PREFACE

The Inventory of Federal Archives in the States is one of the products of the Survey of Federal Archives, which operated as a nation-wide project of the Works Progress Administration from January 1, 1936 to June 30, 1937, and has been continued in California since that time as a state project of that Administration.

The plan for the organization of the Inventory is as follows: Series I consists of reports on the administration of the Survey, acknowledgments, and general discussions of the location, condition, and content of federal archives in the states. Succeeding series contain the detailed information secured by workers of the Survey, in inventory form, a separate series number being assigned to each of the executive departments (except the Department of State) and other major units of the Federal Government. Within each series No. 1 is a general introduction to the field organization and records of the governmental agency concerned; the succeeding numbers contain the inventory proper, separate numbers being assigned to each state in alphabetical order. Thus, in each series, the inventory for Alabama is No. 2, that for Arizona No. 3, that for Arkansas No. 4, etc.

For each local office information regarding each series, or unit of related records, is presented in the following order: title, inclusive dates ("to date" indicating an open file at the time the information was secured), general description of informational content, description of the system of filing or indexing (if any), a statement of frequency and purpose of use, form of the record itself (bound volumes, sheets in folders, etc.), linear footage, description of the containers, physical condition of the records (not stated if satisfactory), location by room number or other identifying information, and finally, the number of the Form 58SA on which this information was originally recorded by a Survey worker and from which it was abstracted for the Inventory. This form is on file in The National Archives. When it contains substantial information on addenda sheets which has not been included in the mimeographed abstract, indication of this is given by use of the reference "See addenda."

In California the work of the Survey was under the direction of Mr. Charles L. Stewart, Regional Director for California and Nevada, from its inception until June 30, 1937. From that time until September 1, 1937, the work was under the supervision of Mrs. Thelma Ziemer, State Director of the Historical Records Survey. Since then Mr. Cyril E. Paquin has been in charge of the state project. The maps were prepared by Mr. Paul O'Bryne, a member of the San Francisco staff. This inventory of the records of the Federal Courts in California was prepared in the San Francisco office of the Survey and was edited before final typing by Dr. G. Philip Bauer of the Division of Independent Agencies Archives of The National Archives.

INTRODUCTION

Extension of the United States judiciary over California was first provided for by an act of Congress dated September 28, 1850. Under the terms of this act the state was divided into two districts, with the 37th parallel of north latitude demarking their separation. A district court was to be created for each district; that of the northern district to sit at San Francisco, San Jose, Stockton, and Sacramento and that of the southern district at Monterey and Los Angeles. No circuit courts were immediately provided for, but as usual when a new area was brought within the Federal court system, the district courts were given an augmented jurisdiction. Besides their ordinary powers, they were vested with authority to hear all civil cases, rising within their respective limits, which would normally come under the cognizance of a circuit court. And corresponding criminal jurisdiction was granted on February 26, 1853. In addition, it had been enacted on March 3, 1851 that decisions of the land claims commission in the state should be subject to review by the district courts.

Judge Ogden Hoffman opened the first session of court for the northern district at San Francisco on May 19, 1851. Judge James M. Jones was appointed to serve on the bench in the southern district December 26, 1850, the first session to be held at Monterey in June, 1851. Because of illness Judge Jones never qualified. The first judge to serve in the southern district was Hon. Isaac S. K. Ogier, who received his appointment January 23, 1854, and the first session was held in Los Angeles July 24, 1854. By an act of January 18, 1854 sessions at San Jose, Stockton and Sacramento were abolished.

On March 2, 1855 an act was approved constituting California a judicial circuit and providing for the appointment of a special circuit judge, who should exercise an authority analogous to that of the Supreme Court justices on circuit. All the extraordinary jurisdiction of the district courts, except that of land claims appeals, was revoked. San Francisco was at first designated as the single seat of this new court, but on April 30, 1856 it was provided that sessions should also be regularly held at Los Angeles though all records were still to be kept at San Francisco.

Under the terms of an act of March 3, 1863, the special circuit court of California was abolished; and its powers and duties were turned over to a regularly constituted circuit court, to which one of the justices of the Supreme Court was to be assigned. No change was made, however, in the places for holding the court until February 19, 1864, when an act of Congress transferred the seat of both district and circuit courts for the southern district from Los Angeles to Monterey. On July 27, 1866 the southern judicial district was abolished and for the next twenty years San Francisco remained the exclusive seat of federal justice in the state.

A significant addition to the circuit court's jurisdiction was made in 1870 when it was enacted that appeals from the consular courts in China and Japan or from the United States ministers to those countries should lie to the circuit court for the district of California.

On August 5, 1886 an act was approved once more dividing the state into two districts.¹ Los Angeles again became the seat of both circuit and district courts for the southern district while San Francisco continued to be the seat for the northern district. All the court records existing at the time remained in care of the clerk of the northern district.

On May 29, 1900 the counties of Inyo, Mariposa, and Merced were detached from the northern district and annexed to the southern district, which, moreover, was split into two divisions,² with court seats at Fresno and Los Angeles respectively. The clerk's office and all records of the courts for both divisions were to be kept at Los Angeles.

On June 29, 1906 an act was approved directing that a term of both district and circuit courts for the northern district should be regularly held at Eureka. Another act of June 22, 1910 provided that sessions of both courts should also be held at Sacramento for the northern district and at San Diego for the southern division of the southern district though the records of the courts for the southern division of the southern district should still be kept exclusively at Los Angeles.

April 15, 1919 the California legislature approved an act ceding to the United States exclusive jurisdiction over Yosemite, Sequoia and General Grant national parks. Congress, by act of June 2, 1920, specified that Yosemite National Park should constitute a part of the northern judicial district, and Sequoia and General Grant National Parks a part of the southern judicial district. The same act provided for a resident United States commissioner at Yosemite National Park and one to jointly administer Sequoia and General Grant National Parks, also empowering them to hear and act upon any violations of the law which might be committed within the parks' boundaries.

1. The southern district was to comprise the counties of San Diego, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, Fresno, Tulare, and Kern. All the remaining counties went to form the northern district.

2. The northern division comprised the counties of Inyo, Mariposa, Tulare, Merced, Madera, Fresno, Kings, and Kern. The southern division was to include the remaining counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Diego, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, and Ventura.

On May 16, 1916, the northern district was divided into two divisions,¹ sessions to be held for the northern division at Sacramento and Eureka, for the southern division at San Francisco. No further change in the organization of the northern district was made up to the time of the survey. But the southern district, by an act of March 1, 1929, was reorganized into three instead of two divisions: a northern division with its seat at Fresno;² a central division with its seat at Los Angeles;³ and a southern division with its seat at San Diego.⁴

1. The counties assigned to the northern division were: Alpine, Amador, Butte, Calaveras, Colusa, Del Norte, Eldorado, Glenn, Humboldt, Lake, Lassen, Mendocino, Modoc, Mono, Napa, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Shasta, Sierra, Siskiyou, Solano, Sonoma, Stanislaus, Sutter, Tehama, Trinity, Tuolumne, Yolo, Yuba. The counties assigned to the southern division were: Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, Monterey, San Benito, San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Santa Cruz.

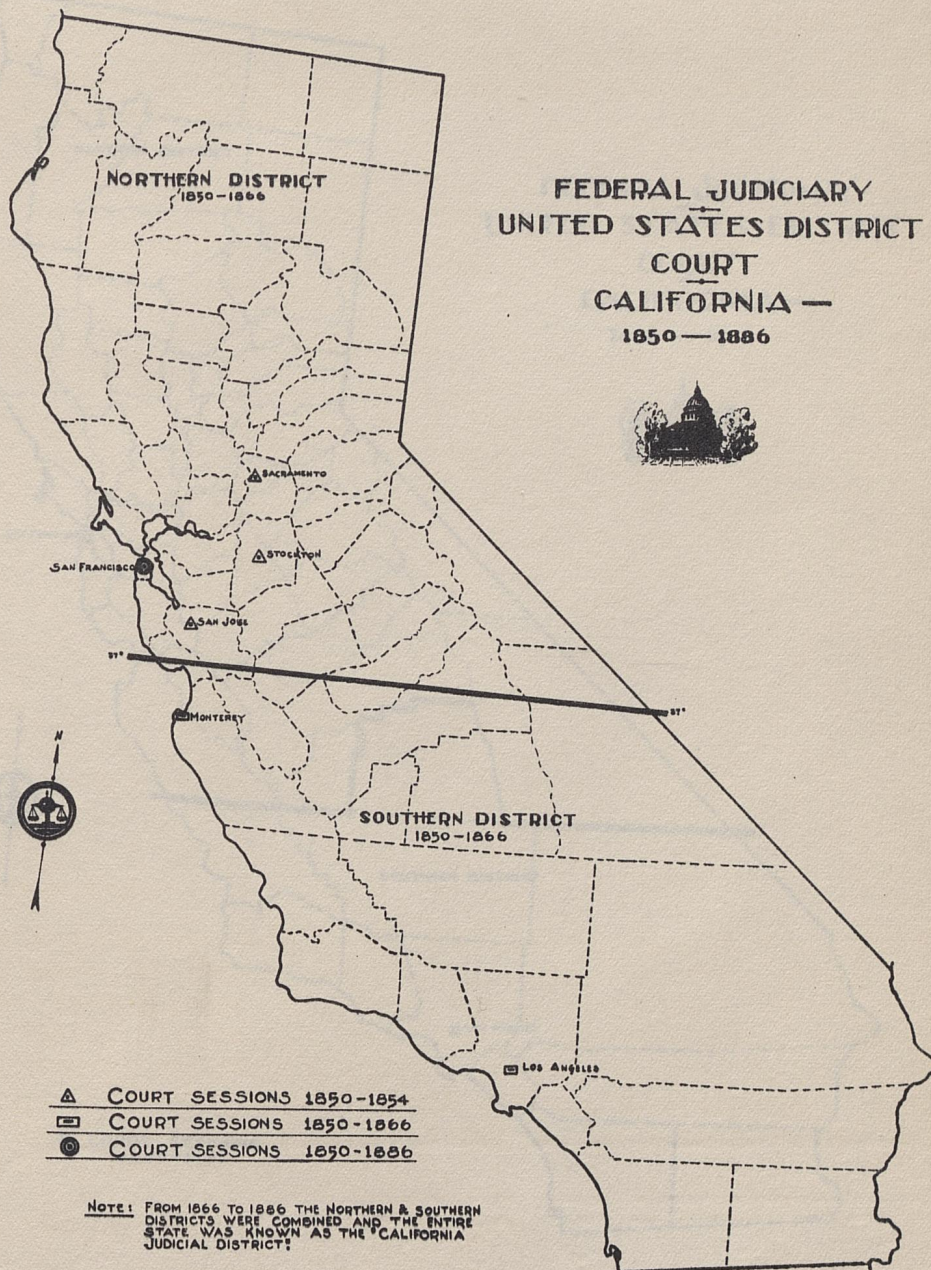

2. The northern division was unchanged.

3. The central division comprised the counties of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside, San Bernardino, San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, and Ventura.

4. The southern division comprised only the two counties: Imperial and San Diego.
