The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the United States under the leadership of Dr. Otis Singletary, the eighth president of the University.

Dr. Singletary was named president of the University in August, 1969. He had previously served as executive vice-chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas System and director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Dr. Singletary, a native of Gulfport, Miss., holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University.

As president of the principal institution of higher learning in the Commonwealth, Dr. Singletary is greatly concerned with the University's role as a land-grant institution, a "people's university" accessible to all who can profit from education.

In the eight years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now some 22,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 17,000 students in UK's 13 community colleges, and the University has become one of the major research institutions in the country.

Recognition of his service to the University was evidenced by the UK Alumni Association, which presented to Dr. Singletary its Alumni Service Award—an honor rarely bestowed upon a non-alumnus of the University.

DR. OTIS A. SINGLETARY

President, University of Kentucky

Dr. Singletary is the author of two books and several monographs.

A Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean Conflict, he is a commander in the U.S. Naval Reserve. He and Mrs. Singletary, the former Gloria Walton, have three children: Bonnie, Scot and Kendall.

The Singletarys live at Maxwell Place, traditional home of UK presidents.

CLIFFORD O. HAGAN

Director of Athletics

Progress and excitement have marked Cliff Hagan's first two years as director of athletics at the University of Kentucky, and football has been a major part of the overall success of his program.

Two of his personal "high peaks" last year were possession of the beer barrel and the Peach Bowl trophy, respectively, after the Wildcats defeated Tennessee at Knoxville and North Carolina at Atlanta.

Other high peaks in football were an 8-4 record, the Wildcats' best in 25 years, and a record-breaking attendance of 393,483 at seven home games in Commonwealth Stadium.

Elsewhere on the UK sports scene, the basketball Wildcats, coming off a 1976 NIT championship, were conference co-champions and advanced to the finals of the Eastern Regionals.

One of Hagan's primary aims since becoming AD has been to upgrade the Wildcat athletic facilities. Recent improvements include a new baseball pressbox, resodding of the Commonwealth Stadium field, beginning of construction of a new basketball house, completion of a 110-yard Astro-Turf practice field in the Shively Sports Center complex, installation of open-air type lockers in the dressing rooms, and a planned expansion of the main building, with the size of training and conditioning rooms to be increased.

Hagan joined the Wildcat athletics staff as assistant to Harry Lancaster, with varied administrative duties, including creation and implementation of the Blue & White Fund for the then-new Commonwealth Stadium. He was named director of athletics in July 1975, while Lancaster, whose retirement was not effective until February of 1976, remained as a special assistant to Hagan.

Hagan's path to the athletics directorship began at Owensboro, Kentucky, where he established a then state high school tournament record of 41 points in leading Owensboro to victory over Lafayette in the championship game of the 1949 tournament.

At UK, he played on teams that won 86 of 91 games and an NCAA championship (1951). The 1954 team, undefeated in 25 games, elected not to participate in the national tournament.

Hagan set a dozen Southeastern Conference records and an NCAA record of 528 rebounds as a junior. He averaged 24 points a game, led the nation in rebounding, and scored a UK record of 51 points against Temple in 1954.

After graduating from UK in 1954, Hagan served two years at Andrews Air Force Base, Washington, D. C., as a commissioned officer. He led the base to two World Wide Air Force championships and won All-Service honors both years.

During ten years with the St. Louis Hawks, he ranked high among 11 players on the league scoring charts with 12,433 points in 672 games for an 18.5 mark and was selected to play in five East-West All-Star games and was named to the NBA second All-League team twice. He hit over .790 from the free throw line seven years in a row and held the NBA record for most field goals scored in a single quarter (12).

During his 11th year in St. Louis, Hagan did radio and television commentary for the Hawks' basketball team and for Anheuser Busch.

He then joined the Dallas Chaparrals as player-coach and was selected as the 1958 Texas Professional Coach of the Year. When he left Dallas, he was only 92 points shy of a regular-season career total of 15,000 points.

In 1974, he was named to the Hall of Fame Magazine's All-America second-team for the 1951-1973 period, to the Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel Star's All-Time Southeastern Conference first team, and the All-Time top collegiate player in the State of Kentucky by Inside Kentucky Sports Magazine. In 1975, he was named to the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame, was inducted into the UK Alumni Association Hall of Distinguished Alumni and was a recipient of the University of Kentucky Centennial "K" Medallion tendered by the UKAA for past athletic accomplishments, during UK's Centennial Year observance.

He is married to the former Martha Milton of Owensboro. They have four children: Lisa, Laurie, Amy, and Kip.

SHOW

FRAN CURCI

Now in his fifth year as head football coach at the University of Kentucky, Fran Curci reigns as the most successful Wildcat grid mentor since the nationally famous Paul (Bear) Bryant and Blanton Collier led the "Big Blue" during the 1946-61 years.

In addition to posting two winning seasons in the past four years, something that had not happened at Kentucky in 20 years, Curci led the Wildcats to a 7-4 regular season record, their best since Blanton Collier's 1954 team finished 7-3, and to their first post-season appearance—the Peach Bowl—in a quarter-century.

Another amazing thing about the 1976 season was a tie for third place in the Southeastern Conference after practically all experts had picked the 'Cats to finish last.

Curci's combined record at UK now is 21-23-1, compared to 35-74-4 for his two immediate predecessors. He was 5-6 his first season, best record for a UK team in seven years, and then gave the Wildcat fans a 6-5 record for their first winning season in eight years.

Plagued by injuries, failure to find a suitable quarterback and some unfortunate extemporaneous factors, the Wildcats fell to 2-8-1 in 1975 and were counted out of conference and national contention in the 1976 pre-season roundups.

Then came the 1976 season, which included victories over such national powers as Penn State, Florida and LSU, and was climaxed by a 7-0 victory over Tennessee. It was Kentucky's first victory over the Vols in 12 years.

A 21-0 victory over North Carolina in the Peach Bowl gave Curci an 8-4 record, best for a UK coach since Bryant's 1951 team finished 7-4 and then beat TCU in the Cotton Bowl.

Curci came to the University from the University of Miami, Fla., where he was head coach two years. He started his career as freshman coach at Miami in 1962 after making All-American there in 1959 and playing as a 5-foot-9, 152 lb. quarterback for the old Dallas Texans of the AFL. In four years his Hurricane frosh teams won 12 and lost two. He later served as varsity offensive assistant at Miami (1966-67) and in both of those years Miami wound up in bowl games.

He was tapped by the University of Tampa in 1968 to see what he could do about a faltering football program; in three campaigns, he wrote one of the most amazing success stories in college football.

In his first year at Tampa, he put together a 7-3 season, which included victories over Mississippi State and Tulane. That earned for him the Florida Sports Writers Association "Coach of the Year" award, a recognition repeated in 1970. Curci's 1969 season was a brilliant 8-2 affair. His 10-1 record in 1970 also included a 31-14 triumph over Miami and brought the Tampans the nation's No. 1 College Division ranking as well as bringing Curci College Division "Coach of the Year" runner-up honors.

He took over as Miami grid boss Dec. 19, 1970, and left the program there in good shape for his successor.

A native of Pittsburgh, Pa., he played his high school ball in Miami, where he lettered three years as a quarterback at Archbishop Curley High and was All-City, All-Conference, Catholic All-State and his team's Most Valuable Player.

At the University of Miami, he was known as the "Mite-y Magician." Playing at 152 pounds, he parlayed intelligence and desire to become All-America as a senior in 1959 after receiving honorable mention All-America and winning acclaim as one of the foremost sophomore football stars in the country in 1957.

His record-shattering feats at Miami included breaking of seasonal and career marks for total offense, most passes thrown, most passes completed and most yards gained on passing. He also was co-holder of the record for most TD passes thrown.

He rolled up 2,767 yards rushing and passing during his varsity career, breaking a total offense record that had stood for more than two decades.

After graduation in 1960 with a degree in marketing, he played one year with the Dallas Texans and then served as a lieutenant in the Army, coaching and playing football for the Fort Eustis team, which won the National Service championship in the Missile Bowl.

Dallas TIMES HERALD

T rue, Tony Dorsett and Ricky Bell and assorted other Great Dirt Machines have gone with the wins. Accord them respectful goodbyes and then return to your seat as quickly as possible and fasten the belts. Another batch of dynamite performers is due to snatch the autumn spotlight with little loss of glitter.

In keeping with the overall national economy, college offense has been struck by inflation, and struck again and again. The cost of defending keeps going up.

Only the names have been changed. Where it was Ricky Bell, now it will be Charles White of the same Southern California address. Headlines hogged by Dorsett last year may now go into the scrapbook of Terry Miller, the Oklahoma State racehorse. Instead of Rice's Tommy Kramer throwing for gluttonous acreage, now it may be Gifford Nielsen, the Mormon Rifle from Brigham Young. And perhaps the spiciest ingredient of all will be a mischievous dervish named Wes Chandler of Florida, who could be the most exciting offensive weapon in the land.

Not only do college runners and throwers and catchers keep bettering their marks, but the 1977 offenses should be juiced even more by a rather significant change in the rules. Offensive linemen may now block downfield on screen passes, whereas they formerly were tethered to the line of scrimmage until the pass was caught.

In other words, linemen can tear downfield and block the pants off linebackers and cornerbacks without worrying about being whistled for "ineligible receiver downfield." Providing, of course, the pass receiver catches ball at or behind the line of scrimmage. This blocking liberation should do much to open the passing potential of Wishbone or Veer teams; the quarterback now may throw a short forward pass or shovel pass to the trailing halfback while guards and tackles are laying waste downfield as if the play were a run.

Blockers also can do the same on rollout option plays, without fretting whether the quarterback's flip to the trailing halfback is lateral or forward.

"This is the biggest change in the passing game since they changed the size of the ball," said Dave Nelson, secretary of the rules committee. The streamlined ball was introduced in 1934 and immediately brought national attention to performers like Slingin' Sammy Baugh, TCU's great passer of the mid-'30s.

Now, across the country, weary defensive coaches are arguing there was no reason to loosen the rules for offensive advantage. Already college offenses are rushing for 100 more yards per game than they were a decade ago. The rushers, however, because of the popularity of the Wishbone and Veer attacks, have been considerably ahead of the passing teams, which may account for the new rules.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Sports director Blackie Sherrod came to the Dallas Times Herald in 1958 after ten years with the Fort Worth Press. He has been elected Texas' outstanding sportswriter 13 times in the past 18 years by his news media contemporaries and in 1962 won the National Headliner Award for the most consistently outstanding sports column in America. His columns have won numerous other awards and have been reproduced in 19 Best Sports Stories anthologies published annually by E.P. Dutton.

As for the starring personnel—that Southern Cal production line of fantastic runners shows no indication of a slowdown. From the Trojan belt that produced O.J. Simpson, Clarence Davis, Anthony Davis, and Ricky Bell now steps Charles White. As a freshman tailback last season, White was Bell's understudy, but still he whipped off 858 yards when the senior tailback sat out injuries. White is built on one of those smaller lasts that have become so popular among collegiate tailbacks, 6'0" and 180 and able to run holes in the wind. Last season, he had runs of 79 and 60 yards, leading his coach to testify, "He's one of the best breakaway threats I've ever seen."

And yet White may have to split opportunity with Lynn Cain, a 205-pounder who has been lame with a knee injury for two seasons but now pronounces himself fit as a fiddle and ready to roll. Cain was the talk of the West Coast as a junior college halfback in 1974. For further confusion, Robinson calls fullback Mosi Tatupu (7.0 per carry) his "best all-around back."

Terry Miller, the Oklahoma State terror, finished fourth in the Heisman Trophy voting last season, behind Dorsett, Bell, and Rob Lytle of Michigan, the consensus All-America running backs. All have burnt up their eligibility.

Miller has 4.4 speed, exceptional for 195 pounds, and he seems fiercest when the challenge is greatest. Against Oklahoma last season, an outfit noted for its hardrock defense, Miller rushed 159 yards. He followed with 228 yards against Missouri. Add Nebraska, Kansas State, and Iowa State to that string and Miller averaged 191 running yards in

Miller, who actually plays in long panty girdles (to prevent pulled leg muscles), is one of 20 college runners returning to the track after 1,000-yard seasons in 1976. Elvis Peacock, from that Oklahoma speed stable, didn't; but then he is in a situation like that of Johnny Davis and Tony Nathan of Alabama and Alois Blackwell of Houston—their Wishbone or Veer attacks utilize so many different runners that they don't get as many running opportunities as some of their contemporaries. Like Miller and Jerome Persell of Western Michigan, for example; the latter averaged 27 carries as a sophomore last season, cashing them for 150 yards each Saturday.

Mike Williams, a 215-pound junior from New Mexico, is another with a heavy work load and he gains 112 yards weekly and is an effective receiver as well. Ben (Go-Go) Garry of Southern Mississippi is not as large (197), but he's durable enough to carry 20 times a game and average 5.2 yards per try.

Two of the busiest backs in the land are from the same conference and have comparable dimensions—George Woodard, the Texas A&M fullback who plays anywhere from 230 to 250 pounds, and Earl Campbell, his counterpart at rival Texas, a 230-pound crusher who vows he'll be at full gallop for his senior season after a bout with bruises last year. Adding to the awe generally accorded Campbell is the fact that he'll probably run wide this fall, as well as smashing the middle. The Longhorn offense, under new coach Guy Benjamin was among top 5 passers in '76.

Fred Akers, will junk the Wishbone for the Veer attack with Campbell stationed as one of the deep backs.

Also from that sector of the country is a big (225) groundhog named Derrick Jensen, whose dogged travels on behalf of the modest University of Texas-Arlington team have escaped national recognition.

There are legions of others. Consider North Carolina State's Ted Brown who has gained 2,000 college yards and, he's still a junior! Roscoe Coles is one of those pint-sized rascals (5'9", 167) who must handle Wishbone blocking in addition to his travels, averaged 5.4 yards per carry and 101.7 yards per game for Virginia Tech, and that's the same play average as Theotis Brown, the UCLA junior dasher.

Yale's nifty John Pagliaro brings a 5.7-yard average into his senior season. Ohio's Arnold Welcher has put two 1,000-yard seasons back-to-back. Jeff Logan served his two-year apprenticeship at Ohio State well, although hidden by the considerable shadow of Archie Griffin. Inheriting the Buckeye's travel business department last season, Logan knocked off 106 yards per game and now enjoys his own pedigree.

Other members of that magic 1,000-yard club are Kim Kruis of William and Mary; Ben Cowins, with a gaudy 6.3 average at Arkansas; Dexter Green, who has two seasons left at Iowa State; Kevin McLee, the Georgia cracker; Calvin Prince of Louisville; James McDougald of Wake Forest; Mike Harkrader of Indiana (the latter two are sophomores!);

Six super running backs—each big, fast and determined—will be key men in the race for the 1977 Southeastern Conference championship.

Each has rolled up large gobs of yardage in the past, and each has his supporters as the premier back in a league of premier backs. Listed alphabetically:

• CHARLES ALEXANDER, Louisiana State, junior, 6'1", 214, has run the 100 in 9.4 and last season in a BACKUP role to Terry Robiskie he ran 155 times for 876 yards and a 5.7 average.

• JOHNNY DAVIS, Alabama, senior, 6'1", 227, has led the Crimson Tide rushers the past two seasons, carrying 123 times for 820 yards and a 6.7 average as a sophomore, 119 times for 668 yards and a 5.6 average last year. He's never lost a yard during his college career.

• DENNIS JOHNSON, Mississippi State, senior, 6'4", 235, led the Bulldogs last season with 152 carries for 859 yards and a 5.7 average, and he set the school one-game rushing record as a freshman against Memphis State with 26 carries for 198 yards.

• KEVIN MCLEE, Georgia, senior, 6'0", 195, became Georgia's first 1,000-yard rusher since 1942 Heisman Trophy winner Frankie Sinkwich last year when he carried 218 times for 1,058 yards and a 4.9 average. As a sophomore he ran 166 times for 806 yards and a 4.9 average. Those two seasons he scored a total of 16 touchdowns.

• ROD STEWART, Kentucky, junior,

6'2", 203, led the Wildcats' great comeback season as a sophomore, running 146 times for 711 yards and a 4.9 average, then topped off the campaign in the Peach Bowl against North Carolina by carrying 19 times for 104 yards.

• WILLIE WILDER, Florida, senior, 6'1", 195, has run a 9.5 100 and last year blossomed into the Gators' best runner in a stable of good runners, carrying 101 times for 654 yards, a 6.5 average and nine touchdowns. His 91-yard scoring jaunt against tough Mississippi State was the longest run from scrimmage by any collegiate back in 1976.

There are a horde of other running backs in the league who're just a tad behind that sextet in credentials, and several of them could prove to be just and Ron Rowland of Washington.

And for sleepers, remember the names of Charles Alexander of LSU, Dennis Johnson of Mississippi State, Steve Atkins of Maryland (who averaged 151 yards in four games before he got hurt), and two other injured players: David "Deacon" Turner (982 yards in 6 1/2 games) of San Diego State, and Bruce Gibson (733 yards in 5 1/2 games) of Pacific.

Wes Chandler, the Florida whirlwind, may be considered a handicapped player by some, because he is a wide receiver in a Wishbone offense, a position that serves as a decoy more than an active participant. Chandler caught 44 passes last season and averaged a sensational 22 yards per catch. His wild helter-skelter sprints (he broke five tackles in a 64-yard run against Auburn) also are utilized in punt and kickoff returns, and he may be the most dangerous game-breaker in the land. In this category also are Ozzie Newsome, who plays tight end, split end, and kick returner for Alabama; Joe Stewart, Missouri's slotback; and Arthur Whittington of Southern Methodist, a lean whippet who leads all returnees in all-purpose running.

And goodness knows the potential of Johnny "Lam" (from hometown of Lampasas) Jones, the Olympic sprinter who will be at his new post of flanker (beware of those screen passes and reverses) for the Texas Longhorns.

Other outstanding players are scattered all over the landscape. There's John Jefferson, big and fast and strong, at Arizona State, Preston Dennard of New Mexico, USC's Randy Simmrin, and TCU's Mike Renfro. Split end Philip Logan is South Carolina's third all-time career receiver, and is blazingly quick. Last year's third most productive catcher, Doug Cunningham of Rice, returns for his senior season, but he no longer has Tommy Kramer throwing to him.

Mike Levenseller of Washington State, last season's fourth leading receiver, will have veteran quarterback Jack Thompson on the launching end, and Thompson was the third collegiate passer last year as a sophomore. Receiver Dan Doornink, also of Washington State, has the same happy situation. Another top West Coast quarterback, Stanford's Guy Benjamin, was one of three Pac-8 players ranked in the top five nationally in passing.

Illinois State's Jeff Gowan has the same problem as Cunningham: his passer graduated. But Army's tall Clennie Brundidge will have Leamon Hall throwing to him again, and Todd Christensen, Brigham Young's big fullback, again will catch Gifford Nielsen, who may become the most prolific career passer in college history. He needs 2884 yards to break the career record of John Reeves of Florida.

Nielsen is the classic dropback passer, tall enough at 6'5" to see over the rushers. His agility is supported by his background of two years as a basketball starter at Brigham Young.

Then, there are the two-way quarterbacks like Rodney Allison of Texas Tech, Danny Davis of Houston, and Noel Mazzone of New Mexico, all of whom combine rushing talent with passing. Rick Leach of Michigan, for example, averaged 7.7 yards every time he took the snap, either running or passing, and Allison averaged 7.1.

And don't overlook Pitt's Matt Kavanaugh, 1977 Sugar Bowl MVP, who hit 59 percent of his passes when not handing off to Dorsett.

Ken MacAfee, the Notre Dame mountain, was almost everybody's All-America choice as tight end last year. His challengers this season, if any should dare, may include Jim Moore of Ohio State, who missed nine 1976 games with a knee injury, William Gay of Southern Cal, and George Freitas of California.

Offensive linemen generally are the most anonymous players at any level. "If I robbed a bank, I'd hide out in the offensive line," said one Southwestern coach. "Unless you jump offside, nobody notices you."

But there were enough coaches and scouts and pressboxers who noticed Chris Ward of Ohio State and Mark Donahue of Michigan last season to vote them consensus All-America tack-

280-ZZZAP

This is the latest Z-Car from Datsun. But allow us to delve into history for a moment to put it into perspective.

The 240-Z was the first Z ever. It had zap. One of a kind. A two-seater, four-speeder GT that quickly became America's most-wanted sports car. And you know, it still is. A good used one is worth more today than it originally cost.

Next came the 260-Z, and so did a lot of Z refinements. The engine grew, for example, from 2400cc's to 2600cc's. It had zzap. And so does its resale value. Then came the 280-Z, with an electronically fuel injected 2800cc overhead cam engine.

ZZZAP. To this year's Z, in both its two-passenger and four-passenger versions, we've added functional hood louvers, a 5-speed option, mag type wheel covers, breathable vinyl, center armrest console and 13 other small, but rather nifty, refinements. Z-Cars keep getting better.

It's like investing in a sure thing. Just see your Datsun Dealer for a zap-drive.

And if you decide to buy one and keep right on going, your friends will understand.

THE FREE SAFETY

Preventing the bomb is one of free safety's primary concerns.

by Pete Finney, New Orleans STATES-ITEM

If you could draw one up, you'd like him to be about 6'2", 190, a rangy guy who can run a 4.5 40 and have at least a B-plus average.

The free safety is the quarterback of the defense. It's a constant battle of wits, not only between him and the quarterback, but between him and the opposing offensive coach.

He needs the intelligence to make mini-second adjustments, he needs the speed and the range to cover a wide area of real estate, and he has one recurring king-size headache: making the tackle on the option play.

The option, something like the outside veer pioneered by the University of Houston, places more demands on the college free safety than on his pro counterpart. Actually, he is seldom what you call "free." With the option prevalent, defensive backs always must be alert to key the run, and, in the case of the free safety, it's essential to have a "can't miss" tackler.

From his station approximately 10 yards behind the line of scrimmage—lined up with the quarterback—the free safety is the tackle on the outside veer, that is, either on the quarterback or on the pitchman. Many times it gets to be a one-on-one situation when the quarterback fakes to the halfback, angling between tackle and end, and then either keeps or pitches to the trailing back. With the cornerback taken deep by an outside receiver, with the defensive end and tackle frozen by the fake, it can come down to the strong safety and free safety in one-on-one battles with the quarterback and trailing halfback.

THE SPORTS CARWAGON

The 1977 Corolla Liftbacks uniquely combine the features of a sporty car and a family wagon. Plus Toyota's durability and toughness—like welded unitized-body construction, not nuts and bolts, so you get a quiet ride.

Practical. A fold down, split rear seat makes these '77 Liftbacks three ways convenient: Carry two passengers. Carry one. Or carry up to 20 bags of groceries. And every Liftback comes with no-cost features like power front disc brakes, steel-belted radials, and many more. SR-5 Liftbacks also come with 5-speed overdrive transmission and sporty mag-type wheels as standard equipment.

Sporty. Performance is backed by a durable 1.6 liter engine. Match it with a 5-speed, overdrive transmission, the Deluxe model's standard 4-speed, or the optional 3-speed automatic, and you'll get great gas mileage and performance. For example: In 1977 EPA tests, the Deluxe model with 4-speed transmission got 38 mpg highway, 26 mpg city. These mileage figures are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on your driving habits and your car's condition and equipment. The 1977 Corolla Liftbacks. If you can find a better built small car than Toyota... buy it.

FREE SAFETY

When the option suddenly becomes a pass, the free safety must be able to recover.

Basically, there are five receivers who can come from the offensive alignment. If a team is using a four-deep secondary and committing three of those players to "man defense" and two of the front line (linebackers) to "man" coverage, then there is a free man left in the secondary. In this case, the term "free" is applicable.

The four-deep scheme of play is probably the most popular today. The free safety and strong safety are usually interchangeable. However, as a rule, the free safety usually is the faster and quicker of the two, so his talents are needed more in the middle of the secondary rather than to one side of the offense.

In the three-deep scheme, eight players stay relatively close to the line of scrimmage, the remaining three defending the deep and outside passing zones. The free safety usually plays deeper (12-to-15 yards) in the three-deep than he does in the four-deep.

Maryland's Jerry Claiborne, a three-deep proponent, acknowledges there are some holes in the scheme—a good passer can hit the short ones—but he feels it provides the soundest coverage to stop the long touchdown pass. On the basic coverage, the tackles are the contain men while the ends drop off to cover the outside zones. Most always the safety acts as the centerfielder.

Most teams employ a variety of disguise coverages. Against a strong running team, they will move into "man" coverage, one that allows good pressure from the ends and tackles, the safety being responsible for the tight end in the event of a pass. In the three-deep, when teams blitz their front eight, the same responsibility exists; that is, the safety is responsible for the tight end, the corners for the outside receivers.

Larry Wilson, who starred at the University of Utah before going on to additional fame as a free safety in the pros, says the secret to defensive football is knowing what the other ten men are doing. If you know you have inside help, for example, it allows you to play a receiver pretty tough to his outside and dare him to run inside. "There are two different styles of going back," says Wilson. "One is to backpedal, when you just go straight back still facing the line. To me, it's the best because you remain square. You don't turn your body, so you're able to go either way quickly. The other way is like a basketball player when you turn and slide. I don't like this way because it's tougher to change directions."

Wilson feels the hardest thing for a safety to recognize is the fly pattern because most receivers break outside, break inside, or hook. It makes a safety used to dropping back 12 to 14 yards hold up. This second's hesitancy can be fatal. "You have to keep your feet moving," explains Wilson, "because once you stop your feet and a guy comes by you, you're in trouble."

Among the most important skills for a safety are anticipation and range, along with speed, of course. Because of the ever-present demand of having to come up and make a tackle on the option, the college safety must be able to recover, that is, change courses when the outside option suddenly becomes a pass. This changes his assignment from making a tackle at the line of scrimmage. This alone makes it one of the most demanding jobs of the 22 positions, offense and defense. More often than not, a free safety in college has more one-on-one chances in six-point plays—making a tackle or breaking up a pass—than anyone else.

He starts out in a relaxed position, one that allows him to move in any of four directions. He must be able to bring everyone on the field into his vision, first keying the action and flow of the ball and then the receivers' actions.

The want ad would read something like this: Must be accurate open field tackler; able to trap runners or force them against the sideline; must be able to quickly recognize individual pass routes before they materialize; must understand pass-pattern strategy; should be able to anticipate passer's target; should be a smart, hustling leader-type athlete, a centerfielder with a lot more responsibilities.

Other than that, not much is required.

as valuable as the season progresses.

● FRANK MORDICA, Vanderbilt, sophomore, 6'0", 190, has run the 100 in 9.5 and the 40 in 4.35 (pro scouts doing the clocking on that latter amazing sprint). In a 34-10 triumph over Air Force he ran 23 times for 148 yards.

● TONY NATHAN, Alabama, junior, 6'2", 198, was Alabama's No. 2 rusher last year with 480 yards on 75 carries for a 6.4 average, and he led the triumph over Auburn by running 12 times for 141 yards.

● WILLIE McCLENDON, Georgia, junior, 6'2", 194, is a 9.7 sprinter who averaged 5.3 yards per carry in a backup role last year and blossomed in the spring to form a tremendous one-two punch with Kevin McLee.

● JOE CRIBBS, 5'10", 185, and FOSTER CHRISTY, 6'2", 198, are a pair of sophomores who head Auburn's plans for a comeback in '77. Each started several games as a freshman last year.

● TONY GREEN, 5'8", 183, and EARL CARR, 6'1", 205, are a pair of seniors who team with Wilder and quarterback Terry LeCount to give Florida what is probably the nation's fastest starting backfield, college or pro. They average 9.65 in the 100, 4.52 in the 40.

Green has 1,894 career rushing yards and a 5.8 average, while Carr averaged 8.6 yards per carry last year in a reserve role.

● JAMES STOREY, Ole Miss, senior, 6'0", 203, is supported by the Ole Miss staff as the best blocker in the SEC, and he's rushed for 729 yards and a 4.2 average over the past two seasons.

But the SEC has more than running backs. It's doubtful if any conference has three better receivers than the SEC's Big Three.

● WES CHANDLER, Florida, senior, 6'0", 188, won All-America honors last year when he caught 44 passes for 967 yards, 10 touchdowns and a 22.0 average.

● OZZIE NEWSOME, Alabama, senior, 6'3", 210, is a fourth-year regular for the Crimson Tide, alternating between split end and tight end. He's caught 66 passes for 1,266 yards and a 19.2 average.

● MARTIN COX, Vanderbilt, senior, 6'0", 175, was the league's No. 3 receiver last year behind Chandler and consensus All-America Larry Seivers of Tennessee, catching 38 passes for 738 yards and a 19.4 average.

● CURTIS WEATHERS, Ole Miss, junior 6'5", 219, has been the Rebels' tight end since his freshman year and has used his height and speed for several spectacular performances, including a four-catch, 76-yard day against Alabama.

And there are several standout quarterbacks in the league.

● BRUCE THREADGILL, Mississippi State, senior, 6'0", 185, had 1,361 yards of total offense last year, completing 45 of 89 passes for 807 yards and running 160 times for 554 net yards.

● DERRICK RAMSEY, Kentucky, senior, 6'5", 222, had 1,430 yards of total offense last year, hitting on 51 of 103 passes for 659 yards and running 187 times for 771 yards and a 4.1 average.

● JEFF RUTLEDGE, Alabama, junior, 6'2", 200, shared first-team quarterback duties last year and still amassed 1,018 yards of total offense, completing 62 of 109 passes for 979 yards and netting 39 yards rushing.

● PAT RYAN, Tennessee, senior, 6'3", 207, could be a key man in the Vols' rebuilding drive under new Coach Johnny Majors.

Five offensive linemen are rated by their coaches as being close to the best players on their squads.

● ROBERT DUGAS, LSU, junior tackle, 6'4", 261, consistently graded out the highest on the offensive line as a sophomore and is described as being physically fearsome.

● BRENT WATSON, senior tackle, 6'5", 250, and ROBERT SHAW, junior center, 6'4", 233, were the brightest spring spots at Tennessee.

● MIKE BIRDSONG, Vanderbilt,

senior tackle, 6'5", 272, switched from center in the spring and won the offensive team's spirit award and impressed his coaches at the new position.

● GEORGE COLLINS, Georgia, senior guard, 6'4", 225, moves from the left side to right guard this year, and the last two men to play that position at Georgia won All-America honors: Randy Johnson and Joel Parrish. It's a key position in the Dooley offensive scheme, and the Georgia coaches feel Collins would have won All-SEC honors last year if he hadn't been overshadowed by Parrish and All-America tackle Mike Wilson.

You won't hear the names Collins and Dugas as often this season as you will names of the running backs, but you wouldn't hear as much about McLee and Alexander if it weren't for people like Collins and Dugas. ●

I love tobacco. I don't smoke.

My tobacco pleasure is Smokeless. That means I get full tobacco enjoyment without lighting up, or tying up my hands. And you can too. With Copenhagen for straight tobacco taste. Or with my favorite, Skoal, with the wintergreen flavor. Then, of course, there's mild Happy Days Mint, for you guys that are just beginning. All three are dated for freshness. So just take a pinch and put it in between your cheek and gum. You'll see that going smokeless is a mighty nice way to enjoy tobacco, and mighty relaxing too.

If you can't find any of these fine brands at your local store, or if you're interested in just trying a few free pinches, write to: "Smokeless Tobacco," U.S. Tobacco Company, Dept. TD007, Greenwich, Conn. 06830. We'll tell you where to find "Smokeless Tobacco" in your area. And we'll send you a free sample in the mail.

les. Donahue especially, with his 275-pound hulk, is hard to overlook. But Michigan has at least a couple other offensive linemen worthy of note, which could be the reason the Wolverines were the nation's leading offensive and rushing team last season. Bill Dufek, another tackle, and center Walt Downing, both 6'4" and 250, were All-Big Ten selections last year.

The Pac Eight will field four respected forwards in Gus Coppens, UCLA tackle, Gordon King, a Stanford tackle, center Blair Bush of Washington, and Pat Howell of Southern Cal, a guard. Colorado nominates three offensive linemen for your approval—Steve Hakes, Matt Miller, and Leon White.

All-America selectors also will keep eyes peeled for the blocks of Dan Irons, Texas Tech tackle; Ernie Hughes, a Notre Dame guard; Tom Brzoza, Pitt's tackle who may shift to center; Greg Jorgensen, a Nebraska guard; Craig Duhe of LSU, along with five other Southeastern stars, Robert Shaw and Brent Watson of Tennessee, Mark Trogdon of Mississippi State, George Collins of Georgia, and Eric Smith of Southern Mississippi.

Kick scoring? Forget it. Tony Franklin, a barefoot soccer-style (although he never played) placekicker from Texas A&M, has two seasons remaining. His ten field goals from at least 50 yards already is the all-time career high among major college booters.

No, with Dorsett and Bell and Lytle and Kramer gone, college football offense may never be the same. It may be more so.

"Old Blue" conducts free, guided tours of the campus each Monday through Friday at 2 p.m.

'OLD BLUE'

IT'S THE WAY TO TOUR THE UK CAMPUS

Much more than a conversation piece, the University of Kentucky's English double-decker bus dubbed "Old Blue" has transported about 14,000 passengers since it took up residence at UK in the fall of 1974.

Old Blue is still a source of awe, however, for UK students who happen to pass its 14-foot high frame as the vehicle picks up a load of passengers for the Monday-through-Friday tour of the UK campus.

The bus, formerly part of the London omnibus fleet, has taken about 7,000 UK students, faculty, staff, alumni and visitors on the daily campus tours. Another 7,000 passengers have boarded the bus for special tours or conference transportation.

Old Blue was purchased by the UK Alumni Association and given to the University. It is painted the traditional UK blue and is the same bus that traveled the streets of London after it came off the assembly line 20 years ago.

Departing from beside the Administration Building each weekday at 2 p.m., Old Blue provides passengers with an overall view of the University, while a student tour guide explains various campus landmarks and the different uses of University facilities.

The campus tour program featuring Old Blue has won a national award in a community relations competition sponsored by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education, a national organization of college and university alumni, development and public relations officials.

The Old Blue tour is a great way for anybody to get to know the UK campus. The tour is free, lasts only about 30 minutes and, if you arrive early, there might still be a vacant seat in the upper deck.

Welcome aboard!

UK's CHEERLEADERS

By BETTY TEVIS
University Information Services

Among the most versatile athletes at the University of Kentucky are the 10 varsity cheerleaders and the UK mascot.

Most hail from small towns in Kentucky and have always wanted to attend UK. Most belong to fraternities, are active in sports, like travel and people, and have clear ideas on what they want to do with their lives.

Cheri Davis, a 21-year-old senior, is women's captain and entering her third year as cheerleader.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Davis of Sturgis, Cheri has so enjoyed Lexington that she wants to pursue a teaching career in a "bigger city" than home once she graduates.

She worked this past summer as a recreation leader at Audubon State Park, Henderson.

Kirby Norris, 20, is men's captain. He wants to be a doctor and/or a major league baseball player, and spent this past summer holding down two jobs in Lexington. He worked days as a construction worker and nights as a menswear salesman.

Kirby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Manford Norris of Middletown, Ohio, and is the squad's only out-of-stater.

He is a pre-medical student, but the Philadelphia Phillies baseball team has talked to him about a tryout for the pitching staff. There is no reason, however, he could not play baseball first, then go to medical school. "If I should make the team," he says.

Another three year veteran is Jim Winburn, 21, a senior. He has spent the summer working in construction and helping his grandparents with the tobacco from their Harrison County farm.

Jim has been active in Air Force ROTC, the Interfraternity Council and his own Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity. He is the son of Garfield Winburn, Lexington, and Mrs. Wanda Rawlings Curtis, Stanton.

Joie (whose given name is Josef) Burkley, 21 is a senior returning for her second year on the squad. She attended summer school to speed completion of her degree in business education.

As "insurance," though, Joie wants also to earn a teaching certificate.

Joie's mother, Mrs. Jimmie Fouts Burkley of Louisville, attended UK and her sister is now a UK sophomore. Joie's dad is George A. Burkley of Louisville.

Joie is active in Delta Delta Delta sorority.

Renee Mussetter, 19, of Ashland also returns to the cheerleading squad for her second year after summer in school. She shares an off-campus apartment with her brother, David, 18, a UK junior.

Renee this year is a junior majoring in business education and also, like Joie, is working toward a teaching certificate. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Terry Mussetter, Ashland.

Sophomore Caren Crum, 19, is new to the group, and following the path of her now-graduated elder sister, Cathy Crum Chasteen, one-time squad co-captain.

Caren spent the summer working as an engraver for a jeweler in her hometown of Cynthiana, a job she has held for four years.

At UK she is learning to become a speech pathologist.

Caren is one of four daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Crum. All daughters have been cheerleaders like their mother. Mrs. Crum met her husband when she was a cheerleader and he a star athlete at Union College in Barbourville.

Caren is active in Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

Steve Greene, 21, is another veteran, who is looking toward graduation from UK and "good possibilities" ahead. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn L. Greene Jr., Steve is from Harlan.

A photo of Steve appeared on a United Way campus billboard and has led to a job in tv commercials for a Lexington merchant. Wherever he goes, Steve says, people recognize him—and the other UK cheerleaders. Such "exposure," he adds, is one of the job's rewards.

His major is history but he thinks he may enter law school or into a sales career.

Darrell Fisher, 20-year-old junior from Lexington, spent part of the summer as a Fayette County deputy sheriff, a job offered him through his exposure as a cheerleader.

He spent part of August at a national cheerleaders camp and has been offered a job teaching at two different such camps for next year.

During the school year he holds a job as supervisor of the gymnastics room in the UK Seaton Center. It is ideal because Darrell would be there anyway, working out daily.

He is majoring in physical education and is interested in dance, especially modern dance.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Ernest C. Fisher of Lexington.

Julie Ann Welter, 19 and a sophomore, is new this year to the team. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Welter of Ashland.

She is on the UK women's gymnastics team and belongs to the UK Fellowship of Christian Athletes. And she is both gymnastics and cheerleading instructor for a national cheerleaders association.

Also new is Dan Kendig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Kendig of Ft. Wright.

A senior majoring in physical education, Dan has for years been a YMCA camp counselor. One day he would like to own and operate some kind of "sports kingdom."

Now he is a residence advisor in Kirwan I, where the UK varsity athletes live.

Dan's brother and sister are cheerleaders at Northern Kentucky University and another brother, James, is a UK graduate of 1973.

Of UK Dan says, "I wouldn't go anywhere else."

Gary Tanner, 23, is the cheerleaders' mascot, often dressed as a man-sized Wildcat. He's a UK senior majoring in advertising and public relations, is a member of the UK rifle team and a circulation manager for the student newspaper.

He's worked for the Lexington Chamber of Commerce and written for newspapers.

His parents are Col. and Mrs. E.P. Tanner of Nashville, Tenn. Gary belongs to Lambda Chi Alpha.

Once upon a time there was a clever gal in Franklin, Tennessee. Her name was Mary McDaniel. She created a clever little Wildcat Keychain that captivated the jewelry buyer at Dawahares. So, the smart jewelry buyer and the clever artist got together and put the clever little Wildcat Keychains in all the Dawahares stores. Customers came in and saw the keychain. "SERVING ALL KENTUCKIANS"

When exuberant football crowds fill stadia with choruses of "Dee-fence! Dee-fence!" they show that fans have at last come to appreciate a hallowed truism that cagey coaches have long been preaching: in order to win football games, you first have to avoid losing them. The recent shift of public and press attention to the defensive stalwarts of the game is fitting, because athletic ability (both the raw and refined kinds) is needed as much on one side of the line of scrimmage as on the other.

And, fortuitously, this appears to be a season when more and better defensive beef is present on the nation's playing fields than any year in memory—maybe ever. In fact, this could be the year when the judges who award the Heisman Trophy will at last give that honor to a player who does something other than run, catch, or throw.

If the Heisman is awarded to a defensive player this fall, it will likely be a lineman, because that seems to be the area with the biggest overload of superstars. Ends Ross to get the most press attention, because they play for big name schools. But there are plenty of top grade defensive linemen on the less celebrated squads too. ABOUT THE AUTHOR—Anson Mount helped to found Playboy Magazine in early 1952 and has authored the publication's annual Pigskin Preview article on collegiate football for the past 20 years. Mount, 52, lives with his wife, Nancy, a former professional golfer, and family on an 80-acre tract of virgin timber near his native White Bluff, TN.

Mississippi State, Dee Hardison of North Carolina, Bruce Thornton of Illinois, Andre Anderson of New Mexico State, Steve Midboe of Minnesota, and middle guards Don Latimer of Miami (Florida) and Gary Don Johnson of Baylor.

A few defensive linemen will merit special attention for unusual reasons. End Burl Toler of California weighs only 200 pounds, which makes him a midget among modern defensive behemoths, but he plays like a maniac. "He's terrific—unbelievable," says one scout, "I just wish he were fifty pounds heavier."

Bubba Green of North Carolina State is only a sophomore, but he wrought so much damage on opposing teams as a freshman starter last season that his coaches insist he could become the best in the land before his senior year.

Dennis Harrison of Vanderbilt, transferred from tackle to end for his senior season, could—belatedly—become one of the premier defensive linemen in the country. At 6'8", 270, Harrison is an awesome physical specimen with astonishing speed and agility.

And keep an eye on Iowa State. The Cyclones have an embarrassment of riches in their defensive line with three tackles who are capable of winning All-Tackle Don Latimer, a hard-hitting Hurricane.

American honors: Tom Randall, Ron McFarland, and Mike Stensrud.

Though J.C. transfers usually have a better chance to win immediate stardom than incoming freshmen (especially in the defensive line), a few raw rookies will make their debut this season with enough native ability to become first year starters and future superstars. Among them are John Odell of Kansas, Frank Warren of Auburn, Nick Westerberg of Oregon State, and Carlos Collaza of Oklahoma State.

Three of last year's most coveted high school defensive linemen enrolled in Pacific Eight schools. Brian Holloway went to Stanford (all the way from Potomac, Maryland), Curt Marsh enrolled at Washington, and Pat Graham opted for California.

Houston and Louisiana State each got a couple of nuggets in the recruiting wars; linemen Darrell Shepard and Hosea Taylor went to Houston while Benjy Thibodeaux and George Atiyeh enrolled at LSU.

Linebackers have a better chance to win recognition than other defensive performers, probably because their feats are more visible and they can be in the thick of the action whether the other team passes or runs the ball. Linebackers who appear—at season's opening—to have the best chance for post-season honors are Tom Cousineau of Ohio State, Jerry Robinson of UCLA, Lucius Sanford of Georgia Tech, John Anderson of Michigan and Ben Zambiasi of Georgia. Sanford, Anderson and Robinson are all relatively small as top-flight linebackers go (all three are in the 215-lb. range), but all are fierce tacklers and have the instinct to get to the ball with blinding quickness. Other linebackers who, with a good season for both them and their teams, could win national honors are Daryl Hunt of Oklahoma, Ron Hostetler of Penn State, Danny Bunz of Long Beach, Kimmie Weaver of Vanderbilt, Clay Matthews of Southern Cal, Jim Kovach of Kentucky, Kem Coleman of Mississippi, David Hodge of Houston, Rick Scudellari of Boston College, Gordy Ceresino of Stanford, Brad Carr of Maryland, Keith Butler of Memphis State, Whip Walton of San Diego State, Doug Curtis of Colgate, Carl McGee of Duke and Terry Lee of Cornell.

Be sure to watch the performances of three super-soph linebackers: Scot Brantley of Florida, Freddie Smith of Auburn, and John Corker of Oklahoma State. They were so impressive as freshmen that stardom seems imminent for all three.

Also keep an eye on Colorado linebacker Tom Perry; he could become this year's most spectacular late-bloomer.

The Defensive Outlook For The SEC In '77

by George Lapides, Memphis PRESS SCIMITAR

If high marks were awarded for candor, then Kem Coleman and Greg Jones should be wearing Phi Beta Kappa keys.

Coleman is a linebacker on the University of Mississippi's football team. Jones plays the same position at Tennessee. Both know the monkey will be on their backs this fall. Both realize that if their teams are to have good seasons during this football season, they are going to have to be better than good. Both insist they are ready to meet the challenge.

Coleman's defensive help at Mississippi will come from his sidekick at linebacker, junior Eddie Cole, and also from George Plasketes and Bob Grefseng at the ends and Lawrence Johnson at tackle. The secondary remains a question mark since every starter from last season was lost to graduation. Gary Jones has some experience there, along with rising sophomore Joel Stewart, and the coaching staff is high on sophomore speedster Willie Burns.

Linebacker Freddy Smith was national Lineman of the Week for Auburn.

At Tennessee, meanwhile, linebacker Jones says he still isn't sure if he's recovered from the grueling spring practice and the off-season workouts new head coach Johnny Majors put the Volunteers through.

Majors has been handing out few compliments to his team, but Tennessee does have some quality players, especially on its defensive unit. There is Jones, of course, plus junior linebacker Craig Puki. Russ Williams seems to have adapted to the conversion from safety to rover and Jim Noonan, a reserve linebacker last season, appears to have found a home at middle guard. Tom Rowsey is established in the secondary, but the defensive line remains a question mark.

Here's a capsule look at the defenses of other Southeastern Conference teams:

ALABAMA—The Tide lost their entire front five to graduation. Their replacements will come from a trio of giants—junior Marty Lyons, a 6'5", 250-pounder, sophomore William Davis, 6'4", 260-pounds and Curtis McGriff, a 6'6", 265-pounder.

Alabama also has four linebackers who started at one time or another last season. The corps is led by Barry Kraus, a 6'3", 235-pound junior who was the most valuable player during the Tide's Liberty Bowl victory over UCLA last winter. The secondary is led by senior cornerback Mike Tucker.

AUBURN—Frank Warren isn't listed on the War Eagles' depth chart, but he will be soon. Frank is 6'6", 256-pounds. He can play defensive tackle or nose guard. Warren will be a freshman at Auburn this year. Although he's not ticketed to start, he probably will soon.

The War Eagles have enjoyed great success with freshman defensive players. Last year, for example, head coach Doug Barfield inserted frosh Freddie Smith into the starting line-up in the War Eagles' second game of the season against Baylor. Freddie made 17 solo tackles and five assists, and was named national Lineman of the Week. Now he's a grizzled sophomore.

Auburn's defense is young. Only six seniors are on the entire defensive squad. Only three of them start—tackle John Smith, end Tommy Hicks and strong safety Rick Freeman. Help has come from sophomore Mike McQuaig, a starter at linebacker as a freshman two years ago, who missed all of last season with an assortment of injuries.

FLORIDA—Florida may have the best trio of linebackers in the nation. Each is

Possessing a plethora of physical tools, Perry became a starter only toward the end of his junior year.

And, as usual, there are several newcomers who will win wide acclaim as linebackers. Wesley Williams, a junior college transfer, has enrolled at Arkansas State, but all the other new faces are freshmen. Among those most likely to make big waves their first year are Yancey Sutton of Florida, Mark Ippolito of LSU, Stan Browder of Colorado and Ronald Simmons of Florida State.

Defensive backs are divided into a bewildering variety of sub-positions, with a varied nomenclature that is colorful at best and confusing at worst. Besides such usual names as cornerback and safety, they can also bear such titles as monster, free safety, stinger, rover or a variety of other lethal terms. Some coaches, eschewing hyperbole, simply refer to them as defensive backs.

Among those players called cornerbacks, Luther Bradley of Notre Dame, Gerald Small of San Jose State, Henry Davison of Mississippi State, Anthony Francis of Houston, Charles Jefferson of McNeese State, Clinton Burrell of LSU, and Bobby Weber of Minnesota have the most impressive pre-season credits. The nation's better safeties are Ray Griffin of Ohio State, Zac Henderson of Oklahoma, Dwight Hicks of Michigan, Ron Burns of Baylor, Gary Petercuskie of Penn State, Russ Williams of Tennessee, J.T. Smith of North Texas State, Dennis Thurman of Southern California, and Jeff Nixon of Richmond.

Two of the nation's more impressive defenders with descriptive titles are rover Bill Krug of Georgia and monster Maurice Harvey of Ball State. Among just plain defensive backs, Ralph Stringer of North Carolina State, Larry King of Syracuse, Mike Kramer of Alabama, and Derwin Tucker of Illinois seem to have the best chances for post-season honors.

Punters are usually considered defensive players, primarily because their skills are called on to keep the team out of trouble when the offensive platoon can't produce. This year's premier punters are Gavin Hedrick of Washington State and Russell Erxleben of Texas, with Dave Jacobs of Syracuse and Mike Deutsch of Colorado State not far behind.

Steve Little of Arkansas is not only an excellent punter, he is also one of the better field goal kickers. Michigan defensive tackle John Anderson (mentioned earlier) is also one of the country's better punters, and Bruce Allen (son of Washington Redskin coach George Allen) is the pride and joy of Richmond's coaches.

And, in conclusion, permit us to take a flyer. Earlier in this article we opined that this may be the year when—if sanity prevails—the Heisman Trophy will at last be awarded to a defensive player. He will be an exceptional person, to be sure, and we're convinced that he'll be far more typical of today's college football players than the unfortunate but pervasive public image of the Neanderthal jock. Some of the most admirable people we know wear college football uniforms on Saturday afternoons. Too bad more fans can't get to know them personally.

Practical.

Practically perfect.

After bringing you a perfectly practical car, it should come as no surprise that we now bring you a car that's practically perfect. The Volkswagen Rabbit.

In February of 1976, Car and Driver said of our car, "What we have now is a faster Rabbit that has benefited from step-by-step, under-the-skin attention to detail—which is damn encouraging because it shows that VW is sending the already-excellent Rabbit down the yearly refinement path that made the Beetle last almost four decades. Using that system, the Rabbit may be the world's first perfect car in just a few short years." Last year alone, we made 17 major changes and improvements toward making our '77 Rabbit even more perfect.

Since it was already big on room and performance, we added fuel-injection to help give it easier starts, yet allow it to use an economical grade of gas.

In a world that's far from perfect, isn't it nice to find something that's practically there.

HOW PLAYERS KEEP IN SHAPE IN OFF-SEASON

by Del Black, Kansas City STAR

Several years ago, John Stucky, an All-Big Eight Conference middle guard from Kansas State, was on a summer goodwill tour in Western Kansas. Part of the hospitality tendered Stucky by a K-State alum was an invitation to spend the night at the family farm. Stucky accepted. A farm boy himself, Stucky was an early riser, and that morning in August was no exception.

When the farmer went to call Stucky for breakfast, he found John in one of the farm buildings on his back under the front bumper of an old pick-up truck. To the farmer's amazement the robust Stucky was bench pressing with the old vehicle as the resisting force.

This is only one example of how collegiate football players participate in self-invented programs or school-supported and National Collegiate Athletic Association-approved conditioning work during the off-season.

It used to be that players sought out work in heavy construction for summer employment in an attempt to build their bodies into the rock-like condition befitting their fall-time status for grid-iron warfare. Not necessarily so today. Organized off-season programs under the guidance of coaches and weight-lifting instructors have changed the conditioning approach. Most schools encourage their players to begin lifting weights about a week after the final football game of the season.

Many players then work with the weights at least three days a week, averaging an hour and 15 minutes per session. They lift bulk based on power lifting, employing power racks. This system can be identified with the Olympic free-style format.

"You know, Nebraska always seemed to have such an advantage in our conference because they were so much bigger and more physical than anybody else," recalls Sandy Buda, an assistant coach at Kansas State. "The weight program was what was doing it. They were before their time. Now most schools have adopted the off-season plan and I'd say about 10 per cent of the major college teams have weight coaches."

The general schedule includes escalating the three-day work to four days a week by mid-December. The four-day drills are structured around two days with the weights and the other two concentrating on agility and running. This phase of the program usually extends to the start of spring drills.

As in any athletic endeavor, the work the player does on his own is vital. Crash programs are always paid for and expensive to the individual, often costing him his on-the-field job and not only athletic notoriety, but possibly a lucrative future to which he could spring from college.

Among the pioneers in the off-season programs were the coaches in the Southeastern Conference. One of the most enthusiastic programs was undertaken by Vince Gibson, an aide at Tennessee, who used the gruelling drills as one of his weapons in a win-quick atmosphere. "We all thought we'd die," recalls a former Volunteer. "Talk about work! I've never been so miserable in all my life. I never appreciated the training until I got on the field, and probably not to the fullest extent until I got in the pros."

"Then I realized how valuable it was. Actually, I think players who went through that program, and others like it, have had a tremendous jump on some of the others. I know I felt I was farther ahead of most of the other guys I was competing against for a position."

Without a doubt, the more sophisticated off-season programs now being utilized are not as exhausting and have proven to be more beneficial.

"While all football players do stretching and endurance work," said one trainer, "power movement is more valuable."

Take a lineman, for instance. His job lasts only a few seconds on each play, but he needs to employ short and powerful movements. This means he must train with heavy resistance. He uses weights with low repetition—like 8-to-10 quick, short and powerful thrusts.

When players leave the campuses for summer vacation, coaches stress following the same programs, and help them along with a check-list to follow the same programs in which they were in-involved between the regular season and spring practices.

"We mail out a week-by-week program for them," said Buda. "We want them to escalate their work up to just before the first practice session in the fall. In June we want them to work on weights and jogging. In July we encourage speed work and agility to be added. In August we want more running, plus

Every football fan knows that the score doesn't always give a good picture of a game. A few statistics, like those that can be kept on this page can make the picture clearer, show what the individual stars contribute and help to win post-game "debates." Besides, it can be fun to second guess the official scorers whose statistics will appear in tomorrow's papers. But before you start, here are some pointers on being a statistician:

1. Keep cumulative totals to be informed "up to the minute" and to simplify your figuring of team totals. Example: Jones gains 3, 6, 9, 2 yards and you write 3, 9, 18, 20 on his line.

2. On plays involving penalties measured from the point of the foul, credit the rusher or pass receiver with yardage only to the point of the infraction.

3. Charge gains and losses on fumbles to the player who, in your judgment, contributed most to the error.

4. Don't score two-point conversion attempts after touchdowns as rushing or passing plays.

All-SEC caliber, and one might emerge as an All-American. The best bet is sophomore Scot Brantley, a 6'2", 225-pound sophomore whose 145 tackles led the team last season.

His help at linebacker comes from seniors Scott Hutchinson, 6'4", 246-pounds, and Charlie Williams, 6'1", 235-pounds. Williams had 130 tackles last year even though he missed two games with injuries. Hutchinson had 118.

The Gators also are bolstered by the return of defensive back Henry Davis, All-Conference two years ago, who missed last season with a knee injury. The defensive line lacks some size, but end Michael DuPree, a 6'2", 226-pound junior, is big enough, quick enough and talented enough.

GEORGIA—For two seasons Coach Vince Dooley's defense has affectionately been called the "Junkyard Dogs." They may change the name to thoroughbreds this year. Seven starters return from the unit which had a great deal to do with Georgia winning the SEC title last season. Promising newcomers such as sophomore linebacker Ray Donaldson and junior defensive ends Greg Williams and Steve Dennis may make the unit even tougher in 1977. Linebacker Ben Zambiasi already has made some pre-season All-America teams. Rover Bill Krug, who was national Defensive Player of the Week for his heroics in last year's victory over Alabama, is ready for more headlines. Cornerback Johnny Henderson led Georgia in pass interceptions a year ago, and would like to pick off more this season. Ronnie Swoopes, a 6'3", 245-pound senior, anchors the defensive line.

KENTUCKY—Art Still was a 6'7", 250-pound basketball star who went to Kentucky—to play football. A defensive end, he's All-SEC, and many think he'll be All-American by the end of this season. He made 76 solo tackles last year, had 26 assists, and was a primary reason why Kentucky went to a bowl for the first time in 25 years.

Nine of Still's teammates on the starting defensive unit are back again this season. The best supporters in the cast include cornerback Mike Siganos; linebacker Jim Kovach, last year's tackle leader with 94; safety Rick Hayden; noseguard Jerry Blanton and tackles Bob Winkel and James Ramey.

LSU—Bobby Moreau was a backup quarterback last season, but he will be a starting strong safety this year; a reason for optimism in Baton Rouge.

Another is sophomore defensive end John Adams, a 6'3", 240-pounder who runs the 40 in 4.6 and who could play quarterback if he wanted to. John doesn't, but he may handle the Bengals' punting chores. LSU, in fact, could be awesome at defensive end. Opposite Adams is Lew Sibley, a 6'1", 230-pound senior who also has all-star ability. Freshman George Atiyeh, a 6'4", 240-pound tackle from Allentown, Pa., is considered one of the finest LSU prospects ever. That's saying a lot.

Vanderbilt's top tackler last year was linebacker Randy Sittason.

MISSISSIPPI STATE—The Bulldogs' 1977 defense will be built around Jerald

Bobby Moreau will be a starting strong safety at LSU.

Porter, 250-pound sophomore Lonnie Green, and Bill Lee, who replace the starting line.

Henry Davison, Larry Dixon and Kenny Johnson are solid in the secondary. Bobby Molden made the conversion from tight to defensive end, junior Raymond Peyton is tough at the other defensive end, and Larry Gillard is one of the nation's best defensive tackles.

VANDERBILT—Randy Sittason's last name is pronounced as if it were "citizen." That's why his buddies on the Commodore defensive unit call him "Solid Citizen." Last season, Randy was that and more, as he led Vandy with 85 tackles from his linebacker spot.

As the Commodores return all 11 defensive players from last season, little is new except a switch from a 5-2 alignment to the 4-3. To accompany the change, end Ed Smith was moved to linebacker and Dennis Harrison, the 6'8", 273-pounder who runs the 40 in 4.8, went from tackle to Smith's end spot.

Kimmie Weaver is exceptionally good at one of the linebacking spots, Ronnie Myrick is receiving all-star notice at strong safety, and Brenard Wilson is one of the best in the league at free safety. A newcomer to watch is Bill Hart, a 6'3", 278-pound tackle who transferred from Kennedy King Junior College in Chicago. ●

A robust tailgate picnic that nourishes many a fan

Napoleon sagely observed that an army marches on its stomach. Consequently, the diminutive Corsican made elaborate preparations for his troops' rations.

It's no different with today's legions of college football fans. In order to root their forces to victory, they must cheer on full stomachs ... thus the vital necessity for a well-executed tailgate picnic plan. It must be nourishing but, alas, wives and dates aren't galley slaves so it must be easy to prepare as well.

Try this plan, created by The R.T. French Company Test Kitchens in Rochester, N.Y., for a smashing pregame picnic. Steak Sticks are mouth watering and very portable. At home, cut the steak into strips, wrap in bacon, and marinate in a zesty mixture of pineapple juice and prepared yellow mustard. Pack in a plastic container with a tight fitting lid and tote to the game in an insulated picnic bag or chest.

Broil over a hibachi or a small charcoal grill, and serve on rolls. It's very hearty and very flavorful.

A robust potato salad would make an ideal accompaniment. So who wants to start peeling and slicing fresh potatoes? No need to! Quick and Easy Potato Salad uses a package of scalloped potatoes that does the work for you. The carton also contains an envelope of seasoning which combines with mayonnaise for a perfectly flavored salad dressing.

Complete your tailgate party with carrot and celery sticks, fresh fruit and a cake you make from a mix. A thermos of coffee should calm even the most anxious fan until kick-off.

There it is ... a delicious repast, very nutritious, easy to make, and easy to bring along. Napoleon would surely promote you to corporal.

STEAK STICKS

- 1 to 1½ pounds round steak
- 6 to 8 slices lean bacon
- ¼ cup prepared yellow mustard
- 1 cup pineapple juice
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar
- 6 to 8 frankfurter rolls, split and toasted

Cut steak into 6 to 8 strips, 1-inch thick; wrap each with a slice of bacon and fasten with wooden picks. Stir together mustard, pineapple juice, and brown sugar; pour over steak sticks and refrigerate 1 hour. Grill over hot coals about 10 minutes, turning frequently and brushing with the mustard mixture. Remove wooden picks; serve on toasted rolls. 6 to 8 servings.

QUICK AND EASY POTATO SALAD

- 1 package (5½-oz.) scalloped potatoes
- 3 cups water
- 1 cup chopped celery
- ¼ cup chopped green pepper
- 4 hard-cooked eggs
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- ¼ cup vinegar
- cherry tomatoes, if desired

Combine potato slices from package of scalloped potatoes with water in saucepan; cover, bring to a boil, and simmer 15 minutes, or until tender. Drain and cool. Combine cold potatoes with celery and green pepper. Chop three eggs; add to potato mixture. Stir together contents of envelope of seasoning mix from potatoes, mayonnaise, and vinegar. Add to potatoes; toss lightly. Garnish with 1 sliced hard-cooked egg and cherry tomatoes. 6 servings.

Give our country a college education.

As an Army ROTC graduate, you bring more than training and gold bars to your new job in the active Army, Army National Guard or the Army Reserve.

You also bring a college education which makes you one of our country's most valuable assets. Why? One reason is the wealth of experiences and ideas you bring with you. This enables the Army to better relate to an ever-changing society.

And since you'll be an Army officer, you'll have plenty of opportunities to put your ideas to work. In fact, you'll be running your own show, right out of college.

Another reason we value your education so highly is that the people you'll be leading are better educated and more highly motivated than ever before. This makes your job as an Army officer more of a challenge.

To help you meet this challenge when you get out of school, we'll help you while you're in by giving you a living allowance of up to $1,000 each year you are enrolled in Advanced ROTC.

There are also opportunities for scholarships that cover tuition, books and lab fees.

That way, you can make the most of your education. And when you graduate, our country can make the most of it too. For details, see your professor of military science or send in this coupon.

weights and a concentration on conditioning."

Not all doctors and trainers agree on one of the oldest training routines—running steps. Another disagreement arises when they discuss full squats. Some prefer squats over running stadium steps, and vice-versa.

"I encourage running steps, especially by power-running backs," one trainer revealed. "And especially for a player who is coming off an injury. I like distance running for the wind factor, the respiratory factor."

"Players are more conscious about being ready for Fall drills than ever before. If they have a weight problem, they have to adjust their diet accordingly. This goes for those overweight as well as those who need to add poundage. If these goals are kept in mind and a sensible program is followed, players go to camp not needing crash programs."

"What really encourages me, and I know other trainers—plus today's coaches—is that more players are more determined than ever before to get in shape before they come back to school."

"They don't seem to take as much for granted as they used to. They are aware that these programs are sound, and they have more respect for our judgment regarding what is good for them and what isn't good."

"The diets have played an important part in why athletes today are possibly the best we've ever seen."

The approach taken by doctors, trainers and coaches seems to be reflected not only in the athletes, but comes from the families of the sports participants.

Most coaches will confirm that they are having the privilege of recruiting and training not only better athletes than ever before, but also more intelligent and competitive-minded individuals.

Running backs today are the size of many linemen a decade or more ago. And they are not only bigger, but quicker.

One of the major reasons for better collegiate products for the gridiron is high school and junior college programs where the coaching and instructing techniques have improved. Coaches and trainers for the pre-college football player are the same ones involved in the dawning of the off-season program for those grunting, complaining and exhausted players.

It all adds up to help produce the nation's most thrilling and competitive game: collegiate football.

Wildcat Marching Band

The 1977 University of Kentucky "Wildcat" Marching Band numbers some 275 members from almost every college of the University. The members not only come from each geographical area of Kentucky but also from the states of New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, North Carolina, Georgia, Tennessee, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Illinois. The band is organized into several units, each working separately on their unique needs before being put together as a whole. These units, each with a carefully selected student leader include the woodwind blocks, the brass blocks, the percussion section, the tuba section, the flags, and the majorettes. Each section in the block has a section leader and a number of "group" leaders designed to give each member as much individual attention as possible. These sections include flutes, clarinets, saxes, trumpets, horns, trombones, and baritones.

The band has been on campus since August 21 preparing for the season.

— PREGAME —

The 1977 Pre-game includes a special UK football medley based on "Rhapsody in Blue." The medley includes "Mr. Touchdown, USA," the famous Sousa march "Washington Post," and "Blue Skies." The highlight of Pregame, of course, is the Marching "K" and "On, On."

— HALFTIME —

The "Wildcat" Band presents for their initial performance this season elaborate contemporary marching drills designed by Assistant Director Gordon Henderson. The use of movement to unique musical arrangements creates pageantry possible only on the football field, by a college band, for a major college game. The music includes an English band music medley, a pop medley of "Lonely Boy" and "It Looks Like the Very First Time," a concert arrangement of "Looks Like We Made It," and a finale of the well-known Dixieland tune "South Rampart Street Parade."

The place for people who like to dine out often.

One of the nice things about our Magic Pan creperie is that so many people come back so often. We show our appreciation by serving an ever changing variety of delicious crepes along with our special salads and hearty soups. In the evening, even the ambience changes subtly as lights are dimmed and candles glow. And we keep our prices so reasonable that we can enjoy the company of our many friends more often. We like it that way at The Magic Pan.

The time for decision . . . is now

Decisions about saving energy and keeping warm this winter should be made now. Having enough insulation in your home is the single most practical thing you can do to lower your electric bill and conserve energy.

As a property improvement, insulation is an investment—returning "dividends" in heating and cooling cost savings, year after year. Contact KU for insulation guidelines.
