FOREWORD

In the following pages we have attempted to present a record of one year of our lives as students of the University of Kentucky.

Soon our college days will be over and we, like many who have gone before us, will be looked upon as alumni, and the things we have done will be called "tradition." If, then, in the years which are to come, when memory is fast failing us, this book will aid in bringing back fond remembrances, in recalling old faces and friendships, and happy experiences of the days which sped while we were at U. K., long grown dim with the passing of years, our effort shall not have been entirely in vain and we shall have justified the faith.

DEDICATION

To

MARY FRANCES JEWELL

In appreciation of her high principles of right living and right thinking, of her fervid desire for the promotion of the highest ideals of university life, of her patience and self-sacrifice in the betterment of the institution, but principally because of the marked influence she has exerted upon the student body by her gentleness and charm of personality, this, the

TWENTY-FOURTH VOLUME

OF THE

KENTUCKIAN

IS DEDICATED

In Memoriam

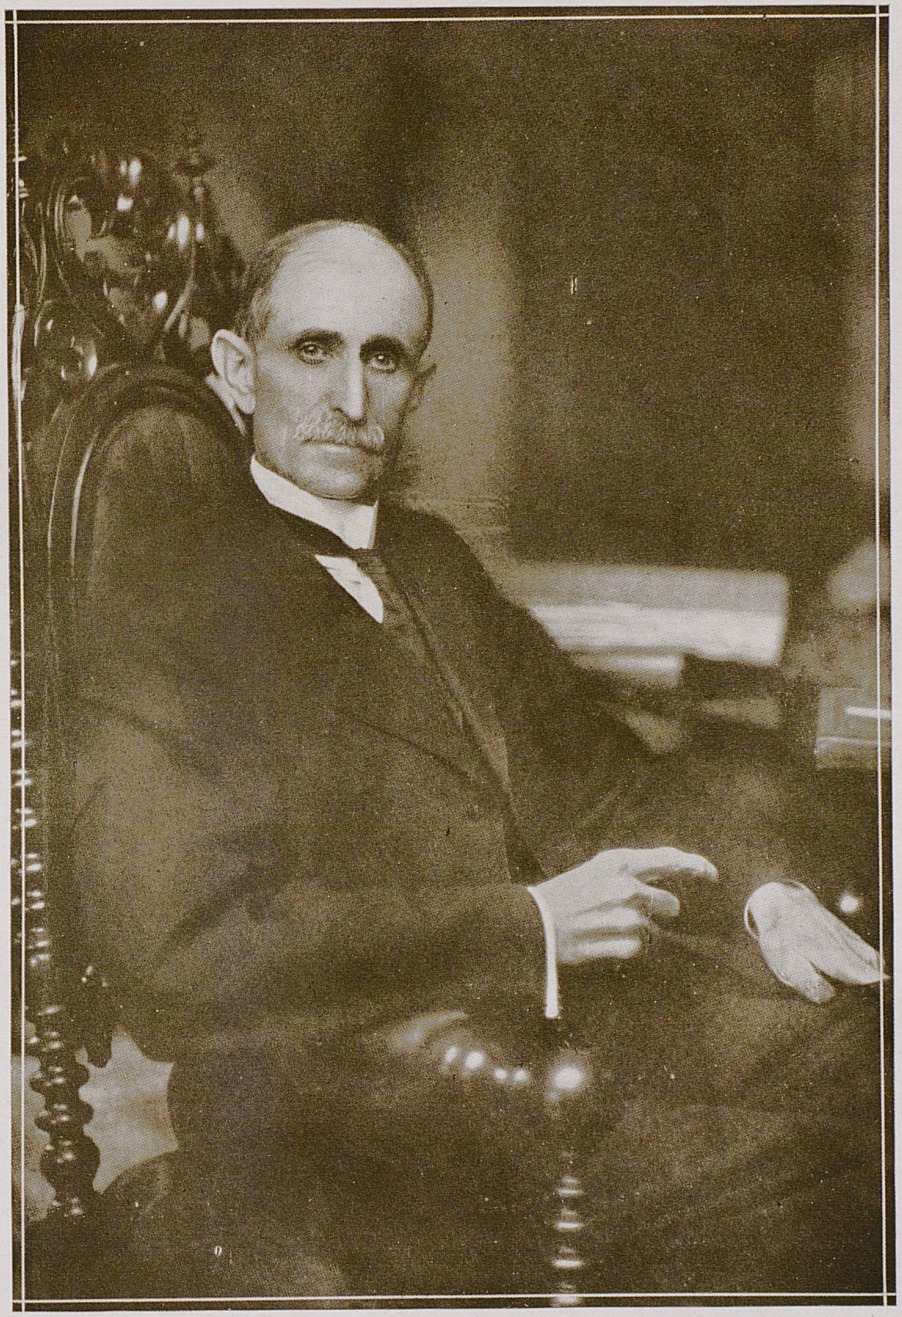

To

Judge William Thornton Lafferty

Who, in 1908, seeing an opportunity to serve his state by training young men for the legal profession, accepted the call to establish the College of Law at the University of Kentucky. During the fourteen years of its existence under Judge Lafferty's guidance it has taken its place among the leading law colleges of the South.

It is fitting and appropriate that we pay, in this small way, our tribute of respect to the memory of our beloved Dean. He was more than a teacher, he was a devoted, fatherly adviser to each and every student, keeping daily before them the highest ideals of a good lawyer and patriotic citizen. He is gone, yet his memory is warm in the hearts of each of us; and the highest tribute which we can pay to that memory would be, not the printed page or marble shaft, but by living up to those high principles of citizenship and professional conduct which he so sincerely kept before us.

Student Body of the Law College.

Dean Boyd

ONE of the most prominent figures in university life and in Southern education is Dean Paul Prentice Boyd, of the College of Arts and Sciences. He was born February 26, 1877, at Camerson, West Virginia. He was graduated from Oberlin College in 1898 and received a master's degree from Cornell in 1905, returning in 1911 for a degree in philosophy.

In 1912 he came to the University as professor of mathematics. The following year he was made head of that department. During this time he was president of the Interstate Oratorical Association and the Kentucky Mathematical Association.

In 1917 Dean A. M. Miller, of the College of Arts and Sciences, resigned, and the Board of Trustees, upon recommendation, appointed Professor Boyd as dean pro tem. In the same year Judge Henry Barker retired, leaving the university without a president, and Dean Boyd was made acting president until such a time as the board should elect President Barker's successor. He ably served in this capacity until Doctor McVey assumed charge; since that time he has filled the position of Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. In 1919 he was made president of the Kentucky Academy of Science.

Through the instrumentality of Dean Boyd, in December, 1921, a chapter of Sigma Xi, national honorary scientific fraternity, was installed at the University. The election of Dean Boyd as president of the local chapter is a partial recognition of the great service he rendered in procuring it.

During the past summer Professor Boyd, in collaboration with Professors Reese and Davis, wrote and published, "A Course in Analytics". This book is now in use at the University, and is proving very satisfactory. Dean Boyd has been for years a frequent contributor to well known educational magazines and quarterlies. The fact that his name is found listed in "Who's Who in America", "American Men of Science", and "Who's Who in After-War Education" attests his prominence.

Since coming to the University, Dean Boyd has introduced a number of innovations that have looked toward better scholarship and conduct of the University. He is a man of breadth, widely acquainted with educational problems, firm in decisions, but possessed of a rare sympathy in the handling of students that wins not only esteem, but love.

DEAN PAUL P. BOYD

Dean Anderson

FREDERICK PAUL ANDERSON, the head, heart, and soul of the Engineering College, is responsible for one of our state's best products—the Kentucky engineer. This man of undying interest and boundless enthusiasm conceived, founded and built up to its present efficiency the University of Kentucky's Engineering College. He sends each year into the commercial world a group of men trained not only in the technique of their profession, but in principles of right thinking, love of truth, and human engineering. Most of all, he instills into his students some of his own wonderful personality, so that they go forth full of the spirit of uplift, energy, and enthusiasm that spells success.

Engineers are the builders of the world. It is to the engineer that humanity looks for protection against the elements, for safe transportation on land and sea, and for the production of many necessities of life. If this be true, then how much greater than the engineer is his maker? Dean Anderson is a maker of engineers.

DEAN PAUL ANDERSON

Dean Cooper

THE College of Agriculture is fortunate in having such an able and competent leader as Dean Thomas Cooper. He was born at Pekin, Ill., March 2, 1881. The years of his youth, having been spent on a farm, he was readily attracted by the opportunities offered the scientific agriculturist. In 1908 he received the degree of B.S. in Agriculture from the University of Minnesota.

Since leaving college, his time and energy have been devoted to the pursuance of farm management and economic research, and the training of young men and women so that positions of leadership and responsibility in agriculture might be competently filled.

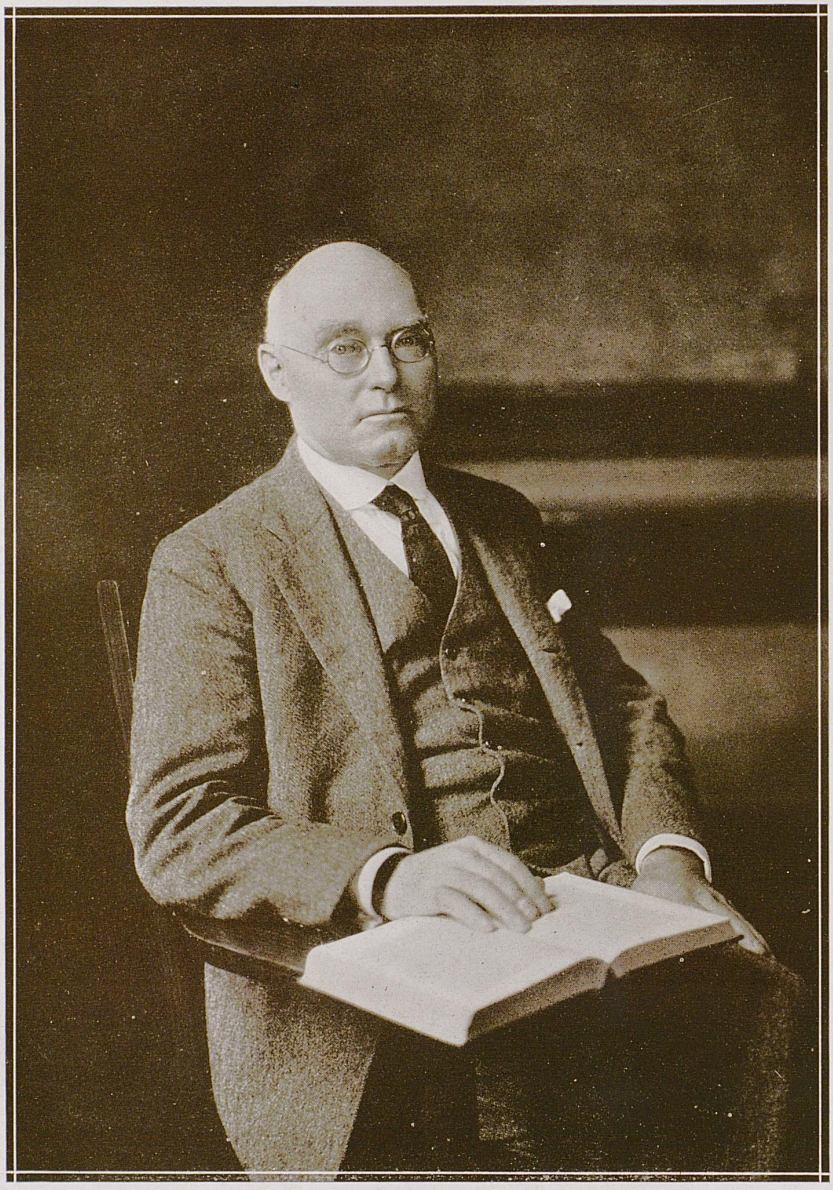

Many notable achievements have been attained by Dean Cooper. While he was in college his membership was enrolled in Acacia, Alpha Zeta, and Sigma Xi fraternities, while in the world of agricultural science he is prominent. He is a member of several organizations of national reputation, among which are the American Farm Management Association and the American Academy of Political and Social Science.

In 1914 he was made director of the North Dakota Experiment Station, which position he held until coming to Kentucky. Although he has been in this state but a few years, numerous agricultural organizations of Kentucky have enrolled him as a member. He has made a great many friends here, and is fully imbued with the Southern spirit.

He came to Kentucky in January, 1918, to assume the duties of director of the Experiment Station and dean of the College of Agriculture. As a result of his excellent leadership these institutions have grown in efficiency and reputation. He has succeeded admirably in organizing agricultural interests here, and in arousing an unusual awakening toward the possibilities of scientific agriculture in Kentucky.

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Senior Class

CASPER ACREE, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Erlanger, Ky.

Α Γ Ρ

Agricultural Society; Y. M. C. A.; Fat Stock Judging Team (4); Hoof and Horn Club.

Casper finished last semester and landed right square into a hatchery located near Knoxville, Tenn., where he is serving as manager. His friendship is valued highly by members of Alpha Gamma Rho.

EDITH ALEXANDER, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Paducah, Ky.

Φ Υ Ο

Paducah Club, Secretary (1); Agricultural Society, Secretary (2), Vice-President (3), President (4); Home Economics Club; Y. W. C. A.

A Western Kentucky four-year girl. How much that tells without further comment! Edith is a member of the honorary home economics fraternity, which shows her proficiency in her chosen line of endeavor.

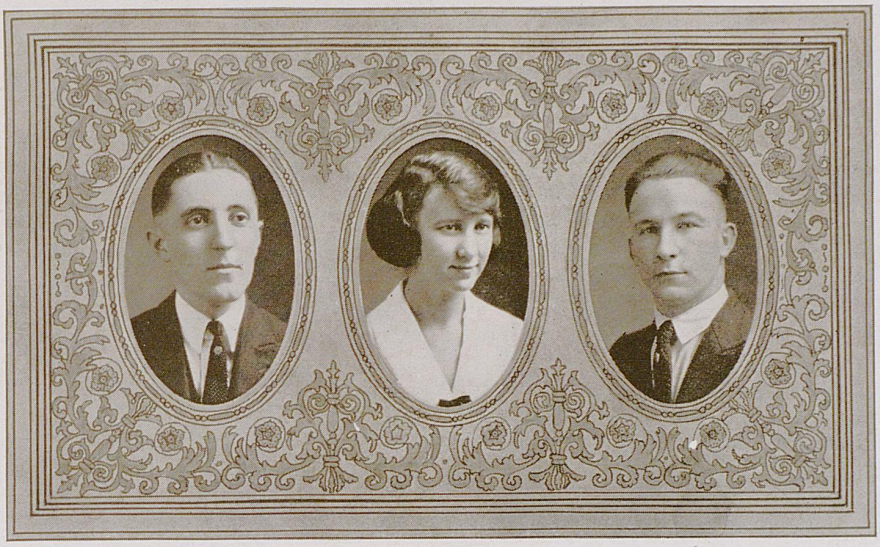

JOHN R. ALBRIGHT, LL.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Σ Α Ε

Cadet Lieutenant (2); Cast "Admirable Crichton"; Assistant Football Manager (3); Cast "Thirteenth Chair" (3); Lamp and Cross; Business Manager Strollers (4); Men's Student Council; Pan-Hellenic Council (4).

U. of K. learned Johnny's interesting personality through the parts he took in "The Thirteenth Chair" and "Erminie". He has been a prominent factor in many student activities.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

MOSES ALPERIN, B.S. in C.E. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

University Debating Team (2, 4); Union Literary Society (1, 2); Kentuckian Staff (3, 4); University Oratorical Squad (4); Student Chapter A. A. E., Secretary (4); Goethals Engineering Society (1, 2); Student Chapter A. S. C. E., Treasurer (4); Secretary Department of Civil Engineering (1, 2, 3, 4); Joint Committee (4); Honor Roll (1, 2, 3, 4).

"Mose" vows that he doesn't believe in love, but is that proof enough that he never will? He has all the prerequisites of a capital lover, including a ready smile and a willing heart. And brains! His is a record of "A's", except one "C" from Farquhar, which speaks for itself.

ELIZABETH MARSHALL ALLEN, A.B. . . . . Maysville, Ky.

X Ω

Romance Language Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Y. W. C. A.; Philosophian; "Robin Hood" (2); "Mikado" (3); "Erminie" (4); Choral Club (4); Rifle Club (4); "Feast of Little Lanterns" (1).

"Little Allen was pushing a pen—
Chi-O! Chi-O! Chi-O!
Waiting to hear from Bobby again—
Chi-O! Chi-O! Chi-O!"

The old song tells on her, we fear, and even "Zemmie's" teasing thrusts about "Jim" and "Joe" cannot dim the happiness we see in her eyes when the South Lime postman appears every morning.

TOLLIVER R. ANDERSON, A.B. . . . . Hopkinsville, Ky.

Τ Δ Α; Δ Σ Π

Class Football (1, 2); Class Basketball (2); Class Baseball (1, 2); Legislative Club.

Anderson is a student after Dr. Weist's own heart. Economics is his long suit, and theoretically he has already made millions of dollars according to Roger W. Babson's prescribed recipe. He is going forth now to test his theory, and may the business principles he got from Casey Jones remain behind him!

Senior Class

WILLIAM ARTHUR ANDERSON, JR., A.B. . . . . Wickliffe, Ky.

Σ X

Rafinesque Botany Club, President (3); Patterson Literary Society; Honor Roll, "High Distinction" (1, 2, 3, 4); "Mikado" Chorus (3); "Erminie" Chorus (4); Botanical Society of America (4).

Anderson speaks the language of the flowers, and the beautiful little things that spring up out of the earth are all his friends. He knows them all by three Latin names. It seems strange that with all this on his mind he should yet have time to devote hours to the trivial pastimes, but he does, and the secret of it is a "Riddell."

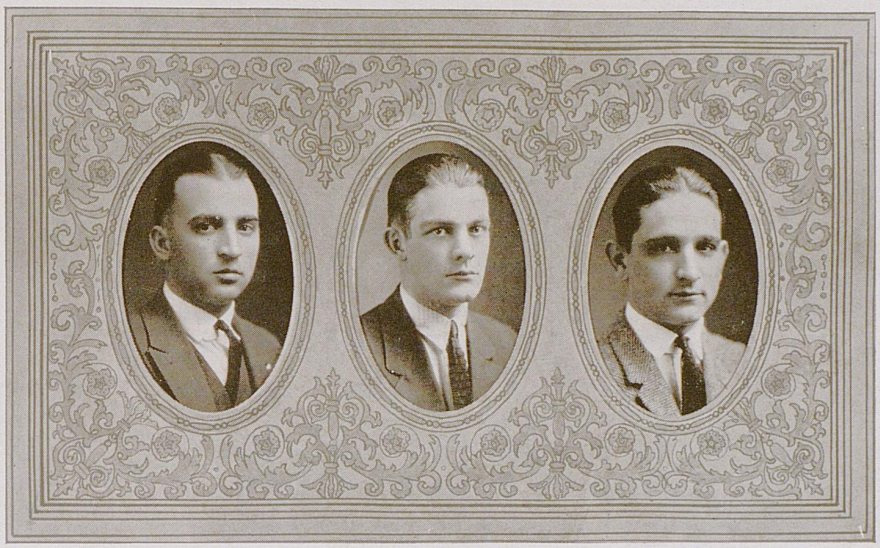

W. S. ANDERSON, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

"W. S." has the distinction of being the best dancer in the Alpha Gamma Rho lodge, and he makes quite a hit with the ladies upon all occasions; particularly at pink teas. What would we do without our social Ag. men and the alarming influence they exert in all things—especially the popularity contest?

DEWEY C. ANTROBUS, B.S. in C.E. . . . . Williamstown, Ky.

Charles Schwab Engineering Society (1, 2); Student Chapter A. S. C. E. (3, 4); Joint Committee (4).

"Pinkie" comes from Williamstown and cannot understand how anyone can miss seeing it on the way to Cincinnati, as there is a big water tank right near the town. He was not originally a member of our class, but he decided to cast his lot with and be one of the "lucky thirteen" Civils of the Class of '23.

Senior Class

ALLIE F. ARNOLD, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Falmouth, Ky.

T B Π

Goethals Engineering Society, Secretary and Treasurer (2, 4); Student Chapter A. I. E. E. (4); Student Chapter A. S. M. E. (4).

"Shorty" is a husky farmer boy from Falmouth. The tillers of the soil lost a good man when "Shorty" decided to enter the engineering profession. He is one of the best-natured and best-liked boys in our class, and also one of the steadiest in his work in the class room. There is no reason why success on the outside should not come his way.

EASTON JACKSON ASHER, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Class Basketball (1, 2, 3); Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); Glee Club (2, 4); Band (2, 3, 4); English Club.

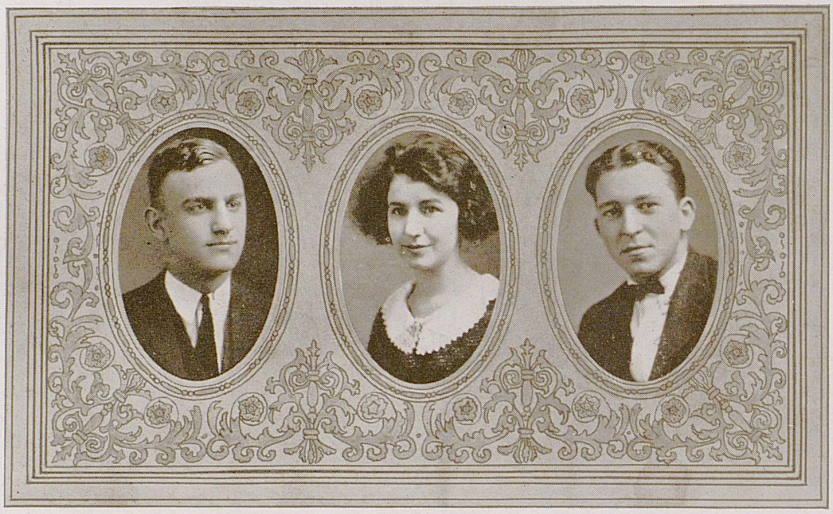

Asher is one of the members of the M. M. C. (Married Men's Club), but he is a good student and always finds time to be sociable and a good all-round fellow.

ROBERT RAYMOND ARNOLD, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Morgan, Ky.

Δ X

Class Basketball (1, 2, 3), Captain (3); Class Baseball (1, 2, 3); Class Football (2, 3); Y. M. C. A.; Delegate State Conference; Hoof and Horn Club.

In the Ag. College he is well known for the good records he has made in judging cattle and stock. He has never taken any of the trips to the national shows, but he has made it possible for others to go.

Senior Class

LLOYD B. AVERITT, A.B. . . . . Carrollton, Ky.

Θ X

Lloyd's love for Theta Chi has not kept him from becoming a strong friend for A. T. O., even to the point that he advocates it for the rest of the family. He knocks the "profs" for "A's" before they realize it, and when they regain consciousness Lloyd is smilingly bowing his way out with the little "A" tucked snugly away.

RUBY MILLER BARLOW, B.S. in H. E. . . . . Barlow, Ky.

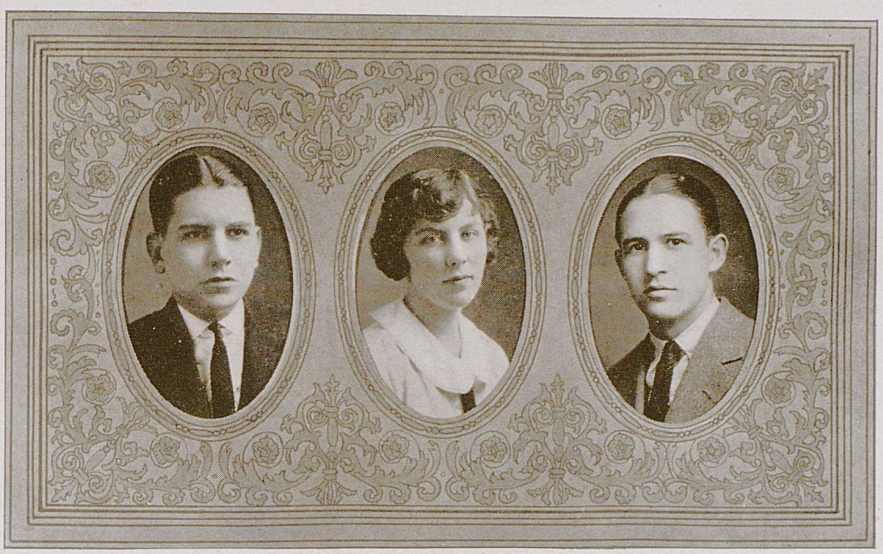

"Home Ec's her specialty,
The lab's her second home;
About this fascinating place
It's her delight to roam."

WILLIAM PAUL BALLINGER, B.S. in M.E. . . . . West Point, Ky.

T B Π

Triangle; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E.; A. A. E.; Goethals Engineering Society; Radio Club.

Men may come and men may go, but "Dook" sleeps on forever. Two years ago Ballinger was considered one of the best men in the class. Of late he has had rather rough going, which all goes to show that a reputation is a hard mount to ride.

Senior Class

ARTHUR JAMES BRADSHAW, A.B. . . . . Somerset, Ky.

Φ K T

Su-Ky Circle, Treasurer '20 (2); President (2).

Without "Teener" the Su-Ky Circle and Phi Kappa Tau simply could not have existed. Dependable and good-natured, this dignified senior has more than made his presence felt upon the campus. We predict that although he has been well protected against Cupid's arrows, some day a dart will pierce his armor which will be well-nigh fatal.

ELISE BOHANNON . . . . . Louisville, Ky.

K K Γ; Φ Υ O

Don't send balsaam or heart's ease to Elise, just let George do it. As a well trained Home Ec, Elise has promise for the making of a happy home if she doesn't let "Another Nash" interfere.

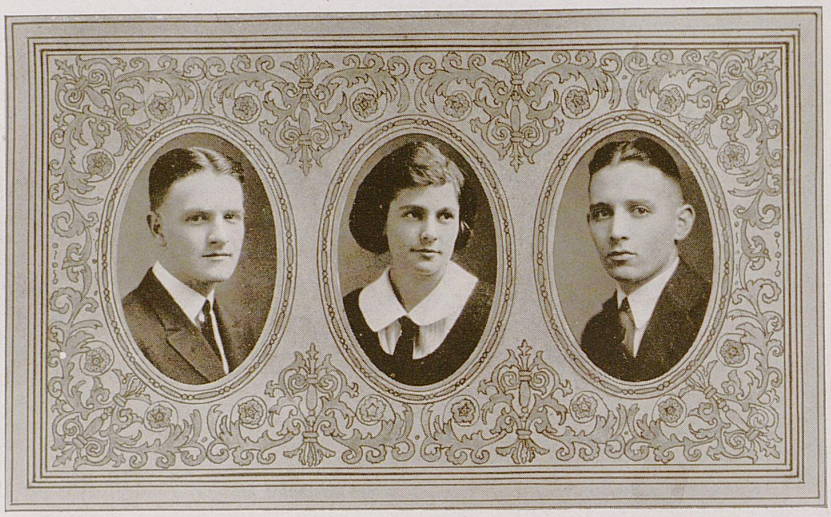

ROBERT HAYNES BARR, B.S. in Chemistry . . . . . Owensboro, Ky.

Δ X

Y. M. C. A.; Blue Ridge Delegate (2); A. A. E.; Goethals Engineering Society (1, 2); Pre-Med. Society (2, 4); President Pre-Med. Society (3, 4); President Pre-Med. Society (4); Class Football (1, 2, 3); Class Basketball (1, 2, 3); "Robin Hood"; Pan-Hellenic Council (3); Class Baseball (1, 2).

At almost any time of the day this moustached (we think that's what it is) individual may be seen following his master about the campus. We think the advertisement for Victor Records applies better here than the "Mary had a little lamb" version.

"The time I've lost in wooing (says Haynes)
In watching and pursuing
The light that lies
In woman's eyes
Has been my heart's undoing."

Senior Class

JOHN EARLY BURKS, JR. . . . . Cave City, Ky.

Τ Β Π; Κ Α

Lamp and Cross; Su-Ky Circle; Class Football (1); Kentuckian Staff (2); Pan-Hellenic Council (2); Cast, "Admirable Crichton"; Director, Strollers (3, 4); Tau Beta Pi Scholarship (3); A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E.

"Johnny" is one of our leading business men. An engineer isn't expected to know much about anything in this world except engineering, but "Johnny" surprised us all considerably. He is a Kappa Alpha, a ladies' man, and a fine manager.

ELIZABETH CHEEK BROWN, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Α Ξ Δ

Y. W. C. A.; Glee Club; Stroller Eligible; Women's League; History Club.

To "Betty" there's always one moment of supreme happiness—that of "getting even". We can imagine her in pinafore days and see her now as the same "Betty". With all there's a charm and a bit of irresistibility about her which endears her to us, and we shan't forget her.

HARRISON DUDLEY BRAILSFORD, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Louisville, Ky.

Α Τ Ω

Keys; Mystic Thirteen; Class Orator (3, 4); Secretary A. I. E. E.; Strollers; Pan-Hellenic Council (4); Goethals Engineering Society, President (1); Radio Club, Vice-President (2); Assistant Art Editor Kentuckian (3); Clerk Senior Court (4); A. S. M. E.

Now, Harry is the Senior Mechanicals' pet fool; but for fear some of those uneducated A.B.'s will not understand, I will have to term him "Wamba," the jester; for Harry is nobody's fool. Harry, when you read this, please remember that "remarks from you are neither solicited nor desired".

Senior Class

EARLE WRAY BAUGHMAN, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Stanford, Ky.

K A; Φ M A

Glee Club (1, 2, 3, 4), President (4); Su-Ky Saxophone Sextette (2, 3, 4); Cast, "Mikado"; Cast, "The Two Vagabonds".

It was ever so, music and love—the two are inseparable. Thus it is with Earle. A perfect lover, a charming voice, and brains enough to pass; what more could any man wish? Ah, "gwan", "Geraldine"—we were only kidding.

TOMMIE BRONSTON, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Kentucky is a wild and woolly state, but from it has come to us one unschooled in rustic ways, upon whose features is always stamped an inevitable smile—that is "Tommie".

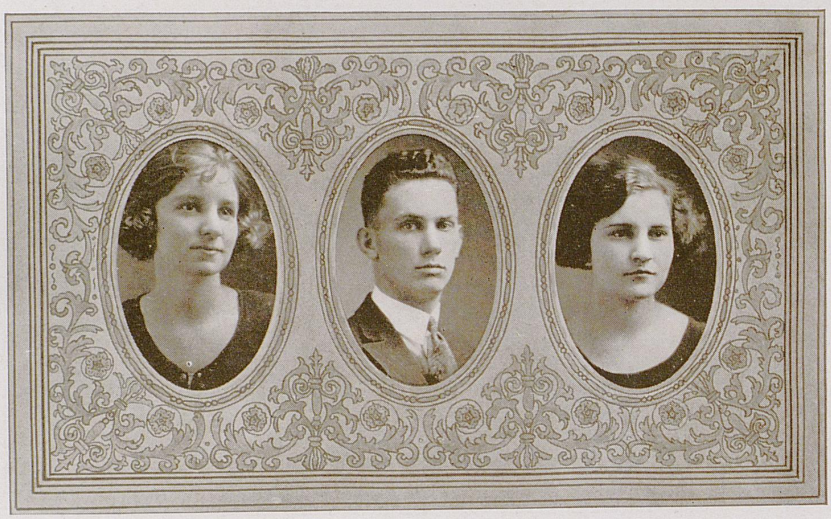

REYNOLDS T. BELL, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Paris, Ky.

A Γ P; A Z

Class Football (3); Student Council (4).

As quiet as the Sphinx is this handsome lad, who might well be mentioned as timber for successor to Rodolph Valentino or the Arrow Collar man. As an Ag., Bell is right there, but he falls a bit short of a well-rounded farmer inasmuch as we have not heard much about a "Mrs." for his farmstead, yet.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

MARY BARNARD, A.B. . . . . Island, Ky.

Δ Φ

W. S. G. A. Second Vice-President; English Club; History Club; Y. W. C. A. Athletic Association; Woman's Executive Council.

We don't know what kind of a sweetheart Mary makes, but she is a very congenial classmate. Some day those bright eyes are sure to arouse some dreamer from his dreams, and Mary will be alone no more.

DAN R. BAUGH, A.B. . . . . London, Ky.

Δ Σ Π; Φ Μ Α

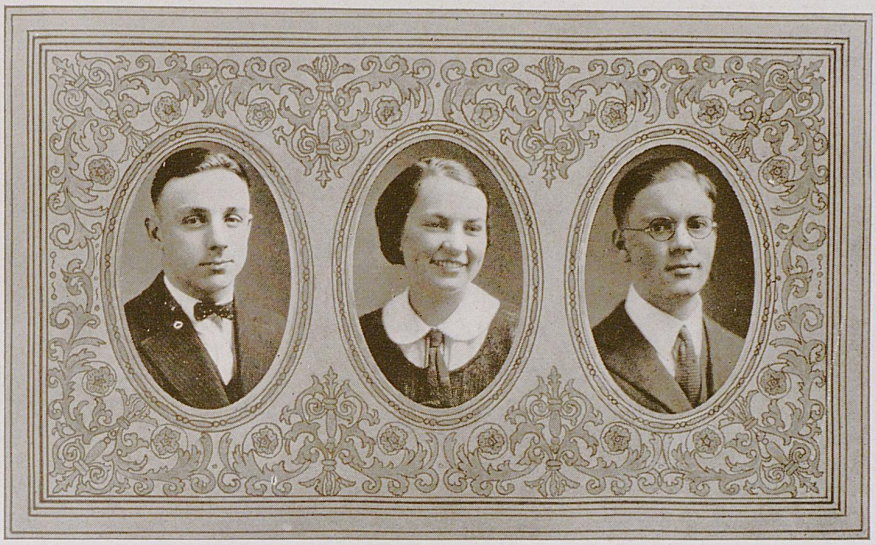

Boots and Saddles; Class Basketball and Football; Varsity Football Squad (3); Band (1, 2, 3); Lieutenant R. O. T. C. (3); Major (4).

There must be a "girl back home" for Dan, and we believe that he has ever remained true to her during the four strenuous years of a co-ed university education. However, something has been his inspiration. We are sure of that, because without it he could not have accomplished the things that he has and gained the place in student affairs which he now holds.

WILNA HUFFMAN BROWN, A.B. . . . . Bloomfield, Ky.

Y. W. C. A.; Horace Mann Literary Society; Philosophian Literary Society; Woman's League; Stroller Eligible; English Club; Tusitalia; Athletic Association.

There are few people at the University who have not noted this energetic little person flitting from place to place with contagious enthusiasm for anything in the way of dramatics and literature. Mr. Grimm would probably call her a "jolly little elf".

Senior Class

LAWRENCE S. BURNHAM, B.S. in Geology . . . . . Paducah, Ky.

A T Ω

Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Baseball (1, 2, 3, 4), Captain (4); Lamp and Cross; Mystic Thirteen; Keys; Shaler's Geological Society.

The luster of our brightest stars is often dimmed by a screen of modesty, until they are seen in action. "Dutch" is an all-round athlete and a good student, but so unassuming he will never admit it, which quality makes him the more appreciated.

DOROTHY SACRE BLATZ, A.B. . . . . Louisville, Ky.

A Ξ Δ

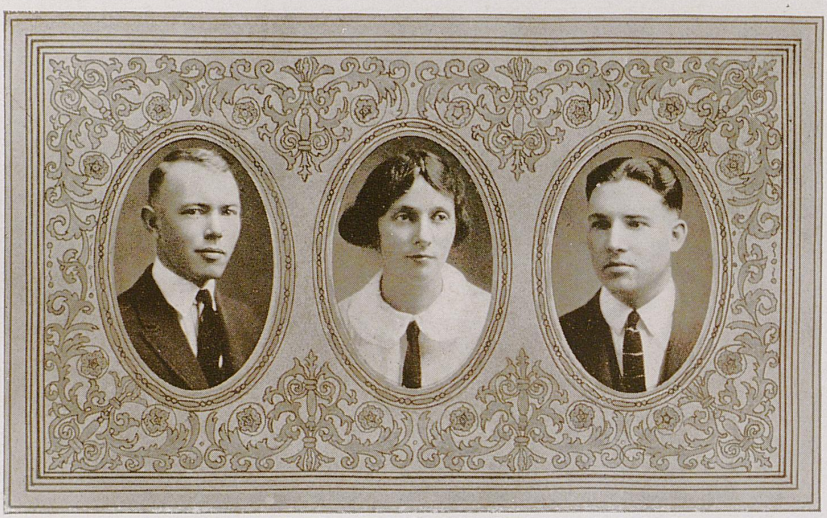

Su-Ky; Kernel Staff, '23; Athletic Association; Y. W. C. A.; Women's League.

We are sorry for the campus after this year, and for the classes which are to come, for they can never know "Dot" as we have known her. It is their misfortune and our good luck to have had her with us these four years. The typical co-ed, the enthusiastic sister of Su-Ky, the winner of Kitten basketball players, and the envy of the campus, "Dot" leaves U. K. with a sad good-bye.

NORMAN C. BEESE, A.B. . . . . Toledo, Ohio

"As straight as an arrow,
Upright as the best;
Give him a chance,
And he'll do the rest."

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

REECE L. BRYANT, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Liberty, Ky.

Agricultural Society; Y. M. C. A.; Western Normal Club.

Reece has not been with us all of the four years, but, just the same, he is wearing the coveted corduroys this year. It is not known to his classmates whether he was a Mellin's Food baby or not, but at any rate he is always in a high state of happiness and good humor.

SARAH BLANDING, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

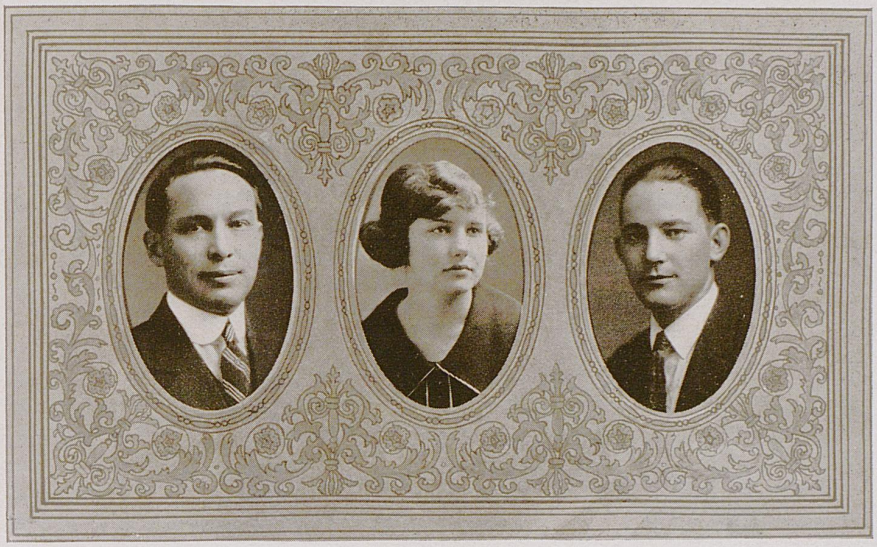

K K Γ

Basketball Captain (4); Mortar Board; President Woman's Executive Council; Woman's League.

Speaking of all-round good girls, just gaze upon "Sally". She can do anything from pulling down "A's" to dropping the ball in the basket. Sally came to us after she was graduated from New Haven Gym. School, and not only succeeded in becoming established in the Physical Education Department, but in landing her A.B. as well. Her presence upon the campus will be greatly missed.

WILLIAM F. COSLOW, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Harrodsburg, Ky.

When the girls lamped this handsome Ag. in 1919, a mighty sigh arose, and it has been arising ever since. This Harrodsburg hero has a physiognomy that would drive Eugene O'Brien into a profound melancholia. "Bill" has been a proficient student among the Ags., and it will take a whaling calamity to keep him from achieving success.

Senior Class

OLIVER WALTER CAIN, A.B. . . . . Salyersville, Ky.

Member of Henry Clay Law Society; Kentucky Law Journal Staff; Y. M. C. A.; Honor Roll, '21, '22.

Cain, we believe, is the guy of whom it was said that he had one of the few legal minds in the Law Department of the University. With that to start, along with what we have taught him in the last four years, it's a cinch that he's going to amount to something before his grandchildren grow up.

SARAH KATHERINE CEQUIN, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Fulton, Ky.

Φ Υ Ο

W. S. G. A.; Y. W. C. A. Cabinet (4); Fulton Club; Philosophian; Agricultural Society; Home Economics Club; Rafinesque Club (3); Woman's League.

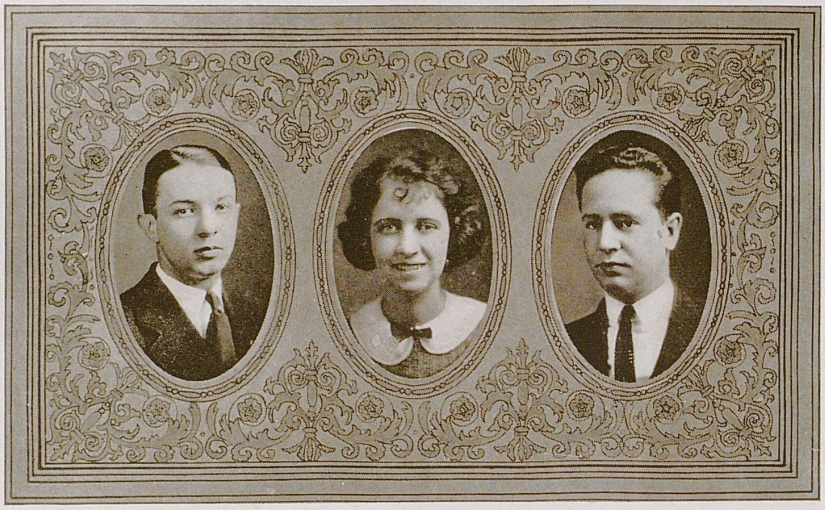

At last here is the little woman we have been waiting to write up. When a child, Sarah was taught to be "seen and not heard", and has since then clung to this precept. She is so quiet that if the profs didn't make it compulsory for her to answer to her name at roll call or answer questions, one would never know she was around. Withal, she is a conscientious student and maker of good grades, the kind of a girl U. K. is proud to claim.

ROBERT CLAR, JR., B.S. in M.E. . . . . Louisville, Ky.

Drum Major Band ('17-'18, '19-'20); John Hays Hammond Engineering Society; Goethals Engineering Society; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; A. A. E.

Some people are born lucky, but "Bob" was not. Just think—after he had spent six years of incessant grumbling, punctuated with bursts of oratory, the present Senior Class passed him up for grumbler! Cheer up! Nothing is so bad that it could not be worse; he's married.

WILLIAM GAYLE CRUTCHFIELD, A.B. . . . . Stamping Ground, Ky.

Κ Α

Pre-Medical Club.

Gayle is one of our pre-meds, and just the type for the perfect doctor. Handsome and chivalrous-mannered; in every sense a gentleman. He has long been started on his road to success, and we have no doubt that the journey will soon find completion.

ANNA LOUISE CONNOR, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Anna Louise is a delightful combination of fun and seriousness, admired by those who have noticed her efficiency which has characterized her leadership in collegiate activities. Besides these excellent qualities she is a favorite on the dance floor and in all social groups. She wields a mighty pen and a jazzy foot!

CARROLL SPARKS CARTER, B.S. in E.M. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Boisterous and a trifle erratic. The miners have large gobs of fun with "Nick". They throw rocks at him. Speaking of throwing things reminds us that he is a singer of no mean ability, and is the originator of the famous "boomerang fraternity pin", and holds the record of the "Jilted Brethren" Club.

Katherine isn't a vamp. She's just methodical in a feminine way. When she wants something done and a pair of trousers is sitting around, she just smiles in that direction and starts talking. It always works. Don't know how she manages the co-eds so well. Most popular girl in school for three generations. Ten years from now little kids growing up all over the state will say: "Mamma, who was Kitty Conroy?" Mamma will say: "Ask dad; he knows." There are not enough superlatives available to talk about Kitty. This is the fourth time she has been written up for the Kentuckian in an effort to do her justice.

JAMES PAUL CAIN, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Φ Δ Θ

Norwood Mining Society; Goethals Engineering Society; A. A. E.

Σ X; Σ P

"Scabbard and Blade"; Louisville Club, Treasurer (2), President (3); Cadet First Lieutenant (2, 3, 4); A. A. E. Reporter (2); Norwood Mining Society.

Known in the dark and dubious halls of the Mining College as "the Duke." Has a distressing streak of kleptomania, which fortunately takes the form of purloining such useless articles as decrepit and burnt-out electric lights. Being a metallurgist, he is, of course, a regular fellow, in spite of an alarming tendency to social prominence.

OPAL COX, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Madisonville, Ky.

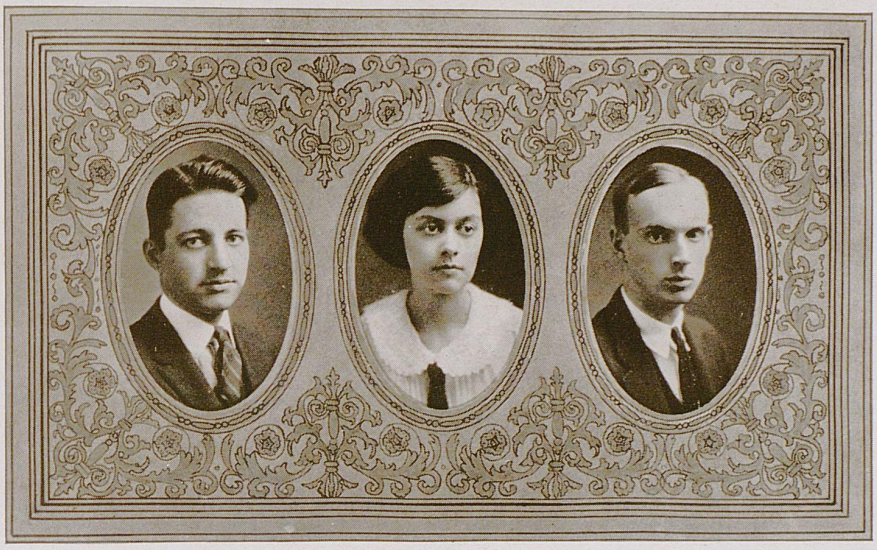

Δ Δ Θ

Woman's Self-Government Association, Vice-President (4); Y. W. C. A.; Poster Club; Horace Mann Literary Society; Agricultural and Home Economics Societies; Patterson Hall Council, President (4); Philosophian; Woman's League.

Opal is a leader, for she's proved it by the capable way she's performed the duties of President of Student Government during this last semester. She deserted Kentucky for Illinois for one term, but she came back, and so it's all right, for "all's well that ends well".

JAMES V. COLEMAN, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Hartford, Ky.

"Jim" is a good scholar and a firm believer in his own ideas—which is unusual in the average university student. No one would ever suspect him of being a ladies' man—oh, no! but that isn't the half of it. Just let's watch him after he's out.

A. S. C. E. (3, 4); Goethals Engineering Society (1, 2); Lexington Club; Joint Committee (4).

One of "Coolie's" failures is girls. He is the ladies' man of the Civil Engineers, and we must say that he has very ably represented us. He is one of the few Engineers who majored in Campustry and managed to get his B.S. in Engineering. So there is still more honor due him. He usually stays close to Lexington, but once in a while an inner voice calls him to Louisville, "The City of Falls".

MABEL RUTH COATES, A.B. . . . . Richmond, Ky.

Philosophian Literary Society, Vice-President (3), President (4); Y. W. C. A., Vice-President (4); History Club, Secretary (4); Lanterns; Psychology Club (3); English Club (3, 4); W. S. G. A. (4); Woman's Executive Council (4); Madison Club (3).

"Sober, steadfast, and demure"—Milton wrote it first, and now we write it again of Mabel Ruth. Coming over to the University as a junior, she has made a place for herself in its life and activities in two years that few people gain in four. She is loved by members of the faculty as well as by the students, for her sweet sincerity, her high ideals of scholarship, friendship, and honor. Mabel Ruth is one of the few people who do not need to blush at the question: "What kind of a University would this be if every student were just like me?"

FULTON WARREN CLARE, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Florence, S. C.

K A

Track Team (1, 2, 3, 4), Captain (4); Student Representative Athletic Council (2, 3, 4); Lamp and Cross; Mystic Thirteen; S. I. A. A. Low Hurdle Record (1); High Hurdle Record (2).

A campus "remembers and doesn't forget" a man who can break a S. I. A. A. track record and at the same time keep up the business of preparing to be an engineer, for Kentucky turns out good engineers, so it takes a versatile, capable man to succeed in outside activities in addition.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

JEFFERSON DAVIS CLARK, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

One of the few remaining pre-war veterans, "Jeff" has shown himself to be a sticker in spite of repeated interruptions and hard luck. A man who will disagree on most any subject for the simple pleasure of an argument.

FREDERICK GILBERT CRARY, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

A Γ P

Agricultural Society (1, 2, 3, 4); Rural Kentuckian Staff (3, 4); Y. M. C. A.

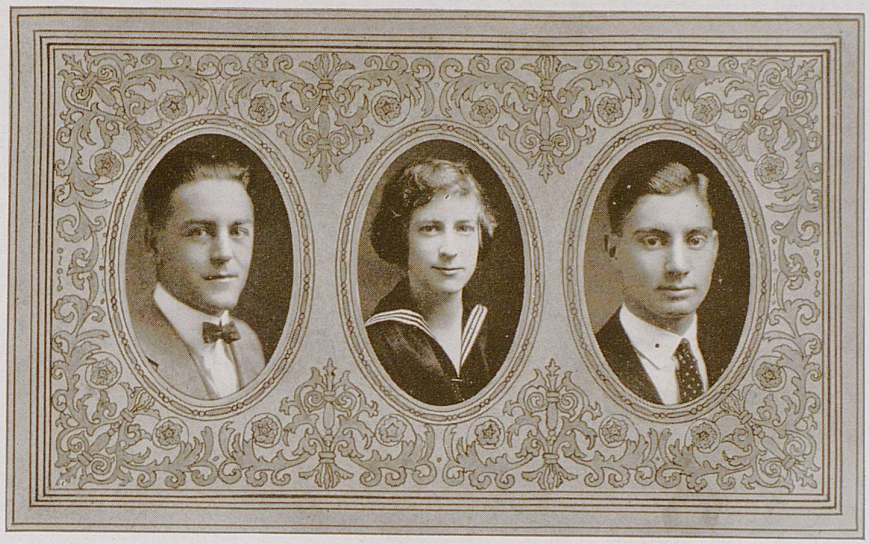

"Mighty" must have seen many possibilities in this chap, for he picked him up and made him to watch over his chemicals. A watchman over "Mighty's" chemicals is to be more adored than is the grandeur of the gorge of the Kentucky River, which has seen 3,000,000 years roll along.

L. CLIFFORD DAVIDSON, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Jackson, Ky.

T B Π

Varsity Track (1, 2, 3, 4), Captain (4); Member University Athletic Council (3, 4); Football (2, 4); Class Treasurer (4); Goethals Engineering Society, President (4); Class Baseball (2, 3); A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.; Captain 359th Infantry (1917-20); Distinguished Service Cross.

Clifford, better known as "Red", is the first graduate of the University of Kentucky who has won the Distinguished Service Cross. This fact alone marks him as a leader, not only in athletics and on the campus, but in class work as well. We hear he is to take a position with the American Blower Company, so evidently his reputation has been noised abroad.

After the war, which, by the way, he was not in, Willis crept meekly into the ranks of the Class of '23. How times have changed! He is no longer quiet and unassuming, but possesses a light gray suit and a real "squirrel" hat.

LUANNA DUCKWALL, A.B. . . . . Louisville, Ky.

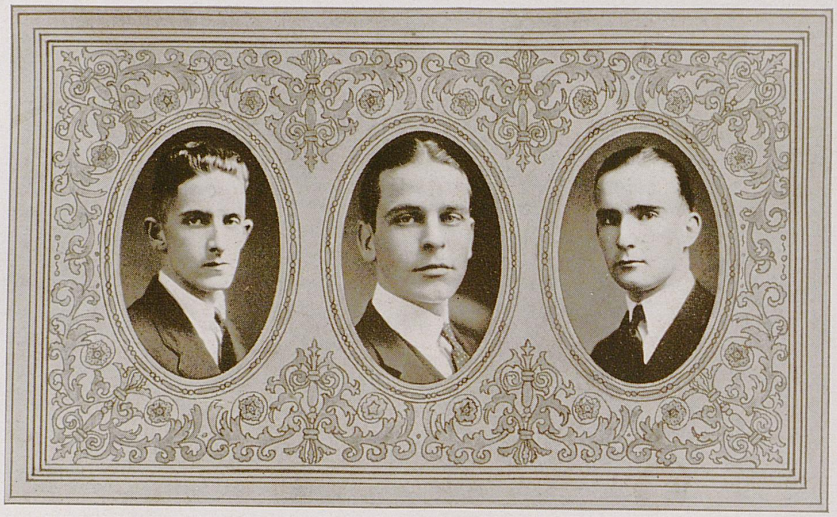

Philosophian; Romance Language Club (1, 3, 4); Y. W. C. A.; Senior Representative Patt Hall House Council; Cast, "The Two Virtues", 1919.

No write-up of Luanna would be complete without ample mention of her "A" standing. Luanna has starred in everything from gymnasium to economics, and we predict that her future role in life will involve wielding the rolling pin instead of the Indian club, and managing the finances of some "absent-minded professor".

THOMAS C. DAVIDSON, A.B. . . . . Jackson, Ky.

A quiet, unpretentious youth, seldom seen on the campus. He has many contentions with himself as to whether social duties or studies should come first.

We are very doubtful of the health of his associates in the business world—the good Lord protect them!

SHELDON E. FLICK, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Grant, Ky.

Triangle; A. I. E. E.; A. S. M. E.

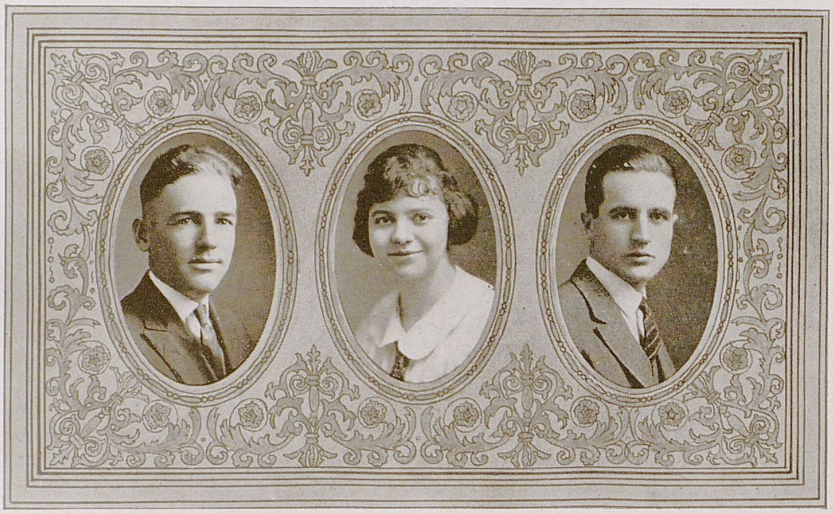

Have you a little "Peewee" in your home? If not, see Flick. If you have, see him also, for he has made a special study of them. The only thing we Merchanicals have against "Fing" is that he will cut school some days, and then we have no one's work to copy.

THOMAS BRUCE FULLER, LL.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Σ N

Football (1, 2, 3, 4).

Bruce, halfback on the University of Kentucky football team for four consecutive years, is one star on the University horizon that has never wavered, and never dimmed. Bruce's career has been the admiration of feminine hearts, and the ambition of the young male population of Lexington, ever since his first appearance in a Blue and White uniform, and this modest young satellite has left an enviable record in his wake, as a student, an athlete, and a man.

The "Banjo Song" says it in the general way, and we say it again in the particular of "Charley." He has been to the Kentuckian what the rod was to Moses when he led the children of Israel into the Promised Land.

ROBERT R. ROBBINS, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Florence, Ky.

"Bob" is one of the kind of chaps who can make "A's" without staying after class for a little chat with the prof. He came to the University to get all there was in the course he selected. His good disposition and humor have made his department more bearable to live in.

If Flavius blushes unseen it won't be through any fault of his. During his four years at the University he has been one of the most exceptional students on the campus (not counting English). If he carries the same determination into his life work that he has manifested in the class rooms, the Kernel editor will be writing headlines about him for a long time yet.

He has been one of the shining stars of the Kentucky nine for several years. So far, we have not mentioned women. We have saved the girl as our ace in reserve. We merely wish him success in getting the one he wants.

There may not be a row of "A's" to decorate "Bill's" name,

Combine the ideals of Elizabeth Barrett Browning and the administrative faculties of Maggie Jiggs, and you have Irene. She was more or less famous from the time she entered the University in 1919, but she rose to the dizzy summit of her collegiate career as Editor-in-Chief of The Kernel. We want for Eleanor a brilliant season in society and then a demonstration of her regal attributes over the home of some wealthy New Yorker. We believe that is what Eleanor was intended for from the first, and we think that is what would please her, so that is why we say it here. Her work in the University is to be envied. She has spent her time dyeing cheesecloth for pageants, rushing for Chi Omega, rehearsing for Strollers, and winning high scholastic honors which has entitled her to Mortar Board. Remember also, that in addition to activity, Eleanor has taken her degree in three and a half years, which is most remarkable.

Four years ago, when Captain Phipps entered the University with not a single high school credit, they told him he'd have to be an honor student, or it wouldn't count. He was 40 years old, then, but he bucked a task that would have staggered a man twenty years younger. He was graduated in February "magna cum laude." We take our hats off to anybody with that much sand.

It is perfectly evident that Gould's four years at the University have not been a waste of time; and always, when on the campus, he has lived up to that admirable old adage, "haste makes waste", doing all things well, and in his own sweet time. However, the life of a soldier is hard, and Gould's commission proves its worth, so we do not feel that we are overstepping our bounds when we prophesy great things in life for this smiling young Lochinvar of the curly locks and ready smile.

But then everybody loves a hero, so perhaps that is why this big, good-looking football captain of ours breaks all the girls' hearts. Freshmen are especially susceptible. It must be that irresistible chuckle that accounts in part for his universal popularity. "Prib" will be long remembered not only as an always-welcome friend, but as an outstanding figure in athletics and all University life.

DOROTHY HARRIS POTTER, B.S. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Basketball (2, 3), Captain (4); Woman's Administrative Council (3, 4); Athletic Association, President (4); Rifle Team (4).

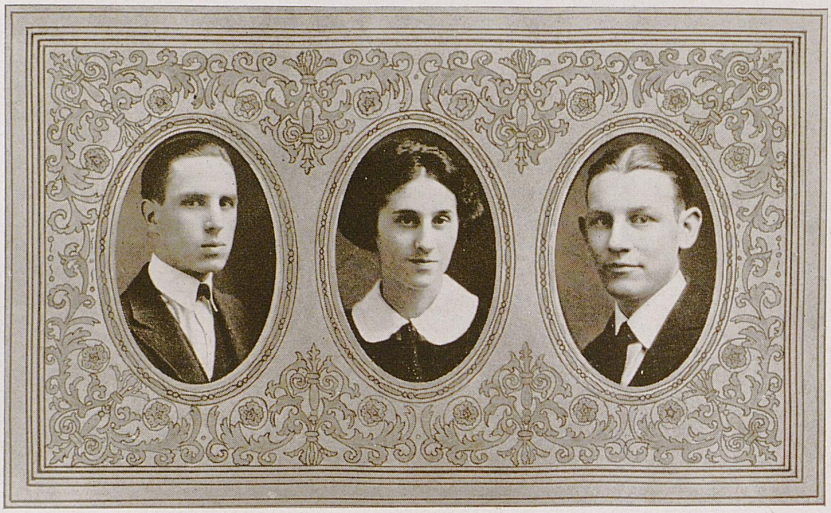

"Dot" has charmed us all beyond expression in the numerous basketball games we have seen her play. A whole team of "Dots" would have a time finding a team brave enough to play them. However, we have found "Dot" just as interesting as a classmate and on the campus. We will miss her next year from all three.

JOHN PETERMAN PIRTLE, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Elizabethtown, Ky.

Pirtle is so small that when he is seated in the Co-operative Marketing class he is so short that he has been known to not hear the prof. call his name, because he is so far below the line of voice that the sound does not reach him. Rafinesque Botany Club (1, 2, 3, 4), Treasurer (1); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (1, 2, 3); Cosmopolitan Club; Patterson Literary Society; Pre-Med. Society.

We had always thought of chemists as mouldy, retiring creatures who fooled with test tubes and beakers and vile-smelling fluids, who shut themselves up in a room and invented odoriferous gases which cause devastation and death whenever they are turned loose. "Sam" isn't at all like one of these persons. We must have been wrong in our surmise, for as an example he's a splendid, clean-cut, likeable chap, without apparent gaseous or chemical malice.

Senior Class

GILBERT KING SMITH, B.S. in Geology . . . . . Lexington, Ky.

K A

Keys; Mystic Thirteen; Football Squad (1, 2); Varsity Basketball (1, 2, 3, 4); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (1, 2); Delegate Blue Ridge (1); Shaler Geological Society; Strollers; Stage Manager (4); Stage Manager "Erminie"; Pan-Hellenic Council (4).

"A maid, a man,
A broken fan,
A step upon the stair,
A stolen kiss—"

You all know the rest, and you also know lots of things about "Gibbie", too, and his susceptibility to feminine charms. His superior efficiency in stage managing has helped the Strollers to produce superdramas, and as a basketball player, he's a sure 'nough Man-o'-War.

ANNA BENTLEY SPRAGUE, B.A. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Romance Language Club (1-2, 2-3); English Club (2-3); Girls' Rifle Team (2-3); Women's League (2-3).

The question of a career should not bother Anna. She is quite capable in many lines, and can find herself proficient in carrying on whatever she might choose. A loyal supporter of activity and all kinds of athletics, she stands out as a model senior.

ROBERT DAVIS SHIPMAN, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Shelbyville, Ky.

A Γ P

Agricultural Society (1, 2, 3, 4); Hoof and Horn Club; Dairy Editor Rural Kentuckian (2, 3); Assistant Business Manager Rural Kentuckian (2, 3); Member Dairy Team (3).

Upon a farm over in Shelby County just about a score of years ago there was born a youngster. He grew up and, after passing through high school, he went to Centre, but he finally decided Lexington and the Ag. College were the two places for him. No matter what a man does, if he begins to right himself in time, he will come out well in the end.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

WILLIAM O. SUITER, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Frenchburg, Ky.

As a wearer of the corduroys, this man is no failure. To look at him and study his "frame", he would remind one of old Atlas, who had the whole world on his shoulders, and as a result, had a stooped appearance. We are wondering if Suiter's is caused from dodging skillets and rollin' pins.

EARL SMITH . . . . . Mayfield, Ky.

Earl, in spite of his melancholy appearance, has a heart which, in the springtime, turns to thoughts of love. He has a vocabulary that would make a dictionary look silly, and when he uses it in whispering sweet nothings, we wouldn't be a bit surprised if the maiden doesn't look the same way.

HERMAN STRAUSS, B.S. in C.E. . . . . Louisville, Ky.

Σ A M; T B Π

The secret of the success of this good-looking Strauss chap, perhaps, is that, after all, he has not taken himself too seriously. Even after making Tau Beta Pi, he continued to speak English and sleep through a few classes.

Senior Class

WILLIAM H. SMITH, LL.B. . . . . Manchester, Ky.

Henry Clay Law Society; Men's Student Council.

"Bill" comes to us from a land where moonshine flows like water, but his only bad habits are drawing the face of Andy Gump all over the walls of the Law Department and occasionally stepping out to the races. He's a lion with the ladies, and quite a politician, having defeated every man in his class, particularly "Tammany Bill" in the race for Student Council Representative.

SARAH SIMPSON, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Birmingham, Ala.

Κ Κ Γ; Φ Υ Ο

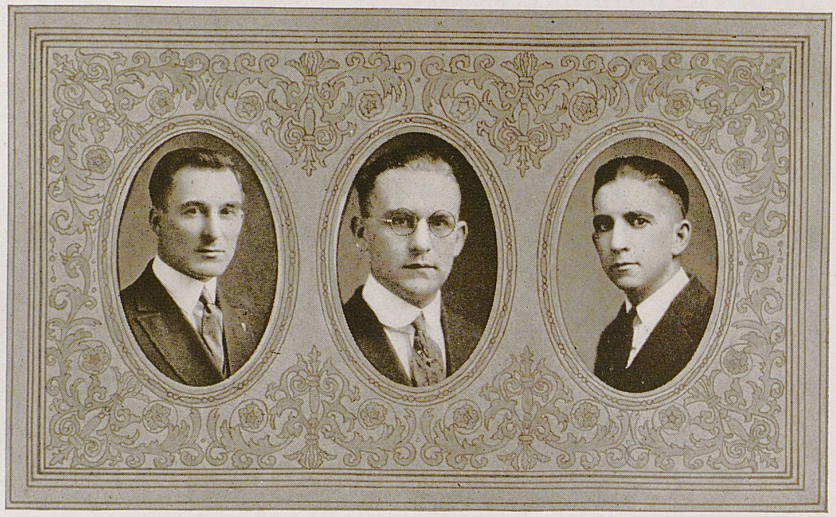

"She was active, stirring, all afire,
Could not rest, could not tire;
To a stone she might have given life."

As a Home Ec. we would advise "Sally" to take the route to a man's heart by the shortest and best way—via the stomach. Who knows but what a "Shack" will be waiting at the end of the road?

HENRY F. SAMMONS, B.S. in C.E. . . . . Louisa, Ky.

A. A. E.; Student Member A. S. C. E. (3, 4); Mountain Club; Secretary Horace Mann Literary Society (4).

Henry claims his abode to be among the sandstone hills of the Big Sandy Valley, and intends to specialize in Highway Engineering in order to pull his county out of the mud. This is his life-long ambition, and a task which we are sure will be well done. The number of "A's" on his reports will testify to this diligence and perseverance.

Senior Class

CARLOS V. SNAPP, A.B. . . . . Barbourville, Ky.

T Δ A

Men's Glee Club (3, 4); "Mikado"; Mock Assembly (3); History Club; Patterson Literary Society (3, 4).

A great friend of Dr. Best; a sure result when the pupil maintains an "A" standing. He's been a conscientious and faithful student.

GEORGE LINDSEY SPURLIN, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Greenville, Ky.

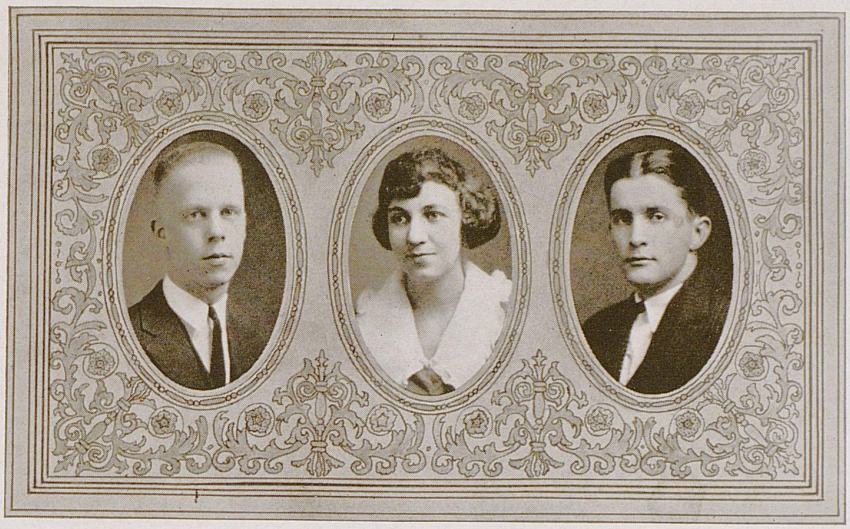

Agricultural Society; Hoof and Horn Club; Muhlenberg Club; Y. M. C. A.

Spurlin is not a sensational student, but he has made his way up to where the sun shines. Finishing his work last semester, he has undertaken to "spread the gospel" through Kentucky. He has charge of a school now, and is doing his bit.

JACK CHESTER SAMMONS, B.S. in C.E. . . . . Louisa, Ky.

Goethals Engineering Society (1, 2); A. S. C. E. (3, 4); Mountain Club; Joint Committee (4); Horace Mann Literary Society.

Jack is a rosy-cheeked lad with a welcome smile for everybody. He is to be junior partner of the firm of Sammons Brothers, Civil Engineers, and this is enough to assure its success. During his senior year he had literary inclinations, but we are rather suspicious of his literary intentions, for, as you will note, he joined the Horace Mann Literary Society.

Senior Class

HENRY ALEXANDER TAYLOR, A.B. . . . . Henderson, Ky.

Κ Α; Α Δ Σ

Class Grumbler; Lanterns; History Club; Mock Assembly (3); Associate Editor Kernel (3); Cast, "Erminie"; Business Manager "Erminie"; Class Football (2).

One of the pillars and generals of K. A., he has successfully mixed Journalism and Law. To his credit journalistically, there is that memorable editorial on "Jazz", which showed such a keen insight. His legal success is assured, too, if it depends on talk.

GEORGIA TERRY, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Fulton, Ky.

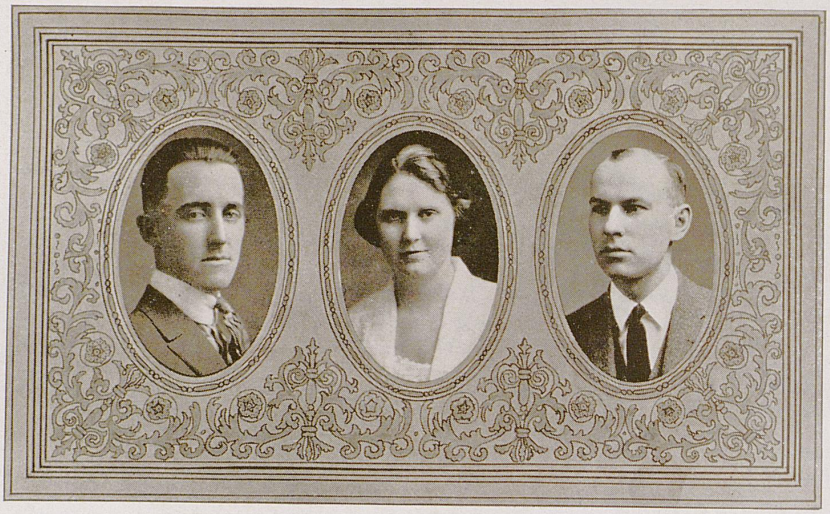

Philosophian; Agricultural Society; Horace Mann Literary Society; Y. W. C. A.; Fulton Club; Woman's League; Home Economics Club.

"Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Terry announce the marriage of their daughter, Georgia, to Mr. Charles E. Thompson, Saturday, February tenth, Fulton, Kentucky. At home, 1224 Forrest Avenue, Memphis, Tenn."

CLYDE ENGLISH TAYLOR, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Walton, Ky.

Triangle; Goethals Engineering Society; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E.

"Runt" is the smallest, but by no means the least important man in the Senior Class. In fact, it was his prophecy that "the senior not married within three years would never marry", that scared Erd and Fest into immediate action.

Senior Class

FRANCIS ABE CARR THOMPSON, B.S. in M.E. . . . . Fulton, Ky.

Scabbard and Blade; Goethals Engineering Society; Su-Ky Circle; Varsity Rifle Team (3, 4); Cadet Lieutenant (3), Captain (4); Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (3, 4); Radio Club; Treasurer (4); Track Squad (4); A. I. E. E.; A. A. E.; A. S. M. E.

"FACT" is our imperial warrior. He was MAJOR (general) of the battalion, and is famed in the manly art of military tactics. The only thing bad about him is that he is always in a good humor. He is a fine fellow, always ready to lend assistance to one in need. His highest ambition is to command an A. E. F. against somebody, sometime.

FANNIE SUMMERS TARLTON, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Χ Ω; Θ Σ Φ

Vice-President Class (3); Woman's Administrative Council (3); English Club; Philosophian; Stroller Eligible; Y. W. C. A.; Woman's League.

Summers is our titian-haired damsel. Her motto is: "Get most with the least work, especially with 'Uncle Enoch.'" We expect to find Fannie doing missionary work, and will be disappointed if we don't.

HAROLD V. TEMPLE, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Paducah, Ky.

Α Γ Ρ

Agricultural Society (1, 2, 3, 4); Ex-Service Men's Club; Patterson Literary Society (4); Y. M. C. A.

"Daddy" Temple is one of the Ags. what am. In spite of a slight tendency towards baldness, he is an exuberant youth, and a man whom all the girls in Home Ec. declare to be a "bushel of fun".

Senior Class

CAROLYN TURNER, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Carolyn personifies neatness and the secret of her success lies in the doing well of whatever she undertakes. In the future, when hearing "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling", we will immediately think of her and her dream of domestic happiness, somewhere, sometime.

DAVID BOATRIGHT TODD, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Paint Lick, Ky.

Agricultural Society; Rafinesque Botany Club; Hoof and Horn Club; Y. M. C. A.

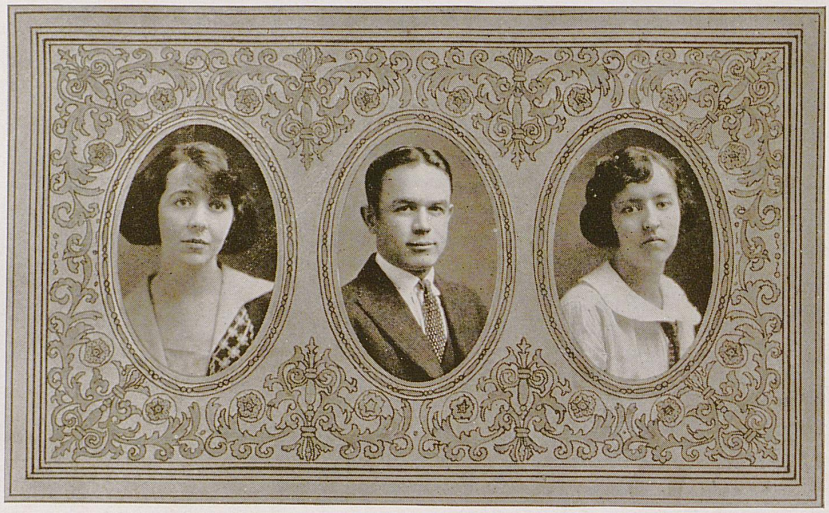

"Tod(d)ie," as he is sometimes called, is a Little International athlete. He participates in the events with great regularity and precision. This boy was seen at State Fair last year doing the honors as a member of the Student Judging Team.

ZULA THRELKELD, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Marion, Ky.

Home Economics Club; Agricultural Society; Woman's League; Philosophian Society; Y. W. C. A.

Ever faithful and true to her duty, Zula has 's-sh-sh-ed the corridors of Patt Hall through the four years of her existence there, and it is due to her efforts, partly, that even reasonable quiet has been maintained. We do not say that she has never broken a rule herself—doubtless she has; but she's a mighty good scout when it comes to helping another girl out of a scrape.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

ELIZABETH TURNER, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

"We all agree that it pays to be
A 'modest little thing',
For her sweet little smile
And her winning way
May bring her a wedding ring."

JOSEPH CHESLEY TOWERY, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Marion, Ky.

Agricultural Society; Y. M. C. A.; Western Normal Club.

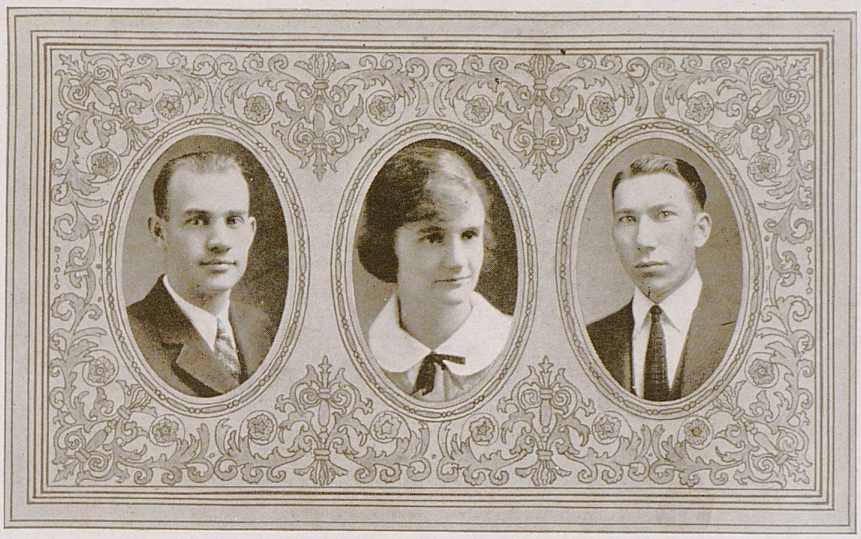

Towery is "mayor" of Forest Hill. As a vegetable gardener he is a wonder, because he has an unusual capacity for storage.

SARAH MARGARET VAN DEREN, A.B. . . . . Cynthiana, Ky.

Α Γ Δ

Romance Language Club; Philosophian; Y. W. C. A.; Woman's League; Graduate Hamilton College; Business Manager of "Crimson".

All Cynthianians are record-breakers in one way or another, and Sarah Margaret is no exception. Gentle in manner, but strong in her convictions and true to her beliefs, she has made her two years at the University count, and she leaves with the happiness of work well done.

Senior Class

CLYDE WATTS, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Harrodsburg, Ky.

Σ N

Agricultural Society; Hoof and Horn Club; Class Football (2); International Stock Judging Team (3).

Clyde is from Harrodsburg, the oldest town in Kentucky, but Clyde is not the oldest student in "Kentucky". He is a member of the fraternity having the finest house on Winslow street, and as a nursery man (horticulturally speaking), he is a world-beater.

UNA VARDEN SMITH, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Δ Δ Θ; Θ Σ Φ

Romance Language Club; English Club.

As "Zemmie" said, who would have thought this quiet and demure little miss would be the one to accept Cupid's challenge so soon? But we won't pick a quarrel with him—since Una has returned to school and will receive her degree with the class. We hope she will not settle down to married life so much that we will not see her often.

PHILIP WATLINGTON, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Who has not seen this gentle creature with his cheerful smile mildly penetrating around, giving others the biggest share of the pavement, yet always taking more than his share of knowledge?

Senior Class

W. Preston White, B.S. and B.M.E. . . . . Lexington, Ky.
Σ X

A. A. E.; A. S. M. E.; A. I. E. E.; John Hays Hammond Engineering Society; Assistant Manager Track Team (2); Goethals Engineering Society.

An Engineer, a Senior Mechanical, at that, is to be admired for his reticence and retiring nature, after having been thrown with the aggressive squad which inhabits Mech. Hall. Preston wears his corduroys with dignity, and is a little more far-seeing than many of his comrades.

Eva May Wesley, B.S. in H.E. . . . . Middlesburg, Ky.
Φ Υ Ο

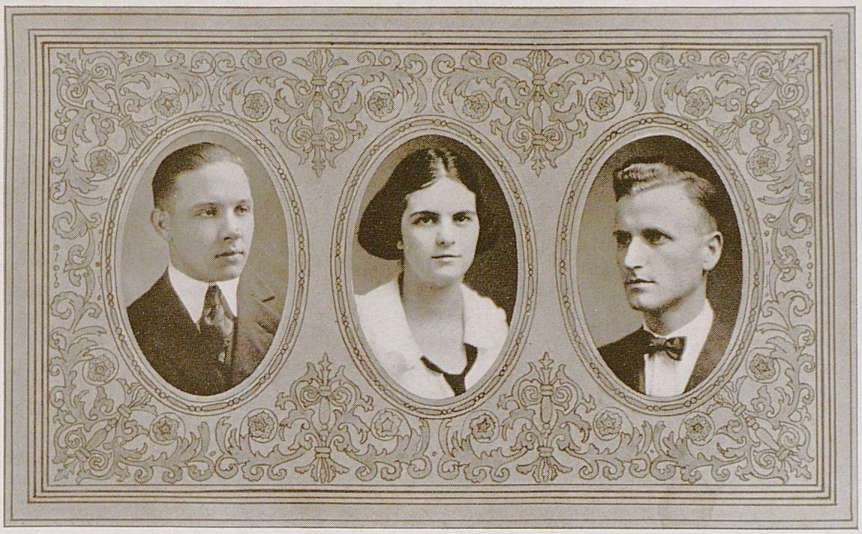

Y. W. C. A. Cabinet; Philosophian.

Not everyone has had the privilege of knowing Eva, but "to know her is to love her". Rumors have been heard concerning Eva, so just ask her what she took to Blue Ridge in her handbag, and see if they are correct.

Campbell Marion Wade, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Campbellsville, Ky.
Τ Δ Α; Α Ζ

Agricultural Society (1, 2, 3, 4), Vice-President (4); Patterson Literary Society; Y. M. C. A. Cabinet (4); Hoof and Horn Club, Vice-President (4); International Live Stock Judging Team (4); Winner of E. H. Taylor, Jr., Trophy in Cattle Judging Contest (3).

For two years Campbell worked and studied hard and went his own way like many an obscure Ag. Then one day he saw a lovely apparition on the campus, which seemed to beckon to him. Campbell put all thought of work behind him, and went. And because she likes to dance, Campbell danced. It was because she likes pins that Campbell at once joined two fraternities. Yet in spite of this, they still gave him "A's" and snatched him away long enough to be a member of the stock judging team.

Senior Class

WILLIAM LEE WILLIAMS, JR., B.S. . . . . Lexington, Ky.
Κ Σ; Α Χ Σ; Φ Μ Α

Strollers; Kentuckian Staff; Kernel Staff; Official Campus Photographer; "Robin Hood" and "Mikado"; Band (1, 2, 3); Orchestra (1, 2).

Official photographer of the University—that's "Billy". He may be seen almost any time of the day on the campus snapping some organization. With just a little more practice, we feel sure he will surpass Cecil de Mille.

JULIA ALEXANDER WILLIS, B.S. in H.E. . . . . La Grange, Ky.
Κ Κ Γ

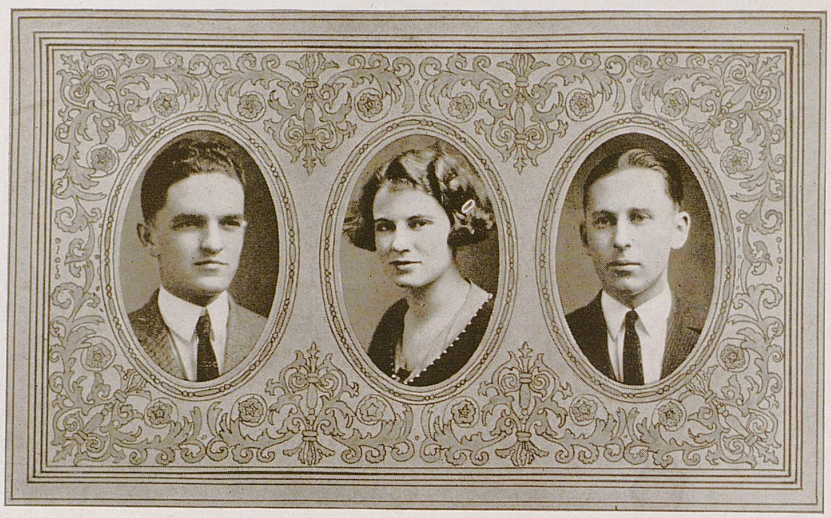

Home Economics Club; Agricultural Society; Y. W. C. A.; Class Secretary (4).

Gentle Julia is a small-sized edition of our idea of a real girl, pleasing to the eye and with a real message when she chooses to speak. If she hadn't been so busy making "A's" in Home Economics, she would have crowded somebody out in the popularity contests the last four years, and run a close race for the all-American sponsor.

BYRON WILLIAMS, B.S. in C.E. . . . . Hartford, Ky.
Φ Κ Τ; Τ Β Π

Student Chapter A. S. C. E.; Goethals Engineering Society (1, 2).

"Pap" ought to have another nickname, "Silence", for he believes in avoiding all necessary wear and tear on his vocal chords while he is in class, but behind his blue eyes there is a lot of mischief hidden which breaks loose when he is on the outside. We take great pleasure in presenting him to the world—a gentleman and an Engineer.

Senior Class

JAMES ELDRIDGE WILKINS, B.M.E. . . . . Hopkinsville, Ky.

Goethals Engineering Society (1, 2, 3, 4); A. S. M. E. (4); A. I. E. E. (4); Radio Club (2, 3, 4), President (3); in charge Radio Department (3, 4); Cadet Captain (4); Rifle Team (3, 4).

When you think of Wilkins you just naturally think of radio, for Jimmie has been a radio fan and delver in things engineering during his four years here. The Radio Club has made decided progress under his leadership and with the help of his ready enthusiasm and interest. In fact, this little man with the big brain would have invented radio if it hadn't been for Marconi.

AUGUSTA WINN, A.B. . . . . Kissimmee, Fla.

Π Β Φ

Certificate Recital in Music (1); Y. W. C. A. (1;) Dramatic Club (1); Student Council (2); English Club (3, 4); Y. W. C. A. (3, 4).

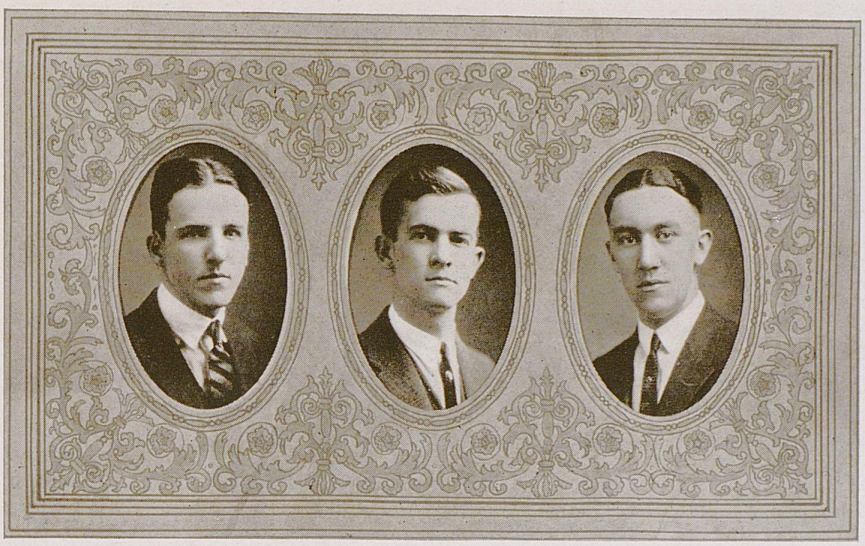

Augusta, or "Gus", as she is familiarly known, breezed in on us in her junior year from Florida, and in that brief space of time has made many friends on the campus. Her attractive personality and pleasing manner have made her just as charming and acceptable as any other "gust o' wind" from the sunny South.

THOMAS DEMPSEY WOODSON, B.S. in C.E. . . . . Fairfield, Ky.

Goethals Engineering Society (1, 2); A. S. C. E. (3, 4); Joint Committee (4); Highway Laboratory Assistant (3, 4).

"Tommy" is the champion concrete mixer of the Senior Engineers. We are certain that his college education has equipped him with the necessary qualifications to withstand the overwhelming responsibilities of life. He is known to be as strong for Linden Walk as his concrete cylinders are in compression.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

JOHN K. WILLIAMS, B.M.E. . . . . Nicholasville, Ky.

There is silence in the class room—
The instructor stopped his speech;
The students, they all listen
To the approaching of tired feet.
It's J. K.

JOHN B. WILLIAMS, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Ewing, Ky.

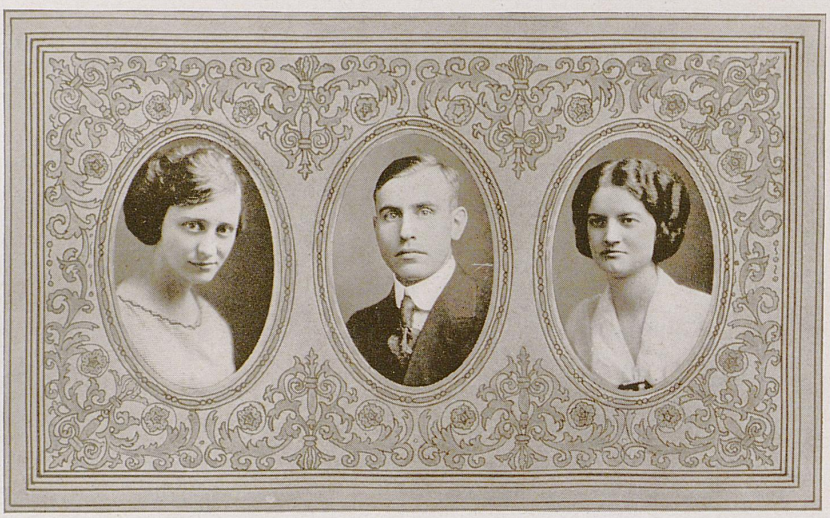

A T Ω

"Ted" is our prize farmer. If it were not for the call of the terpsichore and the saxophones of the Blue and White Six wailing, "Ted" might really settle. But he must have his bit of fun in college, and the cows and chickens will be the sufferers.

RALPH HICKS WOODS, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Berea, Ky.

Hoof and Horn Club; Agricultural Society; Stock Judging Team (3); Fourth Ranking Individual in United States and Canada in International Contest.

We present you with a man from the mountains. Woods certainly made the International sit up and take notice last November. While our team did not "bring home the bacon" Woods caused a man from another institution to feel uneasy when it came to tabulating high points for individuals.

Senior Class

LUCILLE YUNGBLUT, A.B. . . . . Dayton, Ky.
Σ B Υ

Women's Self-Government Council; House President (4); Junior Representative (4); Y. W. C. A. Cabinet; Delegate to Hot Springs (3), Atlanta (4), Blue Ridge (2); Pan-Hellenic Representative (4); English Club (3, 4); Philosophian.

Lucille is one of those students without which a University cannot exist. Just to show how much we think of her, she's been written up numerous times before. She is the kind of a girl we choose to send to important conventions: efficient, capable, and with a pleasing personality.

FEASTER WOLFORD, B.S. in Agr. . . . . Berea, Ky.

Agricultural Society; Horace Mann Literary Society; Y. M. C. A.

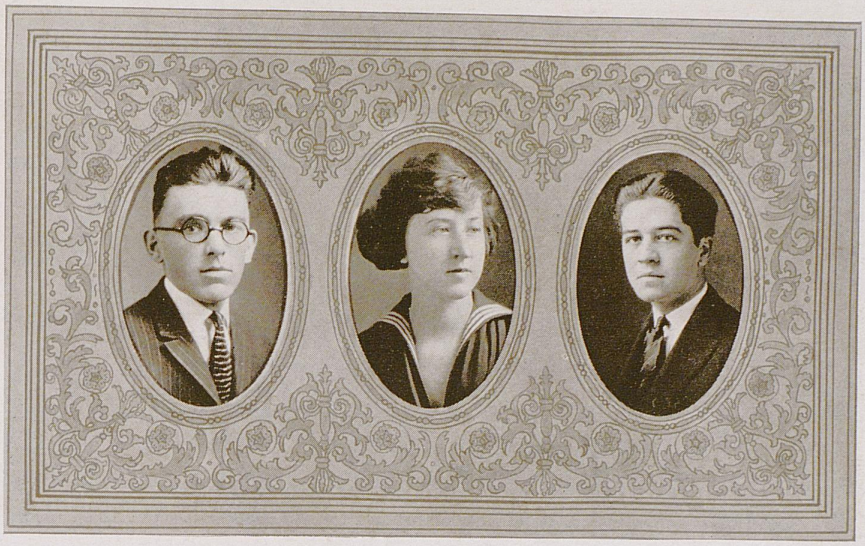

Wolford has not been away from Berea long enough for us to get a good line on him, yet he, too, is a wearer of the corduroys, and will not be here after this year. He is intensely interested in Agriculture.

EMILEE YOUNG, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.
X Ω

English Club (3, 4); Romance Language Club (1, 2, 3, 4); Y. W. C. A. (1, 2, 3, 4); Philosophian (1, 2); "Kernel" Reporter (2).

Emilee is sweet, and quite a good student. She and her English profs are close friends, as Emilee always adored English. The Chi Omegas ought to be proud of her, for she is as reliable as she is persistent, and a perfect type of Mr. Farquhar's beautiful woman.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

CHARLES N. LAYNE, Pre-Med. . . . . Pembroke, Ky.

This is the boy from Pembroke, who has shown what he thinks a college education was intended for. Although he may not be a Rodolph Valentino, we wish for him equal success in the medical profession.

VIRGINIA REEVES, A.B. . . . . Owensboro, Ky.

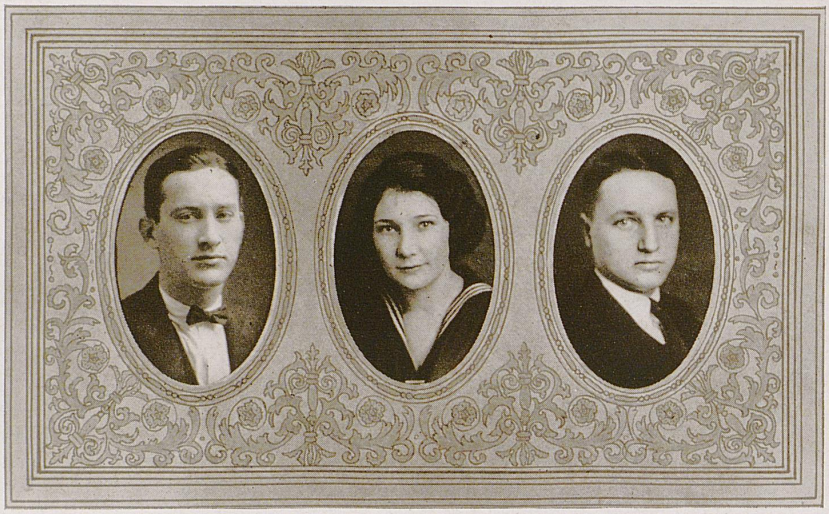

Α Γ Δ

For Virginia, a university education has not been a task. She has taken it, not too seriously, but with a bit of happiness mixed in and at the same time her records show evidences of midnight oil. But of course her studying must be done by "light cuts" always, for, you know, neighbors must be neighborly, and call once in a while.

ROBERT TERRY KIMBROUGH, LL.B. . . . . Guthrie, Ky.

"R. T." is going to hang his shingle in the railroad center of Guthrie, Kentucky. In case of divorce or murder, wire him. He has one of the best legal minds in the Law College.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

O. B. Anderson, A.B. . . . . Hopkinsville, Ky.

Φ K T

Patterson Literary Society; Y. M. C. A.

If he were not a Phi Kappa Tau we would be tempted to call "O. B." a squirrel. His trousers are longer than anyone's else, his walk is slower, his conversation less of an effort, and his class work less of a worry than anyone we know. But he has managed to get through and keep everyone fooled.

Katherine Elizabeth Pennington, B.S. . . . . London, Ky.

Δ Ξ Δ

Y. W. C. A.; Woman's League; Home Economics Society.

"Her lovely looks a sprightly mind disclose,
Quick as her eyes, and as unfixed as those;
Favors to none, to all she extends;
Oft she rejects, but never once offends."

Peter T. Gentry, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Peter has found college life a very trying ordeal as he wandered from department to department in search of a course where the most knowledge rewarded the least exertion. In fact, we doubt if Peter could have stood the pressure if it hadn't been for his optimistic outlook on life and his summers in Europe.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

THOMAS E. SPARKS, LL.B. . . . . Greenville, Ky.

Τ Δ Α; Φ Α Δ

Henry Clay Law Society; Editorial Staff Kentucky Law Journal (3, 4); Republican Club (2, 3), President (4); Muhlenberg Club; Class Basketball (2).

"Elbert" began as an Engineer, stumbling and floundering in the night,
But at length he saw how futile was his course, and followed the hopeful light.
Now "Elbert" is a full-fledged lawyer, with his name adorned with "A's",
To reward him for his merits, and the mending of his ways.

ALICE GREGORY . . . . . Louisville, Ky.

Κ Κ Γ

Strollers.

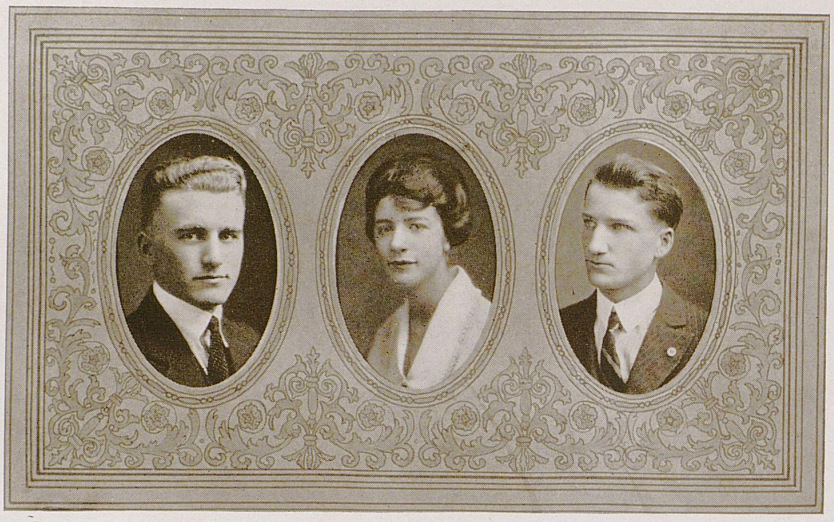

The years of her university life have ever been serious, studious, and serene. Proficient in many lines, capable and clever, persevering enough to spend many Sunday afternoons in the Library, Alice is an honor senior.

FELIX Z. MONARCH, A.B. . . . . Utica, Ky.

History Club; Horace Mann Literary Society; Normal Club.

This last name applies mentally, not physically; one would say "toute de suite". He's one of the dependable students in a class room; one who always responds.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Senior Class

JAMES ROBERT HAMILTON, A.B. . . . . Sheridan, Ky.

Α Χ Σ

Y. M. C. A.; Pre-Medical Society; Cross-Country (2).

Not many years from now, we believe if we should go to the gay metropolis of Sheridan, Kentucky, there would be a businesslike shingle upon one of the most important buildings, bearing the name, "J. R. Hamilton, M.D." Class of '23, meet the future Dr. Hamilton. Put him down in your memorandum, and when you are ready for heaven—send for him.

ELIZABETH HOLLOWAY JACKSON, A.B. . . . . Lexington, Ky.

Χ Ω

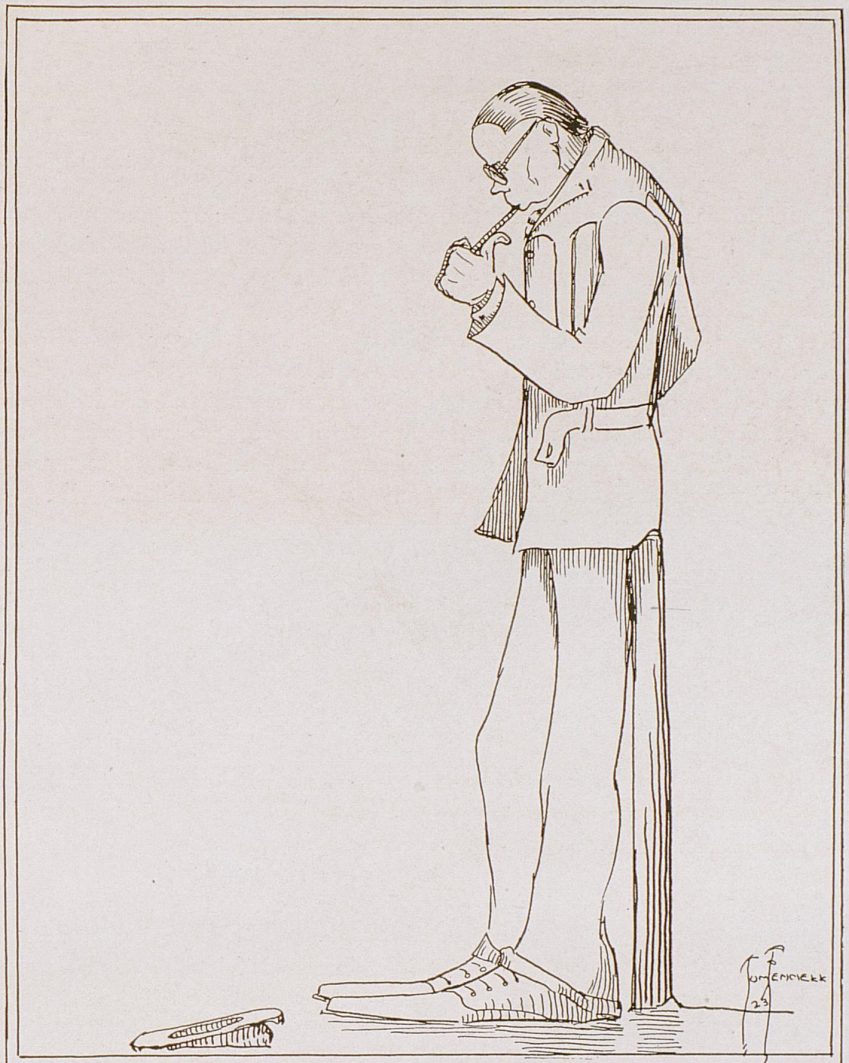

President Woman's League (4); President Woman's Athletic Association (4); Lexington Club; Y. W. C. A.; History Club; Romance Language Club.

"Liz" has to graduate and leave the University whether she wants to or not, because she has taken all the courses offered by Dr. Best. Sociology is her major subject, and we are sure that she made a mistake and thought she needed forty credits instead of twenty. Our hope is that when she is at the head of some big social settlement that she will be as successful as she has been here.

WILBUR C. PICKETT, LL.B. . . . . Wilmore, Ky.

A man of great renown."

JUNIOR

Junior Class History

OURS was no ordinary class, that Freshman Class of three years ago. From the Big Sandy River on to Mill Point we came, four hundred picked boys and girls. From Kingdom Come to Reelfoot Lake we came, choice products of Kentucky's inefficient secondary schools.

Nor were we all Kentuckians. New Jersey sent us Al Sturges, and in answer to his plaintive request we made our first noise as a class. From Oklahoma drifted in that gifted scribe upon whose procrustean bed we have been weighed and found wanting. Yet Troy lingers with us still, deucedly plebeian though we are, for in the mild, kindly atmosphere of the campus there is a distinct quality of gentility that appeals to this scholarly representative of the outside world, and he has taken literally the words of the poet,

"Sweet vale of Avoca,
How calm could I rest
In the shade of thy bosom,
With friends I love best"!

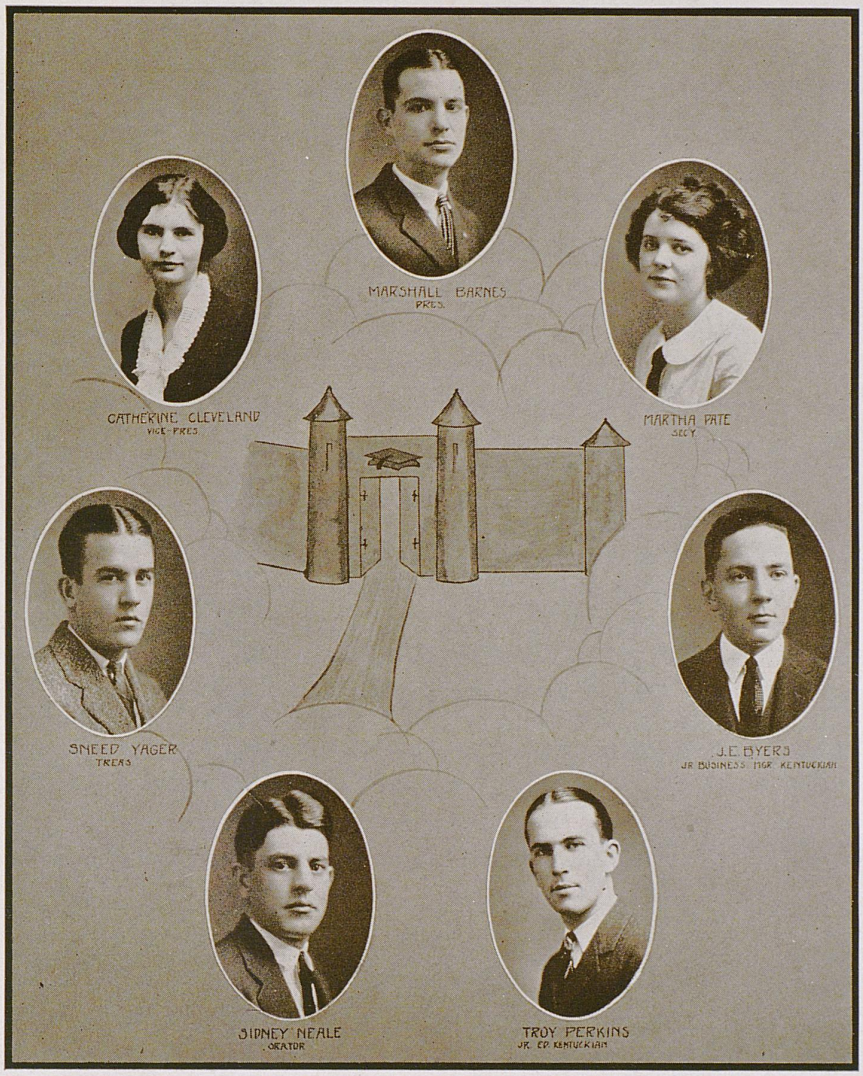

From Cynthiana came "Cissy" Peterson—"Cissy", with whom we all laughed, who tried so hard to be a sister to the Ag. College, and who has cheered so often the cadets to drill.

With us came Bill King, the man with the iron nerve. While five thousand (more or less) watched breathlessly, even as the whistle blew, "Bill" carelessly but accurately tossed the ball that brought Kentucky home basketball champions of the South.

And did we celebrate? I'll say we did (in the rain)!

We have not been without leaders, either. Bentley, Morse, and Barnes, our three successive presidents, have jealously guarded the honor of the class, and every dollar she owes THE KENTUCKIAN has been paid, with enough left over to swing a real dance to the moan of the Blue and White Sextette's melancholy saxophones.

I sing of a class that has been a class. Fresher than most as freshmen, and conceited as any as juniors, we are looking forward to the day when, with moustache, cane, and corduroys, we shall show them all where to "head in".

SOPHOMORE

History of the Sophomore Class

THE tug of war was not the only enterprise out of which the Class of 1925 emerged successfully last year. A class of both quantity and quality, we were fortunate in having officers of ability and efficiency. Our president was Walter Ferguson; vice-president, Martha Bedford; secretary, Nan Chenault; treasurer, Theodore Brewer. We were soon represented in athletics, Strollers, and other activities on the campus. James Darnell won the interclass oratorical contest and represented the University in the interscholastic oratorical contest at Nashville, Tennessee.

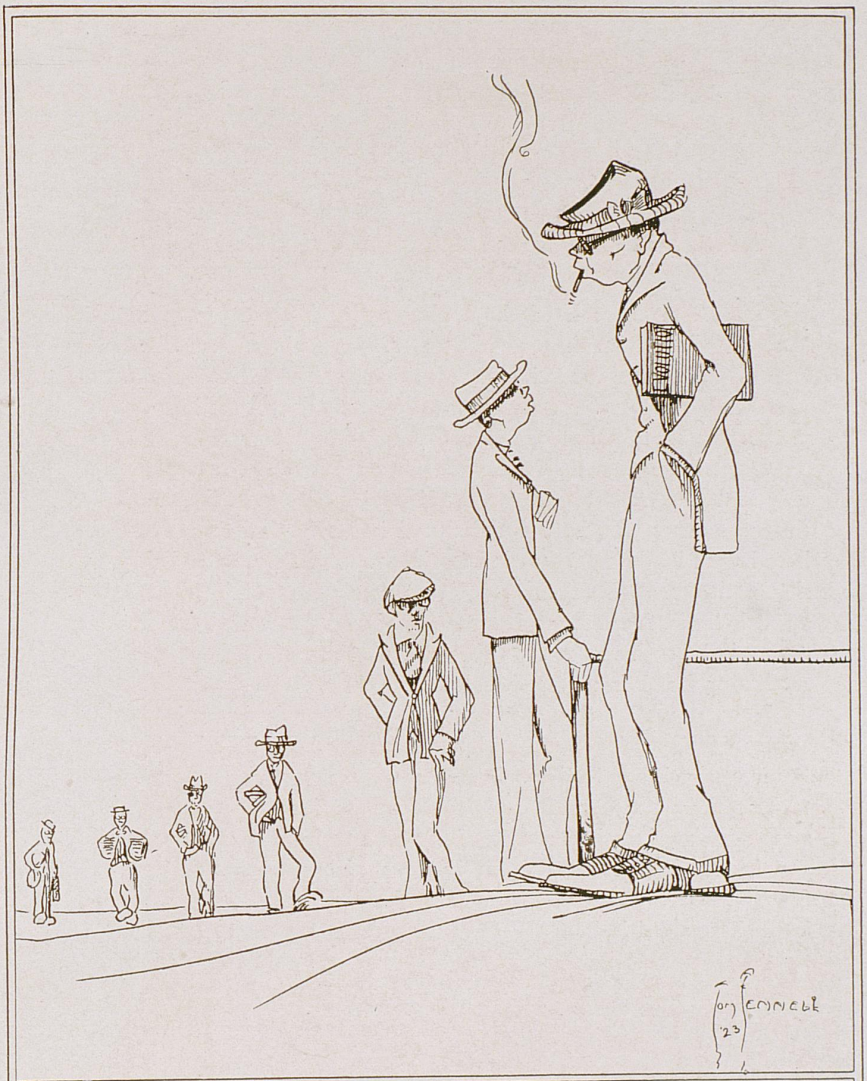

Proud of the above record, made last year, the Class of 1925 entered confidently into the ranks of the ever progressing army at the U. of K., and was soon in step with all the activities on the campus. Electing as leaders, president, William Tate; vice-president, Annelle Kelly; secretary, Nan Chenault; treasurer, William Austin, we have made very good progress in many lines, especially athletics, for we were represented on the football team by William H. Rice, Walter Ferguson, and Theodore Brewer, and had several "subs" on the basketball team. We look before and after, but do not pine for what is not—for we believe our dreams will be realized in 1925, when we will be listed as seniors.

FRESHMAN

The History of the Freshman Class

WHEN the call of the University of Kentucky was heralded throughout the state in 1922, the largest Freshman Class in the history of the university responded. Life during our freshman year has been "just one darn thing after another," yet the history of the year brings back fond memories and contains several important events.

Our freshman football team put us on the map as the team that not only beat Centre, but also won the championship of the South. While there are many who have not appeared in intercollegiate contests, they have helped by their efforts to make the team what it was, and they have shown the true "Kentucky spirit", as was evidenced by their valient struggle in the freshman-sophomore tug of war. As usual, the freshmen dragged the sophomores through the icy waters of Clifton Pond, thus retaliating for their outraged scalps.

Now, as we are approaching the close of our first year in the University of Kentucky, we feel that our efforts have borne some fruits. Because of trials and disappointments, we are stronger and better able to bear those which must come to us in the future. We have made some mistakes, but these are stepping stones to future success. It is our aim in the future to make the best use of our time while here and finally to go out into the world with the ideals of old U. K. reflected in our hearts and lives.

L. Atkins, '26.

FRESHMAN CLASS

MILITARY

Officers of the Military Department

Lieutenant-Colonel George D. Freeman

Colonel Freeman, a graduate of Ohio State University, served with the volunteers in the Spanish-American War, as an enlisted soldier. He has been in the service of the United States, and at present is commanding officer of the R. O. T. C. unit of the University of Kentucky. Colonel Freeman served overseas in the American Expeditionary Forces.

Major A. S. J. Tucker

Major Tucker, a graduate of the University of Virginia, while on active duty in France was presented with the Croix de Guerre with palm. He has been connected with the University of Kentucky longer than any member of the present staff of officers, being commandant of the battalion before Colonel Freeman was stationed here.

Captain J. J. Bethurum

Captain Bethurum hails from Centre College, Kentucky, where he won fame in athletics, particularly track. Captain Bethurum served on the border before the late war, where he was commissioned as a second lieutenant. He studied later at the Officers' Training School at Fort Benning, Georgia, where he won for himself the mighty cognomen of "Napoleon".

Captain Joseph Torrence

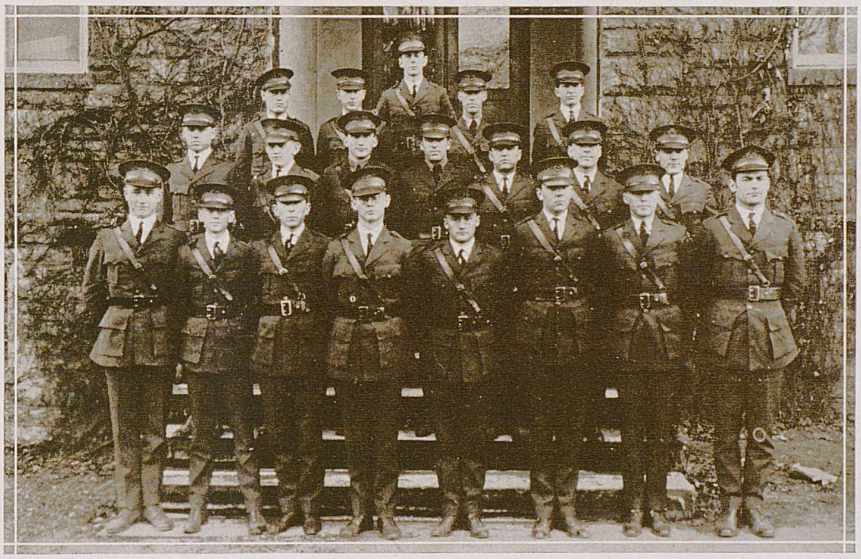

Captain Torrence, an alumnus of the University of Kentucky, was graduated from the College of Law, but shortly after gave up forensics for the more chivalrous profession of arms. He was severely wounded in the first fight of the European war, in which American forces participated. He is also a possessor of the Croix de Guerre.

Captain Marvin W. Marsh

Captain Marsh was graduated from Texas Southwestern, where he was noted particularly for his pugilistic abilities and won fame in the army as a boxer and wrestler. Athletics is his hobby, and he is noted in military circles as an able instructor of such. He served as a lieutenant in the late war, but was promoted before the conflict ended.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

Football at Kentucky in 1922

THE day for the annual controversy with Centre had come and thousands of followers of the pigskin were pouring into the stands on Stoll Field to witness the classic. Seats were at a premium and many were forced to turn away unable to secure even standing room. The multitude waited anxiously for a sight of either eleven, and when the two squads, led by their captains, trotted onto the turf and began to warm up, the stands gave vent to their pent up emotions, causing the echoes to resound indefinitely and creating a new danger to the pilot of the plane that hung over the field taking pictures of the assemblage.

The two captains met in the center of the field and made their choices. The game began. The ball see-sawed back and forth across the while lined green, sometimes in Kentucky territory and then on Centre ground, much to the surprise of the Gold and White rooters, who clamored for a score. Gregg, Cat quarter, was waiting for the breaks, and in the second period one appeared. A Colonel back, over-anxious, let the oval slip from his hands and Kentucky gained the ball in midfield. Then the Cats started a determined march down the field, only to be stopped by "Red" himself on Centre's twenty-yard line.

The time had come. It was fourth down and about eight to go. The Yellow and White posts were only twenty yards away, and Gregg called a kick formation. The stands were so silent that the clear, even tones of the diminutive pilot could be heard all over the field as he chirped the fateful signals. Gregg trotted back to the booter's position, kicked away several imaginary obstacles and called for the ball. Poising, for what seemed an infinite length of time, he booted the oval through the uprights for the first score against Centre since 1916. The Kentucky rooters went wild.

The half ended with the score, Kentucky 3, Centre 0. But in the last two periods the tide turned and the heavier line of the Gold and White opened up holes through which the Colonel backs plunged for four markers. The Cats had given all they had in the first half and handicapped by the lack of sufficient reserves, went down into glorious defeat, making the Danville aggregation display everything it had to win. The final count was Centre 27, Kentucky 3.

Next in importance to the Centre scrap was the renewal of football relationship with Alabama, which resulted in a 6-0 victory for the Cats. The Crimson Tide had defeated Pennsylvania 9-7 a few weeks earlier and were heralded as the best eleven in the South. But the Cat forward wall proved far superior to the famed Crimson's, and the Blue and White backs had little trouble in working within striking distance of the goal. Fuller then went over for the score.

Handicapped by the Freshman rule, the Cats started the season crippled by the loss of 1922 graduates of the team. The squad being small, the outlook for the year was anything but promising. In the opening game with Marshall, the Cats, though victorious 16-0, did not display anything to indicate their full strength. Cincinnati came next and like Marshall, fell defeated 15-0. Again the Cats displayed only a mediocre brand of football.

The University of Louisville Cardinals next invaded Stoll Field and were also defeated, the Cats winning this time 73-0, and showing a great deal of improvement. On October 21, the Cats left their lair for the first time of the season and handed Georgetown a 49-6 walloping at Georgetown.

Then came the first real scrap of the year. Memories of 1921 were entertained by the Sewanee Tigers as they came on Stoll Field to meet the Cats and these memories were the only thing they had to console themselves when they departed, losers by a 7-0 count. The straight football of the Blue and White proved better than that of the Tigers, and the Cats won by a lone touchdown.

In the annual Turkey Day tilt with Tennessee at Knoxville, the Cat pass defense that had stopped Alabama was mysteriously lacking, thus accounting for the 14-7 score in favor of Tennessee. Soon after the game began the Blue and White marched down the field for a score, using line plunges and end runs. Victory loomed in the distance. But alas! The Volunteers opened up a passing attack that took the Cats by surprise and netted the Knoxville aggregation two touchdowns, and the game. The Wildcats were better at straight football, but sadly lacking when it came to breaking up the Tennessee passes.

Summing up, the Cats emerged victors in six out of nine scraps. The three contests lost, to Centre, Vandy, and Tennessee, were all hard-fought games and never won until the final whistle had blown. Are we downhearted? No, sir!

JUNEAU—"Injun Bill" Juneau completed his work as Wildcat mentor with the Tennessee game. Under his leadership the Blue and White has developed into a team worthy of championship fame. Mr. Juneau has accomplished a great deal in his three years' stay, and it is with regret that we bid him good-bye.

PRIBBLE—Birkett Lee Pribble, captain and right guard of the 1922 Cats, was one of the outstanding men in the forward wall. Under his guidance the Cats completed a very successful season, and to his fighting spirit can be attributed a large part of the success.

RAMSEY—Dell Ramsey, left tackle and captain-elect for 1923, is one of the hardest and surest tacklers that has ever donned the Blue. He should prove a very successful leader for the Cats next year, and form the nucleus for one of the best lines in the South.

CAMMACK—A. B. "Red" Cammack took care of the managerial end of the season in a manner that won favorable comment from all sides. Bothered by the constant clamor of "Ted" Brewer and Gatton, "Red" filled all wants with quick precision.

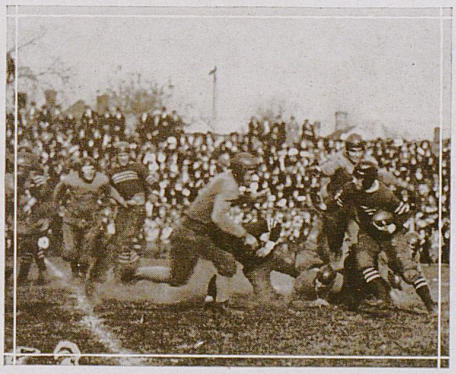

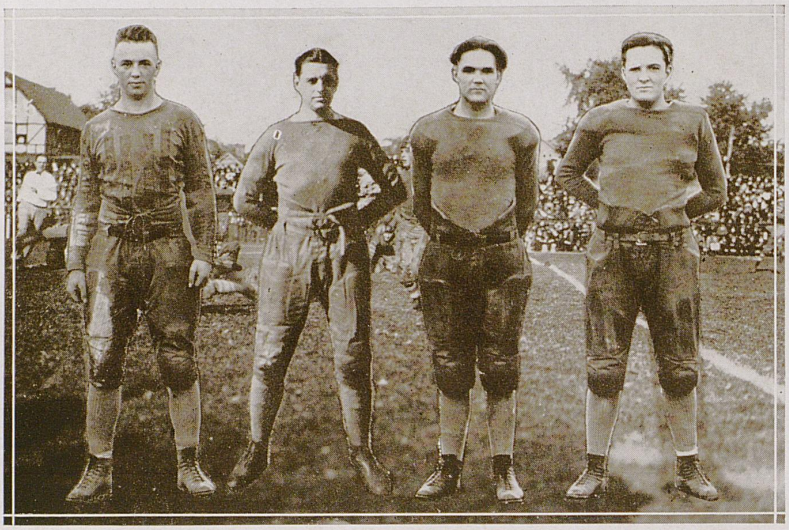

FULLER—A flash of blue, streaking down the field, the stands teeming with excitement! Fuller emerges from a struggling mass of humanity and dashes over the goal line. Bruce is as fast as chained lightning, a passer of great ability, and the Cats' main reliance for punting.

FEST—"Freddie" has played his last game at center for Kentucky, after three years of valuable service, and his departure from the feline lair deprives the Cats of a star who gave all whenever called upon. He was the embodiment of the fighting Kentucky "never-say-die" spirit, and the Cat mentors will have a hard time filling his shoes.

COLPITTS—"Willie" displayed a brand of pigskin art that will cause his name to be long remembered in Kentucky annals. Although rather light for an end, he more than made up for it by his speed and aggressiveness.

HOLLOWELL—Although some fans still maintain that it was "Holly's" number 9 that Vandy used in the Nashville game, the Princeton lad denies it. Hollowell leaves us this year for the "higher plane" with an enviable record.

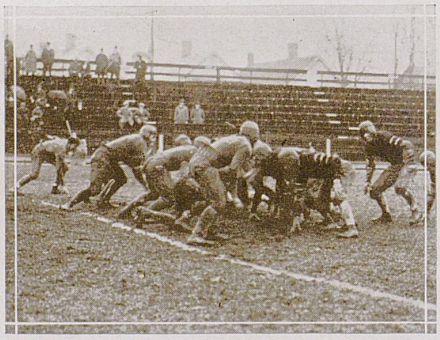

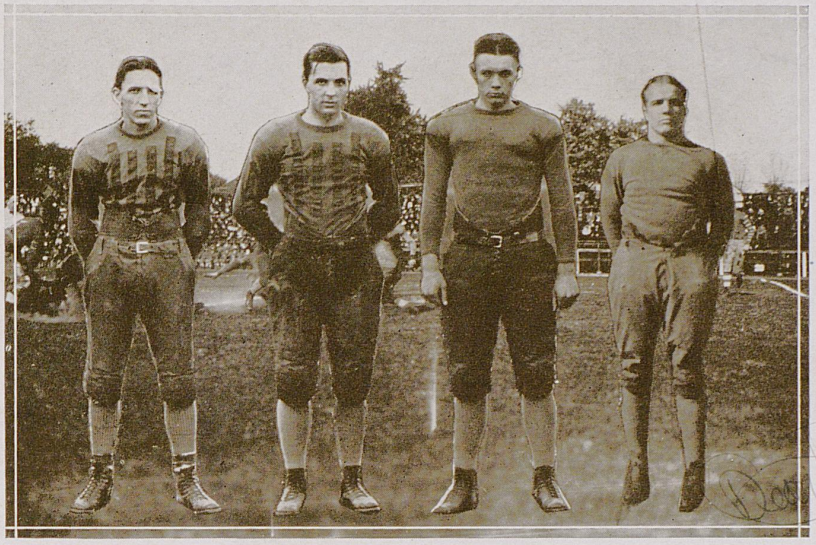

SANDERS—Touted by many for the fullback position on the mythical all-Southern eleven, "Sandy" was one of the most valuable men on the team. He is a line plunger of the first magnitude, and can always be counted upon for large gains. He has another year to play, and—well, watch him strut!

RICE—Although considerably handicapped by injuries throughout the entire season, "Chuck" played a fast, driving game at end. "A. T." is a wonder at snagging passes, and if his jinx will leave him long enough next fall, he should be hard to stop.

RUSSELL—Russell was one of the large reasons why the grand-stands gasped when they saw how much the Wildcat line had improved for the 1922 season. His steady efficiency and fighting spirit are exceeded only by his loyalty to the team. He is expected to contribute largely to the strength of the 1923 squad, that may be the best in the history of the university.

MARTIN—Playing his first year with the Blue and White, "Doc" made quite a name for himself by his work in the line. He was a tower of strength both on the offense and on the defense at either guard or tackle. Watch him next year!

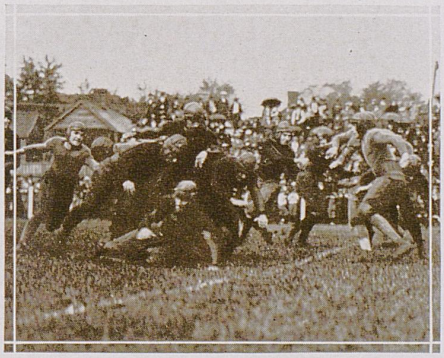

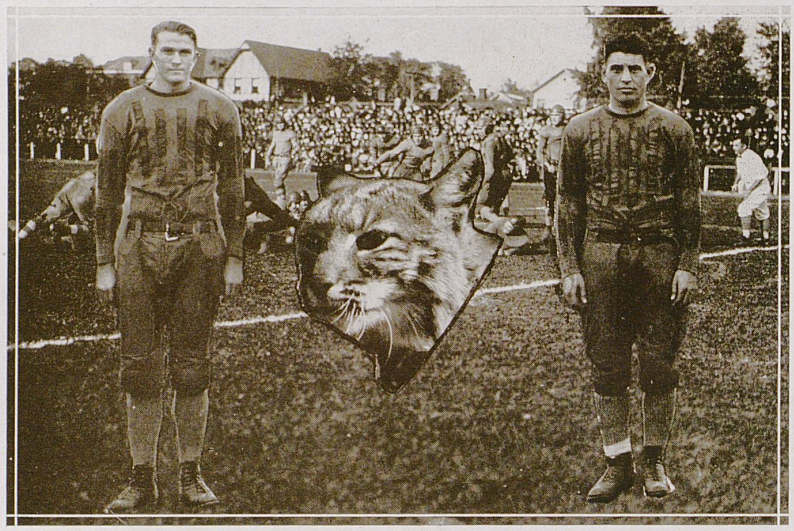

GREGG—The critical moment had arrived! Kentucky had worked the oval to Centre's twenty-yard mark, where the Colonels' line had held. It was fourth down and about eight to go. Gregg dropped back and with cool deliberation booted the pigskin through the Blue and White uprights for the first points Kentucky has scored on Centre since 1916. Turner gained fame throughout the South by his great field generalship and broken field running.

FERGUSON—"Fergie" is one of the fastest lads that has ever donned the Blue and is a thorn in the side of the enemy whenever his signal drops from the quarter's mouth. The Covington youth has decided to cast his lot elsewhere, and the spot he hangs his toothbrush will indeed be fortunate.

CAMMACK—"Jimmy" used bad judgment in accepting number 13 on his jersey, and consequently was pursued by a shrouded jinx the first half of the season. But he made up for his absence when he recovered from his injury by playing an excellent game at guard. "Jimmy" has another year, and should make up for all lost time.

BREWER—Another victim of the supernatural jinx, "Ted" was forced to lay out for quite a while, due to injuries. True to his nom de plume, "Dynamite" "Ted" is as fast as that explosive, and never stops until he is down. He has two more years in which to increase his fame, and, given ample opportunity, will do so.

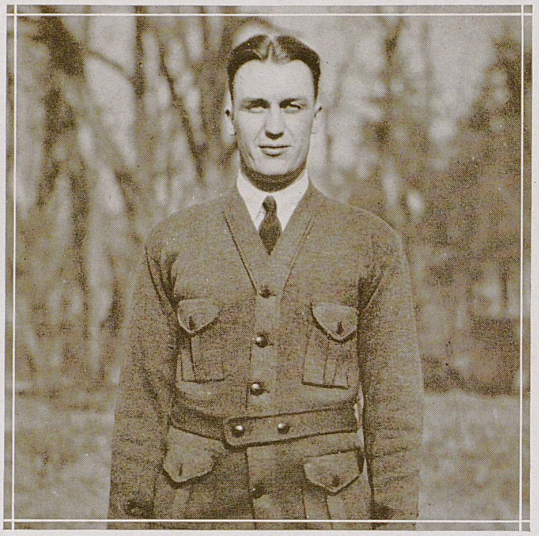

W. H. RICE—"Cave Man" has developed into one of the best backs in the state, and was barely kept out of a regular berth on the team this year. He proved a capable understudy to Sanders, and will make the Nicholasville youth hump to keep him out of the full position next fall.

NEALE—"Greasy", despite his rather diminutive stature, is one of the fastest halfs in the Blue Grass. Given half a chance next year, he should demonstrate his ability, and win a regular berth.

Basketball Team

FRED FEST, Center

Our captain is right there at center, in that he is alert and in every play and always ready if the other fellow tries to get rough. When that occurs, Freddy gives said fellow all he is looking for, with interest.

A. T. RICE, Guard

Paris has a habit of sending good men to Kentucky's basketball teams, and "Chuck" was the installment for 1923. He is one of the brainiest and most aggressive players that the Wildcats boast of, and that is saying a great deal. His work as guard is of the stellar variety.

LAWRENCE BURNHAM, Guard

"Dutch's" playing is not flashy, but dependable. Whenever the opposing forwards sift through the Wildcat defense, they always meet a stone wall in "Dutch" at stationary. He is a cool, brainy, and consistent player.

MARSHALL BARNES, Forward

An excellent player, Marshall has made the most of the opportunity given him at forward, and has proved a worthy running mate to Riefkin.

CARL RIEFKIN, Forward

A sure goal shot and hard fighter, Riefkin is one of the most valuable men on the team. In addition to playing forward, he is the team's manager.

WAYNE FAUST, Forward

A hard fighter, with plenty of ability, Faust is a valuable asset to the squad.

RALPH BOREN, Guard

Ralph has shown up to advantage at guard, and may be depended upon at all times to do his best. His is work of the stellar quality.

WILLIAM WILKINSON, Forward

A keen, brilliant player, "Bill" was just the kind of man to fill the place of a regular in a pinch. This is his second year on the squad.

CHARLES SPILLMAN, Guard

Keen playing, coupled with hard fighting, explain in brief Charlie's service to the squad.

MANAGER WILSON COACH CHANDLER CAPTAIN BLANDING

Girls' Basketball, 1923

The Kittennette squad of 1923 is one of the best that has ever represented the Blue and White in the court world. With four victories and one defeat as their record at the time of writing the Kentucky co-eds are waging a hot battle for the state title. The Kittennettes started the season with a 27 to 9 win over the Wesleyan co-eds, and again defeated the Winchester quintet, this time on a foreign court. Their only defeat was at the hands of the University of Louisville five, 8 to 5, in a contest with rugged playing on both sides. Kentucky evened up the count with Louisville by a decisive score and then defeated Georgetown the next night.

The co-eds have four more contests on their schedule—Western Normal, Peabody, Chattanooga, and Georgetown. All of the contests are away from home, and should the Kittenettes emerge victorious in all four contests they will have a strong claim on the Southern title. The last three games mentioned above are on the annual Southern trip.

MARGARET LIGON, Guard

Margaret played at Georgetown last year, but decided to come over to State this year. She is a speedy guard, besides having a very accurate eye for the basket.

ANTOINNETTE HARRISON, Guard

Miss Harrison is one of the best back guards that has been seen in Kentucky for some time, and should get a place on the mythical all-state quintet.

SARAH BLANDING, Forward and Captain.

Captain Blanding, Kittennette leader, scored a majority of the Kentucky baskets and was a thorn in the side of all the opponents. Sarah seems to have a monopoly on the baskets and uses that monopoly to the best advantage.

THOMPSON, Center

This is Miss Thompson's first year on the team, but she played with the steadiness and precision of a regular.

ELIZABETH CARROLL, Forward

Miss Carroll handled the sphere with such speed and accuracy that she found a regular berth on the team.

Although baseball is more rebellious against dope than any other campus activity, with the possible exception of the popularity contest, we don't mind risking the prediction that the 1923 season will be the most brilliant in the Wildcat history. The team probably will be the heaviest hitting organization that ever dragged a bat onto Stoll Field, and if the pitching staff puts up as creditable a battle as their past record would indicate, it will take some terrific mauling to outscore Kentucky. "Dutch" Burnham, second baseman, is captain of the 1923 aggregation, and has a batting average well above .400. For two seasons the big leagues have been clamoring for his services.

Other letter men who will return to "Daddy" Boles' office in the spring for baseball are: Bill King, shortstop—All-Southern shortstop, at that; Birkett Lee Pribble, catcher; Otis Jones, center fielder; Allison Stokes and Beckham Robertson, pitchers. There is an abundance of varsity material in prospect, despite the scarcity of letter men, and the squad will be one of the largest in history. The coach for the 1923 season will be "Cy" Barger, of big league fame.

Coach James Park

"Jim", our coach and former star twirler for Kentucky, came to us last season after spending several years in the big league. He proved to be as capable as a coach as he is a player, which is saying a great deal.

Birkett Lee Pribble

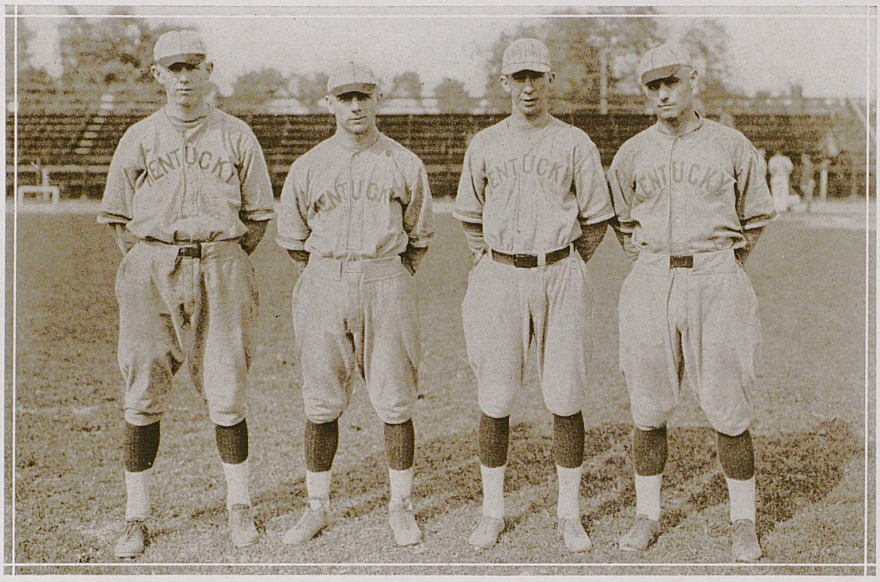

"Big Boy" is right there with the big mitt and the big stick. "Prib's" work behind the plate last season was all but faultless, while his batting ability was the fear of rival pitchers.

T. T. Slomer

Our captain was the mainstay of last year's pitching staff. Bud's absence this year creates a vacancy that will not be filled easily. He was a good fielder and hitter.

Charles Graham

"Charly," our manager, did not make a great deal of fuss, but he managed to keep the team going in good shape. Always on the job, yet quiet and unassuming.

Oakley Brown

Our first baseman is noted for his quiet disposition. Besides his excellent fielding, Oakley's most outstanding quality is his ability "to talk things up", much to the discomfiture of the opposing batters. Oakley's absence creates a vacancy that will be hard to fill.

Lawrence S. Burnham

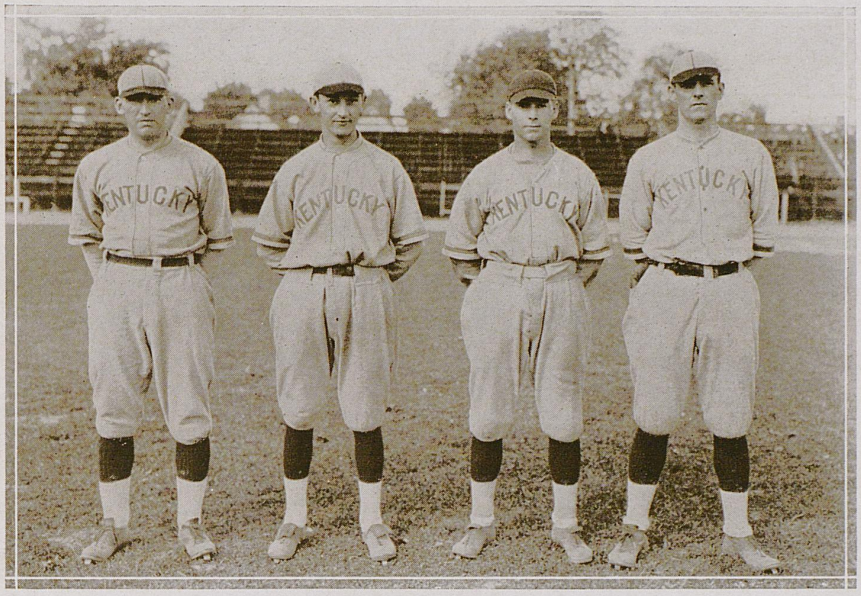

"Dutch", our 1923 captain, is truly a great ball player and holds down the keystone sack in real big league style. He is a faultless fielder, fast on bases, and a truly remarkable batter. He failed to hit in but one game during the 1922 season.

William King

The name of "Bill's" position is short, and there all shortness ends, for he is long on fielding, hitting, and base running—in fact, one of the best players on the team, which is saying a great deal.

N. T. Underwood

Last season "Ned" held down third base in truly great style. He was a good fielder and hitter and an all-around good player.

Jere Beam

Jere ate 'em up out in the garden plot, taking anything and everything that came in the right field section. A good hitter and always dependable, he will be missed sadly this season.

Otis Jones

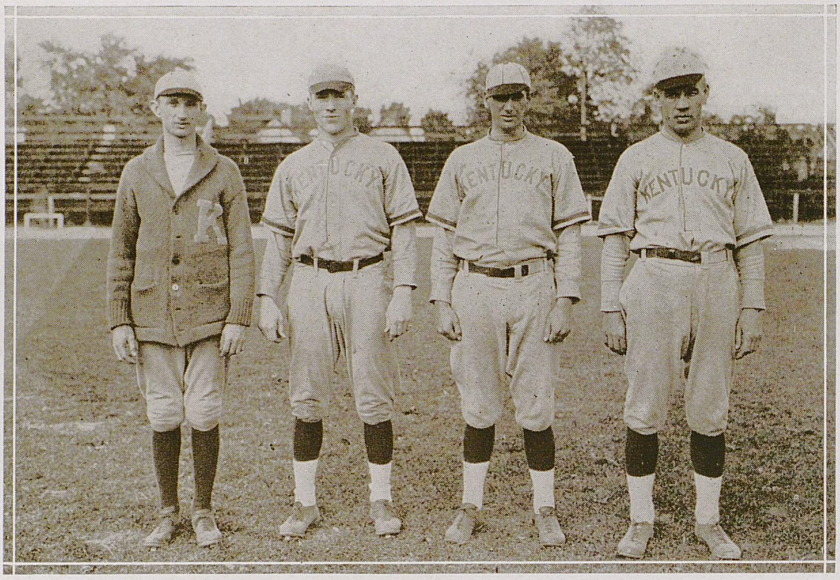

Otis holds down the center garden, and is an excellent fielder in the truest sense. Not quite as strong at the bat, but, all in all, a great player. Didn't he knock Centre for a row of alibis all by himself last spring?

Ray Sauer

Ray cavorted around left field, where he spoiled many an opposing batter's hopes. He was a sure fielder and an excellent hitter.

Glen Tinsley

A pinch hitter at the beginning of the season, Tinsley developed into one of the most terrific hitters of the squad. He rarely failed to deliver a bingle in a pinch, and showed much promise as an outfielder.

PAUL COOPER

Last year's mound hero helped Coach Park make the 1922 team brilliant. He was a rare southpaw, and his assistance in coaching was an evidence of his baseball ability.

BECKHAM ROBERTSON

Beckham is another player who helped bolster up the pitching staff. He is a hard worker and can be depended upon to do his best.

A. G. STOKES

Last season marked "Al's" first year of varsity baseball. He is a good pitcher, a sure fielder, and an excellent batter. We expect great things from him this season.

W. R. FLEAHMAN

"Slug", the only southpaw on the team, was one of the mainstays of the pitching staff. He showed great promise in his first year of varsity baseball, and his absence will be felt keenly this season.

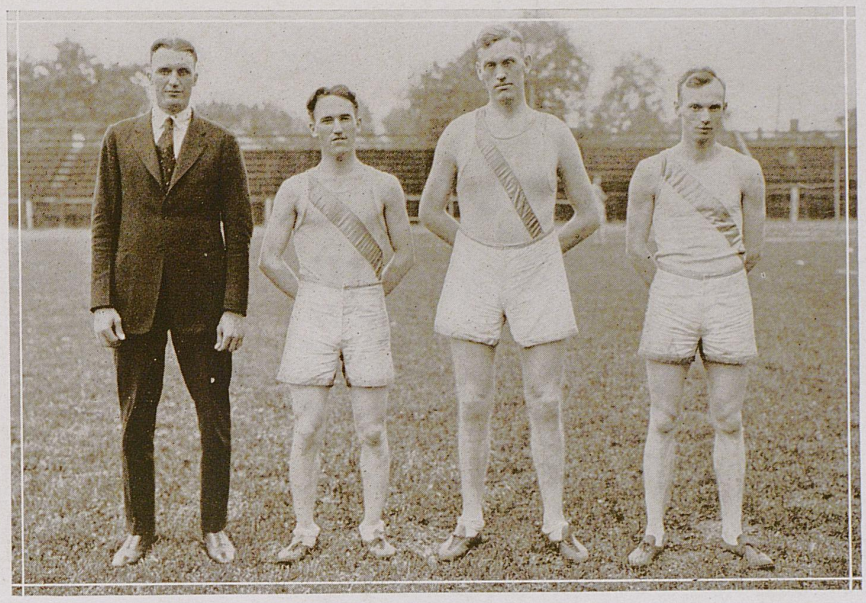

TRACK

Track Schedule, 1923

March 31—Indoor Meet at Louisville.
April 14—Vanderbilt, at Lexington.
April 28—Georgia Tech, Relays at Atlanta.
May 5—Cincinnati, at Cincinnati.
May 18-19—Southern Conference Meet, at Montgomery, Ala.
May 26—State Meet; place not yet selected.

COACH GEORGE BUCHHEIT

Coach Buchheit, track mentor, made quite a reputation at Illinois as an athlete, and has continued his work as a coach with as much success as in college. "George" is a buddy to all his proteges, interested in their every move, and above all, he knows track and imparts his knowledge to his men in such a way that it is easily learned.

ROBERT PORTER

"Bob" Porter, Cat distance ace, is one of the fastest mile and two-mile speedsters that ever wore the Blue and White. "Bob" has another year for track participation, and will be one of the mainstays this year.

L. C. DAVIDSON

"Big Red" Davidson, captain-elect of the 1923 team, is the Cat weight and discus reliance. "Red" handles his enormous bulk with ease while handling his "instruments", and makes the opposition hop to beat him.

WARREN CLARE

Warren Clare, captain of the 1922 team, is one of the flashiest speed merchants that has strolled out on Stoll Field in many moons. Clare is very versatile, running both the hurdles, dashes, and usually placing in the jumps. Clare was high point man for 1922, and the Cats will miss his point-making ability when they open their next season.

JIMMY WILHELM

Jimmy Wilhelm, quarter-miler, high jumper, and member of the relay team, is an athlete of the first magnitude. Jimmy could always be counted on for quite a few points in every meet, and never failed to give his best.

DAVE NANTZ

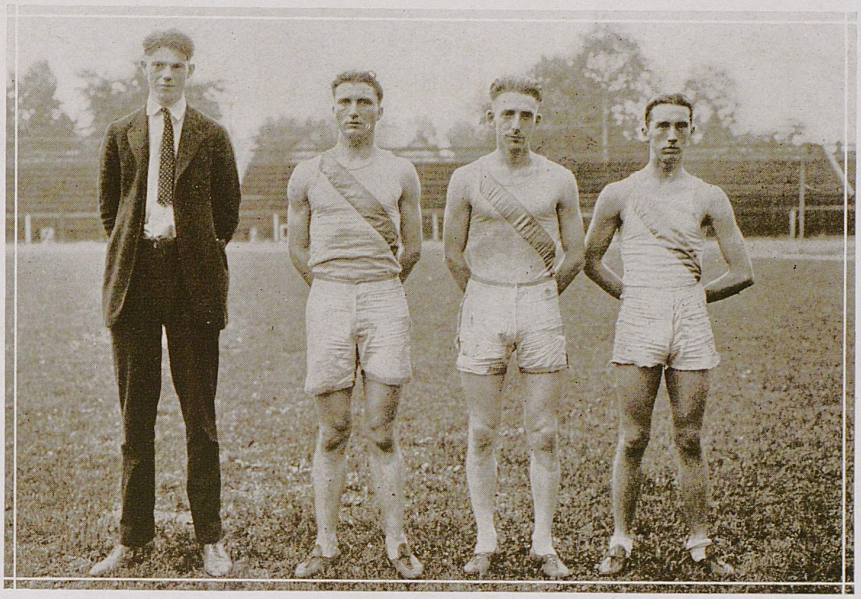

Dave Nantz, one of the Cat dash men and member of the relay team, has two more years in which to increase his already excellent reputation as a high-grade cinder artist.

BERYL BOYD

Beryl Boyd, besides occupying a seat in the state legislature, can swing a wicked pair of limbs in the half and quarter, and was one of the fastest athletes on the relay team.

ESTES SNIDER

Estes Snider celebrated his fourth year on the track team taking care of the Cat end of the jumps, besides running the quarter and the relay. Snider ran "Cap" Clare a close race for individual honors.

ALBERT HUKLE

Albert ("Red") Hukle, known by many other alias cognomens, was the distinguished manager of the 1922 team. Because of his small stature, "Red" was obliged to entrust the greater part of the "dirty" work to his assistants, and confine himself to helping Coach Buchheit scrape the weeds off the track.

C. A. HOLLOWELL

C. A. Hollowell, of football renown, was one of the best weight and javelin men in the state. Holly is an earnest worker and a hard trainer.

"RED" WOLFE

"Red" Wolfe, pole vaulter and javelin hurler, has two more years in which to add to his laurels, already abundant, and to take care of a few records.

BRAITHWAITE DEWHURST

Dewhurst, in his first year of track, made quite a name for himself in the hurdles, pushing Captain Clare hard in every start. We predict a great future for the Lexington youth.

H. BROWN — M. A. GORMAN
M. DANIELS — J. BUTLER
H. G. SMITH

The fall of 1922 witnessed the inauguration of a new minor sport in the form of cross-country. Although the fall track sport had been at the university in 1921, the past season was the most successful of the two. The team participated in two meets—a dual meet with the University of Cincinnati, and the annual Y. M. H. A. meet at Louisville. The Cats emerged from both classes with flying colors, winning each event with ease. The meet with Cincinnati found the Cats on top of a 23 to 33 count, although a Bearcat man finished first. In the Y. M. H. A. meet the Cats met some of the best distance men in the Middle West, but had no trouble in copping the team cup, besides winning first and second place awards.

Captain Bob Porter, of the 1922 team, was one of the mainstays of the team, finishing second in the Louisville meet. Gorman, captain-elect for 1923, won the Louisville meet and finished second in the Cincy meet. The other members of the team all were speed merchants of the first degree. 1923 will find all of the team back in school, with the addition of Hall, a freshman who won the interclass meet, but was ineligible for varsity work.

The Wrestling Team

The wrestling season ended with the University of Iowa match at Ames, March 4, with Kentucky drawing the small end of the score. And there is where our story begins. The explanation of this defeat can be told in two words: "Different rules". This match was carried on under the Big Ten Conference Rules, under which system there is only one bout of twelve minutes, an additional five-minute period being added in case of a draw. This system was an unfamiliar one to the Wildcats.

Kentucky was an easy victor in the preceding bout, held on February 18 at Lexington, with Ohio University, which was carried on under Southern Conference Rules, which consist of three five-minute bouts.

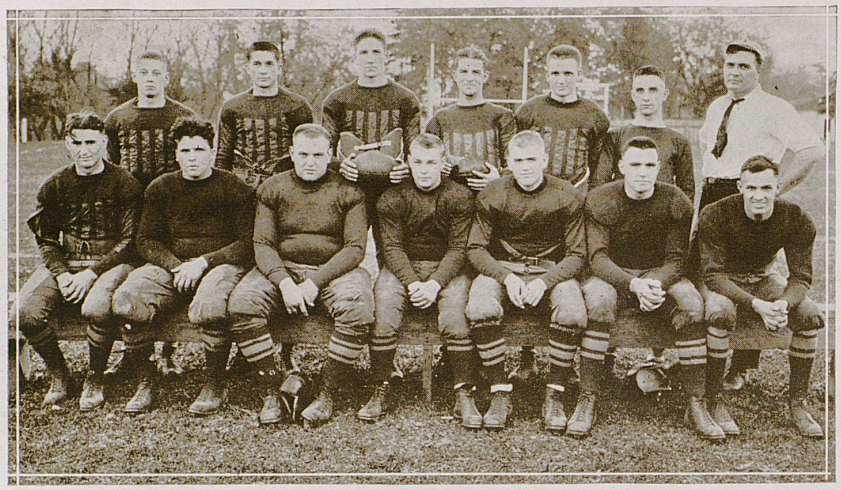

The match with Indiana, at Bloomington, on February 3, marked the Wildcats' first encounter with Big Ten Conference Rules, and was equally disastrous to the Blue and White wearers. The unfamiliarity of the Kentuckians with Big Ten Conference Rules was mentioned by Haze Clark, sport editor of Indiana Daily Times, in his story of the match in that paper. In this same story he justly praised Captain Enlow as one of the best heavyweight wrestlers in all Southland.

The first match of the season, January 28, with University of Cincinnati, at Lexington, resulted in a clean-cut victory for Kentucky. This match was held under Southern Conference Rules and clearly indicates that familiarity with rules makes a difference.

A great deal of credit is due Harold Enlow, who acted as coach as well as captain of the 1923 team, and who brings a great deal of mat experience, acquired while at West Point.

The 1923 schedule had not been arranged when THE KENTUCKIAN went to press, but it was stated that the policy would be to wrestle teams in the Southern Conference in preference to those in the Western and Missouri Valley Conference. Practice under the Big Ten Conference Rules will be held so as to familiarize the men with that system.

Members of the 1923 team were: Captain Enlow, heavyweight; Robertson, light heavyweight; Newl, welterweight; Akin, middleweight; Waits, bantamweight; Stith, lightweight; Maddox, featherweight.

Phi Mu Alpha

PHI MU ALPHA, national honorary musical fraternity, was installed on the campus of the University of Kentucky on December 13th. It has twenty-seven active chapters in the United States, and has on its rolls many musicians of national and international fame. It was founded at New England Conservatory of Music, Boston, Mass., 1898. It fosters the advancement of musical appreciation and better music in every way. In the last few years it has branched out from strictly musical schools and has installed chapters in a great many of the larger universities in every section of the United States.

Alpha Gamma Chapter took over the active local fraternity, Sigma Tau. This local was founded on the campus four years ago by four men, who then composed the quartet of the Men's Glee Club. They had been together for three years, and had been on the road each summer, singing in the Farmers' Chautauqua, which was under the supervision of the University Extension Department. Those four men were: A. E. Bell, R. M. Guthrie, R. H. Craig, and M. T. Brooks. They founded Sigma Tau in the fall of 1919. The following semester ten others were taken into the organization.

Through the efforts of these men the University Glee Club enjoyed its first successful season, and the next year it was again put on the road for the University. The following year it was instrumental in the forming of the first and only collegiate saxophone sextette. This was one of the big features of the club. The following year there was produced by the musical department of the University an opera. The first production was "Robin Hood". This has become an established custom on the campus. Members of Sigma Tau have always sung the leading roles in every production.

The last and most beneficial of all acts to the advancement and benefit of music in its local field was the promotion of the campaign which resulted in the addition of fifty cents to the regular matriculation fee of each student of the University. This sum went to the Musical Department. With this as a working fund this department has and will continue to expand from year to year, since its main hindrance was the lack of funds.

The active members of Sigma Tau, realizing that their efforts could be made to count for much more if they were affiliated with some national organization with the same purposes and aims as their own, petitioned Phi Mu Alpha early in the spring of 1922. This petition for a charter was granted at the first convention. This chapter, known as Alpha Gamma Chapter, was installed at the University of Kentucky on December 13, 1922.

Woman's Self-Government Association

THE Woman's Self-Government Association of the University of Kentucky, in the four years of its duration, has diligently and beautifully developed the three sides of its being. With courage and justice it has made and enforced laws for the increased life and more harmonious living of its members; with enthusiasm and interest it has furnished a forum for discussion; with real insight and hospitality it has been the means of bringing the students together socially. The association depends for its existence upon the honor of the individual girl and seeks the co-operation of every student of the University in the development of the perfect woman.

The Woman's Administrative Council was organized on the campus in 1921. The purpose of the organization is to co-operate with the Men's Student Council and to help in settling various questions and disputes which arise from time to time. The membership is composed of the president from each of the women's organizations on the campus.

DRAMA

STROLLERS
1923

The Thirteenth Chair

THE Strollers have felt after each year's production that they have surpassed the presentation of the previous year. The season of 1921-22 marked no departure from this rule. "The Thirteenth Chair", by the well-known playwright, Bayard Veiller, was a happy choice for the play. This work combined all the elements so beloved of the actor and producer, especially the currently popular ingredient of mystery. The unusual success of the play in New York and other large centers added the weight of authority to the decision of the local producers. The work afforded many opportunities for effective acting, and all the players shared in the glory.

In addition to their advance in an artistic direction, the Strollers took an extraordinary step forward in the matter of mechanical equipment. Many articles used in the production of plays from year to year were added to the list of things owned by the Stroller organization. Stock scenery, rare and useful properties, and a complete lighting system, were some of the articles purchased for permanent use by the Strollers.

It may be seen from the foregoing that this society for the production of good plays has reached the proportions of an institution. It is not merely a group of people meeting for awhile to give a play; it is a closely knit organization having separate departments for the fulfillment of certain duties. The producing staff does not do the whole of the work; there are the executive and business staffs, both having rather complicated matters to manage in connection with the work of the club. The Strollers have workrooms for the preparation of scenery and properties, and a meeting room, beautifully decorated, for the transaction of their social and business relations. An immense amount of fun is always had by the company, because of the social activities they engage in throughout the school year.

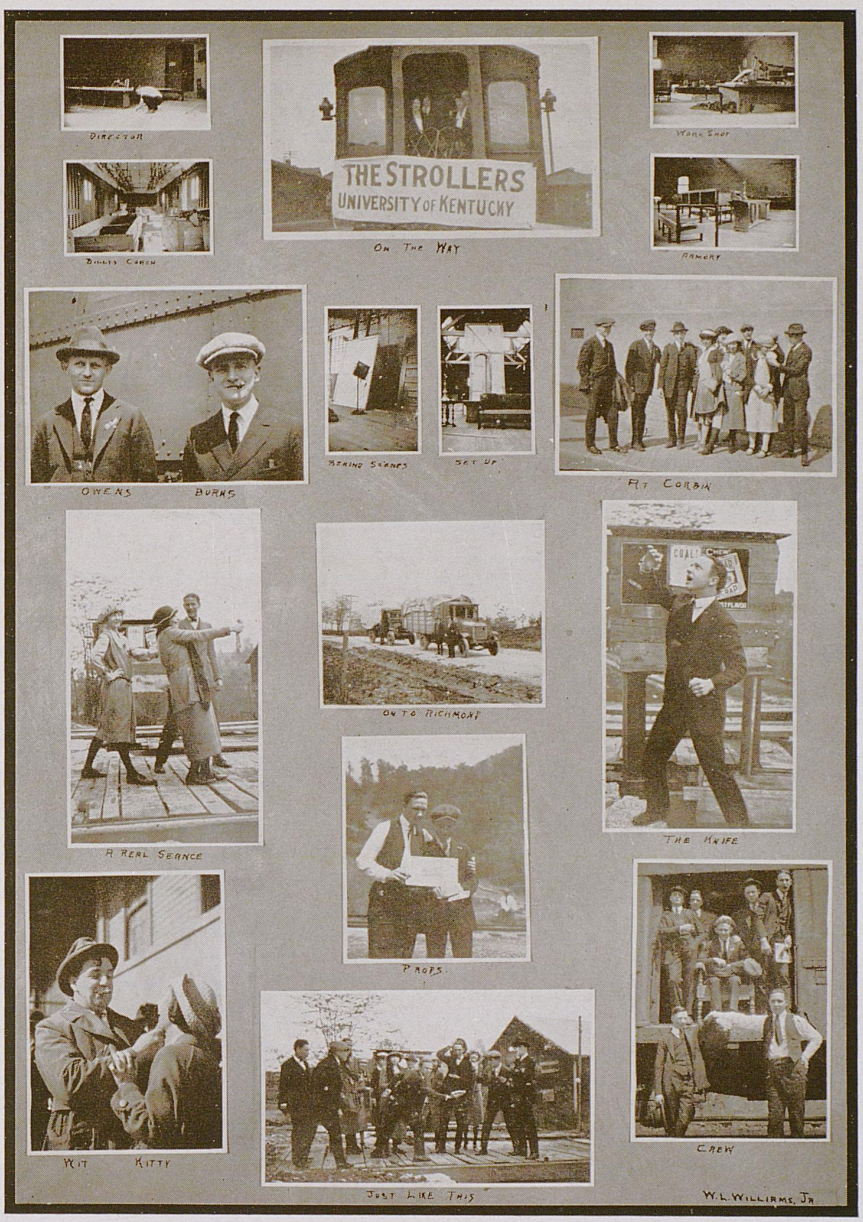

Another departure from their usual procedure was made by the Strollers in connection with "The Thirteenth Chair". This was the re-presentation of the work at the beginning of the school year of 1922-23 in Lexington and the neighboring towns of Cynthiana and Frankfort. The entire production, with few changes from the work of the previous spring, was given by these willing workers. The revival of the play was prompted from motives of expediency, and it is doubtful if the fall revival will become a custom, as it entails a vast amount of work.

"The Thirteenth Chair" was first given by the Strollers in Paris. Following this, it was taken to Georgetown and Richmond, and later to Middlesboro and Pineville. It then came to Lexington. After the opening night in Lexington, the consensus of comment seemed to rank "The Thirteenth Chair" as the most effective and the most nearly professional of Stroller productions within memory. This was due largely to the bountiful opportunities for good acting, partly to the theatrical power of the story, and in some degree, more than is generally recognized, to the splendid mechanical treatment and stage direction. Director John Burks showed what an amateur can do with a play of the theatre by dint of hard work. Such men as John Burks, however, do not remain amateurs for very long, if they continue in the line. The generous advice of Professor Carol M. Sax, Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, and "Uncle Enoch" Grehan proved invaluable throughout the course of the production.

The capable cast included: Frances Smith, Dan Morse, Eleanor Morse, William Finn, M. T. Brooks, Kitty Conroy, A. B. Vogel, Ann Hickman, Mary Peterson, Earl M. Heavrin, Nan Chenault, Edgar Gans, W. I. Moore, Mary Lyons, John Albright, and John Whitaker. Every role was cast neatly and every person in the play made the most of his opportunities for character creation. In a play of the peculiar class to which "The Thirteenth Chair" belongs, every stage speech and movement takes on multipiled meaning. In the hocus-pocus of mystery melodrama, the dramatic psychology, so-called, instead of following, as it ordinarily does, two correlative lines, may follow a dozen; no one is excluded from the frown of suspicion. The relation of the players must be clearly defined at every stage of the plot, and as the unfolding narrative heaps up complications, this becomes a rather tedious and exceedingly delicate task. No little credit, then, must be accorded the entire cast for their efforts in making the play a strong whole.

The Campus Playhouse

By E. E. Fleischman

The Little Theatre, during the past four years of its infancy, has made a secure place in our University and community life. First, under the able leadership of Professor Farquhar, then with Professor Mikesell at the helm, and now with Professor Fleischman to succeed him, the Little Theatre has enjoyed a steadily increasing patronage from faculty, students, and townspeople. Standing upon the threshold of another season, the future looms still more promising.

The aim has been to provide a Campus Playhouse for the dramatic activities of the University and to serve the state as an experimental laboratory for testing plays, solving problems of staging, lighting, directing and producing, and as a headquarters for advice to all amateur groups in the state. It is not only the home of literary drama, folk-plays and experimentation in stagecraft and dramatic art; it is also a student's workshop, where original plays, good or bad, are produced and studied critically in their effects on the stage.

Following out this plan, a series of Thursday matinees by the students of dramatic production and four evening performances of a more ambitious character were presented during the second semester of last year.

The class in Advanced English Composition contributed a program of dramatized short stories and original plays for which costumes and stage settings were designed by the Art Department. "The First and Last," by John Galsworthy; Anatole France's "Man Who Married a Dumb Wife"; and "The Prophet of Big Smoky", a mountain folk play based on the story by Charles Craddock, were productions in which honors were shared by such actors as Mrs. Sallie Bullock Cave, Gus Gay, Professor Mikesell, and, among students, Wilna Brown, Anne Hickman, Jeanette Lampert, Henry Taylor, and J. L. Hays.

The 1922-23 opening was made just before the holidays in a pleasing number, the success of which is auspicious for the present season. Patrons and friends of the Little Theatre were entertained as guests with a Christmas "warming". Four original one-act plays, two of them by Professor Fleischman, were presented at the matinee and evening performances. Those who were present expressed their delight in the artistic settings and finished acting of Professor Fleischman, Isabelle Van Meter, O. W. Cain, Edna Gordon, Mary Lyons, Anelle Kelley, and George Kavanaugh. Ten Y. W. C. A. girls dressed in white and carrying lighted tapers sang Christmas carols between the plays. An informal reception at which the guests were served from a steaming "wassail" bowl followed the evening bill.

MUSIC

"Erminie"

Memories of halcyon days when DeWolf Hopper, Francis Wilson, Jeff D'Angelis and other rare exponents of light opera in America set the public agog with tuneful jingle and rollicking jest, stole back Thursday, December 14, at the Ada Meade Theatre, when students and instructors of the department of music of the University of Kentucky, assisted by their Stroller comrades and dramatic classes, offered a beautiful production of Jacobowski's grand old opera, "Erminie", to a responsive house composed in greater part of students and their friends.

When Prof. Carl Lampert, head of the department of music, director of the opera, issued a call for volunteers to present the charming singing drama, sixty of the most talented young men and prettiest girls of the University responded, and after a series of rehearsals remarkable for their brevity of time consumed in preparation, the production was ready for the public. It was a success in every detail, and when the curtain descended on the night's performance both directors and players were showered with compliments for their superb amateur performance.

The chief members of the cast were: Josephine Frazier, in the part of "Erminie"; Jack Dahringer and John Albright, as the comedians; Edna Gordon, as "Javotte"; Leslie Worthington, as "Marie"; Earl Maxwell Heavrin, as "Eugene", secretary to the marquis; Miriam Seeger, as "Captain Delauney"; John Walsh as "Chevalier Brabazon"; Jeannette Lampert as "Princess de Gramponeur"; and Henry Taylor and John Burks in the serio-comic parts of waiter and landlord.

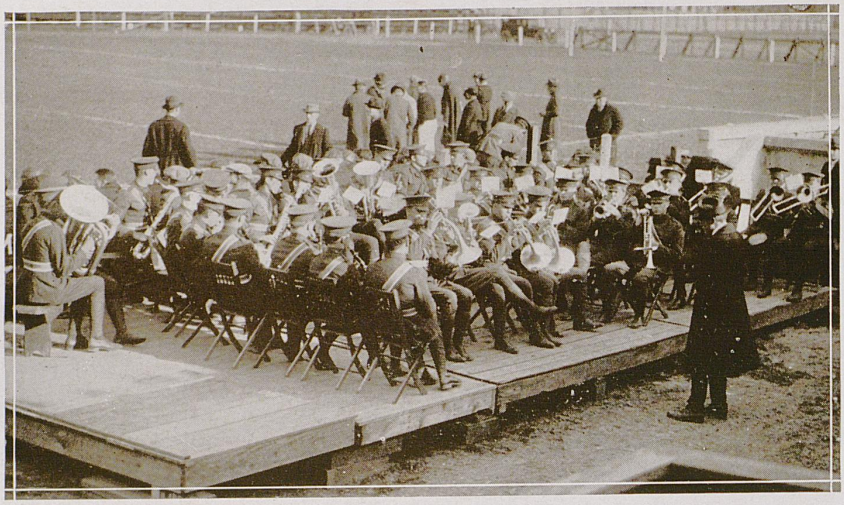

The costumes were designed and made by the department of home economics, under Miss Cornell's direction, and the orchestra was directed by Prof. Lampert.

The Glee Club

The University Glee Club renders a great service to its Alma Mater probably by means of the tours it makes each spring throughout the various parts of Kentucky. It renders exceptional programs in many of the larger towns in Kentucky where it is invited, and is always in great demand for return engagements. Prof. Lampert personally conducts the tours and is the director of the club.

Four of the members of the Glee Club compose the University quartet, the personnel of which follows: Robert Clem, first tenor; Earl Maxwell Heavrin, second tenor; Earle Baughman, first bass, and Elbert Decoursey, second bass. The quartet has also performed for "WHAS", the radio broadcasting station of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times. It rendered a program of songs in commemoration of their composer, that famous Kentuckian, Stephen Collins Foster.

The Band

One of the most successful organizations of the music department is the University band. Probably its greatest contribution to the campus activities is made during football season, when the band parades the field at the games and plays during the contests. The work of the band is largely responsible for the ever-increasing interest and enthusiasm of the student body in these athletic events, students and alumni having expressed their appreciation in a very definite form by subscribing sufficient funds to send the band to Danville, Georgetown, and Knoxville along with the Wildcats. The members of the team are most profuse in favorable comments upon the band concerning its effect upon the morale of the entire squad.

The band was the guest of the Courier-Journal and Louisville Times the latter part of January, when they rendered a delightful program at the radio broadcasting station, WHAS. At the same time they also played at the Louisville Girls High School.

Several members of the band are also members of the University orchestra, which has in all twenty-four members. The orchestra offers the students the opportunity of hearing the best of music at the programs it renders every other Sunday afternoon in the University chapel throughout the second semester. Its popularity and success is made manifest by the fact that it has some members who are not students here, but who belong solely because of their interest and enjoyment in the organization.

Both the orchestra and band are under the direction of Prof. Carl Lampert, head of the Department of Music.

1923 KENTUCKIAN

The Class of 1926 extends felicitations to all the upper classmen for every blessing and joy of life.

Unlike the traditional freshmen, we were put into an humble attitude on the very first day of our university careers.

We love our Alma Mater and pledge our loyalty in all the years to come.

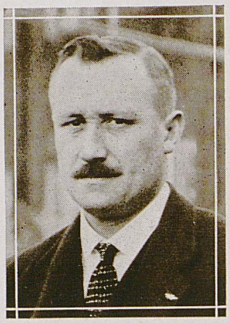

Our hearts' desire is additional lustre to the University of Kentucky.

The Rafinesque Botany Club honors in its name one of Kentucky's early botanists. The membership is not limited to graduate or major students, but is open to all who are interested in the subject, either popularly or technically. The aim is to keep up with the progress of the science by reports from journals, and to afford an opportunity for discussion of new ideas in botany. Frequently members report their own work before the club. Occasional social evenings serve to keep the human element from becoming submerged under a mass of scientific investigation, and thus keep interest fresh.

Forensic Activities

A NEW impetus has been given to forensic activities at the University under the direction of Prof. E. E. Fleischman, of the Department of Public Speaking, who succeeded Prof. W. H. Mikesell. A greater number of men have become interested in the work, and the debating schedule has been extended accordingly. One State Triangle has been organized; another is in the embryonic stage; the Southern Pentangular League is a reality, and several other independent debates are to be held during the 1923 season.

Under the direction of Prof. Mikesell, the 1922 season proved highly successful. The question for all debates was, "Resolved, That the United States retain the Dillingham Immigration Bill". Five out of six debates were decided in favor of Kentucky. Kentucky's representative also won second place in the state oratorical contest.

A brief sketch of the season follows:

On March 17th a negative team, composed of J. L. Hays, Sidney Neal, and Hugh Peal, met an affirmative team representing Georgetown College, at Georgetown. Decision was in favor of Kentucky.

On March 29th an affirmative team, composed of Raymond Johnson, L. C. Fielder, and Clay Porter, debated Berea's negative team, at Berea. Decision was in favor of Kentucky, 2 to 1.

The only defeat of the season came at the hands of Sewanee, on April 22nd. Fielder and Peal upheld the negative for Kentucky.

The return debate of the Pentangular League was held at the University Chapel on April 29th. Vanderbilt upheld the negative, while Porter and Hays, of Kentucky, supporting the affirmative, gained a unanimous decision for the University.

The final debate of the season was held at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. Johnson and Neale, upholding the affirmative, proved Kentucky's supremacy again in debating circles.

L. C. Fielder, representing the university, won second place in the state oratorical contest on March 4th. "The Debt to Our Dead" was the theme of his oration. J. S. Darnell was the orator in the Southern oratorical contest, held at Nashville, on April 8th. His subject was "The American Spirit".

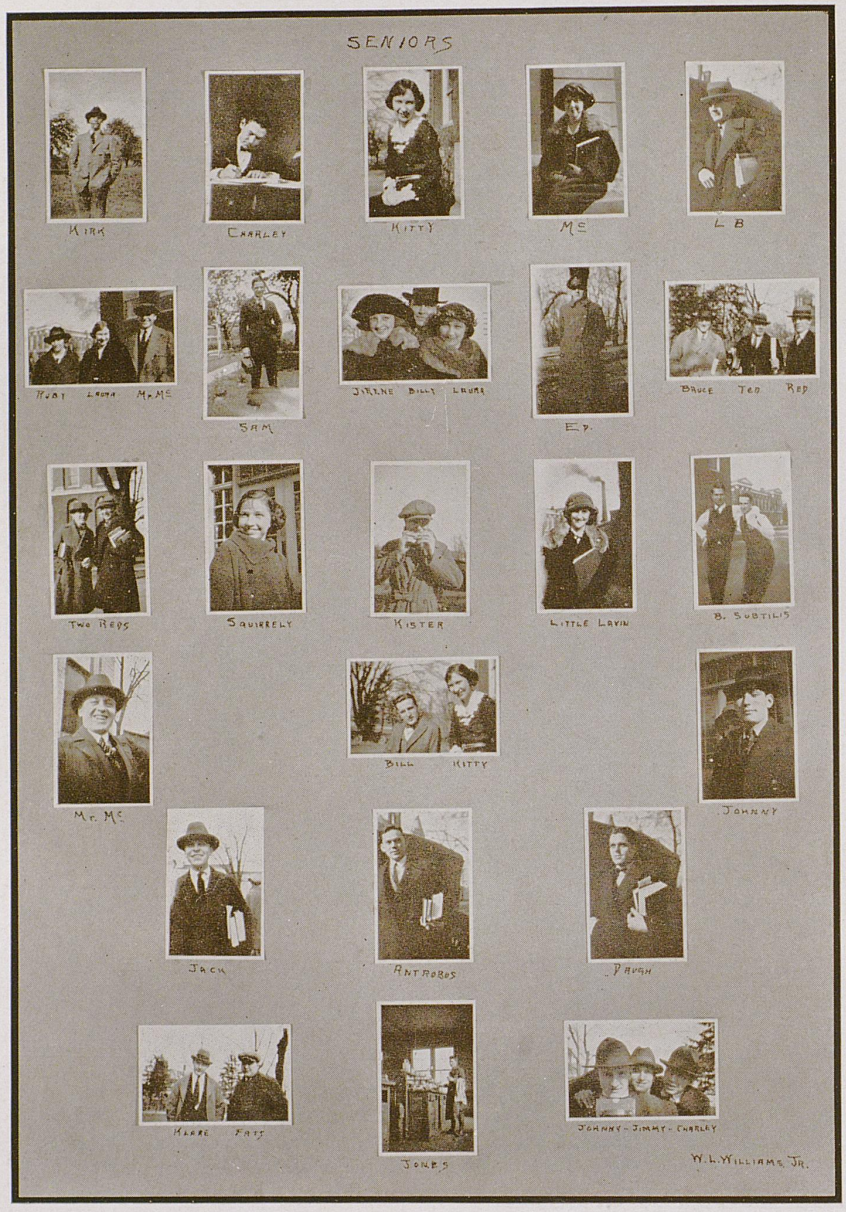

1923 Season

At a preliminary contest held this year, the following men were elected to compose the University's debating squad: W. S. Hynes, H. C. Johnson, C. R. McDowell, G. W. Meuth, W. C. Pickett, C. M. Clay Porter, D. W. Smith, M. Alperin, M. B. Daniel, J. L. Hays, S. H. Rice.

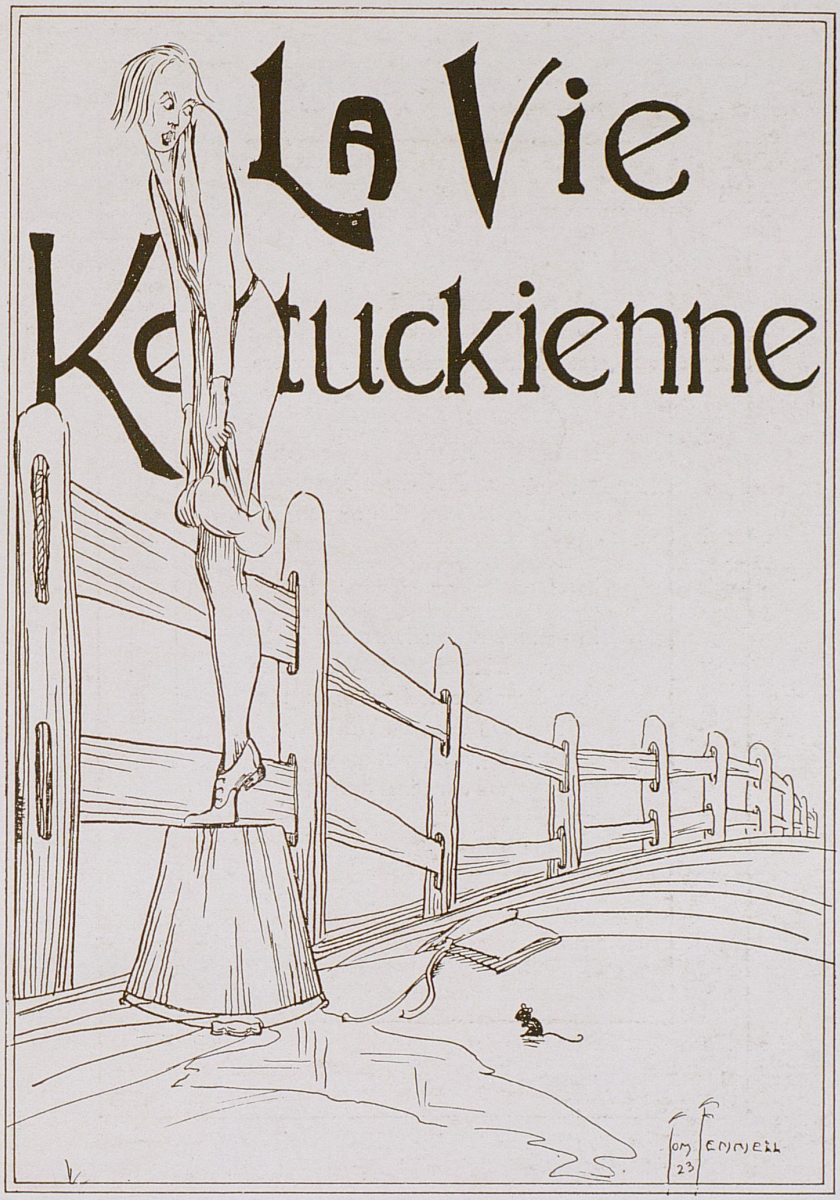

The tentative schedule for the season is: Triangular debate between Centre, Berea, and the University of Kentucky. Question: "Resolved, That the United States adopt the cabinet parliamentary form of government". A dual debate with Bowling Green will be held on the same question. Two debates are scheduled with Sewanee and Vanderbilt, of the Pentangular League. Question: "Resolved, That the United States cancel the Allied war debt." A single debate with North Carolina will be held on the same question. At the time of writing this article, the schedule was not quite complete, and negotiations were under way for several other debates.

On the 16th of February an oratorical squad was selected. Those chosen, and their orations, were as follows: J. S. Darnell, "The Spirit of the Coming Age"; M. Alperin, "Intolerance"; George Yeaman, "Immigration". Mr. Darnell is to represent the University at the state oratorical contest, and the representative for the Southern oratorical contest is to be chosen at a later date from the above-named squad.

CENTRE ELEVEN NOSES OUT WILDCAT TEAM AT NINETEENTH HOLE

Spectacular Work in Double Corner Useless When Referee Makes Misdeal

TENNIS LINKS THRILLED

Possibly the most thrilling athletic contest of the year at the University of Kentucky was that in which the Centre College football team defeated the University quintet after the Wildcats had won the first set by a 3-love score. After the referee had hollered fore, Fuller hit a long fly to left guard and Covington came from behind in the stretch to bring the pellet back to the quarter pole.

Centre's right bower then discarded his interference and teed off into the wrong court. On the second ball he rolled a natural (seven down) right through the Blue and White five-man defense. Here Pribble laid a stymie, but Roberts served an ace and was awarded a touchdown (seven up).

The Centre coxswain was faded again, but he sliced his drive and pulled up lame. Corporal Ferguson dragged a Texas leaguer out of a bunker for the first double-cross play of the sitting. It was Gregg's next deal, but Centre countered by moving into the double corner. A beautiful masse shot by Sanders caromed off Robert's front flank, and the courageous Kentucky center fielder dove into the thick of the fray with his customary Australian crawl stroke. At this juncture Fest feinted, causing Kubale to follow suit.

Brewer bowled off the alley a couple of times, but failed to call his shots, thus losing the dice. Fuller's pop fly penetrated far into

BRILLIANT CAREER IS BEGUN BY H. M. CLAY

Horace Miller Clay, of the College of Engineering, has contributed much to the efficiency of our Alma Mater by a simple little invention which will be installed next year, the accomplishment of which is so notable that we have decided he should be given some amount of publicity in this rag.

It is an instrument which will cause the class bells in all the buildings to ring at the same time. In the past there has been much trouble in persuading the time system to scrape up the proper cooperation, but this plan should eliminate all such inconvenience.

A man will be placed in each building, with an electric buzzer fastened to his ear. At the end and beginning of each class period the buzzer will buzz, waking the man, and he will proceed immediately to ring the bell by hand. For ingenuity, this system is the snake's biceps.

PSYCHO-RELATIVITY

A big monkey, awkward, unashamed,
Stood in the depths of the dense inarticulate jungle.
The leaves of the myriad trees, shaded with light, immobile,
Fluttered and sang a silent song,
While the giant anthropoid
Threw himself into an irretrievable frenzy,
Telescoped himself upon his haunches, couchant,
Fired with the hate of accumulated eons.
Curses! he muttered discontentedly,
While his wife bounced cocoanuts off the back of his head.

Out through the impenetrable luxury of the jungle
Stalked the philosophy of our remote ancestor,
Startling the tsetse-fly from his haunches,
And the woolly kangaroo from the treetops.
The dim-foliaged depths of the inarticulate jungle
Turned its leaves, volume after volume,
Shuddering,
Babbling incoherently with sounds of purple silence,
And seeing of strange smells.
Still the big simian muttered, Curses!
And rendered heartless by heartlessness,
Thousand upon thousands of curses, he thought,
For words had failed him
Utterly.
And his wife continued breaking cocoanuts over his occipital regions!

DREAD SCOURGE OF SOPHOMORE PHYSICS IS RESPONSIBLE FOR ANOTHER SUICIDE

John Poulis Pantzoffsky, forty-second cousin of the well-known proprietor of the University Trough, a sophomore at the University of Kentucky, committed suicide by eating two pieces of corrugated mince pie at his cousin's place of business, 395 South Slime, at an early hour last evening. Despondency over a severe attack of quantitative analysis and sophomore physics is believed to have been the reason for the act. Mr. Poulis, of the Greasy Trough, told a reporter of the "Kernel" that his relative came in, ostensibly for a chat in Hellenico-Russian, as he was wont to do.

"In spite of my protest," said Monsieur Poulis, "he ordered a mince pie, which he ate without visible signs of mastication. He next called for a glass of water, and while my back was turned he snatched a second piece of pie and had devoured it before I could interfere. My suspicions as to his intentions had now been fully aroused. I sprang to the telephone and called the Good Samaritan hospital, W. R. Milward, Coroner John Anglin, and Dr. Tuttle. He passed away with a fragment of the deadly pastry in his mouth."

A note was found concealed behind young Pantsoffsky's left ear, written in Russian. Moses Alperin was called in and translated it as follows:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"I fled from old Russia and her bolshevik gang, for life over there was not worth a dang; but 'twas out of the frying pan into the fire when I came to U. K. and aroused Tuttle's ire. Life's not worth the living; I now mean to sever connections with Bullneck. So good-bye forever. J. P. P."

Dr. Tuttle arrived on the scene at an early date. When interviewed concerning the tragedy, he expressed the opinion that Pantzoffsky's demise had been "superinduced by the failure of the colloidal suspension generated by the action of the muriatic acid of the mince upon the metallic elements in the crust to precipitate. In other words," continued Doc, "it is highly improbable that death would have occurred if the metabolism had not ceased to function due to the toxic effect of the acetic acid of the filling upon the saleratus in the encasement of the pastry."

Just then "Happy" came in and saw young Pantzoffsky lying on the counter. Not noticing the tragedy that had occurred, he

Pate, Lavin, Gormley, Hickman, And Smith Victors in Historic Scramble

MUGS TO GO IN ANNUAL

The nth running of the annual Popularity Stakes held in October at the University of Kentucky course developed into one of the most spectacular and hair-hoisting demonstrations of speed ever witnessed on the Su-Ky turf. Joe Wadsworth, gallant son of a long line of ancestors; Kitty Conroy, the unbeaten Mt. Sterling campaigner; and Martha Pate, one of the fleetest juveniles seen on the local dance floors in many seasons, battled down the stretch neck and neck and flashed across the finish line with remarkable simultaneity, followed at various intervals by as diverse a gang of contestants as ever beat a barrier. Wadsworth won first place by a whisker, while Conroy's margin of victory over Pate was the thickness of an extra layer of powder on the end of her nose.

Much dope was upset at the apparent victory of Joe Wadsworth,

SCRIBBLERS STAGE SCRAPPY SESSION

The Scribblers, a heterogeneous organization of precocious pen pushers, theatrical typewriter ticklers, and erudite English butchers, gathered at their rendezvous in the girls' rest room in White Hall last Friday evening immediately after the watchman's second round, and ripped off one of their most soothing programs of the semester. After repeating "Paradise Lost" in unison, the meeting was called to disorder by Prexy Ruth Hughson.

Professor John Girlsworthy Knight exuded an original synthetic, sympathetic, and soporific sonnet, entitled "My Love Is Like a Pickled Cauliflower". Hi(ram) Taylor then blurted out with verbostic dissertation on "Horse Play and Evolution", at the end of which he was applauded theoretically.

Cheer after cheer crept out on the silver silences of moonlit space as Bill Hickerson gently busted the news that his military duties had prevented him from singing in a sing-song voice the famous and popular "Sing Sing Song". There being nothing further on the program, Earl Wadsfellow Smythe began reciting "The Merchant of Venice", by Shakespeare. He finished reciting "The Merchant of Venice" by himself.

As soon as the Tusitalia (alias the Scribblers) have recovered from this meeting, another convocation will be held.

DIPLOMACY

The Guillotine cannot refrain from commenting upon the lack of public spirit displayed by certain members of the classes of Professors Holmes, Kemp, Zembrod, and Noe. By the failure of these recalcitrant individuals to exhibit effusive and irrepressible mirth at the stale jokes of the above-mentioned instructors, a gross indelicacy and utter absence of courtesy is manifested. Far be it from The Guillotine to insinuate that these persons do not possess the genteel chivalry and the chivalrous gentility which was an inherent trait with even the meanest of our forebears. A survey of the conditions now prevalent in some of the classes of the University is sufficient to induce the profoundest melancholy among those of us who have the welfare of our fellowmen foremost in our mind. These benighted insects (The Guillotine speaks with all reverence and tenderness toward the Phylum Crustacean) are seeking the overthrow of a custom whose efficacy has been established since the knickerbocker days of this institution.

Most of these jokes have been repeated annually or semi-annually since the first appearance of the aforesaid instructors at the University, and out of veneration for their age-old humor, failure to appreciate them is a direct affront not only to the professors, but also to the students whose grades are dependent upon their proper appreciation of faculty humor.

It is regrettable that a thing of this nature has developed to such proportions as to require editorial reprimand, but The Guillotine is hopeful that the offenders will reconsider their rash actions and pursue a more advantageous course in the future.

Avocations for College Men
XLV. Craps

Outstanding in popularity and preference, this most ancient of sports leads them all when it comes to avocations. An avocation has been defined as the manner in which one passes his time when he is not making a living. In other words, it's what you do after the whistle has blown, after the last look at the clock has shown you that the day's work is done.

They have tried to camouflage this sport with high-brown cognomens, far-fetched, ill-fated. They have called it cubical engineering. I know what they're talking about when they say "African golf" and "galloping dominoes", but I call it craps.

How well I remember the Sunday afternoon when I first helped break into the old school-house and rolled out a seven across the teacher's desk. The pile was mine, 'twas craps. It was still craps when later I kissed my last quarter good-bye down in the old barn behind the bank. But this is a treatise and not a reminuisance.

Although an avocation, to many (or so it has often seemed to me) craps are a means of income, making the vocation look like a sideline. When fortune smiles and the bones roll right, one rides to greater wealth and popularity with each succeeding cast and turns nonchalantly to his melancholy cohorts and whimsically urges, "Read 'em and aggravate yourself."

Or, perhaps, another having had his day, you arise unencumbered and beat it back to your own haystack, turning over a new leaf on the way, but, after all, are you downhearted? You tell 'em—we heard you the first time. Of course you aren't, because it's craps!

"SQUIRREL FOOD"

A heated discussion had developed in the astronomy class.

"Now," said Professor Downing, "all this may be true, Royden, but how do you account for the apogee and perigee of the lunar ellipse without diminishing the consistency of your hypothetical asseveration?"

"Well—"

Just then the bell rang.

Emmett Bradley: "Where's your old girl, Miss Sellers, Hi? Didn't she leave you for a career?"

Hi Taylor: "Yes, but it profited her nothing. She married a chiropractor and he held her back."

* * * .

Dell Ramsey: "I went to the dentist yesterday."

Coach: "How'd you feel?"

Dell: "Bored."

"Hey!" stormed Captain Marsh, "you fellow sleep back there! This is a class in military science, not a dormitory. Let us miss you. Get out of the room."

Jasper McClure, Tom Fennell, Bill Embry, Jim Dundon, Eugene Moore, and Bob Creech got their books together and went out.

POET'S ATTIC

THE OMNIPRESENT CRISIS

When a deed is done for flunking
through the Freshman's aching breast
Sounds the little voice of conscience, as he sobs, "I did my best,"
And the Soph, where'er he cowers, feels the soul within him climb
To the awful verge of murder as he views his prof sublime;
But he spares the poor professor,
and he flunks the seventh time.
—Jim Russell Lowell.

THE PERFECT MAN

There is a man who never drinks,
Nor smokes, nor chews, nor swears;
Who never gambles, never flirts,
And shuns all sinful snares—
He's paralyzed!

There is a man who never does
A thing that is not right;
His wife can tell just where he is
At morning, noon and night—
He's dead!

—Ex.

JOHN WHITAKER

Under a spreading campus tree
The college chestnut stands;
The nut, a mighty man is he,
With large and hamlike hands;
And the muscles of his brawny arms
Are strong as rubber bands.

Week in, week out, from morn till night,
You can hear his bellows blow;
You can hear him swing his heavy spade,
His wicked line to throw;
It sounds to us like a cowbell's fuss
When the e'ening sun is low.
—H. W. Longfellow.

THE HURRYING SEASON

Just for a star and crescent he left us,
For these to wear on his coat;
Without thought of how it bereft us,
The A. T. O.'s have got our goat.

P. S.—Any dense persons not understanding any of the above literature may be enlightened by writing me at my residence on Winslow Street.

PUT AND TAKE AND PLATO

Young man, would you have riches? Would you become famous? Would you be a leader in your community? Would you have the charm and culture of a person well read?

Then by all means buy the Harvard Classics, edited by Dr. Elliot, of Harvard. Dr. Elliot collected these fifty volumes, which are guaranteed to give anyone a liberal education if he will but read them. During these times of prejudice and prohibition anything that will give one liberal views is to be commended.

Mormon Daniels, of the University of Kentucky, writes us that all he knows of literature has been gleaned from between the covers of the works of Dr. Elliot. John Tinsley writes that before perusing the works of Dr. Elliot he was not the liberal man he now is, while John Whitaker states that all his love of study and class work is due principally to the soul-stirring epics told in the Classics of Old Harvard. Bob Mitchell writes us that he would never have passed through Old State in such a record time were it not for the benefits derived from this set.

GEORGETOWN FRESHMEN SUCCUMB TO WILDCAT KITTENS

Brains Victorious Over Brawn In First Annual Grid Scuffle Between Teams

After one of the most terrific struggles ever seen on Stoll Field, the University of Kentucky Freshman football team defeated the Georgetown Ante-Sophomores by the score of 56 to 0 yesterday afternoon. The emerald squad of the University had nosed out the Georgetown team by the count of 54 to 0 in a previous encounter by staging a terrific rally in the last four quarters. There was a tremendous amount of interest in the second clash of the two teams, and a great many people read about it in the papers the following morning.

Massing its defense, and fighting stubbornly from the last whistle to the first, the Georgetown Toreadors time after time held the locals to ten or fifteen-yard gains. The victory of the Frabjous Freshmen, however, might not have been so decisive had it not been for Coach Dick Webb, who kept an uninterrupted string of re-enforcements pouring into the Kentucky ranks throughout the game.

In the last quarter as the contest became closer and closer, the Georgeburg men began to catch onto Quarterback Derrick's signals, causing a great stir in the scrimmage line. Once, with the ball on the 50-yard line, Derrick called on Halfback Hughes to make a touchdown around left end, and the Tiger cubs came within an ace of stopping the play.

After a consultation, the University boys, with their customary ingenuity, dragged out a solution of the problem. The quarter would shout, "Tracy, take the ball and hit the right guard for eleven yards." Whereupon Kirwan would elope with the pig epidermis and run around left end for 40 yards.

Quarterback Evans was not allowed to play, as the Georgetown coach complained that Evans was so fast he gave all the Georgetown men pneumonia.

The spectators, especially some of them, were very much pleased with the freshmen's act, and declared that the varsity next year oughta be some swell squad. The freshman line would make the Great Wall of China look like a beaver board partition. When an opponent gets the ball, there are so many Kentucky tacklers in the air you can't see the sun. Sauer, the competent center, is so big it doesn't do any good to push him over. He's just as high one way as the other.

CAMPUS CHITTER

It is with beaucoup regret The Kernel announces the resignation of Bob Mitchell, of Paducah, Ky., as editor of this column. In the short space of a dozen years at the University Robert has achieved things that some students couldn't in a semester. From a mediocre conglomeration of literature, Mr. Mitchell has improved this column until it is now fully as unintelligible as any other part of the paper. The pen, says Bob, may not be mightier than the sword, but at least it lasts longer. Bob has been through Clifton Pond seven times, a distinction of which no other sophomore can boast. His resignation will take effect in 1936.

If you think you can't spell, just think of Henry Sammons, of Louisa, Ky. His information card showed that he was a "cenior" and that one of his achievements of honors was being secretary of the "Horseman Literarry Society".

"What's in a Name?" is the title of a new book which will shortly make its appearance on the campus. The authors are: Branthwaite Dewhurst, Birkett Pribble, Sneed Yeager, La Verne Purcell, Rozina Rasch, Susanna Snook.

blurted out, "John, I've come in to pay you that five I owe you."

Pantzoffsky came to life on these words and sat up; however, seeing "Happy" really meant what he said, he immediately dropped dead again.

Young Pantzoffsky was one of the most popular Russians in the University. Sneed Yeager was the only man in school that knew more about Russian than he did. He was a member of the Rhomboid fraternity and Eta Bita Pi, Honorary Engineering frat, and also Secretary of the Joe Dicker Engineering Society.

He escaped to this country from Moscow in 1919. Pantzoffsky had a fortune of about 9,000,000,000 roubles in Russian money. After buying a sandwich on Ellis Island he still had 1,000 roubles left to defray his other expenses. He will be greatly missed by Bullneck Webb and also by many of his friends.

Then wiggles his eyebrows gymnastic.

SOCIAL CALENDAR FOR THE WEAK

The Anonymous Cudgel will hold a meeting last Tuesday in the third story of the Library at 7:30 in the afternoon.

Sigma Omicron Lambda sorority will hold a pep meeting on Stoll Field for its pledges at the fifth hour Sunday.

Six local sororities will entertain five and a half local frats with house dances Friday night, 8:20 to 11:10.

Sunday night the Y. M. will entertain the Y. W. with a prayer meeting at Patt Haul. F. A. C. Thompson, leader.

Don't forget Mr. Swisher's afternoon tea. Carol will carol. Come early and get a cake.

SOCIETY

Ag Frat Throws Blowout In Barn.

One of the most delightful events of the season was the dance given by the Alpha Gamma Rho, agricultural fraternity, last night in the loft of the Experimentation Barn. Rare taste was shown in the arrangement of the floor, from which a stack of clover and alfalfa hay was removed with pitchforks by the pledges of the fraternity. Piled high in picturesque irregularity at one end of the edifice, it added much to the charm of the scene; meanwhile its bucolic fragrance was wafted on the gentle autumnal zephyrs, awakening in all present sweet memories of childhood days down on the dear old farm.

All hazard of bacterial infection was removed by spraying the rafters with hydrochloric acid donated by the Public Service Laboratories. Guests not dancing found seats upon a number of upturned half bushels and a few so inclined reclined luxuriously upon the hay.

Extremely nutritious refreshments were served. Each guest was permitted to drink from a gourd containing certified milk separated by a Sharples Cream Separator turned by a one-cycle engine loaned for the occasion and engineered by Professor Kelly. Crispettes baked at the Home Economics practice house were offered and the few adventurous souls who tried them reported that they were super-malsavarous. The favors were miniature plowshares, upon which was engraved the appropriate inscription, "Ipse Dixit".

The chaperons were Sergeant and Mrs. J. T. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Humphrey, Hon. Ike Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Farmer.

The hosts were: H. V. Temple, W. S. Anderson, Jr., "Rusty" Harris, Fred Crary, Phil Wadlington, C. A. Hollowell.

The guests included the daughters of many prominent tobacco growers of the state: Misses Nell Hank, Julia Willis, Ann Mary Risen, Helen Porter Roberts, Benny and Cissy Peterson, Joe Wadsworth, Jo Evans, Margaret, Ann and Mary Katherine Gormley, Carolyn Nicholas, Ada Ruth Gregory, Virginia Shively, Betsy Helburn, Estella Kelsall, Ida Kenny Risque, Elizabeth Snapp, Edith Alexander, Mary Wilson, Dorothy Potter, Polly Doolin and Sussanne Snookin; Messrs. Fred Fest, Jack Little, L. T. Pottinger, Berry Anderson, Red Cammack, Whiskaway Woolf, Astor Hog, Campbell Wade, Sneed Yeager, Tom Baird, Milton Sumers, alias Summerville, Ed. Gans, S. E. Flick, Douglas Vest, Hy Taylor and others too numerous to mention. John Whitaker was barred on account of the weak condition of the loft.

PERSONALS

Dr. Best has a new cap this season. If he improves as much in taste with the next one as he did with this one from the last, he will have a very good-looking cap.

Bob Mitchell has a bow tie this year.

Liz Jackson doesn't park her car in the same place now. What's the matter, Liz? Ain't gonna let 'em oust you from in front of the library, are you? It's been your place for the last four years.

Mr. John Whitaker attended classes last Thursday morning.

W. A. Anderson entertained Miss Riddle during dinner at the cafeteria today.

who was an odds-on favorite, and not expected to finish in the money. However, the pari-mutuel fiends were not to be so seriously disappointed, for the judges disqualified Wadsworth and placed him last on the grounds that he was in the wrong race.

A great shout went up from the Patt Hall gallery when the numbers were posted showing Miss Conroy's victory. The chicken-roost, however, might have been spared its anxiety during the stretch battle, for it became known later that the finish was not a close one at all. Kitty was already six laps ahead of the field, and could have driven back the other way and still have won the race by a large majority. It was the only instance in the history of the race in which the victor has had such a margin.

Margaret Lavin, Margaret Gormley, Ann Hickman, and Frances Smith were the other money winners. Little Lavin put up a real demonstration of speed, and she finished so fast she made the quarter-poles look closer together than splinters in the gym. floor. The other winners, however, although they put up an excellent battle of their own accord, and showed good form, nosed out their opponents mainly through the strenuous efforts of their respective jockeys.

The long shot of the race was Margaret Gormley, a first starter, whom the Ags put over at odds of 200 to 1. This young lady was far back in the early running, but finished with a rush under the inspiring whip of the Hirams. Frannie Smith and Ann Shropshire came within a vote of running a dead heat for sixth place, but a desperate effort in the last inch of the race gave Miss Smythe the decision and the page in "The Kentuckian".

The Chi Omega stable had two other entries beside the two Anns, but the jockeys got the four jammed together on the back stretch, and it was only the terrific urging of Jockey Phi Kappa Tau that gave Miss Hickman a place. The other Chi's were Sheil Shacklette and Caroline Nicholas.

One of the fillies which figured largely in the early betting and also in the early running was Dorothy Blatz. "Dot" was one of the winners last year, and it was thought that her familiarity with the course would give her a good advantage. She threw her rider, however, and although she trotted around the field ahead of the others, it didn't count. That was too bad, for she was the only Alpha Xi Delta eligible. Mary Snell Ruby was declared scratched on account of inability to obtain a rider.

A good many shekels were dropped on Margaret Baker, who was left at the post. Jockey Whitaker had experienced considerable difficulty in making the weight, and the failure of his mount was a great disappointment to him.

Clay Owsley's got a job in the bookstore.

"Got any three by five cards?" asked a junior.

"Large or small?" asked Clay.

The ladies loved Pribble—
  My gosh, how they thrilled him!
But he broke all their hearts,
  And his conscience killed him.

Here lies Dorothy Blatz,

Dot wished she had never—
  O, never!—been borned.

MYSTERIOUS CHARACTER CAUGHT ON LIMESTONE

It was a few minutes past midnight when Officer Finley turned from High Street and started out South Lime leisurely swinging his billet. A dark figure slunk out of the house at No. 249 and stole across the lawn to the next residence, avoiding the glare of the arc light; Officer Finley snuck into a convenient driveway and waited for developments.

Soon again the figure reappeared; ah! the plot was becoming viscous. The arm of the law now perceived that a large, clumsy bundle was tucked under each of the man's arms; there was a peculiar scraping sound as he walked. These things the patrolman jotted down in his little red notebook, after which he hurried on after his quarry. Down the street the strange prowler manoeuvered his way. Suddenly he disappeared into the A. T. O. house. The officer crept up on the porch and peered through the keyhole.

The face of the suspected person was not visible to the law and order representative, but he saw the man deliver the package, accept some money, and start for the door. This thing had gone on long enough. As the door opened, Officer Finley grasped the man by his coat collar, and demanded gruffly:

"What is your name?"

"Bob Mitchell," came the trembling answer.

YOU MAY BE SICK AND NOT KNOW IT

Does your respiration increase with violent exercise?

Does your pulse increase with violent exercise?

Does John Whitaker surprise you by attending class?

Does your appetite demand three good meals a day?

Does your head ache when struck with a hammer?

Do you enjoy work?

Do you enjoy rest?

If so, you are dying and do not know it. If you have any of the above symptoms you are afflicted with the dread jungle disease, Writer's Cramp, which has baffled science and all medical treatment. After years of patient experimenting and at a cost of thousands of dollars to perfect, we are able at last to announce that we have discovered a cure for this dread disease. Carbolichloride will absolutely end your suffering. For sale at all druggists, or write direct to:

BERRY ANDERSON

The Best Dressed Man on the University Campus.

Says of our patented Bowlegged Garters: "Before I began using Bowlegged Garters my socks would come down and trip me up so often that I wore out all my trousers getting up. But after I joined Phi Kappa Tau I bought a set of your wonderful hosiery hangers, and I can truly say without fear of contradiction that they have made me what I am today. I have been wearing the same pair for the last four years."

SEE THAT HUMP?

IT'S TOASTED

Gentlemen:

For years I have been afflicted with fallen chest, fallen arches, and falling salary. In fact, I was a regular London bridge. I was a sufferer from round shoulder, flat head, square jaw, and inflammation of the conceit glands. After taking 100 cases of your "Intoxicato" I am a new man. In fact, I do not think I shall ever be the same again. I heartily recommend the tonic to friends and enemies alike. You are accomplishing more with this simple little remedy than all the soldiers accomplished during the World War. I only wish that I could reach you so that I could express myself more forcibly. Keep up the good work, and soon we shall be rid of all our sick men.

Deliriously yours,

DR. PERCIVAL KAY HOLMES.

P. S.—You put my brother Sherlock where he is today.

The Apocalypse of the Frat Flats

I was at the fountain which is before the main building, and behold, it was matriculation day, and I heard behind me a great voice, as of a saxophone. Saying, "I am Alpha and Omega and the rest of the Greek alphabet; and what thou hearest, write in a book and send it unto seven of the fraternities whose names are upon the books of the installment plan houses, unto Phi Delta Theta, and unto Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and unto Sigma Nu, and unto Alpha Tau Omega, and unto Pi Kappa Alpha, and unto Kappa Sigma, and even unto Sigma Chi."

And I turned, and lo! a squirrel stood before me, clothed in tweeds, bedight with divers pins; his head was solid, like unto fine ivory, and his hairs were shiny with myrrh and danderine; and his eyes were as a flame of fire which flameth mightily when a skirt draweth nigh; and his feet like unto a field, where much corn flourisheth; and his voice was as the sound of many cylinders missing. And he charged me, saying: Behold, I am the spirit of the frat-flats, which are non campus mentis and set in their ways, and whatsoever I tell thee, take heed that thou repeat unto them, for they know not what they do. And these are the things which he charged me:

Kappa Sigma

These things saith he that is wise unto Kappa Sigma which is not. I have beheld thy sons that they are neither cold nor hot; so because thou art neither hot nor cold, I will spew thee out of my mouth. I would thou wert something. How oft have I seen thy sons, Yeager and Vest, try to sneak under their hats, and verily I say unto thee, they have cause to hide. If there be one among you gifted in the ways of men let him stand forth. When Basil departed from thy tent, thy tribe was doomed. Yea, for who is there of thy number able to toss a ball or buck a line? Let him that have any accomplishment other than parlor magic stand forth. I wot the women crave thy presence and fall for thy inanity. Thus I reprove and chasten those which are dumb and wot not what they lack.

Alpha Tau Omega

In this manner chirpeth Melchisedech, which is without beginning and without end, unto Awful Tau Omega. I have heard thee pray in the Sunday school and in the tabernacle and in whatsoever public places thou sawest fit. But thou hast other gods before me; thou castest down thy riches before idols of celluloid and ivory and bone; yea, verily, thou holy rollers, thou plunkest them down through the still hours of the night, while the tomcat singeth and his mate yodeleth back her mournful acceptation. And because thou hast done these things, I have set mine heart against thee. Even as the Eskimo pie, which sprang up in a night and was gone in a day, so shalt thy might wither into nothingness. Already thy strength waneth upon the field of battle; thy voice is become as a tinkling cymbal in the class; behold, thou art not even missed from the ballroom. Lo, how are the mighty fallen! Yea, verily, when the hollyhock puts forth its buds again, even Pribble will leave thee. But in this I commend thee; thou settest the table before me in the cafeteria; surely the A. T. O.'s shall serve me all the days of my life. Thus saith Melchisedech, which hath no end, unto A. T. O., whose end draweth nigh.

Sigma Nu

Thus saith the Omnipotent unto Sigma Nu. I have seen thy dwelling; thou hast builded thyself a mighty shack. In thy house are many rooms; if it be not so, then thou hast several large ones. Thou hast a great love for chariots, and the sight of a great multitude of them in front of thy door maketh thy heart glad. So many dost thou acknowledge as thine own that the S. A. E.'s shudder and gnash their teeth at the thought that the evil day cometh wherein ye shall outnumber them. I see thine own wheresoever I cast mine eye; yea, even one of thy brothers is on the list of those that have made an A. But I have this against thee, Sigma Nu, that thou hast placed one of thy brothers to be censor of what I fain would say. Now a wise man guardeth the utterances of his lips, but a fool blows inopportunely. This much will I speak whether or no concerning thy sons. Their strength is mighty in battle and their skill doth cause the score to mount high, but hast thou a man that Thinketh? If so, show him unto me, and I have lost a bet. These things speaketh the Omnipotent cautiously. Peace be unto thy bones, Sigma Nu, for thou hast rolled them mightily, and may thy rent never fall due nor thy neighbors fade thee.

Pi Kappa Alpha

In like manner speaketh the great I Am unto Pi Kappa Alpha. Oh, Pi Kaps, how oft have I beheld thy transgressions and would fain have called thee together and instructed thee concerning that which thou hast not been taught. I have known thee from the days of thy arrival from Covington, and thy sins are many; but it maketh mine heart glad to see what thou hast accomplished with thy meager facilities. Well done, thou weak but persistent frat; thou hast accomplished much with few men. Soon shalt thou catch a real one. Likewise thou canst be likened unto the foolish virgins, whose lights glimmered and went out while yet the bridegroom was afar off. Therefore be ye more diligent when the rushing season cometh again. Cast thy line into the stream before thy neighbors have enticed all the fish into their nets. Let it not be said, however, that thou hast not seen nor heard. For thy one car hath enlarged traffic mightily by day; yea, verily, it honketh far into the night. And thy saxophones, are they not as the sound of many trumpets? Thy deception is good, brothers, but not complete. For much noise doth not always indicate a full house; neither doth the chariot of the chief indicate the size of the tribe. Now, I commend thee, Pi Kaps, that thou hast not realized thy insignificance, but hast made much of little. For such is the nature of frats. Even as a father chideth a simple son, tenderly and with much provocation, and not after the manner of Mighty Maxon, so doth the great I Am counsel Pi Kappa Alpha, which lacketh understanding, but hath a willing heart.

Sigma Chi

These things saith Kickerokus, the most high, unto Sigma Chi, which, being interpreted, is Slightly Courteous. I know where thou dwellest, for I did happen upon thy domicile while I was lost and had strayed far from the favored haunts of men, even unto the Court of Bell. Blessed be ye which have signed the pledge so that one worthy member might come into your midst. I know with what sacrifice thou didst this thing, but by this act thou shalt be mine, saith Kickerokus, in the day when I make up my Keys. I have beheld thee at divers elections which thou fain wouldst run. Behold even more than one of thy brethren is ambitious. I see thee in whatsoever place I go, but lo, thou seest no one, for thy vanity is likened unto one who has won the popularity contest. Yea, thou feelest thy importance even more than one of the Su-Ky Circle. I behold thee frequently in uniform, where thou exertest much authority, and when I see thy brother lead the band, verily I crave to be caressed with a brick! Hold fast what thou hast, for the day cometh when no man shall cast eye in thy direction. These things saith Kickerokus in a spirit of love.

Phi Delta Theta

Now there was a gang at a certain institution which came whence no man knoweth, nor no man cared. And these aforesaid boobs, perceiving they were passed up and received not, arose in their wrath and came by night unto the hindmost part of a saloon. And entering in under cover of darkness, they made merry and became exceedingly happy. And having become well lit up, a certain gump lifted up his voice and said, Hear me, O my brothers. My soul doth magnify meself. Come unto me, all ye that desire to be It, and together the walls of society shall not prevail against us. And they arose and came unto him, and they kicked those that slumbered and snored and said, Rise up; for lo! a thought has come to our brother. Then, having come together, they put forth a yell and sang divers songs into the air. And one of the number asked, what shall we call ourselves? Straightway from the rear one lifted up his voice, being in a condition wherein he knew not what he did, and said, I say we can call ourselves PRETTY DAMN TIGHT. And from that day to this they have written themselves Phi Delta Theta, which being interpreted, means Pretty Damn Tight.

Now these are the things which I charge thee, Oh, P. D. T., that thou mayst prosper: Desire not a multitude of members such as the S. A. E.; neither delight in uncouth sons such as sit at the Sigma Nu table, for one that hath taking ways is more valorous than a hundred which lacketh understanding.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon

These things saith the great I Am It to Sigma Alphalpha Epsilon. Behold, I am Alpha and Omega and the rest of the Greek alphabet, and I speak unto thee even as a man speaketh unto his unfavorite stepson. Take heed that thou mayst know what I tell thee, for thou knowest little else. Now, S. A. E., thy multitude is as the sands of the S. E. A. Verily, I know thy number, even though thou dost not, for thou canst not count that high. Thy pledging exercises are like a national convention, but thy brains are no more numerous than a hen's molars. Think not because thy house is large that it containeth much. Thou hast sought dominion over thy fellow Greeks; take care lest thou draw back a nub. But I say unto thee, hold fast that which thou hast, for is it not written, every little bit helps? Lay off thy shortchangings also, or by Whitaker, I will remove thy prophet E. B. Webb from thy midst; and without him, thou couldst not make the team.

Who Is Also Who

To whom it may concern:

"Who is also who", which is a companion volume of "Who's Who in America", makes no apology for those who are not who also. If you are not listed in the following pages do not come blustering into our office demanding why. Nor will compliments, negotiations, overtures, bribes, or threats gain you entrance herein. We pick our victims upon their demerits and notoriety alone. However, feeling an overwhelming sympathy for those obscure personalities who are not "who also", we offer the following suggestions, which, if acted upon, will gain you a separate page in our next work, entitled "Who's What and How Come":

I. Cultivate eccentricity of dress, individuality of thought, and irresponsibility of action.

II. Do not be backward about coming forward. Try leading a yell or showing a superabundance of school spirit. Watch F. A. C. Thompson and "Red" Cammack.

III. Avoid unnecessary display of intelligence.

Introspectively yours,

Us Editors.

Irene McNamara

Kernel Irene McNamara, editrix; b. Mt. Sterling; emigrated to Lexington, 1919; Theta Sigma Phi; Su-Ky; A; first flapper editor of Kernel, 1922; chairwoman Ladies' Auxiliary Mt. Sterling Poker Club, 1927; Kentucky Legislature, 1930; Governess of Kentucky, 1935; Superintendent of Public Destruction, 1946; President of United States, 1976.

Mt. Sterling has produced a lot of map-makers. Tommy Grubbs put University of Kentucky on the map; now Irene has amended that by trying to take the Military Department off. Mack's is a trenchant typewriter; her editorials are so hot The Kernel had to be printed on asbestos paper. Her remarks were so cutting, Colonel Freeman would come in every Friday and say, "Well, has The Guillotine come out yet?" If she improves with age, in a few years she'll make Henry Watterson look as insignificant as a Delta Chi at Pan-Hellenic! It was a great disappointment to Irene that she never made a letter in football; but she couldn't bear the idea of giving up cigarettes!

Jack Dahringer

Jack Dahringer, campus yodeler pro tem.; b. very likely; denies Caruso's claim that he is a remote relative; can reach high E without effort, but has ambition of grabbing a C before he graduates. Jack is credited with killing a goodly number of Germans while he was in the World War; it is not known just what songs he used for the assassination. His war work was a valuable bit of experience, for he is still knocking 'em cold at the Ada Meade. As a singer, Jack is a great prize fighter; his uppercut from "Il Trovatore" is a knockout. His voice is like a good cheese—it grows stronger with age. Diaphonous shouting, however, is not the only accomplishment of our revised edition of Caruso. For even as truth is stranger than fiction, so is reality much more thrilling than the movies. For when it comes to loving the ladies, Jack's amorous proclivities would make Rudolph Yallerbeano wish he'd lost that bull fight of his.

Happy Chandler

Happy "A. B." Chandler, lawyer, athlete, coach, cosmopolite, amateur Caruso, and professional Romeo; b. of course; lived, ditto; died, we hope so.

When Beryl Boyd became the choice of the people to represent Graves County in the Legislature, the future looked indigo for Pi Kappa Alpha, but Happy Chandler, having completed his preparatory courses at Transylvania and Harvard, matriculated at the University. Immediately the Pie Caps, encouraged by the 100 per cent increase in their membership, leased a sumptuous dugout on S. Lime Street, rented an additional piano and halltree, and retrieved their three saxophones from the hock shop. "Hap" is the most versatile gazabo on the campus; there ain't nothing "Hap" ain't been except the things he wants to be. As an athlete, he is the duck's quack; as a lawyer, he is the banana's seed; but as a ladies' man, he is the Pola Negri of his sex. If Chandler had lived in the days in which things came to pass, he would have had a harem that would have made Solomon look like a bashful boy.

Ted Creech

Theodore Von Hannibal Creech, class president and warrior; b. Pineville; grew up with town; lived Pineville; graduated Staunton Military Academy, 1921. Ted entered U. K. in 1921 as an engineer. Before this, we hear, he had been a member of the army at Staunton, Va. We don't know "Ted's" record in the Great War, but immediately upon entering the University he sprang to arms and in all things connected with military tactics showed great capacity for improvement. "Ted" makes a good officer, because he doesn't keep step well enough or hold his gun right to be a private. We are recommending "Simp" Estes for cadet colonel. "Ted" enjoys the distinction of being elected president of a class of which he was not a member. His own class would not have made such a mistake. Von Hannibal also desired to make a letter, but after seeing him play football we believe if he gets one he will have to "holler" for it. We are told "Ted" is connected with the mines. That's good news. We didn't know he had a mind. The latter is a pun (time out for great laughter). In addition to the foregoing, we have gleaned the following concerning the identity of this individual: Clubs—Stigma News and Joseph Dicker Society; ambition—to earn as many pearls as Grover; girls—we haven't room for them; address—Pineville.

Earl Smith

Earl Wadsfellow Smythe, "the campus singer"; b. Mayfield, Ky.; date obscure; son of Mr. Smith; author of "Dendrites and Dandruff", the w.-k. Hellenic tragedy, and many other travesties on literature. Clubs: Tusitalia, Epworth League.

To those of us who believe in the transmigration of the soul and have seen "Wad" wending his solemncholy way among the mourning trees of the campus, it is incomprehensible but that he is Euripides reincarnate. Or Sophocles himself, in person. It is inconceivable that anyone else could have acquired such masterful creative power in the renaissance of Greek dramas, already obsolete when Aristotle was a kid, or that anyone else could have accumulated such mellifluous procession of words or such tender sympathy in his portrayal of the vagaries of the perfumed sex.

Virginia Shively

Virginia Carli(s)le du Pont Shively; a good date; b. Greensburg, before 1900; first bad move to Campbellsville 1915; engaged 1916; graduated Russell Creek Academy 1916; spent winter in New York 1918; attended one West Point dance; engaged to 2nd Louie; forgot many Ky. friends during absence; attended Squatter College 1920; graduated Hamilton 1922; elected Mayday Queen; forgot rest of friends by June; U. of K. 1922-23; immediate popularity. Strollers, pink teas and flowers. Call one week in advance. Jewelry necessary for speaking acquaintance.

Dot Potter

Dot Potter, all-star athlete four unsuccessful seasons.

For four years we have gone to every girls' basketball game in hopes we might sometimes see Dot make a score. We admit, nevertheless, that we always feel amply repaid for our trouble. In action, Dot shows us what we mean by a rough-house and, having seen her, we will feel less startled in the presence of the next whirlwind.

W. A. Anderson

EMINENT SCIENTIST AND LADY'S MAN

Habitat:

This growth is peculiar to the University of Kentucky campus. Nativity unknown.

Appearance and Habits:

Rarely seen alone and never in groups. Size, 2x4. Passers-by frequently mistake his hair for an umbrella. He never wears a cap except at night. Wears Adam's apple on back of neck.

Locomotion:

Walks three times a day from White Hall to cafeteria. Full floating axle. Roller-bearing. Single stroke; fifteen-amœba power. Course determined by exterior magnetic attraction.

Food and Digestion:

Takes in food through the gills, and is thus able to talk and eat at the same time. He minces meat, chews gum, devours decasyllabic words, ingurgitates botany, engulfs zoology, and surrounds riddles.

Circulation:

Confined to university campus.

Conversation:

Converses in scientific parlance riddled with punctuation marks. He frequently becomes intelligible, and on one occasion has been known to cry out impetuously, "Heck!"

Facultate

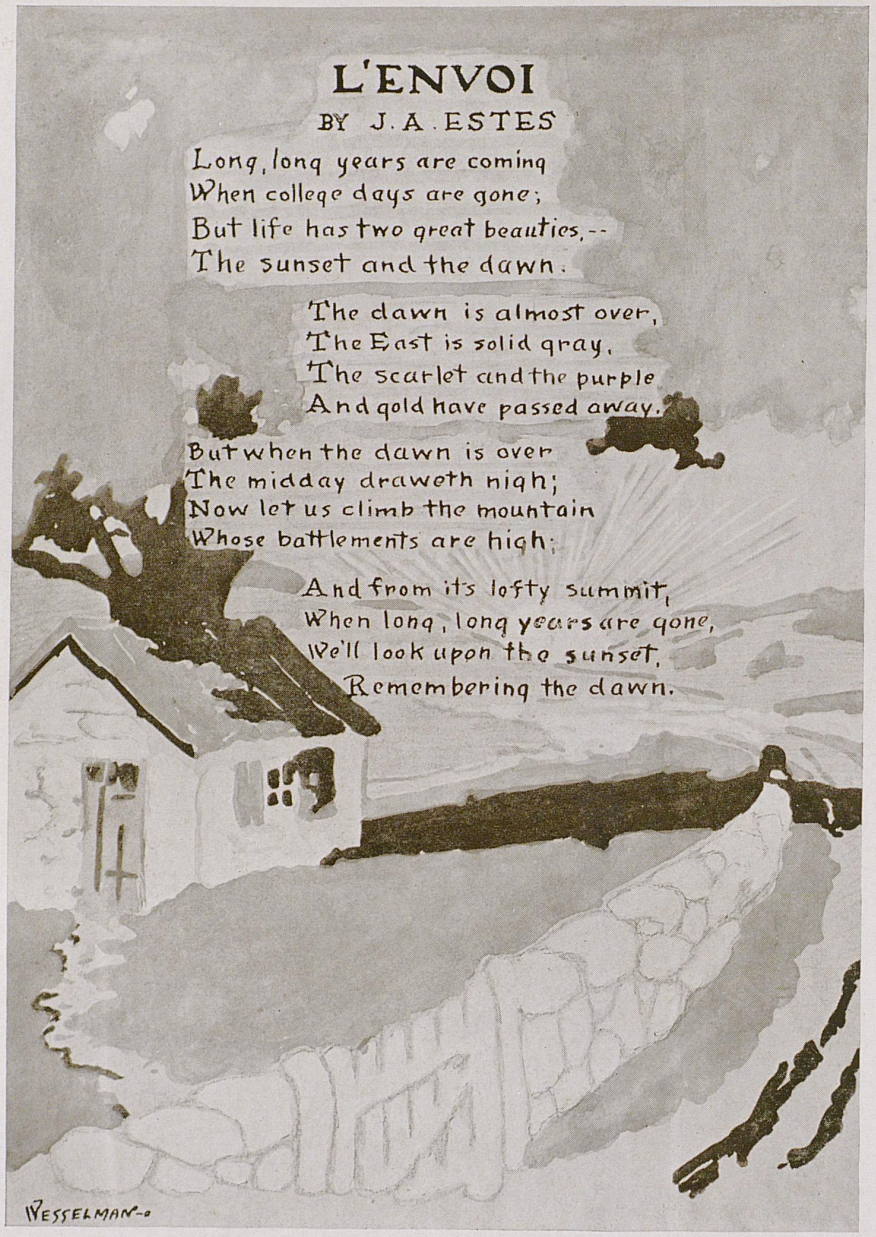

Said a teacher named Farquhar, whose diction
Betrayed that he spoke with conviction:
"I know all about women,
Themselves and their trimmin' "—
But he's married. Truth's stranger than fiction.

There was an old prof yclept Tuttle
Who put out a line rather subtle;
He never used prudence
In flunking the students,
But collected his pay in a scuttle.

There was an instructor named Kemp,
He thought he was good, the poor simp;
And the students, poor blokes,
Had to laugh at his jokes,
For he carried more gas than a blimp.

L'ENVOI
BY J. A. ESTES
Long, long years are coming
When college days are gone;
But life has two great beauties,--
The sunset and the dawn.
The dawn is almost over,
The East is solid gray,
The scarlet and the purple
And gold have passed away.
But when the dawn is over
The midday draweth nigh;
Now let us climb the mountain
Whose battlements are high;
And from its lofty summit,
When long, long years are gone,
We'll look upon the sunset,
Remembering the dawn.
