Feels not a tenderer glow within his breast
Than thrills my spirit now.

* * * * * * *

When I sit, MARY, on a night like this—
Wild and stormy—when I can hear the winds,
The autumn winds, moaning over the tombs
Of faded flow'rs—when mem'ry with backward glance
Reviews our vanish'd pleasures of oth'r years—
"I am pleased, and yet I'm sad."

* * * * * * *

MARY,

I have no wish save this, that thou may'st be
As happy, lovely, beautiful as now;
And that along thy daily walks on earth
May fadeless flowers ever bloom.

JUNIUS, JR.

OCTOBER, 1857.

TEMPERANCE.

The following impressive lines are from the Philadelphia Ledger; they speak the deep feeling of one whose crushed heart has felt the pangs described. How many in almost every community could tell of similar wrongs! Yet the infatuated subject seems impelled by a hellish influence that tramples under foot all considerations of kindness and affection, all the dictates of wisdom, and hurries the victim onward to ruin, temporal and eternal. The lines were written by a lady to a friend who had pronounced her almost a mono-maniac on the subject of intemperance.—Zanesville (Ohio) Gazette.

Go, feel what I have felt—
Go, bear what I have borne—
Sink, 'neath the blow a father dealt,
And the cold proud world's scorn—
Thus struggle on, from year to year,
Thy sole relief the scalding tear.

Go, weep as I have wept!
O'er a loved father's fall,
See every cherished promise swept,
Youth's sweetness turned to gall,
Hope's faded flowers strew'd all the way
That led me up to woman's day.

Go, kneel as I have knelt,
Implore, beseech and pray—
Strive the besotted heart to melt,
The downward course to stay—
Be cast, with bitter curse, aside,
Thy prayers burlesqued, thy tears denied.

Go, stand where I have stood,
And see the strong man bow
With gnashing teeth, lips bathed in blood,
And cold and livid brow.
Go, catch his wandering glance and see
There mirrored his soul's misery.

Go, hear what I have heard,
The song of sad despair,
As memory's feelings fonts hath stirr'd,
And its revealings there
Have told him what he might have been,
Had he shed drunkard's fate foreseen.

Go thy Mother's side,
And her crushed spirit cheer,
Thine own deep anguish hide,
Wipe from her cheek the tear—
Mark her dimmed eye, her furrowed brow,
The gray that streaks her dark hair now,
Her toil-worn frame; her trembling limb,
And trace the ruin back to him
Whose plighted faith, in early youth,
Promised eternal love and truth—
But who foresworn, hath yielded up
The promise to the deadly cup,
And led her down from love and light,
From all that made her pathway bright,
And chained her there 'mid toil and strife,
To that lowly thing—a Drunkards Wife!
And stamped childhood's brow so wild,
That withering blight—a drunkard's child!

Go, hear, see, feel and know
All that my soul hath felt or known—
Then look upon the wine cup's glow,
See if its brightness can atone;
Think if its flavor you would try,
If all proclaimed—"'Tis drink and die!'

Tell me I hate the bowl!
Hate is a feeble word—
I loathe, abhor—my very soul
With strong disgust is stirred,
Where'er I see or hear or tell,
Of THAT DARK BEVERAGE OF HELL!

JANUARY 1, 1859.

Dear friends! thus early I appear,
To wish you all a glad New Year!
May all its hours be bright and sunny,
Its pleasures, sweet as golden honey,
Its months glide by most fair to see,
Into the past eternity.
I hope that with a smiling grace
You'll welcome my familiar face,
That to my credit you'll remember
How, through this dreary, past December,
The Weekly Flag I oft have carried,
For rain or mud have never tarried;
Being anxious that each lady fair,
With me its rich contents might share.
I feel that I cannot express,
Within this circumscribed address,
The half that's prompted by my duty,
To entertain the wit and beauty
Of this delightful town of Paris,
In which I do affirm there is,
A galaxy of beauty, bright
As stars that gem the sky of night.
If any doth this truth deny,
Bound by the laws of chivalry,
I'll throw my buck-skin gauntlet down,
To any rival sister town.
Yet be it known that tho' I write,
I'm not at all inclined to fight;
To prove the truth of my assertion
And cause my friends a slight diversion,
I'd like a subject for my rhyme,
Which with the ladies mood might chime;
And so must tax my fertile brain
To find the most appropriate strain.
Of course I taboo politics,
In it the ladies never mix.
Its streams have been so oft polluted,
This they assert can't be disputed,
That they prefer a draught to drink
From other fountains,—and I think
'Twere wise if others, too, would shun
A cup which sparkles till 'tis won,
Whose draughts intoxicate the brain,
While drinking deeply sobers not again,
In this unlike the muses' fountain,
Upon Pierus' famous mountain,
The fountain bright of wit and learning,
Whose waters clear our youth's are spurning,
While striving for that foaming chalice,
Whose dregs are words of bitterest malice,
Of envy, hatred, strife and pain,
And yet the bottom they must drain
Ambition stern to gratify;
Though thirst it ne'er can satisfy.
But since my Muse, the most erratic,
Declines all contests Democratic,
Free suffrages, and rights of man,
(Define them properly who can,—)
For Douglas and Lecompton too
Avers she does not care a sous,
Where shall she find her New Year's theme;
"Ah! let it be sweet love's young dream,"
Sighs some fair girl, "that's always new,
And always charming." What think you?
Those dear, old days have long gone by,
The halcyon days of minstrelsy,
When some rhyme-chanting harper old,
To sentimental maidens told
The story of some deathless love,
Whose incidents their hearts did move;
But yet on this auspicious day,
I will my friends indulgence pray;
While I adopt the ancient measure,
And sing of love; its pain and pleasure,
May each young heart responsive thrill,
To every stroke of my tuneful quill.

What then?

A youth, with expectations high,
With blooming cheek and sparkling eye,
Said to his father, standing nigh,
The path of life now seems to lie
All smooth before me—bright with joy:
My dearest little Jane and I
Will soon be bound by nuptial tie;
And I am also bound to try
To shine a lawyer by-and-by.
The father answered, with a sigh,
What then?

Then I shall leave this calm retreat,
(The thought is sorrowful, but sweet,)
And in the court-room take my seat;
There boldly my opponent meet;
The crowd will witness his defeat;
My triumph then will be complete;
And from the bench a smile will greet
The smartest lawyer on the street.
The father smiled at this conceit,
And said, Perhaps you can't be beat.
What then?

I shall be thronged on every side;
All who have causes to be tried
Will bid those lawyers stand aside
Who long have blustered, bragged, and lied;
My fame will soon spread far and wide;
And my espoused, my lovely bride,
No luxury shall be denied;
In splendid carriage we shall ride;
And onward life will gently glide,
Until old age my hands has tied.
The father now again replied,
What then?

Well, when my bright career is o'er—
When I have gathered ample store
Of stocks, and lands, and golden ore;
And when this head is old and hoar,
Death will be standing at the door;
And I must leave this mortal shore.
The father sighed, and said once more,
What then?

His rosy cheek grew pale as lead;
He sighed as to himself he said,
When my beloved I have wed,
Chitty and Tidd and Blackstone read,
Marched to the court with stately tread,
And light on legal questions shed:
When all the joys of youth have fled;
When hoary hairs grow on this head;
The grave must be at last my bed!
Sad question!—After man is dead,
What then?

Happiness.

Knowledge or wealth to few are given,
But mark how just the ways of Heaven:
True joy to all is free.
Nor wealth nor knowledge grant the boon,
'Tis thine, O conscience, thine alone,
It all belongs to thee.—Mickle.

Choosing a Husband.

A young gentleman one day ridiculing religion to a young lady to whom he was to be married, she gently administered a reproof. To which he replied, "That a man of the world could not be so old fashioned as to regard God and religion." Eliza started! but on recovering herself, said, "From this moment, sir, when I discover that you do not regard religion, I cease to be yours. He who does not love and honor God, can never love his wife constantly and sincerely."

PULLEN.—In this city, on the 9th inst., after an illness of four weeks, borne with the patience and resignation which only the christian faith and hope inspire, Mrs. Bettie F. Pullen, wife of Mayor B. F. Pullen, in the 45th year of her age.

She was daughter of French A. and Elizabeth Abbott, was married to B. F. Pullen the 16th of Octoter, 1845, and was the mother of eleven children, six of whom survive and five are with her now. Her father went before her just four weeks. She leaves behind, her husband, six children, her aged mother, one sister, one brother, numerous more distant relatives, besides a host of devoted friends, here and elsewhere. She had been more than twenty years an earnest and consistent member of the Church of Christ.

How she will be missed! Not only will she be missed by her own dear little children, but other little children will miss her too; not only missed by her husband and grown children, but by her entire church and community; by all who knew her. When such women die the world seems left darker all about where they lived; but, thank God, there is a home that seems made brighter over the River of Death.

When people die we are inclined to speak well of them if we can, gently anyhow, and likely we often err on the side of charity. It is a happy thing that this is so. It is the opinion of the writer, however, that it would be exceedingly difficult for one to say too much in praise of Sister Pullen. As daughter, wife, mother, friend, and christian she commanded the admiration of all who knew her.

It has been frequently said since, by old citizens of Paris, that a larger concourse of people never was seen in attendance upon a funeral service, or in funeral procession upon our streets; and vast as was the audience present the entire heart of it seemed pervaded by the deepest feeling of sadness on account of death, and of sympathy for the afflicted family. The sad services were conducted by the pastor of the church, assisted by Bro. Gano.

Perhaps no woman in Kentucky, in the last twenty years, entertained at her house more preachers than Sister Pullen; and every one of them will when they read this sad notice heave the deep sigh of sorrow and breathe a prayer for her distressed family, especially her dear little children. Fail not, my brethren, for that you should so pray was one of her many pious requests when dying.

Her death was a triumph of christian faith and hope. A pure spirit has gone from earth and sorrow; gone, too, from many true and devoted friends, left all sad and sorrowful; but gone to friends that went before her, friends that loved her here and were loved by her, and who love her, and whom she loves and sees, to-day, over there.

God bless and guard and comfort the children, husband, and friends, and bring them all together in Heaven. J. S. S.

From the Carlisle Mercury.

The news of the death of the wife of Mr. B. F. Pullen, Mayor of Paris, which occurred on Monday last, was received by us and all others in this section who knew her with keen regret. Mrs. Pullen was one of the truest and noblest-hearted women in the State. Indeed, in all the qualities that go to make the highest type of woman she had no superior. All who knew her—and her acquaintance was very large, not confined to Bourbon—will fully endorse this expression of her. The true and worthy wife of a true and worthy man, Mr. Pullen and the devoted family have the most heartfelt sympathies of all their friends. Mrs. Pullen was buried yesterday (Wednesday) evening. The funeral concourse was one of the largest ever seen in Paris, and the services, by Eld. J. S. Sweeney, of the Christian Church, were very impressive. The pall-bearers were Messrs. C. S. Brent, Sr., Horace Miller, Dr. L. D. Barnes, Wm. Isgrig, B. E. Knapp, John T. Hinton, J. D. Butler and Wm. A. Parker—all being old and intimate friends of the deceased's husband.

THE NOBLE LIFE.

Men should learn to live nobly. It is not enough that we pass through life inoffensively. We must crowd our days with acts of positive goodness. There is many a harmless plant which, because it is nothing more than harmless, is trampled in the mire or burnt with useless stubble. A flower, not half as large or strong, because it smiles a blessing on the world, is cherished in kindness and praised for its benevolence. Live nobly, which means that you are to love, to serve your God with all your heart, and soul, and mind, and strength, and your neighbor as yourself, loving not in word only, but in deed and in truth.

Card from Rev. Mr. Poynter.

MR. EDITOR:—I desire through the Kentuckian to express my gratitude to the many friends who, in my affliction rendered kind offices to me and mine. Every one who during my wife's illness, and at her death and funeral remembered her in acts of love, has brought me in her personal obligation. They who were kind enough to attend us to the burial have my special regard. At Fox Springs, Flemingsburg, Millersburg, Paris, and Winchester, there were evidences of respect for her who is dead, and sympathy with those bereaved, which will be precious in my memory forever. My wife's relations and my family join me heartily in the sentiments expressed.

POYNTER.—At Fox Springs, at 8½ P. M. on Friday, July 17th, 1874, Mrs. Kate E. Poynter, wife of Rev. W. T. Pointer, Methodist minister of this place.

She had been an invalid for about eight months and had gone to the Springs only the Monday previous to her death in the hope she might improve. She stood the trip well, enjoyed the scenery and was seemingly much better until Friday, when she suddenly grew worse and died almost unexpectedly. When it was apparent she must die, she had time for but one hasty sentence: "I am going; good-bye; meet me in heaven, all of you." She died in her right mind, without much pain, surrounded by kind friends, and with words of comfort on her lips. No death was ever more peaceful. Her friends mourn her loss, but their sorrow is mitigated by the sweetness of her death. Her funeral, which took place at Winchester on Sunday, was largely attended. Many from Paris and vicinity accompanying the family. The sermon was preached by Rev. F. W. Noland, of Newport. It was an able effort. Rev. J. C. Morris and Dr. Welburn took part in the services. A noble christian woman has gone, and our community is again in mourning.
