It's Been A Long Wait For Robert Lutes' Family

By Mark Bradley

If anyone connected with University of Kentucky sports deserved a bowl bid, it was the long-suffering UK football fans. The players? Well, they were only here for four years at a time, and besides, they could always take out their frustrations by belting somebody out on the football field.

And the coaches? Lord knows they've agonized over the years, but none of them had been here longer than seven years since UK last went to a bowl.

No, the people who really lived and died with the fortunes of the Wildcat gridders were the fans who have been waiting 20-some years to go to a bowl.

Such a fan is Robert Lutes. He's been following the Cats since 1956, and in that twenty-year span, Lutes said, "I haven't missed a UK home football game, and I haven't missed very many road games, either."

According to Lutes, he had always been interested in UK sports, but he really got involved with the Wildcats when he and his wife moved to Kentucky from Ohio twenty years ago. Since then, said Lutes, "We've followed UK, in both football and basketball, religiously."

Lutes, who formerly was the proprietor of a Lexington motel but is now retired said that his primary way of transportation to Kentucky's away games is his Winnebago mobile home. "We've been traveling in the Winnebago for the last three years," he said.

"All the people at away from home games have been real nice to us," Lutes continued. "We've always been able to park our mobile home either in the stadium lot or very close to the stadium."

The Winnebago has not always transported Lutes to UK games. "We used to fly with basketball team back in the early sixties," he said, "when they had that small 40-seat charter and they could make room for us. We also flew to a couple of games with the football team when Charley Bradshaw was the coach."

Of course, Lutes and his Winnebago will make the trek to Atlanta for the Peach Bowl. "We'll be leaving on the evening of the 29th and get there on the 30th. We're going to go to the UK reception down there, and watch UK play Notre Dame in basketball on closed-circuit TV."

Over the years, Lutes has experienced several big thrills watching Kentucky play.

Three of the biggest, he said, were the trips the Wildcats have made to the NCAA Final Four, in 1958 at Louisville, in 1966 at College Park, Md., and in 1975 at San Diego. Each time, Lutes was there.

"Winning the NCAA in 1958 was very exciting," Lutes said. "And, of course, the victory over Indiana in the Midwest Regional two years ago would probably be one of the greatest thrills, because I had seen the game earlier in the year at Indiana when they beat us so badly."

"Another great moment was in 1963 when we beat Duke in the finals of the Sugar Bowl Classic in New Orleans. Duke was really good that year, and they had Jeff Mullins from Lexington. Mullins really wanted to beat Kentucky and the UK boys really wanted to beat Mullins," Lutes recalled.

Since Fran Curci became UK's head football coach, Lutes said, "UK has been in every ball game, except the one last year in Florida which luckily I didn't see. I said when Curci came here that UK was going to play interesting football under him, and going to a UK game wouldn't just be something to do on a Saturday afternoon."

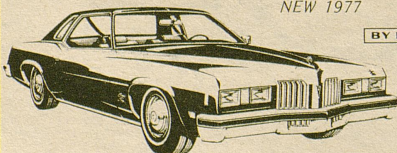

Certainly, Kentucky has played "interesting" football this year, interesting enough to compile a 7-4 season, including a victory over arch-rival Tennessee. "That was great, beating Tennessee. I'm always glad to beat them, and this year it meant a bowl bid," Lutes said.

The Peach Bowl will be the first bowl game Lutes has seen involving Kentucky, because "the last bowl UK played in was 25 years ago, before we even moved to Lexington," he said.

And, as one of those long-suffering Kentucky fans, Lutes has every right to say, "I'm very excited about the Peach Bowl, and I just hope we can beat North Carolina."

It's A Mighty Big Week For Wildcats Fans

It's a big week coming up for University of Kentucky fans, a week when the Wildcats can ease the pain of recent events. In fact, it could be the most exciting week in recent Wildcat history.

Joe B. Hall's basketball Wildcats will get a chance to redeem themselves to Kentucky faithful Thursday night when they take on second ranked Notre Dame in Louisville's Freedom Hall.

Then Fran Curci's footballers will have the opportunity to cap off a brilliant Kentucky year with a win over powerful North Carolina in the Peach Bowl.

Some kind of a year.

Hall's Wildcats got it off on good footing with a ten-game winning streak last March while capturing the championship of the National Invitational Tournament in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Fletcher Carr's Wildcat wrestling team came along and won the SEC wrestling title over Florida and Tuffy Horne's baseball club was named co-champions of the SEC.

Then the footballers returned in the fall and compiled a 7-4 record and earned a trip to the Peach Bowl, the first such bowl trip in twenty-five years for the Kentuckians.

While the pigskinners were waiting a date with North Carolina, Joe Hall's roundballers christened the spacious, new Rupp Arena and reeled off five straight wins including ones over Indiana and South Carolina on the road.

T'was a wonderful year.

Kentuckians by the thousands are already flocking to Atlanta for the Peach Bowl and the New Year's Eve festivities surrounding the gala event.

Hotels and motels in Greater Atlanta are expecting the "Hillbilly Takeover" with an estimated 37,000 Kentuckians. Many of the fans will begin arriving Wednesday evening with most of the Wildcat supporters being there for the Peach Bowl parade Thursday.

Friday, at 2:30 p.m. in Atlanta Stadium, the Wildcats will have the opportunity to show the nation what Kentucky football is made of. After the game, New Year's Eve parties will take over.

Among the official functions this week in Atlanta are the awards dinner when players from both Kentucky and North Carolina will receive favors from the Peach Bowl. That event will be Wednesday night. On Thursday night, it will be the President's Ball. Most of the events will be at the Marriott Inn which is the official headquarters of the Peach Bowl.

The University of Kentucky Alumni Association and the Atlanta Chapter have really put it all together for UK fans during this week's stay in the South.

A reception will be held Thursday evening at the Marriott and alumni officials arranged to have the Kentucky-Notre Dame basketball game piped into the hotel so fans will be able to watch the game live on a big screen.

Friday morning, the alumni groups will sponsor a brunch at 10 a.m. before taking off for the football classic.

Capping off an excellent schedule will be a gala New Year's Eve party at the Marriott.

Kentucky fans will also have the opportunity to pick up souvenirs of the Wildcats at the Marriott.

Copies of this special issue of The Cats' Pause will be available as well as game programs for the Kentucky-Notre Dame basketball game. Prints of a Joe Hall-Adolph Rupp painting will also be available at the Marriott Thursday.

The Lexington Wildcat Club had a festive evening of fun Monday night when the boosters club entertained Coach Fran Curci and the twelve football seniors. The special guest was former Governor Happy Chandler.

The same group will sponsor a family night on January 6 when Joe Hall and the basketball team will be the invited guests. Player Dwane Casey will emcee the program and the children will be allowed to obtain autographs.

Other meeting nights for the club this year will be January 26 when Coach Hall will be honored, February 9 with coaches Dick Parsons and Leonard Hamilton and March 2.

When you're happy, you're happy. And Cliff Hagan is a happy man right now.

When Kentucky races onto the field at Atlanta Stadium Friday afternoon some 10,000 blue pom poms will be waved by loyal Kentucky rooters, thanks to Hagan and the UK athletic department.

Umpteen cases of pom poms arrived at the athletic department a couple of weeks ago and Hagan confirmed the athletic department had ordered the souvenirs for the Peach Bowl game.

"I've seen other teams before with them and I wanted our trip to Atlanta to be one of first class. We owe it to our fans and we want the people back home to be proud of us when the television cameras come our way," said Hagan. "I think everyone watching television will know that Kentucky is well represented in Atlanta."

The pom poms will be passed out (free of charge) to Kentucky fans shortly before the game Friday at the stadium according to Hagan. UK's cost? $1,400.

Hagan, while watching the basketball team go through drills Sunday afternoon in Memorial Coliseum, had to laugh while relating the woes of three youngsters from his native Owensboro community.

The UK athletics director said he received a call last week from a woman who said her three boys were very upset because their Peach Bowl tickets had been destroyed in the weekly wash.

Actually, the tickets were left in a pair of pants and went through a washing machine.

"She told me they could still read the seating location and the name Peach Bowl," said Hagan, "so we hope to help them out when they get to Atlanta by meeting with the Peach Bowl people."

"They (the boys) were really upset," said Hagan, who saw his supply of 15,000 tickets vanish in less than two hours the first day they were put on sale.

Not only will Kentucky be well represented by fans, but the UK Marching Band will be in full force along with the Christian County High School band from Hopkinsville.

The UK band, all 265 of them, will leave Thursday morning about 6 a.m. by bus and perform at halftime of the game as well as before, during and after. The UK athletic department is picking up the tab for the Wildcat band.

Christian County's band will be participating from another angle. It won a band festival in Georgia earlier this year and won an invitation to participate in the Peach Bowl.

The football team, complete with some 103 players, pulled out of Lexington Wednesday morning about 10 a.m. in six chartered buses. They were scheduled to arrive in Atlanta by 5:30 p.m.

The entire team will be staying at the Marriott. Of the 750-plus rooms at the Marriott, over 500 are reportedly occupied by Kentucky officials, players and fans.

And, yes, Cliff Hite will be there.

Kentucky has just released its slick new recruiting brochure which shows the brighter side of Lexington and Central Kentucky as well as the UK campus.

It should be a big boost to Fran Curci's program and Cliff Hagan said he was pleased with the finished product which rolled off the presses a couple of weeks ago.

A similar brochure will be printed soon for the UK basketball program. More and more major universities are leaning toward publications like these. The printing costs were absorbed by the Blue & White Fund.

HITS AND MISSES. . . Utah won't be taking up Hagan's offer of a return visit to the UKIT next season. Hagan extended an invitation to coach Jerry Pimm after his club won the title. Utah officials told Hagan their schedule was already committed for next season. Utah probably didn't want to push their luck. . . Kentucky wasn't represented at the Super Conference meetings last week because Hagan was tied up with the UK athletics board meeting the same day. "We went to the one in Chicago and nothing much was accomplished," said Hagan. "I was planning on going to this one but the board meeting occurred the same day." He said the NCAA probation had nothing to do with the decision of UK not being there. . . The basketball team apparently suffered more "below the belt jabs" than just those from the NCAA. You'll know what I mean when you read another article in today's issue of The Cats' Pause. . . Sports Illustrated's piece on Kentucky basketball last week complimented the program and emphasized the popularity of the hoop sport in Kentucky. We also appreciated the nice remarks about our publication. . . Basketball Weekly editor Larry Donald published an interview of former coach Adolph Rupp which, you could say, was straight to the point without any powder.

Running Back

Greg Woods

SENIOR—21, 5-11, 190—Middletown, Conn. . . Switched to running back after being a three-year starter on defense, Greg had his best year as a Wildcat. In addition to being the best blocker, he carried 110 times for 504 yards, including a 60-yard run against Georgia, and caught 10 passes for 142 yards and two TDs, including a 62-yard bomb that beat Tennessee and put UK into the Peach Bowl. All-State, team captain at Xavier High.

We Really Want This One

Question - The Wildcat football team returned Saturday from the Christmas holidays and began practice for this week's Peach Bowl. Did everyone return and is everyone healthy?

Coach Curci- Everyone is back with the exception of Steve Slates. He won't be playing in the Peach Bowl because of an operation about five or six days ago. He had to undergo an emergency appendectomy operation and, of course, he won't be in uniform. He plans to meet the team down in Atlanta and be there for the game, however. Steve will be replaced by Larry Petkovsek, a 6-5, 245-pound sophomore offensive tackle who will move over to Slates' guard position.

Question - How have the practices gone thus far this week?

Coach Curci- I thought we had good workouts today (Monday). The only thing that concerns us right now is the weather in Atlanta this Friday afternoon. We hope it's a dry day. It will probably be cold but we told our players they would just have to adjust to the cold and I think that won't be any problem. I just hope there is no rain nor snow. It can be pretty rough down there when it rains.

Question - Isn't the Atlanta area known for its high annual rainfall?

Coach Curci- I don't think so but I understand it has rained on New Year's Eve the last couple or three years. But it will change this time. We game them (the Peach Bowl) a sell-out crowd so we're going to bring them some good weather too.

Question - What's been the practice schedule this week for the Kentucky football team?

Coach Curci- We've had two workouts a day each Monday and Tuesday and we'll have one more early Wednesday before we leave for Atlanta. After that, we'll have one more workout in Atlanta on Thursday. We're not going to work the team to death. We're going to go with what got us here and there's no sense in going so hard after the long season.

Question - What's the most important thing to work on for a bowl game like this, after the regular season has ended more than a month ago?

Coach Curci- It's vital for the team to be in good condition. If you get tired out there in a game, then your mind stops functioning and you don't react like you should. In our situation, we worked hard for eight days, then gave the players Christmas off and asked them to keep in good condition while they were home.

Question - Did the players report back in good physical condition?

Coach Curci- For the most part, they did. They didn't work as hard as we wanted them too but I guess it was as much as could be expected. I think these kids will put on a good show, they want to go down there and win this thing.

Question - Can Kentucky's fans expect anything new, any new wrinkles in the offense or any new faces?

Coach Curci- No, we're not going to change anything. The things we did well during the year got us here and that's what we will rely on. Our practice schemes have been the same. We're trying to get two teams ready to play.

Question - After several wins this past season, you emphasized what each one meant to the Kentucky program, like the wins over Penn State, LSU, Florida and Tennessee. What would a win over North Carolina in the Peach Bowl mean to the program?

Coach Curci- We really want to win this one. Up to this point, we've covered so many hurdles, now it's important to put the cream on the top. It would definitely help recruiting. I just want our players to go down there and fight with the enthusiasm they did here at Commonwealth Stadium all year long.

Question - How has Kentucky's recruiting progressed thus far? Are you satisfied with the present signings?

Coach Curci- It's really hard to tell. We've signed eleven. The next fourteen will be extremely important because it now comes down to the national letter of intent signing deadline which is in February. Until we've signed the players to the national letter, you really don't know how you have done.

Question - Who were the walk-ons you gave scholarships at the end of the season?

Coach Curci- The NCAA stipulates you must name those on scholarship by the first of December so we gave some available scholarships to four boys just before the Tennessee game. They had worked hard and deserved the scholarships. They are Mike O'Donnell, Tom Fausel, Chris Jacobs and Mark Meenach.

Question - It's going to be a little strange for the players to have 37,000 Kentucky fans rooting for them in a game away from Commonwealth Stadium, isn't it?

Coach Curci- I think it's going to be like a home game for us. We're just preparing for a game like we always do but when the team arrives in Atlanta and the thousands of Kentucky fans are jammed together at the Marriot, it's going to be something else. Certainly the players will get caught up in all the excitement but I don't think this will affect us because they know this is the one. It'll be something else to have that many Kentuckians in the stands rooting for us, especially in Atlanta. After a while, it will seem like we're right at home.

Question - Earlier, out on the practice field, you warned the team the game would be close and possibly be decided in the final two minutes. Is that your true feelings?

Coach Curci- It's going to be a very close game, one in which a mistake here or there can decide it. It most likely will go down to the final minutes and the team in the best condition will probably win, that's why we are so concerned about conditioning.

Question - There has been a lot of talk about teams which practiced through Christmas for the bowl games as against those which didn't. Why did you choose not to practice during Christmas?

Coach Curci- We had worked hard and we felt we just wouldn't accomplish anything extra by practicing during Christmas. They had worked eight hard days and we wanted to give them the rest.

Question - What are the travel arrangements for the team to the Peach Bowl?

Coach Curci- We'll all be loading up here Wednesday morning just after practice and head to Atlanta. The team will be traveling in five chartered buses. We wanted to take everybody, all the players, the wives and families and we thought it would be too much of a financial burden to ask the University to fly everyone to Atlanta. Anyway, I think I'm gonna kinda enjoy the bus ride. It will only be a couple or three hours longer. We won't be stopping anywhere because we are taking box lunches for everyone. We should arrive in Atlanta about 5:30 p.m. All together there will be 194 in the official party. The only ones stopping will be the Kentucky State Police for gas, but they can catch up with us. We will return by bus Saturday.

Question - Is it true the Kentucky caravan is being given a special escort by state police in Tennessee?

Coach Curci- Yes, I understand they are going to give us an escort to the Georgia line and then the Georgia patrol will escort us on in to Atlanta. The Tennessee people have been real nice.

JAMES LEE, 6-5, 230 Junior Forward
Lexington, Ky. (1/17/56)

One of the strongest, quickest and most mobile frontline players in the country, Lee got his chance last year when Robey sat out with injury... After a slow start and gradually picking up steam, Lee quietly became the player predicted of him from prep days... Hit 13 times in double figure scoring and nine in rebounds, scoring single game career high 21 points against Bama on national television as the Cats were enroute to the NIT... Pulled down career high 12 rebounds against Georgia, and NIT opponents Kansas State and Providence... Kentucky's second leading NIT scorer with 58 points, was selected to second team All-NIT... A willing worker in the weight program, Lee lifted 460 lbs. in the power squat... Reported back at 244, quickly shed 12 pounds and will play at 230 this year... Fourth leading scorer at 9.3 ppg and second rebounder with 7.3... Prep All-American and twice All-State at Henry Clay High while leading the Devils to a 65-21 three-year record... Set school records in scoring, 1,671 points, and 1,194 rebounds... Scored 42 points against Fairview in less than three-quarters in the prestigious Ashland Invitational... Blue Devils twice won Central Kentucky Conference and District Titles, and one Regional title... Averaged 25 points and 18 rebounds his senior year... High point of prep career was beating Moses Malone in the One-on-One championship in the Derby Classic at Louisville... Played for victorious Kentucky-Indiana All-Stars in the Derby Classic, and the U.S. All-Stars in Washington D.C. Capital Classic... Played in the Kentucky-Indiana All-Star series... Coach Al Prewitt... Social Professions.

Coach Hall: "Lee's strength, leaping ability and quickness are not his only assets. He will surprise opponents on the fast break both on the passing end and the scoring end. Deceptive quickness and good moves around the basket presents a difficult defensive situation for his man."

MERION HASKINS, 6-4, 205 Senior Forward
Campbellsville, Ky. (5/13/55)

The ultimate honor in any sport is to be selected to Captain's status and that is why Merion Haskins' Co-Captaincy is unique—not a full time starter or top scorer, not the best defensive player—but his full value to the team concept is as great as if he topped those three categories... Gaining full respect of teammates and coaches alike, Haskins' contribution to Kentucky basketball has been good for all concerned... Outstanding in the classroom as well as civic undertakings, he was selected to the Academic All-SEC second team last season... Playing forward and sometimes at the post in a makeshift lineup is nothing new to him—and he usually hit a basket at the right time despite taking only 44 shots all year... Big moment came when he hit a last second shot to send the Cats into overtime against Tennessee... Started two games and averaged over 10-minutes playing time in 29 games... Career high 12 points against Georgia and five rebounds against Tennessee and Georgia... Averaged 2.3 ppg and 1.5 rebounds... Led Jayvees as a freshman with 18.6 ppg and 11.3 rebounds... All-State at Taylor County High, which he led to a 87-21 four-year record... Top player in the Fifth Region as a senior... Lettered in football and track... Played in Kentucky East-West All-Star game, Sharon (Pa.) Tournament, and the Midwestern Classic at Dayton... Brother of Clem Haskins... Coach Billy B. Smith... Agricultural Economics.

Coach Hall: "Merion was used in the post last year on occasion, will play any position and do anything he is called upon to help the cause. He is team leader both on and off the floor. His defensive ability and hustle will be a welcome to the squad this year."

Recruited As Back, Siganos Still Loves Offense

Mike Siganos has proven himself to be a very talented young man for the Peach Bowl-bound Kentucky Wildcats. Siganos was highly recruited as a running back out of Norwalk, Conn., but he's never played a down at running back for Kentucky.

Instead, Siganos was given the responsibility of playing defensive back at Lexington and that's where he'll be when Kentucky meets North Carolina in the Ninth Annual Peach Bowl.

Siganos is also the leading pass interceptor on the squad as he's stolen eight over the past three seasons and still has a year of eligibility remaining for the Wildcats.

"I guess I'm just a frustrated running back still," says Siganos, "I still wish I could play running back."

Head Coach Fran Curci does allow the young defensive back an opportunity to handle the ball though. Mike, in addition to his other duties, is also the Wildcats' punt-returner. He's taken 40 punts this year and returned them for a total of 216 yards with a long run of 19 yards against rival Tennessee.

Siganos is also the fourth-leading tackler on the Kentucky team with 50 solo tackles and 14 assists.

But Siganos' talents don't stop there. Mike is a talented painter, and does impressionistic work as well as portraits.

"I do some oils, but I mainly like to draw or paint weird things. They're kind of hard to explain without showing them to someone."

"I guess my favorite is one with me in a mountain, but again you would have to see it to understand it," he says.

Siganos is talented, but he's never had an art showing yet. "When I was small, about 10 years old, I used to sell my drawings and paintings around the neighborhood for $10 or something like that, but I haven't really had time to do much with it in the last year or so. I've really been busy with football and school."

Even though Siganos' forte seems to be covering the opposition's passing attack, he doesn't feel he'll have the opportunity against North Carolina.

"North Carolina really hasn't passed that much this year, but they really don't need to pass with the running game they have. I don't expect to see many passes in the Peach Bowl," said Mike.

So Siganos will be at defensive back against North Carolina and he has one more year to go in Wildcat land. "I would still like to be playing running back," he says.

Congratulations Wildcats!

A New Year's Wish

With Cats' Pause Columnist Bob Watkins

Despite the meddlesome long arm of the NCAA is there anyone out there worth his 'K' cap who can resist pinching himself when reviewing the athletic successes enjoyed by the University of Kentucky in 1976?

Alice in Wonderland liveth. Jack can chop the hell out of a beanstalk. Derrick Ramsey IS a quarterback. And Joe B. Hall can coach a basketball team out of the long shadow of the incomparable Adolph Rupp. Ain't it wunnerful?

Contrary to incessant accusations by coaches everywhere, sports writers can transcribe a good thing or two now and then. In years past we here have been reduced to fictitious puffery, boosterism and outright Rah-Rah when dealing with Kentucky's paper tiger. It is no longer so. Everyone is slapping everyone else on the back. A bystander (UK pennant in hand) suddenly cannot detect a sports hack from the coach's best friend, except for his baggy breeches, worn heels and pencil at the ready.

Writers love to recreate success stories. When the good guys have vanquished the baddies it is glorious all right with God, memorable and makes delicious prose the next day.

In years gone by we here have had to rely on euphemisms to soften the blow of harsh truth. When a tight end has graduated to the Big House we are cursed villians for saying so. When a quarterback-turned-tight-end-turned-quarterback launches concrete footballs we are scoundrels for saying so.

But now all is sunshine, bluegrass Rah-Rah. The honeymoon is on again. And peaches are the favorite fruits of our labor. The athletes? Oh, they did a thing or two along the way to help make it possible. Bless their supporters.

Now it is the end of a year in which Rupp Arena is a splendid reality. Its rafters adorned with the newest flag of our conquests. An NIT championship. And the football team is (pinch yourself) headed for the Peach Bowl. Wunnerful!

Sports is a coffee break according to lecherous Al McGuire. Believe it, add a spike, and drink up with me. And let us reflect on 1976 by offering a well and aimed wish to everyone involved. Happy New Year to all, Cawood.

Dedicated first to the University of Kentucky's Cinderella football success, here is a New Year's wish that . . .

Cawood Ledford - will have the gumption to never change. "Kentucky will be heading toward the right side of your radio dial, folks. And HEEERRE we go."

Coach Fran Curci - will find a new way of saying: "Uncle Fran wants you, son . . . and your dad and mom and sister and girlfriend and . . ."

Athletics Director Cliff Hagan - will find a new way of saying: "It's all just a lot of wild, outrageous rumors."

Coach Jon Mirilovich - will take a crash course on how to meet the press . . . compliments of Bobby Knight. Smile gentlemen, please?

Broadcaster Lee Grosscup - will apply for Ralph Hacker's job. Fat chance.

Pete Gemmill - will have a happy homecoming.

Warren Bryant - may he never learn the ways of Conrad Dobler.

Mike Siganos - will never discover how small he is.

Jim Kovach - will have a prosperous career and never grow a beard like Doug Kotar's.

Derrick Ramsey - will somehow find a new Warren Bryant for his senior year.

Chris Hill - will continue to believe, somehow, some way, that he is really Terry Metcalf.

Randy Burke - he never relinquishes the faith that he will be discovered.

Greg Woods - will continue to believe that Billy 'White Shoes' Johnson "...ain't showed 'em nothin yet."

Dave Fadrowski - will receive a crash course in Joe Namath optimism. It was Fonzie who, while suffering from apparent heat exhaustion after the Kansas beating, talked about UK going to a bowl game.

Mike Siganos - will receive an EST suggestion that there IS safety in the number 1 and fair catches be damned!

Mike Deaton - a renewed (and undying) faith that Fran Tarkenton once rode the bench too.

And for coach Joe B. Hall's defending NIT champions and seekers of a higher throne, here are a few appropriately chosen jabs...er...wishes for the New Year. A Happy New Year's wish that . . .

Cawood Ledford - realizes an heretofore unpublished dream: Catch columnist Mike Barry in a stripped shirt on a dark night in Starkville, Miss.

Athletics Director Cliff Hagan - will acquire a new creditability gap with reporters. The old one now rivals the abyss at Clay's Ferry.

Coach Joe Hall - may he find a new synonym for the word, intensity.

Jay Shidler - may he find a believable way of saying: "Gosh fellas, I'm really just a humble, naive kid."

Mike Phillips - a vision from his Fairy God Mother: "Next time you show up at the dorm past the witching hour your scholarship will turn into a pumpkin inside of which will be a one-way ticket to Cleveland."

Tim Stephens - a break out.

Coach Joe Hall - the Pacific Ocean for his players to shoot foul shots at.

Larry Johnson - a new 'how to' paperback on smiling in the face of adversity by Mike Miday, inspired by Bobby Knight.

James Lee - a crash clinic in outlet passing instructed by Mike Phillips' Fairy God Mother.

Rick Robey - no more Mr. Nice Guy when the Ernie & Bernie Show comes to town soon.

Jay Shidler - a year's supply of Lady Clairrol and will power enough to get back to the dorm in time to get it on.

Merion Haskins - a chronic attack of 'put it up' and a 10-point scoring night.

Bowling Green coach John Weinert - a year's supply of Colonel Sanders' finest...up yours...y'all.

Jack Givens - just one slam dunk before he graduates.

The entire UK basketball team - a March visit to Atlanta before UK is dubbed a football school.

Adolph Rupp - stay No. 1 in our hearts.

Happy New Year to all, Cawood.

Tar Heel Defensive Tackle Really Likes To "Let Loose On A Guy"

In Newton Grove, N.C., Dee Hardison is known as 'Peanut.' "I don't really know why they call me that," says Hardison. "I guess it's because of my size."

Hardison is one of the starting defensive tackles for the University of North Carolina. He's 6-5 and tips the scales at 250-plus.

Now get this.

How many semi-giants do you know that want to grow up to be kindergarten teachers?

That's right. Dee Harrison, who will be UNC's starting defensive tackle when the Tarheels meet Kentucky in the ninth annual Peach Bowl game wants to teach pre-schoolers when he graduates.

"I don't know why I got so interested in small children," says Hardison. "When I was living at home, my mother used to ask me to look after my little sister and I really enjoyed it. I guess I got my love for small kids from watching after her."

"I want to teach them the right direction and I think the time to start is when they're extremely young and still in their pre-school years."

Hardison is a man of many talents. He played all sports in high school and was the tailback on the football team. "I don't mind switching over to the defensive line," said Hardison. "I just wanted to play and help the team and if I help at defensive tackle, then that's fine with me."

Hardison has already realized part of his dream as he worked with pre-schoolers this past summer during vacation in his hometown.

The big defensive lineman had never wrestled because his high school didn't have a wrestling program, but he took it up his sophomore year at North Carolina.

He won his first wrestling match in the heavyweight division by pinning his opponent and finished the wrestling season last year with a 5-9 won-lost record. "I learned a lot last year and I'm planning on going out for wrestling again next season. I really enjoyed it and it was a great way to keep in shape for football."

And what about the North Carolina defensive unit against the tough Kentucky offense in the Peach Bowl?

"Well, one of the main reasons I like defense is because you can really let loose on a guy. On offense you have to take a lot of punishment, but on defense, you can give it out."

So Hardison will lead the defensive assault for the Tarheels against the Wildcats New Year's Eve afternoon in Atlanta Stadium, and it's not likely he'll mistake any of the Wildcat backs for kindergarten students.

Joe B. Hall

UK Head Basketball Coach

We Had Warned Players Just Two Days Earlier

Question - How much will the NCAA probation in the form of cutbacks in scholarships hurt the basketball program here at Kentucky?

Coach Hall - We can live with it. We usually don't use all our scholarships and it shouldn't seriously handicap our recruiting.

Question - What about the NCAA findings. What's your overall thoughts on the report, as far as basketball is concerned?

Coach Hall - I don't have any comment on it right now.

Question - Would you discuss some of the incidents which allegedly occurred in connection with your basketball program.

Coach Hall - I don't have any comment on that either.

Question - Both you and assistant Dick Parsons were in Louisville last week for the big high school doubleheader classic. Did anything in the tourney impress you? And what about Ballard's Jeff Lamp, who is supposed to be one of the best high school players in the country this season?

Coach Hall - It was a very interesting event for the fans in the area. They brought in four of the best high school teams in the country, including one from the Maryland area and one from Chicago. The Maryland club had a great team with a traditional program and was very impressive. Bowling Green was without its center and was at a big disadvantage but still played well and has good potential. Ballard was an exceptionally strong club and impressive in its two-point win over East Chicago. Lamp is a great athlete and was the game's top scorer with 30 points. He has an awful lot of ability and should be a great college player.

Question - You have just re-instated three basketball players who were suspended for curfew violations. Do you have a set standard and penalty for such violations?

Coach Hall - The fact that we pointedly warned the players the penalty would be severe resulted in the two-game suspension. We had warned the players about curfew just two days before the incident. We don't check on the players every night but they know when they are supposed to be in. They are to be in by 12 midnight. Sometimes we check at midnight and sometimes even later. Like last night, we checked around 1:15 a.m.

Question - Many college coaches think there will never be another undefeated major college basketball team because of the tough schedules and improved basketball teams around the country. You have just lost one on your home floor after many felt Kentucky might have an outside chance of going undefeated. Do you agree with the coaches who think the undefeated teams are a thing of the past?

Coach Hall - No, I don't. There are still some great clubs and there will be ones in the future. Indiana proved it last year. That sounds like the man who wanted to close the patent office because he argued everything had already been invented.

Question - You're getting ready for Notre Dame, a club which is ranked number two in the nation but the Irish have lost guard Ray Martin for the season with a fractured ankle. How does Martin's loss affect the Irish?

Coach Hall - I think his loss will only affect Notre Dame in depth at the guard position. It cuts their back-up strength but both freshman Rich Branning and junior Don Williams score better than Martin. Of course Martin was a senior and had experience over the other two. But their greatest loss will be depth-wise.

Question - It's near conference time and Kentucky will enter the SEC race with either a 7-1 or 6-2 record [depending on the outcome of the Notre Dame game] and the preparation portion of the season is over. How do you look back over the non-conference schedule? Has the team progressed the way you had hoped for?

Coach Hall - They had until the UKIT and then they increased in those two games. We should have played much better ball than we did against Bowling Green and Utah. Even without the three players, I thought we would give a better effort than we did. I just don't know how we stand at this point after the poor showing in the tournament. Our other players just didn't perform the way they're capable of and that upsets me.

Question - You have seven players shooting better than fifty percent from the field. Can they maintain this type of shooting throughout the season?

Coach Hall - Yes, they're all fifty percent shooters and they can shoot that way for a season. What bothers us is the way some of the others are shooting. The others, who have pulled our team percentage down, are capable of doing much better. We're looking forward to when the others come along.

Question - You've said all season that you're not alarmed at Kentucky's poor free throw shooting statistics. After seven games, do you still feel confident the Wildcats will find the mark from the charity strip?

Coach Hall - The free throws will come along. We're not alarmed at all about free throws. We practice them every day and we'll do all right in that department. We're confident of that.

Question - Did the exam schedule have anything to do with Kentucky's play in the UKIT. The team was just coming off exams that week, weren't they?

Coach Hall - Yes, we were coming off exams and we played against Bowling Green like we had been in exams all week and had been up studying until 2 a.m. or 3 a.m. in the morning. But we played so poorly I can't contribute it to that alone. We just didn't play good basketball.

Question - In the past, you have always had a public practice in Freedom Hall on the morning of the Notre Dame game. Will you have one this year.

Coach Hall - Yes, we will practice at Freedom Hall at 10 a.m. on Thursday morning. We won't be working on a lot, but we will be taking some shooting practice and other things. The public is certainly welcomed to come and watch. We think this is an opportunity for many youngsters and fans to see the Wildcats who are not fortunate enough to obtain tickets to the games there in Louisville.

SEC Basketball On TV

This is the thirteenth season for the Southeastern Conference Basketball Television Program, started in 1965 to serve the increasing interest of the public in college basketball. All have been produced and distributed by the TVS Television Network of New York via the supervision of President Eddie Einhorn. Ed Steiner of Nashville directs the telecasts, with John Ferguson of Baton Rouge the play-by-play announcer and Joe Dean, former LSU star, serving as analyst. This season, as last, TVS will distribute the games via the NBC network.

All ten SEC teams will appear on the program, which is telecast from a different campus each week. These games are played on Saturday afternoons to avoid conflict with high school play or other college games.

Some 37 NBC stations will carry the games, live and in full color, to all seven SEC states. Also, an extra game this season, Tennessee vs. UCLA on Sunday, Jan. 30, will be telecast nationwide. The 37 regional NBC stations carrying the SEC game every Saturday are listed below.

Ale 8 One Holiday Recipe Ideas

MOCK CHAMPAGNE

Boil ½ cup sugar and ½ cup water for 3 minutes. Add: ½ cup fresh or bottled grape juice, and ¼ cup orange juice. Chill. Just before serving, add 1 pt. Ale 8 One.

CRANBERRY PUNCH

6 cups water, 3 cups sugar, 12 sticks cinnamon, and 6 whole cloves. Dissolve sugar in water and add spices. Steep 5 minutes. Strain and cool. Add following when ready to serve: 12 cups cranberry juice, 5 cups frozen lemonade, 6 cups orange juice, 6 cups pineapple juice, and 3 qts. Ale 8 One. Yield - 75 cups.

QUICK PUNCH

Scoop 1 qt. sherbet (any flavor) into bowl. Carefully add 84 oz. Ale 8 One. 25-30 four-ounce servings.

We don't make the Punch, but we make the soft drink that does!

Michigan Top Spot In This Poll

Michigan basketball coach Johnny Orr is the jubilant recipient of our timely and brightly wrapped holiday present this week. The gift arrived in Ann Arbor postage paid and found Mr. Orr in a giddy fit of frenzy to learn, not what it was, but from who it came.

"Who the hell is Pimm and Crum?" he is reported to have asked while pawing at the enclosed card. "Must be some dizzy leprachaun from a cookie company in south Grand Rapids."

Not at all, Mr. Orr. Just a couple of fellow basketball coaches who stunned the college basketball world the weekend before Christmas. Coaches Jerry Pimm of Utah and Denny Crum of Louisville sent their special forces deep into enemy country from whence they hauled out enough bounty to make the raid on Entebbe look like a Joe Hall fire drill. Pass the garden hose please.

"Happy holidays, Mr. Orr," the card began. "We have met the enemy in Milwaukee and Lexington and he is ours. And yours for the time being. Have a nice Yuletide. See you in the polls. Heh, heh, heh."

Michigan is No. 1. Pretenders to the throne have been thrown back. At least for now. While Orr's Wolverines were busy putting the laser to something called the Golden Flashes (that's Kent State's sobriquet) by a 102-66 TKO, Utah's Earl Williams hit a shot with :0½ on the clock to erase Kentucky from the top spot. And Louisville needed an OT and Al McGuire's retirement announcement to put Marquette back among the basketball mortals 78-75.

Both Kentucky and Marquette, along with surprise losers Arizona, Dayton and Memphis State, departed the untouchable ranks to reside once more in the land of once beatens and/or also rans.

Kentuckians come to the holidays with tears in their eyes and a blotch on the record that should not be. Meanwhile, from 'Frisco to South Bend to Tuscaloosa, there is holiday cheer abounding. For nine nationally recognized college teams and their coaches, there is not a stain in the right column. 'Tis the season to be jolly for these unbeatenes.

To say that Kentucky's 6-1 record should not be is to understate the case. Johnny Orr might well send along Thank You cards to Mike Phillips - who should have known better - and Jay Shidler - who has now learned his first lesson in Joe Hallism.

To err is human, but to break curfew during the Battle of Britain/UK basketball season (The two are interchangeable), is to foolishly tempt the Gods and their prophet Joe B. Hall. It is done but hopefully remembered as a lesson well learned.

While nine nationally ranked basketball teams enjoy their holiday turkey and ham, and one senses at least Johnny Orr will since his team has already played four of them - there are seven others who might just as easily be among the undefeated ranks also. That is if fate had thought to smile upon them.

Marquette is now 4-2. Coach Al McGuire's team might have won had a Butch Lee foul shot found the netting instead of a rim out. Lee's foul shot came with no time on the Milwaukee Arena clock and the score tied at 68-68. Instead, the Warriors went down to Louisville in overtime. If that wasn't enough, two nights later, the Warriors dropped number two in a row to Minnesota.

Kentucky is 6-1. Things might have been different in any number of ways. Here are a few:

1. UK's baseline defense alone was horrendous compared to the team's first six games. Did Utah's Jeff Judkins miss a baseline shot in the UKIT finals? How many times did Utah players drive the baseline on Kentucky? Defense is a controllable entity when all else fails offensively. If Indiana, South Carolina and Kansas could not shoot 40 percent against UK how is it that Utah can?

2. How many times will Jack Givens shoot three of thirteen from the field?

3. How many games will Kentucky's guard corps shoot 10 of 25 with Jay Shidler in the lineup?

4. While it was a reasonably good shot, James Lee's jumper in the waning seconds came much too soon. Coaches hve nightmares (so do fans) over what happened afterwards.

Kentucky's next opponent Notre Dame - unlike many other college teams around the nation - comes up to its December 30 clash with UK having played a testy schedule.

Coach Digger Phelps' Fighting Irish own wins at Maryland and UCLA and an easy win over Indiana at South Bend December 14. It is ironic that some basketball observers were fretful the Irish would not make it to the UK game with an unbeaten record. Not so funny now. And the Irish is ranked No. 2 in the nation in both wire service polls.

A footnote here: Notre Dame will be without starting guard Ray Martin who broke an ankle in the Indiana game.

And now, this week's final basketball poll as a new calendar year begins.

1. Michigan	4-0
2. Kentucky	6-1
3. San Francisco	10-0
4. Cincinnati	6-0
5. Alabama	6-0
6. Notre Dame	6-0
7. Louisville	4-2
8. Marquette	4-2
9. Clemson	8-0
10. Mississippi State	7-0
11. Minnesota	6-0
12. North Carolina	4-1
13. UCLA	5-1
14. Arizona	7-1
15. Maryland	6-1
16. Nevada Las Vegas	6-1
17. Dayton	6-1
18. Wake Forest	5-1
19. Memphis State	5-1
20. Detroit	6-1

Marquette was ranked second last week. How could Al McGuire's team slip to eighth? It's simple after watching the Warriors on TV Saturday night and then get beat by Minnesota. A bit of pre-season puffery in the national media pushed Marquette too high.

McGuire's club is woefully short of bench strength particularly at guards. The Warriors are not a physical team compared to Kentucky. Too, Jerome Whitehead is not nearly the offensive threat that Rick Robey and Mike Phillips are for Kentucky.

Stay tuned on Marquette.

Louisville moves back into the Top 10 this week based on its road win over Marquette. Coach Denny Crum's Cardinals are remarkably talented but woefully lacking in organization. Louisville's floor game, when Phillip Bond is out of the lineup, is indeed a Chinese fire drill.

The team to watch among the nation's best is coach Bob Galliard's San Francisco Dons. 'Frisco still has not played any nationally ranked teams, but the talent is there in quantity and quality.

Here is this week's 'I Wish I Hadn't Said That Award' goes to Courier-

Journal & Times sports writer Jim Terhune. Before last Saturday's games between UK-Utah and Louisville-Marquette, Terhune predicted Kentucky would defeat Utah by 23 points and Louisville would lose to Marquette 69-63.

Ouch!

Finally, a new feature this week. Question: What ever happened to . . .

He Played guard on the 1959 and 1960 Kentucky Wildcat teams that had records of 24-3 and 18-7. What ever happened to Sid Cohen?

He was a part-time guard and forward on Kentucky teams in 1955-56-57 during which UK put together a 66-14 won-loss record. What ever happened to Johnny Brewer of Walton-Verona?

Voight Wants Win In Peach Bowl

When Mike Voight lines up at tailback for North Carolina at 2:30 p.m. Dec. 31, it will be the last time the senior will play for the Tarheels.

Voight leaves Chapel Hill as the most prolific runner to ever wear the blue and white, and that took some doing because Voight followed in the 28-year-old footsteps of Charlie 'Choo-Choo' Justice, the UNC All-American in the late '40's.

"Mike is a once-in-a-lifetime player," says Tarheel Head Coach Bill Dooley, and that is no overstatement.

Voight ended the regular season against Duke with 261 yards rushing, four touchdowns and then added the winning two-point conversion with 37 seconds left to play as Carolina upended the Blue Devils, 39-38.

Voight finished the regular season as the fifth leading rusher in college football history. He had 1,407 yards this season for a career of 3,971. The only players with more career rushing yards are Tony Dorsett, Archie Griffin, Ed Marinaro and Joe Washington.

Voight's four touchdowns set a new Carolina career scoring record. The old mark of 39 was held by Justice. Voight finished with 42, which ties an Atlantic Coast conference record.

"The records are nice, but they don't really mean that much right now," said Voight. "Maybe they will later when I look back on them. I just want to go out a winner and the Peach Bowl is very important to me."

Voight was an ACC champion in the indoor high hurdles on the UNC track team, but skipped track last season to concentrate on football.

The Chesapeake, Va. native has a very philosophical view of football. "Football opened up opportunities that I wouldn't have had otherwise—a chance to travel and meet a lot of interesting people. It also gives you a chance to work your way through school. Football is the only way some athletes have of getting an education. And when I say work, that's what I mean. I put in around seven hours a day at football. That's almost a job. It's hard work, but I don't look at it as a real burden. The good things about football more than offset the work."

Voight is nicknamed 'Space Cadet' by his teammates. They claim he's in the twilight zone during the football season. But Voight is smart like a fox.

How does he prepare mentally for a game? "I go to sleep," he says.

Who's the person in history you most admire? "The girl that sat on my right in History 21," says he.

And what has football done for you? "Well, I haven't been able to reap any profits from it yet except an education. But it has given me an opportunity to meet a lot of people, make a lot of friends, and compete against the top people in my field. Of course, it has given me a lot of sleepless nights and been a pain in the neck. But, it has been worth it."

A Message From Gov. Julian Carroll

OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR
FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY 40601

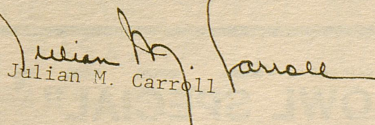

JULIAN M. CARROLL
GOVERNOR

Kentuckians are extremely proud of the University of Kentucky and its accomplishments in many fields of educational endeavor as well as the attainment of an exceptional record in competitive athletics.

The University football team has moved from a long string of disappointments to a big winning season in 1976, capped by an invitation to the Peach Bowl in Atlanta.

I join all Kentuckians with my congratulations for a great season and a job well done.

Your efforts and winning spirit have instilled an even greater pride in native Kentuckians throughout the nation. I extend my best wishes for your continued success.

Wildcats Enjoy Big Win Over Tennessee

Kentucky Shocks Opponents, Experts In 1976

Kentucky's explosive Wildcats got the 1976 football season off to a fine start, scoring thirty-eight points in the first half against Oregon State, and then winding up with back-to-back wins over Florida and Tennessee for a 7-4 season and a 4-2 Southeastern Conference record.

Along the way to their best season since Blanton Collier's first UK team (1954) finished with a 7-3 record, the Wildcats also defeated such national powers as Penn State and Louisiana State.

As a reward for surprising practically all the pre-season experts, the Wildcats received and accepted an invitation to the Peach Bowl, ending a 25-year post-season drought.

The last time a UK team appeared in a bowl game was in 1952, when the Wildcats of "Bear" Bryant defeated Texas Christian, 20-7, in the Cotton Bowl. Prior to that time, UK had defeated Villanova, 24-4, in the first and only Great Lakes Bowl (at Cleveland, Ohio), lost to Santa Clara, 21-13, in the 1950 Orange Bowl, and defeated Oklahoma, 13-7, in the 1951 Sugar Bowl, ending the national champion Sooners' 31-game winning streak.

One of the several keys to UK's surprising Peach Bowl team is Derrick Ramsey, a 6-foot-5, 220 lb. junior from Camden, N. J. Ramsey was the starting quarterback against Maryland in the second game of the 1975 season, switched to tight end in mid-season and then back to quarterback for the final game against Tennessee.

As the 1976 season got under way, Wildcat coach Fran Curci announced that Ramsey would be the No. 1 quarterback in a new "full house" wishbone offense that would replace the veer that Curci brought to UK three years earlier.

Ramsey responded by carrying the ball 187 times for 771 yards (4.1 avg.) and 10 touchdowns. He also completed 51 of 103 passes (49.5%) for 577 yards and seven touchdowns, becoming the eighth player in UK history to go over the 1,000-yard mark for a season.

The big quarterback's supporting cast included sophomores Rod Stewart (146 carries for 711 yards and five TD's) and Chris Hill (124 carries for 606 yards and three touchdowns) and senior Greg Woods (110 carries for 504 yards). Freshman Randy Brooks came on strong in late season, finishing with 27 carries for 131 yards.

Woods, who was a three-year starter on defense, switched to offense and finished as the team's second-leading pass receiver with 10 catches for 142 yards and two touchdowns. His big catch was a 62-yard TD romp that beat Tennessee, 7-0.

Randy Burke led receivers with 15 catches for 152 yards. Hill caught 10 for 93 yards and a touchdown.

Key to the offensive line was Warren Bryant, a 6-6, 250 lb. senior tackle who is a three-year all-SEC performer and a 1976 All-American. The remainder of the offensive line was a "patchwork" affair, with Dave Hopewell being converted from offensive and defensive tackle to center, and Tom Dornbrook to offensive guard after playing as a defensive end, linebacker and center. Steve Slates and Ed Smolder completed the interior line. Charlie Dickerson caught five passes for 90 yards and a touchdown at tight end.

Senior punter Pete Gemmill averaged 38.5 yards per kick while place kicker John Pierce connected on 21 of 23 extra point attempts and three of nine field goals.

Art Still, a 6-6, 245 lb. junior bulwark at defensive end, became the team's only two-way player, seeing action on practically all defensive plays and averaging about 15 offensive plays a game at tight end. He was so outstanding in both roles that he was named Associated Press Southeast "Player of the Week" for the LSU game.

Still's supporting cast included such outstanding junior classmates as linebacker Jim Kovach, who leads the team in tackles with 94 solos and 49 assists; noseguard Jerry Blanton, whose 62 solos and 39 assists are third to Still (73 & 28); tackles Bob Winkel (62 & 34) and James Ramey (34 & 22), and Mike Siganos, who was called the best defensive back in the South by Tennessee coach Bill Battle.

Siganos returned 40 punts, beating his old record of 30 set in 1975, for 216 yards and intercepted three passes. Sophomore Rick Hayden led in interceptions with five, which he returned for 69 yards.

The Wildcats outscored their opponents, 188-151, held the edge in rushing yardage 2960-1976, but trailed in passing yardage, 1031-729.

They played before 341,204 fans in Commonwealth Stadium, setting a Wildcat attendance record. The Average was 56,866.

UK ATHLETES SPEAK OUT FOR JESUS CHRIST

Jesus Christ is an aid in the wear and tear that my head goes through everyday. He's a comfort in times of trouble and someone with whom I can share a happy time. But no matter what, He's always there.

Christ is my God, but more so my friend. He is never more than a prayer away to comfort me or strengthen me, and is always an example to me.

Christ means everything to me. I know that seems like a broad statement, but it's true. He's given me this opportunity to get a college education by giving me the ability to play football. He's the one who's always giving. He gave his only Son so that I could live forever - me, who else loves me that much. Yes, I guess that God means having perfect love is the ultimate love. I would be happy to give back just part of that love.

And we all can receive that love and we don't have to do anything but accept Him. Yes, Christ is Love.

The Lord is my path-finder. The Lord will guide me in the right path as long as I try to live a good life. I feel He will keep me free of any major injuries on or off the field, as long as I love the Lord in my heart. I have no fear of what the future will bring.

It's hard to really write what Jesus means to me, but I know He means a lot, even though it might not seem that way sometimes.

No matter how hard a person tries, he is going to face many situations in which he just doesn't know what to do. I was fortunate to find out early in life that no matter what the situation, the Lord will be there and help you if you ask Him.

Rod Stewart

SOPHOMORE—21, 6-1, 197—Lancaster, Ohio... When Fran Curci switched from the veer to the wishbone offense after the 1975 season, he said the key person in his "full house" backfield would be Rod Stewart and that "Stew" would have to average in the neighborhood of 100 yards a game to make the offense effective. Stew came through with 711 yards and five touchdowns and caught six passes for 50 yards. Curci called him one of the most promising young backs in the nation. All-American and many other honors at Lancaster High.

Kupec Eyes Kentucky

University of North Carolina fans feel right at home when the starting quarterback's name is Kupec.

In 1974, quarterback Chris Kupec set three UNC records with most yards passing, most passes completed and best passing percentage.

Now, Chris' younger brother, Matt, is at the helm. As a freshman, he has guided the Tarheels to a 9-2 mark and a date with Kentucky in the ninth annual Peach Bowl.

But Kupec didn't just inherit the job. In fact, when the season started last September, Kupec as anything but the starter. "I was about No. 4 or No. 5," he says.

Then strange things began to happen to the Tarheel signal-callers.

Johnny Stratton, No. 1 at the time, injured his wrist in workouts and no. 2 P. J. Gay went out with a knee injury. Johnny Elam, running third pulled up with a bad leg and all of a sudden Kupec as in the No. 2 spot.

Bernie Menapace was the starter by the third day of practice and Kupec was next in line.

But in the sixth game of the season, against N.C. State, Head Coach Bill Dooley started Kupec and he's been there since. "I don't know why he started me against N.C. State, but I was glad to get the chance," says Kupec.

The amazing thing about Kupec is that he's only a freshman. He tore some ligaments last year and didn't get to participate at all, so even though he's a sophomore at UNC, he's only a freshman eligibility-wise.

The New York native has hit on 52 of 99 passes for 751 yards and two touchdowns and rushed for another since he became a starter.

"We're really happy to be coming to the Peach Bowl," says Kupec. "We had high hopes before the season started, but then we got so many of our starters hurt. But the young guys have really come through and I consider this a very successful season."

And what about starting as a freshman?

"Not many freshmen get a chance to start and I think I'm pretty lucky and I know it. Everyone asks me if I feel any extra pressure because I am a freshman and I guess I would have to say yes. But I also enjoy the pressure."

Whenever Matt performs, his brother Chris is there. Chris is working for a North Carolina radio station broadcasting the Tarheel games.

And can he be objective about his brother?

"There's no way," says Chris.

So Matt has come all the way from fifth team to the role of starting quarterback on a Bowl team and the North Carolina squad has come back from a disastrous 1975 season [3-7-1] to a 9-2 won-lost slate.

"We've still got one more game to win to really make the year successful," says Kupec. "I can't wait to get to Atlanta."

About Probation

Editor
The Cats' Pause
Lexington, Ky. 40502

Dear Sir:

It is not my practice to write "Letters To The Editor," but this one I feel I must write to get it off my chest. The purpose of this letter concerns the recent probation that was placed upon the University of Kentucky athletic programs.

I think the restrictions placed by the N.C.A.A. on UK to be very very wrong, and just as wrong as the violations that UK committed. What kind of wrong was involved in the NCAA action you may ask. Well, here is the wrong I feel they committed. They punished the whole program and not the individuals involved. By punishing the whole program don't you penalize many, many innocent people? Isn't it wrong I ask to penalize someone for something that he or she wasn't responsible for in the first place. If President Ford runs a stop sign should all Americans be held responsible for him running that stop sign and have to pay a traffic ticket? In the same vein if Coach Hall or Coach Curci or any coach on any team in America be caught involved in a recruiting violation shouldn't they be held responsible for their actions?

Putting a school on probation allows the coach or athletic department to hide behind the school's probation for their wrong doing.

Why not have every coach in America sign a statement by the NCAA that says that they are aware that if they are caught in any wrong doing that they, not the school shall be put on probation. Why not have every high school athlete in America sign a statement that fully explains the rules laid down by the NCAA on recruiting and let that athlete know that should he be found guilty of a violation he would be the one to suffer the consequences. I know that some coaches and some athletes in America would very strongly contend that these two suggestions are unfair but if one has his nose clean he doesn't have to worry about it running, does he?

Again, I say why must many, many athletes on many, many college teams across the country, who are innocent of any wrong doing be punished for the violations of the few. As for over zealous alumni, probably the best means to take control of them would be to take their season ticket privileges away from them or something along this order.

I would like to end this letter by saying that if the NCAA continues to punish innocent people for things they were not guilty of, the Rick Robeys and the Larry Johnsons of the athletic word, then maybe the NCAA should be investigated and put on probation!

My mentioning Coach Hall and Curci's names was in no way intended to be a slam on them or their characters. I do not know nor have I ever met either gentleman. I do know one thing, and that is I live and breathe UK sports and I didn't like all this probation talk because I don't think there is a major college in the country that couldn't be found guilty of the very same infractions.

Sincerely yours,

Wayne Ball

Sends Good Luck

Dear Sir:

You have a great magazine and please send me a years subscription to it.

I have been a Wildcat fan since I can't remember when. Best of luck in the Peach Bowl and bring home the NCAA title this year.

Sincerely

Great UK Fan

Dear Sir:

When I was in Lexington to see the first game in beautiful Rupp Arena, Joe Hall gave me a copy of The Cats' Pause.

I just talked to Joe and he reminded me about it and I dug it out and finished reading it. It is GREAT. Enclosed is my check for $10.00 for my subscription.

I will see you in March when UK will be in the finals of NCAA tournament. Keep up the great work. My son, Alec, loves UK as much as I do. I have been a UK fan since 1946.

Fred Is Alive!

Dear Sir:

I want everyone to know I didn't fall off the top of Neyland Stadium nor did I jump into the Tennessee River after Tennessee GAVE Kentucky the football game last month. Kentucky was lucky, about every twelve years it happens, but you can count on Johnny Majors bringing us back to the front next year.

My main concern right now is how the Kentucky fans treat our great basketball kids when they come to Lexington. The abuse Bernard King and Ernie Grunfeld have to go through up there in the bush league should not be allowed. But we don't mind that because we're the cat tamers in Kentucky. Remember, last year when you had that fourteen point lead? We'll be up there soon and then maybe all that March Atlanta talk will shut up.

I won't be able to make it because visitors can't get a seat in Lexington, but that won't make any difference. The Big Orange will make it two in a row in Lexington.

See you in Knoxville, home of the champions.

Sincerely,

Fred Walters
Knoxville, Tennessee

[Editor's note: Our Vol friend Fred's thoughts are well taken, but he may be ambushed for a second straight time, himself. I'd be happy to have him as our game guest in Lexington if he isn't afraid to catch the Big Blue fever.]

Enjoys Cats' Pause

Dear Sir:

Enclosed is a check for two subscriptions to The Cats' Pause. One is for my brother-in-law who is coaching with Chuck Knox and the Los Angeles Rams and the other is for my wife and I.

I've been buying The Cats Pause at the newsstands but they run out in a hurry. Good luck with this publication.

SEC Is Junk

Dear Sir:

Please cancel my subscription. I graduated from the University of Kentucky in 1955 and have not seen such a terrible ball game as I did in the UKIT on December 18 for a very long time.

The last bad ball game I saw was when Northwestern University beat UK at Evanston in 1975.

The Southeastern Conference is junk. Only the Big Ten is worth a damn. UK doesn't deserve my support.

Sincerely,

Kenneth B. Hatfield, MD
Chicago, Illinois

[Editor's note: We are happy to oblige any such reader who is not satisfied. We not only will cancel his subscription but will issue a full $10 refund. We're sorry to say there are some fair weather UK supporters around. By the way, we'd be more than delighted to take your season tickets off your hands at face value, if you are so disgusted with UK. Ironically, we received another cancellation from a similar fuming fan, but he wrote in two days later and asked us to forgive him for giving up so quick on the Wildcats. Wonder if Bobby Knight has any fans like these?]

Loves Big Blue

Dear Sir:

Please enter my name to your subscription list. I have been a Kentucky Basketball fan for many years. I had the good fortune to be stationed in Lexington as an Air Force Recruiter from 1960 to 1967 and did not miss any home games.

The "BIG BLUE" will always have a warm place in my heart. I still listen to WHAS and Mr. [left to right on your radio dial] Ledford. Sure would like to get all back issues if at all possible. Thank you very much and keep up the good work.

Sincerely,

Lester M. Lee, MSgt, USAF

Prospectus

Georgia returns four of the five starters which led the Bulldogs to a sixth place finish in the 1975-76 SEC race after finishing in the cellar the previous two seasons. The four returning starters are a sound nucleus on which to build the 1977 Georgia team. Heading the list of returnees is sophomore guard Walter Daniels who was selected to the All-SEC Freshman first team and averaged 15 points per game last year.

Other starters include Lucius Foster, 6-10 junior center, who averaged 12.6 points and 8.1 rebounds last season; junior guard Tony Flanagan, two-year starter who led the team in assists last year with 113 for a 4.3 average and hit for a 10.7 point scoring average; and 6-7 sophomore forward Curtis Jackson who averaged 5.9 points and 3.4 rebounds as a freshman.

Also returning is third guard Mark Slonaker, 6-5 sophomore; reserve 6-5 senior forward Jolo Hicks, part-time starter in 1974-75; 6-7 junior forward Mike Thorne, 6-5 senior forward Pete Fusi; and 6-3 senior forward Gregg Ewaldsen. Charley Dorsey, starting forward as a freshman in 1974-75 and the first four games last season, could also play.

Several new recruits figure prominently in John Guthrie's fourth year at Georgia, primarily in adding depth absent most of last season. Heading the list are two high school All-Americans: 6-10 center Lamon Mercer, Metter, Ga.; and 6-1 guard Jimmy Daughtry, Enigma, Ga.

Other highly-regarded newcomers include 6-6 forward David Reavis, 6-6 forward John Wimberly, and 6-4 guard-forward Joe Childers.

Bulldog Coach

Fourth-year Head Coach John Guthrie has long been making a name for himself in Georgia athletics, first as a player and more recently as a coach.

A native of Atlanta, Guthrie was an outstanding athlete at Murphy High, making all-state in basketball while leading his team to the state championship. He later enrolled at nearby Oglethorpe University where he lettered in both basketball and baseball.

After graduating from Oglethorpe in 1963, Guthrie coached basketball and baseball at Southwest DeKalb in Atlanta. He returned to his alma mater in 1965 as head freshman coach and assistant varsity coach under Garland Pinholster. His next stop was George Washington University where he was a varsity coach for two seasons.

Guthrie joined the Georgia staff in 1969 as an assistant and was named Bulldog head coach in September, 1973.

Presenting Vol Game Ball

WITH THE GAME BALL—For a few moments, the game ball of the UK-Tennessee football game—the first time in 12 years that Kentucky beat the Volunteers—was the center of attention at the Kentucky General Assembly, as Senate President Pro Tem Joe Prather, left, Gov. Julian Carroll, UK linebacker Jim Kovach, House Speaker William Kenton and UK football coach Fran Curci presented the ball to the legislators. The UK-Tennessee game secured the Wildcats' berth in the Peach Bowl.

Many Wildcats Will Be In Uniform For First Time

Year after year, hundreds of college football players toil through the practices and never get to suit up for a game, especially in recent seasons when the NCAA limited the number of players who can be suited up for games.

But when bowl time arrives, it's a different story. Teams may dress as many players as they want to. And Fran Curci is making the best of the situation.

When Kentucky takes the field against North Carolina in the Peach Bowl, more than one hundred Wildcats will be suited up. Almost thirty of those Wildcats will be racing onto the field in uniform for the first time in their career.

Last week, The Cats' Pause wondered what it feels like to be suited up for your first collegiate game, especially with it being a bowl game.

Here's the reaction from a few Kentucky players who have never suited up before.

Joe Arnold, tight end, Owentown, Ky.: "It's a great opportunity to go to a bowl. It's something that you always think about doing and being a freshman it feels good going my first year."

Mike Boyle, defensive end, Cleveland, Ohio: "I went all season without a 'K' on my helmet and it feels good to have it on now. The Peach Bowl is the biggest game of the season and it's the one I would like to dress for the most."

Anthony Cuellar, running back, Mt. Sterling, Ky.: "Being a freshman, I was fortunate coming in the year we're going to a bowl. I'm excited about it."

Terry Curry, defensive tackle, Campbellsville, Ky.: "Going to a bowl game is self-satisfaction for you and for the team, it's great. Every man plays an important role on this team."

Mark Giannonatti, wide receiver, Delavan, Wisconsin: "It's like a dream come true going to the Peach Bowl. It's a great feeling."

Frank Hughes, running back, Chattanooga, Tennessee: "The Peach Bowl will be one of the best experiences in my life. It will be exciting going out in front of 60,000 people."

Chris Jacobs, defensive back, Coral Gables, Florida: "I've seen bowl games on television before and now I'll be seen on television myself."

Luis Lopez, defensive end, Miami, Florida: "Without a doubt, the Peach Bowl will be a big thrill for me and the whole team. It will be the beginning of better things to come for the Kentucky football team."

Randy Young, center, Oxon Hill, Maryland: "It's kinda hard to believe that I came here just to play football and end up going to a bowl game. It makes everything seem worthwhile."

A Commentary

NCAA

Real Story Behind The Basketball Portion Of NCAA Investigation

By OSCAR COMBS

Many sports fans of the University of Kentucky were pleased, to say the least, with the results of the National Collegiate Athletic Association last week and the sanctions imposed on UK's two major athletic programs.

I say many fans were pleased, not all of them. And the same can be said for officials of the university.

Dr. Otis Singletary, president of UK, told reporters at a meeting of the UK Athletic Association, he is satisfied with the report of the NCAA although he didn't agree with each specific finding.

UK football coach Fran Curci basically echoed Singletary's comments and said the NCAA was very fair in dealing with the football program.

Athletics director Cliff Hagan didn't go that far. He thought the UK basketball team took a "below the belt" punch from the NCAA, based on the evidence and findings made available to UK.

So what does Joe Hall think? He hasn't made any public comment on the matter and knowing Joe Hall, it doesn't sound a great deal like the man who has always insisted his program has "nothing to hide from the NCAA or anyone."

So what gives? Has someone warned Joe Hall not to talk about the investigation or has Hall got something to hide. It isn't likely he's been instructed to keep quiet since Curci has made his public comments about the investigation.

Then one must think something is wrong.

Except the facts concerning the basketball program are to the contrary.

Since the report was released more than a week ago, The Cats' Pause has been talking with people close to the investigation and the programs at UK. The findings might startle some people, especially those who dislike the basketball program.

Of the forty-six violations found against the University, only seven were against the basketball program. One other item against the basketball team involved practices, not in compliance of NCAA regulations, being carried out with the knowledge of the basketball coach.

The Cats' Pause decided to look into the basketball matter since Hagan publicly said he felt the basketball group had been dealt with unjustly.

Dr. Singletary and Hagan both declined to go into detailed discussions on any specific charges. Likewise, Hall also declined to comment although this is the same Hall who felt his team was innocent of any major violations just a few short weeks ago.

While basketball officials refused to talk about the NCAA investigation, close supporters of the basketball team insist the basketball phase would have fared much better had it presented its case separately instead of becoming a part of the overall athletic program investigation.

Cited as an example was the manner in which the media broke the news, especially the wire services where one service released a story saying in essence, "NCAA PLACES KENTUCKY FOOTBALL, BASKETBALL ON TWO YEARS PROBATION."

Technically, the headline was right, but not totally. At least two stories failed to say the only penalty against the basketball program was the loss of at the time he and his son visited UK. A local UK supporter mentioned he knew people at the manufacturing plant and would see if he could help get the elder Benson's order speeded up. That was the extent of the charge. No tractors were ever delivered.

[B] A former assistant basketball coach gave a pair of shoes to a prospective student-athlete.

The Cats' Pause learned UK basket-no cost to him at the time he accompanied his son on an official paid visit to the University's campus.

Although The Cats' Pause sought more information on this allegation, the major portion has been known by the public for three years. It involved Kent Benson's visit to Kentucky when he was being recruited by UK. A plane was arranged for Benson to fly here by Coach Hall. Benson's father accompanied him on the visit and at the time UK was unaware the father's presence on the plane was against NCAA rules. The plane arrived in Lexington with some 3,000 fans on hand to greet Benson in hopes of persuading him to attend UK. Shortly thereafter, UK discovered the infraction and turned itself in on this matter.

[H] While on their official visit to the University's campus, several prospective student-athletes were provided round-trip automobile transportation between Lexington and a farm [approximately twenty miles one way] by the head basketball coach where the prospective athletes were entertained.

The Cats' Pause pinpointed the findings surrounding some six athletes' visits to the Claiborne Farm. Also discovered was the fact that Lynn Nance, UK assistant at the time and a former NCAA investigator, made a call to the NCAA to make sure the visits were legal. He was reportedly told it would be okay. The NCAA says you may not entertain a prospective athlete outside the city limits of the campus. Since Claiborne is one of the nation's historic landmarks, the exception was sought and allegedly granted by phone. The distance from the campus was the violation according to the NCAA report.

The only other black-mark against the basketball team was reference to Hall not admitting to the other violations in a report to the university about the violations which Hall considered his program was not in violation of.

Some fans may wonder why The Cats' Pause investigated the basketball charges and not the football charges. It's because Fran Curci said he was pleased with the action taken in connection with his program.

Repeated efforts to obtain comment from Hall proved unsuccessful. He just replied he had no comment at this time.

Hall certainly doesn't act like a man whose program is basically "as clean as they come." And The Cats' Pause findings were documented by more than one person in each instance.

Hall should be complaining about the treatment his program received from the NCAA, but he isn't. Maybe it's because someone told him not to talk but he won't even comment on that question.

Cliff Hagan has spoken. He has been quoted as saying the basketball team was hit below the belt. It's sad other officials don't see it that way, if that's the way it is.

Findings

Didn't

Justify

two scholarships each of two years.

And one story encouraged readers to believe the Kentucky football program would not be eligible for television or post season bowl games for two years.

As you are well aware by now, the football program is prohibited from appearing on NCAA televised football next season and from playing in a bowl game next year. The football program will also lose five scholarships for one year. That's the entire penalty, period.

The basketball squad will have its scholarships sliced from five to three in each of the next two years. That is the ENTIRE penalty against the basketball team.

The second year of probation apparently just looks good in print for the NCAA and allows irresponsible newspapers the opportunity to get lazy and mislead readers.

But back to the basketball program.

Even the loss of scholarships is severe to a program which is just about as clean as television's own, "Mr. Clean."

Let's go over the charges, one by one, as uncovered by our report:

[A] A representative of the University's athletic interests offered to specially arrange for diesel tractors to be forwarded to the farm equipment business operated by a student-athlete's father in an effort to encourage the enrollment of the prospective student-athlete in the University.

The Cats' Pause found out the incident involved the father of Kent Benson who later signed with the University of Indiana. While one might be led to think the tractors would be a gift, nothing is farther from the truth. According to people close to the situation, the older Benson was having trouble obtaining delivery of tractors ball officials entered a plea of guilty to the charge.

[C] The University's head basketball coach provided gifts and mementos to three prospective student-athletes in order to encourage their enrollment in the University.

The Cats' Pause findings showed the basketball program was guilty, at least technically, to the charges. Given to the prospective athletes were a T-shirt. Also, some athletes received a used horseshoe from a local farm, the same type horseshoe which is given free to many visitors at the farm.

[D] On numerous occasions over a period of four years, a representative of the University's athletic interests gave personal grooming and sundry items to various members of the University's basketball team.

The Cats' Pause learned, through some former UK players that this is in reference to enthusiastic "Wildcats" fans in the community who usually have no connection with the athletic dept. itself. Things received by the athletes usually range from shampoo to combs and hairbrushes. The infractions were uncovered by UK's own investigation and efforts have been made to discourage such incidents.

[F] Members of the University's intercollegiate basketball team [over a three-year period] were admitted free of charge to a movie theatre.

The Cats' Pause learned that UK's own investigation confirmed this to be occurring but again had nothing to do with the athletic department and there is no way that UK or any other college could totally prevent a theatre from admitting anyone free to a movie if it should wish to.

[G] Through the arrangement of the University's head basketball coach, the father of a prospective student-athlete was provided transportation at

Hall's Wildcats Aim For Upset Of Second Ranked Notre Dame In Louisville

Having seen the nation's longest major college win streak end at 16 with a 70-68 loss to Utah in the finals of the UKIT Saturday, the Kentucky Wildcats have an opportunity to redeem their No. 3 national ranking when they meet 4th ranked Notre Dame Dec. 30 at Louisville's Freedom Hall.

The Wildcats had several chances to win their seventh consecutive Christmas tournament, but in the end, it was the Utes unshakable poise and deadly shooting which did in the Cats.

Utah's 6-foot-6 junior forward, Jeff Judkins, was named the tourney's Most Valuable Player after pumping in 53 points on 21 of 36 shots, a tournament high.

Also named to the All-Tournament team were Tony Robertson of West Virginia and three Wildcats- Jack Givens, James Lee, and for the third straight year, Rick Robey.

Kentucky appeared on the verge of an unbeaten season after a 98-67 thrashing of South Carolina at Columbia, the worst defeat ever hung on the Gamecocks in Carolina Coliseum. In fact Carolina coach Frank McGuire called Kentucky the best club ever to play in the coliseum and that they should be No. 1 in the country.

Then on Thursday prior to the UKIT, UK head coach Joe B. Hall suspended two starters, center Mike Phillips and guard Jay Shidler, and reserve guard Truman Claytor, for curfew violations and the Cats played with an improvised lineup which carried them past Bowling Green, 77-59 and hopes of slipping past a fine Utah Club which beat No. 4 ranked Nevada-Las Vegas earlier in the season.

However, the absence of Phillips and Shidler resulted in a serious shooting deficit as the Wildcats hit only 38.3 and 40.6 per cent of their shots in the tournament and saw a fine team shooting percentage 51.8, drop to 47.9.

Following the Utah game, Hall said the three suspended players would be reinstated following the Christmas break and that the squad would be at full strength for the Notre Dame showdown.

Givens continues to lead the Cats with 18.4 ppg, while Robey is next with 13.3 and leads in rebounds with 8.6. Three other players are in double figures-Phillips 12.8, Shidler 11.6 and Johnson 11.1, while James Lee is at 9.8.

Notre Dame Irish, which lost guard Ray Martin with a broken ankle in the Indiana game, is expected to start guards Duck Williams, 17.5 and Rich Branning, 10.5, center Bruce Flowers, 11.2, and forwards Dave Batton, 11.6, and Bill Petero, 7.5. Sixth man Toby Knight, who normally plays more than Flowers, is hitting 14.3 and leads in rebounding with 10.0.

Notre Dame holds a wide lead in team stats-shooting 50.8 to 45.9, rebounds 40.0 to 33.0 and scoring 85.8 to 68.

Kentucky holds a 24-14 margin in the series and won last year's game, 79-77. The Wildcats have won 14 of 17 games in Louisville. The Irish recorded their last win in 1973, a 94-79 victory.

While the Notre Dame game is of great importance to Kentucky's season, coach Hall feels the real season gets under way when Georgia opens the Southeastern Conference portion of the schedule Jan. 3 in Rupp Arena.

The Wildcats hold a 54-9 series lead, including a 25-1 mark in Lexington.

The Bulldogs are 5-1 and have remaining games with Evansville, Indiana in the first round of the Sugar Bowl, and either Cincinnati or South Carolina in the final round.

The Dogs were jolted with the loss of center Lucius Foster, who is out for the season due to a broken elbow, and an ankle injury which has slowed freshman Jimmy Daughtry. Probable starters are guards Walter Daniels, 18.5, and Mark Slonaker, 2.6, center Lavon Mercer, 16.2, and Forwards David Reavis, 12.8, and Mike Thorn, 5.0. Charlie Dorsey, who sat out most of last year academically ineligible, is expected to return to the squad, in which case he would replace Thorn.

The Dogs are outshooting opponents 48.9 to 45.3, outrebounding them 41.1 to 34.6, and outscoring them 72.0 to 65.0.

Kentucky's next SEC game is on regional television Jan. 8 at Vanderbilt.

Kentucky's Wildcats will challenge powerful North Carolina in the 1976 Peach Bowl Friday afternoon in Atlanta, Georgia, and it will be the highlight of several players' career.

Last week, just before the Wildcats headed to hometowns across the nation for the Christmas holidays, The Cats' Pause talked with some of the seniors about the importance of the upcoming game with the Tar Heels.

It will be the first bowl game for Kentucky in twenty-five years and it will be a dream come true for the Kentucky seniors as well as the thousands of fans around the Kentucky.

Here is what some of the seniors had to say about the Peach Bowl game and the 1976 Kentucky season:

Warren Bryant, All-American offensive tackle, Miami, Florida: "This bowl game really means a lot to me. When I first came here as a freshman, Kentucky wasn't a winner. We've tried our best and worked hard. Two years ago we had the opportunity to go to a bowl. But we overlooked Tennessee. This time we didn't overlook them. Now, we've got our chance. I'm really happy our team is going to a bowl game. I get to go to my own (All-Star) bowls. It's much better to see the team go. I would rather go with the team. It was a special bonus when we beat Tennessee with the bowl game invitation on the line."

Randy Burke, wide receiver, Miami, Florida: "I'm very proud of my senior class. We've come a long way together. Many people thought a winning season at Kentucky this year was impossible. I have a deep down feeling of fulfillment. Our team has almost reached all the goals we had hoped to. There's one more remaining and that's to beat North Carolina."

Ray Carr, defensive back, Louisville, Ky.: "I feel good going to the Peach Bowl. Since it's my last year, I like to go out in style. Having a winning season and going to a bowl game is the style everybody likes to go out in. Since this is my last year, I'm glad we're in the Peach Bowl."

Cliff Hite, quarterback, Findlay, Ohio: "I think it's great for the team to get to go to a bowl game this year. For the freshmen, it gives them something to shoot for in their remaining years at UK. For the seniors, well, it's about time."

There is no one person that the team depends on to carry the rest. We have five excellent backs, who along with Derrick Ramsey, are hard to stop. The offensive line is the best since I've been here. I couldn't thank the offensive line enough for all they've done for me in the past. And, of course, the defense is the best in the country and except for Ray Carr, they are all back next year. Now that we have a chance to go to a bowl, it gives the 'Super Class' of Ramsey, Art Still, Jerry Blanton and everyone something to shoot for next year. That 'Super Class' is the best class anywhere in the country, the rest is up to them. I wish all the guys good luck and thank them for allowing me to take a part in this new era of Kentucky football."

John Nocht, center, Brownsville, Pennsylvania: "After five years, the bowl game is what the whole team has worked for. It's the reason why you play to go to a bowl and be rated."

John Pierce, kicker, Cynthiana, Kentucky: "A bowl game has always been the goal since I've been here. It took four years but we did finally get there."

Ches Riddle, safety, Madisonville, Kentucky: "I think that it's great going to the Peach Bowl game and hope we'll be able to win it."

Steve Slates, offensive guard, Carrollton, Ohio: "Going to a bowl game has been my goal ever since high school. It's going to be a super atmosphere with all the UK fans in Atlanta. We'll not only dominate the stadium, but Atlanta also. It will be one huge community. I attribute our success at home to the fans. Atlanta will be like home."

Greg Woods, running back, Middletown, Conn.: "After four years of not going anywhere and then beating Florida and Tennessee, it seems fitting for us to go to a bowl game. I think this team deserves a bowl game."

Derrick Ramsey

JUNIOR—20, 6-5, 222—Camden, N. J. . . . A major reason for UK's winning season, Derrick continued his fine running of the past and also showed that his passing is a potent weapon. Earned AP Southeast "Back of the Week" honors twice this year. Led team in rushing and scoring and finished among the SEC leaders in both categories. Threw for two TDs against Oregon State and Maryland and hit Greg Woods with a 62-yard TD pass that beat Tennessee. Started at quarterback the second game of the 1975 season, a 10-10 tie with nationally ranked Maryland. He later switched to tight end and then back to quarterback for the final game against Tennessee. Curci named him the No. 1 quarterback before the 1976 season began and stuck with him all the way. Derrick played two years at Hastings, Fla., and then transferred with his coach to Camden High, where he starred in both football and basketball.

Around The SEC

With Bill Straub

Bear Quiets Retirement Rumors

Although it certainly stands as one of the major—if not the major—college football groups in the nation, the Southeastern Conference has done a little less than hold its own in bowl games the past few years.

But if everything develops as it did in the first major encounter of the post-season campaign, the SEC won't have anything to worry about.

After failing to win a bowl game in its previous eight attempts, coach Paul "Bear" Bryant's Alabama Crimson Tide came through with a satisfying 13-6 victory over Penn State in the Sugar Bowl last year.

Proving the modest winning streak was no fluke, the Bear placed one of the least talented teams ever to represent the crimson and white on the field against powerful UCLA for the Dec. 20 Liberty Bowl. Needless to say the Tide pushed the Bruins—at one time ranked number two in the nation—all around the field enroute to a 36-6 victory.

It was good news for the SEC but bad for everyone else. If this trend continues, the conference will wind up with a 4-0 slate in postseason action but no one will notice. The Liberty Bowl was so boring it lulled everyone to sleep.

In action reminiscent of the Joe Namath, Lee Ray Jordon and John Hannah days, the Tide scored 17 points in the first quarter and wound up putting points on the board in all four periods to take the game going away. UCLA didn't score until the game was out of reach at 30-0. Actually the Bruins outgained Bama for the fame 380 yards to 372, but anytime UCLA got anywhere near the goal line there was no way to get it across.

In the end, the difference was in the turnover department. Bama intercepted three Bruin passes and recovered one fumble. The Tide didn't cough the ball up once.

The victory, of course, was a sweet one for the Bear whom many believe is over the hill. In fact at least one noted writer—Newspaper Enterprise Association sports editor Murry Olderman—has stated publicly its time for the Bear to step down.

But the Liberty Bowl victory may have put an end to the talk. The Bear who led the Wildcats during the glory days of Kentucky football now has a career record of 262-75-16. The magic 300 plateau is well within his reach and it's doubtful he'll step down prior to that time.

Alabama's victory, of course, is just the tip of the iceberg as far as SEC bowl action is concerned. Three more teams, making four out of the total 10 in the conference, will square off before action comes to an end New Year's night.

Many people feel the SEC has weakened in the past few years in comparison to other conference specifically the Big Eight. Although it is true teams like Nebraska and Oklahoma have caused the Big Eight's stock to rise, it would be wrong to say the SEC is faltering.

Forty percent of the teams that took part in the Southeastern Conference wars this season are heading to bowls. Only three teams from the Big Eight—Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Colorado—are seeing action.

The Southwestern Conference, comprising of such former powers as Texas and Arkansas, has only two bowl teams in Texas A&M and Houston. The Pacific Eight, soon to be the Pacific 10 with the inclusion of Arizona and Arizona State, also has but two representatives in UCLA and Southern Cal.

Include the Big 10, which has only Michigan and Ohio State playing past the regular season, and it's obvious the SEC is doing quite a bit more than holding its own.

Of all the bowl games, the biggest this season has to be the clash between Georgia and number-one ranked Pittsburgh in the Sugar Bowl.

Although the Rose, Orange and Cotton Bowls are generally considered the more glamorous because of the higher profits, the Sugar Bowl has lately concocted the best games. In 1973, unbeaten and number one ranked Alabama challenged Notre Dame in a classic showdown. Coach Ara Parseghian's Fighting Irish wound up on top in a thrilling 24-23 battle.

This year Georgia, the SEC champ with one lone loss, takes on Tony Dorsett's Panthers. Pitt has held onto the number one spot since Michigan fell to Purdue midway through the season. The once down-trodden Panthers solidified their hold on the poll's national championship by whipping Penn State in the season's finale. It gave coach Johnny Major's crew an undefeated season.

Majors has worked a true gridiron miracle since taking over the Panther reigns four years ago. After gaining national football prominence through the 1930's, the Panthers fell on hard times. The 1970's showed successive single victory seasons before Majors came to the rescue.

Since that time, Pitt has gone to three bowl games in four years. It all concluded this year with a hard-earned number one ranking.

Dorsett, of course, is the bread-and-butter man for the Panthers. Three things say it all—Heisman Trophy winner, three time All-American and all-time National Collegiate rushing champion with 6,082 yards. When the talk about the great ones, the Pennsylvania native might very well head the list.

It would be a mistake, however, to say Dorsett works alone. Although he has graduated, tackle Gary Burley did a great deal to improve the Panther fortunes. He now toils along the line of the Cincinnati Bengals.

And then there is Al Romano, a bull of a nose guard who makes it extremely hard to work up any kind of a running attack. Romano is a first team All-America selection and perhaps the outstanding defensive lineman in the country.

Georgia proved that it is without a doubt the class of the SEC this season. Coach Vince Dooley's Dogs are the first SEC team to capture a conference title other than Alabama in the past six years. They did it with a runt of a defense and a bullish sort of ground game.

Unlike most teams, Georgia grabs its strength from a remarkable offensive line. Tackle Mike Wilson and guard Joel Parrish can move worlds if they have to.

Of course the fact that it is the line—not the backfield or linebackers—doing the job causes the Dogs to be underrated by some. The fact is Georgia might very well be the best team in the nation this year. Ray Goff heads a sometimes explosive offense while the defense continually bends but doesn't break.

Pitt, of course, enters the game as the favorite but from here it looks like Georgia in an upset. Make it 24-21.

Coach Doug Dickey's Florida Gators, who came close to tying for the SEC championship but garnered no cigar, face Texas A&M in the Jan. 2 Sun Bowl in El Paso.

Florida is a sports question mark if there ever was one. The Gators always have all the talent in the world and appear on the verge of really breaking through. But towards the end of the season, when the weather turns cold in many parts of the country, the Gators simply fall apart.

Dickey has recently been criticized for failing to win a conference championship. This season Florida had an 8-3 record but lost two of its last three games. In a recent interview he blamed the press in many respects, SAYING "Some members of the press are unfair."

It wouldn't be unfair to say the Gators have a slew of talent. Wide receiver Wes Chandler is generally regarded as the best now playing in the college ranks. His speed is unbelievable and if it's near him he'll catch it. Quarterback Jimmy Fisher is as good as any thrower anywhere.

The Gators have a lot of trouble on defense—particularly against the run. They might wind up as fair game for the A&M Wishbone.

The Aggies play good, old-fashioned Lone Star State football. That means they run right at you and give up little on defense. The man to watch for the most part is linebacker Robert Jackson who may be the best in the land. Quick and rugged, Jackson backs up one of the nation's top defense.

Also a threat is placekicker Tony Franklin. At one point during this strange season, Franklin booted a field goal of over 60 yards. Not many can top that.

Florida has one of the nation's top offenses, put the Texas setting will prove to be too much. It looks like a 31-28 victory for the Aggies.

Of course the game with the most local interest is the Kentucky-North Carolina clash in the Peach Bowl.

The Cats use a strong running game combined with a rugged defense to get wherever they're going. Derrick Ramsey, Rod Stewart, Art Still, Jim Kovach, Mike Siganos and Warren Bryant have all become household names in Wildcat-land.

Most of the Tar Heel power comes from the offensive side of things. Mike Voight broke the all-time UNC rushing mark this season even though he missed most of four games with an injury. Coming out of a quarterback situation that can be called nothing but disastrous—the top two signal callers were injured prior to the outset of the season—freshman Matt Kupec has come on to do an outstanding job.

The game could turn out to be one of the better match-ups this season. Still, it's smart to go with the overall balance and pick Kentucky 21-13.

That would give the SEC a 3-1 bowl mark. Not bad at all.

SEC ROUNDUP

One Down And Three To Go In Bowl Games This Week

Birmingham, Ala. (Sp.) - It's one down and three to go for the Southeastern Conference bowl teams after Alabama smashed UCLA in the Liberty at Memphis Monday night, 36-6.

Next up is Kentucky, facing North Carolina in Atlanta's Peach Bowl on New Year's Eve. On New Year's Day Georgia takes on the nation's top-ranked team, Pittsburgh, in the Sugar Bowl classic before a Superdome sellout in New Orleans. Then Florida tackles Texas A&M the day after New Year's in the Sun Bowl at El Paso. All three plan to emulate the Tide victory.

The Crimson Tide crushed the Pac-8 Bruins with a combination of outstanding defense and alert offense. Bama carried the fight to UCLA from the opening kick-off and scored 17 points in the first quarter. They scored in every quarter to total 36 while shutting out the Bruins until the fourth period when the count was 30-0. From the line of scrimmage, UCLA outgained Bama 380 yards to 372, but the Tide defense smothered them in TD territory.

Alabama intercepted 3 UCLA passes and covered a fumble, while the offense lost neither fumble nor pass.

For Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant it was the 262nd victory, against just 75 defeats and 16 ties over a 32-year span as head coach at Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and his alma mater, Alabama. Currently, the total is 41 more than that of any other active coach. The number two active total belongs to Woody Hayes of Ohio State 221, with 65 losses and nine ties.

For the SEC, in the all-time rivalry with the Pacific-8 and predecessor Pacific Coast Conference, it was the 20th win against ten losses and a tie.

In the Peach Bowl, Kentucky Coach Fran Curci sends a strong running game, spearheaded by QB Derrick Ramsey and RB Rod Stewart, against North Carolina. Ramsey rushed for 771 yards and passed for 659 during the season to account for 17 touchdowns. Three-time All-SEC OT Warren Bryant won the Jacobs blocking trophy. Wildcat giants on defense are All-SEC end Art Still and LB Jim Kovach.

In the Sugar, SEC champ Georgia challenges Pittsburgh for the national championship. Coach Vince Dooley has SEC MVP Ray Goff at QB against Pitt's Tony Dorsett, Heisman trophy winner, three-time All-American and the all-time NCAA rushing champion with 6,082 yards.

In the Sun, Florida Coach Doug Dickey uses the speed of RB Willie Wilder and WR Wes Chandler with the finesse and passing ability of QB Jimmy Fisher against the Aggies. Fisher made 1,799 yards to produce 18 TDs, with Chandler getting 967 yards and ten TDs.

THE CATS' PAUSE

A Sports
Newspaper
on UK Athletics

"SPOTLIGHTING UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY AND SOUTHEASTERN CONFERENCE"

Here is the best news in years for UK sports fans! Now you can fully keep-up with Wildcat football, basketball and other athletics through "The Cats' Pause," a tabloid newspaper to be published at least 30 times per year!

"The Cats' Pause" will be the ultimate in Wildcat coverage giving in-depth attention to every aspect of the major athletic programs. Here is the perfect source of information on Big Blue activities -- player features, coaching columns, sketches of UK All Americans by the noted artist Ted Watts, SEC and national columns, heavy use of action photographs, quizzes, extensive reports from each of UK's opponents as they view the coming games, and much much more!

Every issue will have 24 or more pages, and will be mailed to your home or office if you act now by taking advantage of this introductory offer. Hurry! The 1976 season is here, and you won't want to miss a single issue!
