From the Rabbi's
Desk

The following is the speech which Lance Liebman, a Yale Sophomore, delivered during our College night services. It is worthy of your study.

"We may as well go to the moon. But that's not very far. The greatest distance we have to go still lies within us."

Those are the words of French President DeGaulle, certainly the most articulate of the western statesman. And they emphasize, I think, the real challenge that faces our country today—and the same time the challenge that faces parents, schools, houses of worship—all the institutions that prepare youth for their place in our society. What we seek from our parents, what we seek from our schools and our temples and guide posts pointing out the road by which we may negotiate, the distance that, as DeGaulle said, "still lies within us." What we seek, in short, and what we desperately need help in finding is a faith in which to believe. The world in which we live presents continual challenges to any faith—science, we are told, has all the answers—religion is outdated, belief—anything short of scientific truth—old fashioned. Yet somehow complete and satisfactory answers don't seem to be coming from the laboratories, any more than they came from the detailed logical proofs of the 13th century scholastics. Time Magazine has come up with a handful of reasons for the great boom in church membership and attendance—but I might suggest that just as important a reason as any that Time has found is the desire of people to find an acceptable faith.

This is, I will grant, a more esoteric notion of what we as teenagers and as students demand of our parents and institutions that the standard listing of food, shelter, education, that great undefined quality "love" and a car when we are 16. And certainly these things are important and are sought. I give them short shrift only because in these categories American parents have been quite successful. Both congratulations and thanks are due you for making us the healthiest and the smartest generations of all time. We will live longer and we will make higher scores on the College Boards than any similar group in the past. But a healthy body and a sound mind are only tools—are only the materials by which we achieve—and I pause here because I really don't know the right word, don't know what it is that we are supposed to do, now that we have our polio shots and know calculus.

There was a time when this question did not really bother men. My unfinished phrase, "by which we achieve—" could be concluded the glory of God, and the only problem would come in defining just what did work toward the glory of the Lord. But this statement no longer meets our needs, no longer answers the search. For what, really, is the glory of God? We're right back where we started.

The unsuccessful search for a purpose in life, for a faith, for a set of beliefs, seem to permeate our whole society. Why is it that we can be so successful in providing the food, the schooling, the cars for our youth, and so unsuccessful in giving them something to do with their training? Probably because modern technology has made it quite easy to feed and clothe—yes, and educate and mobilize a teenager—but has made it more difficult than ever to give him ethical standards or a purpose for his life.

This seems to be the great aim of modern society—to find the easy way, the short cut. The easy way to raise a child is to feed him and clothe him, so he won't cry from hunger or cold, to ship him off to nursery schools, high schools, prep schools—and the general results, as far as raising a healthy and knowledgable citizens are all good. They are all good, that is, until he finally emerges from all the education and looks around for something to do. What use should he make of his training and ability? Is it the use that will bring the greatest monetary remuneration? This is an extremely tenable choice. To pick such a profession will make it possible to give his offspring the best schools, the biggest cars, the finest of everything--in other words to permit him to continue the cycle.

Before one can chose a field of endeavor he must know what he wants from and wants to do in life. Making money is only a transitory answer. The money, like education, like health, is only a tool. And few of us have the purpose, have the ultimate goal, have standards by which we want to live.

My confidence in the human race keeps me from concluding that we have chosen materialism as our way of life and as the religion of our society. Rather, I think, materialism has won by default--we haven't chosen anything--again, because it's easier that way. When Senator Humphrey says that we have "fallen for kind of 'pitch' in our life that substitutes nonsense for reality, public relations for public service, and showmanship for leadership," he describes the situation exactly. We've "fallen" for a 'pitch' because it's easier than to search for a true faith, easier than to stand up and fight for a real set of beliefs. Such a solution to the problem of finding something that makes life worthwhile may have sufficed for the previous generation. It gave them longer tailfins and more mink coats--and maybe that's what they wanted. But I don't think I'm being to optomistic when I say that it isn't satisfactory any longer. We want something more. We want patriotism--a pride in country--that can be squared with McCarthyism and race problems and second places in the space race. We want a religion more meaningful than mumbled phrases and traditions for the sake of tradition. We want progress in medicine that people can afford. We want ethics and morals and all those other words that people laugh at meaningful. We want charity that is more than income tax deductions, material goods that serve some tangible purpose in producing the "good life."

Perhaps I am wrong in ascribing our difficulties to the lack of purpose, the lack of moral resolve, the lack of goals that mark American society. Or perhaps I am wrong in laying the blame for that lack to parents and schools and temples. At any rate, it is to these institutions that we are looking for the final additions to our Ivy League educations. I hope they can respond.

NEWS FROM RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

At a meeting of the home room mothers representing every grade in our religious school, it was decided unanimously to have a general fund this year for gifts for all the teaching staff.

Some parents have asked why they were not contacted. Investigation has found that illness and accident among the families of some of our participating mothers brought about this unfortunate situation.

About two-thirds of our children did take part however. To the mothers who were so energetic and successful in their endeavors, a special salute.

TO ALL THE TEMPLE FAMILY, WE EXTEND OUR WISHES FOR HEALTH AND HAPPINESS IN 1960.

SINCERELY,

SYBIL STERN AND THE ENTIRE
STAFF OF THE RELIGIOUS SCHOOL.

From the Rabbi's
Desk

The following was delivered during our Alumni Services by Robert Miller, a senior student at Haverford College and the immediate past president of N. F. T. Y.

The subject for tonight is this: "What do we owe to society and to the organizations of society?" The answer, as far as I am concerned, is very simple; so simple in fact, that one word covers it. It's Hemingway's favorite Spanish word: nada, nothing.

In the first place, society in the form we know it, and especially the various associations which compose it, are man-made. They are not copies of some holy Forms; they are not the only possible structures we could build; they are not simple responses to the command of God. Instead, they are our fabrications, created by human hands and minds; they are our constructions, our inventions for ill or good. That goes for temples and countries and colleges and every other social institution, from the family to the United Nation Organisation. We are responsible for them.

And the only other proposition that you need accept for me to clinch my point is this: things which we create have no claim, as things-in-themselves, on our actions. It is an elementary assertion in philosophy — and if it weren't elementary, I could never use it — that nothing can create a thing with more power than itself. It seems to me that a valid moral assertion is that no one can create a thing which in turn has prior claim, in any sense, on its creator. Can any one, then, who claims to believe in the individual importance of man correctly order me to obey the dictates of a man-made organization as an entity-in-itself?

The communists say that a man finds some sort of "true" individuality only in the group. I think that's a lot of bosh. Some of the gung-ho at school demand that we do things for "dear old college". I think that's a lot of hokum. Some kids want everyone to come to meetings so that they can convince someone else they have a "good" Temple Youth Group. I think that's a lot of traif. Things we make have no value in themselves.

But there's a catch here somewhere; you know darn well there is. It's a great nuisance, speaking in your own home town where people know in advance that you're only showing one half of the picture. The other half is this: We create what we create for some purpose. And if the thing has no value in itself that does not mean that the purpose may not be an untimate value and that the thing we make may not be a tool to an ultimate end. We owe nothing to society and its organizations. But even in the act of recognizing that, we mark out for ourselves a far more complex and a far more difficult task. We must define our goals; we must examine the possible paths to our ends; and we must muster the courage to pursue what we believe in. It would be easy if loyalty to the Temple and to the United States and to our colleges and to our families were all for which we are responsible. But it is not so. If they function to do things for us, it is because we made them do it -- we owe them nothing for doing what they are supposed to do; but we do have a moral obligation to everything for which we create tools in the first place.

Out of the air for a moment: Let's talk about something concrete. The United States of America makes demands on us. We must obey its laws; we must serve in its armed forces; we must, it seems, eschew organizations and ideas which challenge it. There was created, after a bloody revolution years ago, an organization, a state, which is placed somehow above us and which makes demands on us. Either we obey its laws or find ourselves in prisons; and that would not be nice. But it is in the logic of what I said before that no organization can, in itself, make us do as it would; and that our only dedication can be to something greater, for which the organization exists. It follows, then, that what loyalty we have to the United States must be a derivitive of the loyalty we feel to the content of the state. And in our country that is no problem; the idea of democracy, the guarantee of freedom and liberty, the kind of life America allows - the purposes for which our nation exists are good ones and are worth sustaining sacrifice and defending.

But this kind of approach implies a very dangerous thing: it means that we can, and even must, judge our country; and we must do whatever is necessary to make it closer to an ideal tool for accomplishing our purposes. We say we believe in American freedom and democracy. That means that I am free to fix a quiz show and free to condemn an English professor who fails in his acknowledge duty to profess the truth; it means that I am free to stand here now and say what I believe and free to argue with my friends afterward when they tell me "How wrong you are!" I've got lots of freedoms, simple ones but worth defending. Yet that same belief in America's purposes means that I must do something about a country which has a deep moral sickness: the sickness of denying the realities of our international relations, epitomized by our shining knight-on-horseback diplomacy; the sickness of segregation, symbolized by Little Rock; the sickness of corrupting our dedication to reason, demonstrated by our abysmal system of education; the sickness of coldly disregarding our sense of fair-play, emphasized by the frequent demand that the steel workers alone solve the nation's inflation problem. I owe loyalty to the principles for which this nation stands and to the people who live within its borders; but with that loyalty comes and undeniable challenge to make America a better tool.

Without explicitly extending my idea to other social organizations, you get the point: it is more important to improve our morality-seeking mechanisms than simply to obey them. The very act of organizing brings problems which can be solved only by fixing our eyes on our goals.

If you think it's possible to do all the good things you'd like to without joining Sisterhood, then give it up. If you think it's possible to follow your religion without belonging to the Temple, then don't come and be bored with a sermonette like this. If you think it's possible for your kids sufficiently to "grow up Jewishly" without their contributing effort to the youth group, by all means save their dues for chewing gum and movie seats.

But if there are values worth building for, goals worth fashioning tools to seek, then create and build and improve until you have what is important. Do not be stopped when there is an organization supposed to solve your problems, because you may find that the straight path is being lost.

SOL BLOOMFIELD'S ANNIVERSARY NOTED

One of Winchester's youngest citizens at heart, Sol Bloomfield will celebrate his 80th birthday Wednesday and at the same time mark his Golden Anniversary in the clothing business here in the city.

Mr. Bloomfield is one of the oldest active merchants in the city. He came to Winchester in 1894 but stayed only a short time. By 1895 Mr. Bloomfield was in the clothing business at Midway. He returned to Winchester in 1909 and has been in business here ever since — at only two locations.

Mr. Bloomfield was born in 1879 in Momberg, Germany. He migrated to the United States in 1894 after finishing high school in Germany at the age of 15. He took English lessons in Winchester and soon mastered the language.

He and his wife, Elza, reside at 225 Lexington Avenue. Among his favorite hobbies are fishing and "just being around children." He proudly says that most of the children love Uncle Sol and that he loves them too.

Mr. Bloomfield has watched Winchester grow during his 50 year residence here. He says he can remember when "City High School was in the country and you didn't have to pay to park your horse on Main Street".

Mr. Bloomfield is a 50 year Mason, a Scottish Rite Mason, and a member of the Oleika Shrine Temple. He also is a member of the Rotary Club.

The current wide-spread anti-Semitism obviously indicates that this social disease is far from dead. Elsewhere in this bulletin is a suggestion for handling the current outbreak.

Within our Congregation we plan to take positive measures in harmony with our long standing policy of promoting good will in our community. On February 14th, our Youth Group will hold its Interfaith Supper to which each member will invite several friends. Our Sisterhood will present the meaning of the Jewish holidays to students of the theological seminaries of Lexington on March 16th.

Perhaps the most exciting and unique phase will be the formation of a Junior Jewish Chautauqua Society through which members of our Youth Group will be prepared to speak to various community groups about their faith. The following have already volunteered to meet for preparation:

Judy Jacobs, Karen Levy, Debbie Milner, Ellen Weil, Bari Lowenthal, Susan Rosenzweig, Joe Miller, Gloria Rosenberg, Ritchie Rose, John Liebman, Larry Waldman, Lou Amm & Judy Cassell.

They will meet with me on Sunday, January 24th for a preparatory session.

If you know of any church or community group which would be interested in having one of our J.J.C.S. speakers, please call the Temple office.

VANDALS AT WORK

The following is PUNISHMENT WITHOUT CRIME, by
S. Andhil Fineberg.

What is it the anti-Seminite wants when he smears "Down with the Jews!" on a store window? That is vandalism. No matter what he had written he has violated the law when he defaces a store window.

Does the offender want to be thought of as a common, sneaking vandal? No indeed. He wants it proclaimed that someone -- and he hopes that the public will think it is many persons -- hates Jews. What would be the best strategy then? Certainly it would be to apprehend him and punish him for vandalism, an offense which everyone condemns. How about advertising what he wrote on that window and publicizing it in the press? To do that would be to do exactly what the anti-Semite wants. A few people may have seen the defaced window. Many thousands would read of it in the newspapers. The more people to whom his screed is conveyed the better the hater likes it. And mark this well; some who condemn vandalism do not condemn vandalism against Jews. If you want to crack the line of civilization, then emphasize that vandalism against Jews has been committed.

Is it merely interesting or is it also tragic that approximately $14\frac{1}{2}$ years have elapsed since the end of World War II and the current outbreak of anti-Semitism in Germany and the end of World War I and the coming to power of Hitler in 1933?

Certainly there are many difference in present day Germany: the Government has strongly denounced the acts against Jews and several popular demonstrations condemning them are encouraging. However, Nazism is far from dead in Germany. According to a recent study polling German opinion 15% of the German population form a hard core of Naza sympathizers while 37% in 1956 felt that Germany would be better off without any Jews. Only 25% can be said to be consistent supporters of democracy.

While these may be unpleasant facts, it is dangerous to bury our heads in the sand. Persons in sizable numbers sympathetic to Facism are present in our own country. Fortunately enough people realize that anti-Semitism is harmful not only to Jewish people but to the entire body politic of any nation which permits it. We must remain well-informed, vigilant and prepared to take any necessary steps to maintain the integrity of democracy.

TWELVE RULES FOR HAPPINESS

1. Live a simple life. Be temperate in your habits. Avoid self-seeking and selfishness. Make simplicity the keynote of your daily plans. Simple things are best.
2. Spend less than you earn. This may be difficult but it pays big dividends. Keep out of debt. Cultivate frugality, prudence and self-denial. Avoid extravagance.
3. Think constructively. Train yourself to think clearly and accurately. Store your mind with useful thoughts. Stand porter at the door of your mind.
4. Cultivate a yielding disposition. Resist the common tendency to want things your own way. Try to see the other persons point of view.
5. Be grateful. Begin the day with gratitude for your opportunities and blessings. Be glad for the privilege of life and work.
6. Rule your moods. Cultivate a mental attitude of peace and good will.
7. Give generously. There is no greater joy in life than to render happiness to others by means of intelligent giving.
8. Work with right motives. The highest purpose of your life should be to grow in spiritual grace and power.
9. Be interested in others. Divert your mind from self-centeredness. In the degree that you give, serve, and help will you experience the by-product of happiness.

10. Live in a daylight compartment. This means living one day at a time. Concentrate on your immediate task. Make the most of today for it is all that you can have.
11. Have a hobby. Nature study, walking, gardening, music, golfing, carpentry, stamp collecting, sketching, voice culture, foreign language, books, photography, social service, public speaking, travel, authorship, are samples. Cultivate an avocation to which you can turn for diversion and relaxation.
12. Keep close to God. True and enduring happiness depends on close alliance with Him. It is your privilege to share His thoughts for your spiritual nourishment, and to have a constant assurance of Divine protection and guidance.

The response to the questionnaire which is repeated in this bulletin has been rather small but very interesting and illuminating. In a majority of instances the negative responses have dominated indicating a definite alienation from many traditional or "orthodox" (in a broad sense) religious theological tenets.

The question which this raises is: do we need other beliefs to take their place or can we live "religious" and fulfilled lives without theology?

I am happy to find so great an interest in such religious questions and discussions not only during services and special programs but at social affairs as well. Certainly the recent discussion on humanism and existentialism have stimulated us intellectually.

Those who have not completed the questionnaire, please do so at once. I hope to speak on the results in the near future.

YOU ARE A BUSY MANBUT-----

Benjamin Franklin was a busy man, but he took time out to help the Hebrew Society in Philadelphia in its campaign to put up a synagogue building and contributed $25.00 to the Building Fund.

Abraham Lincoln was a busy man, but he took time out to read the Bible for a half-hour daily.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was a busy man, but he took time out to serve as a church vestryman and to write, in summation of his philosophy of life: "We are inspired by a faith which goes back through all the years to the first chapter of the Book of Genesis."

YOU, TOO, ARE A BUSY MANbut, you must take time out to help preserve what we have worked so hard to build, the nation's greatest asset---faith in God and man, faith in honor and right, faith in moral values.

Get behind your religious institution.

From the Rabbi's Desk

The following is taken from the bulletin of the First Christian Church and is by its minister, Dr. John Chenault. Last year I had the opportunity of delivering three public lectures in the church:

The recent surge of antisemitism in Europe, which has even spilled over into our own country, has become the incentive for a series of sermons on the contributions of the Jews and other religious groups to Christendom. The first sermon, preached last Sunday, considered the great debt we owe to the Jews, so often the target of racial intolerance and hatred even to the point of persecution.

This sermon pointed out that "spiritually speaking we are all semites," even as Pope Pius XII once said. In so far as we share Jewish attitudes and judgments, which we do, for Christianity sprang from Jewish roots, we are all Jewish who call ourselves Christian.

Of course Jesus was a Jew, and was nurtured in the synagogue and temple of Judaism. He called the temple "God's House." From his mother's faith we received much of our understanding of God. Though Jesus brought a fuller revelation of God, still the God whose nature He revealed was also the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Ethical monotheism was a unique insight of the prophets of Judaism. They proclaimed the truth and there is but one God. "Hear O Israel, the Lord thy God, the Lord is one God." They also believed that God required justice, mercy and righteousness. He is an ethical God: "What doth the Lord require of thee but to do justly, to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God."

We are not only debtors to the Jews for our basic understanding of God, but we are forever in their debt for the most beautiful and moving devotional literature known to us. "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills..." The Lord is my shepherd I shall not want," "Search me, O God, and know my heart, try me and know my thoughts, and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the truth everlasting." "God is our refuge and strength..." How poor we would be without these inspired passages of encouragement and hope.

Furthermore, to the Jews belong the cornerstone of the foundation of our democracy and western culture, the Ten Commandments. A great Christian philosopher, Elton Trueblood, has called the Commandments "The Foundation of Reconstruction." These divine laws God gave to the world through a people of high ethical and spiritual insight and sensitivity, the Hebrew. Moreover, we owe to the Jewish people so many of the heroes of our lives. In fact, how many of us wear Jewish names -- David, John, Joseph, Dan, Thomas, Elizabeth, Mary, Martha. As youth we were taught to admire the young boy, David. Some of us grew up in a Sunday School where we learned to sing

"Dare to be a Daniel, Dare to stand alone;

Dare to have a purpose true, Dare to make it known." We are also debtors to the Jews for our concept of the stewardship of life. The tithe has been consistently and universally proven to be the most workable and spiritually enriching principle and method of stewardship yet devised by man.

These, while by no means exhaustive, are some of the indispensable contributions of the Jewish faith to our own religion.

In addition to the many wonderful comments about our Sisterhood's Interfaith program, several letters have been received. Following are two of them:

Dear Mrs. Barrett:

Just a line to say "thank you" for a wonderful night at your Temple last evening. I don't know when I have been so entertained and also received such a mass of information about another faith. We at the Lexington Episcopal Seminary have been talking about our evening with you, and we all agree it was the greatest.

Thanks again,
John S. Akers

Dear Rabbi Rosenbloom:

My wife and I want to express a hearty thanks to you and the Temple women who prepared and presented the Interfaith program Wednesday night. My fellow students who attended the program have all spoken enthusiastically about it. All were deeply impressed with the program and certainly appreciate your able handling of the spontaneous questions from the floor. Will you please convey our appreciation to your congregation.

May God's blessings continue to abide with you and his people at Temple Adath Israel.

Cordially yours,
W. Ray Holdren

HOW CAN A MODERN JEW BELIEVE IN GOD?

The fundamental assumption that God exists and that we are his creatures, is an assumption without which we cannot make genuine sense out of our world.

Given all the criteria which you would employ in any other areas of human thinking for the justification of a fundamental principle of this kind, we can show that we are fully justified in accepting a belief in God as the foundation of the whole of our religious thinking and, I would want to add, of the whole of our lives.

First, there are what I would like to call intellectual reasons for the belief in the existence of God. Most fundamental of all, and most commonplace, is the undeniable and inescapable fact of the marvelous order and structure in the universe itself. Our tradition expressed this thought in early times. The Psalms speaks with awe about the order of the natural world and sees it as the result of God's creation and God's control.

If we are to have any grounds for moral values whatsoever, we are obligated to accept the reality of God's existence.

I don't say that all of us always practice the main elements of conventional morality; but we all accept them and believe them to be correct and binding. I don't think there is anyone who does not believe that justice is better than injustice, that truth is better than falsehood, that kindness is better than cruelty that mercy is better than lack of mercy. We usually accept the conventional moral principles

What is the ultimate moral value? The one value to which we owe the greatest respect in our own tradition and in that of the society in which we live is the love of our fellow man. "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself"; this, in a way, is the greatest principle of the Torah. But why should you love your neighbor and how can you love him?

Unhappily most of our neighbors are singularly unlovable people. It is not easy to love your fellow-man. Think of how much is ugly in man, how much that is corrupt, brutal, repellant in every way. What is there to love? Unless you see in man the basic dignity that makes him essentially different from all creatures, there is little to love. And this, of course, depends on the belief that God exists.

There is good intellectual ground for believing in the existence of God. There seems to be inescapable moral grounds for believing in the existence of God. If you begin with the intellectual and moral, you must come ultimately to the act of will which is the commitment of faith through which you will come to see and to understand far more than you can from the outside. This, I think, is what the modern Jew can believe and it is, I am convinced, what the modern Jew and modern man must believe, if he is not to be responsible for his own destruction.

From every medium of communication we are hearing about the presidential election and the primaries preliminary to it. All manner of questions are being raised: a Catholic for president? civil rights? socialism? the missile gap? a father image? too young? too sick? too weak? too strong? inflation? foreign trade? ban the bomb? People may be confused but a president must be elected.

This week you will receive ballots for our Temple election. There are issues here too. I do not know of any Catholics running for office but you never can tell. In any event, unless you vote, you have less cause to complain about the actions of the Board of Trustees.

Ours is one of the few congregations which elects its own board in a truly democratic way. But the percentage of those voting is relatively small. Vote as soon as you receive your ballot and make your feelings known.

On March 31st, I was privileged to participate in the 170th meeting of the American Oriental Society which met at Yale University. Although this is an American learned association, the members come from every part of the globe. It is a U. N. of scholars.

In the session in which I as a Rabbi spoke on "Miracles Attributed to Muhammed", there were three Muslim scholars speaking on such themes as "The Views of Mu'ammār Ibn Abbad as-Sulami, a leading Mu'tazilite of the 8th - 9th centuries."

Not all of the subjects were as obscure but most of them were so much so that it seemed that the individual papers were understood by but few of those in attendance. However, it is apparent that while our nation is falling behind in some areas, in pure scholarship it is still outstanding. It was inspiring to meet with so many outstanding scholars.

In the majority were Arabs and Jews and we mingled and met without hostility, with a fine spirit of friendship. Such experiences give one hope that such feelings might extend to the political realm as well.

The Hebrew Union College faculty was very well represented, particularly by its younger scholars. We can be proud of our Reform Jewish seminary.

Next summer the International Oriental Society will meet in Moscow and I am hopeful that not only scholarship will flourish but human relations as well.

A LETTER FROM OUR PRESIDENT

Dear Congregation Member:

You know that the cost of living has risen the last few years. The cost of operation of the Temple, maintaining its ideals and goals has gone up accordingly. Many congregation members have voluntarily increased their dues. In order to take care of the additional cost, the Board of Trustees has taken action to increase dues of many members for the new fiscal year 1960-1961. Your new dues assessment as of May 1, 1960, may be one of ninety others to reflect such an increase.

Sincerely,

James S. Frankel, President

APPRECIATION

To Mr. and Mrs. Harold Baker for giving a Webster's Unabridged Dictionary to our Temple Library in honor of Michael's Bar Mitzvah.

To Dr. and Mrs. Lloyd Mayer who have given a radio for our Youth Room.

The Sisterhood wishes to thank Mrs. Wm. Michalove and Mrs. Ben Shraberg for their excellent planning and untiring efforts as chairmen of the seder supper.

REFORM IS AS OLD AS JUDAISM

Traditional Judaism is not Orthodoxy. Traditional Judaism in essence was dynamic, adjusting to new conditions without giving up its age-old Jewish soul. While tradition insisted that both the Mishnah and the Gemara were revealed to Moses at Sinai, at the same time it indicated that Jewish life and thought had progressed so far since the time of Moses that even Moses could not understand the substance of a lecture by Rabbi Akiba (c. 132 C.E.) which God in a vision had permitted him to attend. This implies that progressive unfoldment is an inherent quality of the Tradition.

The Tradition was authoritative but not authoritarian. Differing opinions were expressed freely, respected and recorded. Rabbinic Literature bears evidence of important changes deemed necessary for Jewish survival. The Biblical law of release of debts during the Sabbatical year was eliminated. Dietary laws were flexible even to the extent that in Rabbi Jose Ha-Gelili's hometown they stewed fowl in milk. Use of the vernacular in prayer was ordained in the Mishnah. Examples from Rabbinic Literature could be multiplied to demonstrate that the principle of Reform is implicit in Jewish tradition. Orthodoxy is a fixation of the Tradition at a point somewhere near the Shulchan Arukh, beyond which its adherents refused to budge. As I view it, Reform Judaism far from being a revolutionary break with Tradition, is an evolutionary manifestation of it.

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK

In recent weeks three Temple groups have given their provisional approval to a one-year's trial of a "musical precentor" (a coined phrase for "cantor"). The Worship Committee, the Budget Committee as well as our Temple Board of Trustees have all agreed to take this step in the hope that such an addition will enhance the religious tone of our Sabbath Services.

In the minds of many, a cantor is associated with Orthodox Judaism exclusively. Nothing could be farther from the facts. The first school for cantors in the United States was founded by Reform Judaism as the School of Sacred Music. It was founded as a part of the Hebrew Union College in 1948.

Many of our most "reformed" congregations have had cantors for many decades including Temples Emanuel in New York City and San Francisco. In many of these congregations the cantor is also the Temple educator. In our instance, this person would function only during our Friday evening services.

Reform Judaism has always been dynamic and has been willing to eliminate what is no longer meaningful as well as add what will enhance our worship experience.

While the amount of money involved is small ($200 per year), we hope that the benefits will be significant. In any event, each member will have an opportunity to be heard at our Annual Congregational Meeting which will be held on May 15. We will look forward to learning of your feelings at that time.

THE MOOD FOR PRAYER

When we gather in our sanctuary, we gather for reflection upon the larger meaning of the joys and sorrows of life. We gather here to set aside our daily preoccupations--or to relate them to the high values, the moral purpose, the deep faith of our heritage. We gather here for prayer--the Service of the Heart.

Such service calls for quiet, inner contemplation. It calls for directing our hearts toward reverence, toward conversationless meditation. It calls for the creation of a mood that will be receptive to prayer.

As we enter our sanctuary, let us prepare ourselves and respect our neighbors' wish so to prepare for the Service of the Heart.

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK

We are pleased to announce the names of those who were recently elected to our Temple Board of Trustees: Ben Goldfarb, Dr. Sherman Miller, Harold Pressman, Stanley Rose, and Stanley Scher. They are to be congratulated for the honor bestowed upon them by our members. Ours is a democratically elected board and is representative of every group within our congregation. We trust that even as they consider their individual interests, they will not lose sight of the high ideals and aspirations to which our congregation is dedicated.

We are also happy to note those who missed being elected by a few votes: Dr. Al Balows, Max Kavinow, Joe Marks, Dr. Lloyd Mayer, Dr. Saul Rubin, Sanford Mazer, and Mrs. Jay D. Weil.

Our newly elected members as well as those whose term expires will be recognized at our Annual Congregational Dinner which will be held on Sunday, May 15th.

-----Joseph R. Rosenbloom

A note in response to a "musical responder" for our Services; ~~who~~ will not replace but supplement our regular choir:

"Dear Rabbi Rosenbloom,

Several years ago, in California, I attended services in a small Reform temple which had a cantor. Something about the Service impressed me very much--perhaps it was the simplicity of the music, or some sense of closeness, and well, sincerity which we seemed to lack at home. I returned all fired up about the idea of a cantor for our congregation--but of course nothing came of it.

So your announcement in the Bulletin came as a most pleasant surprise. A cantor might well make our services more beautiful and meaningful--without drastic changes in the format, or any loss of our liberalism.

If the congregation votes on this, and if junior members are eligible to vote, please register me as an emphatic yes!"

Sincerely,

Linda Kanner

NEW DECALOGUE OF FAMILY RELATIONS

1. THOU SHALT LOVE AND RESPECT THYSELF as a personality, that thy family and friends may respect thee, and themselves as well.

2. HONOR THY MARRIAGE and thy mate that thy home be a bedrock of love and security beneath thy children's feet, and a shining beacon to thy friends and thy community.

3. THOU SHALT NOT "PLAY GOD" with thy family or thy friends, no even with thyself, setting thyself up as omnipotent, omniscient and infallible in thy household.

4. THOU SHALT NOT JUDGE people according to thine own pattern, nor try to make thy children over in thine own image, nor avenge upon them the sins of thine own father against thee.

5. THOU SHALT GIVE THYSELF, thy spouse, and thy children freedom to grow, but shalt exact responsible behavior as its incorruptible price.

6. THOU SHALT NOT ENSLAVE thy children through "smother-love," nor purchase subservience with money or other goods, or even with sentiments.

7. THOU SHALT NOT CREATE ANXIETY needlessly in thy house, in thy shop, or in thy community, nor permit tension over trivia to sour the daily bread of thy loved ones.

8. THOU SHALT NOT LASH thy wife, thy workers, thy children or thyself, to achieve the impossible goal of perfection, but shalt patiently foster the goal of partial success day by day.

9. THOU SHALT CULTIVATE thy children's conscience as the flower and shield of life's truest values, but shalt free them progressively from the protective prohibitions which thou hast imposed in childhood so that these may not become the prisons of their maturity.

10. THOU SHALT NOT COVET the talents, the beauty, the marks, nor the possessions of thy neighbor's children, but shalt accept thine own child for what he is, and help him to be himself.

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK

We are indebted to Fernand D. Weil for the many material and spiritual gifts which he gave to our Temple and Congregation. He realized that this is the basic institution of our Jewish community. There was never any cynicism or lack of faith in his devotion to our cause. He made a commitment to Judaism early in his life and his faith sustained in times, both good and bad.

In his latter days, he made a very generous provision in his will to provide for our growth. He wanted to insure the perpetuation, in a meaningful way, of an institution which was of the utmost importance to him. We are all grateful.

Will others now join together to do their part to insure our future? As we meet this Sunday for our Annual Meeting, may we do so with an awareness of what a Congregation means. We are not merely another institution -- we embody the faith of Judaism which had a glorious past and, we pray, may have a glorious future.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEXT BOOKS

Please return all Sunday School texts next Sunday in order that we may clear our records and know what we must order for next year.

The following information was taken from a Union of American Hebrew Congregations Survey published in May, 1956. It concerns the use of cantors in Reform Congregations.

Distribution (in families)	No. of Responses	None	Part Time	Full Time
Under 100	59	50	9	0
101 to 300	118	81	25	12
301 to 500	38	21	7	10
501 to 750	28	9	10	9
751 to 1000	19	8	5	6
Over 1000	32	13	1	12
Total	294	182	67	49

The acceptance of the role of the cantor in the temple has grown and 121 temples (42%) employ part or full-time cantors. 18 temples report that they engage lay or professional singers to serve as cantors for the High Holidays. One congregation notes that a non-Jew serves as the cantor and two temples indicate that a male choir singer or music director serves in this capacity.

Where the cantor serves on a full-time basis, he combines this function with other duties during the week. Thirteen cantors with the proper Jewish educational background serve as school principal or education director and one cantor serves as executive secretary as well.

In general, the full or part-time cantor has not been accepted by the southern and southwestern communities although even in those regions the tendency seems to be accelerating. In the NFTB survey, 64% of the laymen polled stated that they approved and would like a cantor to officiate at their services.

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK

As another Religious School year draws to a close, it is appropriate to recognize the outstanding job which our entire staff has done in what is one of the three most important areas of our Temple program.

Particular mention is made of Mrs. Sybil Stern, who has served as our principal for two years and must now resign for personal reasons. She has been faithful and has provided an efficient and effective administration.

Two groups, the Temple members who have taught our classes and the several members of our Youth Group deserve our whole-hearted thanks for their tireless devotion. The teachers have been: Mrs. Mae Abraham, Judy Cassell, Lou Ann Cassell, Mrs. Zelda Gall, Mrs. Jeannette Gordon, Mrs. Fanny Miller, Mrs. Ethyl Paritz, Mrs. Ethel Schwartz, Judy Schwartz, Mrs. Edith Weil, Mr. Stuart Goldfarb, Dr. Saul Rubin, Dr. Charles Schwartz, Mr. William Shraberg, Mr. Larry Waldman, Mr. Norman Wides and Dr. Leon Zolondek. Regular participants from our Youth Group have been Janet Cohen, Joe Miller, Steve Gall, Judy Jacobs and Debbie Milner. Many others substituted and thereby also assisted greatly.

Ours is truly a congregational school in which learning is combined with serving. We can be very proud of it.

-----Joseph R. Rosenbloom

APPRECIATION

We would like to thank Mrs. Sidney Gall, Mrs. Sam Milner, Mrs. Stanley Rose and Mrs. Ernst Rosenzweig for their help with the very lovely Youth Group supper on May 8th.

BROTHERHOOD BRUNCH MEETING

The Temple Brotherhood will hold its last meeting of the season at 9:30 Sunday morning, May 22nd.

Lox and bagels will be served for breakfast. Also, there will be a very interesting speaker. We would like to see all the members of the Brotherhood at this last meeting.

The following is a report submitted by Lou Ann Cassell, our Youth Group's vice-president elect, to the National Federation of Temple Youth:

In Lexington, Ky., members of the Adath Israel Temple Youth Group have concerted their efforts to plan new projects which would be both interesting and informative, not only to the Temple membership, but to the entire community.

Rabbi Joseph Rosenbloom has given valuable assistance to the Youth Group to establish a Junior Jewish Chautauqua Society. Our rabbi has made many contributions in this area. Through informal work sessions, formats to be used by our members during visits to various church Youth Groups were discussed and outlined by the Rabbi. Flyers, announcing our program, were sent to all churches. Since the initiation of this program, our members have met with a number of Youth Groups, each of whom has shown keen interest and great appreciation in our effort.

Family night has proved to be a most satisfying means for the Youth Group to communicate and share with members of their family and of the Temple. All members are invited to attend. A well-planned dinner followed by a brief service and a selected movie has provided a completely satisfying and stimulating evening of pleasure.

The annual Interfaith Dinner for our members and their christian friends was once again a great success. Each member invited three or more friends to share a delicious dinner followed by an impressive service. Those attending showed their enthusiasm by actively engaging in an invigorating question and answer period.

At the present time, energetic members are beginning a "Work-Shop". It is truly such, as plans include thoroughly cleaning the library and classroom desks. Different groups are to be assigned to various duties each week. This project includes the usually forgotten bulletin board, and every effort will be made to make it the attractive, informative and up-to-the-minute tool it is meant to be.

Our entire board and membership actively participate in our Sunday School Educational program, but more specifically by their assistance with the Junior Assembly, the library and the serving of rolls, donuts and beverages at a pre-Sunday School Nosherie.

The Youth Group owes much thanks to Rabbi Rosenbloom, and our two advisers, Mrs. Sherman Miller and Mrs. Melvin Levy, for making this year such a wonderful year in NFTY.

* * * * *

The following was sent to our Youth Group by Susan Gail:

"I really wish to thank each of you for being so warm to me upon my return to Lexington during my two previous vacations. It's a wonderful feeling to be able to come to your Youth Group meetings, and "almost" make believe you have never left. And, above all, merci beaucoup for allowing me to attend the Huntington Conclave. It was wonderful, every aspect of it, and I do hope that all of you have an opportunity to attend some of these "unbelievable get-togethers".

Congratulations to your new officers. May they guide you as well as have the past officers who have earned national praise.

Despite the distance, I've still got that NFTY spirit - so au revoir from your "Boston Baked Bean Spirit".

Thank you for taking time from your busy schedule to enlighten us concerning Israel today."

CONGREGATION PRESIDENT'S REPORT

May 15, 1960

I am happy to tell you that our membership has grown beyond the 200 mark. We have 204 members of which 58 come from outside Fayette County. During the past year we gained 10 members while losing 3 old ones who moved away.

Our Congregation was well represented at the Union of American Hebrew Congregations Convention last November. Workshops attended by our delegates proved very interesting. I returned home well pleased that our own modus operandi was on a satisfactory and high plane.

Unfortunately, due to lack of leadership, our Boy Scout Troop has been discontinued. This is especially distressing in the light of our wonderful Cub Scout Troop under Norman Wides' guidance. For the second consecutive year it has been honored as one of the top troops of this area.

I thank the Sisterhood for its contribution to our Religious School, for overall help at dinners, receptions, and representing us so well in many worthy community activities.

I am sorry that for personal reasons Sybil Stern has resigned as our Religious School Principal. She has done an excellent job, maintaining high standards in a school of which we are very proud.

In behalf of all of you, I wish to thank Rabbi Rosenbloom for four years of service to our Congregation. An inquiring scholar with boundless energy and a bright personality, he inspires faith and confidence not only in his own congregation, but in the community at large. Joe is a crusader for all causes and gives sympathy and moral support wherever needed, whether it be the ill or the grief-stricken, a young couple seeking marriage or a member hunting the answer to a knotty problem.

It takes not one, not five, not twenty, but all members to work together for our Temple in order to uphold our ideals and to achieve our goals. I want to thank all those who have helped to do so. To the retiring Board Members, I present these certificates of appreciation and I hope you will continue, and increase, your efforts in behalf of our Congregation.

James S. Frankel
James S. Frankel,

"OUT OF OUR HOUSE"

The Holidays are very early this year. And although we have been blessed with relatively mild weather this Summer, many view the approach of Rosh Hashono with fear--then the heat will really come. One might almost say that we want the heat to come and really be intense so that we might really suffer and atone physically for our sins of the past year. There is some compensation in such an early date--the Holidays will not interfere with the World Series. As a rabbi I would say, this year the World Series will not interfere with High Holidays. My first pulpit as a student at the Hebrew Union College was in Greenwood, Mississippi, a beautiful Delta town on the Yazoo River. A fascinating place for one having been reared way up in Yankee-land and never before entering Dixie. If this coupled with my first pulpit experience was not enough, Yom Kippur-fell on the last day of the World Series. It was quite a task to conclude the morning services and then to fit in the service for the children and the afternoon and Memorial services. I do not remember what teams played and who won but that was not nearly as interesting as our attempt to satisfy all our "needs" that day.

Both Cordelia and I are looking forward to our first New Year in Lexington. The past months have been rewarding and exciting for us. We are looking forward to welcoming you to a reception at our home on Rosh Hashono afternoon. We hope that this will be the first of a long series which we will be honored to give. We know that the New Year will be one of ever-increasing peace and hope and blessing for all of us.

FRIDAY EVENINGS SERMON

The United States is involved in a world wide ideological struggle yet it seems to be compromising its principles in the Middle East in relation to a group of its citizens. American citizens of the Jewish faith are kept out of Arab countries and our State Department has been either passive or openly cooperative in this prejudicial action. Rabbi Rosenbloom will discuss this problem Friday evening in a sermon based on a pamphlet entitled, "VIOLATIONS OF AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP RIGHTS."

NEW YEAR'S GREETING.

We wish to take this opportunity to extend to you, heartiest greetings for the New Year 5717. May God grant you, and your dear ones a year of grace and goodness and a full measure of all things which men truly need for their happiness.

We pray too that this year will be one of greater achievement and service for our Congregation. May God favor us so that we shall continue to exist as an organized Jewish community, to grow, prosper and labor in the fellowship of prayer, study and good work for the establishment of His Kingdom. Let us greet the New Year with high faith and courage and with a resolve to live worthily in these times, so that through our efforts, justice and righteousness will spread ever more widely in our midst and help to advance the universal brotherhood of man.

We would like to extend to each of you, a most cordial invitation to a Rosh Ha-Shono reception at our home, at 304 Culpepper, on Rosh Ha-Shono afternoon, from 3 untill 5 P.M.

Thanks to Manager Jim Wenneker's clever manipulation of his unusual two-platoon system, Rabbi Rosenbloom's defensive prowess at shortstop and the timely pinch-hitting of Herschel Weil, the Brotherhood team was able to outlast the Synagogue team 7-5 on Sunday, August 28.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

With the coming of the High Holy Days a new Temple year begins. I am happy to welcome you back to Temple activities. I would like to take this opportunity to mention briefly what transpires in the Congregational affairs.

Because of confusion in the past few years, tickets will not be issued for High Holy Day services. Every Temple member is requested to honor the following procedure. The sanctuary is open on these days to members in good standing only and their children of Confirmation age and older who reside with them. It is requested that all dues-delinquent members and their families and others including guests refrain from entering the main floor of the sanctuary. They are welcomed to the balcony or to the Library where the loud speaker system will relay the service from the sanctuary. Please cooperate by not holding seats for late comers. It is unfortunate that we can not be more hospitable. Our main sanctuary will seat only 210 people and your Board feels that it must give foremost consideration to the Temple members in good standing.

Acceptance of dues increases by our members is very gratifying. Also many of you have voluntarily increased your dues, showing awareness of our needs and appreciation of the idea of "self-assessments". Both 1959-60 and 1960-61 Finance Committees did splendid jobs.

Our Membership Committee has worked conscientiously thru the hot summer.

Your Officers and Trustees join in the hope that 5721 will be a year of fulfillment for you and your families in joy, in health and in satisfaction.

-----James S. Frankel

The following letter was received by one of our Temple families who acted as hosts for several of the young people who visited our congregation as an interlude from their work at Buckhorn, Ky. They were spending the summer helping to build a school building as part of the American Jewish Society for Service work:

"Right now I am sitting on our porch at Buckhorn and marveling at the tremendous difference between your gracious Lexington and this squalid little valley.

I can never thank you enough for showing me the civilized part of this state. Thanks to my few days with you, I will be able to survive the next four days. Your house really felt like home and I feel as if I've known all of you for years.

I just wrote to my parents telling them about your wonderful hospitality and I know that they would love to meet you when you are in New York.

I still can't get over the vast change between Buckhorn and Lexington. As we were riding home, it seemed as if we were going from one world to another.

When we went back to the Temple, a reporter from the Lexington Herald took pictures of four of us and as you probably have noticed, I am among them. I haven't seen the picture yet but I am sure it is one of my usually gruesome ones.

I'd love to hear from any one of you as soon as you have a chance and I hope that summer school turns out well. Thanks again for the wonderful weekend and please stay healthy."

RABBI'S COLUMN

It is good, in this our first regular bulletin of the year, to welcome you back to the full swing of Temple activities.

The summer, however, has not been without its activities: our Services have been well-attended, our Brotherhood, reorganized and reinvigorated, has gotten together several times already, our Sisterhood has its year mapped out and our Youth Group will have its first meeting this Sunday evening.

Our Religious School begins this Sunday and we are looking forward to greeting all of our children then.

On Friday evening, Sept. 16, we will hold a Family Service during which all of our children who have had birthdays during June, July, August and September will be blessed. We hope to have one such Family Service each month.

We may look forward to a full and rewarding year together as we pray, work, study and meet together.

Your Rabbi would appreciate being advised of any Congregants to whom he may be of service in any way.

The Congregation and Rabbi Rosenbloom are most grateful to Mrs. S.T. Marcus, of Frankfort, and Mr. Mrs. Arnold E. Fields, as well as to Mr. Mrs. Elliott Marcus for the beautiful new chairs which they contributed to the Rabbis Study.

RELIGIOUS SCHOOL will start Sunday Sept. 23, 9:10

Consecration Services for new Religious School children will be held, Friday Sept. 28, at 7 P.M.

The Sisterhood will have their opening meeting on Wednesday, October 17, at the Temple.

OUT OF OUR HOUSE

We are in the midst of our most solemn season. We are searching our inner-most selves for guidance and inspiration. Often we feel that we have exhausted every possible source of hope. Last week while spending several days with youth leaders from this in a N F T Y camp a service was presented which they had created. I am sure that you will be as encouraged as I by a few excerpts from that service. These young people are our hope - and we may be proud of them.

"As modern American Jewish youth we have combined both these types of Avodah into one superior form of worship. Our prayer is not cold and intellectual, nor is it only from the heart, containing all joy. In our worship and prayer our feelings are warm and sincere, but our minds are also active. Combining the insights of both of them the chassidim and the Mitnagdim we have the benefits of both of them our avodah is worship with the heart and the mind both.

"Why do we say: 'Our God and the God of our Fathers?' There are two sorts of persons who believe in God. The one believes because his faith has been handed down by his fathers; and his faith is strong. The other has arrived at faith by means of searching thought. And this is the difference between the two: the first has the advantage that his faith cannot be shaken no matter how many objections are raised to it, for his faith is firm because he has taken it from his fathers. But there is a flaw in it: it has been learned without thought, reasoning, or understanding. The advantage of the second man is that he has reached faith through his own power, through much searching and thinking. But his faith too has a flaw: it is easy to shake, for it has no roots. But he who combines both kinds of faith is invulnerable. That is why we say: 'Our God,' because of our searching, and 'the god of our fathers,' because of our tradition."

In its continued effort to spread an understanding of Judism, our Adult Education Committee, under the Chairmanship of Dr. Sherman Miller, has arranged a series of six discussions to be led by Rabbi Rosenbloom. This series will be held in Paris, Kentucky and will be open to the entire community, Jewish and Christian. Mrs. Sam Milner, chairman of the Paris committee, has set the sessions for the Paris Y.M.C.A. They will begin on Tuesday, September 25, at 7:30 P.M. and will meet every other following Tuesday at the same time. The general title of the series is, "Judaism and Christianity: Their Relationship."

THE SOLEMN DAYS

The High Holy Days--Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur--are considered in Jewish life as the most important of the festivals. They are referred to as the SOLEMN DAYS (Yomin Noro'im)

ROSH HASHONAH inaugurates the Ten Days of Penitence (ASERES Y'MAY T'SHUVAH) which come to a climax in the traditional fast of YOM KIPPUR.

Although historical events (Creation and Exodus) have been associated with the High Holy Days, their observance seldom includes secular or national references. They are purely religious in purpose, calling for meditation, self-examination, reconciliation, repentance, benevolence, prayer and charity.

ROSH HASHONAH (head of the year) is the festival which starts the Jewish religious year (the agricultural year starts in the spring with NISSAN). The true nature of the festival can be seen in the various names by which it is known:

The Day of Remembrance--YOM HA'ZIKORON

The Day of Judgment--YOM HA'DIN

The Day of Blowing the Shofar--YOM T'RUAH

Tradition speaks of Supreme Judgment passed upon each individual at this time. Each one is remembered and judged according to his righteousness. His fate for the ensuing year is pictorially described in the Book of Life.

The blowing of the Shofar (ram's horn) is intended to awaken us spiritually. While the shofar may have been used originally by primitive man to exorcise evil spirits, Jewish sages connected it with the Akedam (Genesis XX). This biblical passage describes the intended offering of Isaac, and his providential deliverance, the ram which appeared in the thicket being used instead of an offering by Abraham.

While Rosh Hashonah is a solemn day, it is not a somber day. In it the Jew experiences the inner joy which comes from his newly achieved rapport with God and man. This experience is expressed by Ezra and Nehemiah:

"This day is holy unto the Lord your God; mourn not nor weep...Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions unto him for whom nothing is prepared...for the joy of the Lord is your strength." Nehemiah VIII:9

The SABBATH during the Ten Days of Repentance is known as Shabbos Shuva (Sabbath of Repentance). It derives its name from the opening words of the Haftarah in Hosea XIV:2 "Shuvah, Yisroel"--(Return, O Israel to the Lord thy God). This prophetic portion reflects the basic theme of the High Holy Days.

The popular greeting among Jews on Rosh Hashonah is "L'SHONO TOVO TIKOSEVU" (May you be inscribed for a good year) The usual response to this greeting is "Gam Atem!" (Likewise, thou!)

Honey and apples are eaten on this holiday to symbolize the hope for a sweet and fruitful year. The challos for ROSH HASHONAH are baked in round shapes to express the hope that the year's blessings may be complete and without end. During the week preceding ROSH HASHONAH, many Jews gather in the synagogue in the early hours of the morning to recite special supplicant prayers..."S'LICHOS."

OUR TEMPLE YOUTH

Our Youth Group's first meeting was a great success. After a wonderful dinner, the meeting and program stimulated much discussion.

Joe Miller and Sandy Levy reported on the Workshop they had just attended in Charleston.

It was also announced that Sandy and Joe were elected to the OVFTY Board of Directors. We are honored to have two members since there are only 28 for 50 youth groups in our Region.

We were also selected to edit Youth-Edit, the Region's newspaper. Members of our Youth Group will serve as staff.

Mrs. Elliott Rosenberg and Mrs. Sherman Miller prepared the delicious meal for the meeting.

WITH OUR RABBI

On September 8th, Rabbi Rosenbloom spoke to the Frankfort Kiwanis Club on "The History of Judaism".

On September 15th, he spoke before the Kentucky-Tennessee-Ohio Valley Personnel Conference on moral values in employer-employee relations.

On the same day, he spoke to the Torch Club on "The Middle East Today in the Light of the Past".

THE HIGH HOLIDAY SERMONS

Rabbi Rosenbloom's High Holiday sermons will deal with two major themes. On Rosh Hashonah, they will concern man an individual seeking to find meaning in a world which frequently impresses us with its meaninglessness.

On Yom Kippur he will center his thoughts on our "Jewish" selves: understanding our place in the community as Jews with our distinguished destiny.

RABBI'S BOOK TO BE PUBLISHED BY U. K. PRESS

On October 7th, "A Biographical Dictionary of Early American Jews" written by Dr. Rosenbloom will be published by the University of Kentucky press. During our Sabbath Services on October 7th, our Congregation will recognize this achievement with a special service during which Dr. Jacob R. Marcus of the Hebrew Union College and director of The American Jewish Archives will speak.

Dr. Rosenbloom's book is described as follows in the dust-jacket of the book:

"Here is a virtually complete list of persons identifiable as Jews in America by 1800, the result of a thorough search of manuscript materials and published literature for the names of Jews who lived in America (including Canada up to 1783) during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. No other study provides comparable information for such an ethnic group in this country.

Each entry in this dictionary is accompanied by birth and death dates and places and other biographical data so far as they are available. The biographies vary from two lines recording the birth of an unnamed stillborn child or the presence of a transient in New York City to half-column summaries of the careers of well-known persons.

Included are converts to Christianity and, in some instances, their children. Persons whose names or associations have resulted in their being incorporated into earlier lists of "Jews" are noted also, with an attempt to ascertain their identity.

Especially noteworthy is the small number of Jews in America during the two centuries before 1800. Only about 4,000 Jews, of whom 1,500 were native-born, have been identified in this dictionary--and not all of these positively. Perhaps another 800 have been omitted, Mr. Rosenbloom points out, because their names are not included in extant records. Even so, it would appear that the percentage of Jews in the total colonial population (less than three million in 1783) was infinitesimal.

Students of the American colonial period will find this book a useful tool for ascertaining the national origins of American Jews, their occupations, their part in the Revolution, their places of settlement, and other historical and sociological data."

AN IMPORTANT MESSAGE TO PARENTS FROM THE RELIGIOUS SCHOOL

The Religious School assists parents in the religious education of their children. This statement is intended to emphasize that a major responsibility for the religious education of a child lies with the parents of that child. Parental participation and cooperation can make our children's religious school training more effective and more meaningful to the children.

We respectfully suggest the following as examples of how we as parents can assist our children and thus greatly enhance the success of the religious education we shall give them:

1. An awareness of the ethical, moral and spiritual values of Jewish learning, Jewish living, and Jewish faith should be an established pattern in the home.
2. Attend regularly Family and Youth Worship Services with your children.
3. Participate in some form of congregational activity.
4. Discuss problems regarding your child's religious education with the rabbi and the principal. You will find them willing and able to help your child.
5. Cooperate by seeing that your child is dressed properly for attending Religious School. Remember, many of our Religious School sessions include a worship service in the Sanctuary.

6. Evidence your interest in the religious education of your child by visiting his classroom occasionally during the school year. We ask that you give advance notice of your plans to visit class to either the teacher or the principal.
7. Inquire as to the status of your child's weekly homework assignment. Homework properly executed is an important factor in an effective religious education. Up to and including the second grade no formal homework is normally required. However, parents of children in these grades are urged to engage their children in conversation regarding their Religious School lessons, to read the assigned text with their children and to show in every possible way interest in the Religious School activities of their youngsters.

THE JEWISH DAY OF ATONEMENT, YOM KIPPUR

Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the Jewish calendar, will be observed in homes and temples throughout the world beginning at sunset, Friday, September 30th.

Yom Kippur is Hebrew for Day of Atonement, a time devoted to self-examination and the determination to live on a higher moral plane in the future. It marks the conclusion of the ten-day period of repentance which begins with Rosh Hashonah, the Jewish New Year.

The Yom Kippur eve synagogue liturgy begins with the singing of the celebrated and majestic Kol Nidre, Hebrew for "all vows" a musical plea for divine remission of hasty and impetuous decisions. The prayers and sermons at the religious services which last most of Yom Kippur Day, stress man's capacity to use the powers given him by God to overcome error and dereliction.

RABBI'S COLUMN

I am grateful to our Congregation for the honor to be extended to me in the service this Friday evening. Without the favorable atmosphere of our Congregation and community, my modest efforts in Jewish scholarship would have been impossible. Your encouragement and recognition of the importance of constant research and study have been gratifying. While it is certain that we do not learn sufficiently from history, we must, nevertheless, continue our efforts in that direction

The Rabbi, above all else, is a teacher; and he cannot teach if he does not study. While our society has not in the past valued its teachers sufficiently, the great challenges of these times are forcing us to reconsider the entire areas of study and teaching, and their importance.

The intellectual atmosphere of Lexington with its fine educational centers presents many opportunities for research facilities and I am grateful to them, also, for their assistance through the years.

-----Joseph R. Rosenbloom

IF I WERE A LAYMAN---

The layman of our tradition did not say, "I am religious, but". He was religious and he was not ashamed of it.

The layman of our tradition tried to be versed in Jewish knowledge, and if he was not a scholar, he respected scholarship.

The layman of our tradition loved the synagogue but he loved Judaism more. The cause was more important than the institution.

The layman of our tradition did not join a congregation for the sake of his children. He KNEW that HE needed Judaism.

The layman of our tradition did not learn Judaism from his children. He taught Judaism to his children.

The layman of our tradition did not say, "The Synagogue must be run like a business." In theory, at least, he realized that the converse was true.

ADULT EDUCATION SERIES

Our Adult Education Committee has met and has decided to study "The Portrait of the Jew in Modern Fiction".

The first session will be held in our Rabbi's home, 304 Culpepper, at 8:00 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18.

During the first session, Dr. Michael Adelstein of the University of Kentucky English Department, and Rabbi Rosenbloom will lead a discussion of Shakespeare's Merchant of Venice and Dickens' Oliver Twist.

The objectives of the course are:

- 1) To study the work for its artistic qualities
- 2) To note how the author treats the Jewish characters in their relationship to other characters (Jewish and non-Jewish) and to their milieu.
- 3) To discuss the author's views and attitudes about the Jew in contemporary society.
- 4) To compare and contrast the treatments of Jewish characters.

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK----

Our Sabbath Services this Friday evening will honor a very important group of our Temple membership: Our new members.

We welcome our new members for the added strength they bring to our ranks. We need their talents and energy. At the same time, we believe that our Temple offers to them a well-established religious center including religious, educational and social opportunities.

Welcoming new families places a responsibility upon the "old-timers". We want the new-comers to love Lexington as we love it. We must be willing and ever-eager to greet them in our sanctuary, in our vestry, or in any of the many places our paths may cross.

This does not leave our new friends without responsibility. They, too, must be willing to do their share in our very busy community. Each member's efforts are needed and appreciated. Your closest friendships will be made as you meet one another and work together for the general welfare.

I would like to emphasize to all of our new members my own personal invitation to call upon me at any time when I may be of service to you. I feel confident that your presence in our midst will be a blessing to us and I pray that we may fulfill your spiritual needs.

MRS. MILLER HONORED

The 1960 class of the University High School has announced that their Annual, The Purple and White, has been dedicated to Mrs. Sherman E. Miller with the following dedication:

"To show our appreciation for her willingness to help us in any worthwhile thing we strive to do, for her determination and desire to do anything in her power to make our school a better place, and for her friendship and loyalty to our class, the seniors dedicate the 1960 PURPLE AND WHITE to Mrs. Sherman E. Miller. We will long remember, love, and respect our beloved English teacher".

SUPPORT YOUR TEMPLE FUNDS

The concept of contributing money to charity is as old as Judaism. It is deeply a part of our religious traditions. Aside from the annual campaigns for organized charities, there are a number of Temple Funds to which the Congregation is invited to contribute. In moments of sorrow, as in moments of joy, we are prompted to give something of our own to a worthy cause. The following is a list of Temple Funds which have been established over the years:

GOLDEN JUBILEE FUND: This Fund was begun in honor of the Golden Anniversary of Temple Adath Israel. The money to be raised was to retire the mortgage. Pledges to this Fund (in units of $191.25) are payable over a period of three years. The figure of $191.25 represents the monthly payment of the Temple to retire the debt.

THE RABBI'S FUND: Contributions to this fund will be administered as the Rabbi designates. It will be used for the purpose he determines for Congregational and community uses which tie in with the interest of the Congregation or Temple.

MEMORIAL FUND: Money contributed to this Fund is used for major improvements in the Temple. It is not to be used within the general budget.

THE LIBRARY FUND: The purpose of this Fund is to purchase books of interest for our Temple Library.

A Note to College Students

This is to welcome you to your college campus wherever you are. In case I didn't see you before you left for college, let me take this opportunity of expressing every good wish that your year in college will be a great experience. We will watch you and take pride in your achievements. I would be pleased and delighted to hear from you at any time. If there is a Temple in your college community or a Hillel Foundation on your campus, I hope you will go there and make yourself known to the Rabbi and say you are from "Temple Adath Israel, Lexington". Try and find the opportunity of introducing yourself to the Rabbi. Chances are that I know him personally, and you can bring him greetings from me.

One thing more. Being away from home, you will want to keep in touch with what is going on back home. If you would like the "Temple Bulletin" to come to you directly while at school, just fill out this coupon and mail it to me. The "Temple Bulletin" in your mailbox each week will be another way of telling you that wherever you are, whatever you are doing, we are thinking of you and sending you God's blessing.

We are happy to publish this letter which was sent to our Rabbi by Dr. Wikler, who is spending the year in Europe with his family:

Quite unofficially on my official travels through Scandinavia and Holland this past summer, I have sought out the main synagogue in all of the capitols we have visited, attending services where possible. In Amsterdam, I naturally made a bee-line for the old (1675) Spanish and Portuguese synagogue, the simple dignity of which is awe-inspiring. As you know, it is the only synagogue in Amsterdam (possibly in all of Holland) which the Germans did not destroy, only because the Dutch government declared it to be a national monument. In Amsterdam, also, is a Jewish section in the Municipal Museum, containing a collection of gorgeous candalabra, Torah mantels, shofars, and its ancient Torah-Scrolls and prayer books. In addition, the museum also has a special room housing a documentary collection of Nazi edicts against the Jews and pictures of the Westerbork concentration camps---this heart-rending.

However, the most beautiful synagogue I've seen so far is the one in Stockholm. Typically Swedish in the massive form of architecture outside, and the carved wood (with a Moorish type of arches) inside, this synagogue is quite unique. Services there on Shabbos evening were rather curious. As appears to be the custom all over Europe, prayers are recited mainly by the chazzon who intoned the Aschkenazic ritual in Sephardic style and pronunciation. The congregation was silent except for an occasional amen and recitation of the kaddish by the mourners.

In Paris, Ada, Norma and I attended services at the synagogue of the Union Liberale Israelite, 24 rue Copernic. Rabbi Zaoni was pleased to learn that we were members of your congregation, and assured me Norma would be welcome in the Youth Group there. As Ada may have written you already, Norma is staying with a French Jewish family, members of Rabbi Zaoni's congregation, as a result of your correspondence, many thanks!

UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

In addition, you may be interested in the story of my hunt for the Spinoza house in Holland. Nobody seemed to know exactly where it was. After fruitless search in Amsterdam and The Hague, I finally found out it was located in Rijusburg, a suburb of Leiden. So Ada, the children and I went there and after many more inquiries, found it, unmarked, at Spinozalaan 2. The door was locked, but in response to our knocking, a very old lady, who could have been Spinoza's mother, opened the door and let us in. It turned out that the house was actually a national museum, and she was the caretaker, but one would never have known it. On the ground floor, we were shown Spinoza's study and his optical lens-grinding workshop. In the study was a desk on which were still two of Spinoza's quills, and photographic copies of his letters. (The originals are in the National Museum) Then she opened what appeared to be a cupboard, and behold, there was Spinoza's library! The leather-bound volumes included Caesar's Gallic War, several books of Descartes, a number of Latin works, and also Maimonides' Guide to the Perplexed. I was spell-bound, and inadvertently reached out to touch them, but the old lady stopped me--it is forbidden. She told me the Nazis had carted the library off, but after the war, the whole collection was recovered and replaced by experts exactly as Spinoza had left them. She permitted Danny to take a photo-flash of them. I hope it turns out.

Enclosed are a pamphlet with a picture of the "Spinoza house", three interior photos of the Spanish-Portuguese synagogue in Amsterdam, and a pamphlet with a picture of the synagogue in Stockholm. I thought you might like to see them, but please save them for me on our return to the States (next July).

Ada has the job of keeping our friends informed about our travels but I'll ask you to wish them a happy New Year for me. Cordial regards to Cordelia,

Sincerely,

Abe

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK----

Judaism is a religious faith which gains its meaning when it is translated into action: DEED not CREED has been and is the cry of Prophetic Judaism. Man's exalted nature finds expression in the human order of events.

Next week each of us will have the opportunity to take part in a great democratic drama: our elections. Furthermore, we have an obligation to express ourselves.

For the welfare of each of us it is essential that we consider well the calling of a Kentucky Constitutional Convention. Many of our commonwealth's functions are, under our present Constitution, illegal. The present situation is farcical and may well be critical for the growth of our State.

When voting for any candidate let us vote out of the depth of our intellect; not out of illogical prejudice. Our own security is tied to a secure and free America.

Challenges have faced our nation and new ones are on the horizon. Let us, each one, express ourselves and share the responsibility for our future.

SABBATH EVE SERVICES FOR THE HOME

It is appropriate that we consecrate the Sabbath each week calling to mind the beauty of the occasion and the warmth that it can bring to the family hearth. We urge you to make this service a part of your Sabbath evening.

Before starting the Friday evening meal, the mother kindles the lights (two or more candles) and recites the following blessing:

BORUCH ATTO ADONOI ELOHENU MELECH HO'OLOM ASHER
KIDDUSHONU B'MITZVOSOV L'HADLIK NER SHE' SHABBOS.

Praised be Thou, O Lord, our God, King of the universe, who hast sanctified us by Thy commandments, and hast commanded us to kindle the Sabbath lights.

May our home be consecrated, O God, by Thy light. May it shine upon us all in blessing, as the light of love and truth, the light of peace and good will. Amen.

The father then recites the Kiddush (Sanctification) for the Sabbath:

Praised be Thou, O Lord, our God, King of the universe, who hast sanctified us by Thy commandments; and, in Thy love, hast given us the holy Sabbath, as a sign of an everlasting covenant between Thee and the children of Israel. May we, by the celebration of the Sabbath, be consecrated to Thy service, and become sharers in the blessings of Thy truth. Blessed art Thou, O Lord, who sanctifiest the Sabbath.

Lifting the cup of wine, the following blessing is pronounced:

BORUCH ATTO ADONOI ELOHENU MELECH HO'OLOM
BORE P'RI HAGGOFEN.

Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who hast created the fruit of the vine.

All members at the table then drink the wine.

The following blessing over the bread concludes the service:

BORUCH ATTO ADONOI ELOHENU MELECH HO'OLOM
HAMOTZI LECHEM MIN HO'ORETZ

Praised be Thou, O Lord our God, King of the universe, who bringest forth bread from the earth.

Each person partakes of the bread. To encourage the interest and participation of the children, the blessings over the wine and bread are frequently recited by various members of the family.

Grace after meals:

BORUCH ATTO ADONOI HAZON ES HAKOL

Praised be Thou, O Lord, who sustainest all living beings. Praised be Thou, our God, of whose we have partaken. In Thy kindness, Thou hast kept us until now; in the future, too, mayest Thou sustain us. May we not become dependent upon men, but let us rather depend upon Thee, who art ever merciful and gracious.

BEST WISHES

For a speedy recovery to Mrs. Sol Bloomfield.

The following letter of thanks was received from Mrs. Dora Storm, Director, County Welfare Department, for the Temple's Sukkos offering:

Dear Rabbi:

Please express our sincere thanks to the children and parents of your Temple who participated in the collection of canned goods for the "needy people".

At this time of year, work is scarce on the farms and in the yards where the most of our needy people secure their work, and they are grateful for any assistance they may receive. We are sure they will be very thankful when they come to our office asking for help, to take home with them a can of this food.

Again, many thanks, and with best wishes I am

Very truly yours,

Mrs. Dora T. Storm

THOUGHTS ON GROWING OLDER

"Lord, Thou knowest better than I know myself that I am growing older, and will someday be old. Keep me from getting talkative, and particularly from the fatal habit of thinking I must say something on every subject and on every occasion. Release me from craving to try to straighten out everybody's affairs. Keep my mind free from the recital of endless details—give me wings to get to the point. I ask for grace enough to listen to the tales of others' pains. Help me to endure them with patience. But seal my lips on my own aches and pains—they are increasing and my love of rehearsing them is becoming sweeter as the years go by. Teach me the glorious lesson that occasionally it is possible that I may be mistaken. Keep me reasonably sweet; I do not want to be a saint—some of them are so hard to live with—but a sour old individual is one of the crowning works of the devil. Make me thoughtful, but not moody; helpful, but not bossy. With my vast store of wisdom, it seems a pity not to use it all—but Thou knowest, Lord, that I want a few friends at the end."

Your Rabbi would appreciate being advised of any Congregants to whom he may be of service in any way.

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK

A time comes in the life of every individual when he must determine the future course of his life. This is particularly true as one enters the "middle years". On this decision the entire future rests.

This is equally true of social institutions, including congregations. It is true of our Congregation. As we plan for the future, we must decide how we feel about it, what we want it to be and to do, and finally, what will we do about it.

Fortunately, a great number of our members want our Congregation to grow in spirit and in service. And they realize that a commitment is necessary. Such is vital if our Temple is to play the central and meaningful role in our lives.

I would value your personal suggestions and constructive recommendations.

TWO TEMPLES

A Builder built a temple
He wrought it with grace and skill;
Pillars and groins and arches
All fashioned to work his will.
Men said, as they saw its beauty,
"It shall never know decay;
Great is thy skill, O Builder!
Thy fame shall endure for aye."

A Teacher built a temple
With loving and infinite care,
Planing each arch with patience,
Laying each stone with prayer.
None praised her unceasing efforts,
None knew of her wondrous plan,
For the Temple the Teacher built
Was unseen by the eyes of man.

Gone is the Builder's temple,
Crumpled into dust;
Low lies each stately pillar,
Food for consuming rust.
But the temple the Teacher built
Will last while the ages roll,
For that beautiful unseen temple
Was a child's immortal soul.

To the family of Harry Abraham on his death last week.

* * * * *

There will be a Family Chanukah Service on Friday, December 14th. The children having birthdays during the month of December will be blessed by the Rabbi.

CHANUKAH SERVICE IN THE HOME

To commemorate the miracle of the cruse of oil that lasted eight days, the Chanukah Menorah is kindled throughout the eight days of the Festival. One light is kindled on the first night, and an additional one is lit on each succeeding evening until eight lights are burning on the eighth day. The Shamas is a special candle which is used in lighting the others. Yellow candles are generally used and the Menorah is placed in a conspicuous place.

The Chanukah lights should be kindled as soon as possible after nightfall. On Friday, the lights are kindled before the beginning of the Sabbath. The following service should be participated in by the entire family.

Light the first candle on Tuesday evening, December 13th.

Before kindling the lights on all the evenings of Chanukah, the following blessings are recited:

RABBI'S COLUMN

The following is quoted from the Solel Temple Bulletin of Chicago. It points up some of the challenges which are ours.

" In the past few months two Jewish friends of mine became Christians. Neither was young; neither converted because of a desire to marry a Christian. One became a Catholic, one a high-church Episcopalian. It is true that each had gone through a personal crisis in the last year which was the occasion for turning to Christianity. But many other Jews have begun to convert with no such personal extremity.

My wild guess is that of the 600-odd kids in our Religious School perhaps thirty or forty at least will end their lives as Christians. Of the almost 900 adults we have, some twenty will, I think, convert to Christianity. I would predict in America the greatest increase in apostasy that Jewish history has ever known.

In part, this is an inevitable by-product of freedom. When we finally reach equality, when we are finally and fully American, we shall have opportunities to share experience with Americans that we have never shared before. One of these great new opportunities is Christianity.

Most Jews, even very sophisticated ones, have a narrow and ignorant picture of Christianity. Perhaps all of us are still the victims of our ancestors' victimization and prejudice. But our children will see Christianity for what it is: a noble and gorgeous response to the problems of life. Some of them will become Christians to be more American, some to enjoy the fellowship and and aesthetics of Chartres, Bach, Rouault. And some will become Christians in revulsion against contemporary Judaism.

A Judaism which has only organizations, socializing and fund-raising cannot speak to souls in crisis. Parents whose Judaism is just talk or just for their children cannot expect their children to buy it. A Judaism without prayer or study or guts will not hold the sensitive or the unhappy or the brilliant. They will seek out alternatives and many will find the Church. We must not be surprised at this outcome. Our bland and thoughtless Judaism will not forever win the new generation. They will demand something serious and deep. If we do not offer them Maimonides and Buber, they will find Tillich and St. Thomas. If we do not help them read the Bible, they will find someone who can. If we don't find in our faith a way to suffer, to live and to serve, they will look somewhere else.

When they contract out of Judaism, and surely many of them will, it will be our fault."

LETTERS WE ENJOY RECEIVING:

"Dear Mrs. Barrett,

Thank you for the check, but I am afraid I don't know what it is for. If it is for the Sunday on which I substituted in Religious School, I cannot accept it. Doing something like that is little enough for me to do in return for all the benefits my children have received from the Sunday School. So please use the money for some worthwhile purpose at the school.

 Sincerely,"

Dear Rabbi Rosenbloom,

"On behalf of the Chapel Committee and of Otterbein College I wish to thank you for coming to our campus, for your excellent address in chapel, and for your participation in two of our morning classes. We feel that you have helped many of us to understand Judaism better and to appreciate more the heritage we share.

RABBI'S COLUMN

How fortunate we are to be Jewish! Two opportunities to make resolutions each year, two chances to re-examine ourselves, to attempt to change ourselves (for the better) we hope. A religious new year and a secular new year with the same purpose.

On the other hand, perhaps we are not so fortunate. We must do this twice--others only once, and then, through an alcoholic haze. How wonderful that our more call for introspection on this day and then set a behavior pattern (of partying and drinking and football games) which effectively make account-taking impossible. The Saturnalia may have been for the Romans, but we have preserved its essential features.

With this warning, perhaps we can find a moment or two to separate the sacred from the profane on January 1st, and if it is not too painful, find something essentially good in ourselves and in our society which we can attempt to develop this year.

RELIGION: SOMETHING TO BE DISCOVERED

What is it we want for our children? What is it we want their Jewishness to mean to them?

We want them to be at home in their Jewishness, to have that comfortable sense of belonging which is such a rarity among us.

We want their Jewishness to be neither a burden, nor a source of shame or contempt to them. Nor do we want them to wear it too ostentatiously, to flaunt it before the world, to insert it clumsily into every situation. We want their Jewishness to be as natural to them as their breathing.

We want our children to have a religious attitude toward life, to have a reverence for all that enhances life; to develop a sense of awe and mystery about the known as well as the unknown, to be warmed by the sun of knowledge; to have a feeling for beauty, and all that issues from being a part of this earth and this life. We want life and the religious understanding of it to be a joyous thing.

We want our children to appreciate the beauty and the richness of our customs and ceremonies, and to observe them, not out of a sense of guilt, not out of a belief in their magical quality, not even to hallow the memory of an ancestor; but rather as an expression of their own felt needs, as a part of their own recognition that a symbol or a ceremony is a technique of concretizing certain values, a way of clothing ideals with flesh. We want them to understand that the custom or ceremony is not as important as the feeling tones which surround it. * * * * *

We want them to appreciate that their religion is concerned with all reality; that it can flourish only when the mind is open and free;
that it can be destructive when it enslaves men to outworn beliefs and archaic patterns of thought;
and that no religion is worth its salt unless it can liberate rather than shackle. We want them to understand that their religion (as our Prayer Book states it) welcomes all truth, whether shining from the annals of ancient revelation or reaching us through the seers of our own time.

We want our children to learn how to love, to love themselves, to love one another, to love humanity--for the world needs so much love.

THREE DAYS

There are two days in the week upon which and about which I never worry--two carefree days, kept sacredly free from fear and apprehension. One of these days is yesterday. Yesterday with its cares and frets and all its pains and aches, all its faults, its mistakes and blunders, has passed forever beyond my recall. It was mine--it is God's.

And the other day that I do not worry about is tomorrow. Tomorrow with all its possible adversities, its burdens, its perils, its large promise and poor performance; its failures and mistakes is as far beyond my mastery as its dead sister, Yesterday. Tomorrow is God's day, it will be mine.

There is left for myself then but one day in the week--today. Any man can fight the battles of today. Any woman can carry the burdens of just one day; any man can resist the temptation of today. It is only when we wilfully add the burdens of those two awful eternities, yesterday and tomorrow--such burdens as only the Mighty God can sustain--that we break down. It is not the experience of today that drives men mad; it is the remorse for something that happened yesterday and dread of what tomorrow may disclose. These are God's days, leave them with Him.
