By RUSSELL RICE — UK Sports Information Director

The Press-Radio-TV contingent at the UK-Penn State game here tonight is the largest in the history of Commonwealth Stadium, now in its sixth year as home of Wildcat football teams.

Although ABC-TV cameras are not here for a regional or national telecast, as had been hoped before the season began, there will still be plenty of video coverage, some live and much via the delayed route.

The Wildcat Television Network, in its first year on an experimental basis, has a total of nine outlets, including Channel 27, WKYT-TV (flagship), Lexington; WFIE-Evansville; WPSD-Paducah; WZTV-Nashville; WBKO-Bowling Green; WHAS-Louisville; WXIX-Cincinnati; WKYH-Hazard, and WOWK-Huntington. Cincinnati and Huntington will replay the game at 11:30 o'clock tonight; all others at 10:30 o'clock.

Denny Trease, sports news director at WKYT-TV, does the play-by-play, and Lexington attorney Tommy Bell, a former NFL official, the color on the network.

The Penn State Television Network will broadcast the game live back to KDKA, the No. 1 station in Pittsburgh, reaching 351,000 homes with a total viewing audience of 297,000 men and 183,000 women.

The game also will be televised via a communications satellite to cable television systems across the country. It will be carried on the Total Communications Systems' Satellite Network and fed via RCA Americam's domestic communications to seven stations and 60 cable systems covering a 30-state area, with an audience of more than 1,000,000 viewers.

In addition to the continental U.S., the game will be seen in Alaska (later today) and Hawaii (Tuesday night). It also may be seen in Japan and parts of Canada.

Veteran sportscaster Ray Scott will be the play-by-play announcer and George Paterno, former head coach at Kings Point, PA, and brother of Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, will provide the color commentary. Tom Huet is the producer of TCS.

Among out-of-town newspapers represented are: Allentown Chronicle—Jack Lapos; Allentown Morning Call—John Kuda; Altoona Mirror—Herb Werner; Atlanta Journal-Constitution—Al Thomy; Behind The Nittany Lion—Gordon Blain; Centre Daily Times—Ron Bracken; Clearfield Progress—Fred Kavelak; Easton

Express—Ed Laubach; Elmira Star-Gazette—Jerry Hogan; Harrisburg Patriot-News—Ron Christ; Indiana Evening Bulletin—Joe Weisberger; Nashville Banner—Jeff Hanna; Philadelphia Bulletin—Frank Bilosky; Philadelphia Enquirer—Bill Lyon; Philadelphia Journal—Jim DeStefano; Philadelphia News—Dick Weiff; Pittsburgh Post-Gazette—Marini Parascenzo; Pittsburgh Press—Bill Heufelder.

The 1978 University of Kentucky NCAA championship basketball team will be recognized at tonight's Wildcat-Nittany Lion game. During halftime ceremonies, Wildcat coach Joe B. Hall will transfer the national championship trophy to the University of Kentucky. Members of the 1978-79 Wildcat squad then will be introduced.

Basketball press day is scheduled Monday, Oct. 16, at Rupp Arena. Practice will begin the preceding day. The Lady Kats, UK women's basketball team, already has begun its practice sessions.

No school or coach has ever beaten Penn State's Joe Paterno three times on the football field. Fran Curci has defeated Paterno teams two years in a row. Paterno leads the nation's active coaches in winning percentage. Curci has given the Wildcats back-to-back winners, including a 1977 record of 10-1, their best since the 1950 season (10-1 plus a Sugar Bowl victory over Oklahoma).

Nittany Lion quarterback Chuck Fusina says his team has no revenge motive; it just intends to go out and play to the best of its ability, with a national championship as a main objective.

Arriving in town Thursday for an in-depth Sports Illustrated feature on UK's linebacker-medical school student Jim Kovach was Michael Salas, photographer from Dallas. Billy Reed, sports editor of The Courier-Journal and former Sports Illustrated staff writer, will write the feature, which will deal with the entire scope of Kovach's crowded schedule.

JULIAN M. CARROLL
Governor of Kentucky

Julian Morton Carroll became Kentucky's 58th governor on Dec. 28, 1974, succeeding Wendell H. Ford, who was elected to the U.S. Senate. Carroll was elected to a full four-year term as governor in November 1975 and was inaugurated in December of that year. Born in McCracken County in 1931, Carroll attended Paducah Junior College after graduating from Heath High School. He was graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1954 and received his law degree from UK in 1956. Before becoming governor, Carroll served three years as lieutenant governor and ten years as a member of the Kentucky House of Representatives, the last four as Speaker of the House. He is an active member of the Optimist Club and a former Jaycee. He attained the highest office in Kentucky for laymen of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church in 1966-67 when he was named moderator of the Kentucky Synod. The Governor and his wife, Charlann, have four children.

The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the United States under the leadership of Dr. Otis Singletary, the eighth president of the University.

Dr. Singletary was named president of the University in August, 1969. He had previously served as executive vice-chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas System and director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Dr. Singletary, a native of Gulfport, Miss., holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University.

As president of the principal institution of higher learning in the Commonwealth, Dr. Singletary is greatly concerned with the University's role as a land-grant institution, a "people's university" accessible to all who can profit from education.

In the nine years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now more than 22,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 17,000 students in UK's 13 community colleges, and the University has become one of the major research institutions in the country.

Recognition of his service to the University was evidenced by the UK Alumni Association, which presented to Dr. Singletary its Alumni Service Award—an honor rarely bestowed upon a non-alumnus of the University.

DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY
President, University of Kentucky

Dr. Singletary is the author of two books and several monographs.

A Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, he is a commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve. He and Mrs. Singletary, the former Gloria Walton, have three children: Bonnie, Scot and Kendall.

The Singletarys live at Maxwell Place, traditional home of UK presidents.

CLIFFORD O. HAGAN

Athletics Director

A growing, thriving athletics program at the University of Kentucky is under the director of Cliff Hagan, who has seen and overseen vast improvements in all phases of the operation since he joined the Wildcat administrative staff six years ago.

The most recent challenge facing Hagan was merger of the men's and women's Athletics Programs at the University a move that was accomplished on schedule July 1.

One of Hagan's first tasks when he moved into Memorial Coliseum as an assistant athletics director in 1972 was to create and implement the Blue & White Fund for 57,000-seat Commonwealth Stadium and later for Rupp Arena, which has provided the additional financial support that has moved the athletics program into a first class operation.

After being involved in administration of the athletics department for two years, Hagan replaced Harry C. Lancaster as director of athletics in July, 1975. Wildcat teams that year compiled one of the best records in the school's history, with the basketball Wildcats winning the National Invitational Tournament, the wrestling and rifle teams winning SEC titles and the baseball team winning the SEC Eastern Division.

The wrestling team repeated as conference champion the following year, the basketball team finished with a 26-4 record and the football team won seven of 11 regular season games and defeated North Carolina in the Peach Bowl. It was the best UK football record in 23 years and the Wildcats' first post-season appearance since the 1952 Cotton Bowl. During the past year, the football team finished 10-1 (6-0 in the Southeastern Conference) and the basketball team won the NCAA championship.

With both the football and basketball teams playing to sellout crowds and drawing a big on-the-road following, Hagan has not been content, but has made Wildcat games even more enjoyable by personally designing and selecting the Wildcat Mascot, which has captured the fancy of UK fans everywhere, adopting and budgeting the Kentucky Belles, whose wholesome entertainment also has become a Wildcat fixture, and by granting permission for publication of "The Cats' Pause," a unique weekly tabloid devoted strictly to UK sports.

On the personal side, Hagan received one of his highest individual honors last May when he became the first University of Kentucky basketball player to be installed in the Naismith Memorial National Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass.

The road to that honor began at Owensboro, Kentucky, where he established a then state high school tournament record of 41 points, which was recently voted the greatest individual performance by anyone in the history of that tournament, in leading the Red Devils to victory over Lafayette in the 1949 championship game.

At UK, he played on teams that won 86 of 91 games and an NCAA championship (1951). The 1954 team, undefeated in 25 games, elected not to participate in the national tournament.

Hagan set a dozen Southeastern Conference records and an NCAA record of 528 rebounds as a junior. He averaged 24 points a game, led the nation in rebounding, and scored a UK record of 51 points against Temple in 1954.

During ten years with the St. Louis Hawks, he ranked high among 11 players on the league scoring charts with 12,433 points in 672 games for an 18.5 mark and was selected to play in five East-West All-Star games and was named to the NBA second All-League team twice. He hit over .790 from the free throw line seven years in a row and held the NBA record for most field goals scored in a single quarter (12).

He is married to the former Martha Milton of Owensboro. They have four children: Lisa, Laurie, Amy, and Kip.

FRAN CURCI
Head Football Coach

(Five years at UK: 31-24-1; 10 years overall: 65-43-1)

After posting a 10-1 record in 1977, best of any University of Kentucky football coach since 1950, Fran Curci increased his five-year record at UK to a winning 31-24-1, conquering a situation that once was described as the "graveyard of football coaches."

The 1977 Wildcats, who lost only to Baylor at Waco early in the season, finished sixth in the nation, highest for a UK team since the wire service polls began. They gave UK a two-year record of 18-5, including a victory in the 1976 Peach Bowl.

They were also the third of Curci's five teams to finish on the winning side of the ledger. His Wildcats were 5-6 in 1973, 6-5 in 1974, 2-8-1 in 1975 and 8-4 in 1976.

Curci's Wildcat teams have won 14 of their last 15 games and 10 of their last 11 games. The 1977 team was the first UK squad to win all its conference games (the 1950 team won 10 games in a row before losing to Tennessee in the season finale).

While being named by both national wires services as "Coach of the Year" in the conference and finishing high in the balloting for national honors, Curci has also produced four All-Americans, including defensive end Art Still, who last season became the first Wildcat to be named consensus All-America since Sam Ball in 1965. The Wildcats also had not been represented on a major All-American team during the nine years before Curci came to Lexington.

Curci came to the University from the University of Miami, Fla., where he was head coach two years. He started his career as freshman coach at Miami in 1962 after making All-American there in 1959 and playing as a 5-foot-9, 152 lb. quarterback for the old Dallas Texans of the AFL. In four years his Hurricane frosh teams won 12 and lost two. He later served as varsity offensive assistant at Miami (1966-67) and in both of those years Miami wound up in bowl games.

He was tapped by the University of Tampa in 1968 to see what he could do about a faltering football program; in three campaigns, he wrote one of the most amazing success stories in college football.

In his first year at Tampa, he put together a 7-3 season, which included victories over Mississippi State and Tulane. That earned for him the Florida Sports Writers Association "Coach of the Year" award, a recognition repeated in 1970. Curci's 1969 season was a brilliant 8-2 affair. His 10-1 record in 1970 also included a 31-14 triumph over Miami and brought the Tampans the nation's No. 1 College Division ranking as well as bringing Curci College Division "Coach of the Year" runner-up honors.

He took over as Miami grid boss Dec. 19, 1970, and left the program there in good shape for his successor.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., he played his high school ball in Miami, where he lettered three years as a quarterback at Archbishop Curley High and was All-City, All-Conference, Catholic All-State and his team's Most Valuable Player.

At the University of Miami, he was known as the "Mite-y Magician." Playing at 152 pounds, he parlayed intelligence and desire to become All-America as a senior in 1959 after receiving honorable mention All-America and winning acclaim as one of the foremost sophomore football stars in the country in 1957.

Curci has been selected seven times to coach in all-star games. He assisted Bear Bryant with the South team in Tampa's first annual American Bowl game four years ago, then served as South head coach the next year. He helped Charlie McClendon of LSU and Alex Agase of Northwestern direct the East in the Coaches All-America football game at Lubbock, Texas, three summers ago; was co-South coach with Bill Battle of Tennessee in Miami's Shrine North-South game in 1975; assisted Lou Holtz with the East squad in the first Japan Bowl last year in Tokyo, and was on the coaching staffs of the East-West Shrine game and the Hula Bowl for the past two years.

The Evolution Of College Football

The game of American college football, played at its finest today, was invented at Yale in New Haven, Conn., in the years 1880-82, by a townier named Walter Camp.

by Tim Cohan

True, the game's centennial was celebrated in 1969, the 100th anniversary of the Princeton-Rutgers match at New Brunswick, N.J., the first intercollegiate game in the United States to be played with a football. But American college football it was not. What it was was soccer. Strictly.

Harvard put on a "real" game centennial celebration in 1974, suggesting she had invented the American game by insisting the Rugby element of running with the ball be included in her first matches with Yale and others. At best, however, Fair Harvard may fairly claim only that she introduced a substructure.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Tim Cohane, former sports editor of Look magazine and originator of the Grantland Rice Award for college football's national champion each year, is a legendary figure in sports writing circles. Now a professor of journalism at Boston University, he patterned his philosophy after Grantland Rice, "who if he couldn't say anything good, said nothing." Cohane wrote for the New York World-Telegram (1940-1944) prior to joining Look and authored a number of books, including Gridiron Grenadiers, The Story of West Point Football, and The Yale Football Story.

The true centennial should be celebrated by Yale in 1881 as a compromise year, because it was at the rules meetings of 1880 and '82 that Camp gave American college football, as we know it, the first two of its three basic individuating notes that make possible all of the fascinating strategy and tactics: first, in 1880, the scrimmage to establish continuity of possession of the ball; second, in '82, the yards-in-downs, to force relinquishment of the ball. (The third basic note, the forward pass, was introduced in 1906.)

Who was Camp? He was a star rugby halfback at Yale, 1877-82, a three-time captain who played in only one losing game out of 32. For many of the 25 years following his last game, he supervised Yale's graduate coaching system, was in effect the head coach himself, edited the football guide, and became the acknowledged arbiter of the All-America team, which originated in 1889.

Whether Camp or a prominent sportswriter named Casper Whitney conceived the All-America idea has so far defied the deepest research, but there's no doubt Camp picked the first team. For years the All-America was dominated by "The Big Three:" Yale, Harvard, and Princeton.

Camp, who attended every rules meeting from the first, in 1878, until his death in 1925, was not always as prescient as in scrimmage and yards-in-downs. A rule he got in at the 1888 meeting, which lowered the tackling from waist to knee, encouraged pull-and-hall, wedge, and mass plays that made for dullness and, worse, increases in serious injuries and deaths.

Finally, public outcry, a mandate from President Teddy Roosevelt, and action by leading colleges forced major reforms in 1906: the introduction of the pass and, just as important, a neutral zone for linemen. The pass, first used accidentally by North Carolina in a game at Georgia in 1895, was witnessed by John Heisman (later famous Georgia Tech coach, after whom the trophy for the player of the year is named). Heisman did the most to get it in the rules. The neutral zone was pushed through by a black, Bill Lewis, who had centered for both Amherst and Harvard.

That was in 1906. Since then there has been only one truly major change in the rules: unlimited substitution in 1941. Strangely enough, it was not until four years later, in Michigan's 1945 game at Yankee Stadium against the all-powerful Blanchard-Davis Army team, that platoon football—separate units for offense and defense—was conceived by Coach Fritz Crisler to keep Army's margin down, 28-7. (Crisler later fathered the two-point conversion.) It is platoon football and the greater size, quickness, speed, and skill of today's players that make the game so superior to that of the past.

Walter Camp, "Father of Football"

Amos Alonzo Stagg, the "Grand Old Man"

Rules—and, of course, personnel—have always dictated formations. The T, in which the quarterback deploys behind the center and takes the snap to initiate every play, (except punts) is the original formation, as old as the rule (1890) that legalized the center snapback by hand; previously it had been heeled back.

The single-wing and double-wing formations, in which the center snapped the ball to a back several yards behind him, were the brainchildren of Glenn (Pop) Warner, sometime between 1906 and 1912. Warner and Amos Alonzo Stagg were the game's leading inventors. It was Stagg's shift at the University of Chicago, where he coached for 41 years, that formed the basis of the Notre Dame shift from the T to a box formation, right or left. The ND box was a species of single wing, but unlike the Warner version, it operated behind a balanced line, same number of linemen on each side of center.

The Warner single wing, the Notre Dame box shift, and the Warner double wing were the dominant formations between World Wars I and II, although the double wing gradually lost favor when defensive players learned to guard their immediate areas and not be lured by the spins, reverses, and double reverses.

The T with a new look—flankers, men in motion, and one-on-one blocking—came back into the college game with the 1940 undefeated Stanford team and soon was adopted nationally, although a few single wing citadels such as UCLA and Southern Cal persevered with it well into the fifties.

The split-T offense, featuring wider spaced linemen, a shuttling quarterback, and the option play, was invented by Don Faurot at Missouri in 1941, and popularized principally by Bud Wilkinson's Oklahoma dynasty from 1947-63. It is the forerunner of the more recent wishbone, used so effectively by Darrell Royal at Texas, and the veer, conceived by Bill Yeoman at Houston and derived from plays used by the Army team he captained in 1948 under Earl (Red) Blaik, one of the great coaching masters. All three—split-T, wishbone, and veer—are built around the ancient rugby tactic of either keeping the ball or pitching it laterally, according to how the defensive player reacts.

Dave Nelson, former standout coach and now athletic director at the University of Delaware, devised an original winged-T formation, used first at Maine in 1950 and later for his many championship Blue Hen teams. He applied a single-wing, two-on-one blocking system to a balanced line, developed a deceptive run series featuring traps and sweeps, and arranged for the possibility of a pass off every run. Forest Evashevski adopted that system to produce championship Rose Bowl teams at Iowa in 1956 and '58.

The I formation, in which quarterback, fullback, and halfback (tailback) line up in tandem, was used as early as 1900 by Northwestern, but today's version differs in its use of flankers and men in motion. John McKay, who popularized the I while at Southern California, introduced the concept of shift-

The Best In SEC Defense

by David Moffitt, UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL (Atlanta)

Even before Horatius blocked the Etruscans in their attempt to run a power play across a Tiber bridge some 2,500 years ago, man has applauded his defensive heroes.

Although, even as today, the choicest morsels went to the hunter who bagged the game, there was appreciation for the one who kept the sabre-tooth tiger out of the cave.

That appreciation for defensive tactics has carried down through the years where it manifests itself in athletics—especially on the football field.

The Southeastern Conference has long prided itself on its defensive prowess.

"Defense controls the game of football," says Louisiana State Coach Charlie McClendon. "Few offenses have the capability of sustaining field-long drives without bogging down under the weight of their own mistakes. The most effective offenses are those that start from good field position—and you get that with your defense."

Most Southeastern Conference coaches agree. That's why they usually put their best athletes on their defensive units.

"Stop the other team and you take a lot of pressure off your offense," says Georgia Coach Vince Dooley. "I don't think you'll find an SEC coach who wants to get into a shootout. There's too much margin for error."

"Our offenses are mainly geared for ball control," Dooley continues. "Sure, we'd like to be able to score those quick touchdowns, but that's not the way you plan it."

"We know we are going to be turning the ball over 10-12 times a game and we've got to concentrate on preventing the other team from taking advantage. That's why defense is so important."

Florida's Scot Brantley, among the best of this year's SEC defenders.

The SEC has had some outstanding defensive performers in the past—stars like Alabama linebacker Lee Roy Jordan, Auburn middle guard Zeke Smith, Florida end Jack Youngblood, and Georgia safety Jake Scott.

This coming season it looks like the SEC will be short on defensive superstars, but long on defensive depth.

There are two 1978 defenders who could fit into the superstar category—Scot Brantley of Florida and Ed Smith of Vanderbilt. Both are linebackers, Brantley a junior and Smith a senior.

Brantley, a 6-2, 225-pounder from Ocala, Fla., could be the best of this year's crop of SEC defenders—but that won't be known until it is seen how he bounces back from knee surgery.

"If his knee is completely recovered, I believe that Brantley could be one of the best linebackers in the country this Fall," says Florida Coach Doug Dickey. "He has all the tools."

Smith, a 220-pound senior from Chattanooga, Tenn., is also coming off an operation. Despite playing with a painful shoulder injury last Fall, Smith was in on 155 tackles, 122 of those unassisted, and won national honors for his 16-tackle performance in Vanderbilt's near upset of Oklahoma in its season opener.

ing out of the I to split the two deep backs and thus regain initiative from last-minute stunting defenses.

The prevalent college offense today finds a T alignment with the backs running from an I or shifting into a split, with two flankers—the fourth back and an end—one to each side, and the formation's strong side dependent on where the tight end lines up; he must be both a tough blocker and good pass catcher. There is also the "twins" deployment, in which both flanking back and split end spread out on the same side.

No matter the formation, however, the coach will modify it to suit his personnel. His need to do this (since recruited players cannot be so blueprinted as drafted ones), the running quarterback, and the greater number of plays per game combine to give the college game a diversification, tempo, and excitement that the pro game, despite its awesome propaganda machine, simply cannot match.

Diversification of defenses—as late as the early '40s the average college team would have one basic defense, one alternate, and no more—and the play-by-play, man-by-man study and grading of films have forced coaches of the last 40 years to put in far longer working hours than their predecessors, and thus left them less time to develop themselves as personalities. A few, however, such as Duffy Daugherty, Woody Hayes, and Bear Bryant, have still managed to exude varying shades of "color."

As Wally Butts, who had good years at Georgia, once pointed out, most dynastic coaches usually had some edge going for them in the way of personnel or scheduling. Of course, some were and are better than others in consistently extracting the maximum from a squad by qualities of leadership and motivation.

Principally through Yale, Harvard, and Princeton, and to a lesser degree, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, and Army, the East dominated the game up until World War I. The Midwest wasn't far behind, however, and was moving up fast with Stagg's teams at Chicago, Fielding (Hurry Up) Yost's at Michigan, Bob Zuppke's at Illinois, Dr. Henry Williams' at Minnesota, and Jess Harper's at Notre Dame.

The first strong Southern teams were fielded by Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech. It was Alabama's dramatic 20-19 victory over Washington in the 1926 Rose Bowl, however, that pinpointed Dixie's arrival nationally. The next Fall, a young West Point officer named Robert Reese Neyland arrived at Tennessee, where he built dynasties that would match Alabama's and earn for him, justifiably, the title of "the great modern defensive master."

Meanwhile, the Far West also was emerging nationally. First, with Andy Smith's California "Wonder Teams." Next, with Pop Warner's sleight-of-hand Stanford machines. And, most resoundingly, with the Southern California "Thundering Herds" under Coach Howard Harding Jones. Through the years, only Notre Dame has been better known as a national power than Southern Cal's Trojans.

The Southwest began to make itself felt nationally in 1928 when Coach Ray Morrison's Southern Methodist team almost upset Army at West Point with passes. The Southwest Conference, mainly through Morrison (a former Vanderbilt quarterback) and such passers as Sammy Baugh and Davey O'Brien, both of Texas Christian, showed the rest of the country how to get the most out of the pass.

It was from 1920 through '39—the Golden Twenties and the Testy Thirties—that college football began to challenge baseball as America's favorite sport. The great stadia were built. In-season intersectional games gained wide popularity. The Orange, Sugar, and Sun Bowls, and the East-West Shriners game joined the Granddaddy of 'em all, the Rose Bowl; today there is a bowl game, seemingly not only for every champion but even every runner-up.

More and more people were picking All-America teams. The Heisman Trophy came into being as did the Coach of The Year Award (both 1935). Wire services began listing the Top 20 teams, not an unmitigated blessing.

Led by Grantland Rice, dean of all sportswriters and an authentic poet, romanticism ruled the press boxes as stories flashed across the wires about the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame (Harry Stuhldreher QB, Jim Crowley LH, Don Miller RH, Elmer Layden FB), The Galloping Ghost (Red Grange of Illinois), Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite front lines, Pittsburgh's Dream Backfield (John Chickerno QB, Dick Cassiano LH, Hal Stebbins RH, and Marshall Goldberg FB), and the Seven Iron Dukes line of Duke.

To name all the great players here is, of course, impossible. Nine years ago, a committee of Football Writers Association of America past presidents picked first and second modern (two-way) all time teams. Now that panel did a pretty darn good job. But can you imagine O.J. not starting? Or Roger Staubach not being able to make the squad? Or Jim Brown? Or Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis? And don't forget another decade has been played since '69.

The old game has its warts. Like Number One-ism, which is becoming a national frenzy, and really is not what the game is all about. But warts and all, it's the greatest team game ever invented by men for the making of men, and for rallying round the old school. And it's no farther away than your local college, on any Autumn Saturday afternoon.

VRR-ROOM!

The gutsy excitement of a sports car. Enough carrying capacity to surprise owners of cars much larger. Toyota has brought fun and practicality together. And combined it with famous Toyota durability and value. The beautiful result—the 1978 Toyota Corolla SR-5 Liftback.

Driving made fun again. Corolla Liftback puts the fun back in driving because it's got many of the design features of a sports car. Like a standard 5-speed overdrive transmission. So you get maximum performance from the peppy 1.6 liter engine. Corolla also has MacPherson strut front suspension and steel belted radial-ply tires. So it handles as crisply as it moves out.

Sporty cars can be roomy too. Corolla Liftback's big rear hatch allows you to easily load objects many bigger cars can't handle. And the split, fold-down rear seat lets you take any combination of people and gear along for the ride. That's why a pair of skis and your best friend can share the back of a Corolla Liftback with no hard feelings.

A very together car. Corolla's unitized-body construction helps keep your car from getting rattled by a little thing like a bumpy road. Power assisted front disc brakes help you keep your cool, 'cause they're fade resistant. The Corolla SR-5 Liftback. It's the sporty car with room, Vrr-room, and Toyota durability. Now you know why we say, "If you can find a better built small car than a Toyota... buy it!"

DATSUN SMALL TRUCKS NUMBER ONE SINCE YEAR ONE.

Year one was 1959. Since then we've sold more imported pickups than anyone else. For good reasons: choice; value; quality. You've covered that because we demand excellence, you get one heck of a truck. And constant Datsun refinements. Like road-levelling ball joints, torsion bars and leaf springs for a smoother ride.

And you've made us number one because we make the right truck for the right job. Like the exclusive King Cab.® Only pickup with reclining bucket seats; only small pickup with up to 11.3 cubic feet of lockable storage space behind those buckets.

Or maybe the Datsun Standard—or Datsun Stretch—is right for you. Stretch has a bed nearly 7 1/2 feet long. Both haul 1400 pounds of people and cargo. Both feature Datsun's reliable 2-litre engine, transistorized ignition, power front disc brakes—all standard! Get the truck you want and the quality you need from your neighborhood expert: your Datsun dealer. He's been selling the No. 1 imported pickup for 19 straight years.

That means you're buying the best. From a company that demands nothing less.

NOBODY DEMANDS MORE FROM A DATSUN THAN DATSUN.

Nowhere in the Library of Congress will you find the name Fred W. Fallguy. This is not the fault of Fred W. Fallguy. He has been a good American: as a child he ate hot cereal on cold days; as a teenager he tinkered with hot rods; as an adult he married and, per the requirements of the national average, had one-and-three-quarters children. He fulfilled all of the demands of a democratic society by working hard, paying his taxes, owning a dog, mowing his lawn, and smiling at all the people on his block.

In short, Fred W. Fallguy, through the dint of energy and application, became a swell guy. And, as everyone in his neighborhood will tell you, a fall guy. Let it now be recorded, albeit not in the Library of Congress, that Fred earned his stripes, and reputation, one Saturday afternoon in October of 1976. That he has not been seen since is understandable.

Here, now, for the first time is the story of that afternoon. Ask yourself, as you read it, what you would have done had you been Fred W. Fallguy. There but for the grace of God, goeth us all. Seat belts fastened? Fine. Everyone with a weak stomach, or disposition to tears, must now disembark.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER SOMETHING, 1976, 9 a.m.: Fred is playing on the lawn of his three-bedroom, ranch-style, split-level, two-car garage, appliances-included home not far from a major university in an elm-tree-lined, quaint, charming American city. He is playing croquet on his lawn with his one-and-three-quarters children.

His wife, Felicia Fress Fallguy, emerges from their spick-and-span kitchen, where she has been making one of her fabled tuna casseroles, complete with tuna, to ask Fred to find something to do with the children that afternoon. "Maybe," she says, "they would enjoy going to the football game at the university. It's Band Day," she says. "They will love the music." Fred is about to demur.

"Oh, Daddy, do take us," say the children. "We wanna hear bands. The last good band we heard was Jefferson Airplane." Fred, as any good American father, has been raised to do precisely what his children ask. "Whatever you kiddos want," he smiles. They hug him warmly. Felicia is deeply touched, and immediately makes plans to go shopping at the nearby enclosed, 380-store mall, where 379 of the stores are having sales.

"Can we take my friend Johnny with us, Daddy?" asks Fred's son.

"If Johnny gets to go, I wanna take Suzie," says Fred's daughter.

SATURDAY, 11:30 a.m.: Fred W. Fallguy is standing on his front lawn, scuffing the artificial turf with his near-Gucci loafers, and telling the 15 children gathered around him that they will be leaving in a few minutes for the football stadium.

Harvey Heavy and Sid Rotten, two other daddies on the block, have agreed to help drive Fred and the children to the game. "Anything for good old Fred," says Harvey, who along with Sid has scheduled the neighborhood poker game for 1:15 p.m. "Sure wish I could join you, Fred," says Harvey—gunning the motor of his rear-loading station wagon.

SATURDAY, 12:30 p.m.: Fred W. Fallguy and 16 children, one of whom nobody else in the group seems to know, are standing outside the ticket gates at State U. Memorial Boomdome. Fred is checking out the prices and trying to determine if a credit card will be acceptable. While he ruffles through his wallet, 11 of the 16 children are asking him to buy them a pennant, three want balloons, and two, one of whom nobody else in the group seems to know, ask for a miniature version of the State U. symbol, the Precocious Piranha. Also, all 16 ask for push-'em-up, seven-flavored, chocolate-coated ice cream sticks.

Before he reaches the ticket window, Fred has spent $55.35 and been bitten on the right wrist by one of the Precocious Piranha toys. He barely has enough cash left to pay for 17 end zone seats, 10 of which he was able to purchase for half price because that many youngsters, including one nobody else in the group seemed to know, were under 12 years of age. And three of them were under five years of age. "Have a nice day," the ticket seller said to Fred, who was busy wiping the residue of 16 push-'em-up ice cream sticks from his all-silk rugby shirt with the purple and puce horizontal stripes, one of which had been gnawed by a Precocious Piranha only moments earlier.

SATURDAY, 1:07 p.m.: "Watch the kickoff," says Fred to his group, only five of whom are not running under the lower tier of end zone seats. "The kickoff is very exciting," Fred tells a four-year-old girl who is feeding her ponytail to a Precocious Piranha. As he stands to watch the kickoff, little of which is visible from the second row of the sunken end zone seats, Fred sustains a pull of his left hamstring, the result of a vise-like grip by a six-year-old boy with particularly large hands who is tugging fiercely because he wishes to go to the bathroom.

As Fred examines the remainder of his left hamstring, his right near-Gucci loafer is removed by a seven-year-old girl, who deposits therein the residue of her push-'em-up ice cream stick. While cleansing his loafer with his near-plaid, semi-camelhair sports jacket, Fred misses the 105-yard kickoff return by State U., a play he probably would have missed anyway because three 10-year-old boys were nearly scratching his eyes out in a dispute over who had the best toy racer on the block.

SATURDAY, 2:35 p.m.: It is now halftime. Fred would very much like to have a beer. But even if he had enough money left to buy a beer, he knew such a purchase would be wrong. Felicia had warned him of the immorality of drinking beer in front of small children, one of whom nobody else in the group seemed to know. He settled instead for licking his right near-Gucci loafer.

By the time a visiting Poly player ran the second-half kickoff back 107 yards for the tying TD, Fred, unable to witness the action because a five-year-old girl had stuck a Precocious Piranha in his left ear, realized that seven of the 16 children were missing. So he jumped under the tier of seats to search and immediately landed atop four girls fighting over who had the best talking doll on the block.

SATURDAY, 3:45 p.m.: By now, Fred has rounded up 15 of the 16 children. Missing is the one child nobody else in the group seemed to know, which relieves Fred no end. Two small boys, aged three-and-under, are sleeping on his right knee, the cartilage of which was torn at the end of the third quarter when an 11-year-old boy dropped a nine-year-old girl on it.

Fred does not mind that he has missed the longest forward pass in State U. history, a 110-yard heave (90 in the air) from rather deep in the end zone—actually only a few seats away—midway in the third quarter. Now he is ignoring the cries of 12 of the 15 children and one of the two Precocious Piranhas to be taken to the bathroom, which is at the other end of the stadium, 212 rows up, behind the hot pretzel stand, around the corner from the card section, and adjacent to Band Day assembly area, which is actually in another stadium four miles away.

Fred is ignoring all of these pleas because he wishes to watch State U.'s attempt at a game-ending, go-ahead extra-point kick. "Let's go home now Daddy, huh?" says his three-quarters child. "Please, huh, Daddy, huh?" Fred shoves both Piranhas at the child and settles back to watch the kick, which seems to be coming right his way. Right ... his ... way ...

SATURDAY, 3:46 p.m.: A grown man with one black shoe is seen running from the State U. Memorial Boomdome carrying a football. He is paying no attention to the 30 little feet running after him. He also is paying no attention to the honking of horns by two men in station wagons. He is just running and running. Fast.

Later aerial searches proved futile. Nor was the football ever found. It is believed that Fred ultimately settled in the Pacific and changed his name, indicating he was weary of being a Fallguy. ●

"His teammates call Ed 'The Sheriff' because of the way he rounds up opposing runners," says Vanderbilt Coach Fred Pancoast. "If we can give him adequate support this Fall, he has the ability to be an All-American."

There is another Smith in the SEC expected to challenge for post-season honors. He is Auburn's Freddie Smith, a 210-pound junior linebacker who joins Brantley as the only returnees from the 1977 All-SEC defensive unit.

The only SEC defender to make first team All-America in 1977 was Kentucky's Art Still. Still has used up his college eligibility and so have second team All-America cornerback Bill Krug of Georgia and the SEC's three honorable mention All-America picks—middle guard Scott Hutchinson of Florida, linebacker Ben Zambiasi, of Georgia, and safety Mike Kramer of Alabama.

Even without Art Still, Kentucky figures to be one of the top defensive teams in college football this season. The Wildcats, 10-1 last season while on probation, have 15 of their top 20 defensive players returning from a unit which led the SEC in defense last year with a yield of only 10.1 points and 235 yards per game.

The Wildcats have an awesome looking linebacker in 245-pound senior Kelly Kirchbaum, one of the best middle guards in the South in 230-pound junior Dick Jaffe, and 220-pound senior David Stephens was in on 70 tackles last season while playing the other end opposite Still.

But even if Kentucky plays up to its potential, the Wildcats are still expected to have only the second best defense in the Southeastern Conference.

The best SEC defense is expected to be at Alabama. The Crimson Tide figures to be stronger on defense in '78 than it was in '77 when it was a close second to Kentucky while playing a tougher schedule.

Seven starters return to an Alabama defense that gave up 12.1 points per game in a 10-1 season that was marred only by an early-season loss at Nebraska. Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant says that if the knee of 250-pound junior tackle David Hannah—younger brother of former Alabama All-America Charles Hannah—holds up "I think we will have a fine front."

"That," says Bryant, "is quite a change from last year when I couldn't give you one name that would be in our front five before the season began."

Bryant, who always takes a cautious approach, complains that the Crimson Tide defense "may be thin because we didn't have any top reserves in '77." But Bryant admits, "We are far better off this year than we were at the start of the '77 season."

Alabama will be massive up front on defense. In addition to Hannah, 250-pound tackle Marty Lyons, and 230-pound end Wayne Hamilton are returning starters and two big ones—265-pound Curtis McGriff and 270-pound Byron Braggs—are ready to move into the two vacant slots.

That's just for starters. The Crimson Tide has its three regular linebackers—Barry Krauss, Rich Wingo, and Rickey Gilliland all returning for their senior seasons and that trio led Alabama in tackling last Fall.

Even as fine a performer as Kramer won't be missed all that much since Alabama can still fill its secondary with former starters. Don McNeal and Murray Legg were regulars back there last year, Ricky Tucker started several games at safety although only a freshman, and Phil Allman was a regular in '76. Legg, a senior from Birmingham, Ala., is the Tide's best bet for all-star honors in the secondary.

This may come as a surprise to many since the Rebels were only 5-6 last season, but Ole Miss had the SEC's No. 3 defense in 1977, and new Coach Steve Sloan found a pretty good defensive nucleus when he replaced Ken Cooper this past Winter.

The Rebels feel they are in short supply so far as linebackers go, but they

Nikon FM with optional motor drive

Nikon FE Automatic

If it's action you're after, Nikon has a choice of compacts for you.

You see them in action at every major sports and news event — the professionals with their motor-driven Nikon cameras. They know they can rely on Nikon to get the picture, every time.

You can, too, with a Nikon "compact." The moderately priced semi-automatic Nikon FM or the fully automatic Nikon FE. Both are a lot smaller and lighter than the pros' cameras but engineered with the same Nikon precision. And, they handle with a speed and ease any pro could envy.

Each has a built-in electronic meter system that gives you superb exposures with professional accuracy. With the FM, it's done in one quick, simple step; a bright 5-stage LED light signal in the viewfinder makes it virtually foolproof. With the FE, the meter does it automatically, and a quick-responding needle indicator keeps you informed about exposure. You simply aim, focus and shoot.

Add the low-cost motor drive to either camera and feel the excitement of true high-performance photography at up to 3.5 shots a second. Get close to the action with a Nikkor telephoto lens, or take in more of the field with a Nikkor wide angle (the same magnificently sharp lenses the pros swear by).

There's no end to the great photography you can do with a Nikon compact. It begins with your visit to your Nikon dealer (he's listed in the Yellow Pages). Ask him also about the traveling Nikon School. Or write to Nikon Inc., Dept. N-4, Garden City, New York 11530. # The UK Fellows

THEIR SUPPORT OF THE UNIVERSITY HAS AMOUNTED TO MORE THAN $16 MILLION IN 12 YEARS

About 120 new University of Kentucky Fellows were recognized for their substantial financial support of the University during the Annual Fellows Dinner held last night at the Keeneland Clubhouse.

President Otis Singletary praised the Fellows group for its gifts, which now total more than $16 million. Ervin J. Nutter, chairman of the Fellows Executive Committee, reported that the Fellows membership roster now totals about 570.

The Fellows program, organized in 1966 by the UK Development Council, plays an increasingly important part in the total financial posture of the University. The need for private support has been well established at the University, and the Fellows are providing much of this support through their individual generosity.

New Fellows

The new Fellows are (they are from Lexington unless otherwise noted): D. Paul Jr. and Marie Joyce Alagia, Louisville; George L. Atkins Jr., Lawrenceburg; Stephen P. and Teresa Holland Bachman, South Charleston, W. Va.; Darrell L. Bailey, Salyersville; Kenneth D. Bailey, Salyersville; Jean Bates, Stanford; E. V. ## Wildcat Assistant Coaches

CHARLIE BAILEY, DEFENSIVE COORDINATOR University of Tampa—1962

Charlie came to UK in 1975 from Rice University where he served three years as defensive coordinator and was assistant head coach. A native of Poca, W. Va., he was a high school quarterback there, earning three letters each in football, baseball and basketball. As an end on both offense and defense, he lettered four years at the University of Tampa, being named outstanding lineman and team captain, among other honors. After graduating from Tampa, he coached one year each at Poca High and Brandon, Fla., High before serving as an assistant at Tampa from 1964-70.

DAN COUGHLIN, DEFENSIVE LINE University of Miami—1962

A teammate of Fran Curci and a two-year starter as offensive guard and linebacker at the University of Miami, Dan cut his coaching teeth at Coral Gables High School, where he spent nine years with the perennially powerful teams there. During his tenure, the Cavaliers won 102 games, lost nine and tied one, registering nine shutouts in 13 games in 1967 and winning two national championships.

BILL GLASER-DEFENSIVE LINE Bellarmine College—1965

A native Kentuckian (Louisville), Bill came to UK from Morehead State University, where he was defensive coordinator. He played offensive guard and linebacker at St. Xavier High School, in Louisville, and returned to St. X as an assistant coach after graduating from Bellarmine College. He became head coach in 1974. His teams won the state AAA crown in 1974 and the AAAAA title in 1975. He was named Courier-Journal "Coach of the Year" in 1974, and in 1975 was selected to a similar honor by the Kentucky High School Coaches Association.

THE FAMOUS FRIED CHICKEN

GEORGE CATAVOLOS
BS, MA—PURDUE UNIVERSITY

George is a native of Chicago and a graduate of Cleveland's West Tech High School, where he was All-City and All-Scholastic offensive end and safety, and a basketball letterman.

He earned his bachelor's degree at Purdue and his M.A. there in 1969. A three-year letterman, he earned the Noble E. Kizer Academic Award his senior year and was co-captain and outstanding defensive back on the Boilermakers' 1967 Rose Bowl team.

After being drafted and trying out with the Philadelphia Eagles, he returned to Purdue to serve two years as a graduate assistant and then was at Middle Tennessee and Louisville.

PERRY MOSS, Offensive Coordinator
BS, University of Illinois; MA, University of Washington

A native of Oklahoma, Perry earned football, baseball and basketball letters at Tulsa Central High School. After service in the Army Air Corps, he quarterbacked the University of Illinois to a Big Ten championship and a Rose Bowl championship. He was an A-A honorable mention and a recipient of the Boston Gridiron Club's National Award for Sportsmanship and played in the Chicago Trib's all-star games and the Blue-Gray Classic. He played professionally with Green Bay as quarterback.

Perry has served as an assistant coach at Illinois, Washington, LSU, Miami (Fla.) and Wisconsin. He was head football coach and AD at Florida State University and head coach and GM of Montreal in the Canadian League.

Perry was head coach at Marshall University and quarterback and backfield coach of the Chicago Bears, leaving there to succeed Bart Starr as QB coach for the Packers under Dan Devine. He came to UK from San Antonio, where he guided the Wings to a 7-3 record and a World Football League division championship.

BILLY MITCHELL, TIGHT ENDS
UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY—1956

Billy returned to his alma mater in 1974 from Wake Forest, where he was a member of K-Letterman Tommy Harper's staff. A native of Georgetown, he earned four letters as quarterback at Garth High plus three letters each in basketball, track, and tennis. He was All-State two years in basketball and regional high jump and tennis champion. As UK halfback, he earned three letters and also lettered as a high jumper for the Wildcat cinder squad. He was head coach at Manual High in Louisville in 1965, and served as an assistant at Murray State, Virginia Tech and Wake Forest.

LARRY KIRKSEY, RECEIVERS
Eastern Kentucky University—1973

Larry, a native of Harlan, came to UK in 1977 from Miami of Ohio where he was coach of wide receivers and supervisor of scouting. He played split end at Eastern Kentucky University where he earned four varsity letters and was named to the "Outstanding College Athletes of America." While at Eastern, he had 82 career catches for 1,155 yards. He received his bachelor's degree in 1973 and remained at ECU as a graduate assistant until July, 1974, when he joined the Miami University staff.

JIM NIBLACK, OFFENSIVE LINE
University of Florida—1956

A native of Georgia, Jim came to UK in 1976 from the University of Florida, where he coached the Gator Jayvee team. He played offensive tackle for the Gators, graduating from the University of Florida in 1956.

Jim was head coach at Sante Fe High School before beginning a 15-year tenure (1959-74) at Gainesville High School. He was coach of the Florida All-Star games in 1962 and 1969. His record as a high school coach was 130-36-4. In 1974, Jim coached the offensive line for the Jacksonville Sharks of the World Football League.

The New Chevrolet.

America has driven it to the top.

In just two short years over a million people have bought and enjoyed The New Chevrolet Caprice and Impala. Pretty darn impressive.

Of course, one reason for the success of The New Chevrolet is that it's simply a very beautiful car. And we suggest the '79 version is even more beautiful.

You're invited to visit the Chevrolet "Locker Room" exhibit at the National Football Foundation's new College Football Hall of Fame at King's Island (25 miles north of Cincinnati). This unique museum lets you participate in the fascinating history of college football. Don't miss it.

But then we know it takes more than beauty to become the most popular car in America. It takes roominess. It takes some very impressive standard features. It takes a smooth, comfortable ride. And more.

The New Chevrolet for 1979. Pleasing to the eye. Pleasing in lots of other ways, too.

It's no wonder America's driven it to the top. See your Chevrolet dealer.

A Salute to:

The Fellows,
Honor Bandsman,
And Our Members

Robert C. McDowell

One-hundred twenty-one persons were honored last night at the annual UK Fellows and Development Council dinner. UK now has 568 people who have collectively pledged more than $14 million to the University. Alumni account for 66 percent of those giving. Those Fellows honored last night are listed elsewhere in this program.

"The support provided by the Fellows Program enables the University to achieve a degree of excellence that otherwise would be missing," said Terry Mobley, director of the UK Development Office. Private Contributions like these are playing an ever increasing role in the conduct of higher education today. "We sincerely appreciate the time and resources these men and women have given the University."

Robert C. McDowell '35, '43, '62H has distinguished himself as a concerned and generous supporter of the University of Kentucky. Today, he becomes only the third person to ever receive the designation "Distinguished Honor Bandsman" from the UK Bands.

This award is reserved for an alumnus or friend who has made significant contribution to the band over an extended period of time.

McDowell certainly qualifies. His association with the band began as an undergraduate scholarship student. For three years he served as drum major of the marching unit while pursuing his major studies in engineering.

An internationally successful businessman, McDowell was on hand in 1973 to lead the first alumni band aggregation onto the field at halftime, a performance repeated every other year since.

Recently he has sponsored several annual scholarships for marching musicians and throughout the years has shown a genuine interest in the band program.

Band director Harry Clarke said, "It is this genuine concern of his that impresses me. Because of his own experience in the band, recognizing how it helped him, he now wants to give others a similar opportunity."

There's one more group of people the UK Alumni Association would like to salute—that's our 22,000 plus members who support the organization in a wide range of activities.

The members of the Alumni Association can give themselves a pat on the back for *assisting with UK support programs in their hometowns, *participating in hometown career nights and the College of Arts & Sciences career advising program, *sponsoring more than twenty student scholarships, *underwriting a Great Teacher awards program, and sponsoring a continuing "Alumni Professor" honor designation.

The UK Alumni Association, because of its active membership, is able to send an 8-page newspaper to every alumnus of record and a quarterly magazine to its members containing important information about UK, conduct a discount book purchase plan, pre-game meals and receptions, athletic tickets whenever available, tours to numerous destinations, a special agenda of activities for parents of currently enrolled students, a student-alumni program and more!

If you're not a member of the UK Alumni Association, please consider joining today. Dues are $10 per person, $12 per couple, for one year. An alumni member is defined as a person who has satisfactorily completed 12 hours of academic work in the UK System. Non-alumni may join as associate members. Mail your membership payment to the UK Alumni Association, Lexington, Ky. 40506. We welcome YOU!

TOP PUNTERS AND PLACEKICKERS FOR 1978

by Arnie Burdick, Syracuse HERALD-JOURNAL

When the new NCAA football rules hit Austin and College Station, Tex., last January, Russ Erxleben and Tony Franklin felt the changes were directed at them.

The Horns' Mr. X and the Aggies' Tony had made careers out of booting three-pointers as far as the Lone Star State is wide. And they didn't want to have their lengthy misses brought back to the scrimmage line, as they will be in '78.

However, once the fine print had been digested, it was obvious that collegiate fans would continue to focus in on kickers. Yes, the change, no doubt, will mean a drop in field goals and attempts, figures that had been spiraling to record heights since the posts were widened two decades back. But at the same time, the delicate art of punting will be re-emphasized.

The "prayer-placement" will be giving way this autumn to the squib kick or coffin-corner punt designed to pin the enemy up against his goal posts.

And, to get the job done, there are no shortage of good kickers. First-class booters are pouring out of high schools and spilling over from the soccer fields, many even making the jump after a foreign start. And wherever you peek—from coast-to-coast—we continue to discover record-breaking kickers. Many own perfect PAT marks, and there are dozens of punters with hang-time that would tickle a posse.

The placekicker with the perfect attitude has to be Dave Heverling of Lafayette College. The soccer-style junior was unmoved when he learned of the '78 rule that will bring long misses back to the scrimmage line. "The new rule doesn't bother me a bit," said Dave, "because I don't plan on missing any."

Letter-perfect in his extra-point work has been Vince Petrucci of Fresno State. Vince has booted 75 out of 75 to rank third on the all-time NCAA list. He needs only 13 more to top Temple's Don Bitterlich, the all-time career leader, who made 87 straight from 1973 to '75, 10 more than Ken Krotts of Toledo.

Still, the most celebrated returnees are Erxleben and Franklin, direct opposites in their size and styles.

Texas' Mr. X, who punts as well as doing the placement work, is the national leader in career punting with a 44.6-yard average. At 6-4, 218, the former prep QB is a straight-ahead, conventional style booter, who's been 43 percent accurate from 60 yards or more. Russ shares the longest field goal ever—67 yards—for an NCAA player with the recently graduated Steve Little of Arkansas. By contrast, Franklin is only 5-9, 175, and winds up sidewise. And barefoot! Ouch! Tony's made 21 field goals from 40 yards out or more, second only to Mr. X's 25, the national mark.

Perhaps the two most dramatic kicks last season witnessed by the nation's masses were contributed by Oklahoma's Uwe von Schamann and USC's Frank Jordan. Both are back. The soccer-stylist, who also does the Sooners' punting, booted a 47-yarder with three seconds left to nip Ohio State in Columbus, 29-28, in a national TV date. The German-born Sooner added to the drama by calmly meditating during a time out called by Ohio State, then leading Buckeye fans in a "Block-that-kick" chant before making good.

Jordan cut it even finer, and his 38-yarder with just two seconds left not only nipped UCLA 29-27, but knocked the Bruins out of the Rose Bowl, and plummeted Washington into the post-season "Granddaddy."

Earlier in the campaign, a couple of late fielders had worked against the Huskies. Syracuse's super senior sidewinder, Dave Jacobs, who's been the difference in five Orange wins, split the uprights in the final seconds to upset

Washington, 22-20. And seven days later, the Huskies fell in similar fashion to Minnesota as Paul Rogind hit a three-pointer just before the final gun.

Rogind, a top returning field goal kicker, doesn't fit the stereotype of his specialty, for he loves contact and insists on playing defensive halfback for the Gophers. His dad came from Denmark, and taught his children such Danish sports as soccer and badminton, with Paul developing into the national junior badminton champ.

Booting barefoot was no handicap to Jim Miller of Mississippi. "The Bionic Foot," as he's known on the Ole Miss campus, led the nation with a 45.9 punting average last Fall though only a soph. In the process, Miller set an SEC record, breaking the 31-year old standard set by famed "Chuckin' Charley" Conerly in 1946.

Two kid brothers of NFL kicking stars are among the more prominent returning placekickers. Penn State's Matt Bahr, whose older brother Chris boots for the Bengals, played pro soccer this Summer with the Colorado Caribous, but he'll devote full time to football this Fall, rather than split it with his dad's Penn State soccerites. Chris had a parallel senior campaign, and Coach Joe Paterno feels that Matt will be a better placekicker this Fall concentrating on just the grid sport. Matt's 81 points last Fall is a school mark.

Florida's Berj Yepremian is a carbon-copy of famed Garo of the Miami Dolphins—a left-footed, soccer-style Cypriot. Berj was perfect from the PAT line, 12 x 13 on fielders inside the 50. His coach, Doug Dickey, claims, "Berj is the only soccer-style kicker I've seen who doesn't hook the ball."

Some other members of the foreign legion have gained exceptional high marks, too. Among them are Oregon State's English-born Kieron Walford, who boots left-footed (36 x 36 PATs), but because of his soccer background could kick with his right foot if need be ... Indiana's David Freud, a veteran of the Israeli army who's a straight-A student and has a 37-straight PAT mark going ... Clemson's Nigerian-born Obed Ariri, who came over to the gridiron after starring in soccer and hit a 57-yarder to tie the ACC record ... Central Michigan's Yugoslavian-born Rade Savich, who can't miss becoming the all-time, leading Mid-American Conference field goal kicker this Fall ... and Washington State's Paul Watson, a Vancouver, B.C., native who was recruited for his baseball ability, but whose soccer-style toeing upset Michigan State and Nebraska for the Cougars early last Fall.

Another sidewinder who bears have seven defensive starters returning, including four of their five linemen.

"I feel our defense could be better than last year, but I'm concerned about depth, especially at linebacker and in the secondary," says Sloan. "There's a need for some young players, or incoming freshmen, to step in and contribute."

Sloan plans to use a basic 5-3 this Fall with two inside linebackers and one on the outside, and he says those are the toughest defensive positions to fill.

"Linebackers need to be quick, tough, and smart," says Sloan. "It's a tough position to play, with folks coming at you from every angle."

Ole Miss lost two outstanding defensemen—linebacker Kem Coleman and all-conference end George Plasketes. But, like Kentucky, the Rebels have 15 of their top 20 tacklers returning.

"We've moved people around a lot," says Sloan. "Normally, we won't do this, but in our situation, a new staff, we felt it was absolutely necessary."

The top three Ole Miss linebackers at the close of Spring drills—Eddie Householder, Eddie Cole, and Brian Moreland—all had two things in common: experience and size.

Best bet for all-star honors among the Rebel defenders is 260-pound senior tackle Lawrence Johnson who picked up a lot of votes in '77.

Georgia had the SEC's fourth-best defense in 1977—but the Bulldogs may have to scramble this Fall. Eight starters, most of them three-year regulars of the widely acclaimed "Junkyard Dogs" are gone—and that includes every starting linebacker and all the secondary.

Jim Noonan adds clout to the Tennessee defense.

"Our situation this season is very similar to the one we had in 1975," says Georgia Defensive Coach Erk Russell. "But I believe we had more returning players with game experience that year than we do this season."

Krug and Zambiasi were repeat All-SEC performers last Fall. The Georgia front four lost only one starter—but that was tackle Ronnie Swoopes who was named to some All-SEC teams himself.

Georgia found a defensive leader midway through last season when 240-pound tackle Louis Freedman became a starter and won UPI Southeast Defense Player of the Week honors at the same time. The lone linebacker with real experience is senior Ricky McBride who moves into Zambiasi's slot. The top defensive back should be sophomore Scott Woerner, who was one of the top kickoff return runners last Fall when he averaged nearly 25 yards a return as a freshman.

Louisiana State was best known in '77 for its SEC-best running game featuring Charles Alexander. But the LSU defense, fifth in the SEC statistically, wasn't too bad either.

Although 230-pound junior end John Adams is the only two-year starter returning, the Bengals had only eight seniors on their defensive unit last Fall. "We're going to give it the best shot we've got," says McClendon. LSU has a flashy cornerback in junior Willie Teal out of Texarkana, Tex., and good speed and size up front.

McClendon, then an assistant to Paul Dietzel, is the man who invented the "Chinese Bandits," the famed reserve unit that played such great defense for LSU back in the late '50s.

"The game is different than it was then," says McClendon who hasn't tried to revive the "bandits." "We had some exceptional football players then."

Auburn, paced by Freddie Smith, gave up more yards than it gained in '77 and still placed sixth in overall SEC defense. Coach Doug Barfield hopes having 17 returning lettermen—six of whom have been starters the past two seasons—means the Tigers will be better on defense in '78.

However, the only Auburn defender besides Smith who was impressive last season was safety James McKinney who led the SEC in pass interceptions by

Have you any idea how much America's colleges mean to you?

It was college-based research and college-trained minds that gave us electronic computers, television, spacecraft. That conquered polio, smallpox, diphtheria. That developed new strains of rice and wheat to help feed the world's hungry.

And it will be today's college-trained minds that will solve tomorrow's problems: Energy. Transportation.

Health. City planning. International relations.

But only if you help. America's colleges are in deep financial trouble.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Arnie Burdick has been Executive Sports Editor of the Syracuse Herald-Journal since 1956. He is a past president of the Football Writers Association of America and for the past several years has been editor of the "Read-Easy" Football Rules for the NCAA. He is a graduate of Syracuse University where he served as Sports Information Director for a decade before joining the Herald-Journal.

watching is Florida State's diminutive (5-9, 140) Dave Cappelen, who because of his stature was tagged "Mouse" by his teammates. Asked about his size, his coach, Bobby Bowden, replied, "I'm not sure how big Davey is, but when he goes to the whirlpool, we send along a lifeguard with him." Meanwhile, his 109 points in two years have been responsible for "saving" the Seminoles plenty.

Some other soccer stylists with talent: Western Michigan's Dave Gibson, whose dad, Dave, is an assistant coach with the New York Giants ... Texas Tech's Bill (Blade) Adams, who was a year behind Tony Franklin at Arlington Heights (Tex.) High, and despite being only 150 pounds loves to make tackles ... Northern Illinois' Rome Moga, who hit four fielders in one game ... Tulane's Ed Murray, who holds all the school kicking records after only two seasons ... Navy's Bob Tata, who needs only one more field goal and three more extra points to set Middle career marks ... Michigan's Gregg Willner, who might also punt this Fall, and prepped for his senior campaign by scuba diving and collecting tropical salt water fish near his Miami, Fla., home ... Kansas' Mike Hubach, who also punts for a better than 40-yard average ... Stanford's Ken Naber, top frosh kicker in the nation last Fall, who came to the West Coast from Cincinnati's famed football hotbed, Moeller High.

Arizona is touting an incoming freshman, Bill Zivic, who hit a 57-yarder as a Phoenix (Ariz.) scholastic phenom. He has a 95 percent accuracy from 50 yards in. Rose Bowl-winning Washington feels that it has a bellringer in Mike Lansford, a transfer from Pasadena (Calif.) City College, the Junior Rose Bowl champs. Mike booted 47 and 48-yard fielders in last Spring's game. San Diego State's Steve Duncan was well on his way to establishing school marks when he fractured his leg in the third game last Fall. He missed six games, but hit three field goals in the last tilt of the season, even though he had to limp onto the field.

Grambling's Eddie Robinson thinks tall (6-7) Larry Scrubbs "has a very strong kicking leg." VMI's Royce Jones, who's broken a slew of Keydet records, is said to keep his mind on football when he plays baseball in the Spring, for his diamond mates chide "that he still boots the ball."

A pair of punters—Iowa's Dave Holsclaw and Virginia's Russ Henderson—were pressed into placekicking service. A golf cart overturned on Iowa's top placekicker, Scott Schilling, severing his achilles tendon. So Holsclaw was given the added duties and promptly booted four field goals to beat Minnesota. Meanwhile, Henderson, a 42.5-yard average punter, was given the placement work for the winless Cavaliers, and his four three-pointers were the difference (12-10) over Wake Forest.

One of the more interesting punters is Kentucky's Kevin Kelly, whose dad, George, was a star halfback at Notre Dame. He's a Navy veteran, who tracked submarines for three years of duty, then turned up as a walk-on on the Lexington campus. Unimpressed at first, Coach Fran Curci finally let him kick against North Carolina. Kevin shanked it badly, booting it up in the stands. But a penalty on the play gave him another chance, and he's been booting 'em high, wide, and handsome ever since, including one for 71 yards.

San Jose State's punter, Frank (Boog) Ratto, was born with "club" feet and had to wear braces as a child ... Steve Green of Ohio U. has a pair of brothers—Dave and Mike—who've punted for NFL teams ... SMU's Ken Rosenthal finished with a 44.2 average, but was unlucky enough to punt in the same circuit with Russ Erxleben and Steve Little ... Utah's Rick Partridge, with a 44-yard average, has hang time of 4.3 seconds ... Temple's Casey Murphy and Tulsa's Eddie Hare both averaged 42 yards, with Eddie even tossing a 75-yard TD pass off a fake punt.

Some other punters of note: Steve Gortz of Nevada-Las Vegas ... Baylor's

Here are some other placement people to tab solidly: Frank Alegre, University of Pacific's best FG kicker in history ... Southwest Louisiana's John Roveto ... Utah's Tom McNamara ... Auburn's Jorge Portela ... Montana State's Jeff Muri, who also operates as a wide receiver ... New Mexico State's Kip Vernon ... Rice's Wes Hansen ... Rutgers' Kennan Startzell ... LSU's Mike Conway ... and McNeese State's Jan Peebles.

Then, of course, there's also Dave Marler. A walk-on kicker, he was Mississippi State's leading scorer last Fall, booting a 50-yarder in the process. So last Spring, he tried his luck at quarterback and wound up the drills as the No. 1 signal-caller.

With that kind of all-around ability, Dave Marler will probably write the NCAA placekicking story of the century—he could be the first to hold the ball, and kick it, too.

SEATBELTS THAT PUT THEMSELVES ON.

Remember when Mom attached your mittens to your coatsleeves? The theory was, even the warmest gloves in the class wouldn't do you much good if you didn't use them.

The theory's the same for seatbelts.

That's why one of the many exclusive features in the deluxe model Rabbit — the Rabbit "L" — is an automatic seatbelt in each front seat.

When you slide into your seat, you're sliding behind the seatbelt.

When you shut the door, the seatbelt is fastened.

There's no buzzing to remind you that you forgot.

Because if you're driving our Rabbit "L", you don't have to remember.

Together with a knee bar that restrains you from jolting forward, our seatbelt makes the most advanced passive restraint system available.

Of course, by 1984 every new car in America must have a passive restraint system. Transportation Secretary Adams says so.

But we didn't wait to be told. Only the Rabbit "L" has automatic seatbelts today. And has had them since 1975.

That's because Volkswagen doesn't think like any old car company. Volkswagen thinks like a mother.

The Linebacker: Is He the Best Athlete on the Field?

by Clyde Bolton, Birmingham NEWS

He's the meat between the bones and the skin."

That's how one Southeastern Conference coach sees the linebacker, and it's a good description. It conjures up images of muscle—but supple muscle. It smacks of roundhouse rights—but also of left jabs.

They've been trying for years to figure out just where the linebacker belongs in football's nomenclature. Is he a back or a lineman?

"He's not either; he's a linebacker," an Eastern coach said. "And I'm not being rude. Just think about that statement; it says something special about the men who play the position. They're something special, neither back nor lineman."

"I'll tell you one thing a linebacker had better be, though. He had darn sure better be instinctive."

"He may not be the best athlete on the field, but he has to be a very versatile athlete," a Big Ten coach said. "I think you're a lineman AND a back," a West Coast linebacker put it. "You've got to be able to play the run but you've also got pass coverage responsibilities. I know one thing, it's the most fun position on the field. It challenges you physically, but it also challenges you mentally. Your body will get a good workout on a Saturday afternoon at linebacker, and so will your mind."

"Most consider it the hardest defensive position to play," a Rocky Mountain coach said. "A defensive lineman has to defeat a blocker and make a tackle or rush the passer; a defensive back mainly worries about pass coverage. But the linebacker does both. He's neither fish nor fowl—or maybe he's both fish and fowl."

"It takes a lot of intelligence to be a good linebacker, a lot of football savvy, a lot of knowing what this game is all about," a Big Eight coach said. "The linebacker is normally the one who calls the signals and makes the adjustments on defense for the various offenses. That's because he's in a standup position. He can holler out and tell the defensive linemen the adjustments to make, and sometimes he can tell the secondary, but they can make a lot of adjustments on their own."

All the coaches interviewed mentioned having a "nose for the ball" as a key to being a good linebacker.

Another word for it is instinct: being able to find the ball in the maelstrom that whirls around the snap of the elusive brown oval.

"There are all kinds of blocking schemes and backfield actions that oc-

Linebacker:

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Clyde Bolton, a member of the Birmingham News sports staff the past 17 years, has authored several popular books, including The Crimson Tide, War Eagle, Unforgettable Days in Southern Football, and The Basketball Tide. He majored in pharmacy at Jacksonville (Ala.) University and began his sportswriting career at the Anniston (Ala.) Star in 1954.

cur," a Southern coach known for producing quality linebackers said. "When the quarterback puts the ball in the fullback's stomach, does the fullback have it or doesn't he? Try answering that question in the blink of an eye with a blocker ramming in on you.

"There are a lot of things that tell you where the ball is, the blocking, the movement of players. A kid has to learn to feel these things. If you just depend on your eyesight you're going to lose the ball sometimes. And all this goes back to being able to digest scouting reports and coaching. There's intelligence involved and there's instinct, too."

And don't forget height and weight, though a boy can make up for deficits in either with instinct and aggressiveness.

"Of course, everybody is looking for that boy to play linebacker who stands 6-2 or 6-3 and weighs 210 to 230 pounds and who has good speed, maybe 4.7 in the 40-yard dash," a Southwest Conference coach said. "But there are so many other things involved that you can't set arbitrary limits. How badly a kid wants to play certainly has an effect. And can he get to the ball carrier? That's not sheer speed, getting to the runner. A kid who runs the 40-yard dash in 4.7 seconds may not get to the ball carrier as fast as one who does it in 5.0. And after a boy gets there he has to attack ferociously. You can't be a passive player and be a linebacker."

On pass defense, a linebacker normally covers a running back. Theoretically, that should be a mismatch. It's up to the linebacker to assure that it isn't.

"Sure, you'd expect the running back to be faster in most instances," the Southeastern Conference coach said. "Of course, he has to leave from the backfield to get to the linebacker, so there's a little compensation there. But it takes a good linebacker to cover a real fast running back."

"That's my favorite part of the game," said a 225-pound linebacker, "covering a 180-pound running back who is out for a pass. Now that's a real challenge, because I'm not the fastest guy in the world anyway. But when you have a good day in that phase of the game it gives you a warm feeling."

On running plays, the linebacker may be blocked by any of several members of the offensive team. There's no depending on it being any one man. So when they say a linebacker must be versatile, they mean in spades.

Coaches seeking college linebackers usually look toward high school linebackers, but they come from other positions, too. "We project them at the position they play in high school," one Midwestern coach said. "But it's common for former high school fullbacks to be college linebackers. Maybe a guy doesn't quite have the speed to be a college fullback, but he's tough. Perhaps he's what we're looking for in a linebacker."

Fans of one Southeastern Conference school cheered last season when their speedy linebacker ran down an escaped runner who already had gotten past the secondary.

But they weren't shocked, because he is a former high school running back himself, author of 2,035 yards rushing and 37 scrimmage touchdowns as a prep senior. Now he's a light, quick, junior linebacker who gets just as much fun out of playing defense as he did offense.

"I wondered how I would like defense," said one Eastern college linebacker who had primarily been an offensive fullback in high school. "I used to see myself in the light of the great fullbacks, but I started thinking of myself in the light of the great linebackers, and I kinda liked that image: a fellow who is part back, part lineman; a guy who must play the pass and the run; a man who has a chance to be in on a lot of tackles. And, hey, a guy who might even score a touchdown along the way. Well, I did score one on an interception, and I think it meant more to me than it would have if I had been a fullback and scored."

"I've really found a home on defense, though I never played it all that much in high school. If I had the chance to play offense now I wouldn't want to, not if it meant leaving the defense."

"One thing I really enjoy is the mental scrimmage of linebacking. You have to have quite a picture of the game in your head. I like the responsibility of calling signals, and I like to see something I've called result in the other team having a no-gain or losing ground or coming up short near the goal line. It's as satisfying to stop the other team from scoring as it is to score yourself. From the linebacking position you come to view football as a big chess game."

"I wouldn't say the linebacker is the best athlete on the field, but he certainly has to be able to do a lot of things. There's a blend of rock 'em, sock 'em and finesse in a good linebacker that's interesting."

So they come in all weights, heights, and speeds, these men who are neither backs nor linemen (or maybe both backs and linemen), and a good one is a joy to behold. And coach.

DO-IT-YOURSELF STATS N' FACTS

Every football fan knows that the score doesn't always give a good picture of a game. A few statistics, like those that can be kept on this page can make the picture clearer, show what the individual stars contribute and help to win post-game "debates." Besides, it can be fun to second guess the official scorers whose statistics will appear in tomorrow's papers. But before you start, here are some pointers on being a statistician:

1. Keep cumulative totals to be informed "up to the minute" and to simplify your figuring of team totals. EXAMPLE: Jones gains 3, 6, 9, 2 yards and you write 3, 9, 18, 20 on his line.
2. On plays involving penalties measured from the point of the foul, credit the rusher or pass receiver with yardage only to the point of the infraction.
3. Charge gains and losses on fumbles to the player who, in your judgement, contributed most to the error.
4. Don't score two-point conversion attempts after touchdowns as rushing or passing plays.

The Best In SEC Defense

picking off five as a sophomore.

Word around the SEC is that Tennessee should be the most improved team in the conference this season—and that includes defense—because the Vols had a fantastic recruiting year.

But Johnny Majors, who suffered through a 4-7 season—Tennessee's worst in nearly 70 years—in his first campaign as coach of the Vols, says he isn't counting on freshmen this Fall.

"This would have to be the best freshman class in the history of college football to make contenders out of our team," says Majors. "I don't believe in any such thing as a can't-miss freshman. I told my staff I didn't want to hear anyone say we had to wait on a freshman to fill a position."

Majors feels defense is the key to Vol chances in '78. "The only way we have a chance defensively is to scratch, claw and fight," he says. "Our defense needs shoring up. We lost six regulars and another part-time starter, but I'll be disappointed if our defense isn't better than last year."

Majors rates Jim Noonan, a 225-pound junior middle guard, "our only front-five man with proven SEC-caliber talent." He is also high on junior defensive back Roland James and feels 192-pound senior Dennis Wolfe and 225-pound junior Steve Davis will be more than adequate at linebacker. The other linebacker, 220-pound junior Craig Puki, is coming off a knee injury.

Despite Majors' statement about freshmen, don't be surprised to see 248-pound Carlton Gunn of Tampa, Fla., quickly move into a starting role at linebacker and Otis Lee Burton, from Americus, Ga., quickly become a starting tackle.

Mississippi State feels it may have one of the best defensive performers in the SEC in 6-7, 250-pound sophomore tackle Tyrone Keys. Keys figures to replace all-conference performer Larry Gillard, one of 13 seniors on Mississippi State's defensive unit last Fall.

"We're enthusiastic about getting started," said Keys. "We have some people returning who are ready to take up where we left off."

Mississippi State has two all-star candidates in its secondary—junior Kenny Johnson and senior Gerald Jackson.

Florida Coach Doug Dickey revamped his defensive coaching staff after the Gators finished last in SEC defense despite the play of Hutchinson and Brantley.

The Florida defense has a lot of returning veterans, but Dickey says "They must prove their intensity of play in order to compete. We were not happy with our secondary and that was rebuilt this Spring."

The Gators return six defensive starters plus defensive back Warren Gaffney, who missed the '77 season after having a good year in '76. Brantley appears to be the key to the Gator defense and Dickey is anxious to see how he'll perform after his operation.

Ed Smith is one of six defensive starters returning at Vanderbilt, but the Commodores will have 18 sophomores among their top 33 defenders.

"With so many young players on our roster, and so many athletes on whom we're depending coming in as freshmen, we are going to need some time," says Pancoast. "But, with Arkansas and Alabama as two of our first three opponents, we won't have time."

Vandy's top two defensive linemen should be 250-pound sophomore Rodney Gurley and 230-pound junior Rickey Dean at tackles. Pancoast feels he has two all-star candidates in his defensive backfield—junior safety Ronnie Myrick and senior cornerback Walter "Bugs" Jordan.

Georgia Offensive Coach Bill Pace says defenses in the SEC will have to adjust this Fall because so many of the SEC teams are abandoning the option offenses.

"The defenses are becoming more astute in reacting to option offenses," says Pace. "Defenses are asking you to throw more because they are supporting the run so hard now. You are going to see more passing to get after those option-oriented defenses."

This means you will see more emphasis this Fall on pass rushing and more movement in the secondaries. This change could bring some defensive people into the limelight who weren't as effective against the wishbone or the veer.

TOUCHDOWN RULES QUIZ

1. With a second-and-four at their own 43-yard line, Stanford lines up in its standard offensive set, with two running backs. At the snap, the guards pull and the quarterback fakes to the fullback on an apparent sweep, but hides the ball on his hip. As the blocking wall is heading downfield, knocking down the Oregon linebackers and secondary men coming up for the run, the quarterback drops a little screen pass to the halfback, who is still behind the line of scrimmage. An outraged Oregon fan screams, "Ineligible receivers downfield!!" Is he right?

2. In the waning moments of the first half, an Arkansas drive has stalled out on the Rice 34-yard line. The kicker hurries onto the field for a 51-yard field goal attempt, but misses in the breeze. Rice gets the ball back for a couple of plays, but how do they get it back?

- A. Arkansas kicks off to them.
- B. Rice gets the ball on its own 20-yard line.
- C. Rice gets the ball on its own 34-yard line.

3. Under a fierce pass rush by the New Mexico forward wall, the Brigham Young quarterback searches through the forest of onrushing red jerseys, spots one of his teammates' white ones, and flings the ball in that general direction as he is being swarmed under. Immediately, all of his teammates point to the player, a tackle, as the man the ball was "passed" to. Will there be a flag on the play for intentional grounding?

4. A Florida wide receiver heads upfield at the snap, then breaks to the sideline, and the Georgia defender comes rushing up, anticipating a sideline pattern. Just as the defender gets there, and before the pass is thrown, the receiver cuts upfield again, so the DB exercises his option and "bumps" the man out of bounds. The receiver comes back in bounds to catch the ball at the Georgia 20-yard line, and crosses the goal line. Is it:

- A. Florida touchdown.
- B. Florida ball on the Georgia 20.
- C. Incomplete forward pass.
- D. Pass interference against Georgia.

5. On a fourth-and-two from its own 33-yard line, Dartmouth punts to the Yale safety, who is on his own 30-yard line. Several of his teammates have peeled back to block for him, but he signals a fair catch. Just before the ball comes down, an eager Dartmouth player crashes into one of the Yale blockers, knocking him into the safety, who then can't handle the punt as he is falling, and Dartmouth recovers. Is it:

- A. Dartmouth ball, first-and-ten.
- B. Yale ball, first down on its 30-yard line.
- C. Yale ball, first down on its 45-yard line.
- D. Yale ball, first down on the Dartmouth 33-yard line.

6. Attempting to take advantage of Indiana's pass coverage, Michigan State floods a deep zone with receivers on a pass play. The Indiana cornerback goes up for the ball at the same time as one of the Spartan receivers, who is only able to tip the ball away from the defender. It falls into the hands of another MSU player, who races toward the goal line, pursued by two defenders. The first makes a saving tackle, hitting the MSU player so hard that he fumbles the ball. It bounces into the end zone, where it is fielded by the second Indiana defender on the first hop. He races out of the end zone toward the sideline, and is finally pushed out of bounds on his own 36-yard line. Is it:

- A. A touchback; Indiana ball on their 20.
- B. Indiana ball on their 36.
- C. Michigan State ball at the point of the catch.
- D. Michigan State ball at the original line of scrimmage, with loss of down.

7. From the Oklahoma 38-yard line, a Kansas punter tries to angle a punt out-of-bounds near the goal line, so the Sooners would have bad field position. Unfortunately, the punt is clearly going to stay in bounds. The Oklahoma safety moves under it to signal a fair catch, thinking he will let it go into the end zone for a touchback. As he signals, he has drifted back into the end zone, and after the ball hits, he blocks one of the Kansas players who has come down field to cover the punt. Is it:

- A. A touchback, Oklahoma ball on their 20-yard line.
- B. A safety, two points for Kansas.
- C. Penalty, Kansas ball 15 yards from the original line of scrimmage.
- D. Penalty, Oklahoma ball first-and-twenty from their 10-yard line.

ANSWERS:

1. No. On a screen pass, blockers may go downfield before the pass if the pass is caught behind the line of scrimmage.
2. C. The ball returns to the original line of scrimmage on missed field goals from outside the 20.
3. Yes. The man in the vicinity of the end zone must be an eligible pass receiver.
4. A. Eligible receivers who are blocked or pushed out of bounds by an opponent may come back in bounds on a play and become eligible receivers again.
5. C. Interference with a fair catch is a 15-yard penalty.
6. A. A defensive team may not advance a fumble after it hits the ground. (Also, two offensive players may touch the ball with no defender touching it in between on a pass play.)
7. B. A player who signals for a fair catch and then does not touch the ball may not block anyone on that play. (Penalty—15 yards; if in the end zone, it's a safety.)

A remote reason for buying a Sony TV.

Obviously, people don't buy Sony Trinitron® Color TVs because of our remote control.

They buy them, primarily, for our unique Trinitron one-gun, one-lens system — the thing that's largely responsible for the remarkable Sony picture.

But what is interesting to note, is that one out of every four people who buy Sony Trinitrons buys one with remote control.

We guess they just naturally feel more comfortable with Sony's remote control system. And with good reason. Sony's remote models go one step further, with quick, silent, all-electronic channel selection and tuning.

Sony remote control is available on our 15", 17", 19" and 21" models (measured diagonally).

As we said before, it may not be the main reason for buying a Sony. But it's not such a bad one either.

Football Foundation's dream

Hall of Fame a success story

by JIMMIE McDOWELL, executive director, National Football Foundation

It was a long time coming, but August 3, 1978, was a great day for the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame and a great day for college football.

On that day at Kings Island, Ohio, the National Football Foundation's Hall of Fame, honoring the game's great college players and coaches, was dedicated.

Located on 10 acres of land given to the foundation by the Taft Broadcasting Company, the building cost more than $3 million. In arranging the construction and financing of the building, Taft—with the foundation's approval—also provides the management staff at Kings Island. The foundation's executive office remains in New York City, as will the traditional Hall of Fame dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria.

The Hall of Fame building at Kings Island is a beautiful Georgian-colonial style, designed to resemble a stately old college campus, and houses 33,000 square feet of space on two levels.

The 10-acre site of the Hall of Fame includes ample parking and a full-size football field next to the building for clinics, demonstrations and practice. Inside, the Hall of Fame includes exhibits that bring football history to life, action-oriented attractions which encourage visitor participation, spirited live entertainment and one of the finest historical collections of college football literature, film and memorabilia ever assembled under one roof.

Everywhere one looks in the Hall of Fame's interior the pageantry, power and spectacle that perpetuate college football come to life. Halls of Fame ordinarily are quiet, museum-like places, but college football fans are notorious lovers of action; and that's just what they get at the Hall of Fame.

In the 250-seat Grandstand Theatre a multimedia live Broadway-type show featuring the history of football in song and dance is performed several times daily.

The Hall of Fame also features a variety of minitheatres, including a 75-seat Sidelines Theatre where educational and entertaining films run continuously, including those of great tackles and spectacular runs in slow motion and the evolution of the game's techniques, equipment and uniforms to the present.

The Knute Rockne Locker Room, a 25-seat theatre in an authentic locker room setting, features an audio-visual show on great college football coaches.

In the Strategy Room, visitors try exciting electronic football games which test their game strategy in situations faced by history's greatest coaches. At the Computer Information Center, fans quiz the Hall of Fame computer, which is fully programmed with up-to-the-minute information on records, coaches, players and teams.

Besides learning, listening, looking and experiencing you also participate in the game at the Hall of Fame. Visitors tee up the ball and attempt a field goal, and an electronic device measures the kick's direction and distance.

Fans who are interested in the part television plays in today's college football find the TV Telecast Unit fascinating.

Overlooking the scale-size football field is the Press Box, an exhibit with everything found in an actual press box which salutes the outstanding media personalities for their coverage of the game of football.

What may well be the highlight of every fan's trip to the Hall of Fame is the Time Tunnel, through which visitors walk to experience a multimedia environment depicting football's historical growth and development from 478 B.C. (the Greek football-like game of harpaston) to the present.

For the studious football fans who want to get deeper into the game's history, a Hall of Fame Library and Archives is available.

STADIUM INFORMATION

FIRST AID—The University of Kentucky provides, for your convenience and welfare, First Aid Stations on the ground level on both sides of the stadium. On the West side is Room 156, the East side Room 172. An ambulance is available at each corner of the stadium. Twenty doctors on duty are spotted in each section of the stadium and are easily accessible to Boy Scouts and ushers. Two golf cart ambulances are equipped for immediate aid and located on the second level on each side of the stadium. Persons with any type of chronic medical problem are requested to leave their name and seat location with the nurse on duty at either First Aid station. A person in need of assistance with a health emergency should report the situation immediately to the nearest Boy Scout or usher.

CARDIAC CARE—In cooperation with the University Medical Service, the University of Kentucky provides a cardiac resuscitation program.

LOST AND FOUND—Lost and found articles should be reported or turned in to an usher or a security officer. You may wish to write to the director of public safety (305 Euclid Avenue) and describe lost articles which will be returned if found.

CROWD NOISE PENALTY—Uncontrolled crowd noise can result in a five yard penalty against your team. Please observe quarterback and official's signals for quiet.

NO HORNS—Horns are not permitted in Commonwealth Stadium and will be picked up at gates. Be considerate and allow your neighbor to enjoy the game. Keep portable radios at a low volume.

GATE INFORMATION—All gates are open two hours before game time. Parking lots are open three hours before game time. All stadium exits will be opened after the game. Please do not leave the stadium during the game or at half-time if you plan to re-enter. No "Pass-out" tickets will be issued and you will not be permitted to re-enter.

FIELD REGULATIONS—Spectators must keep off the playing field at all times and after the game. Spectators must use the stadium ramps for exits.

LIQUORS—Alcoholic beverages are strictly prohibited within the stadium as are all food and drink containers including hard surfaced materials of any type, bottles, cans, thermos bottles, ice bags, ice chest, and any object related to above. Gate personnel are instructed to enforce this rule in the interest of safety.

PUBLIC ADDRESS—Messages for the public address announcer are acceptable only in emergencies and must be approved by the Sports Information Director at the Press Box.

SIGNS—Signs and barriers are restricted for Commonwealth Stadium in accordance with University regulations and policies established by the Public Safety Division.

PARKING—More than 5,000 parking spaces are located in four lots around the stadium, along with a bus-camper lot. Some areas are set aside for Blue & White Fund members, handicapped persons, staff and the press. Located nearby on the campus are many free parking spaces in University lots. Shuttle buses carry passengers to and from the campus lots and the stadium.

GENERAL TICKET POLICY FOR STADIUM

- All persons must have a ticket
- No pass out checks permitted at any gate
- All sales final
- Tickets cannot be refunded or replaced if lost, stolen or destroyed
- The University of Kentucky Athletic Association reserves the right to revoke tickets by refund of purchase price
- Holder of tickets to University of Kentucky athletic events agrees to abide by stadium and University Policies

THE NEW OFFICIAL WILDCAT PRINT

Approximately 18 months ago, John David Willett, a 28-year-old Bardstown businessman who formerly played linebacker for the Alabama football team, approached University of Kentucky athletics director Cliff Hagan with the thought that an official Wildcat print should be produced, copyrighted and marketed for the benefit of the UK Athletics Association.

"I thought it a shame," Willett said, "that of all the (Wildcat) paraphernalia sold, the UK Athletics Association realizes little benefit."

The end result of Willett's visit with Hagan was the commissioning of Terrell Dickey (now deceased) to paint a Wildcat officially sanctioned by the UK Athletics Association, with the association sharing in proceeds from sale of that painting.

Dickey located a real Kentucky wildcat, photographed it and then did his sketches from those photographs. His rendition of the Kentucky Wildcat, pictured on the opposite page, is recognized by the Athletics Association as its official Wildcat print.

Wildcat Marching Band

The 1978 University of Kentucky "Wildcat" Marching Band numbers some 270 members from almost every college of the University. The members come from each geographical area of Kentucky and from the states of Ohio, New York, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Michigan, West Virginia, Georgia, Tennessee, New Jersey and Indiana.

Except for the two directors, the band is largely student run, with group leaders and a section leader for each instrument, a group of some twenty marching assistants, a head flag, head majorette, a percussion head and coordinator, and an Executive Board of elected officers.

— PREGAME —

The music for Pregame includes "People," "Another Opening, Another Show" and one of the marches "Semper Fidelis" or "Band of America." Pregame also includes the traditional Marching "K" and "On, On, U of K."

— HALFTIME —

The entrance music for this evening's show is "Marche Militaire Francais" from Suite Algerienne by Camille Saint Saens. After this exciting opener the band plays the disco sounds of today, beginning with Barry Manilow's smash hit "Copacabana." The major-ette's routine promises to turn Commonwealth Stadium into the "hottest spot north of Havana." From the movie soundtrack "Thank God It's Friday" the band presents in concert "Last Dance." The program ends tonight with a medley of hits from the movie "Saturday Night Fever," including "Staying Alive," "Disco Inferno," "How Deep Is Your Love," and "Saturday Night Fever."

Historical Step:

The merger of the men and women's athletic program marked the solidification of two philosophically and historically different athletic programs. The men's program, which has been under the auspices of the Athletic Association, and the women's program, formerly aligned with the Division of Student Affairs, were officially united July 1, 1978.

The merger has brought change to both programs. Lady Kat director Sue Feamster became UK Athletic Association's first woman Assistant Athletic Director, and the men and women's training program and track teams have been unified. Alumni Gym has been readied over the summer for level III sports offices. The structure will undergo continual renovation throughout the year.

There are inherent differences in both programs, for instance: the men are governed by NCAA and the women by AIAW—men compete in the S.E.C. while the women in the state KWIC and Southern Region II. Different organizational rules govern each.

The transition has gone smoothly although both UK Athletics Director Cliff Hagan and Feamster expect it will take at least a year to iron out any wrinkles in the Association merger.

UPDATE

Women's Cross-Country Team won the State Invitational Cross-Country Championship, September 30.

Betty Lou Evans' coaching debut was good enough for a second place finish in the Purdue Invitational.

Volleyball is being put on the map by head coach, Delphine Nemeth. Her charges recently defeated Northern Ky., 1978 State and Regional Champs.

Claudia Young's Tennis team is off to another super year. Going undefeated in fall competition last year, Young is looking for an unprecedented fourth state title.

PROFILE

Betty Lou Evans

New head golf coach, former teacher and coach hails from Mt. Sterling, Ky. An honor graduate of Transylvania, Evans has a vast background in golf. One of Kentucky's outstanding women's touring players, Evans is also president of the Kentucky Women's Golf Association. Very civic minded, Mrs. Evans also holds or has held, the following presidencies or chairmanships: Mt. Sterling Woman's Club, Central Ky. Golf Association, Women's Christian Fellowship of the State Board of Christian Churches.

Pat Etcheberry

Etcheberry—native of South America—adds a new dimension to the UK Track program. The entire men and women's track program, cross-country, indoor and outdoor, were merged and Etcheberry named head coach, primarily for his work with the strength programs of the football and basketball teams, has been assisting the women's program for several years prior to the merger.

Flash:

This year, for the first time, you can purchase Lady Kat Basketball season tickets. The season tickets, if purchased prior to October 20, will be packaged at $2/game or $24 for the pass.

Regular admission for all home games will be $3 at the gate. For further information contact the UK ticket office.

Kentucky opens Nov. 8 with a Celebrity Game featuring among many Kentucky notables; Gloria Singletary—announcer; Anita Madden—head cheerleader, and Tommy Bell—referee.
