Game Ten

FLORIDA

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA—Gainesville, Fla. Gators. Enrollment 24,100. Athletic Director Ray Graves. Football Coach Doug Dickey. Publicist Norm Carlson. Colors Orange and Blue.

SERIES HISTORY: A two-point win in Gainesville last year evened the Wildcat-Gator series at 12 games each after Kentucky had stayed ahead since whipping the Gators 51-0 in Lexington in 1917. Through 1955 the Wildcats held a 12-4 advantage, with Florida managing only a pair of victories prior to 1952. An unusual moment occurred in 1955, when Delmar Hughes, Wildcat quarterback sidelined earlier in the game with a broken nose, came off the bench and kicked a 20-yard field goal to give U.K. a 10-7 decision. A year later, Lou Michaels kicked a rain-soaked football 34 yards with two seconds remaining in the first half to put the Wildcats ahead to stay. After a 10-year lapse, the series was resumed in 1967, with Florida winning 14-7, beginning a streak that now stands at eight straight.

LAST MEETING: Nov. 17, 1973 (Gainesville) U.K. 18, UF 20—Bothered by mistakes and injuries, Kentucky seemed hopelessly beaten for three quarters in Gainesville. However, Ernie Lewis, the Wildcats' third quarterback of the day, ignited a rally that left Florida hanging by its fingernails, possibly saved only by a flying interception on the game's second to last play. Trailing 20-3, entering the last quarter, Kentucky stormed back for a couple of quick touchdowns plus a two-point conversion. The Wildcats got their first TD on a five-yard pass from Lewis to Elmore Stephens and the second on a five-yard run by Bill Bartos. With less than 40 seconds on the clock and no time out remaining, Lewis took the snap at the Florida 22, rolled to his left and was tackled by David Hitchcock for a damaging seven-yard loss to the 29. Lewis passed out-of-bounds quickly to stop the clock and then came back with a sideline pattern to Bishop, virtually the only option open as U.K. sought to improve its field goal position. Wayne Fields made an acrobatic interception at his own 17 to thwart the threat.

TODAY'S GAME: "We know we have to win to even be considered in any bowl picture and the job is now doubly hard."

Speaking was University of Kentucky head football coach Fran Curci, whose Wildcats romped over Peach Bowl-bound Vanderbilt, 38-12, during homecoming Saturday at Commonwealth Stadium.

Making today's game with Sugar Bowl-bound Florida double tough is the loss of star running back Sonny Collins, who broke a bone in his right leg while scoring a touchdown to give the Cats a 21-0 lead in the second quarter.

Collins left the game with 5:26 remaining in the half, after having rushed 76 yards in 11 carries, falling just 30 yards short of hitting the 1,000-yard mark this season.

The broken bone—the fibula—is the outer and smaller of the two bones in the human leg. It contributes to the stability of the ankle, rather than the weight-bearing function. It usually takes from six to 10 weeks for a fracture of the bone to heal.

Collins finishes the season with 177 carries and 970 yards, a game average of 107.8 and a per carry average of 5.5. He has scored five touchdowns.

Curci said practice this week would determine who moves to Collins' starting position. Joe Dipre, who has been backing up Collins, carried seven times for 36 yards against Vanderbilt and has a season total of 28 carries for 138 yards.

Freshman Ken Northington had an 80-yard touchdown carry. He saw his first varsity action a week earlier, carrying two times for one yard against Tulane.

Mike Fanuzzi, named the game's homecoming star and the ABC offensive player of the game, now has carried 151 times for 770 yards and 10 touchdowns, including two against the Commodores. Steve Campassi has 99 carries for 441 yards.

Curci called Saturday a "super day for the state of Kentucky . . . a real opportunity to show ourselves off."

"The cooperation of the weather, the band, fans and all the things that make up a great game were there. It was spectacular, and one of those games we felt that Kentucky was bound to have," he said.

"Our offense moved the ball with precision and our defense was ferocious. Perhaps the most obvious plus mark was our kicking game. John Pierce made all his kicks and John Tatterson really boomed the ball (five for 255 yards)."

Pierce kicked three field goals, tying a record set by Bobby Jones, his coach at Harrison County High, against Auburn in 1970. Pierce also tied his school record kick of 48 yards set this year against Louisiana State.

Florida is coming off a 17-16 upset loss to Georgia at Jacksonville. The Gators came from behind once to take a 10-9 lead and roared to a touchdown in the final half-minute of the game to make it 17-16, but failed in a passing attempt for a two-point conversion.

Georgia quarterback Matt Robinson threw a two-point conversion to Richard Appleby after Georgia's last touchdown. That made the difference.

Florida's record is now 7-2, with three of the wins and two losses coming in Southeastern Conference play.

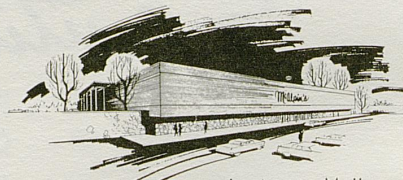

Kentucky has a 5-4 record overall and is 2-2 in the conference.

MEMORIAL

Kentucky's athletic complex off Cooper Drive was named "The Bernie A. Shively Sports Center" in April, 1969, in memory of the distinguished Wildcat director of athletics who died of a heart attack at his home December 10, 1967.

Shively joined the Kentucky staff in 1927 as football line coach, following a brilliant athletic career at Illinois. An All-American as a blocking guard for Red Grange, he also was Big Ten heavyweight wrestling champion and a track standout. He was named to the Helms Hall of Fame in 1972.

In 1933, he was appointed head of the UK Physical Education Department, and five years later became director of athletics. He continued coaching until 1946, handling football, track and baseball at various times.

FRAN CURCI

Head Football Coach

In one excitement-packed year, Fran Curci transformed the University of Kentucky football program into an interesting and heart-warming experience for a record number of fans attending Wildcat games.

An average of more than 50,000 persons watched the five home games in new Commonwealth Stadium, while six "away" games drew large crowds to see the rejuvenated Wildcats, who led the nation in percentage of increased attendance.

The season record of five wins and six losses against tough competition, including six teams involved in bowl games, was the best since the 1965 team finished 8-4. The 'Cats tied Florida and Georgia for fifth place in the conference, also the best U.K. league record in eight years.

Better yet, nobody romped over the Wildcats. They led mighty Alabama, 14-0, at halftime before falling, 28-14, and led LSU, 21-7, at intermission before losing, 28-21, in Baton Rouge. In each case, Curci felt a lack of depth was the cause of the Wildcat loss.

Upset victims included Georgia, Mississippi State and nationally ranked Tulane, which came to Lexington with an undefeated record.

At the end of the season, many honors were accorded Curci, including United Press International "SEC Coach of the Year," Inside Kentucky Sports "Kentucky Coach of the Year," and Courier-Journal "Man of the Year" in Kentuckiana sports.

One of his big problems upon arriving in Lexington was to convince the players and fans that Kentucky could win; after an opening victory over Virginia Tech, he told the squad that a person would have thought they had lost, they had to learn to win. By the end of the season, the Wildcats became known as a team that never gave up, and twice came from far behind to lose by only two points to bowl-bound teams.

Curci came to U.K. in December 1972 from his alma mater, the University of Miami, Fla., where he was head coach two years. He started his career as freshman coach there in 1962 after making All-

America and playing as a 5-foot 9, 152 lb. quarterback for the old Dallas Texans of the AFL.

In four years, his Hurricane freshman teams won 12 and lost two games. He then served as a varsity assistant two years (1966-1967), and the Hurricanes participating in the bowl games both those years.

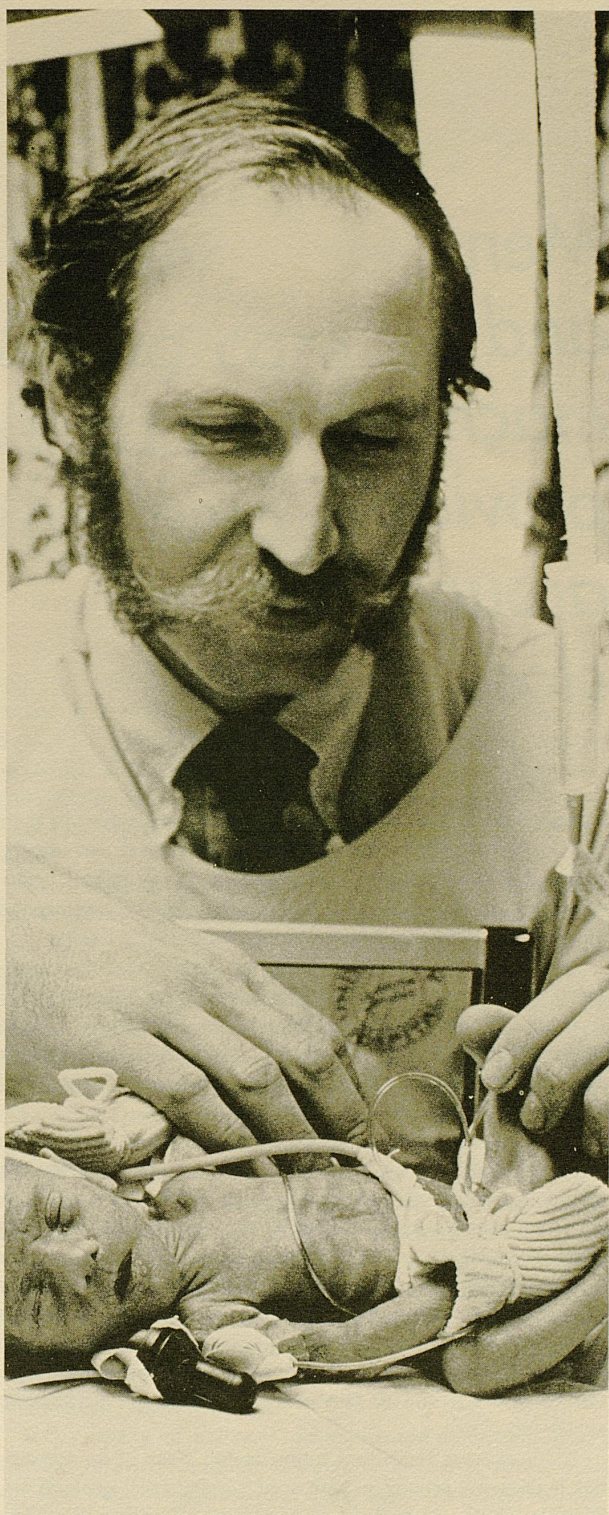

Curci was tapped by the University of Tampa in 1968 to see what he could do about a faltering football program; in three campaigns, he wrote one of the most amazing success stories in college football.

In his first year, he put together a 7-3 season, including victories over Mississippi State and Tulane. That earned for him the Florida Sports Writers Association "Coach of the Year" award, a recognition repeated in 1970. His 1969 season was a brilliant 8-2 affair. His 10-1 record in 1970 also included a 31-14 triumph over Miami and brought the Tampans the nation's No. 1 College Division ranking as well as bringing Curci College Division "Coach of the Year" runner-up honors.

He took over as Miami grid boss Dec. 19, 1970, and left the program there in good shape for his successor.

Curci has been selected four times to coach in all-star games. He assisted Bear Bryant with the South team in Tampa's first annual American Bowl game three years ago, then served as South head coach the next year.

He is married to the former Miss Patricia Ann Taylor of Louisville. They have four children, Angela 13, Frankie 11, Mary Teresa 10 and Jimmie 8.

Dr. Juda Jona, assistant professor of pediatric surgery at UK Hospital, examines Lee Allen Bailey after he performed a successful operation to remove a bowel obstruction. Lee Allen was then cared for in the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit.

UK Hospital's Neonatal Intensive Care Unit:

A constant vigil over the very young

BY DEBRA RANKIN

When Lee Allen Bailey was only a few days old, he was transferred from Ashland to the University of Kentucky Hospital for an operation critical to his survival. After the successful operation, Lee Allen—a premature baby weighing just over one pound—required constant 24-hour medical and nursing care.

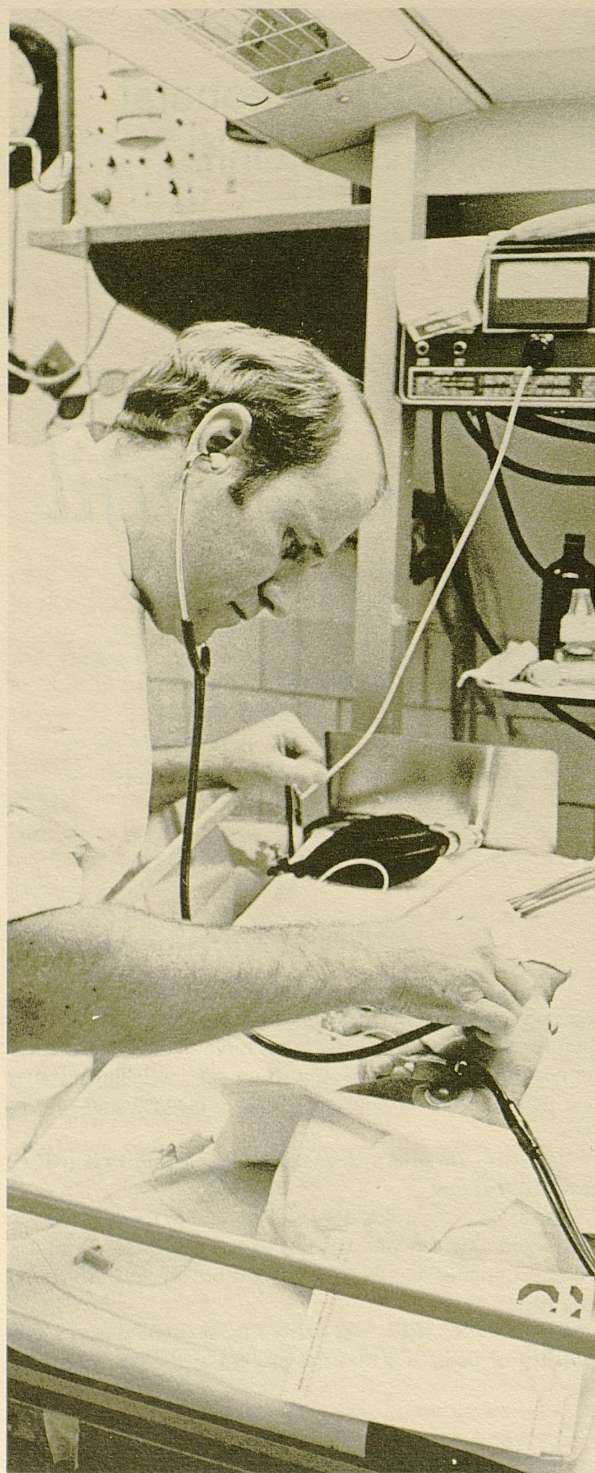

University Hospital's Neonatal Intensive Care Unit (NICU) provided that care.

"We try to take a sick baby and work with it as intensely as you would a person who has just had a heart attack," said Dr. Douglas Cunningham, director of newborn services, University Hospital.

The name for NICU was derived from neonatology, a subspecialty of pediatrics that has evolved in the past ten years.

CONTINUED

Debra Rankin is a writer for the University of Kentucky's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center Office of Public Information and Services.

Dr. Douglas Cunningham, director of newborn services at UK Hospital, checks the heart rate of an infant in the NICU.

Men and machines provide around the clock monitor

Neonatology is the care of sick or premature babies in their first critical days. The need for intensive medical and nursing care has created hospital units which focus on infants exclusively and provide them with 24-hour medical and nursing care as in adult surgical, medical or cardiac intensive care units.

Physician care, nursing care, support personnel and sophisticated equipment are all vital components of the NICU.

Once the physician has determined the nature of the infant's illness, the infant requires constant round-the-clock care. In the intensive care unit the nurses have achieved a high level of nursing skill and specialization.

"The nurse needs a thorough understanding of what the physician does to provide ultimate care. She must possess the knowledge to recognize problems and to anticipate and prevent any complications," says Kathy Tepas, R.N. and head nurse in the NICU.

One of the major problems in newborns is a malfunction termed the respiratory distress syndrome. The baby's lungs are premature and breathing is difficult because the air sacs of the lungs tend to collapse. A machine is needed to provide constant pressure to the air sacs so that the baby will not become exhausted.

"This process requires a sophisticated piece of equipment, but it does not replace experienced nursing care, explains Dr. Nirmala Desai, instructor, department of pediatrics. "The nurse must constantly monitor the oxygen concentration since too much can cause blindness or damage the lungs."

Another important part of the staff figuring prominently in the total care of the infant is the support personnel. Lab technicians, inhalation therapists, and x-ray technicians daily and even hourly are called upon to assist the doctors and nurses in caring for our sick babies. Hospital maintenance crews, housekeeping personnel, pharmacy central supply personnel, electrical technicians and specialists keep sophisticated equipment in working order. Ward clerks and secretaries keep careful records of the many events surrounding the babies.

The final contributing element to the acute and intense care for the infant is the specialized equipment. The space age has been a very important factor in the development of technology for the practice of neonatology. In the last five years the miniaturization of equipment has enabled physicians to provide acute and intense care for babies with small electrical instruments which focus on infants. For example, transistorized monitors record the temperature, respiration, heart rate and oxygen concentration of a baby on a 24-hour basis.

One of the most important additions to the NICU is the open infant intensive care bed. This bed places the baby at waist level, thus more accessible to nursing care. The bed is equipped for maximum illumination. A special transistorized sensor records the infant's temperature and a relay system then provides a constant controlled temperature environment.

"The open infant special care bed enables closer contact with the infant. Taking care of a sick baby in a traditional incubator is like making a cake with boxing gloves on," Dr. Cunningham remarked.

Today, many of the new techniques and equipment available at University Hospital can save those babies whose fate may have been hopeless several years ago. The skilled personnel and sophisticated equipment require a tremendous amount of money. Community resources should be pooled to avoid any duplication of efforts and funds.

In Kentucky there are two regional referral hospitals—

Infant transport system in future plans for UK hospital

University Hospital which serves Central and Eastern Kentucky and University of Louisville—affiliated General Hospital which serves Western Kentucky.

A planned systematic approach to perinatal (care of mother and infant at birth) medical care is therefore important to Kentuckians. Three levels of care are involved in this process—primary, secondary and tertiary.

Primary or the most basic care would be provided by each community hospital.

A ring of secondary care areas supporting the UK Medical Center would be set up in areas such as Danville, Somerset, Morehead, Ashland and Harlan.

Finally, at the center of a large patient population a tertiary care center is required to make intensive obstetrical and neonatal care economically feasible to maintain physician and support personnel skills.

According to a report made by Dr. Abe Fosson, assistant professor of pediatrics, this planned systematic approach is important for several reasons. Maternal, fetal and neonatal mortality can be reduced if problems are identified early and the best techniques applied. Critically ill newborns treated with advanced techniques survive with significantly less damage than in previous decades.

This type of "regionalization" would also require the development of special teams and portable equipment for transportation of sick infants to the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit from outlying hospitals.

Transporting sick babies can be very difficult and dangerous. Developing an infant transport system composed of a doctor, nurse, portable incubator and special medical equipment is included in future plans for University Hospital's NICU, according to Dr. Cunningham.

These plans are in keeping with University Hospital's role as a regional referral center serving all of Central and Eastern Kentucky. The Neonatal Intensive Care Unit is one of many components of University Hospital which strives to provide total health care for Kentuckians.

(Very often the margin of excellence in a Hospital or Medical Center—be it one of private or public nature—is achieved through private gift support from individuals, corporations or foundations. We frequently find that gifts in kind—that is gifts of significant equipment—are of particular value in improving our patient care, education and research activities.)

Dr. Cunningham and Dr. Nirmala Desai, instructor of pediatrics, discuss the care of one of the infants in NICU.

Alumni News Notes

A hearty welcome to the members of the class of 1954 who are with us this afternoon for their 20th reunion. Some of the memories they're recalling are UK's 1952 victory at the Cotton Bowl and the retiring of Babe Parilli's No. 10; an enrollment of 5,699 in 1953 and a 1.3 grade point average requirement for all social organizations, beating Tennessee for the first time in 18 years while going undefeated in the '53-'54 basketball season with the Big Three—Hagan, Ramsey and Tsioropolus—leading the way to the championship in the first UKIT, but bowing out of the NCAA championship finals when the three were declared ineligible.

There's still time to make your reservations for the Trounce Tennessee Brunch in Knoxville next weekend. The seated brunch begins at 10:30 a.m., EST at the Hyatt Regency. Call the Alumni Association, 258-8906, and we'll set a place for you. Cost of the brunch is $3.50 per person. Transportation to Neyland Stadium is extra and tickets are sold by the Hyatt-Regency.

Alumni are currently balloting for a new member to the University of Kentucky Board of Trustees. Ballots have been mailed, as directed by state law, to all graduates of the University except those in the most recent class. From the three frontrunners, Kentucky's governor will appoint one alumnus to serve a four-year term on the Board. Alumni seeking the post this year are Smith D. Broadbent Jr. '34 of Cadiz, Mrs. Robert (Betty Carol) Clark '52 of Glasgow, Dr. Harry C. Denham '41 of Maysville, Charles O. Landrum '39 of Covington, John C. Nichols '53 of Louisville, and Judge Robert M. Spragens '43 of Lebanon.

When you lose a particularly dear friend, there is a strong desire to "do something!" to insure that the memory of his warmth, joy, dedication and expertise live on. That is the aim of the "Joe Creason Lecture Series" which the Alumni Association, Bingham Enterprises Foundation and the University of Kentucky recently announced.

Joe Creason has been hailed as "a crack newspaperman" who inspired trust in those about whom he wrote. The Creason wit and humor, his friendly manner and his love for Kentucky always showed through his writings for the Louisville Courier-Journal and the Courier-Journal and Times Magazine. He was a Kentuckian—a native of Benton ("The only town in which I was born."), a graduate of UK's class of 1940, an avid booster of his Alma Mater, and national president of the UK Alumni Association in 1969-70. Through his newspaper column, "Joe Creason's Kentucky", his book of the same title, a radio series and his speech-making, he is remembered as a man who was never too busy to enjoy people.

It is fitting, therefore, that this great Kentuckian should be honored through a living memorial in his name at UK. "The Joe Creason Lecture Series" will annually bring to our campus an outstanding journalist to meet and talk with students, take part in seminars with other Kentucky journalists, and speak before an assemblage of students, faculty and the general public.

"The Joe Creason Lecture Series" will be made possible in part through a matching grant from the Bingham Enterprises Foundation of Kentucky. All gifts donated by alumni and friends will be matched by the Foundation and revenue from the invested gifts will enable the series to continue for years to come.

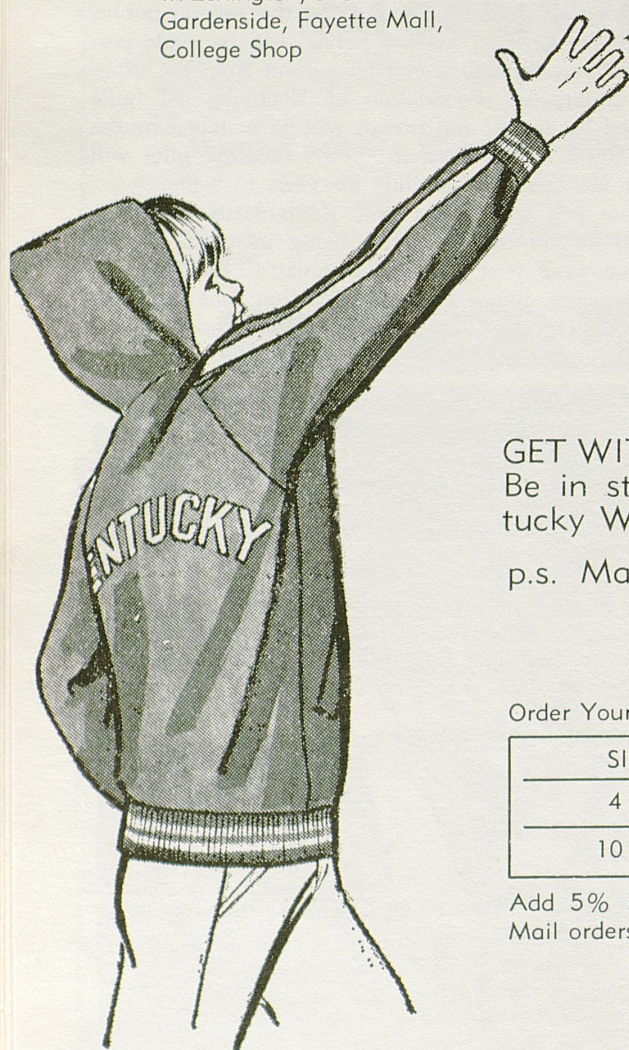

Please join with many other Kentuckians who have already begun to create this living memorial to Joe Creason. Send your contribution today to the Office of Development, Room 204 Administration Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506. Checks should be made payable to the University of Kentucky.

The UK student of the 70's is both a dreamer and a doer!

BY JACKIE BONDURANT
UK Information Services

The University of Kentucky recognizes that for each of its nearly 35,000 students there are that many dreams—each one as unique as the individual who pursues it.

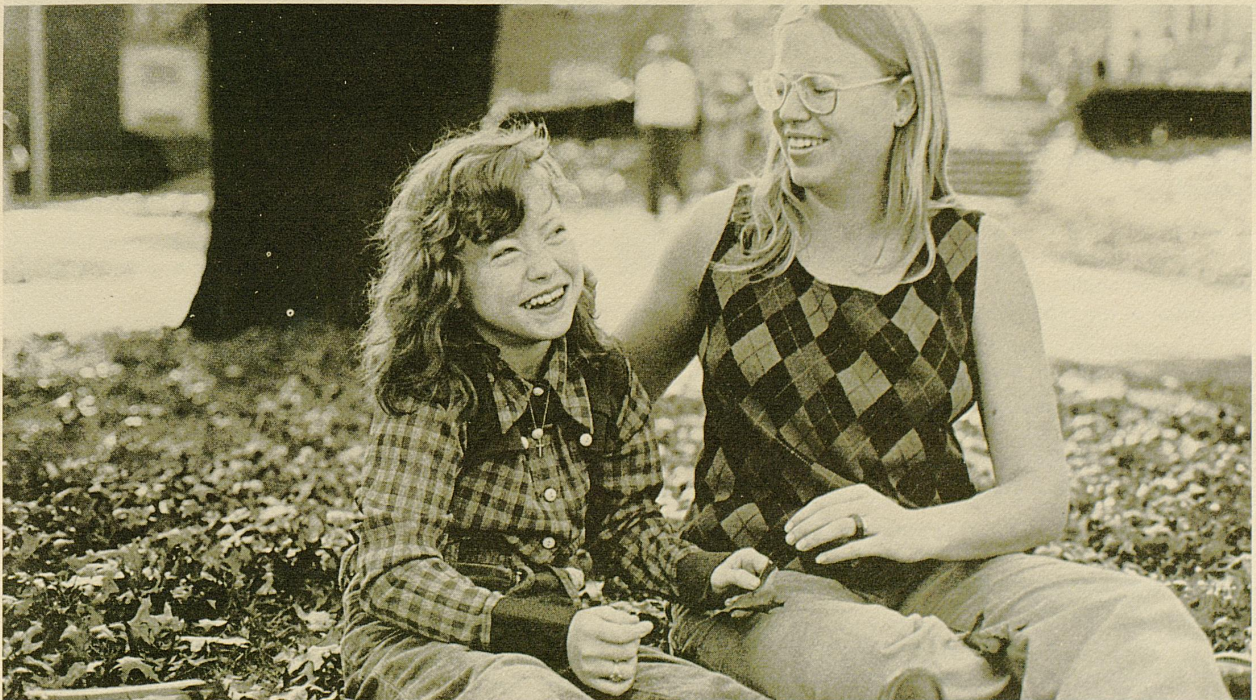

A closer look at the UK student of the 70's—the undergraduate in particular—will show that the “typical” UK student may be 18 years old, or 80 years old; his average work load of 14 credit hours may be completed via lecture classes in the White Hall Classroom building, or obtained via a 40-hour work week with Lexington's metro government.

UK educators also recognized the vanishing four-year time clock. Some students prefer two and one-half to three-year schedules while others find four and one-half or five-year schedules more to their liking.

Dr. John B. Stephenson, UK dean of undergraduate studies,

Ed younger, left, a UK senior psychology major from Cinnaminson, N. J., works with a child at a special day care center on the UK campus. Younger earns 15 credit hours for his work with UK's Programmed Environment Project.

Mrs. Kathy Bashor, right, met 13-year-old Betty Lou Smith last spring at Lexington's Cardinal Hill Hospital. The UK senior and her husband, Allan, have adopted Betty Lou and live in Bath County where Allan is a UK agricultural extension agent.

The 70's student:

A 'practical idealist' who has . . .

describes the UK student of the 70's as a practical idealist. "We realize that it is impossible to generalize across the campus," he says. "Statistics show that this generation is somewhat more career minded—perhaps because of our economic situation and parental influence. They also tend to be less interested in self-fulfillment and more interested in getting their money's worth."

Student surveys, like those compiled by the American College Test (ACT) Program, and the American Council on Education (ACE) point out that most freshmen choose to attend UK because of its "good academic reputation."

In particular, a significant number of transfer students choose UK because of the availability of special educational programs. A desire to live away from home, low tuition, a good athletic reputation, and the offer of financial assistance also ranked among the important reasons for choosing UK.

A 1970 survey showed that 41 per cent of UK entering freshmen thought it essential to be well-off financially. In 1973, the figure rose to 60 per cent. In 1970, 74 per cent thought it essential to develop a philosophy of life, and in 1973, the number dropped to 62 per cent.

By contrast, the response to helping others less fortunate than themselves found 57.5 per cent of the freshmen in 1970 thought it essential. In 1973, some 63 per cent thought it essential.

Denim for everyday male and female attire, increasing use of bicycles, and the continual increase in students who combine jobs and studies are obvious factors in Dean Stephenson's description of the "practical idealists."

"Students wear denim because it is comfortable and economical; they ride bikes because they can park next to the door, and they work and go to school not only for the money, but for the experience so necessary for later job interviews," he says.

An interview with a group of corridor advisors—UK upper-classmen and women who live in residence halls and assist the staff with programming and coordinating special events—indicated that today's UK student is most concerned with his grade point average.

"The pressure is tremendous," one student remarks. "You're in school two days and suddenly you're two weeks behind."

Advisors who live in the freshmen residence halls said that, generally, freshmen need both the fall and spring semesters to become acclimated to their new surroundings.

"What woke me up that first year," one student says, "was points to increased enrollments in agriculture, business and economics, library science, and social work—areas where the job market is good.

that first small slip of paper I got through the campus mail—midterm grades."

Dr. Lewis W. Cochran, vice president for academic affairs,

"Our college of education is a good example," Dr. Cochran says. "The number of students majoring in secondary and elementary education has decreased some seven per cent during the past four years, while enrollment in special education and preschool training has increased."

In addition, for one reason or another, some students are hesitant to become too specialized as undergraduates. One student, for example, plans to enter medical school following his graduation in May. His major is political science. "If I am not accepted into med school, I will be eligible for law school," he comments.

... the world for a classroom

Dr. Cochran points to the UK faculty advisor as the key to a successful program for higher education. "The students' option to structure his own academic program is a unique learning experience in itself—if guided by an informed and interested advisor," he says.

Greater freedom in choice of majors and the means of obtaining credit for various forms of learning situations have come about at UK since the creation of the office for undergraduate studies.

The topical major, which has been in existence for some 20 years at UK, suddenly was rediscovered and publicized. Special testing for students who feel they have sufficient knowledge in certain areas is made available not only on the college level, but also for high school students who desire to be tested and receive college credit for classes prior to formal enrollment.

More recently, the University created an Office of Experiential Education and named Dr. Robert Sexton as director. Experiential, or off-campus, education at UK is currently one of the most sophisticated programs in the United States.

The program has enrolled some 2,500 students who are earning credit for work outside the classroom. These special classrooms may be the U. S. Congress in Washington, D. C., the counselor's office in a center for drug abusers, or the newsroom of a weekly newspaper.

A newly published catalog of off-campus learning opportunities in Kentucky entitled, "Options for Learning," defines the modern university as taking "the whole world as its campus, no longer recognizing geographical restrictions on learning."

Dean Stephenson and Dr. Sexton are quick to point out that experiential education is in no way a substitute for the traditional classroom lecture. Rather, it is a continuation and extension of the formal education begun in school, they explain.

The type and number of experiential education opportuni-meeting of the Urban County Council. Miss Estridge earns college credits for her work with local government.

Students now have 'diffused interests' ties are limited only by the students' imaginations. "After a student secures his summer job, he should come visit us and investigate the possibility of earning credit at the same time," Sexton says.

Dr. Cochran, in predicting UK's role in the coming years, stressed continued experimentation in new approaches to undergraduate education. Two major areas of concern for UK would be the growth of continuing education and an increased involvement of the UK faculty and staff in helping to lessen or eliminate various community, state and national problems.

Watergate, the economy, student activism and women's liberation make interesting conversations and long term papers, but most UK students agree that there is no longer a major cause to rally behind.

"The student body is split into hundreds of smaller interest groups," one UK senior explains. "What appears on the surface to be apathy is, I feel, diffused interests."

Why do students choose UK? "It has everything I need," explains a UK sophomore. "Good professors in my major field, a part-time job, and my girl."

Alison Lee, left, a UK junior majoring in environmental studies from Janesville, Wis., practices violin prior to a rehearsal of the UK orchestra in Memorial Hall. Chris Roberts, above, a sophomore in social professions, is earning 12 hours of college credit for his work as a counselor at the Off Broadway Drop-in Center in Lexington. He helps to re-establish drug abusers into the community and provides them with educational and vocational opportunities. Chris works 40 hours a week at the center, takes classes on the UK campus and is married.

You win some, lose some but you keep playing the game!

BY DAVID THOMPSON
UK Information Services

Athletes are prone to have their good days and their bad days. And, while the good days are the ones they want to remember, they can't always live down the bad ones.

Take the case of University of Kentucky Athletic Director Harry Lancaster. He was an outstanding football, basketball and baseball player for Paris High School and later Georgetown College. Needless to say, he had some fine days on the athletic field.

But there was one game, during his senior year at Paris High, which Lancaster would just as soon forget. That was against Georgetown High and played on Hinton Field, where he was destined to excel for Georgetown College.

All week long the late Clayton (Bedie) Thomason, coach of the opposition, had been telling his Buffaloes about Lancaster and what a fine back he was.

At halftime during the big game, one of the Georgetown players, Charles Bruin, went to the dressing room a little puzzled.

"Coach," he said to Thomason, "this Lancaster must not be playing today. Paris ain't got any good backs."

"I must have really had a bad day," laughs Lancaster. "Bedie never let me live that game down."

There's another story behind Lancaster's decision to go to Georgetown College.

"I went to Kentucky Wesleyan (when it was located in Winchester) for two days," he says. "Then one night, Blanton Collier (former UK and Cleveland Browns' coach) got me out of bed and told me I was going to Georgetown College (Collier's alma mater)."

"The only thing I was concerned about was whether I had a scholarship . . . and he assured me I did."

So Lancaster transferred, became the captain of the football and basketball teams for two years and was named All-Conference in both sports, three years running.

But since that one bad game between Paris and Georgetown, Lancaster's involvement in athletics has been onward and upward—as a player, a coach and athletic director.

After learning so well the techniques taught him by high school and college coaches, Lancaster passed on this knowledge to younger athletes as their coach.

He coached football and basketball at Georgetown College and Paris High School; basketball at Bagdad High and was principal and coach at Gleneyrie High—both in Shelby County—for six years.

Then, in 1942, he had his first connection with UK athletics, as physical education instructor and parttime basketball coach.

For 16 years he served as head baseball coach at the University and was Adolph Rupp's right-hand man for 22 years.

It was during those 22 years with the Wildcat basketball teams that Lancaster's biggest thrill came in sports.

It was the 1958 NCAA championships. Kentucky trounced Miami (Ohio) and Notre Dame, then held off Temple, 61-60, in the semifinals at Louisville.

"We had to play Seattle for the championship," recalls Lancaster. Nobody thought we had a chance and even we had doubts."

The night before the title game, Lancaster and parttime scout Baldy Gilb (former Henry Clay basketball coach) pooled their scouting reports on Seattle. "We came up with nothing. So we had to watch films . . . that's all we had to go on."

Kentucky won the NCAA title, 84-72, with a team known as the 'Fiddlin' Five.' "Nothing feels as great as that championship," Lancaster says.

Since 1968, Lancaster has been UK athletic director. The list of his accomplishments in those six years compares with his records as a coach—204 victories, 57 defeats as freshman basketball coach at UK, and 18-8 marks in baseball in 1959 and 1960, Kentucky's best seasons.

Improvements in UK athletic facilities under Lancaster include a new roof, ceiling, and paint job on the floor of Memorial Coliseum; an all-weather surface, additional seats and a press box for the varsity track; and, of course, Commonwealth Stadium.

In meeting with the State Property and Building Commission on July 8, 1971, concerning a new football facility, Lancaster said: "When Memorial Coliseum was completed (in 1950) the University of Kentucky had the finest athletic facility in the country for basketball."

But new facilities at other universities pushed Kentucky's down the ladder. Now, with the Commonwealth Stadium in its second year, and a Civic Center in downtown Lexington to be ready for the 1976 basketball season, "Kentucky should move back up the ladder," he says.

"When we get into the Civic Center," says Lancaster, "Kentucky will have one of the top facilities in the country. We have a fine football stadium, the best baseball field in the SEC, 50 yards of artificial turf on the practice football field and plans to add another 50 yards next year."

Lancaster will be retiring next year but that doesn't stop his continuous efforts in improving UK athletics, or from looking into the future about what he'd like to see the University accomplish.

"We hope to justify making Commonwealth Stadium into a bowl," he says. "The plans were drawn so we could easily expand the seating. I'd also like to see UK build two olympic-size swimming pools, one inside, and the other outdoors. The current one (in the coliseum) is outdated."

As Lancaster can attest, athletic directors have their highs and lows, just like athletes.

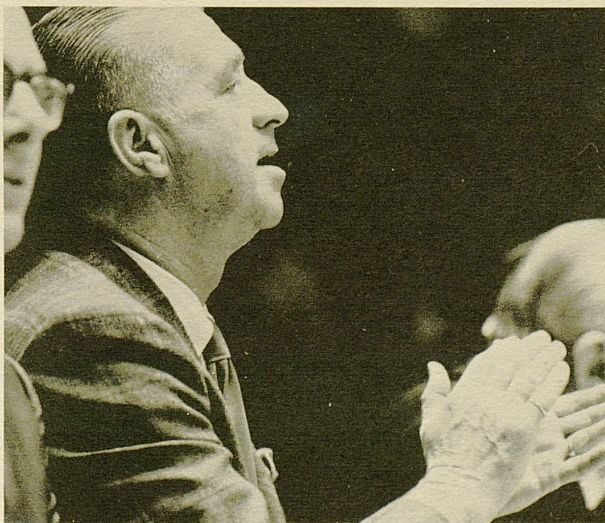

"This office (which he refers to as 'The Office of Complaints') doesn't generate happiness. You have a series of lows. You don't win very many in here.

"But it's easy to stand the frustrations when you have the support of the University and its administration. I've never worked with a finer person than Dr. (Otis) Singletary (UK President)."

Coach Lancaster is looking forward to his retirement.

"I've already made some plans. I'm going to move to Bardstown to be with my grandchildren (five of his seven grandchildren live there) and play some golf everyday the sun shines.

"I'm not going to fight retirement."

Cheers . . .

. . . and groans are part of Harry Lancaster's sideline expressions.

Blue-White Game Scheduled Nov. 20

Coach Joe B. Hall will unveil his Wildcats to the general public at the Blue-White game, sponsored annually by the K-Mens Association, at Memorial Coliseum Nov. 20. Tip-off is 7:30 p.m. in what promises to be one of the more exciting games in recent years.

With towering freshmen Mike Phillips, Rick Robey and Dan Hall (all three 6-foot-10) ejecting shots with the velocity of a Saturn booster rocket, Coliseum fans will witness a new era of Wildcat weaponry that has brought Ooohs and Aaahs from the crowd at games held last week at Frankfort.

And when the big boys slow down, the Wildcats can rely on their main arsenal, slick shooting All-American Kevin Grevey, who is establishing himself as one of the all-time greats to wear the Blue and White. Grevey led the Southeastern Conference in all-games scoring last year with a 21.9 average, and now ranks as 18th top UK scorer with 1,071 points.

Spicing pre-season practices have been battles for starting berths at all three positions. With Robey and Phillips at center, senior Bob Guyette has been moved to forward where he has his hands full with sophomore Merion Haskins and freshman Jack Givens. Haskins, a much improved player after gaining valuable experience on the Cats' trip to Australia, has been impressive, but lurking right on his heels is Givens, whose play is marked with such smoothness that Hall once referred to him in high school as "Mr. Silk."

The guard positions were thought to have been nailed down by seniors Mike Flynn and Jimmy Dan Conner, who has played at forward the past two years, but sophomore Larry Johnson has made his presence felt and now has made it a three-man race. Conner, who was pleased with his move back to guard, is in the finest physical condition ever and has demonstrated outstanding leadership since practice began Oct. 15.

There is no admission to the game, but K-Men are stationed at the entrances of the Coliseum to gratefully accept donations.

Kentucky officially opens its season Nov. 25 in Memorial Coliseum against Athletes In Action, a team of former Collegians who are associated with the Campus Crusade for Christ.

"RETURN OF THE WILDCATS" — A NOSTALGIC SPECIAL

The K-Wives will sponsor the second annual "RETURN OF THE WILDCATS" at 8 o'clock tonight at Tates Creek High gymnasium.

Coach Adolph Rupp will introduce the participants in a ceremony preceding the game, and Coach Joe B. Hall and his 1974-75 Wildcats will be the special halftime guests. UK All-American Vernon Hatton will auction several autographed basketballs during the halftime festivities and a limited number of copies of his book, "Rupp—From Both Ends of the Bench," will be given free on a first come-first served basis at the door.

Featured will be the "starting five" from U.K.'s last NCAA Championship team — Vernon Hatton, Johnny Cox, Adrian Smith, John Crigler and Ed Beck.

All-Americans returning will be Cliff Hagan, Vernon

Hatton, Johnny Cox, Aggie Sale, Bill Spivey, Cotton Nash, and Carey Spicer, who was the captain of Rupp's first team as well as his first All-American.

The Coaches for the big game will be Ralph Carlisle, assisted by Duke Ellington, and Carey Spicer assisted by Baldy Gilb. The officiating duties will be challenging for Harry Johnson and Phil Greer.

ABC-TV Crew Really Has Things Humming Throughout Wildcatland

A telephone call from ABC-TV on Monday, Nov. 4, set off quite a bit of excitement and hurried planning in the University of Kentucky football camp.

While a meeting was scheduled between the office of the president and the athletic director to discuss whether to permit the telecast, ABC-TV producer of the regional telecast, Geoff Mason, was already on the telephone to the U.K. sports information office, discussing facilities, schedules of arrival for the various crews involved, motel reservations, camera stations, security, food, all types of statistical information to be sent announcers Bill Flemming and Bud Wilkinson, slides and film for halftime, etc.

By the time the University gave its approval that afternoon, 28 motel rooms already had been obtained for the TV crew and much of the pre-planning had been completed.

Mason and unit manager Murray Schwartz arrived in Lexington on Wednesday night and were at Commonwealth Stadium Thursday morning. Waiting to greet them were both the U.K. and Vanderbilt SIDs, physical plant chief Jim Wessels, carpenter, telephone man, radio man, police chief, electrician and several others who would be involved in the operation.

The announcers' booth was located on the photo deck, right on the 50-yard line, and a shelter was constructed for Flemming and Wilkinson. The shelter wasn't to protect them from the weather, since the deck has a roof and the forecast was for perfect football weather; instead, it was needed for a color process. The inside of the wall and a portion of the photo deck under roof were painted the same shade of blue as the end zone bleachers. When the announcers were on camera, they were photographed against the blue Associate producer Sherman Bryce points to the towel where he wants freshman end Art Still to lead the Wildcats defensive starting unit that was introduced first. Pat Donley (72) stands by while SID Russel Rice gives some last-minute instructions to a keyed-up Rick Fromm.

Mike Emanuel (51) got double exposure, being introduced here before the game and then returning to camera-side after being named the game's outstanding defensive player by ABC-TV.

background while another camera picked up the crowd and superimposed the picture so that it seemed like the announcers were standing in front of the crowd.

Two color cameras were located on the photo deck, another was located atop the end zone bleachers on the Nicholasville Pike end of the stadium and a fourth was mounted on a Chevrolet LUV (light utility vehicle) supplied by L. R. Cooke Chevrolet.

Ticket manager Al Morgan had held out three rows of bleacher seats to make room for the end zone camera platform to be constructed there. As it turned out, four rows, five seats wide—a total of 20 seats—were needed. Since some of those seats were already sold, an usher was stationed there to ask those four or five persons to take seats elsewhere.

The LUV was taken to the U.K. carpentry shop, where the camera platform was constructed on its bed.

Since Wilkinson is 6-foot-2 and there also had to be room for overhead lights in the announce booth, the shelter had to be built about four inches above the press box window edge. The roof extended outward and cut off the view of approximately eight seats on the front row. Persons who ordinarily sit there did not complain about being moved to other locations. The view from the second row of press seats in that section also were blocked slightly, but that was solved by replacing the low seats with high stools.

Schwartz needed several students for various odd jobs. The Kentucky Kernel editor cooperated in securing those students. Ches Riddle, one of the football squad members, served as U.K. spotter for Flemming and Wilkinson.

From the start, the TV crew was impressed with the facilities at Commonwealth Stadium. When the stadium was in the planning stage, the SID office, remembering lessons learned in preparing Stoll Field for the Indiana game telecast in 1969, made sure that conduits for television cables were installed.

The conduits begin where the main TV truck is parked outside the press gate entrance and run under the inside concourse, terminating in a sunken trap-door-type box next to the press elevator. The cables for the photo deck continue their journey upward through a shaft which terminates inside the men's rest room on the working press level; from there, they continue under the press box floor and to a panel on the wall of the photo deck.

Back downstairs, there are conduits running under the stadium and terminating on the inside wall of the playing field, where they can service the truck-mounted camera.

Also needed was the "graphics" room, where a crew takes care of such things as superimposing names, statistics, etc., over pictures on the screen. Fitting the bill perfectly was a little-used equipment room in the visitors' area. The entrance leads off the walkway and the room is easily isolated from the visitors' locker and training rooms, which the players enter via a runway and doors under the stadium.

The photo deck and sideline cameras faced from the press box, creating another problem in that the halftime homecoming festivities were scheduled to face in the direction of the student section on the other side of the field. The office of dean of students Jack Hall was contacted and wheels were put in motion to reverse the entire halftime setup.

While the homecoming festivities were underway at halftime, attention also was focused on the photo deck, where world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali was interviewed first by ABC-TV, then by Ralph Hacker of the Wildcat Radio Network and finally by a mob of newsmen in a vestibule of the press box.

Before the game, Ali visited the Wildcat dressing room, told big Warren Bryant, "You look just like George Foreman," and did a little shuffle that ended with he and Bryant bumping shoulders a few times. His parting words:

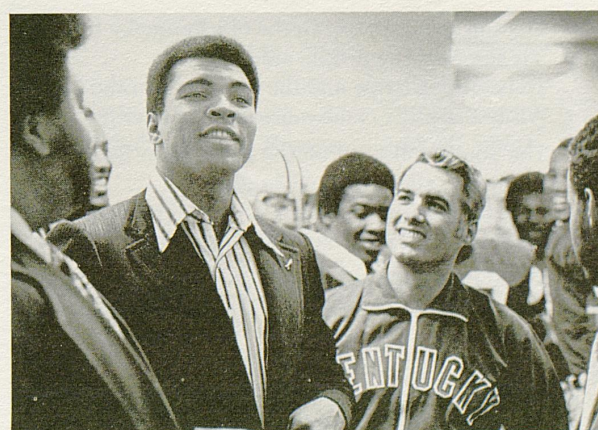

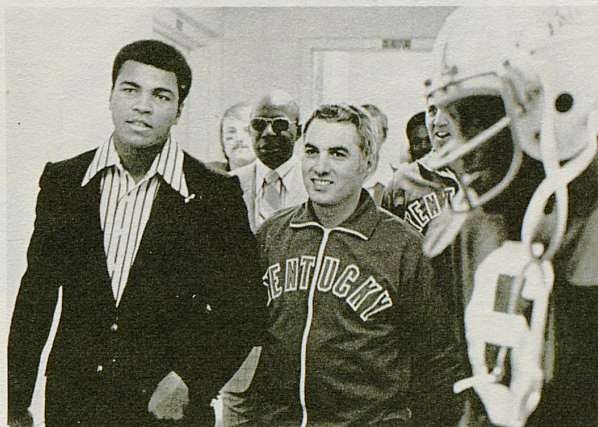

Float like a butterfly
Sting like a bee
Vandy can't hit
What Vandy can't see.

Reports from those who stayed home and watched the telecast were all good, with the University coming through in fine style both on and off the playing field.

A second call from ABC-TV, this time on Monday, Nov. 11, really set things to humming in Wildcatland, since it is rare indeed when the network has the same team in back-to-back telecasts. None of the camera platforms had been taken down and everything was in readiness . . . "just leave things like they were," the producer said.

So here they are again, and welcome, welcome, welcome.

World Heavyweight Champion Muhammad Ali enters the Wildcat dressing room with Coach Fran Curci prior to the U.K.-Vandy game, bumps shoulders with offensive tackle Warren Bryant and then tells the Cats to "sting like a bee."

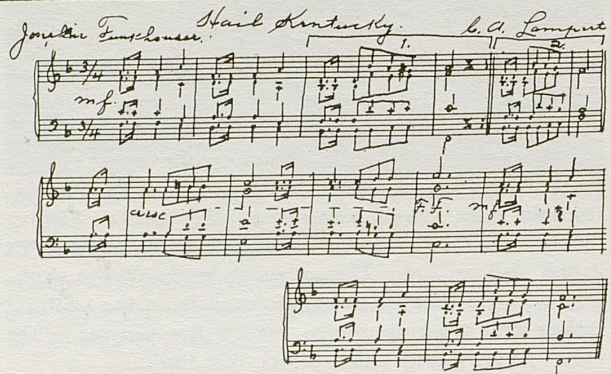

ON, ON, U. OF K.

On, On, U. of K.
 We are right for the fight today.
 Hold that ball and hit that line;
 every wildcat star will shine.
 We'll fight, fight, fight for the blue and white,
 as we roll to that goal, varsity.
 And we'll kick, pass and run
 'till the battle is won,
 and we'll bring home the victory.

U.K. ALMA MATER

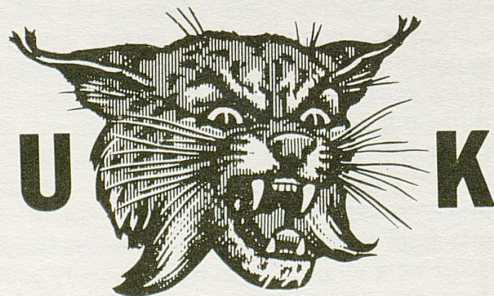

Hail Kentucky, Alma Mater!
 Loyal sons and daughters sing;
 sound her praise with voice united;
 to the breeze her colors fling.
 To the blue and white be true;
 badge triumphant age on age.
 Blue the sky that o'er us bends;
 white Kentucky's stainless page.

MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME

The sun shines bright in the old Kentucky home,
 'Tis summer, the people are gay;
 The corn-top's ripe and the meadow's in the bloom
 While the birds make music all the day.
 The young folks roll on the little cabin floor
 All merry, all happy and bright;
 By'n by hard times comes a-knocking at the door
 Then my old Kentucky home, Good-night!
 Weep no more my lady, Oh! weep no more today!
 We will sing one song for the old Kentucky home
 For the old Kentucky home, far away.

Our first responsibility is to supply the electricity you need when you need it — all that's needed, 24 hours a day. Growing needs. For home, business, and industry.

But making sure that everyone in our service area has all the electricity needed is just part of the picture.

Take the problems involving the environment, for example. Reddy's working with scientists and researchers to clean up air pollution, improve and expand sewage treatment, filter pollution out of lakes and streams, and replace old-fashioned polluting processes with clean electrical systems.

In fact, in the area of environmental control equipment on which patents have been issued, more than 90 per cent require electricity.

Reddy Kilowatt makes things happen environmentally!
