STATEMENT OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

INTRODUCTION

In this report an effort has been made to record briefly the progress of public education in Kentucky during the biennium beginning July 1, 1933, and ending June 30, 1935. The separate sections, reflecting the activities of the different divisions of the State Department of Education, will speak for themselves. Although the biennium just closed represents a period of great distress in social and economic affairs generally, the record of public education in Kentucky within that same interval is one of real achievement. The citizenry of Kentucky may well be proud of this chapter in the history of educational progress in the Commonwealth.

It is believed that at least two facts will stand out as this record is read section by section: The first has to do with the great and significant changes in the direction of educational progress already taking place, which have been made possible by the provisions of the New School Code; the second, the devotion to service in the cause of public education on the part of the educational leadership of the state reflected by a recital of the accomplishments brought about in the brief period of time of this biennium.

The friends of public education in the Commonwealth join with me in expressing the earnest hope that the New School Code shall be left intact until ample time has passed to reveal any minor defects. The General Assembly of 1934 advanced the cause of education in Kentucky immeasurably when they enacted the New School Code, and the educational leadership of the state is confident that the General Assembly of 1936 will protect this code from any ill-advised attacks that may be made upon it.

RESEARCH ACTIVITIES

Although the bulk of the work of the Kentucky Educational Commission was completed during the preceding biennium, there remained the task of editing the Report and other work incidental to its preparation for the printer and its subsequent distribution. The Report of the Kentucky Educational Commission was published as Bulletin Number 8, Volume I, of the Educational Bulletin for October, 1933.

The preparation of the New School Code took place in the fall of 1933. This work represented the translation of the major recommendations of the Commission into proposed legislation, as well as the revision, simplification, and rewording of many of the sections carried over from the old codes. Assistance was rendered on the Code by other Divisions and by the Bureau of School Service of the University of Kentucky, but formal responsibility for the work rested with the Division of Research. Educational Bulletin Number 11 of Volume I for January, 1934, contains the "School Code Submitted to the Kentucky General Assembly Session, 1934." The New Code as adopted by the General Assembly in March, 1934, was published as "Kentucky Common School Laws" in Number 4 of Volume II of the Educational Bulletin for June, 1934.

The New School Code greatly increased the responsibilities of the new State Board of Education. On July 30, 1934, the Director of the Division of Research was elected to serve as Secretary of the State Board. A large part of the work of setting up the machinery for carrying out the provisions of the Code cleared through the Division.

In December, 1933, the Director of Research was asked to serve on an advisory committee of the Tennessee Valley Authority in planning and directing certain CWA-TVA projects. Actual responsibility was assumed for the direction of some of these projects in the Kentucky State Department of Education. Approximately thirty previously unemployed persons were used in the work of assembling data for these projects during December, 1933, and the first four months of 1934. The projects under the immediate supervision of the Division of Research included the following:

(1) Collection and Management of School Funds and the Relation of the Handling of School and Other Governmental Funds
(2) Development and Present Status of Library Service in Kentucky Schools
(3) Influence of Court of Appeals' Decisions and Attorney General's Opinions upon the School Law of Kentucky
(4) School Costs in Kentucky

A series of studies having to do with the handling of school funds in Kentucky was made through the Division of Research and brought together in a report entitled "Protecting Public School Funds in Kentucky." This report was published as the June, 1935, Bulletin of the Bureau of School Service of the University of Kentucky. The bulletin contains some 216 pages, including appendices. This study shows that Kentucky school districts have done a better job in protecting the school funds during the past three years than those of practically any other state in the Union.

National Program for Federal Emergency Aid to Education

The Superintendent of Public Instruction of Kentucky was drafted as Chairman of the National Committee for Federal Emergency Aid to Education in the school year 1933-34. From January, 1934, to April 1935, the Director of Research served as Secretary of this Committee. While the Director continued to carry on his work in the State Department, it was necessary that he spend most of his time in Washington in the interest of the work of the Federal Aid Committee during the first six months of 1934 and the first three and one-half months of 1935. One of the functions of this Committee was to present to Congress an emergency program which had been prepared by a national committee representing thirty-two national organizations. This program called for considerable legislative contact work as well as the coordination of the emergency educational plans of the co-operating agencies. As a result of the activities of this Committee, a total of more than $17,000,000 was made available to some thirty states by the Federal Government in 1934.

Public education in Kentucky shared in these Federal emergency appropriations. During the school year 1933-34 public school districts in Kentucky received $316,000 from the government for the extension of school term to normal length for that year.

Other liberal Federal Emergency Aid received for education in Kentucky during the biennium includes the provision of funds for the Emergency Education program administered by the Division of Special Education; the financial assistance from the PWA and the WPA for the purpose of schoolhouse construction; and the FERA aid for students in the colleges and universities.

THE FINANCIAL ADMINISTRATION OF PUBLIC SCHOOL DISTRICTS

The public school indebtedness of Kentucky, exclusive of the city of Louisville, was reduced from $10,969,000, as of June 30, 1932, to $9,542,000, as of June 30, 1934. The net decrease was $1,427,000, or almost exactly 13 per cent. This percentage decline in school debt becomes the more impressive when it is noted that between the same two dates the decrease in the public school indebtedness of the United States as a whole was less than 1 per cent. Moreover, the substantial lightening of the burden of the indebtedness of school districts of the state was achieved in spite of the fact that public school revenues in Kentucky from local, state, and federal sources combined, declined from a total of $21,840,000 for the school year 1931-32 to $17,816,759 in 1933-34, a decrease of income within the biennium of more than $4,000,000.

A comparison of the amounts budgeted each year by the county school districts with the amounts expended reveals figures that show great improvement since 1930. For the year 1930-31 the actual expenditures of county school districts exceeded budgeted figures by $1,526,239. In 1931-32 the total expenditures exceeded the total budget provisions by $831,688. Two years later a check was made which showed that the total budget provisions of the county school districts actually exceeded the total expenditures by $79,599. In other words, a situation has been brought about in the financial administration of the county public school systems throughout the state wherein sound budgeting procedures have replaced relatively uncontrolled practices in school district expenditures.

To say the least, the above figures reflect credit upon the financial adminstration of the school districts of the state during the past three years. A number of factors have contrived to bring about improvement in the status of public school finances. The work of the Kentucky Educational Commission served to bring to light much significant financial data concerning the state school system and pointed the way to many desirable improvements. The New School Code incorporates in legal form the recommendations made possible by the Commission's study. With the aid of the research contributions of the Commission and with the equipment of an excellent new code of school laws, the stage has been set to usher in an era of unprecedented improvement and progress in the financial administration of school districts in Kentucky.

Five months before the report of the Kentucky Educational Commission was released from the press, the State Board of Education adopted a uniform financial accounting system for the state. Copies of this financial record book, supplemented by various forms and report blanks were mailed to secretaries of the boards of education throughout the Commonwealth. The installation of this new uniform accounting system was an immediate attempt to proceed forward upon an improved and more business-like basis. The system has been in operation now for two fiscal years and has already borne much fruit.

The Division of Finance keeps a close check upon the monthly reports from the various school districts. These reports are inspected with respect to receipts and expenditures as compared with the approved budgets. Monthly totals and grand totals of receipts and expenditures since the beginning of the fiscal year are carefully checked. Any departures from the approved budget and any errors in totals are noted and called to the attention of the secretaries of the local boards. The cooperation of the local boards has been splendid, and responses to letters of correction with respect to financial records have been predominantly appreciative of the supervisory assistance rendered by the Division. Improvement in the regularity with which monthly reports are sent in, stricter adherence to budget figures, and greater accuracy in the keeping of financial records, constitute evidences that this phase of the Division's work is effective.

The Division is especially thorough in its close supervision of local budgets. Before any budget is submitted to the State Board for approval, it has been checked for accuracy, compared with previous budgets, analyzed with respect to all legal requirements, such as those pertaining to adequacy of instructional salaries, and checked with respect to the soundness of its policy in the handling of indebtedness problems. Where additional information is needed to supplement that called for on the budget forms, it is supplied through correspondence, or by conferences in the office and in the field.

In order to carry out effectively the provisions of the New School Code with respect to its salary-scheduled requirements, a uniform salary-schedule form has been designed for all districts. This form calls for specific information with respect to the training, experience, and other qualifications of every public school teacher in the state.

School funds are effectively safeguarded by a policy of conscientious enforcement of the provisions of the Code applying to the bonding of school officials and all intrusted with responsibilities in the handling of school moneys.

Audits and inspection of the records and accounts of boards of education are being carried on continuously throughout the year by the personnel of the Division.

The Division carries on such research from time to time as is desirable in the study of various important financial problems, such as those having to do with school indebtedness, the effectiveness of supervised budgeting, and the like.

SOME ADMINISTRATIVE PROBLEMS CONFRONTING COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICTS

One of the most important of the services rendered to the public school system of the Commonwealth by the State Department of Education is that supplied by the public school supervisors on the departmental staff in attempting to work out administrative programs for the various school districts. Conditions peculiar to the county school districts are responsible for the great majority of the problems in the administration of the schools of the state. Among these are those due to extreme shifts in school population, problems of school support brought about by marked decreases in local revenue due to lowered property valuations, and problems such as that of transportation of pupils in connection with programs of consolidation of schools.

In the thirty years from 1900 to 1930, a few of the county school districts lost more than half of their school population. Fifty-seven typically agricultural counties lost in school population between 1920 and 1934. Such losses constitute problems for county boards of education. In many instances, it is a question of either maintaining a school for as few as ten or twelve pupils, or of transporting these children to a consolidated center.

A few of the county school districts of the state have increased in school population very rapidly during the past few years, some of them having more than doubled in the number of pupils in the school census. These counties are generally located in the mining or commercial centers. Boards of education in such districts have been compelled to ask their teachers to attempt to instruct ever-incerasing numbers of students, until at the present time many of the schools in these districts have from sixty to seventy pupils per teacher. In many such instances, it is rather easy to form consolidated centers accessible to large numbers of pupils without providing transportation. This consolidation is not possible under present conditions, however, in some of the outlying sections of the state.

Throughout the Commonwealth property valuations have decreased very rapidly since 1929. Several county boards in the state find that these valuations have declined more than 50 per cent since that year. Local revenue for school purposes consequently is much diminshed.

A study of the shifts in population and of the changes in the distribution of wealth in the different counties of the state shows, conclusively, that the wealth in the rural sections is more and more being concentrated in the centers of population and that the population in the rural areas is still flowing into the urban sections. Even though in the nation as a whole many people have been forced out of the cities in the last few years because of the depression, the trend in Kentucky is still away from the agricultural areas. These conditions are making it increasingly difficult for county boards of education to maintain standard programs.

A decided effort on the part of the people in those communities of decreasing pupil population is being made at present to keep up and improve the educational faciliaites for their children by consolidating the small schools. Improvement of road facilities during the past ten or twelve years has helped them in this attempt.

The people of these communities are demanding that their pupils be given an equality of educational opportunity, but with the meager finances available to county boards of education, such improvements are frequently not possible. In some instances county boards of education can finance transportation through savings brought about by discontinuing small schools. Judging from the demands of the citizens of these communities, consolidation seems to be the remedy. That such a movement is demanded is shown by the increase during the past two or three years of consolidated areas wherein pupils are being transported to school.

In 1933 there was a total of 382 school districts in the state of Kentucky, including 120 county districts and 262 independent districts. At the present time the total number of school districts is only 299. This represents a reduction in the number of independent districts of 83 in two years' time.

Associated with the consolidation of districts is the problem of the transportation of pupils to the school centers. In 1933, 56 counties reported that children were being transported by motor vehicles; this number of counties has increased to 86 in 1935. In 1933, 544 busses were reported in use for the transportation of children; this number has increased to 881 in 1935, and advance reports indicate that boards of education plan to use 1,035 busses during the 1935-36 school term.

The movement toward consolidation has greatly accelerated during the past few months. One county board is discontinuing 21 schools this year and providing transportation to large centers. This board will actually save money by such a program and at the same time be able to offer to the children of these abandoned schools much better educational opportunities.

The conditions of increasingly-unequal distribution of population and wealth obtaining within the Commonwealth make it very urgent that the state assume a much larger proportion of the burden of school support than it has in the past. There is no possibility of providing school service that is on a par throughout the state unless the state guarantees with adequate financial support the minimum program, leaving to the individual communities to provide from local taxation funds for financing the part of the program that may be offered beyond the minimum set for the state as a whole.

THE STATUS OF KENTUCKY HIGH SCHOOLS

A summary of the enrollments in Kentucky high schools for the two years of the biennium 1933–35 is displayed in Table I. This table shows that there was a total enrollment of 104,412 pupils in the 848 high schools of the state in 1934-35, compared with a total enrollment of 98,336 pupils in 840 high schools in 1933-34. This represents a marked increase for so short a time as a single year. A partial explanation of this growth is given elsewhere in this report in the section on School Attendance.

* Data secured from "Annual High School Organization Report" records for 1933–34 and 1934–35; both junior and senior high schools included.

The rapid growth in high-school enrollment over a period of years, with every indication that this growth will continue steadily for an indefinite period, has materially altered the character of high-school policies. Formerly, the high school served, and was primarily expected to serve, the few, offering with infrequent exceptions the standard academic curriculum. This curriculum was designed to prepare pupils for admission to college. Now, however, the changed character of the high-school population demands logical adaptation of instruction and courses of study to the social and economic life of today and to the individual differences of the pupils.

The big problems of Kentucky high schools at this time are those that relate to the improvement of instruction, the reorganization of the curriculum, to the installation of adequate equipment, to the establishment of sound financial policies, and in many instances, to a consolidation of high schools already established.

Kentucky has passed the period of growth in numbers of high schools. Although there are a few remote sections of the Commonwealth in which high schools should be established, still, in the main, the state now has a sufficient number. As a matter of fact, in some counties at the present time there are entirely too many. For the year 1934-35 64 per cent of the public high schools had enrollments of less than 100 pupils.

One can quickly gather that from the point of view of administration, the high-school problems of the state are largely concerned with small schools. One of the most difficult tasks is that of working out a program of studies which will have a sufficient variety of interest to appeal to the needs of pupils, and which will at the same time be kept within the narrow range of subjects that they can offer. Naturally, if the small high schools attempt to offer a range of subjects that will appeal to pupil interests, the number of teachers required will be so large that pupil costs will be excessive.

Due to the fact that the small high school is necessarily limited in the program which it can offer, and since it is usually very expensive from the pupil-cost standpoint, it is evident that high-school facilities in the state could and would be greatly improved by further consolidation and the elimination of small, struggling high schools. Fortunately, a number of the counties are aware of this fact and are voluntarily developing programs of high-school consolidation which will eliminate many small and expensive schools.

In this connection it is admitted that because of the geographic location of many of the small high schools in the state, their consolidation with other high schools is not only undesirable but practically impossible.

For the year 1934-35, the number of 4,166 teachers out of a total of 4,531 teaching in the high schools of Kentucky were graduates of standard four-year colleges. This represents 92 per cent of the total number on the faculties of all of the secondary schools of the state. Because of the large number of unemployed graduates of Kentucky private colleges and state-supported institutions qualified and equipped for high-school teaching, there is now no excuse for boards of education employing new teachers for high school who are not college graduates.

For the purpose of aiding school officials in standardizing high schools, the State Board of Education and the Association of Kentucky Colleges and Universities have set up certain requirements for their approval or accrediting. These regulations are designed to offer at least two advantages to any community supporting a high school:

(1) A guarantee to the community and to the taxpayer of a standard, recognized high school.

(2) In the case of accrediting, admittance of graduates to college without being required to comply with the requirements for admittance from substandard schools.

For the school year 1934-35 there was a total of 647 accredited high schools. Of this number, 321 were accredited Class A and 326 Class B.

SCHOOL CENSUS AND ATTENDANCE

In accordance with the recommendations of the Kentucky Educational Commission, the 1934 Legislature completely revised the school census and attendance laws of the state. As a result of this action, the Division of Census and Attendance was established July 1, 1934, for the purpose of putting into operation the law within the several school districts of the Commonwealth.

Immediately upon the establishment of the Division, it was necessary for the Director to develop forms for putting into operation the new compulsory attendance and school census laws. A great deal of time was spent in advising with superintendents and attendance officers concerning the problems presented in setting up an effective administrative organization in the various school districts of the Commonwealth. In this connection, the Director of the Division of Census and Attendance attended the various district educational conferences; participated in the annual superintendents' conference; and wrote the bulletin entitled "School Census and Attendance Administration."

In cooperation with the University of Kentucky, a class designed especially for attendance officers was conducted by the Director of Census and Attendance during the first summer term.

In spite of the unavoidable delay experienced in getting the necessary administrative organization in each school district established, the results of the first year of the operation of the new census and attendance laws are exceedingly gratifying. The value of the work of attendance officers is indicated by increases in school census, in school enrollment, and in average daily attendance. The school census of 1935 shows an increase of 41,460. This increase may appear out of line when compared with increases of former years; but when consideration is given to the fact that for the first time in the history of Kentucky a complete school census for a single year has been made by trained school people, it is evident that the 1935 census is more accurate than any census heretofore had. Moreover, it checks with the latest figures supplied by the Federal Government. The increase in enrollment of 16,092 for the year 1934-35 and the increase in the average daily attendance of 18,012 for the same year over the preceding year indicate what is to be expected when an active organization focuses the attention of school people on the matter of school enrollment and regular attendance.

It is interesting to note that the percentage increase in the high-school enrollment is greater than the percentage increase in the elementary-school enrollment. This is due in part to the fact that the new compulsory attendance law does not exempt from attendance those pupils who have completed the eighth grade. The new laws require that children attend school until they have reached their sixteenth birthday.

It is an accepted fact that there must be understanding and cooperation between the home and the school if the school is to discharge its responsibility to the people. There is no way adequately to measure the value of the attendance officer in this regard. The social-service aspect of the work is of utmost importance if the schools are to render the service for which they have been established. In this connection, it has been the policy of this Division to emphasize the necessity for cooperation and understanding rather than resort to coercive measures in carrying out the attendance program.

In the light of the experience of the past year, there is no doubt but that Kentucky has taken a distinct step forward, and the possibilities of the work of the attendance officer are yet to be fully realized.

TEACHER TRAINING

The Division of Teacher Training and Certification is the agency in the State Department of Education through which the Superintendent of Public Instruction carries into effect the regulations of the State Board of Education relating to the training and certification of teachers. Through this Division teacher-training facilities are inspected and reports made to the State Board through the Superintendent of Public Instruction; teacher-training curricula are filed for the approval of the State Board; certificates are issued; fees for the issuance of certificates are collected; training and experience records of teachers are kept; and information concerning teacher training and certification is collected and made available to the public.

The New School Code provides that curricula for the training of teachers and administrators be prescribed by the Council on Public Higher Education and approved by the State Board of Education. These curricula were prescribed by the Council on May 6, 1935, and shortly thereafter, on May 26, 1935, approved by the State Board. The curricula thus determined upon constitute the basis for the issuance of certificates after September 1, 1935.

The work of the Council on Public Higher Education as it pertains to matters affecting teacher-training curricula, is coordinate through an Advisory Committee on Teacher Training. The membership of this Committee includes the deans of the four state teachers' colleges, the Dean of the College of Education in the University of Kentucky, two representatives from the association of private colleges, and the State Director of Teacher Training as chairman.

The curricula prescribed for the training of teachers in Kentucky provide (1) for a core curriculum giving a broad cultural background, (2) for a professional curriculum emphasizing the selection and organization of learning activities in terms of child needs, and (3) for extended study in the subject field and school level in which the prospective teacher is to work. This type of curriculum is in line with the requirements of the New Code which make it necessary for all persons admitted to teaching in the public elementary and secondary schools of the Commonwealth to have specific training for the duties to be performed. The law requires that teachers in the elementary grades be trained for the work of teaching in the elementary grades; that secondary teachers be trained for teaching in the secondary grades; and that administrators be trained in administration and supervision.

Each curriculum for the preparation of elementary teachers, secondary teachers, and administrators leads ultimately to one year of gaduate work. This does not mean that one year of graduate work is expected to be achieved by all teachers before they enter teaching service, but that the goal, in preparation, toward which every teacher is directed is ultimately one year of graduate study.

The training school is the heart of the teacher-training program in Kentucky. All teachers certificated under the New School Code are required to do student teaching. The state and private colleges of Kentucky are readjusting their programs to improve their teaching laboratories and to meet the more professional standards required under the new law. Figures on the enrollment for student teaching in the colleges of the state during the regular session show an increase from 1,681 student teachers in 1932-33 to a total of 2,212 for 1934-35. The data indicate also a definite shift from training for high-school teaching to training for elementary teaching.

There has been a notable increase in the degree of training of teachers in Kentucky during the past three or four years. Information available on the training of elementary teachers employed in county school systems shows that the average number of semester hours of college credit held by this group increased from 40.4 semester hours in 1931-32 to 58.2 semester hours in 1934-35. In 1931-32 there were only 12 counties employing elementary teachers with an average of more than two years of college training; in 1934-35 there were 48 counties in this group.

In the secondary schools of the county school systems the improvement in training is equally pronounced. The average number of semester hours of college credit held by this group of high-school teachers increased from 121.5 semester hours in 1931-32 to 128.1

semester hours in 1934-35. In 1931-32, the per cent of county systems employing high-school teachers with average training above 128 semester hours, or four years of college, was 6.4; in 1934-35 approximately 40 per cent of the county systems employed high-school teachers with average training in excess of four years of college work.

Certification of Teachers

The total numbers of certificates isued, renewed, and extended during the two years of the biennium 1933-35 are displayed in Table II.

TABLE II. CERTIFICATES ISSUED AND RENEWED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION AND BY THE STATE COLLEGES FOR THE TWO YEARS OF THE BIENNIUM 1933-35.

School Year	Number Issued by				Total
	Department of Education		State Colleges
	Number	Per Cent	Number	Per Cent
1933-34	6,383	79.3	1,672	20.7	8,055
1934-35	8,815	94.9	470	5.1	9,285

State colleges furnished certficates to graduates of their two-year and four-year curricula up to the middle of June, 1934, when the certification of all teachers was transferred to the Department of Education. During the school year ending June 30, 1934, state colleges issued slightly more than 20 per cent of the certificates. In the year 1934-35 state colleges renewed 470 certificates which had been issued by them before the certification authority was transferred to the State Department of Education. It is to be noted that the number of certificates issued by the State Department increased from 6,383 for the year 1933-34 to a total of 8,815 for the year 1934-35. This represents a gain of 38 per cent in number, and incidentally means a corresponding increase in the amount of work of this character taken over by the Division.

In the year ending June 30, 1935, a total of 9,285 certificates of all types were issued in Kentucky. Of this number 1,165, or practically one-eighth of the total, were issued in accordance with the Emergency Act passed by the 1934 Special Session of the General Assembly. This law provided for the extension for one year of certificates expiring in 1934.

The effect of the Emergency Act was to favor the teachers who had very little training. Only three college graduates made use of the privilege granted under the provisions of this Act, and only seventy-four others with two years of college had their certificates extended. More than 93 per cent of those who took advantage of the Emergency Act and had their certificates extended without additional training, held certificates based upon one year of college or less. The law on the whole helped to keep poorly-trained teachers in the profession.

Comparison between 1934-35 and 1931-32 of the percentages of certificates issued upon the basis of two or more years of college work shows a decided gain of better trained teachers. Although in 1931-32, a 42 per cent of the certificates issued were based upon this amount of training, in 1934-35 the proportion was increased to 56 per cent of the total number issued.

Low-grade certificates are steadily disappearing. Only 7 per cent of the certificates issued and reissued in 1934-35 were based upon training below college level. Certification through county examination was abolished by the 1934 General Assembly. There are at this time about 1,100 local elementary certificates or their equivalent which have been extended for life, and about 1,500 others which will expire by the end of 1937. It may be expected that about 50 per cent of the renewable low-type certificates will be renewed before expiration. Those who hold the certificate based upon examination will either move into a higher training level or drop out of the profession. The constant disappearance of low-type certificates means, of course, the acquirement of a better trained and more highly qualified teaching personnel for the public schools of Kentucky.

SCHOOLHOUSE CONSTRUCTION

The Division of School Buildings and Grounds of the State Department of Education was financed by the General Education Board for the biennium ending June 30, 1935. During this biennium its personnel consisted of a director, a consulting architect, and a secretary. The appropriation of the General Education Board expired on June 30, 1935, and since that time the Division of School Buildings and Grounds has been maintained by the State of Kentucky. Due to the limited appropriation of the State Department of Education, it has been necessary to dispense with the services of a consulting architect. At the present time the personnel of the Division consists of a director and a secretary.

The functions of the Division, around which its activities have centered for the past biennium, are as follows:

(1) To assist boards of education in formulating schoolhousing programs consistent with their needs and resources.
(2) To assist in the selection of school sites.
(3) To furnish plans and specifications for smaller school buildings ranging from one to four teachers in size.
(4) To furnish unit layouts of special rooms, such as study halls, science laboratories and recitation rooms, and home economics laboratories.
(5) To prepare suggestive floor plans for larger school buildings.
(6) To examine and approve or disapprove architects' plans and specifications for school buildings in accordance with Section 4384–23, Kentucky Statutes.
(7) To advise with school officials concerning remodeling or adding to existing school buildings.
(8) To furnish information and render assistance on school housekeeping problems.

(9) To advise school officials concerning the program of the Federal Government relative to the financing of schoolhouse construction.

How well these objectives have been realized may be noted by reference to a brief statistical summary of the activities of the Division for the biennium. During the two-year period this Division has rendered service on a total of 639 school building projects. This total includes plans for 237 small school buildings ranging from one to four teachers in size; designs for 47 alterations and extensions; 65 suggestive plans furnished for larger school buildings, intended as guides to local boards of education and their architects; aid in the selection of school sites for 34 county boards of education; advice given in 50 instances on the improvement of school buildings or grounds; and work in close cooperation with school architects in designing 206 larger projects.

The estimated cost of new school buildings and school improvements, upon which some service was rendered by this Division, amounts to $2,168,654 for the biennium. In addition to this, preliminary plans and specifications were studied and suggestions offered on a total of approximately $6,000,000 of construction, for which contracts have not yet been awarded. Detailed drawings of science furniture, home economics furniture, and library furniture have been prepared and furnished to various boards of education over the state. Among additional activities during the biennium may be mentioned the completion by the Division of 25 school building studies.

The tremendous amount of work indicated by these figures was imposed upon this Division largely as a consequence of the operation of the Public Works Administration and Works Progress Administration programs of the Federal Government. Schoolhouse construction has been stimulated throughout the state and almost every board of education has studied its needs and has formulated a rather definite schoolhousing program. In most cases preliminary plans and specifications have been prepared, and in many instances applications have already been made out and filed with either the PWA or the WPA. If the anticipated financial aid from the Federal Government materializes, the ensuing biennium should witness the greatest program of schoolhouse construction in the history of the Commonwealth.

One of the most outstanding needs of public education in Kentucky at the present time is adequate schoolhousing for the children of the state. It is most heartening to those interested in the development of the school system of the Commonwealth to witness the great advances made in schoolhouse construction as brought out in this summary for the past biennium of the activites of the Division of School Buildings and Grounds. The Division has done a splendid piece of work and by all means should be continued with adequate support by the state for its large and useful program of activities.

FREE TEXTBOOKS FOR KENTUCKY SCHOOLS

For many years past, the question of free textbooks for Kentucky school children has been discussed by educators and other progressive-minded citizens of the Commonwealth. It has been repeatedly pointed out that educational services and equipment such as grounds, buildings, and teachers at public expense do not alone "provide for an efficient system of common schools throughout the state." Moreover, it has also been noted that about one-half of the states of the Union have already provided this service to their public schools. As a result of the active efforts of leading educators and forward-looking Kentucky citizens, the General Assembly of 1928 enacted a Free Textbook Law.

Failure to make adequate legal appropriation for the administration of this Act rendered it ineffective until the 1934 General Assembly appropriated $500,000 per annum for the ensuing biennial period. The new system should have been inaugurated July 1, 1934, but another delay was occasioned by an injunction, which was subsequently dissolved by decision of the Court of Appeals.

The "Appropriation Act" of 1934 authorized the State Board of Education to "adopt such rules and regulations for the purchase and distribution of such books as in its judgment may be necessary, provided such rules and regulatons are not in conflict with the law." Provision was made for furnishing books to the lower grades first and moving upward as funds would permit. The law provides every safeguard for the economical administration of the funds made available by this Act, including the requirement, "That no amount shall be expended out of this fund, except on proper approval of the State Board of Education, and by requisition of the Superintendent of Public Instruction drawn upon the Auditor of Public Accounts."

The Division of Free Textbooks was accordingly organized in order to carry out the provisions of the law relating to the purchase and distribution of free textbooks. The first orders were forwarded to publishing companies on August 13, 1934. During the year ending June 30, 1935, 3,609 purchase orders were placed with twenty-seven publishing companies for all legally-adopted books for the first three grades, and some for the fourth grade.

Expressed in more significant terms, during the first year of distribution of free textbooks there were purchased 1,333,402 books, for the use of approximately three hundred thousand Kentucky boys and girls, at much lower rates than the parents would have had to pay at retail prices.

In the operation of the free textbook program, the chief handicap for the year 1935-36 is inadequacy of funds to purchase books for all pupils of the first five grades, as directed by the State Board of Education. The fact that in one-teacher schools fifth-grade pupils this year recite with sixth-grade classes renders it more difficult to determine accurately the number of children entitled to this service, and at the same time increases the cost of the books supplied.

The greatest need in the continuance of the free textbook program, now so splendidly begun, is an increased appropriation for free textbooks. This important service should be extended, as soon as possible, to include the eight grades. The minimum appropriation for textbooks for children enrolled in the first eight grades should be not less than $750,000 a year.

Citizens in every section of the Commonwealth are enthusiastic in their approval of the newly-inaugurated system of free textbooks for Kentucky school children. The free textbook program has greatly improved the efficiency of classroom teaching in schools throughout the state by supplying the sorely-needed materials of instruction. It has increased pupil attendance, stimulated the interest of the teacher, and won the greatful appreciation of the many parents of Kentucky school children. It is a forward step in the greater educational program of the state that the General Assembly, as representatives of the citizenry of the Commonwealth, can with assurance of proper support lend their most generous assistance. The free-textbook system should be continued as a fundamental part of the public education program of the state. Adequately provided for and efficiently administered, it constitutes an added significant guarantee of equality of educational opportunity for Kentucky boys and girls.

SCHOOL LIBRARIES

The Division of School Libraries was added to the State Department on July 1, 1933, having been made possible through the generosity of the General Education Board. The functions of this Division are four in number:

(1) To assemble and organize information on the school library situation in the state.
(2) To disseminate information regarding the need for school libraries and the elements and practices which make for good school library service.
(3) To promote the establishment of school library service, where this does not exist.
(4) To assist already existing school libraries in raising the level of the library service rendered the school.

The publication of a discussional report, "Library Service Available to the Public Schools of Kentucky," has been one of the major achievements of the Division thus far. This report appearing as the January, 1935, issue of the Educational Bulletin, includes a statistical study of library service available to the public schools of the state made possible through a CWA grant of the Tennessee Valley Authority. Although the study makes no claim to comprehensiveness, it is believed that a significant contribution has by this means been made to a knowledge of the school library situation in Kentucky as a whole.

School libraries, in varying degrees of organization, exist in every high school of the state. Standards for secondary school libraries have been in existence since 1923. State public school supervisors have encouraged and fostered the development of these libraries and much progress has been made.

Standards for elementary school libraries are still in process of development. The centralized library collection for the elementary school is slowly becoming more widespread. In the general absence of other county library service, the circulation of collections of books for rural elementary schools within counties from the office of the county superintendent of schools has been encouraged. This plan has two advantages. In the first place, the total number of books made available to the pupils during the school year is increased; this prevents the book collection from becoming static and so stimulates the pupils' interest in reading. In the second place the books are removed to a central place for storage during the vacation months and this provides for their safekeeping when not in use. In this connection, it should be noted that many schools provide library material or supplement their book collections by securing the loan of traveling libraries from the State Library Commission or from other lending agencies.

The total number of library books available to elementary school pupils is far below what it should be. On the average, throughout the elementary schools of the state, there is not as much as one library book available per student. Not nearly sufficient enough money has been expended by school boards for the purchase of library books. Even though funds for the support of the schools are inadequate, the importance of library books and reading material in the curriculum of the school is such that school budgets should allow substantially for their purchase. School library development in both the elementary and high schools of Kentucky has been hampered most of all by lack of funds.

Second only to the handicap of lack of adequate funds for school libraries is that due to the lack of professional library training possessed by Kentucky school librarians. Kentucky school librarians, by the way, are almost invariably high-school librarians; the elementary school librarian is practically non-existent within the state. During the school year 1933-34 more than 60 per cent of all the high-school libraries of the Commonwealth were without the services of trained librarians. An additional significantly large per cent of the school systems had librarians with but from one to six semester hours of library training. Moreover, the average teacher-librarian in Kentucky is located in a small high school as a member of a small faculty and thus is not able because of heavy teaching duties to spend more than ninety minutes of the school day in the library. This situation further contributes to making impossible adequate library service for the schools.

One of the services rendered by the Division during the biennium has been aid in the organization of a number of school libraries. Such organization includes (1) the making out of records of the book collection, (2) the classifying of books in accordance with the Dewey Decimal System, (3) the cataloging of the books in the collection, and (4) the installing of a loan system. It should be stated in this connection, however, that the policy pursued in Kentucky with regard to school library organization is in accord with the policy of other states where a similar state school library service is in operation, in that emphasis is placed upon trained personnel for the school library rather than upon organization by the Supervisor. This policy is only logical in view of the fact that an organized library cannot be properly maintained and fully utilized unless the school librarian has a knowledge of the processes involved.

If only one step could be taken in the next two years toward the provision of adequate school library service for Kentucky schools, the choice would fall unhesitatingly upon an annual provision in the school budget for support of the school library. Good school libraries cannot be build where financial support is merely incidental.

The newer type of instruction demands a wide range of books and printed material. In a very short time, the schools of the state will, according to the present plans of Kentucky educators, be in possession of a revised curriculum. The requirements of this curriculum will doubtless call for much library material of diversified content. The schools of the Commonwealth will need to make liberal outlays for books. Truly an emergency exists. It is imperative that the school library service of the state be placed upon a sound basis, that funds be made available for wise and economical expenditures, and that trained librarians be provided to render the service that will be demanded. The public schools of Kentucky must have library service in both books and trained personnel in order to realize for the future the ideals of a richer and more effective curriculum than has heretofore been possible.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

It is obvious that not all boys and girls could or should go to college. In the past, the public school set-up has not emphasized so much the importance of the trained worker in society as much as it has encouraged large numbers to enter institutions of higher learning. In recent years there is a growing realization on the part of educators of the importance and necessity of widening curricular offerings so as to make possible the training of boys and girls for more efficient participation in society. The growth of vocational education during the last few years reflects the tendency to recognize more than ever before the school's obligation to render to an increasing number of young people a type of educational service more closely applicable to their needs in after life.

The state's vocational program is concerned with three types of educational service, in each of which instruction is provided in the schools and in vocational centers, and for which institutions of higher learning within the state supply teacher-training programs. Courses of study are provided in the fields of agriculture, home economics, and in the trades and industries. Table III displays the numbers of departments in the schools and centers of the state offering vocational courses in these fields together with the total disbursements of Federal funds supplied for the programs.

TABLE III. NUMBER OF DEPARTMENTS OF VOCATIONAL EDUCATION AND DISBURSEMENTS OF FEDERAL FUNDS FOR EACH OF THE YEARS OF THE BIENNIUM, 1933-35.

School Year	Vocational Field			Federal Funds
	Agriculture	Home Economics	Trade and Industries
1933-34	139	83	31	$141,427.93
1934-35	159	109	49	196,979.09

Agricultural Education

In 1931-32 and 1932-33 the numbers of departments of agriculture in the schools were 133 and 131, respectively. Table III shows that these departments had increased to the number of 139 in 1933-34 and to a total of 159 in 1934-35. The total enrollment in all classes in 1933-34 was 6,550, which increased to 7,782 in 1935-36.

The school departments of agriculture maintain leadership organizations commonly known as the "Future Farmers of America." The Kentucky Association of Future Farmers of America had 59 chapters affiliated with a total membership of 1,290 in 1933-34 and 77 chapters with 1,601 members in 1934-35.

The farm practice programs conducted by the high-school boys show total labor earnings of $380,257.96 on 5,727 separate projects for the biennium. Tobacco projects were in the lead numbering 1,634 and yielding earnings of $136,116.71. Among other classes of projects were corn, dairy cattle, poultry, garden truck, and hogs, listed in order of importance as measured by totals of pupils' labor earnings.

During the first year of the biennium, classes totaling 1,309 adult farmers were taught in 60 evening schools; in the second year 1,188 adults were taught in 69 evening schools.

Teachers of vocational agriculture are trained in the University of Kentucky, in Western State Teachers College, and in Berea College. In the twelve years from 1922 to 1934 a total of 210 persons have graduated with training in agriculture from these three institutions.

Home Economics Education

In 1931-32 and 1932-33 the numbers of departments of home economics in the high schools were 73 and 79, respectively. Table III shows that these departments had increased to the number of 83 in 1933-34 and to a total of 109 in 1934-35. The total enrollment in all classes in 1933-34 was 2,251, which increased to 3,478 in 1935-36.

Home project work is done in all of the schools having home economics departments. The home project is an attempt to tie up classroom instruction with practical things in the home. Among home problems in which work is done are included clothing, foods, home furnishings, home care, home management, child development, health, and family relations.

Teachers of home economics are trained in the University of Kentucky, at Western State Teachers College, Eastern State Teachers College, Murray State Teachers College, and at Berea College. In the seventeen years from 1918 to 1935 a total of 454 persons have been trained in these institutions, for teaching home economics in high schools.

At the present time, there are 5 colored schools carrying vocational departments. Kentucky State Industrial College now has improved facilities for the training of colored teachers in home economics.

Trade and Industrial Education

Trade and industrial education is fundamentally a problem of the whole state, which in Kentucky includes rural as well as urban communities. A total of 1,095,870 persons or 41.9 per cent of Kentucky's population reside in 369 cities, towns, and villages of the state; of this number more than 600,000 people live in the 13 largest cities of the state. Each of these 369 communities is a center of economic need for which trade education can render service. There are some sections in which major industries of the state are not located in connection with centers of population, in which an industrial program is just as much needed as in the most populous city of the Commonwealth. The coal mining, oil and gas mining, clay refining, and forestry industries employ many thousands of Kentucky's population and call for just as vigorous programs of vocational education as any commercial or industrial activity of the urban centers.

The centralized trade school organization is Kentucky's mode of approach to the problem of industrial education. Technical training in many of the larger industries is recognized as a necessity, and cooperative agencies are being set up to promote apprenticeship. Boards of education have expanded their programs. Notwithstanding the trying conditions of the depression, trade and industrial education have steadily gained ground.

Classes in safety education in mining numbered 70 in 1933, 47 in 1934, and 85 in 1935. In the year 1935, the total enrollment in these classes was over 1,200. Classes in fire fighting have been carried on in several cities of the state. In Louisville the past year, sessions were held with 66 firemen in attendance; in the Ashland meeting 28 men were in attendance. Industrial education classes in the cities of the state totaled 8 in the year 1933, 17 in 1934, and 25 in 1935.

There is definite evidence that Kentucky is coming to understand that training for technical work on the high-school level is an essential to good citizenship. No development can be more important than that which enables a people to gain control over material forces, and nothing insures economic well-being more certainly than the combination of skilled hand with trained mind.

Teacher training in trade and industrial education is being carried on at the University of Kentucky. Types of service for which teachers receive training include, among others, fire fighting, mining, advisory guidance, and auto mechanics. The number of students in teacher-training was 74 in 1933, and 84 in 1935.

SPECIAL EDUCATION

The Division of Special Education is charged with the responsibility for the administration of two statewide educational programs. The first of these has to do with vocational rehabilitation service, or the process of rendering disabled persons fit to engage in remunerative occupation. The second program includes the organization and administration, in cooperation with the Kentucky and Federal Emergency Relief Administrations, of Federal Emergency Education in Kentucky.

Vocational Rehabilitation

The purposes of vocational rehabilitation service may be stated in terms of three distinct aims:

(1) To remove inequalities of opportunity for the disabled.
(2) To prepare physically handicapped boys and girls for some vocational pursuit.
(3) To assist vocationally handicapped individuals who have been engaged in one occupation to become readjusted to another in which they may be self-supporting.

Rehabilitation is regarded as a public responsibility and is an accepted policy of government. This service in Kentucky enjoys the joint support of the Commonwealth and the Federal Government. Local educational officials and social agencies in a number of cities in Kentucky have organized within their departments rehabilitation programs which are carried out in cooperation with the Division of Special Education. The service of this Division reaches every county and community in the Commonwealth.

For the biennium ending June 30, 1935, a total number of 2,240 individual cases were contacted. Of this number, 561 cases were rehabilitated. The cases rehabilitated include school training for 435, employment training for 70, and other kinds of training for 56. A total of $51,800.16 was expended during the biennium for tuition, instructional supplies and equipment, and prosthetic appliances for trainees.

The receipts from all sources for carrying on the work of vocational rehabilitation total $82,287.06. This amount includes $40,408.92 in Federal appropriations, $41,380.55 in appropriations of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and special donations totaling $497.59.

The Special Education Association was organized three years ago in compliance with the desire to expand, promote, and make more efficient the service rendered the physically and vocationally handicapped people of the Commonwealth. The organization functions through a large membership composed of representatives of clubs, welfare organizations, many school administrators, and persons who have received the aid of the Division.

In accordance with the Acts of the 1934 General Assembly, a census of handicapped persons betwen the ages of one and fifty years was begun in September, 1934, in cooperation with the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. Funds to finance the project were furnished by the FERA. It is expected that this report will be ready for publication by January 1, 1936. This census will provide information upon which it will be possible to base a permanent program of special education for the state.

Federal Emergency Education

The Division of Special Education, in cooperation with the Kentucky and Federal Emergency Relief Administrations, has organized and administered the program of Federal Emergency Education in Kentucky during the two years of the biennium. This work, although not fully organized during 1933-34 because of Federal regulations, was administered in 1934-35 according to the authorizations which provide for a five-point program. The five points include:

(1) General adult education for unemployed and other adults to gain additional training to fit them to become better workers, parents and citizens.
(2) Literacy classes to instruct adults to read and write English with understanding.
(3) Vocational education to instruct unemployed adults in practical occupations.
(4) Nursery schools to develop the physical and mental well-being of pre-school children of unemployed parents, or children in underprivileged homes.
(5) Vocational rehabilitation to help those who are physically handicapped because of birth, disease, or accident to become self-supporting.

The operation of this program in Kentucky provides for two types of service, each of which requires a distinct set-up. One of these covers the employment and services of teachers to instruct adults and nursery school children; the other includes rehabilitation for physically handicapped adults. For the year 1934-35 the total cost of this emergency education program was $546,141.34.

The adult education program for the school year 1934-35 employed 1,207 teachers, enrolled and taught a total of 50,000 persons, and cost $347,780.67. Many classes of adults were served by such projects as parent education, workers' education, vocational education, general academic work, and literacy education. Approximately 5,000 illiterates were taught to read and write English.

The emergency nursery schools were built around the objective of providing for underprivileged, undernourished children a suitable environment for growth and development, physically, mentally, and socially, in order that they might have a chance to live a normal, happy life. The enrollment was made up of children from relief and needy families. There were 205 teachers employed in 62 counties, enrolling 3,674 pupils. The total cost of this program for the year 1934-35 was $171,710.65.

With the exception of the local relief approval for each trainee, this program was administered in practically the same manner as the regular Kentucky rehabilitation program. There were 180 physically handicapped persons trained and placed in employment at a total cost of $26,650.02 for the entire program for the year 1934-35.

NEGRO EDUCATION

The Division of Negro Education was established in the State Department of Education in 1914 at a time when the school service and facilities afforded colored children were generally far below the standards of the white schools. It was then felt that such a Division in the State Department would contribute to the correction of the inequalities in educational opportunity that existed between the two races. The General Assembly of 1924 enacted legislation definitely providing for the Division; and the present 1934 School Code also provides for its continued maintenance.

From the beginning the state of Kentucky has enjoyed the cooperation of philanthropic funds in maintaining the service of this Division. The salary of the Director and all expenses necessarily and actually incurred by him in the service of the schools have been paid and are now being paid with funds given by the General Education Board. This Board has cooperated with the negro school service in other ways. It has aided in the program of teacher training, in higher education, and in solving problems of school construction and administration.

The John F. Slater Fund has through these years aided in the establishment of county high schools, one in a county, and in providing equipment for them. The Anna T. Jeanes Foundation is devoted to aiding the little rural colored schools by contributing to a county supervision service for them. The teachers engaged in this service are called "Jeanes Teachers."

The Julius Rosenwald Fund has introduced modern standards for rural school architecture and contributed to the construction of most of our best negro school buildings. It has aided transportation to consolidated colored schools and cooperated in other ways. These liberal appropriations are discontinued, but the buildings and programs of service are being maintained.

The aid received from these out-of-state sources was appropriated as free gifts and has been of strategic value. It has been applied as well as possible to starting improvements and stimulating programs of service that are so practical and so consistent with the trend of educational policy that they will be maintained by the public after the aid is discontinued.

It is the purpose and policy of this Division to promote integration of the colored school service into the general program of education. The problem of statesmanship in education is to provide an equally efficient system of public school service for all. In order to realize this ideal better it is quite essential that the state, instead of the local district units, assume the major share of the financing of the program of public education.

The biennium just closed has witnessed distinct progress in the advancement of educational opportunity for the colored people of the state. The following evidences of this improvement should be especially noted:

(1) A generally more favorable attitude is prevailing on the part of the school district authorities in favor of a program of education that undertakes to provide equally for all.

(2) More consolidation of small schools with transportation of pupils produces improved service at reduced cost. It has been observed that when transportation is provided in a county for pupils of one race, it is soon extended to those of the other race.

(3) Negro public high-school service has been extended, and the number of pupils in attendance has increased. The enrollment in the high-school grades from the ninth to the twelfth for the past year was 5,179, with 743 in the twelfth grade.

(4) More than ever before, the negro schools of the state are supported by public taxation. All three of the negro colleges, all but two of the fifty-eight four-year high schools, and all of the other high schools offering less than four years of work are maintained in the same way. There are only two privately-controlled negro high schools in the state where there is a tuition fee.

(5) Laws have been enacted that provide for a more nearly uniform school service. Negro school interests share liberally in the benefits of the New Code. Colored people are now recognized as regular citizens of whatever school districts they live in, voting in elections in these districts under the the general election laws, paying the school tax rates of these districts, and educating their children in schools supported by taxation in which they participate on equal basis with other citizens of their state and district. The injustice of separate taxation and separate control for the white and negro schools in any district is no longer authorized in our laws.

(6) Higher education for negroes is being advanced and attendance in college is greatly increased. A most significant improvement is represented by the unifying of the administration of the two state negro colleges under the State Board of Education. Now for the first time the state's responsibility for higher education for colored people rests with the State Board, which has authority to coordinate the functioning of the two colleges. The Board can now with authority present to the Governor and the General Assembly the state's needs in the field of higher education for negroes. This arrangement assures a state program of education, instead of two separate programs for the promotion of two local institutions.

THE OFFICE OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT

Because of the increase in the work of each division and the added services made necessary by changes in both state and Federal laws, it has been necessary during the past two years to make some changes in the set-up and working arrangements of the State Department of Education. Increased work has come about as a result of the operation of General Assembly laws (1) on account of the requirement that all teachers' certificates be issued by the State Department, (2) because of the appropriation of funds for carrying out the provisions of the Free Textbook legislation, (3) for the purpose of putting into effect the new attendance laws, and (4) because of the new responsibility of the State Board for the control and operation of the two state institutions of higher learning for colored people. The operation of the Federal Emergency Act has necessitated much additional work, particularly on the part of the three Divisions of Special Education, Buildings and Grounds, and Finance.

The extra services required made it necessary for the Department to employ a larger number of persons in order to do the work. The personnel for the Division of Free Textbooks was appointed, and additional help was obtained for the Divisions of Certification and Special Education. The added help was not obtained, however, until experience showed that the force then working could not do what must be done in a reasonable time required by law, or in time to permit officials and patrons to meet legal requirements. The records of the office show an increase of only approximately eight regularly employed members besides those doing Federal emergency work.

It was found to be advisable to install a complete new central filing system for the whole Department in order that the increased volume of work might be readily, adequately, and efficiently done. In order to provide ample space for the new central filing department, partitions were moved and others added so as to make use of a section of the large front office.

The advice of an expert filing organization was secured and suitable plans looking toward a long-time program of filing were ultimately worked out. The system was placed in charge of a chief clerk, and additional assistance was provided to take care of the work in an efficient and permanent manner. The system has now been in operation for about a year and has proven to be a well worthwhile improvement.

During the period of this biennium, it has been found necessary to increase the facility of telephone communication in the Department. Previously a careful check had shown that scores of persons were attempting to get in touch with members of the Department by telephone who were unable to get connections because of the limited facilities. Accordingly, a small switchboard was installed and an additional line for long distance purposes added, thus providing adequate communication outside of the office as well as inter-communication throughout the office. At times, this equipment is taxed to the limit to take care of the demands. On the whole, the system is serving its purpose in a very satisfactory manner.

By far the greatest amount of communication is by correspondence. During the biennium, the correspondence of the Department has increased very materially. In order to reduce the expense of the postage, permits have been secured from the Post Office Department for sending out mail under all classes permitted by postal laws. Table IV displays a summary of the amount of mail of each class and the cost for each of the two years of the biennium. During the year

TABLE IV. THE MAIL OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, 1933-35.

School Year	Mail	First Class	Second Class	Third Class	Fourth Class	Totals
1933-34	No. of pieces	75,662	44,020	57,001	4,086	180,769
	Postage	$2,566.09	$211.78	$829.71	$637.94	$4,245.52
1934-35	No. of pieces	96,782	16,899	36,430	5,516	155,627
	Postage	$3,212.10	$ 78.02	$596.79	$963.41	$4,850.32

1933-34 the total number of pieces of mail sent out was 4,086 and the total cost of postage was $4,245.52; during the year 1934-35 the total number of pieces was 155,627 and the total postage was $4,850.32. It should be noted that the biennium total of 336,396 pieces of mail does not represent all of the material sent out by the Department; freight and express are used for parcels when savings can be effected.

One significant fact shown by this table deserves special mention. The number of pieces of first-class mail increased from 75,662 for the first year of the biennium to a total of 96,782 pieces for the second year. These two numbers comprise a sort of a gauge, giving a measure in part of the work of the Department for the first year of operation of the New Code in comparison with the last year of operation under the old law.

In a further attempt to make the work of the personnel more efficient, some rearrangement of the working space of the office was effected. The large front office of the Department was partitioned in such a way as to provide more privacy for the office force. This is an advantage not only to the office force, but also to the patrons and other visitors desiring conferences with members of the departmental staff. During the past two years, visits from officials and citizens of the state to attend to business matters in person have materially increased. As judged by the numerous favorable comments of these visitors, this new arrangement has made available a more satisfactory service than has hitherto been possible.

More space as well as more suitable quarters for the work of the Department are now needed. The present main office was not originally constructed, nor intended by the architects who drew the plans of the building, for office space. The electric wiring, the lighting, and ventilating systems are inadequate for the work of the Department. The amount of space for storage is inadequate. Stocks of the various report forms used by school officials are stored in space too dusty or too damp for such materials. Many volumes of valuable bound records are piled up in places in no particular order because of the lack of proper storage space.

THE GENERAL EDUCATION BOARD

The Commonwealth of Kentucky owes a debt of sincere gratitude to the General Education Board of New York City, for its contribution to the advancement of public education within the state. This purely philanthropic foundation established by John D. Rockefeller has given generously and unostentatiously of its funds to the cause of the public schools in Kentucky continuously for more than a quarter of a century. It has been the policy of this organization to initiate the establishment and provide for the maintenance for a period of years of a variety of desirable types of administrative service in the State Department of Education for which no support has been furnished by the state.

Through the aid of the Board the Divisions of Supervision and Inspection of Schools have received support. During the past biennium the Divisions of Negro Education, School Buildings and Grounds, Research, School Library Service, and Teacher Training were liberally financed and provided for. During these two years the General Education Board contributed a total of $56,857.57 for supervisory and administrative service of staff members of the State Department of Education of Kentucky. It should also be noted that the General Education Board made a contribution of $5,000 to help defray the expenses of the Kentucky Educational Commission, part of which was expended during the preceding biennium.

The assistance provided by the Board for administrative and supervisory service in the State Department of Education generally takes the form of an appropriation to cover the salary and traveling expenses of a divisional director for a period of years. During this time the service of the division subsidized will have ample opportunity to demonstrate its usefulness and value to the cause of public education. The philanthropy prudently refrains from interfering in any way with the administration of the services, thus making it possible for each division thus served to develop unhampered and unrestrained to a status of real and essential benefit to the public school system of the Commonwealth. After a time of perhaps four years, the Board withdraws its support from the particular division served and initiates other desirable divisional service of a new and different type.

The work of the Division of Research was financed by the General Education Board from July 1, 1930, to April 15, 1935. The Director of Research was granted a leave of absence on this latter date in order to accept the position as State Director for the NRA in Kentucky. During his service as the active head of the research activities of the Department, great advances were made. The former Director served in very important capacities as Secretary of the Kentucky Educational Commission, as Chairman of the School Code Committee, and as Secretary of the Federal Emergency Aid for Education National Committee, and in all of these positions rendered outstanding service.

Scientific research is one type of service that is literally indispensable to educational progress. The Department of Education is at the present time without the services of a Director of Research. It is recommended that the General Assembly of Kentucky make adequate provision for the maintenance of this service through necessary appropriations.

The support for the Division of School Buildings and Grounds was supplied by the General Education Board for the period from July 1, 1930, to June 30, 1935. Reference has been made in a preceding section to the useful work accomplished by this Division. The Director of this Division has rendered splendid service especially in assisting the public school systems of the state to take advantage of government aid in building projects. It is recommended that this Division also be provided for by appropriation of the General Assembly.

RECOMMENDED APPROPRIATIONS

(1) In order to guarantee equality of educational opportunity for all of the children of the Commonwealth, it is essential that the state provide a substantial share of the cost of public school support. A $12 per capita is far from being a sufficient amount to make this equality possible. However, with a state per capita of $12 or more the children in the less favored sections of the state are assured of at least a minimum of educational service, and the public school system of Kentucky will be secure. If Kentucky is to have a $12 per capita, and apparently all agree that it should not be less, it will be necessary to have an annual appropriation of $9,153,720. This figure is based upon a school census of 762,810 pupils of school age.

(2) If the Division of Free Textbooks is to be able to furnish to the children of the state textbooks for the first eight grades, it will be necessary to increase the amount of the appropriation. It is recommended that the amount $750,000 be appropriated for Free Textbooks for each of the years of the biennium beginning July 1, 1936, and ending June 30, 1938. This amount will make available approximately $1 per census pupil per year for books. Free Textbooks are regarded as an essential part of the school program of the Commonwealth, and each Kentucky child it entitled to free school books regardless of age or grade.

(3) Under the New School Code, which makes possible a more efficient school system, new demands on the State Department are constantly made. For the operation and maintenance of the office for each of the years of the biennium, it is requested that the General Assembly appropriate $75,000. This is an increase of $10,000 over the amount for the year ending June 30, 1936. The volume of work of the office of the State Department has increased one-third during the past four years. The increase in the appropriation is necessary for the efficient operation of state supervision of the common school system.

Two phases of the work which heretofore have been financed by the General Education Board, of New York, have been discontinued in Kentucky. These works, represented by the Division of Research and the Division of School Buildings and Grounds, should be continued.

An outstanding advance in the field of financial administration of the public school system of the state has taken place by the inauguration of a comprehensive financial accounting and record system. Although this system has justified itself as evidenced by facts brought out elsewhere in this report, it necessarily has required an increase of at least 50 per cent in the supervision of the finances of the school systems in the state.

(4) An appropriation of $15,000 for the State Board of Education was made for each of the years ending June 30, 1935, and June 30, 1936. It was difficult at the time of making the request to estimate accurately the amount necessary. A year and a half of operation has shown that an appropriation of at least $18,000 annually is needed. Approximately 90 per cent of the budget of the State Board is for necessary printing, such as the biennial report, teachers' registers, teachers' contracts, and educational and financial report forms of various character, which are required by law.

(5) If the Division of Teacher Training and Certification is to operate efficiently, it will be necessary to increase the appropriation. The General Assembly of 1934 transferred all certification from the state institutions of higher learning to the State Department of Education, thus increasing the work of this Division approximately 38 per cent. The 1934 School Code set up detailed regulations for the certification of teachers, thus requiring more time than formerly for obvious reasons. It is recommended that an appropriation of $22,000 be made annually for the work of this Division.

(6) It is recommended that appropriations be made for each of the years of the biennium for the Division of Vocational Education as follows:

For operation and maintenance	$25,000.00
For the continued teaching of Agriculture and Home Economics in the poorer mountain counties	15,000.00
To extend the teaching of Agriculture and Home Economics in other mountain counties	15,000.00
Part-time Trade and Industrial Education for out-of-school boys and girls employed who desire to continue their education (to match Federal funds for the same purpose)	8,815.00
Total	$63,815.00

(7) It is recommended that appropriations be made for each of the years of the biennium for the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation as follows:

For operation and maintenance	$42,761.10

The increase in the appropriation requested is necessary to match funds available to this Division under the Social Security Act recently passed by Congress. If these Federal funds are not matched, Kentucky will lose this amount.

Considering the magnitude of the task of administering the program of a system of schools involving 763,000 school children with an annual expenditure for educational purposes in round numbers of $22,000,000, the appropriations urged are small enough. The State Department of Education of Kentucky has given a good account of itself. The annual investment in behalf of the educational welfare of the children of the state has thus far yielded great returns and lasting benefits. Greater returns and additional worthwhile benefits are possible with adequate support. The children of Kentucky are by far the state's greatest asset; their welfare is the prime concern of the real leadership of the Commonwealth.
