A QUARTERLY MAGAZINE DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF THE ALUMNI AND STUDENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY

Let's We Forget!

It was in June, 1942 that the first contingent of University of Kentucky men, Reserve officers in the Army of the United States, bachelors of the arts and of the sciences, virile, valiant young men, marched off to war.

Previous to that time, in fact as far back as 1939, the University's older sons, R.O.T.C. graduates of other years and members of the Reserve Corps, had been called up by smaller numbers for a year of active duty.

Then in March, 1943 approximately 1,000 University students, sophomores, juniors and seniors in the University R.O.T.C., left the campus in a body, to be processed, sent to training camps, and, in many cases, quickly to be sent to the various theatres of operations overseas.

Less than a year after Pearl Harbor, at Oran, at Casa Blanca, at Kasserine Pass, University sons were falling in battle; bright-faced, eager, zestful boys, who a short time previously had been walking the old, familiar campus paths.

"Those were the days which tried men's souls," when casualty lists blared forth this nation's losses and wrung from the hearts of men bitter, bloody tears. From the early days of the war the University recorded these losses, added gold star after gold star to her service flag, and followed her sons over the rugged fields of battle.

Rejoicing in her nation's victories, agonizing in her temporary setbacks, proudly recognizing the contribution of her native sons, the University kept her bloody record of 7,644 men and women in service, and 332 Gold Stars.

This Alumni Memorial Issue is the result of that tabulation. It is the University's way of passing on to posterity the glorious record of her sons in World War II. There is every possibility that somewhere along the way she has failed to record all of their valiant deeds, all of her losses, and with this in mind, University officials have expressed the hope that alumni, families of Gold Star men and friends of the University will send in any information which may be lacking now.

Sadly, but proudly, then, Alma Mater publishes the roster of her Gold Star sons, dedicating her every effort to the young Kentuckians of the future, pledging herself to inculcate into their souls those principles for which their older brothers fought and died.

Alumni and friends who will see this roster of the University of Kentucky men who served their country in World War II, cannot but be impressed with the tremendous amount of work which has been involved in collecting and compiling the statistical data contained in this brochure.

It is fitting that readers of this bulletin should know that the Bureau of Source materials in Higher Education, under the direction of Professor Ezra L. Gillis, has been entirely responsible for this meticulous and difficult assignment.

At the end of World War I, Professor Gillis, then Registrar of the University of Kentucky, assumed the task of compiling a similar list of University men who had served their country in that war. What was more natural, then, than that the President of the University should assign the same work to Professor Gillis in World War II?

It has been a work of love, difficult, painstaking, and seemingly insurmountable at times, but Professor Gillis and his staff have never faltered in their determination to present a report as complete as it is possible to assemble.

Therefore, it is with deep appreciation to the Director of the Bureau of Source Materials in Higher Education and his staff, that the administration acknowledges the completion of the roster contained in the succeeding pages.
