This collage by New York artist Fred Otnes was especially commissioned by Brown & Williamson for its permanent collection of fine art works.

The freedom to choose our livelihood was provided to us long ago. And it was typified by the struggle of immigrants to America in the early 1800's. People like Adam Gimbel, a humble Jewish peddler from Germany, who later founded the country's first department store. And individuals who became industrial giants, like Andrew Carnegie from Scotland, who built one of the largest steel producing businesses in the United States. America had given both of them the freedom. The freedom to choose.

A free individual does not live without choice. A free society does not prosper without it. Consider, if you will, the personal choices we make every day without intervention from others. Now consider how many we take for granted.

The right to choose is the basis of all freedom—political, social, artistic, economic, religious—for all people. But this right must be protected from those who would chip away at it...either deliberately for personal gain, or innocently for the "betterment" of humanity. It must be protected from those who would make their choice, your choice. These personal freedoms are our legacy as well as our responsibility...to protect and to pass on to those who follow.

Freedom. It's a matter of choice.

Joe B. Hall begins his 10th season as head coach of the Kentucky Wildcats with 11 returning lettermen, including five starters.

While leading the Wildcats to a 22-6 record last year, Hall upped his nine-year UK record to 205-66, an average of 22 wins per season, to keep ahead of the pace set by his former coach, Adolph Rupp, who averaged 21.5 victories a season over a 41-season span to become the winningest collegiate basketball coach of all time.

Perhaps the best appraisal of the job Hall has been doing at the University came from Rupp, who died in 1977.

"A good coach," Rupp said, "is a person who can take good material and win with it. Joe has done that."

Judging from Hall's coaching honors, Rupp was as usual, right on target with his evaluation.

Hall has won such honors as Kellogg's 1978 National "Coach of the Year," three Southeastern Conference "Coach of the Year" awards (1973, '75, and '78) in seven years, and nomination for Kodak's 1975, '76, and '78 (finalist) "Coach of the Year" awards.

In 1978 when Kentucky won its fifth NCAA title, Hall was also presented the Rupp Cup (presented to the SEC Coach of the Year by the Birmingham Tipoff Club) and Hall's most coveted personal award, the Dr. James Naismith "Peachbasket" award, which previously had been awarded to UCLA's John Wooden, Oklahoma State's Hank Iba, Kentucky's Adolph Rupp, and the Boston Celtics' Red Auerbach.

The 1978 champions, which had a 30-2 record, became the sixth Wildcat team to win 30 or more games, joining such illustrious company as the 1947 NIT runner-up (34-3), the 1948 Olympic Champions (36-3), the 1949 NCAA champions (32-2), the 1951 NCAA champions (32-2), and the 1966 NCAA runner-up (32-2).

Entering this season, Hall's 15 year career coaching record stands at 281-122, (excluding a 17-2 record on a 1974 Australian tour, a 7-0 record on a 1978 Japan tour, and six pre-season exhibition wins against foreign and domestic teams) and that record was compiled against nationally ranked non-conference teams and teams in a conference that fast is becoming recognized as among the toughest in the nation. Broken down, it shows a 57-50 five-year mark at Regis, a 19-6 record at Central Missouri, and a 205-66 record at UK.

Hall began his tour as UK head coach in rather auspicious fashion, becoming in 1973 the first rookie coach in the SEC to be designated Coach of the Year by his fellow coaches and by Coach and Athlete Magazine.

Gathering such honors has been one of Hall's trademarks during a coaching career that began at Shepherdsville (Ky.) High School in 1956 and continued through Regis College and Central Missouri State College before he returned to UK July 1, 1965, as an assistant to his former coach, Adolph Rupp.

During Hall's two years at Shepherdsville, the Rams won a Mid-Kentucky conference title and he was named "Coach of the Year" in 1958. He then served one year as freshman coach and five years as head basketball coach at Regis College in Denver, Colo., where he was also athletic director and earned special recognition as

His next move was to Central Missouri, where he coached the Mules (19-6) to their first MIAA Conference championship since 1951 and their first Christmas Tournament title in history. He was named MIAA "Coach of the Year" (1964-65).

A three-letter winner and team captain in both sports in high school at Cynthiana, Ky., he played freshman basketball and one year of varsity basketball in the "Fabulous Five" era at the University before transferring to the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., where he set a school single game scoring record and was team captain. Coach Lon Varnell, upon retirement, rated Hall as No. 1 of the three best players he ever coached.

After touring Europe with the Globetrotters in 1951, Hall returned to U.K. in 1955 to complete requirements for his B.A. and later (1964) received his M.A. at Colorado State University.

Returning to U.K. again in 1965 an assistant coach and head recruiter, he was instrumental in adopting a running-conditioning program which obviously paid huge dividends as the Wildcats capitalized on speed and endurance to offset a lack of size and advanced to the championship game of the NCAA Finals.

Hall became No. 1 varsity assistant and head freshman Coach to Rupp after Harry C. Lancaster was named permanent athletic director Feb. 1, 1969.

International Flavor

Hall's basketball renown has attracted world-wide attention in international circles and has catapulted him into a much sought-after clinician and guest speaker. He has taken Wildcat teams on tours of Australia and Japan, where he conducted clinics and shared his basketball philosophy.

Hall considers one of his major coaching honors came when he was named guest lecturer for the World Basketball Coaches Congress in the Canary Islands, July 1977, before some 400 coaches from the international set.

He was a member of the 1976 Olympic Basketball Committee, and in 1972 served under Hank Iba in the Olympic Trials at the Air Force Academy.

He is married to the former Katharine Dennis of Harrison County, Ky. They have three children—Mrs. Kathy (Mike) Summers, Mrs. Judy (Rick) Derrickson and Steve of Lexington.

Ashland Oil has an infinite source of energy-the creative minds of our research scientists and engineers.

Instead of searching around the world for new sources of crude oil, Ashland Oil is developing alternative sources of energy in the laboratory. For example:

More gasoline from crude oil. Ashland Oil's new Reduced Crude Conversion (RCC) process makes it possible to get 24 percent more gasoline out of every barrel of crude oil we refine. This means that Ashland will be able to produce the same amount of gasoline we're producing now, using fewer barrels of expensive crude oil.

And if the RCC process is adopted by other oil companies, America could substantially decrease its dependence on foreign crude oil.

Crude oil from coal. America has enough coal to take us well into the 22nd century. At Ashland Oil, we're experimenting with coal liquefaction, the process which turns coal into synthetic crude oil. This new synthetic crude oil can be refined into gasoline and other petroleum products.

We now plan to build a major facility in Breckinridge County, Kentucky, to produce oil from coal commercially.

Both our RCC and coal liquefaction projects are under way at our refinery in Catlettsburg, Kentucky.

Gasohol from corn. Ashland will soon be able to meet 12 percent of America's goal for ethanol production from its coal-fired South Point, Ohio, ethanol plant.

By converting corn into ethanol (ethyl alcohol) and adding ethanol to gasoline, we'll be producing gasohol—a third important ingredient in America's formula for decreasing energy dependence.

At Ashland Oil, we're depending on one of America's greatest natural resources—new technology from our innovative research team.

OTIS A. SINGLETARY
University President

The University of Kentucky has become one of the major institutions of higher learning in the United States under the leadership of Dr. Otis Singletary, the eighth president of the University. His tenure has been marked by rapid growth and a commitment to excellence.

"The University, with all its problems, is still the single most important institution in the state," Dr. Singletary has said. "Its network of influence is felt throughout the state, not just in the instruction of the state's young people but in the great pattern of research, the things we are doing to improve the quality of human life and the wide range of services we are providing throughout the state."

"Contrary to popular opinion, our institutions of higher education are not operated exclusively for students, or for faculty members, or for administrators, or for trustees — or, for that matter, for all of these. Historically speaking, universities have been created and supported by our society to perform important functions for the common good of society. This is the larger meaning of the term, 'the public interest,' as it applies to institutions of higher education."

Before being named UK president in 1969, Dr. Singletary served as executive vice chancellor for academic affairs in the University of Texas system and as director of the Job Corps program for the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Gulfport, Miss., native holds degrees from Millsaps College and Louisiana State University. He is a nationally recognized history scholar and is the author of two books and several monographs.

In the 12 years he has been president, the University has grown to where there are now more than 23,000 students on the Lexington campus and more than 19,000 students in UK's 13 community colleges. UK has gained an international reputation in such diverse fields as medicine, business, engineering, law and agriculture. The University also is noted for its research in the fields of energy, tobacco and cancer. The Sanders-Brown Research Center on Aging is one of the first facilities of its kind.

The UK Alumni Association has recognized Dr. Singletary's special service by presenting him its Alumni Service Award. It is an honor rarely bestowed upon a non-alumnus of the University.

Dr. Singletary is in the second year of his two-year term as president of the Southeastern Conference. As University President, he serves as chairman of the board of directors of the UK Athletic Association, the body which maintains overall policy supervision of the athletic program.

A Navy veteran of World War II and the Korean conflict, he is commander in the U. S. Naval Reserve. He and Mrs. Singletary, the former Gloria Walton, have three children: Bonnie, Scot and Kendall.

The Singletarys live at Maxwell Place, traditional home of UK presidents.

Athletics Director

CLIFFORD O. HAGAN
Director

The story of Cliff Hagan's reign as chief of the UK Athletics Department has been one of fine attendance at the two big revenue-producing sports, increased attendance in Lady Kat basketball and men's baseball, and a steady upgrading of facilities.

The University will be host to the SEC Basketball Tournament in March of 1982 and the NCAA Championship Finals in 1985. The UK Relays were renewed this past spring.

Hagan, who has seen and overseen vast improvements in all phases of the UK athletics program since returning to his alma mater as assistant athletics director in 1972, has under his command a total of 20 sports ranging from football and men's basketball in Level I, to women's basketball in Level II, and a baker's dozen sports in Level III.

He was named in 1972, assistant to Harry C. Lancaster and given the task of implementing the Blue & White Fund for 57,600-seat Commonwealth Stadium and later for Rupp Arena. Hagan replaced Lancaster as athletics director in July, 1975.

Hagan received one of his highest individual honors three years ago when he became the first University of Kentucky basketball player to be installed in the Naim-Smith Memorial National Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass. At UK, he played on teams that won 86 of 91 games and an NCAA championship (1951). He went on to star in the NBA with the St. Louis Hawks and in the ABA with the Dallas Chaparrals as player-coach.

Assistant Coaches

LEONARD HAMILTON

Associate Coach

Leonard Hamilton was named the University of Kentucky's first associate basketball coach on Oct. 15, 1980.

Hamilton has been a member of the Wildcat coaching staff for seven years. He came to Kentucky after serving three years as an assistant coach at Austin Peay.

He has always been noted as an outstanding recruiter and as a defensive specialist. Most remarkable in his coaching career is the fact that in nine of his 10 years as a coach on the collegiate level, the team he has been associated with has advanced to post-season play. Only in his first season at Austin Peay has Hamilton not been involved in a post-season tournament.

A native of Gastonia, N. C., Hamilton lettered three years in football and two years in basketball in high school. He captained his basketball team for two years at Gastonia Community College, and also served as team captain at Tennessee-Martin, where he graduated in 1970.

The 33-year-old Hamilton is married to the former Claudette Hale of McMoresville, Tenn. They have a son, Lenny, 11.

COACH HALL: "Coach Hamilton continues to expand his duties with the Kentucky staff. He has become a fixture in the Kentucky program, heading up our recruiting and assuming more administrative responsibility."

JOE DEAN

Assistant Coach

Enthusiastic, hard-working Joe Dean is beginning his fifth season with the University of Kentucky basketball program.

The Baton Rouge, La., native earned letters in both football and basketball at Baton Rouge High School. From high school, he went to Mississippi State University where he played three seasons against the Wildcats. Dean was a member of the 1976 Academic All-SEC squad.

After earning an undergraduate degree from Mississippi State in 1976, he served one season as a Bulldog graduate assistant coach while earning a master's degree.

Besides his duties associated with the Wildcat regular basketball season, Dean also serves as director of the annual Wildcat Coaching Clinic and the popular Joe B. Hall Wildcat Basketball Summer Camp.

He is married to the former Ellen Anger of Jackson, Miss. They have a son, Scott, 2.

BOB CHAMBERS

Assistant Coach

Bob Chambers, a respected high school coach in Tennessee for 20 years, is now in his second season with the University of Kentucky Wildcats.

Prior to the 1979-80 season, Chambers coached for nine years at Tennessee High in Bristol, Tenn., where he compiled a 228-68 mark and made three trips to the state playoffs. Of his 20 total years in high school coaching, he

Officials Corner

Evolution of the Jump Ball

By Dr. Edward Steitz

In the 13 original basketball rules and their interpretations no mention was made of how the game was to start or how the ball was to be put into play after a goal was scored. The only rule alluding to this was when there was doubt as to who caused the ball to go out-of-bounds, the umpire would throw the ball up "straight into the field." As a result of that omission, the center jump rule was introduced in 1893.

That rule said what the previous one only alluded to. In addition, the rule stipulated the center jump would take place at the beginning of each half, after a score and whenever time had been called. The team in possession of the ball when time-out was called did not retain possession as a jump ball followed each time-out.

The center jump, as we know it now, hit the books with the 1894-95 season. It stipulated when the referee put the ball into play, it had to be first touched by one of the center men. The jump ball was not restricted to a tap and the ball could be caught by the center or tapped any number of times.

The rules of 1895-96 indicated the referee should cause the ball to drop near the center of the field. The center men were to be designated, but there was no restraining circle or restriction upon the other players. The ball was thrown into a crowded group and roughness resulted. A new ruling six years later said the referee was to put the ball in play by tossing it "to a greater height than either of the center men could jump."

In 1903-04 the center circle became a part of the floor diagram and the rule indicated "the two center men must stand with both feet inside the circle." The first requirement that the referee should stand between the players and the near sideline when tossing the ball was made in 1903-04. In earlier years the official stood some distance away when throwing the ball up in order to stay out of the rough action that followed it.

More Changes at Turn of Century

In 1905 the collegiate rules committee indicated that on the center jump the centers must face the goal they shot at. The 1913-14 rules said it was illegal for the center to catch the ball. That same year the rule was changed to stipulate men jumping would have to place and keep one hand behind their back at the waistline, until the ball had been touched on the jump. It was felt this would lessen the height the average jumper would reach and reduce roughness. If either or both players failed to keep his hand behind the back the jump was repeated. The following year failure to keep a hand behind the back constituted a foul or delay of game and required players to have their shoulders at right angles to the sideline.

In 1915-16 a joint rules committee representing the collegiate and the AAU rules bodies was formed. They passed a rule prohibiting the jumper from catching the ball until it was touched by another player. They also gave the referee authority to indicate an open zone around non-jumpers making it easier to get the ball cleanly into play.

In 1925-26 the requirement of having one hand behind the jumper's back during the toss was eliminated, but it became a technical foul to leave the circle before the ball was tapped and a personal foul to interfere in any way with an opponent on a jump. One year earlier a rule had been inserted making it a technical foul to tap the ball on the way up.

Discontent Among the Ranks

In 1929 serious agitation surfaced favoring the elimination of the center jump after a score. Oswald Tower, the rules editor then, offered two alternatives: 1. alternating possession of the ball at the start of each period and awarding the ball to the opponent of the scoring team out-of-bounds under their opponent's goal; 2. retain the center jump, but restrict the eight non-jumpers to behind zone lines, each to be 12 feet from the center and running across the court. These players could not cross the line to go for the ball until after it was tapped. Neither suggestion met with Rules Committee approval, however it was felt if the center jump was to be retained the non-jumpers should be restrained in some way.

The questionnaire results of 1930 indicated a desire (330-128) to retain the center jump. However, many of those who voted against eliminating it were hesitant about changing without considerable experimentation of alternatives. A good share of opinion for eliminating the center jump was in the Midwest. They wanted the ball put in play by a pass from the end line.

In 1930-31 a rule was added that on any jump ball it could be tapped only twice by either or both jumpers and if a jumper left the circle before the ball was tapped, a technical foul was assessed. However, if the player who remained legally tapped the ball into his basket, the goal counted and the technical was not penalized.

In 1932 the research committee indicated it was a faster game without the jump and the team which controlled the tap had a distinct advantage. But, the majority of the research committee still favored retention of the center jump after each field goal.

No major changes in center jump rules were effected in the next several years, although advocates for its elimination continued to press for a change. In the East, Nat Holman tried an experimental game with teams alternating taking the ball out-of-bounds at half-court after each score and petitioned the Coaches' Association to effect that change. On the West Coast, John Bunn, the great rules writer, then head coach at Stanford University, told me the Southern Division of the Pacific Coast Conference experimented for three years, beginning in 1932, with a plan where the team scored upon took the ball out-of-bounds from the end line immediately after the score.

All phases of play were studied and detailed records kept. The experiment was well received on the West Coast. When the report was presented to the NABC in 1935, a vote to adopt the procedure was narrowly defeated, 32 to 27. A similar proposal had been unanimously defeated a year before when no evidence of experimentation had been presented.

Time for a Change

The research and study had now convinced a substantial number of coaches that a change must be made. John Bunn, my predecessor as Editor of Basketball Rules, who had become the spokesman for the four coaches involved in the experiment, listed ten reasons for the modification of the center jump rule. They included: 1. officials were inconsistent in throwing up the ball; 2. the center jump was responsible for a large number of fouls; 3. there was continual jostling and fighting for position by the eight non-jumpers; 4. by eliminating the center jump, much of the inherent advantage of height would be removed to equalize play; and

5. eliminating the center jump would increase the game's tempo.

Nearly fifty years later the same rationale was presented and resulted in virtually eliminating the center jump from the college game today.

Both the elimination of the center jump after free throws and the new restraining circle were great successes, according to the annual questionnaire of 1936-37, which also showed a substantial majority in favor of eliminating the center jump following field goals. Before the rules committee met in 1937, the Big Ten voted to abolish the center jump after field goals as well as free throws and the Pacific Coast Conference agreed. This change was adopted nationally in the 1937 session and the elimination of the center jump after a score was effected.

Oddly enough, the chief criticism of the new rule in 1937 was that the game would be speeded up so much it would be detrimental to the health of the players. In actual practice and through research it was found the "race horse" game did not continue once the players grew familiar with the new rule.

History shows us that the rule was planned and researched so well that the only major change made since was in the modifications of the provisions for the throw-in at the end line following a goal, in that the throw-in team could pass to teammates along the end line or the thrower-in could run along the end line prior to making the throw-in. Statistics indicate spectator interest was revived and a noticeable increase in attendance and spectator involvement took place, perhaps due to this rule change.

Critics of this rule change include the inventor of the game, Dr. James Naismith, who attacked the change on its philosophical basis. He felt a team which earned the basket or free throw should not have to give up the ball automatically. In my conversations with John Bunn, he indicated this was probably the one change Dr. Naismith opposed more than any other.

I believe the 1937 elimination of the center jump after a score has been the most important and significant change in the history of the game.

Game plan.

Success in basketball requires plenty of training, good coaching and team play. And it requires a game plan.

At McDonald's, our game plan is simple. We have the team to produce winners every season.

Winners like Quarter Pounder,[™] Big Mac,[™] Golden French Fries, and Triple Thick Shakes.

And our game plan includes careful handling. We never drop the ball when it comes to service. Prompt and courteous—whether you're home team or visitor.

So, before or after the next battle on the hardwood, include McDonald's in your game plan.

"Old Blue" Offers Campus Tours

By Marcia Miller
UK Hometown News Bureau

A little bit of the United Kingdom has come to the University of Kentucky. Like the double-decker buses that don the streets of London, UK has its own bus which tours the university's main campus.

"Old Blue" is UK's authentic double-decker bus which was purchased by the UK Alumni Association. The 56-passenger bus has been in operation at UK since 1974. It was originally part of the London, England omnibus fleet.

The tours are done with the help of the Panhellenic Council which represents the sororities at UK.

This year 21 UK coeds are conducting the tours. Edie Rowe, a senior from McLean, Va., and an early childhood education major is the chairman of the program. Her duties include setting up schedules, training the guides and, in general, making sure the tours run smoothly.

In addition to using the bus, a walking tour will go on a trial run in the month of April. "We're going to see how it works and continue from there. I think there's a need for it," Rowe said.

Jody Carbiener, junior journalism major from Columbus, Ohio says she enjoys doing the tours. "I feel like I've learned a lot about the university and from the people themselves who ride 'Old Blue'—especially the alumni who frequently come back to campus."

The buses provide a 30-minute tour of the 625-acre main campus in addition to the special tours and conference trips. Some 4,000 people annually ride "Old Blue." The bus leaves from the north side of the Administration Building Monday through Friday at 2 p.m.

One of the few items missing from the restored bus is its change collector. There is no charge for the "Old Blue" tours.

In addition to Rowe and Carbiener other members of the guides corps are:

Pam Baker, junior telecommunications major, Danville; Laura Clay, junior elementary education major, Winchester; Lynne Craver, junior journalism and sociology major, Naperville, Ill.;

Julie A. Dressman, junior education major, Fort Mitchell; Liz Dudley, junior elementary education major, Louisville; Nancy Ellis, junior therapeutic recreation major, Benton; Jane Elliot, early childhood education major, Dayton, Ohio;

Kelly E. Green, senior business administration major, Frankfort; Linda Kay Hartman, junior English major, Louisville; Jenny Jackson, sophomore arts and sciences major, Lexington; Laura Luttrell, junior business major, Shelbyville;

Laura Ann Moyers, senior speech and hearing major, Louisville; Stephanie Millard, junior accounting major, Lexington; Lisa Marie Northway, senior personnel management major, Grand Blanc, Mich.

Also, Kelly Paull, sophomore physical therapy major, Summer Shade; Katrina Phillips, junior communications major, Lexington; Cindy Steltemeier, junior journalism major, Nashville, Tenn.; Terri Lee Tichenor, sophomore merchandising major, Louisville; and Susan K. Wyatt, junior home economics major from Louisville.

Some of the sites visitors may see are the various classroom buildings, the Wildcat Lodge, Commonwealth Stadium, and the newest additions to the University, the still growing student center and UK's Center for the Arts which recently housed the famed Armand Hammer art collection "Five Centuries of Masterpieces" this past winter.

While winding through the campus passengers may think they are traveling through a little town. UK has its own newspaper, post office and "restaurants" such as the many resident hall cafeterias.

UK even has its own "beach"—Students can be seen basking on the sunny slopes beside UK's twin towers most any day when the temperature reaches 60 degrees or above.

The tour also provides glimpses of UK's academic colleges, the agricultural and medical complexes and several historical campus landmarks. The bus returns to its starting point, near the Patterson statue and the Administration Building at the end of the tour.

Old Blue seats 30 passengers in the upper deck and 26 in the lower level. One tour guide, Jenny Jackson of Lexington, recalls a cold day in December when a group of first graders came to the university to ride Old Blue. All of the children wanted to ride on the top level of the double-decker bus, so halfway through the tour "Old Blue" made an unusual stop.

All the kids got off the bus . . . the boys and girls on the bottom level got their turn to ride on the top.

"Kids really think it's fun to ride on the upper deck of 'Old Blue,'" Miss Jackson said.

Scouting Report: Tennessee

The Volunteers had hoped to return the bulk of the basketball team that defied the experts last year by finishing third in the SEC and advancing to the final 16 of the NCAA Tournament.

Coach Don DeVoe's main problem has been to find a center to replace the graduated Howard Wood, one of Tennessee's greatest clutch performers. Sophomore Willie Burton (6.5 ppg and 6 rpg) has played well at times in the center for the Vols and he has 6-10 soph Dan Federman waiting in the wings.

Tennessee was hit with a double dose of bad luck at the beginning of the season when it lost its starting backcourt to ineligibility. Gary Carter (who averaged 20 ppg) and Ed Littleton are no longer in school and DeVoe has had to go to his bench to replace them. The surprise has been the performance of the guards, especially Michael Brooks, a 6-3 sophomore from Memphis who has raised his scoring average from 5 to 9 ppg and has increased his shooting percentage from 32% to 41% this season. Brooks scored 19 points in the Vols' win over Kentucky in Knoxville this season.

Brooks' backcourt mate, 5-11 sophomore Tyrone Beaman, is averaging 6 ppg and has been a tower of strength on defense. In Tennessee's first meeting with Kentucky, Beaman helped hold Dirk Minniefield scoreless and ran the offense skillfully from the point guard position.

The Vols big gun, of course, is forward Dale Ellis, an All-SEC selection last season and Tennessee's leading scorer and rebounder this year. Ellis averages over 21 ppg and 7 rpg. He plays the high post well and is considered the Vols Mr. Clutch now. The 6-7 junior excelled in post season play last year. Ellis scored 23 in the Kentucky game.

Senior leader Steve Ray anchors the other forward position and he has rebounded well from the illness which sidelined him the last quarter of last season. The 6-4 Ray is averaging more than 7 ppg.

There's no secret that good defense has put Tennessee at the head of the conference race coming into the season's home stretch. DeVoe is a disciple of Ohio State's Fred Taylor and he coached with Bobby Knight at Army. It's obvious their defensive man-to-man philosophy has rubbed off. Occasionally Tennessee will switch to the zone but they are basically a man-to-man team.

Another reason for the Vols success in the SEC this year has been their shooting. Tennessee is shooting about 54% from the field — second to Ole Miss — and that will win some games.

Dale Ellis

DON DEVOE
Head Coach

DeVoe's reputation as a solid basketball coach, with a special predilection for effectively arraying his troops for defensive combat, has spread far and wide. In 1979, his first year at the Orange helm, DeVoe was the choice of the Associated Press' panel of experts as SEC coach of the year.

A similar honor was bestowed at the end of the 1980-1981 season. Picked to finish seventh in the SEC, Tennessee fashioned a very respectable 12-6 record, good for third place in the league and finished 21-8 overall. Taking that achievement into account, and allowing additional credits for UT's position among the nation's top-ranked teams from the midseason point, SEC coaches named DeVoe coach-of-the-year. The poll, conducted by The News-Sentinel of Knoxville, is recognized by the SEC as the official coach-of-the-year selection. He was also selected as District Coach-of-the-year by both the Basketball Writers Association and the National Association of Basketball Coaches.

Don's first major coaching assignment was at Virginia Tech where he kicked off his head coaching career by guiding the 1972 Gobblers to a 16-10 season. The next season (22-5 overall) was climaxed when Tech won the National Invitation Tournament championship at New York's Madison Square Garden. DeVoe coached five years at Virginia Tech, putting together an 88-45 record and earning an invitation to the NCAA first-round tournament his final year, 1975-76.

Wyoming, which had fared poorly in the tough Western Athletic Conference for several seasons, called on DeVoe to solve its problems.

The combination of 88-45 at Virginia Tech, 29-25 at Wyoming and 60-31 at Tennessee gave DeVoe a nine-year coaching record of 177 victories against 101 defeats for a percentage of .637.

DeVoe, born on New Year's Eve in 1941 in Sabina, Ohio, entered Ohio State on partial scholarship and was given a full grant by Head Coach Fred Taylor after a promising freshman season. As a sophomore in 1962 he was a substitute on a team that had Jerry Lucas and John Havlicek as seniors and which finished runnerup in the NCAA tournament. He then played two years as a starting forward on Big 10 champion teams in 1963 and 1964. DeVoe was the Buckeyes' No. 3 scorer his senior year with a 10.5 average.

Dr. Edward J. Boling, seventh president of the University of Tennessee, was appointed in 1970 after a career in teaching, industry, state government and university administration.

He is the chief administrative officer of a statewide system of higher education which includes four primary campuses, several special units and statewide programs of research and public service. During his presidency, the alumni and fund raising programs of the University of Tennessee have received national recognition. And, in 1980, UT completed a $57 million fund-raising campaign.

The Knoxville campus offers a full range of academic programs to approximately 29,000 students. Professional and graduate education in 300 fields of study is available at UT Knoxville and the campus offers a wide range of undergraduate and graduate degree programs in 19 colleges and schools.

Development in graduate education has been accompanied by growth of major research programs, particularly in the field of energy. Researchers have also been cited for their contributions in cancer research, effects of noise pollution, transportation, life sciences and many other fields.

BOB WOODRUFF
Athletics Director

SUCCESS by Vol teams in head-to-head combat has characterized the UT sports program since Bob Woodruff took command as director of athletics in 1963.

The Vols have captured seven Southeastern Conference all-sports championship since 1969.

As evidence of the confidence placed in his judgement, Woodruff frequently is called on to bring his thorough knowledge of athletics to bear in other areas affecting amateur sports. As example was his involvement as a member of the United States Olympic Committee. Woodruff serves, too, in important committee work for the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame.

The Tennessee Hall of Fame opened its door to Woodruff in 1971, enshrining him as a standout football player at UT in the late Thirties, the highly successful head coach at Baylor and Florida, and for his achievements as UT Athletic Director.

A native of Athens, Georgia, Woodruff was a standout tackle at Tennessee in 1936-38 on teams that won 23 games and lost only five.

The University of Kentucky A Great And Growing University

Truly one of the leading land grant institutions in the nation, the University of Kentucky has a national and international reputation in such diverse fields as medicine, business, engineering, law and agriculture.

Situated in the heart of the beautiful Bluegrass region of Kentucky, the main campus at Lexington has more than 23,000 students enrolled.

Another 19,000 students are enrolled in the 13 community colleges operated by UK across the state.

The main campus, near downtown Lexington, comprises about 625 acres of land on which there are more than 200 buildings and other structures, walks, malls, gardens, playing fields, recreation space and parking.

UK has a graduate school and 17 academic colleges . . . Arts and Sciences, Agriculture, Engineering, Business and Economics, Education, Home Economics, Library Science, Social Work, Architecture, Communications, Fine Arts, Law, Medicine, Nursing, Dentistry, Allied Health Professions and Pharmacy.

UK is noted for its research efforts, especially in the fields of energy, tobacco and cancer.

UK's Institute for Mining and Minerals Research is a national leader in energy-related research.

The UK College of Agriculture has been responsible over the years for the development of 80 percent of the burley tobacco varieties grown anywhere in the world, and its research on tobacco diseases has saved farmers millions of dollars.

Kentucky also is a world leader in the thoroughbred horse industry. In fact, vaccines developed at UK for horses are being used all over the world.

UK has an outstanding faculty with some of the top teachers and researchers in the nation.

In the arts, close to 100,000 people attend the many art, music and theater productions at UK. UK's new Center for the Arts contains a 400-seat recital hall, a 1,500-seat concert hall and the 20,000 square-foot UK Art Museum.

UK's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center has a wide range of programs in education and research. The five colleges of the Medical Center—Medicine, Nursing, Dentistry, Pharmacy and Allied Health—have more than 2,000 students pursuing bachelor, masters and doctoral degrees in health-related fields.

Of major significance in the area of medical research is the Sanders-Brown Research Center on Aging, one of the first facilities of its kind in the nation.

UK graduates almost 6,000 students each year from the main campus and the community colleges. The UK Alumni Association, therefore, continues to grow in number of the clubs (64) and paid members (22,000). Besides the 34 clubs in Kentucky, there are 30 organized alumni groups outside the state from Los Angeles to New York.

The University has had only eight presidents since its founding in 1865. Dr. Otis Singletary, now in his 13th year as UK president, is a history scholar and nationally-recognized university administrator.

University of Kentucky Cheerleaders — Best in Nation

This year's University of Kentucky cheerleaders are one of the best collegiate squads in the nation.

They have already earned top honors from pre-season competition with other outstanding squads in the United States.

At the prestigious Universal Cheerleading Association competition this past summer, UK's cheerleaders came out with "best overall squad" honors—beating out Ohio State and Memphis State which were the No. 1 squads in the country the past two years. Now UK's cheerleaders are ready to turn on their many talents for the UK fans.

UK's cheerleaders are ably coached by T. Lynn Williamson, acting dean of students.
