FOREWORD

This Directory is designed to give specific and accurate information concerning the churches, missions, and other religious institutions of Knox County, Tennessee. It should prove to be an invaluable guide to historians, students, tourists, and all others who may seek such information. Furthermore, it should afford contemporary church leaders and rank and file members a handy medium for becoming better acquainted with organized religion in this section. It is natural to assume that this volume will be more warmly welcomed, since heretofore it has been difficult for individuals and groups to secure such information as may be found herein in concise form.

It is particularly appropriate that the first issue of this Directory should make its appearance at a time when the various religious faiths of Knox County are cooperating in their common task to such a remarkable degree. In May 1941, congregations from practically all the evangelical denominations of Knoxville and environs joined revival efforts in a mighty United Crusade of Evangelism. Great community projects such as the Community Chest, United Service Organization campaign, and other related movements received the support of representatives of all faiths as Jews, Protestants, and Catholics engaged in active participation. Then, for perhaps the first time in this section, an evening worship service brought together Catholics, Protestants, and Jews in a meeting held as a part of the observance of Knoxville's Sesquicentennial.

The compilation of materials contained in this Directory represents diligent and painstaking efforts on the part of the editorial staff. The fact that similar volumes had not been issued previously made this task all the more difficult. (While no such publication appeared for the county, a church census of the city of Knoxville, prepared and arranged by Mr. John F. Edington, was published in 1925.) Therefore, those who have occasion to refer to this volume will be deeply grateful to all who have labored to accumulate the necessary facts.

Visitors, transients, new residents of Knox County, and Knox Countians who may be without a church home should be able to find listed herein a church or religious group able to guide them in the worship of a God who is able to meet all spiritual needs. To such a noble task the churches of this county are dedicated. The traditional American freedom of religious worship is here exemplified as the various denominational groups unite in an invitation to the individual to attend the church of his choice. In these days when the world is torn by so many divisive influences, it is heartening to see churches, though functioning separately to better serve individual needs, yet united in a single purpose, namely, to bring all people into the consciousness of the abiding presence of the Almighty. These churches, like many others throughout the world, exist to exalt their Lord. And, loving their Lord, they are eager to help all men everywhere come to know and love Him, too.

Clyde F. Watkins, President
Knoxville Ministers' Association

PREFACE

The Directory of Churches, Missions, and Religious Institutions of Tennessee: Knox County, Knoxville is one of a series of volumes designed to serve as handbooks for ministers, laymen, students, and research specialists in the field of church history and in sociological and genealogical investigations. The information contained in this volume will be incorporated in a State-wide Directory to be published at a future date. The preparation of this Directory is a necessary preliminary step to insure completeness of inclusion of all churches in the Inventory of the Church Archives of Tennessee being issued in denominational volumes by the Tennessee Historical Records Survey. The number assigned to this Directory, 47, merely indicates the alphabetical position of Knox among the counties of the State.

It is the nature of a directory to defy completion. The absence of any similar listing, however, and the belief that such a directory would be of value to students as a handbook have been additional factors resulting in the issuance of this volume. The churches, missions, and religious institutions are listed by denominations and local affiliations together with their locations, dates of organizations, and the pastors' names and addresses. The preparation of this Directory involved examinations of printed and manuscript church minutes, year-books, city and church directories, and institutional catalogues. These were supplemented by personal interviews with religious and institutional officials. The denominational lists were checked with members of the respective faiths. Defunct as well as active churches are included; publications, boards, and institutions of the denominations in Tennessee are also indicated. Similar directories have been issued for the counties of Davidson, Hamilton, and Shelby. This Directory thus completes the series for the State's four so-called urban counties.

Knox County lies near the center of the Great Valley of East Tennessee. It is one of the oldest counties of the State, being erected in 1792 as a county of the Territory of the United States of America South of the River Ohio. With a population of 178,922 in 1940, Knox County is the State's fourth largest, and its county seat, Knoxville, is the fourth largest city in Tennessee. The Tennessee Historical Records Survey in Knox County has operated in close cooperation with the Government of Knox County, an official cosponsor of the project. The officials of the county, notably County Judge S. O. Houston and Esquire J. C. Harrell, have rendered encouragement and taken an active personal interest in the work of the Tennessee Survey. Publication of this book was underwritten by Knox County.

This Directory was compiled by Work Projects Administration workers under the supervision of Robert Cassell, Church Archives Editor of the Tennessee Survey; Reginald B. Martin, Milford R. Wheeler, and Arthur E. Lackey rendered much assistance; the field work in Knox County was conducted by Ethel L. Harkleroad, Ida Williams, Addie L. Wood, Roy F. Huffaker, and Joseph W. Mannis under the supervision of Edith L. Pierce, District Supervisor. This volume was prepared in accordance with instructions from the Washington office of the Historical Records Survey Program; detailed editorial comment and criticism of the book have been made by Donald A. Thompson, Assistant Archivist in charge of the Church Archives Inventories. Typing of the final draft and cutting of stencils were done by Helen P. Allen, Gladys U. Brane, Lois B. Winters, and Patsy R. Floyd.

This volume is preliminary and is subject to revision. Corrections and additional information are solicited and should be addressed to the State Supervisor, 305 Davidson County Courthouse, Nashville.

Up to the present time, approximately 1400 publications have been issued throughout the nation by the Survey Program. In Tennessee, the Survey is engaged in a program of preparing guides and inventories to county and municipal archives, church archives, manuscript depositories and collections, and early American imprints, and making transcriptions of basic public records, chiefly early county court minutes.

A list of the publications of the Tennessee Historical Records Survey follows the indexes to this Directory. The publications of the Historical Records Survey projects in all states are limited in number and in consequence are placed in designated centrally located depositories. Inquiries requesting the locations of the nearest depositories should be addressed to the State Supervisors or to the Division of Community Service Programs, Work Projects Administration, Washington, D. C., for attention of the Director of the Historical Records Survey Program.

EXPLANATORY NOTES

1. All addresses in this Directory are in Knoxville or in Knox County unless otherwise indicated. In a few instances, names of churches, institutions, or individuals whose addresses or locations are outside of Knox County have been included because of their connection with or relation to organizations in Knox County. All of the churches are listed alphabetically under their denominational affiliations.
2. The full names and addresses of persons mentioned are given in all cases where the information was available.
3. The exact location of each church or institution is given according to the latest available information. Rural routes are in the vicinity of Knoxville unless otherwise indicated. Spelling of street names follows the Knoxville City Directory (1940).
4. The date of organization is that claimed officially by the church.
5. The classification system used in this Directory, is, in general, that used by the United States Bureau of the Census, Religious Bodies: 1936. The affiliations and chief officials of the various denominations have been given to avoid any possible confusion; publications, boards, institutions, and services in Tennessee pertaining to the various denominations have also been included.
6. Although this Directory is preliminary to a State-wide listing to be issued subsequently, all of the information in this volume has been checked with the various denominational leaders for accuracy and completeness.
7. Besides an alphabetical index of pastors and executives and a church and institutional name index, this book includes a community index indicating the location in Knox County of all the churches listed.
8. Defunct churches, being those which have lapsed or merged with other churches, are listed wherever information on them was available. Where indicated, the dates given are the organization date and the defunct date; the pastor is the last regular one serving the church.
